The two young men killed fifty alligators in the week that they hunted in this neighborhood. They begin hunting as soon as it becomes thoroughly dark. Their hunting outfit consists of a bull's-eye lantern, in camp language called "look-'em-up," a double-barreled shotgun, or "kill-'em-sure," and a hatchet, with which they split the alligator's skull, and to which they have given the very expressive name of "dynamite". The man who is to do the shooting for the night fastens the lantern to his forehead and takes his place in the bow of a small boat. His partner paddles the boat cautiously along the stream, while the man in the bow keeps a sharp lookout for alligators' eyes, which under favorable circumstances he can "shine" with his lantern at a distance of 200 yards. As soon as they discover a pair of eyes they paddle cautiously up to within a couple of feet of the alligator's head and discharge a load of buckshot into it. As soon as the shot is fired the paddle catches the alligator by the jaws, which he holds together with one hand, while he cleaves the skull open with his hatchet.

Sometimes the alligators retain considerable power of action. When such is the case it is rather exciting work getting them into the boat. Sometimes very large alligators turn the boat over. If an alligator is not handled at once after being wounded he sinks to the bottom and is lost.—N. Y. Sun.

Personalities.

Maj. Ben: Perley Poore in 1852 planted old Indian Hill, on his Massachusetts estate, with timber when the Agricultural Society offered a premium of $10,000 to the man who should raise the best forest timber within the next ten years. The Major took the prize.

Senator Bayard, of Deleware, is enjoying to the full the sweets of private life. He was found by a correspondent the other day on a pilot boat at Norfolk, Va., in his shirt sleeves, sprawled out on the deck reading Guizot's "History of Civilization."

Last Saturday a New York newspaper reporter met in that city a Sioux Indian Chief named Nooga, his squaw and sixteen-year-old daughter. They had just returned from Europe, having been traveling through Germany, France, Spain and other countries for a year, where they had been well received and had made "heap money." They were ticketed through to Nebraska.

The Michigan State University is the largest beneficiary from the liberality of the late Hon. Henry C. Lewis, of Coldwater. His will bequeathes his fine art gallery to the University. The collection is valued at from $200,000 to $400,000. He leaves his library of 30,000 volumes to become a Free Public Library for Coldwater, where he acquired the bulk of his fortune. Considerable statuary goes with it. Besides these liberal bequests are $10,000 to Kalamazoo College, $10,000 for missionary purposes, and $1,000 to the Baptist Sunday-School of Coldwater.

The two British Peers who have just died suddenly were among the most eccentric of their order. Lord Lauderdale, disappearing for years, was finally discovered acting as a baggage porter on a railroad line. The Duke of Wellington was chiefly remarkable for his fierce quarrels with his illustrious father. Once the old Duke was condoled by a friend because of a caricature of him in a comic paper. His reply, in presence of his hapless son, was that "the only caricature that annoyed him was that," poinning to his heir. The point of the remark was that the son bore an extraordinary but grotesque likeness to his father. He had the hooked nose and high cheek bones, but all this was rendered frightful by a small and weak chin, and a thin irresolute jaw.

Mrs. Rebecca Smith of Paradise township, Monroe county, Penn., in reply to an advertisement of her husband, Charles, cautioning the public not to trust her on his account, as she had left his bed and board without any just provocation, replies sharply that "the facts in the case, as he calls them, are false in every particular. First, he don't own nor never had a bed of his own; not even a straw tick to sleep upon. Second, and not the least, he has no board, as he alleges, nor anything to eat whatever of his own that can or will satisfy hunger. As for getting goods on his account, I don't think I could buy anything on his credit, regardless of his notice, whatever. Fortunately I don't have to buy anything on credit, and, even if I should my own credit would be equally as good, if not better, than his. As for cause and provocation I have sufficient. 'Truth will prevail.' I caution all persons against trusting him on my account, as I shall positivily pay no depts whatever contracted by him."

Sir John MacDonald, the present Premier of Canada, started in life as a bootblack at Glasgow.

A FRIEND OF ROOT'S.

A Peculiar Visit to the Treasury Fourteen Years Ago.

From a Washington Letter.

The silver vault of the treasury department is at last completed, and within a few days will receive the first consignment of standard dollars—about 5,000,000, in all. It will require the better part of a week to make this transfer from the old vault, which is badly overcrowded, to the new one. The system of gaurding the enormous sums of money which are daily handled by the department is so thorough and complete that only once in the last fifty years, have the repeated effort of cracksmen and confidence men been successful in defeating it. The particular incident referred to occurred in 1870, when Spinner was treasurer. The amount stolen was a package of 2,000 ten-dollar notes. The objective point of the thieves (two in number) was the division issue, the bureau at which the freshly engraved notes are delivered, to be counted and turned into the treasury.

Subsequent inquiry revealed the fact that the scheme for the robbery had been planned and matured several months previous, waiting meanwhile with the most commendable patience for a favorable opportunity to accomplish it. One day the wife of a prominent resident of Washington, in company with another lady and her husband, were passing the upper door of the room where the money packages were piled on a table to be counted. The first named lady and the chief of division were well acquainted. As she came to the open door they recognized and saluted each other, she with her friends advancing into the room. While in the act of doing so one of the thieves forced himself between her and her friends. He immediately entered into conversation with Mr. Root, the chief of the division, making inquiry as to the manufacture, receipt and counting of the notes. Root supposed him to belong to his friend's party, and was thus thrown entirely off his guard. The lady in turn supposed him to be an acquaintance of Root's. A moment later the two ladies with their gentleman escort sauntered carelessly to the further extremity of the room. The principal thief, whose observations were clever and pertinent, soon absorbed Root's whole attention. His conversation showed him to be a man of fine mind and cultivated manners. While chatting thus his accomplice hastily entered and approaching the messenger whose duty it was to watch the money packages, made some casual inquiries about a clerk who had long since been dead. The woman turned about to answer his inquiries. At this juncture thief No. 1 exclaimed: "Ah! I see my friends are leaving. I must join them." Root looked in the direction indicated. Sure enough the party were moving toward the door. His eyes were taken off of the stranger for only an instant, but in that time he had managed to secrete the package within the crown of his wide Panama hat, which he negligently swung in his left hand. The amazing coolness and audacity of the man was then shown by his polite invitation to Root to go out and "have something." The latter, however, declined with thanks, and the thief made his exit on the pretence of rejoining his friends. The money was missed within the hour that it was taken, but there was no suspicion that it had been stolen. On the supposition that it had not been received from the bureau of engraving and printing, twenty-four hours were allowed to elapse. When the fact of the theft was fully established, the aid of the telegraph and secret service detectives was freely employed. The effort was futile. The thieves escaped with their booty, and have never to this day been apprehended. The most singular feature of the affair is that the stolen package was only one of probably a score which contained notes of that denomination. The contents of the others were mainly $50 and $100 bills.

How Stanton was Snubbed.

A leading citizen of Tuscarawas county, Ohio, gives me the following about a curious old character named Blake, whose history is bound up in the earlier history of that region. "Old Blake" was the name he went by in Central Ohio. He will be remembered by the old citizens of Philadelphia and Canal Dover as one of the wealthiest, and most eccentric characters. He was for a time sheriff of the county, and performed the duty of hanging Fenson, the man who killed the postboy. As sheriff, Blake knew all the lawyers who practiced at the bar in the county, and he was especially well acquainted with Edwin M. Stanton, who often came over from Steubenville. Stanton was then a young man, and Blake took a sort of fatherly interest in him. After a time, however, he left Steubenville and the two men lost sight of each other.

At last, one winter when Stanton had gotten to be Secretary of War, Blake took a notion he would come to Washington to see him. He did so. On going to the War Department he asked to be shown to the Secretary's room. The messenger asked for his card and told him he would have to wait and see whether the Scretary could see him. This rather nettled Blake, who was a rough old customer, but he finally wrote down his name and the messenger departed. It was a full quarter of an hour before he returned and this to Blake seemed a day. He grew hotter and hotter as the time went on, and at last, marching up to the door, went into the reception room, then through into the private office, where the War Secretary was in council with some friends. He marched up to Stanton with a black look on his face, and, without giving him a chance to greet him, said: "Mr. Stanton, you no doubt think yourself a great man, but it seems to me you are acting like a mighty small one. Here I, who have helped you out of many a scrape, have been waiting for an hour down in that hall to see you. I don't want anything now except to tell you that you are a blanked snob, and you are getting a leetle too big for your breeches." With that he turned upon his heel and left. Whether they ever made up the quarrel I do not know.—Washington Letter to Cleveland Leader.

The Dublin jury unable to agree on a verdict in the case of Carr and Kirwan, tried jointly on an indictment for "conspiracy." The second trial of this case has been postponed to the next commission and the prisoners liberated on bail.

THE LADY'S "YES"

By Mrs. Browning.

"Yes," I answered you last night.
"No," this morning, sir, I say.
Colors seen by candle-light
Will not look the same by day.

When the viols play their best,
Lamps above and laughs below
Love me sounded like a jest,
Fit for yes or fit for no.

Call me false, or call me free—
Vow, whatever lights may shine
No man on your face shall see
Any grief for change on mine.

Yet the sin is on us both—
Time to dance is not to woo;
Wooing light makes fickle troth—
Scorn of me recoils on you.

Learn to win a lady's faith
Nobly, as the thing is high;
Bravely, as for life and death—
With loyal gravity.

Lead her from the festive boards,
Point her to the starry skies;
Guard her by your truthful words
Pure from courtship's flatteries.

By your truth she shall be true—
Even true as wives of yore—
And her yes, once said to you,
Shall be yes for evermore.

THE SOMERSCOURT SPECTRE.

London Truth.

Miss Annersleigh of Somerscourt, Sussex, was rich, benevolent and crotchety, and the sole surviving representative of an ancient line of more or less remarkable "characters." Among the more pronounced of her eccentricities were an infatuation for patronizing new and out of the way charitable schemes and projects, and the demonstration of a keen interest in the welfare of the Rev. Amos Hartley, the curate of the parish. It was a moot point as to which peculiarity was the most marked, and certainly, while the one laid her open to numberless and perpetual impostures, the other excited in local circles an amount of "talk" and tea-table scandal that her age and charity scarcely availed to avert.

The gossippers declared their utter inability to discover the bond of sympathy apparently existing between the curate and his patroness. He was, as they rightly observed, about the most commonplace curate of forty-five that ever prosed through a sermon, and but for a certain spirituelle dreaminess occasionally apparent in his plain face, he would have been an exceedingly uninteresting person.

But despite these obvious drawbacks Mr. Hartley had succeeded in securing the friendship of Somerscourt, and was apparently firmly established alike in her good graces and her household. His position there was somewhat anomalous. He acted as Miss Annersleigh's amanuensis in all matters pertaining to the lavish distribution of her charity, and if report spoke truly, was her confidential adviser in mundane and spiritual matters alike.

In spite of occasional outbursts of scandal Mr. Hartley continued to enjoy the sweets of his office; judging by frequent remarks of regard and confidence conferred upon him by his patroness, the mutual understanding and sympathy increased with time. The curate spent the greater portion of his days at Somerscourt, where a suite of apartments was always at his disposal. For upward of five years had this state of things continued, when, to the consternation of the parish, and to the inestimable grief of Miss Annersleigh, Mr. Hartley was suddenly attacked by a severe illness, to which he succumbed within a week, breathing his last in the room he was wont to occupy in the house of his friend.

The demonstrations of grief indulged in by Miss Annersleigh, gave rise to further, though somewhat qualified, talk, until the sorrow of the old lady began to manifest in the shape of a handsome "In memoriam" donations to local institutions. Then the tongues of the "talkers" ceased to wag and the critics were prepared to see in the friendship of the old lady for the deceased curate proof of her characteristic goodness of heart.

Nearly a year had elapsed since the death of Mr. Hartley, when one cheerless October afternoon a card was brought in to Miss Annersleigh, who was finding surcease of sorrow in auditing the local blanket fund accounts. The visitor proved to be the bearer of a letter of introduction to the mistress of Somerscourt. He was a well-dressed man of thirty-five or thereabouts, and decidedly gentlemanlike, though an experienced eye might have detected some of those indescribable outward and visible signs that are indelibly impressed upon the countenance of the man who has been much occupied in living by his wits. The letter was apparently in the handwriting, and bore the signature of an ecclesiastical dignitary attached to the diocese, who had had twice honored Miss Annersleigh by dining with her on the occasion of his preaching a sermon on behalf of one of her pet charities. He introduced the bearer, Mr. Edmund Barstead, as the pious protector of a scheme for training the daughters of the indigent to qualify as wives to missionaries of the Madagascar Eucharistic society. The letter concluded with a florid compliment to the religious zeal of the old lady and to the earnestness and ability of Mr. Barstead, whom the writer warmly commended to her friendship and hospitality.

She read the letter through twice very deliberately and then proceeded to elicit information as to the aims, objects and past achievements of Mr. Barstead, all of which he seemed very able to provide; in fact he proved himself an exceedingly well-informed and entertaining man. He recounted modestly and inferentially sundry romantic and startling adventures incurred by him in the prosecution of his good work in benighted Madagascar, and he seemed so pious and enthusiastic, and possessed so extensive an acquaintance with people and places sacred to Miss Annersleigh by their association with all that was good and interesting, that she began to feel a deep liking and admiration for this intrepid, good-looking missionary propagandist. When he recognized with joyful surprise a little pamphlet written by herself on "The Missionary Duties and privileges of Married Women" the bond of sympathy was complete. He was the first person who owned to having read her little book without being pressed so to do by the authoress, and she felt grateful to him and happy,—so happy, in fact, that she failed to detect the slight acquaintance with the book which his comments and criticisms implied, until he had rapidly glanced over a few pages of it.

Miss Annersleigh would not hear of her visitor returning to the post town that night as he proposed, especially as he wished to see the vicar of the parish early next morning. Besides, the return involved a walk of several miles, and it was now dark and threatening rain. So Mr. Barstead reluctantly allowed himself to be persuaded to occupy the spare bedroom, which Brewer, the man of all work, was directed to see prepared.

Brewer, who had caught the last of the protests of the guest, thought it somewhat odd that a visitor who came with no intention of staying should bring a large Gladstone bag with him. But surprises were common in that house, and he held his tongue.

Several times during the evening the hostess casually introduced the name of the late curate; and she recalled afterward that her visitor invariably politely averted any further remarks on that subject.

The evening passed very agreeably, the advent of the entertaining stranger proving a pleasant break in the monotony that had pervaded Somerscourt since Mr. Hartley's death, and the old lady lay awake some time evolving schemes for prolonging the stay of her visitor.

At breakfast next morning Mr Barstead appeared singularly dull and distrait. He repudiated the notion of indisposition kindly suggested by his hostess, but on her pressing the point he admitted not feeling altogether as he should like.

"The fact is," said he, half apologetically, "I had rather a bad night."

Miss Annersleigh looked up over her spectacles and calculated an interogative "indeed."

Yes," he continued diffidently; "I had a very remarkable dream—or vision. In fact, it was so vivid that I can hardly believe it was a dream."

"You don't say so," remarked Miss Annersleigh, with painful earnestness. "What was it?"

"Well, if I were a believer in the supernatural, I should say most emphatically that a tall, dark man, in the dress of a clergyman, stood by the side of my bed and beckoned me to follow him."

Miss Annersleigh stared with astonishment.

"A clergyman, did you say?" she gasped.

"Yes; most decidedly. He was rather pale, and I should think about forty-five years of age. He carried in his hand—why, bless me, yes, it was that very book!" exclaimed Mr. Barstead, indicating a vellumbound cash book upon an adjacent table, which was the book in which the deprated curate used to keep a record of Miss Annersleigh's financial dealings with her multifarious charities.

Now, like most persons sufficiently strong-minded to the eccentric, Miss Annersleigh was, when she pleased, very shrewd and calculating, and, though not indisposed to subscribe to the theories of the ghost-seers, she was not so credulous as to be blind to the chances of deception. A moment's reflection suggested the hypothesis that Mr. Barstead had been told by the servants that a man had died in his room, and that the vision was the effect of morbid cogitations, or even nervousness.

"Have any of the servants told you what has occurred in this house?" she asked.

"Told me what has occurred! You surely don't mean to say that the house has the reputation of being haunted?"

"Certainly not that I am aware of; but there has been a death here," she added slowly.

"Please don't tell me any more," quickly interrupted Mr. Barstead. "I had assumed as much, but I assure you I had no knowledge of the fact. But since you have told me this, my curiosity has been aroused, and while disclaiming any belief in the supernatural, I am anxious to be afforded an opportunity of investigating any alleged phenomena, I must confess that my dream has made a great impression upon me, as you have, doubtless, observed. May I ask if the description I gave you bears any resemblance to that of the person you say died here?"

"It is exact," said Miss Annersleigh, in an awesome whisper, "And that incident of the book is marvellous. He had it so much in his possession."

Mr. Barstead appeared thunderstruck and mused a minute before again speaking. "This is most remarkable," said he. "I have been frequently told that I am a medium."

"A medium!" exclaimed Miss Annersleigh, excitedly, the revelations having made a deeper impression upon her than she cared to own.

"Yes, a meduim, and, as such, I should have the faculty of seeing ghosts when they are to be seen. Now I should very much like to occupy that room again, to see if any further manifestations occur."

Miss Annersleigh entered a mild protest on the score of the alarm such a course might occasion her visitor, but he assured her most emphatically that his nerves were equal to the strain. After a short conversation, therefore, in which the curiosity and interest of Miss Annersleigh asserted themselves more than she was aware, Mr. Barstead's proposal was agreed to, he emphasizing the necessity of his being kept in ignorance of any facts affecting the late Mr. Hartley that might stimulate the imagination.

The day turned out stormy and miserable, and Mr. Barstead to whom time seemed of no importance, agreed to postpone his intended visit to the vicar, and the further development of his philanthropic scheme. This new distraction had completely monopolized all the attention of his hostess, who abandoned herself to listening to the numberless stories and theories bearing on the subject of the Occult, with which her guest seemed surprisingly familiar.

When tete-a-tete in the cosy dining room after dinner, Miss Annersleigh grew spiritualisticaly confidential. She confessed that a deceased friend, who should be nameless, was "very much inclined to believe in such things," and, in return for Mr. Barstead's narrations, she told him of an apparition distinctly seen and sworn to by a friend of her married sister's cousin.

At an early hour Mr. Barstead retired to his room, fortified by no security against fear beyond the assurance of his hostess' admiration for his courage and a night-light, which he proposed to burn all night.

This spirit of reckless hardihood was in no degree shared by the old lady. The prospect of passing the night alone was too much for her; and, on the pretext of not feeling well, the housemaid was requested to share her mistress' room. But in spite of this, she could not sleep. The distance of Mr. Barstead's room from her own precluded the possibility of her hearing anything that might occur there; but twice during the night she cowered moist and trembling beneath the bed clothes, as she fancied she heard strange noises coming from the direction of the haunted chamber.

When Miss Annersleigh said "Good-morning" to her guest at breakfast she started with surprise at the change the night had wrought in him. He was pale, and haggard and wan, and, to her expectant eyes, presented just the appearance that tradition and fancy would attribute to one after holding communion with a shade of the departed.

"He must have enjoyed hisself with that bottle last night," was the mental comment of the old servitor on noticing the same symptoms.

Mr. Barstead was in no hurry to reveal the secrets of the dead chamber, but the sickly expressive smile with which he acknowledged the salutation of his hostess conveyed all it was intended to.

Miss Annersleigh pretended to be interested in the platitudal comments on the weather, past and prospective, in which the ghost-seer indulged while occupied over his first cup of coffee, but her impatience and curiosity at length asserted themselves. Leaning over the table she peered into the face of her guest and whispered, "Did it come?"

Mr. Barstead hesitated a minute, as a man does who is called upon to make a statement that he feels no one will believe.

"Really I fear I am causing you unnecessary agitation over a simple, not to say silly, matter," he answered.

Miss Annersleigh stoutly asserted that she was not in the slightest degree agitated or upset, but confessed to an amount of curiosity.

"Well, then," he resumed, "up to this morning I was quite prepared to believe that all I had experienced was the effect of a disordered imagination; but there are certain facts which we cannot get over," and he paused contemplatively, while he played with a piece of paper in his side pocket. "But I'll tell you what occured, I dropped off to sleep very quickly," said he, again hesitating, as if to allow his litsener time to express her admiration for his coolness. "I had been asleep about two hours, when I was awakened by a consciousness that some one was standing over me. I glanced toward the foot of the bed, and there stood the figure I had seen on the previous night. I saw it so distinctly that I was able to distinguish several features I failed to notice on the first occassion. The figure was tall, had a bald patch on its head, and a small scar beneath the chin."

"Good heavens!" exclaimed Miss Annersleigh, excitedly.

"Perhaps it would be better if you refrained from giving me any clue as to the identification of the person," interrupted Mr. Barstead, suavely. "If there is anything in it, I can then be satisfied that this apparition is not the result of any previous knowledge on my part of the person you suppose it to be."

Miss Annersleigh saw the logic of the suggestion, and promised to abstain from further interruptions. Mr. Barstead continued:

"After a moment or two the figure beckoned to me, and made a sign, as if desiring me to write. I got out of bed, procured writing material, and sat at the table. The figure approached me slowly and noiselessly. I recollect placing the pen upon the paper, as if about to begin to write, but nothing more. The next thing of which I was conscious was suddenly awaking, feeling perfectly chilled. I was sitting at the table holding the pen and my light had gone out, I got into bed, certain that I was suffering from nightmare, and after an effort fell off to sleep. On rising this morning I immediately looked at the paper. You may imagine my astonishment at finding it written upon in a hand I did not recognize."

As he spoke he produced the paper, at which he had been nervously pulling all the time. It was a sheet of note paper, and scrawled upon it in a peculiar handwriting, which Miss Annersleigh immediately recognized as that of the deceased clergyman, was the following:—

"Will this satisfy you? Accept the medium. Let him fill my place. He is worthy of your friendship. Will communicate again.

AMOS."

"What does it mean?" asked Miss Annersleigh, in a tone that betokened great excitement and agitation, "It is his own handwriting; I should know it among a thousand. And oh, Mr. Barstead, it does satisfy me! But you must excuse me—I feel ill—it is too much," and Miss Annersleigh left the room abruptly, while Mr. Barstead looked on in puzzled bewilderment. When the door had closed upon the old lady her guest skipped across the room, rubbing his hands, and his countenance lit up with an expression of delight that contrasted strangely with his previous depression.

"Trumps at last!" he chuckled. "Trumps at last!"

Half an hour later Miss Annersleigh returned, somewhat more composed, and while finishing her interrupted repast, she confided to Mr. Barstead the cause of her emotion. "Poor Mr. Hartley was a spiritualist," she said, "and we used to discuss the subject; but I was always sceptical till now. It is evident that you are a medium."

Mr. Barstead owned that it was all very strange, but that if it were agreeable to his hostess, he would be most happy to stay a day or two for the purpose of trying to obtain further communications.

That very afternoon he was seized with a peculiar trembling fit while sitting at a table and proceeded to write as if in a dream.

Mrs. Annersleigh again recognized the handwriting, and though the message it conveyed was somewhat vague, it contained allusions to private matters which a stranger like Mr. Barstead could not have known. Further sittings produced even more satisfactory results, and proved the visitor to be a writing medium of no ordinary power. The messages increased at every sitting, though Miss Annersleigh remarked that the caligraphic accuracy was not continued.

Mr. Barstead regarded the whole business as a puzzle. He could not, he said, bring himself to believe in spiritualism, but the fact of his writing particulars concerning a person he had never heard of before, astonished him.

Two days passed, but the pair were too absorbed in the new distraction to have a thought for the object that brought Mr. Barstead to Somerscourt. He seemed in no way eager to expedite matters until the morning of the fourth day. On the previous evening a message had been received from the spirit of the defunct curate, implying delicately, but unmistakably, that the medium was in need of the aid of the hostess, but that his loftiness of soul prevented his asking for that help which she could so well afford. Mr. Barstead had made a practice of handing the messages direct to Miss Annersleigh, instead of himself reading them, on finding that some of them were of an exceedingly private character—a delicacy which Miss Annersleigh did not fail to appreciate. Of course, therefore, he was quite ignorant of the nature of this particular communication, and when next morning the old lady presented him with a handsome check, he was fairly overcome with emotion.

He, however, now suddenly seemed to remember the cause he had at heart; so taking advantage of the check book being on the table, he advanced the claims of his society," and easily obtained a check for £50. Then he reluctantly declared he must return to town, and after consoling his hostess by an assurance that he would come back again in two days at most, he set out, announcing his intention of calling on the vicar on his way.

Miss Annersleigh occupied the tedium of absence by writing an account of the remarkable manifestations for the Society for Physical Research. But it was never sent, as before it was completed circumstances transpired which caused her to institute inquiries respecting the departed medium, such inquiries being rendered the most urgent by reason of his unexplained continued absence, and by a letter from the ecclesiastical introducer to whom she had written, in which he disclaimed any knowledge of Mr. Barstead.

The matter remained a mystery for some weeks; in fact, until an old servant called on Miss Annersleigh to ask if she could be taken back into service, as her intended husband had written saying that he had been unexpectedly "called to America and the date of his return was most uncertain." On being casually given a description of the wandering lover, Miss Annersleigh discovered, to her astonishment, that he bore a strong resemblance to Mr. Barstead. She ventured to suggest that they were one and the same person; but the old domestic was most indignant at the idea, adding she was certain her "Robert" could not have been guilty of such an inposition, as he was a religiously disposed man and a great admirer of poor dear Mr. Hartley, whose paths he always told her he intended to follow.

Earthquake Weather.

Thomas B. Lewis, of California.—I should not be surprised if this coast were treated to another earthquake this week. It is just the weather for them. A yellowish, hazy atmosphere and the continued presence of low hanging clouds. In California the biggest shocks have occurred in the month of October. I have seen a wooden house completely turned around on its foundations, so that you had to climb into the back yard to pull the front door bell. Earthquakes, in my opinion, are due either to electrical disturbances or the expansive power of steam on the earth's crust. How is this steam generated? By subterranean streams of water pouring upon the earth's central fires. In Yucatan there are miles and miles of these hidden streams which, so far as they have been sounded have proved unfathomable. No one who has once experienced a "sure enough" earthquake can ever attribute a similar experience to any other cause. The first impulse, when you are used to them, is to time the recurrence and duration of the shocks.

A Healthful Habit.

One of the best evidences that the American people of this generation live better than their fathers did is found in the steady and rapid growth of the trade in tropical fruits. It is not many years since the great majority of people scarcely knew what a banana was, and considered oranges and lemons as luxuries to be afforded only in sickness or on great occasions, Now, not only these, but other tropical fruits, are bought and eaten almost as generally and freely as apples, and the consumption of melons, peaches, pears, plums and berries is on the same universal and extensive scale. This is a change which tends not only to gratify the taste, but to promote health, which is the foundation of human happiness, and is of advantage to everybody. There is little danger that any community will spend too much money for ripe and sound fruit.

Hired Men.

Several papers are discussing the short comings of hired men, and asking why they will disregard their employer's interest. We think there is much human nature in hired men as in employers. If a man works his help as long as they can see and then expects them to do the chores by lantern, feeds them on the plainest coarsest food, that is hardly fit to put on the table, takes it easy himself till about 11 o'clock and then goes out and hurries them up till noon, and does the same in the afternoon, and then skips out after supper and leave them to do the chores, and gives them to understand by his whole bearing that his object is to get all he can out of them with the least expense of pay and provision, they will rebel and look out for themselves if they know enough to be worth employing.—New Hamshire Times.

The Demand for Horses.

Boston Commercial Bulletin. A prominent auctioneer states that the sales this year have been fully 20 per cent. larger than last year, despite the fact that general business has been so quiet. The demand for horses is increasing every year, and, as the supply does not appear to increase in the same proportion, prices are running higher, and this year range from 15 to 25 per cent. higher than last year. The main demand is for good roading horses, those having good size, style and action. A reasonable degree of speed is looked for, horses being expected to road ten miles an hour easily. Great speed is not a customary desideratum, but is rarely objected to.

THE HOME CIRCLE AND FARM.

Home Hints.

Cure for case of tic douloureux: Yolk of one egg beaten with two teaspoonfuls of sweet oil; then put over a moderate heat and stir, letting it harden; add two teaspoonfuls of laudanum; stir well; and lastly add two teaspoonfuls of spirits of ammonia; stir quickly, and apply at once to the part affected. This I have known to cure several cases, one being of long standing.

A good plan for preserving a paper is to sew together the papers of each month; no one will tear them up accidentally, as it will be evident to all that some one values them and intends to preserve them. Lay them in a straight pile with the first number of the month on top; the last one at the bottom, and sew through the backs with strong thread.

Still another way to utilize the juice of fruit which you do not need to put with the fruit into the cans. Add gelatine to the boiled and strained juice and make delicious jelly. To a pint of juice a little over a tablespoonful of the undissolved gelatine should be added; dissolve it in a little of the cold juice. Then stir it gradually into the rest of it, which should be hot. Let it remain over the fire for three minutes, or about that length of time, then pour into a bowl or mould.

Bright, Durable Rag Carpet is used on many kitchens. Where people do not employ several servants it is a great saving of labor. If it is thoroughly swept every day it will keep fresh and clean a long time. The majority of housekeepers do not pay as much attention to their kitchens as they should. They should be kept scrupulously clean, and should not contain but the necessary articles of furniture. Some people carry the craze for decoration into their kitchens, and ornament the walls with all kinds of gimcracks. This may be well enough on a flat, where the housekeeper does most of her own work, and when she is a dainty individual; but it does not do in an ordinary kitchen. Painted walls, a painted or rag-carpeted floor, and well-startched white Swiss curtains are what are needed in kitchens.—American Queen.

Farm Paragraphs.

It is a bad policy for a farmer to cultivate only one crop. If that fails he has lost his entire year's work; but if he cultivates several crops some of them are almost sure to succeed, and some will command a renumerative price.

A citizen of Iowa estimates that there is enough consumed by the dogs of that state to feed 100,000 persons, and, with the damage done the sheep interest, cost more than the sum required annually for educational purposes.

A cow that produces only half a pound of butter per day will cost as much for its keep as one that produces two pounds. This difference in a head of fifteen or twenty cows is sufficiently large to make all the difference to a farmer's family between poverty and wealth.—Rural Canadian.

There is no need bothering about a cow's pulse to find out if she is well or not; simply look at her nose. If well, it will be moist and cold; if feverish, dry and hot. She is like a dog in this respect. A staring coat or a hollow eye are also points indicating trouble, and as symptoms of disease they are more to be dreaded than the dry nose.—American Dairyman.

The English agricultural societies practice one thing worthy of attention here. It is the giving of premiums on a farm dairy as a whole. The judges visit the farm and inspect everything connected with the dairy. A farm of one hundred acres must have at least forty cheeses on hand at the time of inspection. For such a dairy the first prize is $60. Then ten cheeses selected by the farmer, must be sent to the fair for public exhibition, when the prizes are declared.

Professor Henry says: I would urge that our farmers give more oats to young stock, colts as well as calves. There is no food so easily attainable that will so well correct acidity of the stomach and keep the whole system in good order. To those who wish to raise calves on very little milk I would say, use oats and oil meal freely, and by studying the wants of those calves you will be able to raise fine animals on a small allowance of milk.

"Over a Coffin-Lid."

"She—was—a—good—wife—to—me! A good wife, God bless her!"

The words were spoken in trembling accents over a coffin-lid. The woman asleep there had borne the heat and burden of life's long day, and no one had ever heard her murmur; her hand was quick to reach out in a helping grasp to those who fell by the wayside, and her feet were swift on errands of mercy; the heart of her husband had trusted in her; he had left her to long hours of solitude while he amused himself in scenes which she had no part. When boon companions deserted him; when fickle affection selfishly departed, when pleasure palled, he went home and found her waiting for him.

"Come from your long, long roving,
On life's sea so bleak and rough,
Come to me tender and loving
And I shall be blest enough."

That has been her love-song—always on her lips or in her heart. Children had been born to them. She had reared them almost alone—they were gone! Her hand had led them to the uttermost edge of the morning that has no noon. Then she had comforted him, and sent him out strong and wholehearted, while she stayed at home and—cried. What can a woman do but cry?—and trust?

Well, she is at rest now. But she could not die until he had promised to "bear up," not to fret, but to remember how happy they had been. They? Yes, it was even so. For she was blest in giving, and he in receiving. It was an equal partnership after all.

"She—was—a—good—wife—to—me."

Oh, man! man! Why not have told her so, when her ears were not dulled by death? Why wait to say these words over a coffin wherein lies a wasted, weary, gray-haired woman, whose eyes have so long held that pathetic story of loss and suffering and patient yearning, which so many women's eyes reveal—to those who read? Why not have made the wilderness in her heart blossom like the rose with the prodigality of your love? Now you would give worlds—were they yours to give—to see the tears of joy your words would have once caused, be-jeweling the closed windows of her soul. It is too late.

"We have careful thoughts for the stranger,
And smiles for the sometimes guest—
But oft for our own
The bitter tone
Though we love our own the best."

Growing House-Plants in Moss.

In some of the Swiss villages nearly all the inhabitants are engaged in watchmaking. They work in large rooms, which, being abundantly lighted and well warmed, allow the workmen to cultivate plants that, on account of the uncertainty and rigor of the climate, cannot be grown in the open air. The president of one of the local horticultural societies in Switzerland gives, in the "Revue Horticole," an account of the great success with which plants are cultivated in moss in these watch factories. One great advantage in the use of moss is the readiness with which plants may be grouped in large vases and boxes. In France a "fertilized moss" is sold; but ordinary moss, with occasional application of liquid fertilizers, will answer as well. Ordinary sphagnum, or peat moss, such as is used by florists in packing, may be employed but the writer prefers the moss which grows in sheets upon rock and around the trunks of trees at their base. Wire baskets lined with this moss are used, jardinieres of metal, glazed pottery, etc., taking care to provide sufficient drainage. The liquid fertilizer used on these house plants should be without unpleasant odor; weak guano water, solutions of nitrate of soda or sulphate of ammonia may be employed, and very fine flour of bone may be mixed with the moss.

Woman Soon to Propose Marriage.

A correspondent believes that the old-fashioned courtship is passing away, and after asking what are to be the regulations of courtship during the transitional epoch, answers as follows: "Nominally and theoretically the man does all the courting, but really and practically women are taking the matter into their own hands. Enough of the restraint of chivalry has remained to prevent them from openly proposing marriage to the objects of their choice; but there are a thousand ways in which a lady of tact may woo, and yet not transcend the bounds of etiquette. The present method is a hybrid between the one-sided courtship of knightly days and the custom which will prevail when women have their proper position in the perfected society in the future. In a word, courtship is now evidently drifting womanward, by which we mean that the ladies will constantly take a more and more active part in it, until in that day when woman shall have her rights, the most important of which is marriage, it will be as common for women to offer their hands to men as it is for men to propose to women. Oh, lucky day for bashful bachelors!"—Home Journal.

The Significance of Rings.

It is understood that a gentleman who desires to marry wears a plain or chased gold ring upon the first finger of the left or heart hand. When he becomes engaged the ring passes to the second finger. After marriage it passes to the third finger. If, however, the gentleman desires his lady friends to clearly understand that he is not "in the market" and does not wish to marry at all, he wears the signet upon his little finger. This will inform all ladies that he is beyond reach. With the ladies a plain or chased gold ring on the little finger of the left hand indicates "not engaged" or ready for an offer. When engaged the ring passes to the third finger of the right hand. When married the third finger on the left hand receives the ring. When a young lady desires to defy all suitors she places rings—one on the first and one on the fourth finger. A writer on the subject of rings says: "Though the ring of gold has long been looked upon as a necessity in the marriage ceremony, it is by no means indispensible, and civil marriages may be contracted without it. The Puritans abolished the ring, or, rather tried to do so; they looked upon its use as superstitious and of heathen origin, but the ladies of that persuasion has shown a decided perference for its continuance on account of the individuous position in which a married lady might be placed for the want of it. Wedding rings are placed on the left hand to typify obedience. The converse is probably the reason why the engagement band is placed on the third right-hand finger of a fiancee, who still possesses a large amount of freedom, and frequently exercises her power in an arbitrary manner."—Brooklyn Eagle.

The Ounce of Sulphur.

No doubt the old-fashioned custom of mixing a bowl of molasses with a proper proportion of sulphur and cream of tartar every spring and fall, and of serving out a regular ration to the family, old and young, before breakfast for a few days successively, had its usefulness in preventing and avoiding the common disorders of these seasons. But certainly something like this, if not the very same might be usefully employed for our domestic animals. Sulphur is a very useful medicine, having laxative, alternative, and diaphoretic properties; that is, it empties and cleanses the bowels; it changes the character of the secretions and healthfully modifies the vital functions when given in small repeated doses without acting upon the bowels; and it causes an enlarged transportation, or perspiration, through the skin by which much impure matter is carried off in that way.

And these effects may frequently prevent serious disease—such as blackleg among calves—which are more easily prevented than cured. For the minor ailments which trouble all sorts of domestic animals at this season, and chiefly those which affect the skin—such as irritation and congestion which cause horses to rub off the main and tail in efforts to relieve themselves; hidebound; mange and lice; there is no more safe and useful medicine than sulphur and no better way to give it than to mix with twice its bulk of molasses and smear it over the teeth and tongue. Or it may be given in half ounce doses to a full-grown animal with as much cream of tartar in the morning feed or in a bran-mash in the evening.—J. N. H.

Chewing the Cud.

From the Scientific American.

Every child in the country has stood and watched this curious operation, and wondered what the lump was which he saw come up the cow's throat and then go down again after she had chewed it for a certain length of time. And perhaps he may have seen the anxiety and turmoil produced on a farm by the report that some one of the cows had "lost her cud," and as the result of this excitement he may have seen the absurd attempt to "make a new cud," in the hope that the cow would by such means be restored to good condition. There is in the minds of a large proportion of the readers so little understanding of the true nature of "chewing the cud" that a few words concerning it may not be amiss.

A few large tribes of animals, of which sheep and cows are only familiar examples, are called in natural history Ruminantia, because they ruminate—they they chew their cud. They do so because their peculiar organs of digestion require it; they can get nourishment in no other way. They have, it is said in the books, four stomachs, but the statement is not strictly correct, for the entire digestion is done in a single one, that which is called the fourth, the other three being only places for preparatory work.

Their food is swallowed without being chewed; the chewing is to come later. When this unchewed food is swallowed it passes directly into the first stomach; to use the common term; but the drink which the animal takes goes straight past the entrance of the first into the second. These two serve only to soak and soften the coarse food. Then, when the first has done what it can, the food passes out of it into the second, and then the cow or sheep is ready to "chew the cud."

The second stomach, while busily at work in soaking the food, keeps it in motion, and gradually rolls it up into masses, so that in the small upper part there is formed an oblong solid lump of the size that we recognize as the "cud." This the animal throws up into the mouth, and chews with evidently, as much satisfaction as the same act of mastication gives us when we put the most delicate morsels between our teeth. When it is sufficiently chewed the mass is swallowed and its place taken by another which had been rolled up in the meantime.

But the "cud" thus masticated does not return to the second stomach, from which it had come. It passes smothly into the third, a place for additional lubrication and then into the fourth, whese the true digestion begins and ends.

This is, in brief, the whole story, and we see how naturally the chewing comes in; it is the same as in our own case, only that it is at a different stage of the food's progress. And we see also what "losing the cud" really is. The cow or sheep is suffering from indigestion; the "second stomach" has failed to roll up the little masses suitable for chewing, and there is nothing which the poor beast can bring up. Of course, therefore the one thing required is to restore the tone and power of the stomach; not to burden it with an "artful cud," which would only increase the difficulty, instead of relieving it.

Bonner the Ledger Man.

New York Letter: Mr. Bonner is not a selling man in any sense. Pretty much everything he buys is bought to keep. All the fast horses he has bought, and which still remain in his possession. When he makes an investment in that line, or any other, it is permanent. He has had many opportunities to sell the Ledger, at an almost fabulous price, but he would not even consider the question of selling. He takes a pride in the paper and a pleasure in conducting it, and he intends to keep full charge of it while he lives. He has also had scores of offers for the block of ground he owns on Fifth avenue, just below Central Park, but he has also refused to sell. These lots are said to have cost him about $10,000 each, and each now is worth $50,000 or $60,000. The plot is the only one on the avenue, below the park, that remains unimproved. It is now getting on to thirty years since Mr. Bonner took hold of the Ledger and began making his fortune. The Ledger when he purchased it was a cheap sort of a business paper, with a very small local circulation. He had already made some money, and he sunk most of it in putting the new Ledger on its legs. His enormous advertising and his payment of $100 a column to Fannie Fern (who is now nearly forgotten) for special articles, were the talk and wonder of the time. Some said he was rushing to ruin, but he was confident from the first that his plan would pay, and it certainly did. I have never seen an estimate of Mr. Bonner's actual wealth, but it runs well into millions, at all events. And not many years before he took the Ledger in hand he landed as a friendless youth from Ireland, with almost empty pockets.

Guizot's Remembrance of His Wife.

I retire to my room at about 9 o'clock, lock myself in, and then only find a little breathing space. I need the most complete solicitude in order to be really with her again. When I am alone, quite alone, seated in her armchair, beside her bed, with her portrait before me, her letters on my table, then, if she is not there, I am at least altogether given up to her, I have all that remains to me of her, I give her all my thought, all my soul, as I used to do every night when we met not to part till the morrow. It is a bitter a harrowing pleasure to copy thus for an hour or two my happiness of the past, our life in common, to think, I being alone, what I should have said to her, to tell myself what she would have said to me. And yet it is the only moment when life is not a hateful burden, the only moment when all is not hypocrisy and constraint. I have taken up a few of the books we read together—Petrarch, among others, which had charmed her—I mark, I copy the passages she would have liked.—Guizot's Letters.

Last Sunday, the tenth Catholic church (that of St. Francis de Sales,) erected in St. Paul, was dedicated by Bishop Ireland, assisted by a number of the clergy. The church both inside and outside, the priest's house and the new school, were appropriately decorated with evergreens and flowers.

Polk County Journal.

H. R. COOKE, Publisher.

CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

New York aldermen gave away the franchise of the Broadway surface railroad for no consideration whatever to the city, though it is suspected that the aldermen were benefitted to the sum of $500,000, and it is stated that parties were anxious to pay the city over a million. Of course, there is great indignation, but the horse is stolen.

New York has added 10,000,000 gallons of water a day to the Croton supply of 93,000,0000. This extra supply comes from a lake that is fed exclusively by springs, and is turned into the Croton pipes after it reaches the city. Over fifty gallons a day to each inhabitant would seem to be more than ample, as it is, but the largest portion is used for public purposes, and waste, which is immense.

The late Senator Anthony of Rhode Island, took his seat in the Senate of the United States on the 5th of December 1859. Of the men who sat in the Senate with Mr. Anthony that day not one is a member of that body now, and very few are still living. Public life in this country is camparatively short. A seat in the senate, the summit with few exceptions, of political ambition, is rarely held more than twelve years, the limit of two terms.

France and Germany, and in fact all European nations, explain their military activity by saying that in order to preserve the peace, war establishments must be kept in the highest condition of readiness for emergencies. The time will come, it seems certain, when the tax-ridden people will protest in violent and effective terms against the hypocritical pretences of sovereigns and princes, who pursue the policy of turning plowshares into baynots instead of the reverse. There will surely be, at no distant day, either general disarmament or a general revolution.

United States Consul Piexatto, at Lyons, France, has forwarded report to the department of state relative to crops this year in France. He says: "The wheat crop will amount to about 316,000,000 bushels, which will surpass the harvest of 1883 by over 30,000,000 bushels. The quality is excellent. The rye crop will equal 70,000,000 bushels and quality very superior. Indian corn will amount to 33,000,000 bushels and the potato crop 412,000,000 bushels." Reports from England's continentat countries also report a fine wheat crop. The English crop in particular has rarely been so fine.

Of the $300,000 appropriated by congress for the New Orleans Exposition, $75,000 was apportioned to the Smithsonian Institution. That institution has begun the preparation of its exhibit. A number of agents have been sent to different sections of the country to collect specimens, so that a complete exhibit of the various branches of the deparment can be made. These exhibits will consist of as complete and exhaustive collections as can be obtained of mammals, birds, building straw textiles, animal products, fishes, shells, and gems and minerals. The gems to be exhibited are valued at about $10,000, and consists of specimens from all over the world.

Pennsylvanians are celebrating the twenty-fifth anniversary of the striking of the first oil well, near Titusville. That has grown to 38,000 wells, 20,000 of which are still producing, and the ten barrels a day with which the infant enterprise began has grown to a daily production varying during the past four or five years, between 65,000 and 100,000 barrels. The little oil field bounded by the encircling bluffs which hem in the Oil Creek valley has been extended over portions of eight or ten counties, and the little hamlet of a few hundred inhabitants has grown to a city of ten thousand people, and is only one of a half dozen or more flourishing towns of like size, while the smaller towns which the industry has given rise to are almost countless.

France has already obtained a foot hold in China, and the indications are favorable to its definite extension, and with the tacit acquiescence of other great powers, most of whom are engaged in the same business of territorial extension in various parts of the world. Germany, especially as well as England, seems determined to carry out her colonization scheme and will probably follow up the advantages which she has already obtained in Africa. It is now well understood that there are vast regions north of Cape Colony and the Transvaal and south of the Egyptian Soudan in which white men can live and flourish. In these regions are vast deposits of iron, copper and coal, besides gold and silver. The crops of southern Europe can be grown there, and the temperature is nearly the same [illegible]

THE PITH OF THE NEWS.

Washington News.

At the examination of candidates for the naval academy Thomas Kierulff, Iowa, was rejected because he lacked one and one-eighth inches of the required height—five feet. Mr. Hamilton of New Jersey was rejected because of color blindness. Another candidate was rejected because one leg was an inch longer than the other. The latter candidate never knew his legs were odds until the naval board measured them.

The acting commissioner of pensions has addressed a letter to the officers of the Association of the Army of the Cumberland, asking that they furnish to the pension office the names and postoffice address of every officer and enlisted man attending the annual reunion this year who is not a member of the G. A. R. This is in accordance with the plan adopted by the pension office, to complete as far as may be a roster of surviving soldiers of the Rebellion, which will aid applicants in obtaining proof to sustain their demands for pensions. The office has already a roster of over three hundred thousand ex-officers and soldiers and expects to increase the list two hundred thousand more.

Railroad and River News.

The Wisconsin Minnesota & Pacific filed a first mortgage of $1,320,000, the money to be used for an extension from Waterville to Gaylord.

David Swan, who until recently, was the cashier of the Northern Pacific Railroad company, in its office in St. Paul, is charged with having embezzeled $31,246.03. The company has begun in the supreme court in New York, a suit against Swan to recover the money, and its attorney, Mr. Gray, has obtained from Judge Donohue an attachment against whatever property he may be found to have in this state. Robert L. Belknap, the treasurer of the company, made the affidavit upon which the attachment was granted. He charges that on Feb. 23 last Swan appropriated $5,000 belonging to the company to his own use; that on Feb. 26 he appropriated $3,000; on Feb. 27 $2,000; Feb. 19, $9,746.03, and on June 21, $1,500.

Record of Casualties.

Perry Valley, Iowa, had a little taste of cyclone Tuesday night.

E. J. Salt & Co.'s woolen mill at Portsmouth, Ohio, burned. Loss $30,000; fully insured.

The factory of the Eagle Furniture Works, Baltimore, was burned recently. Loss, $200,000.

A block of stores at Midland, Ont., extending from Queen's hotel to Dominion avenue was burned. Loss, $30,000; partly insured.

A son of Rev. Clinton Locke, of Chicago, dropped a lighted cigar into a keg of gunpowder, and almost wrecked the rectory, but himself escaped with eyebrows somewhat scorched.

At East Liverpool, Ohio, Walker & Co.'s fire brick works, together with several small outhouses, six Cleveland & Pittsburg railroad freight cars and numerous telegraph poles were destroyed by fire. Loss, $25,000.

At the coroner's office, Tuesday morning between 8 and 12, there were reported twenty-five sudden deaths, many of which were directly or indirectly due to the heat. The total number of cases of prostration Thursday was eighteen, and in Brooklyn fourteen, three being fatal.

The terrible sufferings of Capt. Murphy and the crew of the bark Anita Owen from yellow fever have seldom been equaled. Capt. Murphy sailed from Santiago de Cuba for New York with a crew of five men. Of the captain and two mates and his wife, and a man named Conway, who was sick with the fever when the vessel started, but begged to be taken on board, Conway is the only man of the crew alive the rest having died of the fever on the passage. The captain and mate suffered terribly from the disease, but managed to navigate the vessel, and reach New York on Wednesday last.

Additional reports from Wisconsin cyclone territory show that while not conveying an extended area, the storm was decidely thorough as regards destructiveness. Clear Lake suffered to the extent of $300,000. From Marine to Clear Lake the track of the storm was from eight to fifteen miles wide and the loss very heavy. The damage to timber alone in that section is placed at $1,000,000, and to farm buildings, machinery and the like at $600,000. Some estimates place the total loss as high as $4,000,000. Considering the violence of the storm, the loss of life was surprisingly small.

Mitchell, Dak., Special: Fire last night, by which several of the best business buildings of the city were laid in ruins, is a serious blow to Mitchell. The work of rebuilding will commence at once. Letcher & Co.'s loss is $85,000, insurance $25,000; M. H. Rowley, who owned the building occupied by L. S. Shauer & Co., lost $6,000; insured for $3,000; the stock was valued at $13,000 and was insured for about one-third; L. O. Gale and P. T. McGovern lost about $25,000 each, and were insured for about half; a photograph gallery and a law office on the second floor of the Rowley building were a total loss. It was only by the utmost exertions on the part of the firemen and citizens that the fire was prevanted from spreading to other buildings.

The Criminal Calendar.

Bankrupt Banker Squier of Washington cut his throat.

Rev. T. J. Powell, a Baptist minister of Drangeville, Ohio, has lost his pastoral connection by drunkenness and lying.

Tate Mahaney, proprietor of the Three States boarding house, Cairo, Ill., after locking himself in his room, shot himself. He had a large family. Cause unknown.

At Cincinnati, Benjamin Johnson, (colored) was hanged for complicity with Allen Ingalls in the murder of Beverly Taylor and wife and child near Avondale last February.

Cymon D. Miner of Bridgewater, Conn., and dealer in elastic goods in New York, killed himself in the United States hotel, in the latter city. Cause business embarrassment.

Burglars entered the drug store of Dr. Edwin Ellis of Ashland, Wis., and succeeded in blowing open his safe. They obtained for their trouble $15, all of the money in the safe.

John Wasmer, a prominent banker of Corpus Christi, Tex., suicided by shooting through the forehead. Cause, financial difficulties, although he was reputed one of the wealthiest men of Texas.

D. F. Ashton was arrested at Boone, Iowa, for shoving counterfeit silver dollars, and $20 of bogus money and the dies for making more were found on him. He was transferred to the United States authorities at Des Moines.

Alonzo Muchler of Toledo found his wife recently in a bagnio in Cleveland, and threw in her face about an ounce of vitriol. It was at first thought both her eyes were destroyed, but her physician now hopes to save them. Her face was badly burned. Muchler was arrested.

Miscellaneous News Notes.

The Nebraska wheat crop will be about $20,000,000 bushels.

The total receipts of the state fair at Des Moines were over $40,000.

"Black Pat" Meehan was arrested in Pennsylvania in company with Mrs. Harriet Curtis, said to be the daughter of a St. Paul divine.

Accounts published by the government of Canada state that there are at the present time 105,000 Indians still living within the dominion.

President Ogden, of the Cincinnati trades assembly, says of 24,000 members of trades unions in that city, 8,000 are idle, not including women and children who support themselves.

Eugene V. B. Thayer of Boston drove six-in-hand from Glen house to the summit of Mount Washington in one hour and ten minutes, beating the record made last year by W. H. Vanderbilt by seven minutes.

Henry Hoffman, recently eloped from Newcastle, Del., with a daughter of Mr. Westfall [illegible] has received a letter from one of the "lucky" prospectors, saying the writer and his partner were then making sluice boxes, and that the indications were they would get from $75 to $100 a day to the man. The gulch is an extensive one, and for miles above and below Discovery good prospects are found. The quartz finds, however, are as wonderful as the placer. In one day, he says, his partner pounded and washed out $40 in dust from rock found in that vicinity, which must have been tremendously rich quartz.

Conservator Patterson has filed his answer to the motion for an investigation of his management of the Chicago Times. He is entirely willing, he says, to have his accounts and acts examined by good and impartial men, but he objects decidedly to Messrs. Vater and Smith. To the former, because he is a stranger whom Mr. Patterson believes was brought to Chicago for the express purpose of supplanting him in the management of the paper; and to the latter, because he has too much personal interest in the rival Inter-Ocean, and might use the knowledge obtained for the benefit of that paper.

Personal Points.

Miss Mamie W. Hime of Fargo and Charles Baker of St. Louis were maried in Fargo recently, and started east on a bridal tour.

John C. Vaughan, a once famous editor, lawyer and politician, was discovered in the county poorhouse at Cleveland, recently. He became famous as an abolitionist.

William Sherman, ex-United States sub-treasurer of San Francisco, died recently. He was possessed of large wealth, was a relative of Gen. W. T. Sherman, and for thirty years acted as agent of the Sherman property.

Gov. Proctor Knott addresses a long letter to the people of Kentucky touching the penitentiary, the convict labor question and the contract system, and giving his reasons for declining to call an extra session of the legislature.

Nuggets of Foreign News.

F. W. O. Grant, lately an assistant bailiff at Omararu, New Zealand, has succeeded to the earldom of Seafield, with an annual income of £70,000.

According to official statements the total number of forces under the French flag in Tonquin is 19,000. Of these 14,000 are Europeans and the remainder native auxilliary troops.

Mervyn Smith, a wealthy citizen of Montreal, who married a handsome American girl, named Kate Wheeler, ten years ago, has become jealous of an English coachman, and has entered suit for a separation.

Arrangements have been made for the three emperors to meet at Count Henckel's castle, near Kattowitz, in Prussian Silesia. Emperor William started for the meeting place on Sunday evening. Prince Bismarck, Count Herbert Bismarck and Gen. Alldyle will accompany him. M. De Giers, Russian prime minister, starts for Poland to be present at the meeting.

Great Heat at the East.

A Special from New York of the 10th says: The continued hot spell in New York has caused the most intense suffering here recently and resulted in about fifty cases of sunstroke, while nine deaths occurred at Bellevue hospital. It was in the tenement house districts in the lower wards that people suffered most. Hardly a breath of air stirring among the big buildings with their forty or fifty families closely packed together in each, and the sun beat down mercilessly. Toward evening, however, the thermometer began to drop, and is now cooler than it has been since last Friday. The horses in the street cars were suddenly overcome and dropped down everywhere along the lines. The horse car companies resorted to every possible means to save their horses. Watering troughs were placed at close intervals along the routes, and every facility provided for bathing their horses with sponges. This was the fifth day that the themometer indicated over 90 deg., the highest points reached being 97 and 95. Similar reports come from all eastern cities.

The Great Wisconsin Flood.

The Chippewa and other Wisconsin rivers were on a great rampage last week. A dispatch from Chippewa Falls says: Wednesday night was one of horror here in the city, the water raising rapidly up to 6 o'clock this morning. The water stood four feet deep in Spring street, and many of the firms removed their goods. There was two feet of water in the postoffice. The Little Falls and Paint Creek dams are out. There were about two hundred million feet of logs in the Little Falls dam, and from twenty to fifty million in Paint creek. The rise is over thirty feet—the biggest flood ever known on the river. The two Wisconsin railroad bridges went out a little after midnight carrying the wagon bridge with them. All the bridges at Eau Claire are gone except the Omaha railroad bridge. The bank on the south side, opposite the central depot, is cut into 150 feet, carrying away the Omaha roadbed. The iron was removed from the track in anticipation of the break.

Fifteen buildings were carried down from the city side and upward of twenty from the South side. The loss is not less than $1,000,000. The Omaha bridge is the only one left standing. Over fifty business places are innudated. The bridges throughout the country have almost without an exception been carried away, which will have a tendency to depress trade for some time to come.

A special from Eau Claire says: At daylight Thursday morning the Chippewa showed at the water gauge twenty-one feet, covering an immense territory. The night was one of wild excitement throughout the city, dark with prospects of additional rain. About four o'clock the west half of the Madison street bridge gave away, the monster timbers floating down the river. When the new docking just placed at the mouth of the Chippewa suddenly gave way this with the force of the structure carried away the railway, as well as the Kelsey street bridge. The crash could be heard for miles. As soon as this occurred the bell from the engine houses gave a general alarm, and soon more than half the population was astir. On the two structures rushed in their maddened course till they came in contact with the railway bridge, which was demolished by the collision. The flood is the worst that has ever occurred in this section, not only in the quantity of water, but the loss sustained. At midnight the river is declining rapidly. The citizens are feeling better, but exceedingly regret the loss of the three bridges. The entire loss to the city by the flood is placed at $500,000. The loss to the Millwaukee & St. Paul Railway company by washouts and loss of bridge is $400,000, and the loss by the destruction of private and public property in the Chippewa valley is $150,000.

The Chicago Markets.

Wheat, Chicago spring, 76@76¾c; No. 3, Chicago spring, 60c; No. 2 red, 79c; No. 3 red, 65c.
Corn, cash, 56@56½c.
Oats, cash, 25@25½c.
Rye, 53½c.
Barley, 67½c.
Pork, cash, $16.00.
Lard, cash, $7.10@$7.15.

Milwaukee Markets.

Wheat, No. 2, 74¾c.
Corn, No. 2, 56c.
Oats, No. 2 white, 28½c.
Rye, No. 1, 53c; No. 2, 51c.
Barley, No. 2, 61½c; extra No. 3, 47c.
Mess Pork, $17 cash.
Lard—Prime steam, $7.17½.
Butter, choice creamery, 20@22c; fair to good, 17@19c; best dairy, 15@16c.

Minneapolis Markets.

Wheat, No. 1 hard, 70½c; No. 2 hard, 73c; No. 1, 70c.
Corn, No. 2, 53c; rejected, 48@50c; condemned, 35@40c.
Oats, No. 2 old, white, 25@26c; No. 2, new, 26½c; rejected, 22@24c; condemned, 22@23c.
Barley, No. 2, 58@60c.
Mixed Feed, No. 1, $17.50@$18; No. 2, $16.50@17.
Corn Meal, unbolted, $17@$18; bolted, $21@$23.
Hay, timothy, $9@9.50; wild, choice, $8@8.50; No. 2 wild, $5.50@5.75.

St. Paul Markets.

Wheat—No. 1 hard, new, 80c; No. 2 hard, 75c; No. 2, 65c.
Corn, No. 2, 49c; No. 3, 47c.
Oats, No. 2 mixed, 28c; No. 2 white, 29c; [illegible]

ODDFELLOWSHIP.

Address of the Grand Sire of the Sovereign Grand Lodge.—Satisfactory Growth of the Order.

The following is an abstract of the address of Grand Sire Leech, of the sovereign grand lodge of Odd Fellows, delivered at the session in Minneapolis, Minn., on the 15th inst.:

"To the Sovereign Grand Lodge of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows—Representatives: Once more I greet you, as you gather in these seats, to enter upon the work of another annual session. Let us reverently thank our Almighty Father for the great privilege granted to so many of us, as we assemble here this morning. I congratulate you that your are holding the sixteenth annual communication in this great North Star state, and one of the eight states in that section of our land which contains nearly one-quarter of the membership of the order. Let us see the roll—Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Iowa, Minnesota, Nebraska, Dakota. It is a proud day for the 124,000 Odd Fellows of the vast region of our beloved country. In their name and in their behalf I greet you all. As required by the constitution, I have the honor and take great pleasure in submitting to you my report of the official acts and decisions, and the general condition of the order for the year. During the year there have been instituted four grand lodges, two grand encampments, 189 subordinate lodges and forty-two subordinate encampments. New territory has been invaded and occupied, and our field of labor largely increased. While, we have not initiated so large a number of members as in the previous year, yet our growth is a healthy one. We now number nearly 506,000, and taking all things into consideration the prospects of the order were never more flattering than at the present time. Returns show the following figures, the increase being given in the last figures:

		Increase
Grand lodges	54	4
Subordinate lodges	7,703	189
Grand encampments	43	2
Subordinate encamp'ts	1,906	43
Lodge members	505,871	11,875
Encamp'nt initiations	10,620	576
Encampment members	90,852	5,742
Total relief	$2,015,832 52	$133,382 64
Total revenue	5,350,041 47	104,095 47
Lodge initiations	43,774	*3,775

*Decrease.

Following this are decisions of points of special interest to the order, with a review of the status of affairs in Australia, Chili, Cuba, Denmark, Germany, Mexico, Netherlands, Peru, Sandwich Islands, Sweden, Switzerland, Turkey and Trinidad, showing a generally flattering condition, with a healthy growth anticipated.

THE PRESS ORGANS.

Regarding the press of the order, he says: "The discussion of the internal affairs of the order by and through several of our fraternal journals, styling themselves 'organs,' will, I greatly fear, be seriously detrimental to the best interests of Odd Fellowship. While I cheerfully accord to the brothers who have so earnestly labored to extend and build up the order in its various fields of occupation the purest motives, and willingly acknowledge the great good they have accomplished, yet I am reluctantly impelled by a sense of duty to say, that many erroneous constructions of law and usage, many erroneous impressions of the effect and bearing of those laws have been, by means of the press, scattered broadcast throughout our wide domain. The constitution of the supreme head of the order, as well as many laws of the sovereign grand lodge, have been subject of bitter and unfavorable comment and controversy, and in the columns of some of these journals it is strenuously argued that the soverign grand lodge is not the source of true and legitimate Odd Fellowship, etc. Paper has warned against paper, each, as a matter of course, having the support of a portion of the order, and thus already discord is being fostered and a loosening of respect for the mandates of the supreme law-making power is growing where peace, harmony and obedience to our laws formerly prevailed. Certain parties during the year—some of prominence in the order—referring to the source of all true and legitimate Odd Fellowship, seem to contend that the sovereign grand lodge is not the source of all true and legimate Odd Fellowship in the United States, etc. Against such doctrine I desire, here and now, to enter my solemn protest. It sustains and perpetuates not only itself, but the order of which it is the great supreme head by engrafting into its constitution such provisions and amendments as may be deemed wise. It was hoped that the legislation had at the last session on the question of the would have been a finality. From all I can learn, no attention is paid by the circle adherents to the act of the supreme temple, and they are still continuing to form circles and take in members as they did at the beginning. The supreme oracle of the circle organization has boldly declared that he will accept a charter unless all the charter members are of the royal purple degree thus, virtually nullifying and setting aside the order made by the supreme temple in the interest of peace. It is true that no very great progress has been made by the circle during the year, only eight subordinate temples having been instituted during that period, to wit: four in Wisconsin, three in Minnesota, and one only in Illinois: whilst two have surrendered their charters, one of them being in Ohio and one in Maine, showing quite a falling off from the precious year, and being a gain of only six temples. They do not seem to get a foot hold in more than eight or nine jurisdictions, yet with a stubborness worthy of a better cause, they seem to be determined, to try and force the sovereign grand lodge to yield to them illigitimate demand. Some further action seems to be demanded from the grand body to finally settle this annoying difficulty, and I leave the whole subject to the wisdom of the representatives, who, I have no doubt, will do what is proper in the premises. Documents and proclamations accompany the grand sire's report. Grand Secretary Theodore A. Ross presents a voluminous annual report of seventy-nine pages containing carefully compiled statistics with a tabulated exhibit of the financial transactions of his office. Grand Treasurer Alexander L Spear's annual report shows an aggregate debit account of $59,647.60; aggregate disbursements, $38,862.85; balance on hand, $20,784.75.

SUPREME TEMPLE AND PATRIARCHAL CIRCLE

Setting apart differences of masculine capacity and adaptation, a man, says Mr. Richard A. Proctor, in order to fly would need wings bearing the same proportion to his body as we observe in the wings of the sparrow or the pigeon. In fact, the wings commonly assigned to angels by sculptors and painters would not be so disproportioned to the requirements of flight as has been commonly supposed, if only the muscular power of the human frame were well adapted to act upon wings so placed and shaped, and there was no actual inferiority in the power of human muscles (cross section for cross section) as compared with those of birds.

Another distinguished Englishman, Rev. Newman Hall, has come over on a visit to this country, and it is announced that he will make this country and its people a study and write a book.

An English physician says that unripe apples, pears and plums are much more wholesome than over-ripe berries, which often swarm with incipient life.

REPUBLICAN POLITICAL NOTES.

Eleven Reasons.

A young reader asks the N. Y. Tribune why he should be a republican. There are many reasons, but the following are a few given by the Tribune:

I. The past 23 years, under republican rule, form the most glorious and the most prosperous period in the history of the country. The grand success of the party in the past is the strongest reason for trusting it to meet the future needs of the country.

II. Past success has been due to the right purposes and true wisdom of 4,500,000 republican voters. These voters have not changed in character, intelligence or beliefs. No other body of citizens has shown itself entitled to such confidence.

III. The Republican party trusts the people absolutely, as no other party ever has. It has the courage to serve the best interests of the people, with faith that they have the intelligence and patriotism to appreciate such service. Thus it has represented and obeys, not the large landowners at the South, nor the political tricksters or "bosses" of corrupt cities, nor the theorists, nor the millionaires, but the people.

IV. It has always protected labor. The abolition of slavery removed competition of unpaid workers, and elevated all labor. The Homestead law gave every industrious man the power to support himself and family without dependence upon any employer, and so fixed a limit below which wages cannot be depressed. At the desire of labor, the eight-hour law has been passed, and the importation of coolies prohibited. Above all, the party has defended labor by a protective tariff.

V. When goods made by pauper labor abroad can be sold here without paying for admission to this market, the danger is that our own will become pauper labor also. The Republican party makes foreign goods pay duty and so builds up home industry and a home market for farmers. The Democratic party has constantly tried to break down that system.

VI. The Republican party protects the civil and political rights of all citizens. In its youth, it refused to deprive adopted citizens of rights. It gave civil and political rights to colored citizens. It is the only party that has always resisted attempts to control votes or elections by fraud, fear or force.

VII. It has done more than any other party to protect citizens when abroad. Led by Mr. Blaine in Congress, it caused Great Britian to give up the claim that British-born citizens still owed allegiance to the British crown. It is pledged to make American citizenship a safeguard in all lands for every citizen who goes on a lawful errand.

VIII. It upholds the public faith. No other nation in history has ever met a great debt as honorably and rapidly as this nation under Republican rule, in spite of Democratic opposition. Hence no other has higher credit.

IX. It has given this country, in spite of constant Democratic hostility, a better currency than any other nation enjoys. Defeat of the party would open the door to the old Democratic currency—the thirty-eight kinds of paper issued at will by wildcat banks.

X. It honors the soldiers who saved the Union by putting down a Democrrtic rebellion. It has granted large pensions, and has enacted that Union soldiers shall be preferred in the choice of civil officers. It names for vice president a soldier-states-man, against Hendricks, the copperhead and demagogue.

XI. Its candidate for president has exalted ability and great experience, is one of the foremost statesmen of the age, and was selected as his chief adviser by President Garfield. Against him the Democrats have named a man of no experience, or knowledge of men, who never had force enough to make people know or care what his opinions were, and who was nominated by corrupt rings of which he would be the tool.

Everything Looks Bright.

Washington, Special.—There is a general feeling of satisfaction among Republicans. They seem to believe the campaign is moving along about right. Vermont gave no cause for complaint, and Maine afforded a justifiable protext for a shout. At the Republican headquarters the work is going right along. Ohio being the target at which a large proportion of the documents are fired. Secretary McPherson said:

You can say that from this point of observation everything seems to be going well. Maine did several thousand better than I expected. If Ohio does proportionately as well the jig will be up, so far as Cleveland is concerned. I have not any fear of New York, especially if we carry Ohio in October. The action of Tammany, whatever it may be, will not strengthen Cleveland. Many of its members will not support him in any event, and a large part of those who do will do it in a half-hearted way. I believe Blaine is certain of the electoral vote of that state. In fact, considering the Democratic dissatisfaction, and the large vote Butler will get there, I feel more certain of New York than I do of Ohio. The Republicans are just fairly getting their coats off now. During the eight weeks before the presidential election they will make it as warm politically as well, as the weather is these days, and that's saying a good deal. That is a comparison that we can all appreciate.

The Pacific States Sure for Blaine.

Chicago, Special Telegram, Sept. 7.—Among yesterday's arrivals at the Grand Pacific was Secretary of the Interior Henry M. Teller, who was hurrying through from Denver to attend the late Secretary Folger's funeral. In regard to politics, he said that Colorado was sure for Blaine and Logan by several thousand majority. The same would apply to all the Pacific states. All the advices he had had from California were most encouraging. When asked what the position of the senatorial fight in Colorado was at this time, he replied that he was not taking any hand in the fight now, though he might before the campaign was over. He thought Senator Hill's chances for re-election were not very good. The opposition seemed to have the inside track. While Mr. Teller did not say he was a candidate, yet he distinctly affirmed that he would not decline the honor if it was held open to him, and the impression conveyed was that he was an aspirant indirectly, if not directly. He also stated that he did not think Tabor could get the nomination for governor.

Low Tariff Prices.

Mr. P. E. Studebaker of the well known Indiana wagon-making firm of Studebaker Brothers recently gave the following recollections of the prices that prevailed in the old days of democratic administration and low tariff:

I remember distinctly the good times before the war so often talked about. We then had a comparatively small public debt, and had the revenue from the sales of the public lands. The tariff was low, but our industries were lower still. We had a tariff for "revenue exclusively" and no war debt to pay, yet we paid six cents per yard for calico when it was at its lowest point. Every manufactured article made abroad cost more than it does now under the present "robber tariff," and the only defense our people had against the high price was in spinning and weaving the most of their own goods. Farm hands were paid at the highest $13 per month. Corn sold as high as 33 cents. Wheat once reached 80, but the spurt was only temporary, for it fell back to 60 in a few weeks. Horses sold at from $35 to $60, and the best cows could be purchased at $15 to $20. Hogs sometimes reached $3.75 per hundred, but the average price from 1840 to 1860 was $2. Butter sold at from 6 to 10 cents per pound and eggs ranged from 3 to 8 cents per dozen, and at points remote from rivers and lines of transportation there was no market for any farm products except the cereals and live stock. In those days we sold wagons at retail for $110 which we now sell at $60. Plows which then sold for $12 are now sold at $6. Labor of every kind commands 25 to 60 per cent more than it did then, while every manufactured and imported article which labor uses or consumes sells from 20 to 200 per cent cheaper than it did before the war, and the only articles which command higher prices are those produced on the farm.

Mr. Blaine on the Maine Election.

Augusta, Me., telegram.—Monday night the Republicans of Augusta held a great jubilee over the result of the election. Returns were received at Meonian hall, and speeches were made by citizens and visitors. At 9 o'clock a procession was formed and marched to the residence of Mr. Blaine amid cheering of large crowds. Arriving in front of Mr. Blaine's residence, the band played and a great crowd cheering for Blaine. In response Mr. Blaine advanced to the entrance of his house and addressed the assembled people as follows:

"Fellow Citizens and Old Friends—The citizens of Maine may well congratulate themselves on the magnificent victory which they have won. Four years ago this evening we were overwhelmed and humiliated by the loss of the state. We rejoice now over the triumph which is registered by the choice of both branches of the legislature, by the election of all our representatives in congress, of all county officers in every county in the state, except one, and by a popular majority for Gov. Robie of perhaps fifteen thousand votes. The cause of this democratic overthrow, gentlemen, is known to us all. Our canvass has been conducted on one great issue. Our papers have kept that constantly before the people. Every speaker from every platform has enumerated, defended, enforced it. It is the issue of protection to American labor. Tariff has been almost the only question discussed in our canvass, and the people have responded nobly. The people know the details of the Morrison tariff bill, and they read therein the precise results which would follow if our opponents should obtain control of the national government. They know that the Morrison bill, enacted into a law, would seriously cripple, if not utterly destroy the leading industrial interests of Maine; that it would reduce the wages of every laboring man, and stop every new manufacturing enterprise in the state. Seeing this the people of Maine has protested against the enactment of such a destructive measure, and set the seal of disapprobation upon the Democratic party that supports it. Many Democrats of Maine, who never before wavered in their allegiance to the party, have ranged themselves to-day on the side of protection to American industry by voting the full Republican ticket. The Republican party by desire of leading temperance men took no action as a party on the temperance amendment. For myself, I decided not to vote at all on the question. I took this position because I am chosen by the Republican party as a representative of national issues, and by no action of mine shall any question be intruded into the national campaign which belongs properly to the domain of state politics. Certain advocates of prohibition and certain opponents of prohibition are seeking to drag issues into national canvass and tending to exclude from popular consideration, questions which press for national consideration. If there be any questions that belong solely to the police power of the states, it is the control of the liquor traffic, and wise men will not neglect national issues in the year of the national contests. Judicious friends of protective tariff, which is the practical issue of the campaign, will not divert their votes to the question of probation, which is not a practical issue in the national campaign.

I accept with great pleasure your congratulations on the vote of this city and the surrounding towns of Kennebec county. I do not discuss from you. I am profoundly gratified with the result. I return my thanks for your call, and still heartier thanks for your great work of to-day.

A Lesson to Indepandents.

Hon. Henry R. Pierson, of Albany, Chancellor of the Regents of the University, was addressed by the National Committee of Independents, on the presumption that he was "one in sympathy" with the independent anti-Blaine movement, and asked to enroll himself and send other names. Mr. Pierson replied:

"I am sorry I am so misrepresented. My regret on my own account is only exceeded by what I feel from seeing the action of so many good and true men, whom I have learned to respect for sturdy honesty and tried fidelity to a party which we all helped to make, and whose mission is not yet ended, but which they are now strangely trying to destroy. I cannot understand it. For nearly twenty-five years I have been somewhat active in the Republican party. It was born in a time of national peril. It took for its motto, 'The Union shall be preserved, and all men shall have equal rights.' While I have been been often ashamed and vexed at the individual wickedness and infidelity of members of my party, more or less distinguished, I have seen the grand old party hold to its mission. It has achieved a great success, and has a record which achieves for it immortality, in spite of the mistakes and errors of many who belong to it. If I act with you I help to destroy it, and to hand over my country to those who endeavored to destroy this Nation—a solid South—with just enough of the loyal north as will with them carry the election. That is all that the most sanguine, honest democrat hopes to do. The time may come when it will do to change; but it is not now; we are not quite 'across the stream.' Mr. Blaine was not my choice, but he was fairly nominated, after a full discussion in a convention of men fairly chosen, and who had voice and took part in the convention, and I think it not only a well-established political usage, but one of political fairness, which demands that the nominee should be supported by all who represented or took part in the nomination; still the right of personal judgment must not be unfairly questioned, as in such matters every man holds himself responsible to public opinion. I am very sorry for a disgraceful and demoralizing personality that marks this canvass. It should be frowned down by all true men, without distinction of party. I wish all men would vote honestly, using their best judgment with dignity, self-respect and patriotism, and then our country would be safe at all hazzards. I shall do all I can to aid in the election of James. G Blaine."

Extract from a speech delivered by Senator Hoar at a Blaine ratification meeting held in Boston:

Another question, next in dignity, is that of the wages of the American workman. We do not accept the teachings of that political economy with its tidings of despair, which tells us that it is the lot of the workman forever to toil for bare life. We believe this country is governed, is to be governed and ought to be governed by the men who work with their hands on farms and in shops. Unless these men shall have a return for their labor, which shall bring them leisure, comfort, education for their children, they cannot preserve the qualities needed for citizenship, and the republic must fail. There may be a great and powerful nation on this continent on other terms, but there cannot be a great republic. This end can only be secured by the maintenance of the American system. The prices of many other things, the rates of exchange, are, in the artificial arrangements of commerce, determined in Great Britain. We do not propose to annex American labor to that market. We believe that by a judicious system of protection, framed for that purpose, this result can be and is secured, and that agriculture, manufacture and commerce will alike be benefited. In that belief Hamilton, Madison, Jefferson, Webster, Clay, Lincoln, almost every American statesman whose fame has survived the sound of the earth on his coffin, in that belief almost every employee of labor and almost every man who labors himself, concur with us. A few theoretic economists, a few college professors, and the great bulk of the old owners of plantations and slave labor differ with us. We propose to debate that question with them and take the verdict of the American people.

In defining its position as an independent democratic paper the New-York Sun says: "The Sun has long supported the democratic party and wishes to support it now; but it has become tired of standing by it in its fatal and foolish blunders. The nomination of Grover Cleveland is one of these, and the Sun refuses to stand by the party in that nomination. We are happy to add that a very great proportion of the democrats of the country are of the same mind as the Sun. They can not stand Grover Cleveland for president."

New York Special. The Car-drivers' and Conductors' association have about 7,000 members on the roll throughout the state, of whom 4,000 are in this city. At a large meeting which was held last week, resolutions were enthusiastically adopted denouncing Gov. Cleveland's action regarding the car-drivers' and conductors' bill, and cordially inviting all men, irrespective of politics, to aid them in securing the election of Blaine and Logan.

"I thank God," said the new young Iowa orator, Dolliver, who is more than a match for Ingersol, "that we belong to a party that saves the crown of its public honor for the brow of its actual leadership. With the Democratic party, nominations are made not so much to represent the party as to disguise it. In its long struggle for existence the men who have made the history of the party go to the wall. It is the only party that ever existed whose candidates and platform never throw any light whatever either on its management or its faith. In fact, modern Democrats of the practical school have no creed except the oath of office."

Mrs. Parnell, while admiring Cleveland, says: "The members of the Irish National party are mostly in favor of Blaine, and it looks as if the Clan-na-Gael would go over to him in a body." According to her estimate the defection in Irish-American circles is really more extensive than most people had supposed.

In the thirty-one days ending the last of August, the national debt was reduced $3,543,094.17—or at the rate of $239,000 a day—311,750 each hour, or in round numbers $200 a minute. And, all this is quietly going on under a republican administration, while the democratic press is howling "turn the rascals out!"

MINNESOTA NEWS NOTES.

Planting Oak Forests.

The Secretary of the Minnesota State Forestry Association desires the press of the state to call the attention of residents in the prairie counties, who are interested in the cultivation of timber, that the acorn crop is abundant this fall. There is a good crop of acorns only once in several years. The last was in 1880. Those desiring to plant groves of oak trees should take steps to collect acorns at once, in the abundant groves in the eastern and central counties, the "White Oak" is the most valuable for timber and fuel, but either the "Burr Oak," or the "Black Oak," and the "Jack Oaks," or Black Jack, grows rapidly and makes good fuel. The advantage in planting oaks for wind-breaks is, that the leaves are persistent, that is, hang on the trees all winter, thus affording shelter from the cold winds. The acorns should be sown this fall, on ground well broken and pulverised. Sow in rows 3½ feet apart. Drop the acorns one foot apart, and cover an inch or so deep. If they come up too thick they can be thinned, as oaks have a long tap root, they are transplanted with much trouble, and should be sown where the grove is wanted.

Michael James Wagner of St. Vincent, a relative of the late Richard Wagner, composor, is said to be one of the heirs of a $5,000,000 estate in Germany.

Edward Burns, of Hawley, while stacking grain, ruptured a blood vessel and died within a short time.

William S. Austin, a pioneer of Detroit, died recently in that city aged fifty-seven years.

The state board of equalization got out of its Minneapolis difficulty with less trouble than was expected. It was found Monday that the Minneapolis real estate assessment could be cut down 15 per cent without increasing the valuation of the rest of the state or exceeding the power of the board to cut down the entire valuation for the state 1 per cent. The increase already made in the valuation of property throughout the state gave nearly the margin required for the Minneapolis decrease, and the slight deficiency will be easily made up by an increase on personal property.

Carrie M. the eighteen-year-old daughter of Henry C. Newcomb of Shakopee, accidentally poisoned herself with strychnine recently. When the mistake was discovered medical help was called, but too late. She died in fearful agony.

The Fourth district committee has made its report, exonerating Gilfillan and covering the general ground of investigation.

R. C. Mitchell of the Duluth Daily Tribune has called a meeting of creditors to secure an extension. He says this will not interrupt the publication of the paper, nor change of ownership.

The golden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Jonathan Leach of Dover, Olmstead county, was celebrated last week.

Commissioner Gibbs says that a hundred bushels of Wealthy apples, raised in Minnesota will be put in cold storage at New Orleans, to be used as needed at the world's exposition.

Westminister church of Minneapolis has agreed to furnish five rooms in the Chicago Theological college.

The enterprising managers who arranged the attempted assassination of Sitting Bull were highly successful in their effort to get free advertising. It was seriously telegraphed all over the country.

Dr. Thomas leaves the matter of his resignation to the vestry, but thinks he will not go to Faribault.

Erza Whellotter, a farmer living near Fort Ripley, was drowned in the Mississippi river while duck hunting.

There was received at the adjutant general's office Monday an original claim of $6 at Owatonna, dating from Aug. 24, 1865, amounting to $1,368. Original claim for Lake Lillian of $4 per month from January, 1884; and an original claim for Dean, Rice county, of $10 per month, dating from April 9, 1881; also an increase for Fergus Falls $8 per month from June 25, 1884.

At Brainerd, Loretta charged Jack Burns with giving her drugged beer and ravishing her while she was unconscious. Burns was arrested and taken to Map's house to try and arrange a compromise. When the girl saw Burns she seized a revolver and fired three shots at him, failing to hit, but inflicting a serious wound in the side of Policeman Degrash. Burns was held for trial.

Prof. Kiehle, state superintendent of public instruction, has issued a circuler outlining the plan to be adopted for the Minnesota educational exhibit at the New Orleans exhibition. An advisory committee of all superintendents of schools and heads of educational institutions, public and private, will be appointed to organize and exhibit. Provision has been made for the necessary expenses of transportation and for the care of the exhibit. The appliances of instruction, as school houses (plans of same), appa atus, etc., should from one department of the exhibit: and the scholars' work of all kinds, as copy books, drawings, map drawings, etc., another. To the authorities of universities and colleges the superintendents recommends a display of diagrams and maps of buildings and grounds, photographic views, portraits of educators and catalogues. Schools for the blind, deaf mute, etc., are requested to exhibit the peculiar features of their institutions. Exhibits must be ready for shipment by Nov. 1. Plans of exhibts should be arranged at once. Estimates should be made of space required, and all are invited to contribute, no matter how small the exhibit may be. It is proposed to accompany the exhibit with a map, showing the locality of all the institutions making displays.

The following are the officers elected for the new state militia company mustered in at St. Cloud Monday: Captain, Andrew Larson; first lieutenant, John Schafer; second lieutenant, W. H. Alden; first sergeant, H. G. Wire; second sergeant, O. W. Baldwin; third sergeant, W. L. Waldron, Sr.; fourth sergeant, Fred L. Low; fifth sergeant, Dudley Burgan; corporals, Frank Carrier, Henry A. Overbeck, Ed. H. Wright, George S. Clark, M. J. Nugent, John De Leo; musicians, William Hall, John Stevenson.

Lucas Kuehn, president of the First National bank, at Wabasha who assigned to Henry Schwerer, has controlled the largest mercantile business in Wabasha county for a quarter of a century. He is the owner of the commercial hotel, a large block on Main street, and a fine dwelling, beside being interested in agricultural operations and part proprietor of a general store. He has been reputed worth $100,000. His assignment is a result of the Minnesota Elevator company and Mazeppa mill failures. Mr. Kuehn, says that endorsing the paper of others compelled him to assign, but that his own indebetedness amounts to little, if anything, and he can pay dollar for dollar.

The residence of Nico Vander Velde, in Anoka, was badly damaged by lightning on Tuesday, the inmates miraculously escaping injury.

At the recent term of court at St. Cloud, appropriate resolutions were adopted upon the death of Judge McKelvey.

A fortnight ago, Mr. C. C. Pierce, agent at Minneapolis of the Merchants' Dispatch line, made preparations for a visit to St. Paul, as he had been in poor health for a few days, but then changed his mind and left his office in the Vanderburgh block, saying he proposed to return to his boarding house on Eighth street south. On the next morning, however, he went to the Security bank, drew a small sum of money and started for St. Paul; but since then no trace of him has been discovered either at St. Paul or Minneapolis.

John Walquist commenced suit in the district court at Minneapolis against Charles E. Hale, a St. Paul dentist, to recover $6,000 damages. According to the complaint Walquist went to Hale to have a tooth extracted last December. The job was done in so bungling a manner, it is charged, that the tooth was badly broken and the jaw injured, causing the plaintiff terrible pain. For this he askes the court to O. K. a bill for $5,000. Later, in March following, he went to the dentist's office to secure some satisfaction for his injuries, and it is alleged, was attacked by the doctor and ejected forcibly from the office. On this account he [illegible] $1,000 to the bill, making the total damages sought $6,000.

School opened last week at Gustavus Adolphus college, at St. Peter, with 63 pupils present. This is the largest attendance the college has ever had on the first week. They expect 200 pupils or over this winter.

CROOKSTON, Sept. 16th, 1884.

MR. EDITOR: In simple justice to Capt. Donaldson, I desire to correct a statement, contained in the article over the signature of "Farmers' Club No. 1." The article in question does Capt. Donaldson gross injustice. The humble subscriber to this article, also had the pleasure of being present at the meeting referred to, and if Capt. Donaldson made use of a single word or sentence which did not have the ring of the true metal, then the applause of the assembled farmers and their favorable comments subsequently were as sounding brass. The only adverse criticism was by a prominent candidate from Warren, who, if I remember rightly, received at the hands of Messrs. Brown, of Argyle, and Larsen, of Stephen, such a castigation that the hide of the most venerable rhinoceros would not have proved impervious. He, as one of the prime movers in the concern, was confronted by certain charges against the Farmers' Elevator Company which, if he was not powerless to refute, succeeded in paralyzing his senses to the extent that he had not the power to reply. Capt. Donaldson, in connection with the Farmers' Association, said that hitherto such organizations had been failures; that they had been run or manipulated by men who subserved their own interest, politically and otherwise, at the expense of the order they pretended to represent. That these self-appointed "vicegerents" took advantage of their position to hoist themselves into places of public trust; that they received all the emoluments of their perfidity and the great mass of the farming element were left in a very much worse condition than when these self-elected "bellswethers" found them. Their recourse, he continued, was in legislation. That it was their privilege and duty to send men to the Legislature whose interests were identical with their own; who, for "a mess of pottage" would not sell their birthright; that if sent to the Legislature he (Donaldson) could assure them that he would go untrameled, unfettered, with no ax to grind, save that which looked to the farmers interest. This is the substance of his speech, which was repeatedly interrupted by hearty applause. In conclusion I will observe that this is written in justice to one whom I can claim only as a casual acquaintance. Respectfully, &c.,

G. F. LAINES.

THE TIMES THAT TRY MEN'S SOULS.

If this earth was man's permanent abiding place then might he well despair of ever attaining unto that degree which might be construed as permanent happiness. The lights and shades, the ups and downs incident to this life all go to show that we have no continuing city here, yet blessed is that man who is so constituted as to be able to abstract a ray of sunshine out of every passing ill. Verily his days shall be lengthened and peace and prosperity shall dwell with him all the days of his life. When we see a man who is continually at war with his surroundings, no matter how near paradise he may be, continually wishing he were somewhere else, the temptation to preach him a little preach is great within us. By the way, we don't know but this very fall, when the price of wheat is so low right now in view of the era of hard times that seems to have dawned upon us, is as good a time as any for our little preach. We feel assured that if wait until times are better, until wheat goes sailing up to one dollar and upwards—next fall, say, that we shall not have occasion, so if we are ever to have our preach, now is the time. Probably seven out of every ten farmers have something unpleasant in their surroundings, and it is very likely that every one of them have a vague and indefinite idea that if they could move to some other country things would be very different—that they would be far happier and more prosperous in some other State than they possibly can be here. There are some things, however that we are liable to over look, in such times of despondency and one of the most important of these is the universal law of compensation which is in force everywhere which balances many evils with equal and corresponding benefits. For instance, the farmer in Minnesota, during the long cold winter may envy the farmer in Southern States who has no long, cold winter to face, but there comes a time, when the Minnesota farmer is enjoying his healthful summer weather the southern farmer is melting with ferved heat, and quaking with fear at the approach of dread diseases not incident to our colder climate. Both parties have their time of pleasant surroundings and their seasons of discomfort. Both suffer and which shall say who suffers the most? So it is with all other things. No location can be found in the civilized world not subject to certain draw backs. If we were to look at the sum total and keep it in mind that there are drawbacks everywhere we should be able to extract sufficient comfort from this fact to outweigh all discomforts. Perfection, either of location or character is not to be found in this world. The mere fact that things are not to our liking where we are does not prove that we would find relief in a change of locations. In this case perhaps a change in our methods of doing business is all we need. Many a man is spending a great deal of time, indulging many useless longings, and building many useless castles in the air, and imagining that if he was only somewhere else he could yet been able to do, whose eyes are closed to splendid opportunities to make money, upon his own farm! These men are not doing very well

NEVER HAVE DONE VERY WELL!

They are dissatisfied because they do not get along any better, and think it must be all owing to their unfavorable location. The truth of the matter, in many of these cases, is, that these farmers do not understand the resources of their own farms and do not see the opportunities that are constantly being wasted. They fail to realize that the present is the one grand opportunity that God gives to man, and that, as a general rule, those who fail to improve the opportunities where they are would do no better if they were differently located. Success in this country depends far more upon the man himself than anything else, for the land and climate is all that could be desired, but a man with no energy, skill or judgment can remain poor here just as easy as anywhere. If a man is not energetic and industrious here neither will he be wherever he goes. If he manages his farm by sitting around the village saloons, or stores leaving the work and care to his hired men he would be very sure to do the same elsewhere. It is well to remember that mere change of location never did and never will change the disposition or character of a man. The man who is dissatisfied here, constantly restless and eager for a change of some kind, anxious to get away from where he is, but having no definite idea where he had better go, thereby acknowledges that there is something about himself that is radically wrong that needs reconstruction. Instead of going away from here to find the cause let the dissatisfied farmer take a calm view of the situation, look the truth fairly in the face, and find just where the trouble lies. He will probably find one or more of these difficulties. Either he does not get along well with his work, his crops are too poor or his income is not sufficient to meet what he considers his necessary expenses. Now, removal to a different county is not the proper remedy or any of these troubles. If he cannot get along with his work here he cannot anywhere. His true remedy is to study how he can work to better advantage. A little thought will enable him to see how he can save a great deal of labor, and how he can render available much of the time which now seems to yield no return. If he would study to make the most of his opportunity and do everything to the best advantage he would be enabled to accomplish a great deal more with the same amount of time and labor. Good crops do not produce themselves even upon the very best of soil as ours is. It takes not only well directed labor but also some study into the requirements of each crop to reach the desired result. Study the requirements of the crop and the best methods of cultivation and then put them into practice. Perhaps a man need to study business priciples learn how to buy economically and sell to the best advantage. If properly managed more money can be made here in farming than elsewhere. Such a time as the present, when the price of wheat, our great staple production, is very low is one calculated to inspire the wish to get away if any time is and yet, look the country over and where can we find a more favored country, everything considered? Are not times just as hard everywhere? Are not these times calculated to enhance the price of wheat? Those farmers who are attempting to raise wheat on $100, $150 and $200 per acre of land in the east feel the effects of the hard times more than we do. They can not compete with us raising wheat on our cheap lands and they will not try it. They are in better shape to diversify than we are, it is to their interest to do so and they will and the result will be that we shall see wheat higher in the future than it has been in the past. The best way for us to do in such times as the present is to look upon the bright side. Keep a stiff upper lip and hope and wait for better times. There is no evil permitted but out of it some good will come and we shall surely find it if we try. We have never been called upon to endure the trials which the earliest settlers of America did and we never can be. We do indeed need to exercise great faith to endure such trials as we have but we shall never be called upon to suffer as did those old heros. While the prospects are gloomy they might be worse. We do not know of any locality in the country that offers better prospects and we feel assured that the future of this country will be great and glorious.

Mr. J. H. Hanson appeared before the Chamber of Commerce last evening to solicit aid for the publication of an immigration book to be used at the great world's fair at New Orleans. The book is to be gotten up by the Immigration bureau, aided by subscriptions from the principal cities and towns of the State. The book will contain at least 160 pages, is to be gotten up in the very best style and to contain a handsomely colored map of the State. It will be divided into four departments, the first containing a general description of the State. The second will describe more minutely the six sections into which the state is divided by its drainage system, and will contain full statistical information of every county in each division, giving their agricultural products, average per acre, numbers and kinds of farm animals in each, population, wealth and development. Their undeveloped resources will also be given, together with the quantity of unoccupied lands in each and the price per acre of unimproved lands. It is likewise proposed in this department to give full descriptions of the principal cities and villages, with accounts of their manufactories, trade, the character and extent of country tributary to them, and their social, religious, and educational condition and facilities. The third division will be devoted to describing the railroads of the state, their extent and branches, and their connection with other lines both within and without the boundaries of Minnesota. This will include a brief synopsis of their business and a description of their facilities for carrying freight and passengers, and other information of general interest. The fourth and closing department will describe the lakes and pleasure resorts, and contain such other information as will be of use to tourist and sportsman. In short, it is intended that the book shall be a complete exposition of the state, from which the reader, whether he be a prospective immigrant, a capitalist seeking for profitable investment, a laborer hunting employment, or a [illegible] the information he desires. It will be condensed, but not to an extent to mar its usefulness and will be illustrated and handsomely bound in illuminated paper covers. Besides the pamphlet the secretary is preparing a large sectional map of the state, 10x12 feet, which will show all the rivers, lakes, cities, villages, railroad lines, forests, mines, quarries, etc. Likewise three charts, 7½x9 feet will be made. The latter will give the county boundaries, and show respectively the agricultural productions, numbers and kinds of farm animals, and population, wealth, and vacant lands in each county in large and conspicuous letters and figures. In order to meet the expense of this work, beyond the amount of the appropriation the board has now on hand, the secretary is soliciting subscriptions from the cities and villages interested, at the same time that he is collecting data for description of them. Whatever money is derived from this resource will be under the control of the board of immigration, and expended only as that board shall direct, and if more than enough for the purpose is collected it will be returned to the donors in proportion to their several subscriptions. The matter of the pamphlet will also be submitted to the board, and nothing will be allowed to appear therein that does not meet the approval of the honorable gentlemen composing it. It is to be hoped that Secretary Young may be successful in raising the sum of money needed, and enabled to go into the field at New Orleans with a book that will be a credit to the state. Since he has occupied his present position the appropriations for the use of the office have always been too small to afford him opportunity for doing the best he might, yet by industry, economy and the exercise of good judgment he has won for Minnesota a fair proportion of the immigration, notwithstanding that his competitors in other states have had from three to five times the amount of money at their disposal, and been thereby enabled to make combinations with steamship and other immigration agents. For a long time he has been collecting geographic, statistical and other information about the several counties of the State, intending to use it in a work which he proposed to publish hereafter. All this he will now make available for the proposed new pamphlet, and we are confident that no other State will send to New Orleans a better and more readable book, if he meets the encouragement and support he so richly deserves.

Money in Hogs.

A granger brought in four shotes the other day which he sold to Steege for $100 in spot cash. They were not very large ones either, and it does not require much of a mathematician to figure out how much it cost to raise them. It beats wheat clear out of sight.

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First Publication September 18th, 1884.]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the payment of the sum of two hundred and thirty-four and 23-100 dollars ($234.23-100) according to the condition of a certain mortgage duly made, executed and delivered by John P. Larson and Catharina A. Larson, his wife, of Polk County, Minnesota, mortgagors, to Peter Stenseth, of Polk County, Minnesota, mortgagee, to secure the payment of one note of the sum of two hundred and fifteen dollars, with interest at the rate of seven per cent per annum, and bearing date the eighth day of June 1883 and payable on the eighth day of December 1883, and which mortgage was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota on the eighth day of June A. D. 1883, at 3.25 o'clock p. m. of that day in book "N" of mortgages, on page forty-six (46,) and whereas, no action or proceedings at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt or interest secured by said mortgage or any part thereof, and, whereas, there is claimed to be due, and is due, at the date of this notice the sum of two hundred and thirty-four 23-100 dollars ($234.23-100.)

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the provisions of the statute in such case made and provided, all the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, to-wit: The northwest quarter of Section one (1,) in Township one hundred and fifty-two (152) north, of Range forty-five (45) west, containing one hundred and sixty acres, more or less according to the government survey thereof, which tract or piece of land is situated in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, together with the hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging, will be sold by the Sheriff of Polk County, Minnesota, at the frontdoor of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County of Polk, on the 7th day of November A. D. 1884, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of said day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and fourteen and 45-100 dollars $(14.45-100) taxes, which has been paid by the mortgagee, and thirty dollars attorney's fees stipulated in said mortgage, besides the costs and disbursements allowed by law, subject nevertheless to redemption at any time within one year from date of sale as provided by law.

Dated September 18th 1884.

PETER STENSETH,
Mortgagee.

A. P. BOND,
Attorney for Mortgagee. [21-27]

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk, } ss. District Court, 11th Judicial District.

Carl Kretzschmar, Plaintiff, vs. The Red Lake Falls Milling and Lumber Company, a corporation, Defendant.

The State of Minnesota to the above named Defendant:

You are hereby summoned and required to answer the complaint of the Plaintiff in the above entitled action which has been filed with the clerk of the above court in his office in the Court House, in the City of Crookston, and County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, and to serve a copy of your answer to the said complaint on the subscriber at his office in the City of Crookston, in said county, within twenty days after the service of this summons upon you, exclusive of the day of such service; and if you fail to answer the said complaint within the time aforesaid, the Plaintiff in this action will take judgment against you for the sum of six thousand nine hundred and thirty-one dollars and sixty-eight cents ($6,931.68-100,) together with interest thereon from May 23d, 1884, besides the costs and disbursements of this action.

P. A. DUFOUR,
[21-27] Plaintiff's Att'y Crookston, Minn.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 17th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 7th, 1884, viz: JOSEPH DURAND, H'd No. 7815, for the e½ sw¼ S. 14, T. 150, R. 43. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Ephraim Tromeley, L. Tillum, M. Lambert and John Borden, all of Terrebonne, Polk Co. Minn.

[21-26] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 17th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 7th, 1884, viz: JACOB LARSON, Pre. D. S. No. [illegible], for the nw¼ S. 12, T. 147, R. 44. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: J. B. Rungun, Ole Oleson Costen, Hans Aulison and Christopher Erickson, all of Aldal, Polk Co. Minn.

[21-26] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 16th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Oct. 30th, 1884, viz: OLE PETERSON, H'd No. [illegible], for the [illegible] He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: E. C. Jergenson, Jake Ide, Leonard Paulson and Iver C. Lamen, all of Andover, Polk Co., Minn.

The Old Brick Block

IS THE PLACE

To Buy Dry Goods, Groceries. Clothing, Boots and Shoe Hats and Caps, or anything you want.

Fontaine & Anglim

IS THE FIRM

Who are ready, with a corps of affable clerks to show you their NEW FALL and WINTER STOCK and quote prices to astonish the natives.

Great Bargains

Don't forget to visit Fontaine & Anglim's Emporium, in the Old Brick Block,

MAIN STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN.

THE

J. I. CASE

THRESHING MACHINE COMPANY
The Dennet or Beloit
HARVESTING MACHINE COMPANY,
And the Van Brunt & Davis
SEEDER COMPANY,
Are Represented
BY
STEENERSON BROS.,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

MONEY TO GIVE AWAY
IN BARGAINS AT

MARKHAM'S

THE LEADING GROCERY HOUSE

AND THE LARGEST BOOT AND SHOE STORE

IN CROOKSTON.

Goods Delivered to any Part of the City
FREE OF CHARGE.

FARMERS, FARMERS,

WE ARE

Selling Lower Than Ever!

You will always find it to your advantage to

Trade with Us!

We Sell the Best for the LOWEST LIVING PRICES. Remember the place,

Broadway, bet. 2d and Robert Sts.

D. BUCHANAN.

THE NEW ERA MANUFACTURING CO.,

Exclusive manufacturers of the

NEW ERA

Wagon Road Grader!

AND DITCHINGMACHINE.

Manufactory 625 to 631 south Halsted street, Chicago, Illinois.

Having established our headquarters for the Red River Valley at CROOKSTON, MINN., all inquiries addressed to us will receive our personal attention. All machines fully warranted and free trial given upon application. Address all Red River Valley correspondence to the

NEW ERA MANUFACTURING CO., Box 851, Crookston, Minn.

McKINNON BROS.,

Carriage Works

Robert Street,

Crookston, Minn.

AGENTS FOR THE

J. I. CASE THRESHING MACHINES!

And Manufacturers of

Carriages, Wagons,
BUGGIES,
Cutters, Sleds, &c.

Axles, Springs, and all Repairs kept in stock,

DEALERS IN

FARM MACHINERY.

In Farm Machinery we have the Champion Seeder, Fargo Diamond Tooth Harrow, Kalamazoo Spring Tooth Harrow, Davenport and Grand Detour Sulky and Walking Plows, Buford Gang Plows, Field Rollers of all sizes, Warrior Mowers, the leading Hay Rake and first-class Harvesters and Binders, the Webber Wagon and McKinnon Bros. Wagon, In fact we have everything in machinery, from

A Wheelbarrow to a Threshing Machine!

EXTRAS

For all Machines constautly on hand

E. M. Walsh,

DEALER IN

Hardware, Tinware
BAR IRON, STEEL,
BLACKSMITHS SUPPLIES,
BUILDING PAPER,
&c., &c. Also Agent
For the Celebrated Monitor Plows.
CROOKSTON, MINN.

A Big Bonanza!

JOSEPH BARRETT

Has decided to Put on the Market his

ADDITION

TO THE

City of Crookston,

Next adjoining the Crookston Driving Park. Parties desiring to purchase

CHOICE LOST

NOW IS YOUR TIME!

LOTS

For Sale Separately, or in BLOCKS.

TERMS EASY!

Apply to the undersigned or at the office of C. B. Palmer, U. S. Land Office Building. Both English and French spoken.

JOSEPH BARRETT.

Polk County Journal.

Crookston, Minn., Thursday, September 18

RAILROAD TIME TABLE.

GOING NORTH.

	ARRIVE.	LEAVE.
No. 1 Passenger	10:45 p. m.	10:55 p. m.
" 9 Passenger	10:30 a. m.
" 19 Freight	12:30 a. m.
" 15 Freight	4:00 p. m.
" 23 Freight		10:30 a. m.

GOING SOUTH.

	ARRIVE.	LEAVE.
No. 2 Passenger	4:00 a. m.	4:00 a. m.
" 10 Passenger		5:00 p. m.
" 20 Freight		7:00 a. m.
" 22 Freight		6:15 p. m.
" 24 Freight	5:00 p. m.

DEVIL'S LAKE LINE.

	ARRIVE.	LEAVE.
No. 9 Passenger		10:20 a. m.
" 10 Passenger	5:30 p. m.
" 45 Freight		8:00 a. m.
" 46 Freight	7:00 p. m.

ST. HILAIRE BRANCH.

Trains leave Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays at 10:45 a. m., and arrive same days at 4:00 p. m.

☞ Passenger Trains No's 1 and 2, Main Line, run daily except Sunday. No's 3 and 4 run daily. Devil's Lake Passenger runs daily. Freights No's 23, 20 and 24 run daily. Freights No's 15 and 22, and Freights on Devil's Lake Line run daily except Sunday.

A PUT UP JOB.

It is plain to be seen that the Crookston papers are trying to down Norman County and its candidate—Mr. Baker. In its last issue the Chronicle untruthfully says that it is the custom where there are several counties in a district to select the member from different counties in different years. The editor of that paper must know, as does every intelligent voter, that all precedent has established the custom of returning a member who has ably and honestly served his constituents. The JOURNAL in speaking of the several candidates, even when it advocates the nomination of other men, is compelled to pay a high tribute to Mr. Baker's efficiency. They can bring nothing against him. How will Polk County feel two years from now if its alleged newspapers succeed in establishing a precedent that legislative honors are to be handed around? Will they desire to see the senatorship passed around? No! Then they will tell you how a member who has had years of experience in the legislature is so much more fitted for the position. They will tell you how a new member will be utterly without influence or friends. Then, why are they trying to defeat a gentleman whom they admit has served his constituents well? What kind of a political bargain have they entered into? Time will tell. In the meantime the people—the farmers—in this district should see to it that the men sent to the district convention are men who will work for their interests and not for the interests of any "my turn next" politicians.—[Norman County Index.

Thus says the Norman County Index in its last issue. Heretofore it has been trying to make political capital for its candidate by attempting to slaughter all others whose names have been mentioned; now it it sees "a put up job" in the fact that the Crookston papers evidently see that the Hon. A. H. Baker is not the best man to represent the great interests of this district whose name has been presented. So far as the JOURNAL is concerned we know of no "put up job" to down Norman County and Mr. Baker, and while we have a very high opinion of Mr. Baker as a man, and while we have no desire to destroy him in order to build up any other man, yet we maintain, and upon that very record to which the Index points that there are men in the district better qualified to subserve the interests of the district than he. We repeat what we have time and again said that it is the BEST man for the place that we want to see elected without regard to personal feelings in the matter, or even of persons. The attitude of Polk County is, as we understand it, a disposition to concede to the other counties the right to name the man. The impression has obtained generally, we believe, that Marshall County should be allowed to name the candidate. This is no more than right, in view of the fact that there is but one place to fill this fall, and that Norman County has already had a representative, and while it may be "according to precedent" to return the sitting member, yet there are cases in which the county interested may well afford to waive whatever there may be in this right and concede the place to a sister county. While Polk County concedes that there is a point which should be settled between the two counties in question, yet her voters will doubtless consider that we have some little interests at stake in the character of the man so to be chosen, and will exercise that right so far as to insist that the proper man is sent. While Polk County desires the other counties to settle among themselves who shall be sent, she also desires that that man shall be a man that can lead around by the nose. A man of so pronounced views that no Polk County man, or any other man, will have the temerity to attempt to control him. This question is so important to the business interests of this district as a whole that the question of which county should have the honor of having the representative should not enter into the canvass at all. The object should be to whether he lives in Norman, Polk, Marshall, Kittson or Beltrami County. The important question of the hour to every farmer and business man in the district is whether or not we shall obtain an open wheat market, and all other questions of a purely local nature sink into insignificance, for upon this question of an open wheat market depends wholly the prospects of this county for all time to come. We know that while we can make more money by diversified husbandry, that this coutry is better adapted to raising a superior quality of wheat and that, if we can simply obtain our just rights in that matter we can make more money, ten to one, in wheat than in any other one industry we can pursue. The question is how are we to do it? If we are to obtain any help through legislation, is it not clear that we must send men there who are perfectly familiar with every phase of this fight from its inception to the present moment? Is not a man who has done hard and telling work in the cause already, a better man to send there than a man who has done practically nothing? Ask the farmers and business men who have, in these past years been swindled out of their just share of the profits of wheat-raising by an organized monopoly, who they want, and they will tell you by a large majority that they want the man who has had experience in the fight and who understands the business. Will the merchant have a man who has never had any experience in that line to conduct his business for him? Will any business man, any farmer take a man who has never done anything in that line and trust the management of his affairs in his unskilled hands? Shall this district, with this vast and important interest at stake do what no farmer or business man dares attempt in the management of his private business? Is there a man in this district who dare assert that anybody is good enough to represent our interests if he is honest and upright simply? We think not. While honesty and uprightness are essential and cannot be overlooked, yet that is not all that is required of the man who shall represent this district at this time. When the civil war broke out and the life of the country was in danger, an extraordinary man was needed at the helm and that man was found in the person of

NO POLK COUNTY MAN

GET THE BEST MAN,

ABRAHAM LINCOLN,

Did the fact that Abraham Lincoln was peculiarly adapted to the work of saving the life of the nation detract from the personal merits of hundreds of other good men? Did the fact that he was the greatest man of his time detract aught from the personal merits of anybody else? As in those days it was the duty of every man to do all he could for the cause in whatsoever sphere he was called to act, so in these is it not only the solemn duty of every man to do all he can to obtain our just rights in this matter, but it is also for his personal financial interest as well as for the good of his country. It is a time when all selfish personal interests should be put aside for the good of the common cause. The position of the Index seems to be that every other interest or consideration in the whole district should bend to the wish of the Index to see Mr. Baker returned to the Legislature, and this, too, upon their simple say so, with never an attempt to show him to be the best calculated to help the farmers and the business men of the country out of their predicament. Instead of attempting to show wherein its candidate is the best man we could send, the Index chooses to tear down the reputation of others, to accuse its contemporaries of "putting up jobs," and all that sort of foolishness. And now it accuses Polk County of trying to defeat its man and wildly raves and fills the air with vague and foolish threats. Mr. Index, don't you remember that we told you some weeks since that "every tub must stand on its own bottom" in this fight? Isn't that all right? Our candidate stands on his merits and we are content that it should be so! Can't you trust Mr. Baker in the same boat? Are you afraid of his record? If you are not what are you still growling about?

Pioneer Press: Col. Vilas refused to lead another forlorn hope, and the Wisconsin Democrats, met in convention at Madison, had to make up their State ticket of such second-rate material as they could get. An amiable farmer from Racine County, named Fratt, was nominated for Governor, and the rest of the offices were parceled out among a lot of vain young men who are compensated for defeat by the honor of running. The platform mildly endorses and reflects that of the Chicago convention. The attitude of the convention gives the lie to the Democratic affectation of hope to carry Wisconsin.

Todd County Argus: Hon. Knute Nelson, our popular Congressman, arrived on Wednesday evening's train and stopped over night. He will be returned to Congress by a rousing majority this fall, and he deserves it, as he was one of the hardest workers in Congress.

In view of the present prices of wheat, oats and barley, the prices which have been heretofore paid for threshing are altogether too high. We are told that some threshers have taken contracts to thresh for two and four cents. Barley and oats for two and wheat for four cents. This is certainly all the prices of grain will warrant our farmers in paying.

The Ada Index has discovered that the Legislative representation of this district, since the re-districting, is too light. This is a subject that has been commented on frequently in the district and one of the the matters for consideration hereafter.

To Rent.

A good house containing ten rooms, located in the centre of the city. Good cellar, well and stable. Inquire of H. W. Lewis.

NOTICE.

As I still own my share of Crookston Nurseries, and purpose to continue the business, I will annouce to our former customers and all that are desirous of obtaining trees and Plants the coming spring that I will sell said stock at prices below any competition. Call and see me before making purchase elsewhere. Residence on second block north of Court House, or address P. O. Box 754.

Most Respectfully,

[38-tf] E. W. HASELTINE.

To The Public.

We wish to state to the people of Crookston and vicinity, that we have purchased the stock of groceries owned by J. L. Bailey, on Broadway, opposite the post office. We purpose to carry on the trade at the old stand, and will keep on hand, at all times, a fresh stock of groceries, provisions, etc., and we ask a share of the patronage of the generous public.

[5-tf] BAUSCHMAN & MILETTE.

I have some of the best located residence and business lots in the city that I will sell on easy terms.

H. W. LEWIS.

I would say to the people of Polk County that I have on sale some of the most desirable lots in the city o Crookston.

H. W. LEWIS.
Office in JOURNAL building.

A BARGAIN.

A choice business location on Broadway 100x140 feet, for sale at a bargain. For particulars address the JOURNAL.

$100,000

To Loan on unproved claims in sums of $250 to $2,000. Cash paid for school bonds. Call on or address,

JOHN MCLEAN, Att'y at Law,
[47-tf] Crookston, Minn.

Send Money by American Express or Money Orders. Receipts given. Money refunded if Orders are lost. Sold at all offices of the Company. Payable at 6,500 places. RATES: To $5-5c.: $10-8c.: $20-10c.: $30-12.: $40-15.: $50-20c.
[2-27]

A good farm for sale two miles from Euclid. Seventy acres in crop. Will sell at a low figure. H. W. LEWIS.

NOTICE.

Any man investing in property at Red Lake Falls or vicinity who loses by the investment, I will pay five dollars where he looses five cents.

[3-28] ALFRED GERVAIS.

Notice to Farmers.

C. Kretzschmar's Grist Mill, at Red Lake Falls, is again open for business. Flour will be exchanged for wheat, or your wheat will be ground on shares. A good feed mill is run in connection with the mill and satisfaction in all cases is guaranteed. Flour and feed on hand at all times and sold at lowest market rates.

[16-tf] C. KRETZSCHMAR.

Money to Loan.

ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS to loan on improved farms from THREE to FIVE years time at very reasonable rates. Apply at my office on Broadway, in U. S. Land Office building.

[14tf] H. STEENERSON.

Just received. A car-load of Buggies selected by an experienced carriage builder all warranted. Call early and select one. McKinnon Bros.

TO PARTIES DESIRING INSURANCE!

We represent the following old and reliable Fire Insurance Companies:

	Assets.
Ætna	$9,182,644
American	1,804,519
Fire Association	4,279,676
Underwriters	3,699,794
Orient	1,411,894
Phœnix	5,919,403
Lancashire	6,787,983
Milwaukee Mech	1,129,375
Germania	2,700,729

Having represented nearly all of the above companies for 14 years we have acquainted ourselves with the business, and think that we can justly claim the patronage of the public, who can depend upon having insurance written correctly and losses adjusted promptly.

MOSER & MOECKEL.

Christening and Wedding Cakes Made upon Shortest Notice in the Best Style.

A Choice and Well Selected Stock of Confectionery Always on hand.

John Crawford & Son,

Proprietors of

Crawford's Bakery,

SECOND STREET,

Crookston, Minn.

CONFECTIONERY

Fresh Bread, Buns, Cakes and Biscuits. All Articles in the Fancy Baking Line.

FURNITURE STORE,

BROADWAY, CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

P. BATAGLIA, Prop.

Keeps constantly on hand a well selected stock of Wardrobes, Bureaus, Sofas, Lounges, Bedsteads, Bed Springs, Tables, Chairs, Rocking Chairs, Stands, Ornaments, Picture Moulding and Picture Frames. REPAIRING DONE TO ORDER. Coffins of all kinds kept constantly on hand.

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First Publication September 11th, 1884.]

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of one hundred and thirty-eight and 82-100 dollars ($138.82-100) which is claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by William Franz Jaenike and Gische Jaenike his wife, mortgagors, to Isaac Rattenburg, mortgagee, bearing date the 28th day of August A. D. 1882, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 28th day of August A. D. 1882, at 5:00 o'clock p. m., in book "I" of mortgages, on pages 128, 129, 130 and 131, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The Southeast quarter (se¼) of Section No. fourteen (14,) of Township No. one hundred and fifty (150) north, of Range No. forty-six (46) west, in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 25th day of October A. D. 1884, at 10 o'clock a. m., of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated Crookston, Sept. 8th A. D. 1884.

ISAAC RATTENBURG,
Mortgagee.

JOHN MCLEAN,
Attorney for Mortgagee. [21-26]

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First publication August 7th, 1884.]

WHEREAS DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN the conditions of a certain mortgage, executed and delivered by Alex Allerdyce, mortgagor, to Paul C. Sletten and John Cromb, mortgagees, dated the first day of August A. D. 1882, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds, of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the 25th day of August A. D. 1882, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book "H" of mortgages on page 218, on which there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice the sum of four hundred and eighty-four 40-100 dollars, according to the terms and conditions of one promissory note of even date therewith, and whereas Paul C. Sletten one of the mortgagees above named, on the 8th day of July A. D. 1884, at the City of Crookston, in said County, died testate, and the last will and testament of said deceased, which was by the Probate Court of said County duly admitted to probate and allowed as such on July 30th A. D. 1884, appointed and constituted Olaus H. Lucken the sole executor thereof, who accepted the trust and duly qualified as such and letters testamentary under said will was then by said Court to him duly issued, and whereas an attested copy of said will was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for said Polk County on July 31st, 1884, in book "P" of deeds on pages 257 and 258, and no action or proceedings has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by the sale of the mortgaged premises, therein described, at public auction, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County of Polk, on Saturday the twentieth day of September A. D. 1884, at 2 o'clock p. m., to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, and the costs and expenses of sale together with $25.00 attorneys fees as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure. The premises described in said mortgage and so to be sold, are the pieces and parcels of land situated in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota known and described as follows, to-wit: Lots one (1,) two (2) and three (3) of block six (6) in Sletten & Cromb's subdivision of Hurlbut's addition to the townsite of Crookston according to the recorded plat thereof now on file in the office of Register of Deeds for said Polk County.

Dated August 5th A. D. 1884.

JOHN CROMB, Surviving Mortgagee.
OLAUS H. LUCKEN, Sole executor of Paul C. Sletten, deceased, mortgagee.
H. STEENERSON, Attorney for surviving and for executor of deceased mortgagee.
[18-21]

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 15th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, on November 6th, 1884, viz: MELCHIOR SCHWBY, H'd No. 4967, for the se¼ S. 20, T. 152, R. 48. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Wm. Appel, Henry Horn, B. Carish and Michale Biver, all of Euclid, Polk Co., Minn.

[21-26] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Sept. 15th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 6th, 1884, viz: WILLIAM APPEL, H'd No. 5853, for the sw¼ S. 20, T. 152, R. 48. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Henry G. Horn, M. Schwy, of Euclid, John Moser, Adolph Raugh, of Crookston, Minn.

[21-26] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 15th, 1884,

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 6th, 1884, viz: GEORGE H. HORN, Pre. D. S., No. 8-82, for the se¼ S. 4, T. 152, R. 48. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: William Apple, M. Schwy, B. Tudemann and C. Stuts, all of Euclid, Polk Co., Minn.

[21-26] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 12th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 4th, 1884, viz: HENRY WITTY, Pre. D. S., No. 8718, for the s½ se¼ and n½ se¼ S. 26, T. 147, R. 48. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Even Bjorke, Isaac Holm, Frank Vogel and Iver Krohn, all of Valley, P. O., Polk Co., Minn.

[21-26] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 13th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Oct. 3th, 1884, viz: SAMUEL CROOKSHANKS, H'd No. 2074, for the sw¼ S. 4, T. 151, R. 47. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: James Westover, Walter Letts, Robt Leal and H. Toussaint, all of Crookston, Polk Co., Minn.

[21-26] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 11th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 4th, 1884, viz: GEORGE KRONSCHNABEL, H'd No. 9,501 for the se¼ S. 23, T. 149, R. 41. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Henry Utzinger, Crookston, C. Oehler, Fred Lieder and J. Gunerutz, of Tilden, Polk Co., Minn.

[20-25] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 10th, 1884.

Complaint having been entered at this office by Carrie M. Peterson against William J. Young for abandoning his Homestead Entry No. 10,097, dated Dec. 13th, 1883, upon the nw¼ S. 8, T. 151, R. 46, in Polk County, Minn., with a view to the cancellation of said entry; the said parties are hereby summoned to appear at this office on the 16th day of Nov. 1884, at 2 o'clock p. m., to respond and furnish testimony concerning said alleged abandonment.

JOHN CROMB, Register.
[20-25] L. K. AAKER, Receiver.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 11th, 1884.

Complaint having been entered at this office by Andrew P. Vallom against Charles Dudley Hudson for failure to comply with law as to Timber Culture Entry No. 2,041, dated June 4th 1881, upon the s½ ne¼ and n½ se¼ S. 18, T. 149, R. 48, in Polk Co., Minn., with a view to the cancellation of said entry; contestant alleging that the said Charles Dudley Hudson has failed to plant said tract, or any portion thereof to trees, tree seeds or cuttings since his entry and has failed to cultivate said land to crop or otherwise as required by law, and that there is not now any trees, tree seeds or cuttings standing or growing on said tract, the said parties are hereby summoned to appear at this office on the 6th day of November 1884, at 2 o'clock p. m., to respond and furnish testimony concerning said alleged failure.

[20-25] JOHN CROMB, Register.

N. F. CHINIQUY'S

Chicago Dry Goods House.

JUST RECEIVED

Full Lines Of

Dress Sstins, Lawns, Organdies.
Percales, Cambrics, Buntings, Piques
Marsailles, Prints, Embroideries.
Gloves, Hosiery, Handkerchiefs.
Hoop Skirts, Bustles, Corsets.
Parasols, Collars, Cuffs, Ruchings.
Lacesand Lace Goods, Gauze.
Underwear, Etc., Etc., Etc.
Cretonnes and Fringes.
Gent's Furnishing Goods.

The above goods were bought late in the season at very Low Prices and I will make it an aim to sell these goods very cheap.

No Trouble to Show Goods

At N. F. CHINIQUY'S

Chicago Dry Goods Store.

JEROME'S

ADDITION

TO THE

CITY OF CROOKSTON

IS NOW

Offered for Sale

This is the finest Residence Property in the City. High and dry, good cellars, water, and well sheltered. Enclosed on three sides by the river, and only three blocks from the heart of the city and Post Office.

HOW TO BE HEALTHY!

Drink LePage's

35c Tea and 35c pure Java Coffee

AND SMOKE MY NICKEL PILGRIM CIGAR.

HOW TO BE HEALTHY!

COME TO THE RED STAR GROCERY

And Save Money on everything you buy.

AND IF YOU ARE WISE

You will buy only Pure and Fresh Groceries. THE RED STAR GROCERY is the place to get them and there you will find Prices the Lowest. Farmers and others bring in your Butter and Eggs and get highest prices for them. Remember the RED STAR, one door south of Montreal House.

E. LEPAGE, Broadway, Crookston, Minn.

E. D. Schreader

LIVERY,

Feed and Sale Stable.

BEST TURNOUTS
IN THE CITY.

Single or Double Rigs, with or without driver or

SADDLE HORSES

Always ready at a moments notice by day or night. If you want a Nobby Turnout call at the Red Barn, Corner Main and Third Streets,

CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

NEW

DRUG STORE

IN GARFIELD

DR. A NELSON, Prop.

The citizens of this town and vicinity are respectfully invited to call at my new Drug Store in the town of Garfield and examine my stock of

DRUGS, MEDICINES, PAINTS, OILS AND YANKEE NOTIONS.

It is no longer necessary to go 40 or 35 miles for anything in this line, as I have a full supply at prices as reasonable as any town in the Northwest. Call and see

PHYSICIAN and SURGEON

I am also ready to answer all calls by day or night, for the practice of my profession. Call, or leave orders at my Drug Store in Garfield, Polk Co., Minn.

DR. A. NELSON.

First National Bank

OF CROOKSTON.

PAID IN CAPITAL, - - $100,000
SURPLUS, - - - 1,400

Money to loan on long or short time on approved security
Interest on time deposits. Faithful attention to Collections and prompt remittance.

GEO. O. ERSKINE, President.
K. D. CHASE, Vice President.
ANSEL BATES, Cashier.

A. YVERNAULT,

Dealer in

General

Merchandise,

MAIN STREET,

Crookston, - - Minn.

All of my friends, both old and new, are cordially invited to call and examine my stock and get prices.

Fortier's Place,

Corner Broadway and Robert Street

EVERYTHING NEW, NEAT
AND NOBBY.

Billiards, Pool, and the Choicest Wines, Liquors and Cigars. The purest High Proof Whiskies at wholesale prices

PURE IMPORTED GOODS ON DROUGHT.

P. A. DUFOUR,

Attorney and Counselor at Law,
MAIN STREET,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

Commercial Hotel,

W. H. TOPPING, Proprietor

SECOND STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN

First-class in all respects. Terms reasonable. A share of the public patronage solicited.

A. A. JUST, M. D.,

Homeopathic Physician and Surgeon

Rooms corner Main street and Fletcher Avenue, over Eiken Bros. Hardware Store,

CROOKSTON, POLK COUNTY, MINN.

The Polk County Journal.

H. E. COOKE, Proprietor. DEVOTED TO THE WELFARE OF POLK COUNTY. TERMS---$1.50 Per Annum.

VOL. VIII. CROOKSTON, POLK COUNTY, MINNESOTA, SEPTEMBER 25, 1884. NO. 22

Polk County Journal.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY.

H. E. COOKE, Editor and Proprietor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Dollar and Fifty Cents, if paid in advance, to any address inside of Polk County. If outside of Polk County 15 cents must be added for postage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum to any address.

ADVERTISING RATES.

SPACE.	1 w.	2 w.	3 w.	1 m.	2 m.	6 m.	1 year
½ inch	50	$1 00	$1 15	$1 50	$2 00	$4 50	$6 00
1 inch	75	1 25	1 75	2 00	3 50	6 00	10 00
2 inches	1 50	2 25	3 00	3 50	6 50	9 50	15 00
3 inches	1 75	2 75	3 75	4 50	9 00	13 50	20 00
4 inches	2 50	3 50	4 50	5 50	10 00	16 00	25 00
5 inches	3 00	4 00	5 00	6 00	12 50	20 00	30 00
¼ column	3 50	5 50	5 50	6 50	15 00	25 00	35 00
½ column	6 00	7 50	10 00	12 00	20 00	35 00	50 00
1 column	9 50	12 50	15 00	18 00	35 00	60 00	100 00

Entered at the Post Office in Crookston as Second Class matter.

Republican Ticket.

For President,
JAMES G. BLAINE,
of Maine.

For Vice President,
JOHN A. LOGAN,
of Illinois.

For Representative in Congress,
HON. KNUTE NELSON,
of Alexandria.

Flour vs. Wheat.

From the Ada Index.

Considerable complaint is heard from the fact that although wheat is at present very low the price of flour remains the same as it was when wheat sold for $1 per bushel. It is estimated that it requires five bushels of wheat to make one barrel of flour. Flour sells in this market at $3.25 per sack, or $6.50 per barrel. Five bushels of wheat at 60 cents, present prices, would cost $3. Allowing the miller $1 per barrel for grinding, which is a good fee, and for freight and the merchants profit, flour still remains from $1.75 to $2 higher than it should be. It is safe to say that the miller's clear profit, taking into account the fact that he buys considerable wheat of lower grade than No. 1 hard and his profits from the feed he obtains, is about $3 per barrel. The millers are making an enormous profit at present and much more than they should.

The Course of the Future.

Grand Forks Herald.

The greatly exaggerated yield of wheat in the Northwest may be in a measure responsible for the great depression in the market which now exists and must be acknowledged as wholly abnormal, without question. That a better price will be restored presently will be inferred when such shrewd speculators as Vanderbilt buy "the stuff" by the million. But aside from speculations upon the probabilities which may be suggested as to the course of the market for the year's yield, there is no safety in delaying discussion of the problem how to prevent a recurrence of the present gloomy situation. The Herald is not inclined to take pessimist view of even the present trouble, serious though it may prove to many who have invested deeply on a promising harvest at fair prices. What it would urge upon the farmers of the Northwest as an economic proposition worthy of acceptance is that they now firmly and unalterably determine to buy from the proceeds of the year's crop all the cattle, sheep and swine they can and all who are able, fence pastures to raise even as much stock as is needed for home use and consumption. With a good supply of stock in the country, when the price of grain is so depressed as at this period, there will be more profit in feeding it into hogs, beef cattle and muttons, for which the market is always high. It needs no further suggestion to lead the shrewd farmer to see how the reduction of the gross yield of wheat by such a course would enhance the market for the remainder. The grain markets we are told are in the hands of speculators, and the prices are fixed on a scale of supply largely made up of estimates weeks before the crop is harvested or ready to market. Those who regulate the market prices consider such estimates as fixed as the law of the Medes and Persians, and no attention is paid to grade or special quality. It so happens then that notwithstanding the farmers of North Dakota raise the best wheat in the world, they realize the poorest price upon it, and naturally the solution to the difficulty is to quit raising it for the market which fails to appreciate the distinction between No. 2 soft red and No. 1 hard. As has been demonstrated by some of our leading farmers the best pork is produced by feeding wheat. It does not produce so much lard but more muscle and a finer flavor. The same should hold good as to cattle and sheep fattened for the market. Every man who owns a farm should have a pasture of at least forty acres, on which he could turn his horses, cows, young cattle, sheep and hogs. He will find that for $190 he can get a mile of iron fence, iron posts, six strand wire, two barbed, three plain, and the top one with visible guard to warn cattle. Some of our farmers propose to get this fence from the St. Louis factory this fall, and have their pastures ready next spring. This is a practical subject which it will be folly to ignore. If the combination of the men who make the market non-productive of profit can not be shattered in any other way, let it be done by putting the whole crop into stock.

Cheap Wheat but Dear Flour.

Chicago Daily News.

The northwestern millers a short time since "legislated," through what they call the Millers' Association of Minneapolis—evidently a parliament with absolute power—on the price of wheat. They began by setting the price low enough. Thus they established 77 cents as the price of No. 1 hard wheat, delivered in Minneapolis, as compared with $1.14 one year ago. We believe the price has since been still further reduced. For No. 1 spring they started out with agreeing to pay 72 cents, and for No. spring 69 cents.

This means that farmers within a radius of 250 to 400 miles from Minneapolis will receive from 52 to 58 cents a bushel for their grain on the railroad tracks, and in a less ratio as the market declines in this city, which it has been doing for some time.

Now it stands to reason that with this enormous decline in the price of wheat at the principal milling points there ought to be a corresponding decline in the price of flour. But this, most unfortunately for the consumers, is not the case; for whereas the Minneapolis wheat legislators paid $1.14 this time last year and this year but 72 to 77c, in this city their patent brand of flour (25) which sold last year at $1 to $1.05, this year is selling at 95c to $1, and this is the quality which is now purchased by the great mass of consumers.

The householder is in vain asking how it can be that, while wheat has fallen forty-two cents per bushel, a bag of flour which cost $1.05 last year sells for ninety-five cents to $1 this year. The Minneapolis flour legislators will not of course, admit that it is a question of the absolute power of their parliament. Still, it would puzzle the most astute of them to demonstrate that the law of supply and demand has anything whatever to do with it.

The Kind Hearted Millers.

Swift County Press: The farmers should be devoutly thankful that the Millers' Association has at last fixed the price of wheat. Had such action been deferred, of course the farmers would have to place their commodity upon a precarious market, and run quite a chance of getting what it was worth. But now that the millers have kindly averted such a catastrophe, by fixing the price of wheat, the farmers can rest in peace; no longer raked and tormented by doubts and fears, for now he knows he will get about half what his wheat is worth, and by close watch get his sacks back from their toll gatherers. The millers are kind, very kind.

The Dutchman's Catechism.

Constable Lee found the boys in high glee the other day over the fun they were having with a chap on Vermillion Street, who was making desperate efforts to prevent the road from flying up in his face. Marching him to jail, the officer waited until the next morning, and then Sev. came before Justice De Kay and took a chair. The following singular dialogue took place:

"From whence came you?"

"Voll, I vas been from der city of New Yorik, over die New Jarusalem."

"What came you here to do?"

"I learn to subdue mine abbatites, and imbroof mine self in printing."

"Then you are a printer I presume?"

"O yes, I'm so taken by all the fellers."

"Where were you made a printer?"

"Auf a regular Scandinavian brinter's office."

"How gained you admission to this city?"

"By good many long walks."

"How were you received?"

"By a Cherman friend mit a glass of beer."

"How did your friend dispose of you?"

"Oh he dook me a couple a dimes on dree der city round mit saloons in der Sout und West und den de ovvicer games."

"What did the officer do with you?"

"He brought me der way to der shail in der East until my saltops was more upright und regular as before."

"Will you be off or from?"

"Vell, of you should blease, Square, I'll be off right und quick."

"Why do you leave the East und go West?"

"In search of work."

"Work being the object of your search, you will descend a flight of dirty stairs, consisting of some five or several steps; turn square about, get on the level road, put out of the city and make a plumb line for Minneapolis, where the wicked are always troublesome, and the weary are as bad as the rest." And Sev. Yemming is on his way to Minneapolis.—[Waterville Journal.

FARM NOTES.

From the Farmers' Tribune.

SAVING SEED CORN.

We learn that a good deal of good corn has already been saved this fall in excellent condition, but it is not too late to save a good deal more. This is a good corn year. Next season may not be a good corn season, hence it is good policy for farmers to save, while they are about it, enough for two years. Every few years there is a scarcity of seed, and when there is plenty of good ripe corn, it is best to select enough to last two or three years.

GOOD STOCK.

It must be evident to all visitors who have attended our fairs this fall, that the stock industry in the Northwest is being largely developed. Year by year the quality of every description of stock is being greatly improved. There are no exceptions to the general rule. Horses, horned cattle, sheep and hogs are all in a much better condition than last season and we have no doubt but what a great improvement will be noticed next season over this year's product. Thoroughbreds are being continually introduced. Scarcely a township in a county in Southern Minnesota can be found without superior breeding animals, and their absence in Central, Western and the more Northern portions of the State, is not nearly as great as formerly. Farmers are becoming fully alive to the importance of grading up their stock.

RYE INSTEAD OF CORN.

We wish we could impress upon the farmers residing in the extreme Northwestern part of Minnesota and in Manitoba where it is difficult to raise Indian corn, the importance of cultivating both winter and spring rye, and for that matter we became convinced long since, that where corn can be raised it is a good place to raise a field of rye along side of it. It is true rye forms a rather unimportant product in Northern husbandry, but it makes excellent food for horses, hogs, cattle and sheep. We do not know that anyone likes rye bread, but it is next to corn for feeding stock, and is readily grown everywhere in the Northwest. It is a convenient crop for the farmer, if properly cultivated its yield is good. In Pennsylvania it is used a great deal as food for horses. We have seen excellent pork made from coarse ground flour. Poultry is fond of it; in short it can be profitably used in many different ways on the farm.

HARVESTING POTATOES.

It is universally admitted that the potato is one of the most important crops, and there is no crop that so little pains is taken in harvesting. When thoroughly ripe they should be dug, immediately gathered up from the ground and placed in narrow piles to sweat and dry, after which they should be stored in good dark winter quarters, especially if intended for eating. The light and air should never be permitted to reach potatoes intended for the table. All potatoes should be kept at such a temperature as to prevent germination, though we have found by actual experiments that seed potatoes will sprout more rapidly if they are exposed to the air sufficiently in the fall to become greened before strong, which Jonathan Periam claims is on the same principle, that the roots of trees dug in the autumn and healed in, get calloused and ready for growth in the spring. The light of day and the air lessens the quality of a good potato more than most people are aware of, and where the crop is exposed all day to the sun after being dug as frequently is the case, before they are picked up, a portion of the good quality of the potato has forever departed from it, next to wheat as food for man, too much care cannot be observed in harvesting potatoes, many good farmers contend that the crop should be suffered to remain in the ground in the fall just as long as possible before they are dug. This is not our experience. More or less when gathered from the ground late in the season will be frost bitten. Aside from this it is one of nature's laws to harvest all products when fully matured and ripe.

Ada Index: The farmers of this county are beginning to realize that stock raising and diversified farming is the only sure method of acquiring wealth and independence.

To Rent.

A good house containing ten rooms located in the center of the city. Good cellar, well and stables. Inquire of H. W. Lewis.

Republican Senatorial Convention.

The Republicans of the 45th Senatorial District are hereby notified to meet in delegate convention in the Court house hall, in the city of Crookston, on the 15th day of Oct. at 2 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of placing in nomination a Representative to the State Legislature. The counties will be entitled to delegates as follows: Kittson 3, Marshall 3, Polk 7, Norman 3.

M. R. BROWN, Chairman.
PETER RAMSTAD, Secretary.

Republican County Convention.

Notice is hereby given that a Republican county convention will be held at the Court house, in the city of Crookston, Polk Co., Minn., on Friday, September 26th, 1884, at 2 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of placing in nomination a county ticket, consisting of Auditor, Treasurer, Sheriff, Register of Deeds, Attorney, Judge of Probate, Surveyor, Court Commissioner, Coroner.

Also for the purpose of choosing seven delegates to attend a Legislative District Convention, called to meet in the city of Crookston on October 15th, 1884.

The several townships and wards in said county are entitled to the number of delegates set opposite each, as follows:

Angus,	1	Blackriver,	1
Andover,	2	Bray,	1
Bygland,	1	City of Crookston
Brislet,	1	1st ward,	2
Belgium,	1	2d ward,	2
Crookston,	1	3d ward,	1
Euclid,	2	4th ward,	2
Emardville,	1	Fairfax,	1
Farley,	1	Fanny,	1
Fisher,	2	Gervais,	1
Garden,	2	Garfield,	2
Godfrey,	2	Grovepark,	1
Grand Forks,	2	Gentilly,	1
Huntsville,	2	Hammond,	1
Hubbard,	2	Higdem,	2
Kertsonville,	1	Keystone,	1
Louisville,	1	Liberty,	1
Lakepleasant,	1	Lambert,	1
Lowell,	2	Nesbit,	1
North,	1	Northland,	1
Onstead,	1	Polk Centre,	1
Rosebud,	2	Poplar River,	1
River Falls,	2	Reis,	2
Rocksbury,	2	Roome,	1
Red Lake Falls Village	2	Red Lake Falls,	1
Sletten,	1	Russia,	1
Sandsville,	1	[illegible]	1
Tabor,	1	Sullivan,	2
Tilden,	1	Tynsid,	1
Vineland,	2	Terrebonne,	1
Hill River,	1	Woodside,	2
Badger,	1	Winger,	1
King,	1	Knute,	1
St. Hilaire Village,	1	[illegible]	1
Brandsvold,	1	Wyandotte,	1
Wergeland,	1

A full representation is requested.
By order of the Rep. Co. Cent'l Com.
P. J. McGuigan,
Chairman.

LIST OF LETTERS

Remaining uncalled for in the Crookston Post Office, for the week ending Sept. 22d, 1884. Persons calling for these letters will please say "advertised."

Atha, J S
Baullen, Bloni
Berge, Arne
Byrnes, Edward
Brodberg, Bessie
Brunner, John
Chisholm, John
Cyr, Harlin
Davis, Robert
Eastby Ole Larson
Goehla, Nelson
Henry, N N
Johnsen, Belle
Larson, Sarah
Osmer, Mrs C F
Parker, Mrs Hannah
St. Pierre, Joseph
Swenson, John
Walorne, Anne P O
Watts, Mrs George
Walker, Miss Lottie S
Walker, Miss Lizzie

POSTAL CARDS.

Andersen, John
Bogur, W A
Bacon, Wm
Flecker, John
Gaudron Joeffrey
Hewlett, Sam
Minllous, Joseph
Peterson, Hans J
Persson, Pervilla
St. George, P.
Sandberg, K P

D. JACOBUS, P. M.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 17th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 7th, 1884, viz: JACOB LARSON, Pre. D. S., No. 6866, for the nw¼ S. 12, T. 147, R. 41. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: J. B. Rungun, Ole Oleson Costen, Hans Aulison and Christopher Erickson, all of Aldal, Polk Co., Minn.

[21-26] JOHN CROMB, Register.

Tom Morris,
—THE—
CITY
JEWELER
Represents the CELEBRATED
Rockford Quick Train
WATCH
THE ONLY
Railroad
Watch
IN EXISTENCE

Fall Goods! Fall Goods!

NEW YORK STORE.

We have Received a Full Line of
Staple and Fancy Dry Goods.
Notions, Boots and Shoes,
which we are offering at Low Prices.

We show in
DRESS GOODS
One of the Best Selected stocks in the city. All the fall and winter shades.

We call special attention to our line of
BLACK CASHMERES,
We ask comparison.

Black and Colored Silks and Satins.
We show an exceptionally fine line in these goods.

NOTIONS,
Hosiery and Underwear, Knit Goods and Shawls, Ribbons, White Goods and Linens. Embroideries and Laces, Corsets and Gloves, Etc., Etc.

VELVETS,
Black and Colored, Blankets, flannels and Quilts,
—CHEAP— —CHEAP— —CHEAP—

CANTON FLANNELS,
Bleached and unbleached and colored. Domestics of all kinds, Prints, ginghams, sheetings, jeans, ticking, cotton batting, &c., &c.

Hats and caps, complete stock. CARPETS, we have a full line of samples of Body Brussels, Tapestry and Ingrain.

BOOTS AND SHOES,
of well known makes. We make a special effort to have this department one of the most complete in the city.

All our stock has been selected with all possible care, having all the advantages that cash and experience can buy for us, we feel safe in guaranteeing all our customers as low prices, if not lower, than can be obtained elsewhere, quality taken into consideration.

A CALL SOLICITED.

PROUD & MACDONELL.

Stewart & Lawrence,
—DEALERS IN—
Lumber, Sash, Doors, Mouldings,
Building Paper, &c.

1st Com. Dim's and Boards, rough,	$18	Siding, dry	$18
2d " " " "	16	Flooring, "	21
3d " " " "	14	Lath,	3
Ship Lap, dry	17	Shingles	2

☞ A full stock of Sash, Doors, Casings, Mouldings, Eve Trough and Building Paper constantly on hand.

Johnson & Stevens,
FISHER AND CROOKSTON,
WILL NEGOTIATE LOANS
Through the Corbin Banking Co., New York,

SELL MINNESOTA CHIEF
Threshers and Engines,
Deering and Esterly Binders,
Studebaker Wagons,
and a variety of Rakes, Mowers, Plows, Etc., Etc.
KEEP A MORE
COMPLETE LINE OF REPAIRS
than any agency in the County.
Twine and Wire In Season.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 17th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 7th, 1884, viz: JOSEPH DURAND, H'd No. 7915, for the s½ sw¼ S. 14, T. 150, R. 43. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Ephraim Tromeley, L. Tilium, M. Lambert and John Borden, all of Terrebonne, Polk Co., Minn.

[21-26] JOHN CROMB, Register.

AIME GABOURY,
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON.
A Graduate Doctor in Medicine Laval University Canada. Licensed Coll. Phy. Surg. Quebec. Late of Michigan University, U. S.
Office over the Arcade Clothing Store,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

CITY ICE HOUSE!
E. D. SCHRAEDER & CO., Proprietors,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

Having purchased the ice house business of Ruedy & Kindler, and put up during the past winter from 75,000 to 100,000 tons of ice, we are now prepared to supply the trade the coming summer at reasonable figures.
E. D. SCHRAEDER & Co.

DENTISTRY.
J. H. THOMAS, D. D. S.
ROBERT STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN.
Artificial Teeth from one to an entire set inserted. Gold, Silver or Artificial Filling used as desired. Regulating Children's Teeth a specialty. ALL WORK WARRANTED.

EIKEN BROS.,
Corner of Fletcher and Main Stree
Crookston, Minn.
Dealers in
HARDWARE, TIWARE,
STOVES,
—AND—
SHELFWARE.
WE KEEP A
FULL & COMPLETE STOCK,
—AND—
Invite the Patronage
OF ALL.

A. H. DUNLOP M. D.,
Graduate McGill University, Montreal.
Licensed College Physician and Surgeon Quebec.
Office on Robert Street, Crookston.

I have a good Hotel for sale, located right in the business part of the city.
H. W. Lewis.

ELLIS & JOHNSON,
AGENTS FOR THE
WALTER A. WOOD
Mowing and Reaping
MACHINE COMPANY.
A Full Line of Repairs and Twine constantly on Hand.
Robert Street, Opposite Old Mill. CROOKSTON, MINN.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 16th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Oct 30th, 1884: viz: OLE PETERSON, H'd No. 2375, for the sw¼ S. 20, T. 149, R. 47. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: B. C. Jergenson, Jake Ide, Leonard Paulson and Iver C. Lamen, all of Andover, Polk Co., Minn.

[21-26] JOHN CROMB, Register.

MERCHANTS'
Bank of Crookston.

H. B. MONTGOMERY.........President,
St. Paul, Minn.
M. R. BROWN,............Vice President,
Crookston, Minn.
J. KELSO.........Second Vice President,
Bellevue, Iowa.
Wm. ROSS.............................Cashier,
Crookston, Minn.

CASH CAPITAL, $32,000
SURPLUS, $16,533.82.

Will receive deposits and allow interest by special contract.
Buy and Sell Foreign and Domestic Exchange, make collections, and do a strictly legitimate business.
Agents for foreign passage tickets.
De Skandinaviske Sprog tales her.
WM. ROSS, Cashier.

ATTENTION
Now is the Time to Build
While you can buy
Cream Brick
at Very Low Figures. The Best Brick ever made in the Red River Valley. Manufactured by SWANSON & KOEPPE,
[11-18] Crookston, Minn.

SECOND STREET
MEAT MARKET
STANTON & CO., Proprietors.
Choice meats of every description. Fish and game in their season. Everything of the very best quality and lowest prices. Call and see us.
STANTON & CO.,
Dobson's Block, Second Street.

For Sale Cheap.
A complete set of bar fixtures. Call on August Wentzel for particulars.
[19-tf]

Polk County Journal.

Crookston, Minn., Thursday, September 25

THE MARKETS.

There is no change in the price of wheat to notice this week. The outlook is favorable to better prices but not before November 1st.

Wheat is quoted in this market today as follows:

No. 1 Hard 59 cents.
No. 2 Hard 42 cents.
No. 1 Northern 53 cents.
No. 1 Regular 47 cents.
No. 2 Regular 37 cents.

FLOUR:
Best,	per cwt.	$ 3.25
2d	"	3.00
3d	"	2.75
4th	"	1.57

At Minneapolis:

No. 1 Hard 80 cents.
No. 2 Hard no quotations.
No. 1 Regular 75 cents.
No. 2 Regular 64 cents.

Duluth quotations are as follows:

No. 1 Hard 78½ cents.
No. 2 " 75 cents.
No. 1 Northern 75 cents.
No. 1 Regular 70 cents.

'ROUND HOME.

Best cigars in the city at Van Dyke & Co's.

Maj. Hamilton, of Grand Forks, was in the city on Tuesday.

J. H. Sanders and O. F. Buse, of Red Lake Falls, were in the city on Tuesday.

The new Receiver, Mr. L. K. Anker, has hired a house and expects his family up next week.

Clark Van Housen, the genial clerk for the Register of Deeds, left for Chicago on Tuesday morning to be gone a week or ten days.

A fine lot of toilet articles to be sold very low, at VAN DYKE & Co's.

The G. A. R. boys have secured the Opera House and will put on "The Spy of Atlanta" as soon as they get it ready. Look out for a big time.

The farmers are rejoicing in this lovely Indian summer weather. Many who intended to thresh from the shock have changed their minds and have stacked.

Van Dyke & Co. offer fancy goods lower than ever.

We are informed that Lee & Herrick have ordered, through Morrissey Bros., agents, a Westinghouse Automatic Engine and two steel boilers which will be put into their Roller Mills as soon as they arrive.

For the next 30 days we are bound to sell goods 50 per cent. below cost in order to make room for new stock.
VAN DYKE & Co.

Last week Mr. M. E. Bartlett brought in a sample of flint corn that he had raised on his farm in Fairfax which was as fine corn as we ever saw. It was planted late in May and was fully matured, showing that corn can be successfully raised here. He has about 30 bushels of sweet corn ready for seed after using about one-half bushel per day for six weeks.

Prescriptions put up carefully at all times of the day or night, at
VAN DYKE & Co's.

John Knuppe sports a new sign which guides the weary traveler thro' this vale of tears to where he can buy or sell real estate, buy railroad lands and pay for that he has contracted for, obtain money on farm security at 9 per cent. and be happy. The sign hangs just over the main entrance to the Merchants' Bank and shows that Knuppe's real estate, loan and railroad office is up stairs in that building.

If you don't want to take our word for it go and see that Van Dyke & Co. have one of the finest cigars you have smoked since.

Have you seen that fine pen drawing at LePage's grocery store? If not, why not? And, by the way, if you go to the Red Star Grocery house and buy $3 worth of goods you get a chance at that same picture, which will be drawn by somebody on November 1st. Go in and see what you are as liable to get as as anybody. The picture is a fine representation of the Lord's Prayer and is a handsome one.

A resident of Grove Park reports that a man was arrested there charged with stealing a few sheaves of oats, and was brought before a justice and mulcted in the sum of $50, including costs. He claims that it all originated in the fact that the man, who was working plaintiff's farm on shares, had a few sheaves left after finishing the last stack and took them home, telling the plaintiff what he had done. The defendant will appeal.

To-morrow there will be elected seven delegates to the Senatorial Convention to be held in this city on October 15th, and they should be good men and true. They should be men in whom we can trust and who we know will not hand over that convention to any tricky politician; men who will insist upon the nomination of the best man who can be found in the District, and men who will see to it that whoever is nominated must first pledge himself to support the farmers' cause in every particular and more especially in the matter of the regulation of tariff rates. This is a question of vast importance and one that will be brought up next winter if we send the right kind of a representative. Do not let this matter go by default, but see that the best men we have are chosen delegates to the Senatorial Convention. It is a very important matter.

Notions below cost at Chiniquy's.

Andrew Steenerson is in from his farm in the 13 towns this week.

Come and buy good goods at you own prices, at VAN DYKE & Co's.

Terry Sheley, of Red Lake Falls, was seen perambulating our streets on Wednesday.

What's the matter with those cigars of Van Dyke & Co's, if it is a good one you like.

Go and buy your winter goods of Chiniquy as he is going out of business and selling at cost and below cost.

Trunks at half price at Chiniquy's.

Pete Cornelius started on Saturday afternoon with O. K. Lucken and Ole Hamery to go to the Thirteen Towns to appraise school lands.

Johnnie Hack has returned to civilization again, and now look out for a stunning line of dry goods, (we mean strictly business) and groceries.

If you want a rattling good cigar, don't take our word for it. but take ten cents and go and try one of those what you read about at Van Dyke & Co's.

Uncle Billy Wilson was down from Red Lake Falls this week as genial and jovial as ever. He is one of the old pioneers whom it is ever a pleasure to meet.

Geo. Bunzy came in from Maple Lake on Tuesday. He reports that while farmers feel the depression of the times somewhat they are yet cheerful and hopeful of better times in the near future.

Mr. and Mrs. John McMinnon have again been called upon to mourn the loss of a child, little baby Jeanette, aged six months and nineteen days, who died on Friday last. They have the sympathy of this community in their sore affliction.

You will find that you can save a great deal of money in buying goods at Chiniquy's.

Elsewhere, we publish by request, a communication from Capt. W. H. Donaldson in reply to a letter written to him by Hon. H. Steenerson. There is one thing about the Captain, he does not allow stories affecting his honor to stand long unanswered, and he always gets there in good shape.

The best five cent cigars is at the Red Star Grocery, Broadway. [51-tf]

Joseph Cook, the world renowned Boston lecturer, will lecture in this city on Wednesday evening, October 8th. Subject—"Seven Modern Wonders of the World." Admission, single tickets $1; two or more 75 cents each. For sale at G. M. Barber & Co's. Further particulars will be given next week.

Ed. Columbus reports everything O. K. in Lake Pleasant township. The farmers thereabouts have been interested in stock for some time and are now beginning to see the benefits of it. Don't you forget it these farmers are soon going to be independent up there, and will have lots of stock to sell to their neighbors who learn more slowly.

The largest stock of boots and shoes in the city selling at cost at Chiniquy's

The wheat crop of the valley is, or ought to be safe at last. Those who have not got their crops secured in the stack can now have no good cause to grumble if they lose their grain for certainly they have had sufficient time. In such a fall as this has been it is very risky business for the farmer to attempt to thresh out of the shock yet many have tried it and have done passably well. Some are at it yet.

Big times at the skating rink last Saturday night. The expert skater, Mr. F. W. Dampier, gave an exhibition of his skill, which was admired by crowds who went to see the fun, while the French band discoursed sweet music the while. A grand march and lots of fun was witnessed, and everybody does say that the rink is the boss place to while away an hour in. Fil. ought to do so some more and invite the reporters in to see the fun.

Cloaks, Dolmans and winter wraps at fifty cents on the dollar at Chiniquy's.

Chris. Houston has finished threshing his wheat. From 200 acres sowed he got 4,000 bushels of fine No. 1 Hard wheat. Included in this is the 100 acres we have mentioned before from which when he first began on it he was threshing thirty bushels per acre. One reason why he did not get over twenty bushels all round is found in the fact that a large portion was drowned out in spots. This will be found to apply in many other cases.

Isaiah Gervais was in the city this week for the first time in many weeks. He is paying strict attention to his knitting work at home, hoping by so doing to reap a rich reward. He is one of the first settlers of Polk County, coming here when the dwellers in the county could be counted on his fingers, and he views the progress of the county with pride, and is just as much interested as ever in its progress and development. He swears by Polk County.

John Hunter was in from Maple Lake this week and he says that he wants us to put back them toes on W. N. Godfrey's feet which we so recklessly cut off a few weeks ago and then had this boy finish the job in a surgeon like manner. Well, John we are right glad to be able to put 'em all back but the one that Mr. Godfrey cut most off and his [illegible] finished in due and ancient form and we would like to put that back but we can't, ye know.

Gus Akulund is putting in a new glass front at Peake's on Main Street.

Mr. T. U. Jennings was made happy on Thursday last by the return of Mrs. Jennings from a visit to their daughter in Ohio.

City Caucuses.

In the First Ward A. J. Bigham and Andrew Hanson were elected delegates to the county convention. In the Second, Ole Hamery and A. Yvernault; in the Third, John McLean, and in the Fourth John Cromb and Tom Bjoin. In the Third O. H. Lucken, John McLean and G. W. Lewis were appointed ward committee.

A Card.

We desire to return our sincere thanks to the many kind friends whose kind sympathy and aid we have in our bereavement.

JOHN R. MCKINNON.
KATTIE MCKINNON.

Democratic County Convention.

A delegate convention of Democrats of Polk County is hereby called to meet in Kretzschmar's Hall, at the Village of Red Lake Falls, on Wednesday Oct. 8th, 1884 for the purpose of putting in nomination candidates for the following named offices: County Auditor, County Treasurer, Sheriff, Register of Deeds, County Attorney, Judge of Probate, County Surveyor, Court Commissioner and Coroner. And also for the purpose of selecting delegates to attend a Democratic Legislative District Convention, to be held at the city of Crookston on the 16th day of Oct. 1884.

In towns where there is no local committee it is recommended that the Democratic voters hold caucuses at the usual place of holding elections, on Saturday Oct. 4th at 7 o'clock p. m., to select delegates to the convention.

All delegates and proxies must reside in the towns and wards which they claim to represent.

Each organized town or ward in the county is entitled to one delegate and one additional delegate for each 50 votes or major fraction thereof cast for A. Biermann for Governor at the general election in 1883.

Towns and wards will be entitled to representation as follows:

Angus,	1	Lowell,	1
Andover,	1	Lambert,	1
Bygland,	1	Nesbit,	1
Belgium,	1	North Star,	1
Black River,	1	Onstead,	1
Crookston,	1	Polk Centre,	1
City of Crookston		Poplar River,	1
1st ward,	2	Rose Bud,	1
2d ward,	2	Reis,	1
3d ward,	1	River Falls,	1
4th ward,	2	Roome,	1
Euclid,	1	Russia,	1
Emardsville,	1	Red Lake Falls,	2
Fairfax,	1	Red Lake Falls Village	3
Fanny,	1	Sletten,	1
Fisher,	3	Sanders,	1
Garden,	1	Sullivan,	2
Godfrey,	1	Tabor,	1
Garfield,	1	Tynsid,	1
Grand Forks,	3	Terrebonne,	1
Gervais,	1	Tilden,	1
Grove Park,	1	Vineland,	1
Gentilly,	1	Woodside,	1
Huntsville,	1	Winger,	1
Hubbard,	1	Wyandotte,	1
Brislet,	1	Knute,	1
Hammond,	1	Norden,	1
Higdem,	1	Hill River,	1
Kertsonville,	1	Badger,	1
Keystone,	1	King,	1
Louisville,	2	Brandswold,	1
Lakepleasant,	2	Wergland,	1
Liberty,	1

By order of the Committee.
JOHN N. IVES,
Chairman.

LOST.

A gentleman's saddle somewhere between Crookston and Beltrami, the finder will be suitably rewarded by leaving it at the JOURNAL office, Crookston, or at Charlie Ole's store, Beltrami.

IRA D. BLANCHARD.

Dissolution Notice.

CROOKSTON, Sept. 3, 1884.

We, the undersigned, do this day dissolve the copartnership heretofore existing and carried on in the city of Crookston, under the name of McCarthy & Smith, practical painters, A. C. Smith continuing the business, assuming all responsibility of the same. He is hereby authorized to collect all bills due the and pay all bills against the same.

JOHN MCCARTHY,
[20-22] A. C. SMITH.

For Rent.

To a small family, a part of my house on Broadway. Inquire at the JOURNAL office.

DR. G. A. CADLE.

The United States Internal Revenue Special Tax is due May 1st. Any information and a full line of blanks can be had by calling on or addressing.

JOHN MCLEAN,
Attorney at Law,
[47-tf] Crookston, Minn.

PIANO TUNING.

Any parties having pianos or organs that need tuning or repairing can have their work satisfactorily done by leaving orders at the Linton House. Satisfaction guaranteed.

[9-tf] E. F. WHEELDEN.

John Knuppe,
General Agent in the Red River Valley of the Netherlands American Land Company of Amsterdam, Holland.
Money to loan on good real estate security, on time to suit the borrower. Office over Merchant's Bank. [1-tf]

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 24th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on No. 22d, 1884, viz: JOHN E. MARTELL, H'd No. 8827, for the sw¼ S. 21, T. 148, R. 47. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: M. G. Legnce, Chas P. Cahoon, John A. Lytle and Stephen Dewal, all of Crookston, Polk Co., Minn.

[22-27] JOHN CROMB, Register.

MERCHANTS' HOTEL,
J. E. MITTON, Proprietor,
CORNER BROADWAY AND ROBERT STREET,
CROOKSTON, MINN.
The new Merchants' Hotel, recently re-fitted and re-furnished is now ready to accommodate the traveling public, who are cordially invited to stop at the Merchants' when in the city.

JOHN N. IVES.
ATTORNEY AT LAW.
Collection and Land Office Business made a specialty. Money secured for final proofs [illegible] on short notice.
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

W. L. Sargeant
Veterinary Surgeon.
CROOKSTON, MINN.
Diseases of horses and cattle a specialty.
[9-tf]

WM. WATTS,
ATTORNEY AT LAW,
AND DEALER IN
REAL ESTATE.
OFFICE OVER MERCHANTS' BANK.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 17th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 7th, 1884, viz: GUNDER T. HUNDLAND, H'd No. 9483, for the ne¼ S. 22, T. 152, R. 42. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Nicholas Thompson, Neese Thompson, H. Keogh and Hans P. Bjerge, all of St. Hilaire, Polk Co., Minn.

[22-27] JOHN CROMB, Registe[r]

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn, Sept. 17th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 7th, 1884, viz: JOHN LINDELL, Pre. D. S., No. 6332, for the n½ se¼ ne¼ sw¼ and lot 3, S. 7, T. 146, R. 43. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Erik J. Erikson, John Bergqvist, E. Eriksson and A. Larson, all of Rindal, Minn.

[22-27] JOHN CROMB, Register.

Wentzel & Rauch,
Sample Rooms.
MAIN STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN.
For a fine mixed or straight drink call on the boys. The choicest liquors and cigars in stock. [9-tf]

Groceries, Provisions,
Flour, Feed
SMOKED, DRIED AND SALT
MEATS,
TEAS,
COFFEES,
SUGARS,
SPICES,
ETC.
Highest Market Price Paid for
FARM PRODUCE.
Bauchman & Millette.
Broadway, Opposite the Post Office,
Crookston, Minn.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 17th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 7th, 1884, viz: NICHOLAS THOMPSON, Pre. D. S., No. 7780, for the se¼ S. 10, T. 152, R. 42. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: G. T. Hundlen, H. Keogh, Neese Thompson and Hans P. Bjerge, all of St. Hilaire, Polk Co., Minn.

[22-27] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 19th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 10th, 1884, viz: HANS E. BERGE, Pre. D. S., No. 6935, for the sw¼ sw¼ S. 22, T. 147, R. 44. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Even Grotevig, Halvor Grotevig, Jacob Aldal and A. Nelson, all of Aldal, Polk Co., Minn.

[22-27] JOHN CROMB, Register.

BERG & OLSON,
PRACTICAL WATCHMAKERS,
AND DEALERS IN CLOCKS,
WATCHES,
JEWELRY,
ROBERT STREET,
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

NEW LIVERY,
Feed and Sale
STABLES.,
CORNER MAIN AND FOURTH STS.,
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA
TERRY & COLLINS, Prop's.
Good Turnouts at all times a reasonable prices. Good Hearse and careful driver when needed.

M. M. VAN DYKE,
Physician and Surgeon,
Corner of Main and Second Streets,
ROOKSTON MINN
Will attend to all professional calls promptly.

JOHN LEO. H. STEENERSON.
LEO & STEENERSON.
ATTORNEYS AT LAW
Room 8., U. S. Land Office Building,
CROOKSTON. MINNESOTA.

Crookston Tonsorial
PARLORS.
PROF. THOMPSON, Proprietor.
Robert Street, Crookston, Minn.
Shaving, hair dressing and all work in my line promptly attended to the latest style of the art. Give me a call.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 20th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 11th, 1884, viz: JOSEPH MARLOW, Pre. D. S., No. 7290, for the s½ nw¼ and lots 3 and 4 S. 2, T. 151, R. 44. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Pierre St. Jean, John Dairé, Aimable St. Jean and E. St. Jean, all of Red Lake Falls, Polk Co., Minn.

[22-27] JOHN CROMB, Register.

CHANGE IS THE ORDER OF THE DAY!
POTTER & GEORGE
SUCCEED BEECHER & GEORGE OF
MEDICAL HALL.
The reputation of the old firm will be kept up for good goods and moderate prices. Don't forget us.
POTTER & GEORGE,
Proprietors of Medical Hall.

E. D. CHILDS & CO.,
Proprietors of
CARMAN TOWNSITE,
AND
Dealers in Real Estate!

Why Don't You wait?
Wait till Crookston has ten thousand people. Three years!
Wait till Crookston is the largest and most important manufacturing town in the Northwest. Two years!
Wait till Crookston has two more large saw mills, and is cutting 75,000,000 feet a season. One year!
Wait till lots in SOUTH CROOKSTON are selling for twice their present valuation (six months) and THEN purchase
South Crookston Property.
But if you have time, just drop in and have a chat with
STEENERSON & McMANUS, Broadway.
JOHN IVES & SON, Broadway.
PALMER & BOND, Robert Street.
CROOKSTON IMPROVEMENT CO., Main Street.

Crookston City Bakery,
Peter Lorge, Prop.,
Keeps constantly on hand a full line of all goods usually found in a
First-Class Bakery.
Cigars and Tobacco, Nuts, Fruits, Candies; Pies, Cakes, Bread,
And everything to fill out a hungry man, constantly on hand.

MONEY! LAND!
$100,000 To Loan. 20,000 Acres of Land for Sale.
BRING IN YOUR PROPERTY
AND IT WILL BE SOLD.
Law and insurance, Collections Made,
CITY LOTS FOR SALE!
Houses, Rooms and Farms to Rent,
U. S. LAND OFFICE
Business promptly attended to.
CONTEST CASES A SPECIALTY.
Office Corner Broadway and Robert Street,
PALMER & BOND.

THE PIONEER
HARNESS SHOP.
M. RAUENBUEHLER, Proprietor,
CORNER OAK AND THIRD STS., CROOKSTON MINN.
Is ready for the Spring trade with a full supply of Work and Light Harness, Single and Double, Saddles, Bridles, Whips, Blankets, etc. Give me a call before you purchase.

MERCHANTS'
BILLIARD HALL,
FRED ANDERSON, Proprietor.
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.
The choicest Wines, Liquors and Cigars constantly on hand.

THE
St. Paul,
Minneapolis
AND Manitoba
RAILWAY,
WITH ITS
1,400 Miles of Road
Is the only line extending through the
Park Region of Minnesota,
To all principal points in
Red River Valley,
Northern Minnesota,
Northern Dakota,
And to Devil's Lake and Turtle Mountain Districts.
CONTAINING OVER
9,000,000 Acres
GOVERNMENT LANDS!
The Land department of the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway has exclusive charge of the Company's Lands in Minnesota, and all correspondence relative to the purchase of lands, terms, description or price of any particular tract should be addressed to that department.
Maps and pamphlets describing the country and giving rates of fare to settlers, etc., mailed FREE on application.
JAS. B. POWER,
Land and Immigration Commissioner
C. H. WARREN,
General Passenger Agent,
St. P., M. & M. R'y., St. Paul, Minn.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 24th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 10th, 1884, viz: PETRONELLE SVARTZ, Pre. D. S., No. 8307, for the lots 3 and 4, S. 6, T. 147, R. 44. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Svend Kuraas, John Jalstrold, Thoraald Torpet and Ingebret Torpet, all of Aldal, Polk Co., Minn.

[22-27] JOHN CROMB, Register.

Crookston Nurseries
ESTABLISHED IN 1870.
Tree Claim Stock.
I desire to inform my customers and others that I shall make a great reduction from former prices on forest trees and seeds for tree-claims. I have good thrifty two year old trees, such as Box Elder, Ash and Cottonwood to sell by the thousand. I also furnish the hardier varieties of
SMALL FRUITS,
Such as Currants, Gooseberries, Raspberries and Strawberry plants, and young, thrifty Transcendent and Hislop Crab Apple trees. The firm of Heseltine Bros. having dissolved, I still continue business on the
OLD NURSERY GROUNDS
in Crookston. Hoping by fair dealing and promptness with my customers to merit their patronage.
Don't fail to write for Catalogue and Prices.
ALL COMMUNICATIONS PROMPTLY ANSWERED.
F. T. HASELTINE,
Proprietor of the Crookston Nurseries, Crookston, Minn.

WANTED!
5,000 Men, Women and Children
TO VISIT
HACK & GALLASCH
General Store, where you can buy
13 lbs. Pure Sugar for....$1.00
12 lbs. Turkish Prunes for.... 1.00
5 three lb. cans Table Peaches for.. 1.00
Japan Tea from....20 to 60 cts per lb
1 long bar of soap and 1 towel, all for.... 25c
Our stock of
DRY GOODS, NOTIONS,
AND DRESS GOODS IS COMPLETE.
Don't fail to visit our Shoe and Slipper department before buying elsewhere New and complete stock of Groceries Crockery, Glassware, Flour and Feed.
We pay the highest market price for Butter, Eggs, Snake Root, Etc.
Call and see us. NO TROUBLE TO SHOW GOODS.
Cor. Main and Second Street,
CROOKSTON, MINN

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 17th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., Nov. 7th, 1884, viz: JOHN C. CHARLES, Pre. D.S. No. 8222, for the ne¼ S. 35, T. 148, R. 41. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: G. P. Bloom, James Yurgen, Thomas Olsen and Torkel Hydnud, all of Foston, Polk Co., Minn.

[22-27] JOHN CROMB, Register.

Bigham & Olafson
(Successors to Jure & Bergland.)
THE POPULAR MERCHANTS ON
MAIN STREET, CROOKSTON
Have on hand and are constantly receiving full lines of
DRY GOODS, GROCERIES,
CROCKERY,
CLOTHING,
BOOTS AND SHOES,
HATS AND CAPS
In fact everything usually found in first-class general store.
Our goods are bought with great care and will be sold at LOW PRICES
FOR CASH.

DR. M. WATTS,
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,
OFFICE ON ROBERT STREET,
Professional calls by day or night attended to with promptness.

BLAINE AND LOGAN.

How the Country is Solidifying for the National Republican Ticket.

Campaign Notes.

At a republican senatorial convention held at Marshfield, Wis., Hon. C. M. C. King, of Neillsville was nominated for state senator.

New York Tribune: The great fact which the New letters establish is that Mr. Blaine was the victim of Warren Fisher, deceived by him from the start, induced to involve himself and friends in an undertaking in which they all suffered, crippled by the refusal of Fisher to keep his word, persuaded when disaster came to borrow money for the enterprise upon his personal credit, and finally left in the lurch by his professed friend, who reasoned that Mr. Blaine, being a public man, could never afford to demand what was justly due him, for fear of scandal.

Augusta Special to Chicago Tribune: It is well known that the letters have been hawked about for some time with a view of getting Mr. Blaine's friends to stop their publication, but they have refused to take any notice of these offers and are congratulating themselves now that the democrats have published the letters. Everybody here agrees that the letters are the best kind of tribute to Mr. Blaine's honesty and fidelity to his friends. His distress, because he was unable to raise $25,000 to pay a loan he had secured for the railroad company, proves conclusively the falsehood about his being a millionaire, while his strenuous efforts to keep the railroad company out of financial difficulty is regarded as proof that he was right in saying that he would be no deadhead in the enterprise.

Secretary McPherson says, with relation to the new Mulligan letters, that it seems to him as if Mr. Blaine and Fisher had had a misunderstanding about their business transactions, each claiming money was due him, and that was all there was in the whole matter.

"The people won't be influenced by a small matter of that kind," he says, "and I would not be surprised if the publication would be used as was the 359 in Garfield's campaign.

Secretary McPherson asserts very confidentially that the Republicans will carry Ohio. He gets a large mail every morning, and says he finds in it every reason for encouragement. Most of the letters received are requests for anti-tariff talk, and are accompanied with the assertion that this question is exciting the utmost interest. The result in Maine, they say, had an electrical effect upon the state, and where was idleness before there is great activity now. Maine having been disposed of, this has became the battlefield, and about the same tactics will be followed there as in the September states. The Republicans claim that whatever the result in October may be, Ohio will go Republican in November, as Blaine is at least 20,000 stronger than his ticket in the state.

Mr. Paul West a prominent lawyer of Boston, in a letter to the Boston Journal, says he made the acquaintance of J. H. Mulligan, of Mulligan-letter notoriety, in 1879, while he was acting in a law case with Loheir & Welch, Mulligan's lawyers. Mr. West says he was a grant man at the time, and asked Mulligan's opinion about Mr. Blaine. Mulligan said he did not consider Mr. Blaine a corrupt man; also, that he believed he never sold his vote, nor did he ever use his influence as speaker or congressman to influence legislation in which he might be personally interested.

New York Tribune: We have high authority for stating that Secretary Fish has never announced his intention of supporting Gov. Cleveland, and good reasons that he will vote for Mr. Blaine. We call upon the World to prove its assertion to the contrary.

Prof. Lewis Boss, the distinguished astronomer and director of the Dudley observatory, at Albany, N. Y., will make several campaign speeches for Blaine and Logan. Prof. Boss has been for many years an intimate friend of Mr. Blaine. During his visit to Chili on the transit of Venus expedition he became thoroughly familiar with the beneficent results of Mr. Blaine's South American policy.

Prohibition St. John now feels how sharper than a thankless tooth it is to have a serpent child. His boy in the land office swears he will vote for Blaine.

The Kenebec, Me., Journal contains the following: "Mr. Blaine, accompanied by his wife, arrived at Bar Harbor. In answer to a reporter who called at his residence to ascertain if he wished to say anything in regard to the letters given the public by Fisher and Mulligan, Mr. Blaine replied his only desire was that every voter in the United States might read the letters for himself and not form his judgment from editorial misrepresentation in partisan journals. There was not a word in the letters, Mr. Blaine added, which was not entirely consistent with the most scrupulous integrity and honor. He hoped every Republican paper in the United States would publish the letters in full."

Washington Special: The grist of letters daily received by the republican congressional committee may be considered a true reflex of the general feeling throughout the country. From every section comes the word that the Maine election has had a wonderfully encouraging effect. Two or three letters received recently from the northwest give the strongest possible assurances as to Wisconsin. They say it will give Blaine a larger majority than it gave Garfield, notwithstanding the effects of Carl Schurz among the Germans.

John Finnerty, congressman from the Irish-American district of Chicago, in an article in his paper to the Citizen, declares very emphatically for Blaine and Logan. He says the election of Cleveland would be a misfortune and a curse.

Judge Severance: The people of this country, in order to do justice by themselves, ought to call two new conventions and nominate two new tickets. Judge Severance is one of the most prominent Democrats in Minnesota and is without a peer in the state as an eloquent and effective campaign speaker. His utterances are significant as showing the feeling of disgust among the better elements of the Democratic party over the nomination of a man who has no claims to statesmanship and whose moral character is badly smirched.

The charge that Mr. Blaine approved the tarring and feathering of the Catholic priest, Father Bapst, in Maine years ago, is promptly disproved by the Jesuit priest, Father Dealy, who was present at the affair.

Stephen D. Elkins, says with regard to campaign prospects: "The labor of the last two months is beginning to blossom. We see the fruits of it daily, and feel the effects from every source. I don't have the slightest doubts of Ohio. I rode all day on the cars with a democrat, recently, who said he had got tired of the everlasting talk about carrying Ohio. He said the Democrats had claimed Ohio in every presidential election during the past ten years, but they had never carried it and never would."

"For every German the Democrats secure from the Republicans in Wisconsin," said United States Senator Angus Cameron of La Crosse, "the Republicans will gain two Irishmen from the Democrats. With the exception of Milwaukee, perhaps, the defection in the German Republican ranks will not be 7 per cent. The Irish defection from the Democrats, on the contrary, is 15, if not 20, per cent. In La Crosse I don't know a single German Republican who will vote for Cleveland. This liberality of the Germans, which leads them to attend opposition meetings, is going to fool the Democrats badly. They are counting on a great German vote, but they will not get it in Wisconsin.

The Cincinnati Commercial Gazette includes a notice of a life of Hendricks as follows:

He is well known in this region as a mean copperhead in war, and a foxy, ambitious trickster in peace. After howling "fraud" four years, he spoiled the old ticket by greedily reaching for the first place himself. Four years later he took the second place to a provincial politician, and he would doubtless take anything rather than be retired to private life. This is not a quotation from his "life," for we have not read it. No doubt, Patent Office reports would be thrilling compared with it.

The Irishmen of Birchdale, Minn., to the number of forty, have taken steps to organize a Blaine and Logan club. The Irishmen of that vicinity are enthusiastic in their support of the Republican nominees for president. [illegible] a regular meeting of the federation of labor [illegible] held in Washington, resolutions were adopted to the effect that Gov. Cleveland has shown himself to be a bitter enemy of the workingmen and their interests by vetoing all the bills which the workingmen have for years been trying to have enacted into laws in New York. Therefore the workingmen should aid in every honorable way to defeat "the vassal of corporations and the servant of capitalists" in his candidacy for president of the United States.

Senator Hoar on Blaine.

Hon. George F. Hoar, the distinguished United States Senator of Massachusetts, in a speech at Salem, in that state, last Wednesday evening, thus spoke of James G. Blaine:

You know something of the principles, the policy, the purposes of the republican party. They are written in letters of light on your country's history, as they are in the platform adopted at Chicago, and James G. Blaine has been selected to carry out the principles and the policy and the purposes of the republican party. And he is about to do it. Has there ever been a candidate since the republican party was organized so well commended to you as Mr. Blaine? Did you know as much about Abraham Lincoln when you voted for him? Did you know as much about Grant, in civil life, I mean, when you first voted for him? Did you know as much about Hayes when you voted for him? Did you know any more about Garfield when you voted for him? I think the choice of the great Republican party of this country ought to count for something. They have not made a mistake even when they took an obscure man, comparatively, for their candidate. They knew what they were about. And they have not made a mistake when they have taken the one most conspicuous person in civil life in America.

Why, there's talk about these charges! I suppose you have heard country lawyers argue a case when they hadn't got much evidence on their side—and don't understand me as speaking contemptuously of country lawyers, because I am one of that kind myself. [Laughter.] But with almost any complicated state of facts and figures, and correspondence, a shrewd and crafty man can get up and by shaking his head, and sneering, and insinuating, and declaring that the thing you thought was innocent was done for a guilty purpose, and with a guilty motive, can make out an apparently plausible story before somebody who does not know anything about the case. And that is the attempt in these charges against Mr. Blaine. There are four of these letters—all that Mr. Schurz quoted in his speech and in his letter—and I should like to have them printed and put into the hands of every Republican voter in Massachusetts. All there is of them is the charge that when Mr. Blaine reminded his correspondent of a perfectly honest and righteous ruling, he did it not innocently and honestly, but for a corrupt purpose, and to imply that if he could make a trade with the man he would do him such a favor again. Now, I think Mr. Blaine is entitled to the charity with which you would judge the humblest and the most obscure man in your own neighborhood. Suppose these letters had been written by a watchman in Lynn or a policeman in Haverhill, and not by a candidate for the great office of president, and all his neighbors came forward and said to you, "This man we have known from his youth up through and through; he is a perfectly honest man;" suppose the men who had quarreled with him and fought so far as in them lay the high honor which can only be given in full by the whole people of the United States. What they think of him you can judge by the tremendous majority in that state. What the people of the United States think of him a similar result in November is sure to show. [The applause which greeted this prediction was suddenly hushed by a blinding flash of lightning, followed instantly by a tremendous roar of thunder.]

The people of the State of Maine have just spoken. That is the one community on this earth which would not tolerate a knave if they knew it, and from whose intelligence a knave could not hide himself if he tried. It stands, I believe, at the head of all the communities on the face of the globe in the capacity to read and write, in the education of its people. It is an unmixed English blood, and I speak of that only to show that they have been used to self-government and to choose their rulers for two centuries. Over and over again, Democrats leaving their party to do it, the people of Maine have declared their love for and their confidence in this man. The United States Senate was just half Democrat when Mr. Blaine was proposed to them by General Garfield for the office of secretary of state. Now it would be improper for me, under the rules of the senate, to say whether he was unanimously confirmed, and I say nothing about that anywhere; but I have a right to say, under the rules of the senate, that a single objection would have compelled that nomination to go over at least twenty-four hours, and that he was confirmed in two minutes after his name went in. Don't you suppose that those democratic senators knew whether Mr. Blaine was an honest man or a knave? And don't you suppose they would have been swift to condemn him if they had entertained the latter opinion?

Why Patrick Egan Supports Blaine.

Patrick Egan, the recently elected president of the American branch of the Irish land league, has addressed a letter to the Lincoln, Neb., Democrat, in reply to some unwarranted strictures on his political opinions. The following is an extract:

Before the late Boston convention of the Irish National league I had, as the result of close observation and careful research, made up my mind that there existed no grounds on which the Democratic party should hold any mortgage on my vote because I happened to be an Irishman. I weighed with care and deliberation the merits of the two presidential candidates, and I came to the conclusion that, neither as Irishman or an adopted citizen of America, could Mr. Grover Cleveland have my support. The case of Mr. John Devoy, on which you so persistently harp, and which you have again and again referred to as the only ground of my opposition to Mr. Cleveland, was only one of the many objections which I entertained to that gentleman. I did, indeed, consider the treatment meted to Mr. Devoy of the very basest kind, and strong evidence of either the hostility or contempt of Mr. Cleveland for Irishmen of national opinions; but I objected also to Mr. Cleveland as the pet candidate of the London Times, the London Standard, the London Daily Telegraph, the London Daily News, the London St. James Gazette, the London Saturday Review—in fact, of the entire English press. I objected to him as the pet candidate of Puck and Harper's Weekly; as the author of innumerable vetoes in the interest of the great monopolies, and as a man who had, as I believe, proved himself the enemy of every just right to the toiling millions. I objected to Mr. Cleveland because I felt proud of the country of my adoption, and because I felt that, in the words of the Boston Pilot—a straight out-and-out democratic organ—he has not a single quality to fit him for the presidency of the United States. I had made up my mind to support Mr. Blaine because, from long observation, I had come to regard him as the very opposite of all this, as an American of Americans, a man among men, as an able statesman fitted by nature, culture and experience to fill with credit to the country and to himself the position of president of this great nation.

General Logan's Speech at Toledo.

Toledo Special:—General Logan spoke at League Park to one of the largest audiences that ever assembled in this city. He claimed that the only monument erected by the Democratic party had been its course in relation to free trade. "I will not say that they are acting the part of agents of the British government, but I do say that misguided though they are, they performed the same service for the British government while they had the power in this country that the lords of England would have performed if they had seats in the congress of the United States." In reply to a portion of Gov. Hendricks' recent speech Gen. Logan said: "Mr. Hendricks stated that the Republican party had been derelict in its duty toward foreign-born citizens in distant lands, who had been permitted to suffer because of the failure of one part of the Republican party to perform their duty. Now, I am sorry that Mr. Hendricks made that statement. While the Democratic party stood in control of this country for forty years, let my friend Mr. Hendricks point out one single statute that was enacted by the Democratic party declaring that a citizen of the United States should be protected, whether he was a native or foreign-born, when he passed back to his native country. It was left for the Republican party in the year 1868 to pass a law declaring that a citizen of this country, foreign-born, should be protected on his own mother soil in person and property, the same as if he were a native-born citizen, and never was that doctrine enunciated in a statute of this country by the Democratic party. [illegible] When a proclamation was issued suppressing slavery the Democratic party [illegible] opposed it in congress and out of congress, and no act has ever been passed yet in favor of human freedom by the Democratic party in or out of congress." In reply to a statement by Gov. Hendricks in his speech at the fair grounds, as to the passage of the homestead act, Gen. Logan recited the history of those laws. During Buchanan's administration the homestead bill passed, and it was left to a Republican congress in the administration of President Lincoln to pass the homestead bill and the bill for land given for agricultural colleges was signed by Lincoln. The speaker ridiculed the tariff plank of the Democratic national platform. "We were compelled to go back to history to know what that plank meant. The party was a free trade party before the war, and the constitution of the Southern confederacy contained a free trade provision. The Confederates in consequence received sympathy and aid from England, because the eleven seceding states would have been opened to her commerce and manufacturers.

The Irish Rallying for Blaine.

Alexander Sullivan is in New York and spoke at the Academy of Music for Blaine and Logan. In an interview with a reporter he said: "While president of the Irish League, I could not with propriety discuss political matters. Now that I am free, I intend to devote all my time until after the election in advocating the republican cause. Since 1872 I have worked with the democrats. In this canvass I would have supported Thurman, or Randall, or any man not absolutely committed to free trade. I was perfectly willing to see a change of administration, if it could have come without danger; but this cannot be, with Cleveland on a platform dictated by the Morrison wing of the party. Since the convention I have been in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Massachusetts and Rhode Island, and have kept up constant communication with Irish-Americans from Maine to California. The change in sentiment against the democratic party is general. They are opposed to free trade and dissatisfied with the nomination of Cleveland. Personally, I regard this change of front as a blessing. It will greatly modify the democratic party in the future. The Irish-Americans will never again be a solid element politically. The Irish Americans like Blaine's dash, his consistent loyalty to the principles of protection to American industry, in a word, his intense Americanism."

Grandeur of the Republican Party.

Speech of R. T. Storrs in Boston: The republican party has made of jarring States a nation, and it has made that nation free—free in every sense and in its largest sense, and on this continent what an edifice has it reared, the dome as broad and vast as the arching skies above us from whose walls we have removed the decaying timbers of human chattlehood and replaced them with the everlasting granite of universal freedom. From those walls we have effaced the old, foul inscriptions of the bad old times. The Dred Scott decision, with its infernal doctrine, no longer flaunts its shame in our eyes. The story of the escaping slave no longer is recorded on its banners; the crack of the whip has died away; the bay of the pursuing bloodhound is a bad recollection of a bad past; the imploring cry of the pursued slave is heard no more. But reddened as if a planet shone upon it, glistens there a republic beneath whose flag every human being is free, free to think, free to speak and free to vote as he pleases. The old blustering spirit of our institutions before the war that elevated itself on its piles of boxes and bales, and chalked its dollar and cent marks all over God's ten commandments, has been pulled down and in its place, coming from her throne among the stars, is that radiant spirit which I worship in my waking hours and in my dreams—the spirit of a mighty, free empire, with its glistening coronet upon her brow, with sword, and shield, and plume, taking the poorest of our citizens by the hand and saying, "By the living God, he shall be free" to think, to speak, to vote as he pleases, and for the incarnation of that mighty spirit I urge the election and shall vote for Blaine and Logan. [Great applause.]

The Morrill Letter a Forgery.

Washington Special to Chicago Tribune: Mr. L. E. Gannon of this city, formerly of the supervising architect's office, has just returned from a trip to Maine. He is reported to have said that Mr. Bodwell, the quarry owner with whom he is connected in business, has an affidavit from Mrs. Morrill which will be published shortly, and which will create a sensation. The report is that Mr. Bodwell visited Mrs. Morrill after the publication of her alleged letter to the Ohio republican committee, and that she emphatically denied ever having written such a letter. Mr. Bodwell was anxious to be able to deny the story in such a manner as to set all doubts at rest, and suggested that Mrs. Morrill make an affidavit upon the denial. This she cheerfully did, and Mr. Bodwell at once began to hunt down the forgers. He has met with partial success, it is said, and the true inwardness of the story will shortly be given to the public.

Rev. Mr. Ball Sustained.

The Buffalo Minister's association, at its meeting since vacation, promulgated the following endorsement of Dr. Ball, Cleveland's accuser: "Dr. Ball has for many years been the honored pastor of the Free Baptist church of this city, now known as the Hudson Street Baptist church, and has, during that period, by his piety, his learning, his fidelity to truth, his sagacity in public affairs, his conscientious devotion to the duties of his office and his zeal in every good work, won the confidence and esteem, not only of his congregation and denomination, but of the whole Christian community. This association believes that Dr. Ball's life and character are above reproach; that his aims are unselfish and pure, and that in the course of conduct which has evoked such bitter criticism he has sincerely and earnestly sought to promote the cause of morality and righteousness, and to discharge the responsibilities resting upon him as a citizen and a minister of the Lord Jesus Christ."

Secret of Gladstone's Vigor.

From the Pall Mall Budget.

Mr. Gladstone is a man about whose physical vigor there can be no question. Men are known in troublous time to cavil at his statesmanship, but no one has anything to say against his digestion. Now, as early as the year 1848 Mr. Gladstone formulated to himself rules for chewing food. Previously to that he had always paid great attention to this requirement of nature, but at that date he laid down as a rule for his children that twenty-two bites should be given each mouthful of meat, and somewhat lesser number to bread and fish, &c. It is also known that to get into a habit of following his example is as easy as can be. A little attention paid to it for two days will insure the duty being unconsciously performed through life with the most beneficial results. Truly, history turns upon small causes! The philosopher of future ages may busy himself with pondering what the course of the world would have been had that number been twenty-two instead of thirty-two.

A Mother at Eleven Years of Age

From the Cincinnati Enquirer.

Friday there occurred four miles west of Alexandria, Ky., a case of maternity the most remarkable in the history of American obstetrics. The mother, a young colored girl named Rena Freeman, was born March 5, 1873, and is therefore eleven years and six months old. She is small of stature, being about four feet eight inches in height and weighing but 90 pounds, and is a child in everything but experience. After her confinement she acknowledged that she had been seduced by her brother-in-law, Ross Johnson, a burly negro, aged thirty, and the father of two children. When taxed with the seduction of his sister-in-law he did not deny the charge. Her accoucheur, Dr. T. S. Orr, says the case is without a parallel in the medical history of this country.

Joking A Commander.

At the beginning of the war, the Union forces in Kentucky were commanded by Gen. Nelson. He was a fearless and capable officer, but his rough manners caused him to be feared and disliked by his men. The Southern Bivouac tells this anecote as illustrative of the view the men took of him. The general had his headquarters in the woods in a secluded place. Many of the teams in the supply-trains were driven by men who were not enlisted, and one evening a driver was grumbling because his wagon wasn't unloaded quick enough to suit him.

The man who was receiving the stuff was a practical joker, and pointing to Nelson's tents, some distance away, he said to the teamster,—

"Right over there in those tents is a man whose business it is to look after these wagons, and he has a lot of fellows there to help him. You go over and tell him to come on. He'll try to bluff you, but you make him come."

The man went, and finding Nelson sitting in his tent in shirt sleeves, he walked up and clapping him on the shoulder, said:

"Come, old man, I want you."

Maybe you think the old man wasn't surprised, but he was. He looked up as if he couldn't do justice to the subject, but finally he managed to blurt out,—

"What do you mean?"

The soldier said, "Come now, don't be giving me any of that. I'm posted on you; come on and help unload them wagons."

Nelson was nearly paralyzed, but with an empatic exclamation he seized at his sword, and started for the teamster, who started for tall timber. The old man ran the teamster clean out of sight, and to this day nobody knows what ever did become of him.

A one time wealthy resident of Jackson, Ohio, named Samuel Wannamaker, who disappeared suddenly last June, has returned home without money and nearly dead from consumption. In his absence various suits have been brought to recover on notes made by Wannamaker and indorsed by his father, now dead, and his father-in-law. The father-in-law pronounced the indorsements forgeries. Wannamaker realizing that he could not live, sent for a notary public and made a long statement, saying that both indorsements are forgeries of his. The amount involved is over $25,000. Wannamaker is forty-six years old and has a wife and seven children.

WHAT THERE IS IN A BOTTLE.

Smarting.

Sufficient to stop in five minutes the smarting, stinging pain of 100 burns or scalds. It will stop the pain as soon as applied.

Coughing.

Abundance to cure a score of colds and the coughing that often leads the way to consumption. IT WILL POSITIVELY ease a Cough in 15 minutes.

Choking.

More than enough to save a dozen children Choking with CROUP. One minute after the first dose the hardest attack of Croup will be relieved.

Wheezing.

Plenty to relieve the oppression and wheezing of the most severe case of Asthma. The direct cures of Asthma by this medicine is proof that Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil has no equal as an Asthma cure.

In the above cases Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil can be relied upon. It has given relief to thousands. Keep it in your house. There is hardly a week in the year it will not be useful.

Governor Hendicks in Danger.

A west-bound train on the Indianapolis, Bloomington & Western was derailed near Farmer City, Ill., Wednesday morning. Two rear cars, two chair cars, and a sleeper were rolled down an embankment and demolished. In the chair car which was densely filled, a dozen or more were more or less hurt, though not very seriously. In the sleeping car were ex-Gov. Thomas A. Hendricks, and a party en route from Indianapolis to Peoria. Gov. Hendricks and his two nieces escaped unhurt, though quite badly shaken up. Col. Messmore of Grand Rapids, Mich., an editor, was thrown the entire length of the car, out of his berth, and was badly cut. He was sent on home from Peoria. Hon. John C. Shoemaker, editor of the Indianapolis Sentinel and defendant in the Blaine libel suit, was wedged in by people falling on him, and was seriously injured internally, though no bones were broken. He returned home from here. Rev. C. Smith, the colored orator of Bloomington, was badly hurt.

How Woman Differ from Men.

At least three men on the average jury are bound to disagree with the rest just to show that they've got minds of their own; but there is no disagreement among the women as to the merits of Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription." They are all unanimous in pronouncing it the best remedy in the world for all those chronic diseases, weaknesses and complaints peculiar to their sex. It transforms the pale, haggard, dispirited woman, into one of sparkling health, and the ringing laugh again "reigns supreme" in the happy household.

The Mexican President, in his message to congress, anticipates speedy reciprocity with the United States.

Human Calves.

An exchange says: "Nine-tenths of the unhappy marriages result from human calves being allowed to run at large in society pastures." Nine-tenths of the chronic or lingering diseases of to-day orginate in impure blood, liver complaint or biliousness, resulting in scrofula, consumption (which is but scrofula of the lungs), sores, ulcers, skin diseases and kindred affections. Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" cures all these. Of Druggists.

John Burns, aged thirty, died at Winnipeg after taking a powder to produce perspiration and cure a cold. An inquest will be held.

The worst pile tumors cured in ten days, rupture in one month. Pamphlet two (3ct.) stamps. World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

Colorado Distances.

The air of Colorado is so transparent that a stranger finds it impossible to estimate distances. He thinks a range of hills close at hand, when they are fifteen miles away. An amusing anecote brings out this transparent deception:

A couple of Englishmen once started from Denver for the foot-hills, judging them to be four miles off. After walking eight miles and finding themselves apparently no nearer to the range, they came to the Denver irrigation ditch, about four feet wide.

One of them stopped on the bank and began to strip, his companion exclaiming,—

"Why, what are you going to do?"

"I am going to swim this river."

"Why, man, it's a ditch, and only a yard or so across!"

"How do I know it isn't a quarter of a mile? We've been fooled enough already, and I'm not going to risk a wetting; you can jump in if you like."

Sir Evelyn Baring and Nubar Pasha have received an identical cipher telegram from Gen. Gordon, dated Khartoum, Aug. 26. He is waiting British forces in order to evacuate Egyptian garrisons. The telegrams reads: "Send me Zeebehr Pasha; pay him a yearly salary of £8,000. I shall surrender the Soudan to the sultan directly 200,000 Turkish troops arrive. If the rebels kill the Egyptians, you are answerable for the bloodshed. I require £300,000 to pay my soldiers, my daily expenses being £1,500. Within a few days I shall take Berber, where I have sent Col. Stewart, Consul Power and the French consul, with troops and bashi bazouks, who, after stopping there for a fortnight, will burn the town and return to Khartoum. Col. Stewart will go to Equator, via Dongola, to bring the garrison from there. I do not believe the report that El Mahdi is coming hither. I hope the Soudanese will kill him. If Turkish troops arrive, they should come by Dongola and Kassala. You should give them £300,000.

Company Shops.

Mr. M. M. Shoffner, postmaster and justice of the peace, Company Shops, Alamance Co., N. C., writes, he has used St. Jacob's Oil for rheumatism, cuts, swelled ankles, and knees, pains in the back and sore throat. One or two applications in each case has always cured, and he believes the Great German Remedy is the best in the world. "As long as I can get it," he adds, "I never intend to be without it."

Rail and River News.

The financial statement presented by President Adams to the board of directors of the Union Pacific road is a document of considerable interest. During the year ended June 30 the surplus earnings of the entire system were $10,452,230. The total amount applicable to dividends was $3,179,704, or at the rate of 5.22 per cent. on the company's capital stocks. During July, President Adams states, the net income of the rode was 12 per cent. per annum on the capital stock. The completion of the Oregon Short Line to Huntington, and the connection with the Oregon Railway and Navigation company, which event is expected to take place by Nov. 1, is relied upon to greatly increase the traffic of the company and to lighten its financial burden. Land sales aggregating 4,819,400 acres and $15,273,486 are reported.

Sportsmen all through this section of the country, say the Parker Repeating Breech-loading shot gun is the best and truest they ever handled. See advertisement in another column.—Peck's Sun.

Don't Be Swindled.

The only genuine German Hop Bitters and White Wine of Tar Syrup are Dr. C. D. Warner's whose name appears on every bottle, label and wrapper of the genuine.

Look Well at the Name.

The only genuine German Hop Bitters are those made by Dr. C. D. Warner, whose name appears on every bottle and label.

A. M. and C. M. Clements, of Fort Edward, N. Y., have assigned, owing to the failure of the Fort Edward bank. Liabilitire $40,000.

"Rough on Tooth-ache." Ask for it. Instant relief, quick cure. 15c. Druggists.

A St. Louis judicial decision permits cattle men to lease lands in the Indian Territory from the tribes.

Skinny men. "Wells' Health Renewer" restores health and vigor, cures dyspepsia, impotence. $2

Mr. Coon, is thought to be the coming secretary of the treasury.

"Rough on Dentist" Tooth Powder. Fine, smooth, cleansing, refreshing, preservative. 15c.

Herbert Bismarck, it is reported, will be appointed German ambassador to London.

An Invaluable Remedy.—None except those who have suffered all the horrors of Dyspepsia, can fully appreciate the value and efficacy of Perry Davis' Pain Killer, a sovereign remedy for this distressing disease in all its forms is used internally and externally, test its virtues.

For Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Depression of Spirits and General Debility, in their various forms, also as a preventive against Fever and Ague, and other Intermittent Fevers, the "Ferro-Phosphorated Elixir of Calisaya" made by Caswell, Hazard & Co., New York, and sold by all Druggists, is the best tonic, and for patients recovering from Fever or other sickness, it has no equal.

A Perfect Remedy for all abrasions of the skin and all diseases of the feet of Horses and cattle. Invaluable to stockmen. Cole's Veterinary Carbolisalve. In 50c. and $1.00 cans. At Druggists or by mail. J. W. Cole & Co., Prop's, Black River Falls, Wisconsin.

ECZEMA OF SCALP.

Cuticura

A POSITIVE CURE for every form of SKIN & BLOOD DISEASE. FROM PIMPLES to SCROFULA

ITCHING, Scaly, Pimply, Scrofulous, Inherited, Contagious, and Copper Colored Diseases of the Blood, Skin, and Scalp, with loss of Hair, are positively cured by the CUTICURA REMEDIES.

CUTICURA RESOLVENT, the new blood purifier, cleanses the blood and perspiration of impurities and poisonous elements, and removes the cause.

CUTICURA, the great Skin Cure, instantly allays Itching and Inflammation, clears the Skin and Scalp, heals Ulcers and Sores, and restores the Hair.

CUTICURA SOAP, an exquisite Skin Beautifier and Toilet Requisite, prepared from CUTICURA, is indispensable in treating Skin Diseases, Baby Humors, Skin Blemishes, Chapped and Oily Skin.

CUTICURA REMEDIES are absolutely pure and the only infallible Blood Purifiers and Skin Beautifiers. Sold everywhere. Price, Cuticura, 50 cents; Soap, 25 cents; Resolvent, $1. Prepared by POTTER DRUG AND CHEMICAL CO., BOSTON, MASS.

☞ Send for "How to Cure Skin Diseases."

TO THE PEOPLE!

This Should Be Read By All.

It Treats on a Subject of Interest to Every Family.

Important Intelligence from the Old Country, Where Cholera has Prevailed.

ASIATIC CHOLERA.

Almost every case cured with

PERRY DAVIS'

Pain-Killer

[From Rev. R. TELFORD, missionary in China, now visiting his home in Pennsylvania.]

WASHINGTON, PENN.

DEAR SIRS,—During a residence of some ten years as a missionary in Siam and China, I found your Vegetable Pain Killer a most valuable remedy for that fearful scourge, the cholera. In administering the medicine, I found it most effectual to give a teaspoonful of Pain-Killer in a gill of hot water, sweetened with sugar, then, after about fifteen minutes, begin to give about a tea-spoonful of the same mixture every few minutes until relief was obtained. Apply hot applications to the extremities. Bathe the stomach with the Pain-Killer clear, and and the limbs briskly. Of those who had the cholera, and took the medicine faithfully in the way stated above, eight out of ten recovered.

Truly yours, R. TELFORD.

The late Rev. Dr. Granger repeatedly expressed his belief that he owed his life to the timely use of PERRY DAVIS'S PAIN-KILLER. During his recent visit to the missions in Burmah, he had a severe attack of the cholera, and was immediately relieved by the use of the Pain-Killer.

☞ Directions accompany each bottle.

Price 25 cts., 50 cts., and $1 per bottle.

J. N. HARRIS & CO., Limited,
Cincinnati, Ohio.

Proprietors for the Southern and Western States.

☞ For sale by all Medicine Dealers.

ROCKFORD WATCHES

Are unequalled in EXACTING SERVICE.

Used by the Chief Mechanician of the U. S. Coast Survey; by the Admiral commanding in the U. S. Naval Observatory, for Astronomical work; and by Locomotive Engineers, Conductors and Railway men. They are recognized as THE BEST for all uses in which close time and durability are requisites. Sold in principal cities and towns by the COMPANY'S exclusive Agents (leading jewelers,) who give a Full Warranty.

Send us your address and you will receive by return mail blanks for self measurement, and all necessary information. It will only cost you a postal card. We will take our chances of making sales if we can have an opportunity to show our goods.

The Plymouth Clothing House,
Minneapolis.

Clothing, Furnishing Goods, Hats, Caps, Furs, etc.

Retailing at Very Nearly Lowest Wholesale Prices.

Opinions of the Press.

"THE 'PLYMOUTH' is purely and solely a Minneapolis institution, doing both a wholesale and retail business. The class of clothing demanded by the trade of the Northwest is superior to that usually manufactured, and it is to the taste, thoroughness, and superior quality of their goods that the success of the "Plymouth" is to be attributed. No establishment west of Chicago carries such a complete line of Clothing, and Furnishings, Hats, Caps, Furs, etc., for Men and Boys as the "Plymouth."—Minneapolis Tribune.

"This Mammoth First Class Clothing House has few, if any equals west of New York and Boston."—Evening Journal.

The "Plymouth" owes its magnificently large business to the fact, that its clothing is made in a style equal to the custom tailors' productions, and that their prices are particularly low and economical. Their trade extends over the entire Northwest.—St. Paul, Pioneer Press.

Fall and Winter Clothing 1884-85.

The clothing we offer is not made to order, for such has been the advance in the manufacture of fine ready made clothing in the past few years, that we believe our work to be equal in all respects, and in some points superior to the general run of custom work.

Furnishings, &c.

By "Fixings" are meant all the belongings of a gentleman's toilet—Shirts, Underwear, Neckwear, etc., of which a complete stock is kept, including all the best brands, and the lower grades sold are of reliable quality, and are retailed at very near wholesale prices.

How Orders Are Executed.

Our mail order business is a special feature, and orders sent us are not handed to any salesman who has a few moments to spare, but are filled by men engaged expressly for the purpose, whose whole time, attention, and experience is at the service of our out-of-town patrons. As far as we know our customers' wants, equal care is taken to meet them as though they were present in person.

Terms, Strictly One Price, Cash.

We forward by express, with bill for collection, instructing Express Agents to hold the money one day to enable customers to examine goods at home, and return them and reclaim the amount paid with expressage if the articles are not acceptable. If goods are satisfactory, the buyer pays the freight charge and we pay for the return of the money.

Write to the Plymouth Clothing House, Minneapolis, Minn.

PARSONS' PURGATIVE PILLS

MAKE NEW RICH BLOOD,

Positively cure SICK-HEADACHE, Biliousness, and all LIVER and BOWEL Complaints, MALARIA, BLOOD POISON, and Skin Diseases (ONE PILL A DOSE). For Female Complaints these Pills have no equal. "I find them a valuable Cathartic and Liver Pill.—Dr. T. M. Palmer, Monticello, Fla." "In my practice I use no other.—J. Dennison, M.D., DeWitt, Iowa." Sold everywhere, or sent by mail for 25 cts. in stamps. Valuable information FREE. I. S. JOHNSON & CO., BOSTON, MASS.

Beware of the incipient stages of consumption. Take Piso's Cure in time.

The Cambria Iron company, Johnstown, Pa., will reduce wages.

"The best is the cheapest." This is an old adage and the essence of wisdom. The best medicine, and the only sure cure for disease of the liver, kidneys and bladder is the old and reliable HUNT'S [Kidney and Liver] REMEDY. Physicians endorse it highly and prescribe it in their practice.

Baldheaded men are informed that there is but one avenue of escape from their affliction, and that is Carboline, the great hair renewer, which being recently improved, is more efficacious than ever and is faultless.

At Boston, $20,000 worth of Miss Wilson's bonds and one of her trustees are missing.

"Rough on Pain." Porous Plaster, for back-ache, pains in the Chest, Rheumatism. 25c.

TUTT'S PILLS

25 YEARS IN USE.

The Greatest Medical Triumph of the Age!

SYMPTOMS OF A TORPID LIVER.

Loss of appetite, Bowels costive, Pain in the head, with a dull sensation in the back part, Pain under the shoulder-blade, Fullness after eating, with a disinclination to exertion of body or mind, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, with a feeling of having neglected some duty, Weariness, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, Headache over the right eye, Restlessness, with fitful dreams, Highly colored Urine, and CONSTIPATION.

TUTT'S PILLS are especially adapted to such cases, one dose effects such a change of feeling as to astonish the sufferer. They Increase the Appetite, and cause the body to Take on Flesh, thus the system is nourished, and by their Tonic Action on the Digestive Organs, Regular Stools are produced. Price 25c. 44 Murray St., N.Y.

TUTT'S HAIR DYE.

GRAY HAIR or WHISKERS changed to a GLOSSY BLACK by a single application of this DYE. It imparts a natural color, acts instantaneously. Sold by Druggists, or sent by express on receipt of $1.

Office, 44 Murray St., New York.

BUSINESS CHANCE A man in any live town can do a profitable business in our goods alone, or in connection with furniture or any class of house-furnishing goods or groceries, small capital and large profits. For particulars address F. A. PAYNE, 199 East Seventh st., St. Paul Minn.

AGENTS WANTED to sell the only authentic life of GEN. JOHN A. LOGAN. It is an admirably written, cloth-bound book of nearly 500 pages, on heavy, tinted paper. Contains life-like steel portrait of Logan. Cover bears reproduction, in original colors, of Fifteenth Corps Banner, and striking illustration of Logan at the Battle before Atlanta, embossed in gold and black. Thousands selling, large profits to agents. Sent to any address post-paid upon receipt of One Dollar. Address THE NATIONAL TRIBUNE,
Washington, D. C.

Mention paper in which you saw this.

FRAZER AXLE GREASE!

BEST IN THE WORLD. ☞ Get the Genuine. Sold Everywhere.

U.S. STANDARD. JONES OF BINGHAMTON

5 TON WAGON SCALES, Iron Levers, Steel Bearings, Brass Tare Beam and Beam Box, $60 and JONES he pays the freight—for free Price List mention this paper and address JONES OF BINGHAMTON, Binghamton, N. Y.

30 DAYS' TRIAL.

DR. DYE'S

(BEFORE.) (AFTER.)

ELECTRO-VOLTAIC BELT and other ELECTRIC APPLIANCES are sent on 30 Days' Trial TO MEN ONLY, YOUNG OR OLD, who are suffering from NERVOUS EXHAUSTION, REDUCED VITALITY, DEBILITY, and all diseases of a kindred nature, resulting from whatever causes. Speedy relief and complete restoration to Health, Vigor and Strength guaranteed. Send at once for Illustrated Pamphlet free. Address

Voltaic Belt Co., Marshall, Mich.

Dr. Spinney & Co.

Treat all Chronic and Nervous Diseases. Young men who may be suffering with Weakness, Nervous Debility, Despondency, Aversion to Society, Kidney troubles, or any similar diseases, can here find a safe and speedy cure. There are many of the age of thirty to sixty who are often troubled with uncomfortable symptoms, accompanied by a weakening of the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. Examination reveals the fact that the patient's system is undergoing a depletion which rapidly exhausts every vital function. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause. The doctor will guarantee a cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration. Pamphlet, with full particulars, sent free to any address. Call on or address DR. SPINNEY & CO. 37 E. Third st., Minneapolis, Minn.

WHITE BEAVER'S COUGH CREAM
Heals Diseased Lungs.

OPIUM Morphine Habit Cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till Cured. DR. J. STEPHENS, Lebanon, Ohio.

LEARN TELEGRAPHY, or SHORT-HAND and TYPE WRITING HERE. Situations furnished. Address Valentine Bros., Janesville, Wis.

SOLDIERS or heirs send stamp for circulars showing who is entitled to pension, bounty, &c. L. C. WOOD, Pension Atty., Washington, D. C.

MORPHINE and CHLORAL HABITS EASILY CURED. BOOK FREE. Dr. J. C. Hoffman, Jefferson, Wisconsin. OPIUM

Danz's Patent Folding Geese and Duck Decoys are the best in use. Prices low. If you cannot get them of your dealer, write us for catalogue and price list. HORNE & DANZ, Manufacturers, St. Paul, Minnesota.

JOSEPH GILLOTT'S STEEL PENS
SOLD BY ALL DEALERS THROUGHOUT THE WORLD
GOLD MEDAL PARIS EXPOSITION—1878.

PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION 25 CTS. 25 CTS.
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.

ALLEN'S IRON TONIC BITTERS

The most Elegant Blood Purifier, Liver Invigorator, Tonic, and Appetizer ever known. The first Bitters containing Iron ever advertised in America. Unprincipled persons are imitating the name; look out for frauds. See that the following signature is on every bottle and take none other:

J. P. Allen
ST. PAUL, MINN. Druggist & Chemist

THE TIFFIN Well Boring & Rock Drilling MACHINERY! For Horse or Steam Power

Hundreds of the best men in 30 States and Territories use it and will have no other!

RELIABLE! DURABLE! SIMPLE!

Established over 25 years, we have ample facilities to fill orders promptly, and to satisfaction of our customers. Catalogue FREE. Address
LOOMIS & NYMAN, Tiffin, Ohio.

ONE DOLLAR FOR THE WEEKLY PIONEER PRESS TWELVE MONTHS ★

The BUYERS' GUIDE is issued Sept. and March, each year: 224 pages, 8½ x 11½ inches, with over 3,300 illustrations—a whole picture gallery. Gives wholesale prices direct to consumers on all goods for personal or family use. Tells how to order, and gives exact cost of everything you use, drink, eat, wear, or have fun with. These invaluable books contain information gleaned from the markets of the world. We will mail a copy Free to any address upon receipt of the postage—8 cents. Let us hear from you.
Respectfully,
MONTGOMERY WARD & CO.
227 & 229 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND IS A POSITIVE CURE FOR All those painful Complaints and Weaknesses so common to our best FEMALE POPULATION.

Price $1 in liquid, pill or lozenge form.

Its purpose is solely for the legitimate healing of disease and the relief of pain, and that it does all it claims to do, thousands of ladies can gladly testify.

It will cure entirely all Ovarian troubles, Inflammation and Ulceration, Falling and Displacements, and consequent Spinal Weakness, and is particularly adapted to the change of life.

It removes Faintness, Flatulency, destroys all craving for stimulants, and relieves Weakness of the Stomach. It cures Bloating, Headaches, Nervous Prostration, General Debility, Sleeplessness, Depression and Indigestion. That feeling of bearing down, causing pain, and backache, is always permanently cured by its use.

Send stamp to Lynn, Mass., for pamphlet. Letters of inquiry confidentially answered. For sale at druggists.

A QUESTION.

Joy comes and goes; hope ebbs and flows
Like the wave;
Change doos unknit the tranquil strength of men.
Love lends life a little grace,
A few sad smiles, and then
Both are laid in one cold place,
In the grave.

Dreams dawn and fly, friends smile and die
Like spring flowers;
Our vaunted life is one long funeral.
Men dig graves with bitter tears
For their dead hopes; and all
Mazed with doubts and sick with fears
Count the hours.

We count the hours. These dreams of ours
False and hollow.
Do we go hence and find they are not dead?
Joys we dimly apprehend,
Faces that smiled and fled,
Hopes born here, and born to the end,
Shall we follow?
—Matthew Arnold.

HER TEST.

She was the embodiment of beauty. None could have thought otherwise, seeing her as she sat there alone on the piazza, her lovely form slightly inclined, her hands clasped on her lap, and one small and shapely foot lightly tapping the floor; the long, sweeping lashes drooping languidly over her dreamy, lustrous eyes, and a sweet smile playing around her scarlet mouth, which was open just enough to exhibit the even tips of her pearly teeth.

The restless, crimson tide coursing beneath the pure, transparent skin would occasionally suffuse her cheeks and then pass gradually away, only to surge back again and mantle face and neck with a burning blush.

Yes, Minerva Lambert was beautiful, and never did she look more so than now, as, flushed with apparent excitement, and totally unconscious of the charming picture she formed, she sat there where the long trailing vines swayed to and fro on one side, casting fantastic shadows on the floor, and on the other motley flowers nodding lazily in the gentle breeze that lifted sweet fragrance from their coroform crests, while the slanting beams of the evening sun rested like a halo on her bowed head.

Minerva had two lovers—that is, two, only one of whom she could think of accepting as her companion through life.

Literally, she had at least a dozen, but only two dared hope for her hand.

These were Leroy Beaumont and Mark Spencer.

Leroy was the son of wealthy parents. Mark was comparatively poor. Leroy was very handsome, with dark, flashing eyes, black, glossy hair and fierce-looking mustache; Mark was not, though his bright and ever-smiling countenance wore anything but a disagreeable aspect.

They were not friends, but it was because of their rivalry. They had never been personally acquainted. Leroy, thinking that features such as his were essential to any one who would win the hand of that beauty, was, consequently confident of his ability to gain the victory, and, perhaps, was unprejudiced. Mark's opinion was different. Although not nearly so confident of success as his competitor, he was too noble a nature to allow hatred or even jealousy to be excited within him, and he believed that Minerva Lambert would not judge by personal appearance which was most deserving of the much-coveted hand.

But Minerva, it must be said, had a few romantic notions in her head. Her father, knowing the reputation of Mark Spencer, advised her to accept him in preference to the other, but she hesitated.

Mr. Beaumont was so handsome, so tall and graceful, and he had such bright and flashing eyes, and then that captivating mustache was an adornment that Mr. Spencer could not boast of.

Did she love Leroy Beaumont? She thought she did, though when in the society of Mark Spencer she was in doubt. She was not capable of reading her own heart.

Now, they had both proposed. This very day they had both been at her feet, pouring forth the story of their love, and begging for hers in return.

Of course they did not do this at the same time, but at different hours of the day, and neither knew of the other's proposal.

She did not give them her answer, but dismissed them both with the information that they must wait until to-morrow, and thus give her time to decide. Then she set her wits to work.

Which should she accept? She was in a dilemma. She was a little partial to Beaumont, but then she knew so little of his character. Spencer she knew to be a true gentleman, but then he lacked that attractiveness of feature which, she thought, would have made him look so much more noble and manly.

She hit upon a plan which pleased her, and she immediately began the execution of it.

She wrote two notes exactly alike, and sent one of them to each of her lovers.

They ran thus:

"Meet me at 8 o'clock this evening at the old elm tree on the river bank, near my father's house."

It was all she wrote. She knew they would both be at the appointed spot at the appointed time, each thinking himself the favored suitor.

She was thinking of this as she sat alone on the piazza, where the long evening shadows were creeping across the floor, and the rays of the setting sun were struggling through the network of vines to kiss her blushing cheek.

She could think of no better way of finding out whether Leroy Beaumont was a true gentleman or not.

It was to see how he would act on finding his rival at the place of meeting that she had concluded to make this appointment with both. If her plan failed she would contrive another, for she had resolved that no man should become her husband unless he was in every respect worthy of her.

Mark Spencer stood beneath the wide-spreading branches of the old elm tree leaning against its huge trunk with his arms folded on his breast. It was just the night for a meeting of lovers. The moon looked down with unclouded splendor from the starry sky. Her image was reflected in the running stream. Her [illegible] tempered light flooded the little gable, and stealing through the rustling branches, fell upon the face of Mark Spencer.

Though the features were not regular, there was something attractive about the face. It was so open and candid, and there was such a good natured smile on the manly brow. The verdict of one capable of reading the heart in the face would undoubtedly be good, and even a casual observer would be struck with the gentlemanly appearance of the young man.

Just now the countenance was bright with hope. Would not Minerva Lambert soon be in his arms telling him how much she loved him?

This, he thought, was the reason why he had been requested to meet her there, preferring that romantic spot in which to tell him of her love.

He heard a footstep behind him: turning hastily, he beheld the handsome Apollo, Leroy Beaumont, walking briskly along toward him.

He was much surprised to see him approaching, and so was Leroy to find Mark there, for he stopped short and held up both hands, exclaiming:

"Mark Spencer!"

"Mr. Beaumont," returned the other, with a slight nod.

"Why are you here?" cried Beaumont.

"What right have you to ask?" calmly retorted the young man.

His rival colored.

"Sir, you are impudent," said he, angrily.

"I deny the charge, Mr. Beaumont, and you have no cause to speak thus."

"Again I ask you why you are here?"

Again I tell you that it does not concern you, and you have no right to ask."

"Then, sir, will you please leave this place, as it is here I am to meet a certain person."

And with a haughty look the ostentatious fellow consulted his heavy gold watch.

"Minerva should have been here ere this," he muttered, as if to himself, but with a furtive glance at Mark Spencer to see what effect his words produced on him.

Mark was surprised; but, pretending that he did not hear the words, he said:

"No, sir; I will not leave this place, for I, too, am waiting for a friend."

"Do you mean Miss Lambert?"

"I do."

"Then, sir, you speak falsely!" cried Leroy, fiercely. "She did not ask you to meet her here."

"I beg your pardon, but——"

"Cease! Hold your tongue!" thundered the handsome man. "Audacious scoundrel! know you not that Minerva Lambert is soon to become my wife? She cares naught for you. Your jealousy prompted you to come here and witness our meeting, eh?"

"'Tis false!" replied Mark, quietly. "I knew not that such a meeting was in contemplation. But, sir, I have no desire to bandy words with you; therefore I wish you good evening."

He bowed and was about to withdraw from the spot when Leroy produced a pistol and pointed it at him.

Mark was no coward. He folded his arms and looked calmly into the dark muzzle of the weapon.

"Shoot," said he; "shoot, Leroy Beaumont. I am unarmed."

"Peace, gentlemen!" cried a silvery voice.

They looked simultaneously and beheld Minerva Lambert standing there in the moonlight, her tall, queenly form clad in spotless white.

Mark lifted his hat politely, while his rival stood stock-still, staring at her.

Minerva stepped proudly forward.

"Mr. Beaumont," said she, confronting that gentleman, "I have witnessed your proceedings since you came here, and have overheard the conversation carried on between you and Mr. Spencer. Sir, you have proved yourself a villian and a coward. You reviled Mr. Spencer without cause. You were going to shoot him even after he told you that he was unarmed. And, besides, you told him that I was your promised wife, which you know is false.

"You asked me this day for my heart and hand, as also did Mr. Spencer. I gave neither of you an answer, because I wished to carry out a little plan. I knew nothing of your past life, sir, nor whether you at present had the reputation of being good or bad. I could not think of joining my life to that of one who, comparatively speaking, is unknown to me.

"I planned this meeting with the hope that it might give me an insight into your true character, and I hoped not in vain. I desired to see your actions on confronting your rival here. I have seen. I am satisfied. Go, sir! never speak to me again nor allow your footsteps to wander toward my home, which you have so often visited as a wolf in sheep's clothing."

Pale and trembling, Leroy Beaumont, listened to this speech, cowering before the accusing gaze of those flashing eyes like a criminal receiving his sentence.

When she had finished he stood erect, and for a moment a bitter retort seemed to tremble on his lips. It remained unspoken.

He said not a word, but turned abruptly on his heel, with a contemptuous toss of his head, and walked proudly away.

When he was lost to view in the darkness, Minerva turned to Mark, who had been a silent spectator of the little drama that had just been performed, and said, in a trembling voice:

"Mr. Spencer, I hope you will forgive my making a tool of you for the execution of my stratagem, and subjecting you to the insults of that man."

"As to that, Miss Lambert," he replied with a respectful bow, "There is nothing to forgive."

"Thank you, sir. But I cannot stay longer. My sole purpose for requesting you to meet me here is accomplished. Good evening, sir."

"Stay, Miss Lambert. Shall I call to-morrow and receive your answer, or can I hear it now?"

"Not now. To-morrow if you wish, you may see me at home."

And on the following day Mark Spencer, with throbbing heart, sat beside his love.

When she felt his strong arm stealing around her trembling form, when she felt his lips pressed to hers in a sweet betrothal kiss, and heard his low murmured words of endearment, Minerva Lambert felt a sweet feeling of rest coming over her, and she laid her head on his breast, wondering how she ever could have thought that she loved Leroy Beaumont more than she did this noble-hearted man.

William Walter Phelps, says a [illegible] writer in a western journal, is put down as worth $7,000,000.

A TERRIBLE NIGHT.

"Ah, sir, I see you are admiring my flowers. Well, they are pretty—they are—though I doubt as some would call the marigolds and carnations common and old-fashioned. It's a pretty little place this, ain't it sir? And it's my own too—my very own—and will go to my grandson after me. He's a good lad, he is—it's him as looks after the garden. Mighty fond of flowers he is; and rarely proud he'll be, I know, when he hears as a fine town gentleman has taken notice of 'em. Ah, I was fond of gardening too in my time! But I'm getting an old man now—eight-five I am come Christmas—and I can't expect to be spared much longer, though I'm bale and hearty yet, thank Heaven! Ah, times have altered, sir, since my young days! For the better you say? Well, things are grander now than they were then; but somehow I seem to like the old times best, perhaps because I was young and strong in 'em. And talking of old times reminds me of something that once happened to me. Like to hear it, sir? Well, so you shall, and welcome, if you don't mind wasting an hour or so with an old chap like me. Sit down, then, on that bench, and make yourself comfortable.

"You've been to Chelmsford perhaps? Then maybe you knew the 'Scaracen's Head'? Well, close to where that now stands there used to be an old inn called the 'Swan.' A queer old place it was to be sure, with its casement windows and overhanging gables. I was living at Raldhan then—its nigh upon sixty years ago—a farmer I was, and had been married only a short time to a dear little wife as I loved well and true till she died, poor lass!

"One cold December day I started for Braintree to look at some stock as I thought of buying. As it was two days' journey, I meant to stop at Chelmsford for the night, and go on early the next day. I didn't leave home till about two, and I had a weary road to travel, so that darkness came on before I reached the gibbet on the edge of the common; and I can tell you my flesh crawled, as the saying is when I galloped past at full speed. It was a bleak cold night and the road was bad, so that it was late before I rode into Chelmsford.

"I put up at the 'Swan'—that being the first inn I came to—and was standing watching the hostler rubbing down my good old mare—for I always attended to that the first thing—when the landlord came slowly out to me; he was a short, sharp-faced man, with great black eyes that had an uneasy sort of look in 'em. I told him I'd had a long ride, and was glad enough to get safe into his yard—for I'd gold about me, and we'd heard horrible tales of the robberies and murders on the king's highway. Well, he showed me into a long low room—the kitchen it was—with a brick floor and a bright fire burning.

"'There's a noisy lot in the parlour, sir,' said he; you'll be quiet and cosy here, for maybe you're tired and chilly after your ride in the wind.'

"I ordered a steak and some wine, and, as I ate my supper, I thought to myself that I couldn't well have found a better place than the 'Swan' to stop at. After I had finished, I called for pipes and grog, and sat by the fire with the landlord; but I might as well have been alone, for he never spoke a word, but sat staring into the fire with a wicked look in his eyes that I didn't like, though I didn't take much notice of it then. Ah, I know now what his thoughts were as he gazed moodily into the glowing coals! He was thinking of the disgrace brought upon his name by his only son, and wondering where the money was to come from which must be procured somehow if his boy was to be saved from ruin. And then no doubt he planned to murder me—ah, it's all true sir—I've got his confession by me now—and bury me down by the river-side, in the meadow behind the stable. Then he meant to turn my mare out before dawn, so that the servants might think I had left early; and then, you see, when it was found, people would think something had happened to me on the road to Braintree. Well, my companion roused himself after a time, and began asking me what I thought of the country, if I had ridden far, whether I had been advised to put up at the 'Swan' and such like questions. I answered them freely enough, never supposing that he asked for any other reason than just to keep up the conversation. I asked him to call me early, and he promised he would do so.

"'I'll do it myself' said he, 'for the girl and the ostler will be abed.'

"Then he called his wife and told her to bring me a candle, which she did. She was a coarse-looking careworn woman, and I noticed, when she showed me to my room, that her hand was shaking, and her voice sounded thick as she bid me a civil 'Good-night.'

"My bed-room was a long low room with queer old furniture, quaint carved chairs, and a great four-post bedstead which seemed as big as a hearse. There was no lock to the door, and the bolts were rusty and broken, so I could only put the latch down. I thought of putting a chair against it; but that seemed childish, and no protection after all. The night was wet and windy and the sky black as ink. Try as I would, I couldn't get to sleep; and there I lay listening to the ghostly tapping of the ivy-leaves against the window, and thinking of the evil look in the landlord's eyes, and all the horrid stories I had ever read came crowding into my mind; when suddenly I started up in bed, wide awake enough, for I heard something or some one climbing up the ivy to my window. I lay with palpitating heart and straining eyes, listening to the horrible ghostly rustling, which every moment sounded nearer.

"Suddenly a thought struck me, and I rose, hastily smoothing the bed-clothes, as though the bed had not been slept in. I had just time to creep under the bed, when the window was shaken open, and somebody softly slipped in. It was a man, and listening intently, I heard him sigh wearily to himself, as if he were tired out. Then he got into my bed, threw the clothes over him, and in a few minutes I heard him snoring. You can imagine how pleasant I felt, and the scamp had my money-bag under his pillow too! What was to be done? I thought of my happy home and of the dear little wife now perhaps dreaming of me, and the thought of her gave me courage. I determined to snatch at my money and fight for it with the unseen visitor—to the death, if need be. I was crawling from under the bed, when I heard another sound, nearing the door this time. In a single minute the latch was quietly lifted, the door was gently pushed open, and I saw the landlord glide into the room. Then a hand holding a candle stole in at the door—only a hand; but I knew those quivering fingers well enough. The man crept on tip-toe to the bed, and, leaning softly over the sleeper, stabbed him to the heart. There was one deep groan, and all was over. The murderer drew the money from under the pillow, and crept stealthily to the door, glancing behind him, as though he feared the dead man would get up and follow him.

"Shaking all over, and with hair on end, I crawled from my hiding place, groped about for my clothes, and, after standing a moment, dazed with horror, followed the guilty couple. Their room was almost opposite mine, and I could see the light under their door, which was barely closed, I pushed it open and peeped in. The table faced the door; and there they stood with their backs to me, so intent upon the money that I crept close to them without being heard.

"'Look, look,' I heard the man whisper—'there is more than enough to save our boy! How they shine! And all ours, wife—ours!'

"No, mine, murderer!' I shouted, with a voice of thunder; and, snatching the bag from his nerveless grasp, I dashed the light from the woman's hand and fled back swiftly to the room where the dead man lay.

"Opening the window, I groped about with one hand for an ivy bough, clinging somehow to the sill with the other, and at last managed to scramble down, reaching the ground bruised, shaken, breathless. As I rested a moment to get my breath, I heard from the window above an awful cry sung out in a woman's voice—

"'My boy, my boy, my only son!'

I clambered over the gate which led into the street. A watch-box stood close by in the square, and I hurriedly told my story to the watchman. He stared in horror, as well he might, and wanted to fetch his mate; but I told him we were more than a match for those we should find at the inn; so he came with me. A frightened servant opened the door to us, and I led the way to the room I had just quitted. The watchman bent down, and peered into the dead man's face.

"'Ah,' he wispered, 'it's as I feared! It's their own son—they didn't know he was home, and so they mistook him for you, sir.'

"I felt myself turn queer and giddy, for now I knew the meaning of that pitiful cry, 'My only son!'

"And what of the murderers? They had not so much as tried to escape, and the door wasn't even barred against us. The woman lay moaning on the floor; the man sat huddled up in a chair by the bed. When we entered, he held out his hands to be manacled, without uttering a word. When I told him how it happened that his son had fallen a victim instead of me, he just stared in my face and made no sign that he heard the ghastly tale.

"Well, sir, that's about all. The mother, poor soul, died raving mad, and the man was hanged at Tyburn; but not another word did he epeak from first to last, save once—and that was when the Judge passed sentence on him. Then he raised his head, and, with a look in his eyes which I can never forget he said—

"'An old, old man, my lord—my only son!'

"That's all, sir. The strangest story you ever heard? Well, I dare say it is; but it's all true, every word of it; for I've got the papers to prove it, and, if you'll will be pleased to come in and see 'em, you'll be welcome as flowers in May, that you will! Not now? Well, then, I'll bid you good day, and thank you kindly for letting me talk to you, for it does me good to chat a bit sometimes, that it do! Good day, sir, and a pleasant walk to you!"

In Summer, Remember

1. That infectious diseases generally are due to filth in some form—most of them directly to diverse kinds of microscopic plants (bacteria) which gain entrance into the system through the lungs or the stomach. Invading the wonderful laboratories of life,—the infinitesimal cells,—they disorganize these just as the yeast-plants, multiplying to countless millions, disorganize every particle of the dough—or would do so, if not themselves killed by the heat of the oven.

2. Remember that the best preservative against them is high health, which either digests them in the stomach, or repels them from gaining a foothold, and eliminates them from the system.

3. Remember that the next best preservative against infectious diseases is a free and strong circulation of pure air through the house from cellar to attic. The danger is when large numbers of bacteria gain admittance. There is slight probability that a foothold will be gained by these invaders when their number is comparatively few.

4. Remember that in our cities and large towns the sewers, constantly receiving the excreta of the sick, are never free from infectious bacteria; that these readily pass up into dwellings through every open connecting pipe; that these pipes should be kept closed when not in use; and that they should, in no case, enter a sleeping-room but into a well-ventilated water-closet.

5. Remember that, in the country, wells are dangerous when they are within one hundred feet of a privy or cesspool.

6. Remember that while boiling may purify infected water, mere filtering never renders it safe.

7. Remember all water-closets, cesspools, etc., should be frequently disinfected; copperas (sulphate of iron) being a good and cheap disinfectant for the purpose.

8. That a deodorizer is not necessarily a disinfectant. We may kill a bad smell, and not kill the bacteria.
—Youth's Companion.

Canned sardines are now purely American. The packing box is made in Jersey City, the wrapper is printed in New York, the tin cans are manufactured in Boston, and the fish are caught on the Maine coast, and the oil is extracted from cottonseed in Georgia.

BATTLE OF SAN JACINTO.

How Santa Anna Was Captured—Reminiscences of the War for the Independence of Texas.

Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.

The Commercial Gazette had the pleasure the other day of an interview with an old gentleman whose reminiscences of the war for the independence of the Lone Star state, in which he was an active participant, are so bright and vivid, and told in such a bright and sprightly style, that they are well worth partial reproduction for the entertainment of our readers, with that due regard to the economy of space that must necessarily deprive them of many points of detail.

Lucien Hopson, now eighty-two years of age, and spending a few days in the city, was born and reared and educated n Geauga County, Ohio. Among his schoolmates were David Tod, Galvin Pease and Sebury Ford, all of whom became governors of their state. He lived some years in this city, and in 1834 went to Texas. He took part in the struggle for a right to live there, earned the right at the risk of his life, and since then has held it. When our representative met Mr. Hopson he found him decorated with a badge of the Texas Veterans, in honor of the day, and very willing to talk about it.

Having been identified with the city, Mr. Hopson was one to warmly welcome to Texas the volunteers who went down there from here, and he joined them. They arrived in Texas in fine form, splendidly armed and uniformed bearing a large and beautiful banner of silk that had been presented by ladies of this city. It bore an embroidered figure of the Goddess of Liberty, life-size of a woman, and the legend, "Victory or Death.". When presented here, with great ceremony, a lady made the speech of presentation, and placed her glove upon tne spear-end of the staff; and the man who received it, kneeling upon one knee, declared that it should be defended with knightly honor and courage. It was under this beautiful banner Mr. Hopson, then 34 years of age, a man of good size, powerful frame, keen eyes, inured to fatigue, and probably full of courage and enthusiasm, swore to aid in driving the hated power of Mexico out of Texas. He joined at Nagadoches, but most of his service was rendered as scout and spy on horseback. But he participated in the battle of San Jacinto, where the terrible slaughter of the Mexicans occured, and after that stood guard over Santa Anna. General Houston, by a feint at a retreat, had induced Santa Anna to divide his powerful army of 14,000 men into three commands, in order to cut off the retreat of the little band of Americans and slaughter them as at the Alamo. The three divisions were thus widely separated, when, on the 21st of April, 1836, the Americans, under Houston, only 600 or 700 strong, came upon the main body intrenched under Santa Anna.

Mr. Hopson puts the strenght of the Americans at 673. General Houston, in his speech before congress, placed it at 783. But Mr. Hopson explains that the general didn't go into details about the number who held back on account of the appalling odds of the enemy behind breastsworks. It seems that General Rush secretary of war, who was present, warned them of the odds, and gave those who chose to shirk a chance to do so. Some did back out, but most of them were made available as a reserve. The grand assault upon the enemy's works was made at high noon, and was in the nature of a surprise, as the Mexicans did not think the Americans would dare to charge against such odds. But charge they did and over the breastworks they went and fearfully slaughtered the enemy, with a loss to themselves of only eight killed and twenty-four wounded. It seems that the first volley of the Mexicans was fired too high and the second too low, and by that time they were not in condition to shoot any more to speak about, and the desperate 600 were in the midst shooting with rifles and pistols, slashing, stabbing with swords, bayonets and those terrible bowie knives. The Mexicans were stampeded and slaughtered like sheep. Seven hundred were killed, and as many more wounded and as many escaped. When Santa Anna was captured the scene around him was terrific. "Remember the Alamo" was still the cry, and the Mexican chieftain's life was in desperate jeopardy. A lot of officers closed around him and protected him at the risk of their lives. These, in turn, were completely surrounded by the men, some of whom stuck at Santa Anna with their knives over the heads and shoulders of the officers. One officer had his clothing and the skin of his arm cut through. At last the men were quieted by the statement that after General Houston had interviewed the prisoner they could kill him. Once in the presence of Houston, as a prisoner of war, Santa Anna was comparitively safe, for he immediately agreed to all terms.

Mr. Hopson overheard the conversation and gives an interesting acoount of it. All that Santa Anna had to say was, "Si, generalo." "Yes general." Said Houston: "Do you acknowledge the independence of Texas?"

"Si, generalo."

"Do you agree to pay all the damages and expenses of the war?"

"Si, generale."

"Do you agree to leave all the 'plunder' on this side of the Brazos?"

"Si, generale."

"Do you agree to cause all your troops to evacuate Texas immediately?"

"Si, generale."

"Will you send your orders by your officers, accompanied by ours, to see that this is carried out?"

"Si, generale."

These orders were carried out, though not before the divisions had effected a junction in such a force as to be too powerful for the Americans still. Some of the Mexican generals were indignant to the point of disobedience, but they were overruled.

Mr. Hopson describes the "plunder" referred to as covering a five-acre field as high as one could reach. It consisted of all sorts of personal properties, bought in Mexico and stolen in Texas. The Mexicans had come to occupy the land—to stay. Their plunder did stay; the only Mexicans who stayed larded the earth.

"Commodore" Starin, the steamship owner of New York, is said to be worth $7,000,000. Not many years ago, he was a country doctor earning $1,000 a year.

Flower-Lore For September.

September is an important month to the flower-culturist. A practical florist makes the following notes which may be of service to those who have had less experience:

Give no plants a dirty pot.—Fall planting is the best for lilies.—This is a good time for sodding lawns.—Asters make fine window pot-plants at this season.—Every flower looks the best backed by its own foliage.

Moss in a lawn indicates that the soil is either poor or wet.—Ivy-leaved geraniums are among the best of window-plants.—Calculate on lifting all tender pot-plants before the month is out.—Preparations should be made towards getting hyacinths and other Dutch bulbs planted soon.

Remove the annual plants as soon as their beauty is over, excepting those for seed.—The same flowering bulb never blooms but once, future flowers coming from a new progeny.

Aim to grow window-plants with good, healthy foliage, and they will be handsome even without flowers.—Lovers of flowers are a happy people, never failing in each month to find something new to delight them.—If chrysanthemums receive an occasional dose of liquid manure after the buds have set, the increased bloom later will pay for the attention.

It is worth while to take special pains to protect summer flowers against the first frosts, for usually after these we have a good deal of fine, warm weather.

The planting of memorial trees, commemorative of births or other events, is a beautiful custom that should be increased.

A mass of crocuses or snow-drops cannot be well-grown in one year. They should be planted in the fall months, giving them a place where they may remain undisturbed for half a decade at least.

In an atmosphere that is moist enough to suit plant-life, flower-pots get green in time. In washing such, if a little chloride of lime be put in the water, it will be a longer time before they will become green again.

Geraniums that are lifted, potted and cut back to about one-third of each branch, and then kept in a cool, light and airy place, but where it never freezes, will flower handsomely about midwinter or later,

A glass filled with triternas, or flame-flowers, cut at from one to three feet long with ricinus or acanthus leaves forms an attractive table ornament. It should be stood on an opened paper, however, because of the defect of this flower, in showering down minute particles of sticky moisture.

One great secret of keeping plants free from insects is to keep them healthy. There is something about a healthy plant that insects do not like, and such a one will seldom be badly troubled; never if sickly ones are near for them to get upon. Health depends mostly on diet, light and air, and if these points will be more studied and physicking less, the plants will be better off.

Propagation by cuttings is an easily accomplished and delightful means of raising new plants, and this is the right season to go about it for getting stock for next spring. The saucer system is recommended to amateurs, because of its simplicity and certainty. Any dish that is water-tight and about two inches deep and filled nearly even full of sand, will answer as to equipments. Into this, cuttings made from the ends of shoots, and with the leaves of the lower parts that go into the sand cut off, should be inserted, placing them so close together as almost to touch. Set the saucer thus filled in a sunny window, and supply it with enough water at all times to keep the sand just covered. In from one to three weeks depending on the kinds, roots will appear.

To determine when this takes place exactly, the cuttings of the different kinds should be examined from time to time, and as soon as roots, however small, appear on any, the cutting should be potted, Set them in light earth, in rather small pots at first. They should also be shaded lightly from the sun for a week, as now, with the soil not saturated to the extent the sand in the saucer was, they would, if unshaded, flag to their injury. After growth begins, the young plants should have as sunny a place as can be provided for them, and all through the winter.

Gen. Lee on Frankness.

A letter of Gen. Lee to his son, written in 1862, has just been given to the public, in which he discourses on the value of frankness:

I am just in the act of leaving home for New Mexico. My fine old regiment has been ordered to that distant region, and I must hasten to see that they are properly taken care of. I have but little to add in reply to your letters of March 26, 27 and 28. Your letters breathed a true spirit of frankness; they have already given myself and your mother great pleasure. You must study to be frank with the world; frankness is the child of honesty and courage. Say what you mean to do on every occasion, and take it for granted you mean to do right. If a friend asks a favor you should grant it if it is reasonable; if not, tell him plainly why you cannot; you will wrong him and yourself by equivocation of any kind. Never do a wrong thing to make a friend or to keep one; the man who requires you to do so is dearly bought at a sacrifice. Deal kindly but firmly with your classmates; you will find it the policy which wears best. Above all do not appear to others what you are not. If you have any fault to find with any one, tell him, not others, of what you complain; there is no more dangerous experiment than that of undertaking to be one thing before a man's face and another behind his back. We should live, act and say nothing to the injury of any one. It is not only best as a matter of principle, but it is the path to peace and honor.

Poplars grow in rows in Normandy, in cultivated fields. The bows being constantly cut away for fuel, there is no shade and no interference with vegetation.

Mrs. Blaine has subscribed $2,500 to the building fund of the chapel of the Covenant now in process of erection in Washington.

The products of Calfornia for 1884 are estimated at $81,000,000.

Things in General.

The new Italian war-ship, the Ruggiero di Dauria, will carry four 100-ton guns, ten four-ton guns, twelve large mitrailleuses, and two guns of fifteen centimeters at the bow and stern. Her engines will be of 5,000-horse power. Her keel was laid in September, 1881, and she will cost 20,000,000 francs. She is named after a celebrated Calabrian Admiral, the first of whose many victories was the battle of Malta, in 1283.

There is no demand for landed property in England. Recently the Middleham estate, comprising about 1,870 acres in the North Riding of Yorkshire, Braithwaite Old Hall and the ruins of Middleham Castle, was put up for auction at York. The rent-roll of the estate is £2,800 a year, and it was first offered as a whole. No one, however, could be induced to bid £60,000, and it was withdrawn. Subsequently the property was put up in several lots, but not a single field found a purchaser. The Boscastle estate in Cornwall, which includes the whole town of Boscastle, was also offered for sale, but that too was withdrawn.

The word "fudge" has a positive personality underlying it. Such it is, at least, if Disraeli's account be authentic. He quotes from a very old pamphlet entitled "Remarks Upon the Navy," wherein the author says: "There was in our time one 'Captain Fudge,' commander of a merchantman, who, upon his return from his voyage how ill fraught soever his ship was, always brought home his owners a good crop of lies, so much that now, aboard ship, the sailors, when they hear a great lie told, cry out, 'You fudge it!' The ship was the Black Eagle, the time that of Charles II."

In Austro-Hungary every newspaper appearing more than twice a month has to deposit caution-money if politics are treated or mentioned. For Vienna and surroundings this deposit is fixed at $9,000; for towns of 60,000 inhabitants, at $3,000; for towns of 30,000 inhabitants, at $2,000, and for all other places, $1,000; but papers only appearing three times a week need only pay half the amount. By infringement of the press laws the caution-money may be partially or wholly forfeited, and all files are levied on the amount, which has again to be made up to original sum if the papers are to go on.

The Lord Bishop of Rochester, England, who is now in this country engaged in temperance work, frequently emphasizes the fact that he is not a Prohibitionist. "I do not believe," he says, "in laws which propose absolutely to suppress the liquor business, but which invariably fail of their purpose, and only serve to bring all law into contempt. I am for restrictive legislation. I favor high license, because it restrains the liquor business and does away with many of its horrors."

Among forty-four American cities the death rate of which is published in the Sanitarian, Lynchburg, Va., leads the list in perentage of mortality. In the five weeks ending March 29, 1884, the deaths in this little city were at the annual rate of 60.8 per thousand, or nearly twice that of New Orleans during the same time. In the four weeks ending April 26. 1884, the deaths were at the annual rate of 58 per 1000, and in the four weeks preceding May 31 had sunk to the rate of 48. In New Orleans, certainly the most insalubrious of the large cities of the Union, the death rates for the saine terms of four weeks were 30,1 and 35.5. respectively. Lynchburg is said to be finely situated on steep declivity on the right bank of James River.

A man in Forest Hill, California, possessed what might be termed a patent elastic stomach. He could not eat anything without nauseating him, and as for quantity it was never known exactly how much his stomach would hold. On one occasion it is said, he ate eight small cans of oysters, several cans of peaches, besides crackers cheese and bologna in proportion, and, washed it down with eight or ten glasses of beer, and then afterward, when asked, to sing a song, he wanted to know whether they expected him to sing on an empty stomach. It is said also that he would sometimes catch flies and eat them down by the handful just to show what he could do. At one time he ate a mouse, head, ears and hair, on a wager of $1.50.

Preserving Milk by Chemicals.

From the London Standard.

It might be of interest to that numerous class of the community into whose dietary milk enters more or less, to know whether carbonate of soda boracic acid or nitrate of potash injures or improves the quality of the fluid. From the evidence of a correspondent it appears that in hot weather milk venders, or at least some of them have adopted the very questionable habit of mixing these substances with the articles which they sell in order to keep the milk fresh. It is, of course, possible that boracic acid may have the property of preserving milk from "turning." The same agent has been tried before for keeping meat from putrification, and has been supposed to answer. But the effect which this particular form of milk adulterations is likely to produce on the digestions of those who consume the novel compound can not be prophesied with any safety except by persons well acquainted with the laws of chemistry. According to the testimony which we publish, the results in certain instances has been to produce illness of rather a severe type. A little knowledge of chemistry among venders of milk would be a dangerous thing for their customers if this practice continues; and it is obviously not to be endured that our milk supply should be meddled with and its purity destroyed by means of chemical experiments conducted by perfect amateurs. Out of sixteen analysis of milk made with the purpose of discovering the causes of the illness described, only two samples were found to be pure; one was adulterated by the admixture of water, and no less than thirteen had been subjected to the experiments we have mentioned with boracic and other acids. We have heard of flour and chalk being used as ingredients of cows' milk by dishonest venders; but the addition of chemical compounds intended to preserve the article gives a new terror to the homely milk-jug.

LITTLE CORSAIR.

For the Companion.

An Incident of Collins' Tour of England.

The heart of the red man bled,
But strangers looked on his pain;
The chief must bury his dead,
But not on his native plain.
The flower of his prairie nest
Lay withered in Scotland's air,
And his sunlight set in the west
As he wept for little Corsair.

At sign of the white man's hand
He had come, with a favored few
Of his wild Iowa band,
To the Old World out of the New;
And the courts of power and pride
Gave him welcome everywhere,
With a smile for his dusky bride,
And a kiss for little Corsair.

But the pretty babe—(did it pine
For its home-land over the sea?)—
Fell sick at Newcastle-on-Tyne,
And died at "bonnie Dundee."
Oh, vain were the soother's arts,
The gifts of the rich and fair!
And praise fell cold on the hearts
That mourned for little Corsair.

Shou-ta-yi-ga! sunk is thy crest,
That rod on the war-wave swam!
The heart in the tiger's breast
Was soft as the heart of a lamb.
His followers, dumb with doubt,
Sat watching the chief's despair,
When the light of the tribe went out
With the soul of little Corsair.

Each painted brave wore the stripe
Of grief, like a new-made wound,
And the solemn council-pipe
Passed silently round and round,
As they thought with a secret throb
Of dread for the dead one there,
"Would the foe and the stranger rob
The grave of little Corsair?"

No, the kind pale-faces clad
And coffined the lovely clay,
And bore it back with a sad
And pitiful care, next day;
And love had another shrine,
New-hallowed with Christain prayer,
When they made by the flowing Tyne
The bed of little Corsair.

And the chief and his bride returned
To their native land once more;—
But their childless grief still yearned
To the grave on Britain's shore:
And still the Newcastle bells
In fancy thrilled on the air,
And sobbed, with their own farewells,
The name of little Corsair.

THERON BROWN.

QUANTRELL AT LAWRENCE.

How the Guerrilla Raided a Kansas Town and Slaughtered Its People.

Nine Score Citizens Massacred—An Incident of Brutality for Which No Government Was Responsible.

From the Philadelphia Times.

Lawrence, the Plymouth Rock of Kansas, is now a flourishing city of the far West. It is situated in the fertile valley of the Kaw and is surrounded by the richest agricultural district in the State. It was setteled in an early day by staunch, industrious and intelligent people from the New England States, most of whom were sent out by the Massachusetts Emigrant Aid Society to assist in making Kansas a free State. This city might also be called the Lexington of the late war, for here were fought the initial battles for the same principles that soon thereafter precipitated the North and South into the war of the rebellion. This city in age is but an infant; nevertheless in its past history it has some pages as dark as any city in the South where the ravages of war were felt in reality. Though at the time of the rebellion it was thought situated outside of the theatre of war, yet it did not escape.

The calamity that befell this city of the prairie cannot be said to have been the result of the policy of any Confederate authority, civil or military, but was a consequence of the war. The strong anti-slavery principles of its citizens and the active part they took in the early struggles of the Territory, causing it to be admitted into the Union as a free State, had aroused a spirit of hatred among the pro-slavery men, not only in their own State, but also across the border. Those semi-Southern people had long been on the watch for an excuse, and were glad when the opportunity came, that they might strike those "nigger stealers"—as they called them—a blow.

Demonstrations had frequently been made by portions of the Confederate army under General Price to invade the northern part of Kansas, but they had always been checked and driven back by the Federal troops. Rumors of invasion were so frequent that at last the people did not put any reliance in them. It is true the citizens of Lawrence always felt and believed that they were "spotted" and that an opportunity was all that was necessary and they would have the war at their own doors. At times the authorities would become alarmed and call for aid on the militia of the surrounding country. The town would be put under proper defense and wait for the attacking column to come. As none came to molest their peace the militia in a short time would be disbanded and sent home.

Thus matters drifted along until the summer of '63. The heavy dark clouds of war were passing southward and the sunshine of quiet was resting on the frontier. About the 1st of August of this year intelligence was received at Lawrence by a scout upon the staff of General Ewing that Quantrell was again contemplating an attack upon that place. This news created only a momentary stir. The country militia were called in again, a squad of soldiers under Lieutenant Hadley from Fort Leavenworth arrived and more were en route. Everything progressed finely for putting the town in a defensive position, when all at once the soldiers were sent away and the militia disbanded to their homes again. The people had been assured from some source that there was not any danger, and that the whole thing was laughed at as a false alarm. Thus matters were, and the good people of Lawrence never in their life felt more secure, and as an eye-witness said: "Never less prepared than the night before the raid."

On the 20th of August, 1863, Quantrell and his band of 300 followers went into camp about sixty miles southeast of Lawrence. His band was a motley crowd and made up of all classes of the frontier freebooters. Frank and Jesse James were with the crowd and were good types of the remainder of the gang. They [illegible] was any danger ahead. They soon returned and reported all quiet.

A man who lived in a small cabin near the road was up and saw the raiders when they halted. But as it was not light enough to discern objects at a distance he supposed they were Union troops. He was soon convinced of the contrary, for as soon as the two horsemen returned he heard the command from the leader, beginning with a horrid oath, saying: "Rush in, boys! Every man to his place. Give them hell and take no prisoners!"

Forward! Silently and cautiously they passed on until they reached the high ground on Main street. Then the rush was made. Detachments scattered here and there to every quarter of the town with hideous oaths and yells like the evil spirits from the halls of pandemonium. It was a complete surprise to the town. A half dozen of the raiders rode up on Mount Oread—the site where the State University now stands—to keep a watch out for any assistance that might come to the aid of the town. A squad of about fifty made for the western part of the city, where there was a camp of twenty-two recruits for the Fourteenth Kansas Infantry. The raiders rode boldly through the camp, drove from the tents the armless soldiers and shot them down as they ran. Two or three of the raiders would single out one soldier and run him till they would shoot him down. Out of the twenty-two soldiers fourteen were killed and nearly all of the rest wounded.

Another squad went dashing down Main street at full speed, yelling and shouting like Indians—firing their revolvers right and left at every man, woman and child on the street and at every door and window in which a face was seen. This squad made on for the Eldridge House, at which was the headquarters of the Provost Marshal of Kansas. They surrounded the house, and without firing a gun demanded an unconditional surrender. All was silent for a few moments, when Captain Banks, Provost Marshal of the State, appeared at a window and displayed a white handkerchief as a flag of truce. He offered to surrender if they would give him an assurance that the inmates would not be harmed.

Quantrell, who was present, rode up and was about to reply to Captain Banks, when the gong of the hotel sounded through its halls to awaken its inmates. The raiders, thinking this was the tocsin of fight and defense on the part of the inmates, fell back and hesitated for a moment, but seeing no danger began to dismount. While a portion held the horses the others rushed to the rooms, plundering and robbing everyone they met. The inmates, about sixty in number, they drove out and marched them over to Winthrop street. Thence they were marched and put into an old house on the river bank and were held as hostages, if they should be needed for that. The hotel, which had cost about $70,000, with all its stocks and stores, was burned to the ground.

Another squad surrounded the Johnson House and began immediately firing into the windows. A portion of the inmates came out and surrendered as prisoners. They were marched a few rods from the house and shot down by detail by their guards. Other inmates of the house were shot down as they would run to escape. Some were shot in the building and others consumed alive with the burning building.

The house of the mayor of the town, General G. A. Collamore, was surrounded by a squad detailed for that special purpose. The mayor was sleeping securely at the time, not dreaming that death was knocking at his door. The noise of the ruffians as they surrounded his house awoke him. He got up, saw the trap he was in, and that there was no possible way of escape. The raiders were bursting open the doors of his house. To face them would be to face their revolvers and death. Flee he could not; hide he must. At the kitchen door was a well, and into this he went. The raiders entered his house, and searched it from cellar to garret, but not finding him they fired the house and watched for him to run out. As he did not come they supposed he had perished in the flames. Fate was against him, nevertheless. A portion of the burning house fell into the well, and between the two elements—fire and water—he perished. After the raiders had left, Mrs. Collamore—who knew her husband's hiding place—sent a friend, Mr. Lowe, to look for him. In going into the well the rope broke and he perished, too. Assistance was brought and three dead bodies were taken out. How the third man got into the well no one ever knew.

In another portion of the town, at the residence of Dr. Griswold, were living four families: The Doctor and his lady; S. M. Thorp, State Senator, and lady; Mr. J. C. Trask, editor of the State Journal, and lady, and Mr. G. W. Baker and lady. This house had its attacking party also. They demanded that the men should come out and were assured if they would come out their lives should be protected. The four men came out and the ruffians marched them out into the middle of the street. In an instant, without a previous knowledge of what was coming, they were shot down. Dr. Griswold and Mr. Trask were killed, the other two wounded. The demons went up to them, rolled them over and seeing that Thorp and Baker were still alive they fired another volley into their bodies, killing Thorp, as they supposed, Baker, too. But, by a miracle he recovered, with three bullets in his body. While this was going on the ladies attempted several times to go to their husbands but were driven off by the demons. The raiders went in and robbed the house of everything of value, even demanding the personal jewelry of the ladies. Mrs. Trask begged to retain her wedding ring. "You have killed my husband; let me keep his ring!" "No, by the eternal!" said the fiend, and snatched it from her finger.

Another gang visited the house of Judge Carpenter. He was called for and met them at the door so pleasingly that the raiders were astonished at his manner. They went in, robbed the house of some valuables and went off, not molesting the judge or even firing the building. After awhile another gang, seeing the house unmolested, visited it. With this gang the Judge's genial manner and courtesy had no effect. Upon telling them he was from New York State one of the fiends yelled out: "It is your damned New York fellows that are playing hell in Missouri!" and with the words drew his revolver and shot him. The Judge though severely wounded, ran into the house and the fiends after him, shooting, shouting and yelling. They chased him from room to room and finally he ran out into the back yard, when a shot mortally wounded him and he fell. His wife ran to him and threw herself over him so as to shield him from further danger. One of the devils lifted the arm of the wife from her husband's head and sent a ball into his brain. The house was fired, but was finally saved from destruction by the united efforts of some ladies.

A squad more fiendish than all the rest visited the house of Mr. Edward Fitch, a very worthy and talented man from Hopkinton, Mass., and one who had taken a very active part in the formation of Kansas as a State. He was called and as he was coming down the stairs shot dead. They continued to fire at him till at least a dozen balls were lodged in his body. The house was then set on fire and Mrs. Fitch was not allowed to drag her husband's body out of the flames. They would not even allow her to save her family portraits that hung upon the wall. They drove her off to a distance, where she sat down with her then three fatherless little ones and watched with a sad heart her home and husband consumed in the flames. What could have been that mother's feeling no one but herself can tell.

Beyond the outskirts of the town was the residence of the Rev. S. S. Snyder, a prominent minister of the United Brethren Church and a true Christian in every sense of the word. He was a man of much prominence and was chair- [illegible] in the yard as he was standing by his wife. The raiders then fired the house, and while it was burning held the woman so she could not run in and save her infant babe that was being consumed in the flames.

An old German who was sick in bed and not able to walk was ordered to be carried out that his home might be fired. As the poor sick man lay in the yard a squad of fiends came up and riddled his body with bullets. Another man who was sick, when he heard the noise outside, crawled to the door, where he was met by half a dozen desperadoes, who emptied their revolvers in his face and then fired the building, and all was consumed in the flames.

A very old man by the name of Murphy was standing in his yard and with his dim eyesight was peering in the distance to find out what was going on. A fiend rode up and asked him for a cup of water. When the old man went and brought him the cup the incarnate devil received it with one hand and shot him with the other.

To add other instances of these barbarities would be to unnecessarily lengthen this article. Enough has been said to mark it as one among the foul deeds the world has witnessed. The instances narrated show plainly the object and purpose of the raid. Quantrell had planned well. His spies had visited the place prior to his raid and had found and marked every important personage and place. To make this attack instantaneous and complete he had for each place or person a proper detail and their executions were complete. In a short space of time the whole town was wrapped in flames—the men shot down wherever seen, women and children running here and there screaming for life, while the desperadoes were riding up and down the streets at full speed, indiscriminately shooting at every object they could see. They would shoot at women and children "to make them run faster and scream louder," as one of the raiders afterwards said. To an eye-witness it was a realization of what one might call "Hell let loose."

The business part of the town was on Massachusetts street, between Winthrop and Warren, a distance of six blocks. Along this street there was one continuous line of stores, shops and offices. These buildings were all first plundered and then set on fire. The whole street was soon in flames. In the street and on the sidewalks lay the dead and wounded crisping in the fiery element. As buildings went down many persons went with them, choosing rather to perish in the flames than to run to the street and be shot down like dogs. Modern times never witnessed such a scene of horror before; the atrocity of savages was but a shadow to this, and fiends from the regions of the damned could not have been more brutal.

The end came at last, and in an hour the raiders had gone. The gathering up of the dead, the caring for the wounded and the hunt for the missing was the work of three days—three days and nights of the wildest excitement ever seen in Lawrence. Into the few buildings left remaining were gathered the dead the dying and the wounded. Many of the dead were burned beyond recognition, and some so charred as not to be handled and some of whose remains never could be found. The scenes of these three days beggars all descriptions. In the ashes of a building sat a woman holding in her hands the blackened skull of her husband, while at her feet lie the ashes of her three children, all of whom were butchered and consumed in the flames.

The whole number killed and those who died afterwards from wounds was about one hundred and eighty. The burial of the dead was the most solemn affair any one could witness. It was an impossibility to get coffins for all and some had to be put away in rude boxes hastily made. A few were buried in their own door yards, but most were taken to the cemetry west of the town. Fifty-three were buried in one long grave. In 1872 their bodies were all taken up and reinterred in Oak Hill Cemetry, where there has been erected to their memory a very imposing monument.

The number of buildings burned was about one hundred and fifty and the most of these were the principal ones in the town. A few stone buildings were left standing. The value of the property destroyed was estimated at about $2,500,000. It was a very calm morning; not a breeze was stirring, to carry the flames from one building to another, is a reason why a portion of the town was left standing where the houses were not very contiguous to each other.

OSWEGO, KANSAS.

A THEATRICAL COURT.

Chinese Actors Give His Honor and the Officials a Free Exhibition of Their Talents.

There was quite a large attendance of idlers in the United States District Court when the Chinese habeas corpus cases were called, and Assistant United States District Attorney Carroll Cook rose to the occasion, so to speak, and threw himself for all he was worth to find proper entertainment for them. The result was that Judge Ogden Hoffman's court, usually the most prosy and and staid of tribunals, scored a beat on record in the circus line. Carroll Cook found splendid material for sport ready at hand, for four Chinese actors were seeking admission to this State through that loophold in the evasion act, which admits professional men. They were the comedian, first juvenile, leading heavy, and leading lady of the imperial Pekin combination, billed to appear for a short season only. The comedian took the stand first, and, after he had sworn to his ability to shake with convulsive laughter the fat sides of the soberest mandarian in all China, he was turned over to Mr. Cook for cross-examination. Giving the court and witness a look of profound distrust and the spectators a wink of fun to come Mr. Cook said in his most pretentious tones: "You say you are a comedian, show the court what you can do." This was duly translated and the heathen, without a smile, gave an order in Chinese.

In less time than telling takes a dozen Mongols had stacked the courtroom chairs up in a heap, rolled the tables into a corner, staked the United States Marshal on the back of the water cooler, and removed the judicial spittoon out of harm's way beneath the judicial chair, and before Judge Hoffman had time to say a word the comedian had taken his cue and was turning flip-flaps across the courtroom, and winding up with a clear back somersault. Then, without taking time to breathe, he jumped on to the edge of the very throne of justice and threw a double somersault almost into the arms of the United States Attorney. The spectators applauded. Mr. Cook said: "I guess that will do," and the leading [illegible]

FARM, FIELD AND FIRESIDE.

Household Miscellany.

A writter on etiquette describes the feelings of bashful persons who make a call, and are uncomfortable the whole time because of the awful duty before them of properly leaving the room. The following advice on the subject is good: "Putting off the moment does not help the matter in any way. When the proper time arrives—and it is always better to make short calls than long ones—rise from your chair without preliminaries, make your adieus to the hostess, give a parting bow to others in the room—more is not necessary, unless you desire to pay some special mark of respect to an old person or to a guest in the house—and walk out. Never begin to talk about going and then sit on and on, making no move to carry out your intention."

It has been discussed of late, says Clarence Cook in the Art Amateur, whether drawing-rooms should be light in effect or low in tone. Since a charming room in this city set the fashion of making its debut in white, there have been several attempts at rivalry, and at one time it looked as if we were coming back to the fashion of the time of Louis XVI. with its roons in white and gold. But such a scheme hardly suits with the luxurious habits of our time, and it is all but impossible to furnish a white room with the comfort and profusion that have become necessary for us.

Children are quick to compare, and it is not strange if the difference between the well-dressed business man and the careless, untidy farmer, is accepted by them as a powerful argument in favor of city life and against farming. And so, year after year, we see the steady and increasing stream of young men any women from country homes, especially those of brightest promise, flowing to the more attractive surroundings of the town. And the purest and noblest occupation followed by man, the one demanding, and best repaying ability, energy and devotion, has been largely left to those of inferior abilities, little ambition, and slight education.

A New-England lady who has had good success with sweet peas tells The Homestead that she sprouts the seed between several thicknesses of damp cloth in a warm place and plants four inches deep in rows prepared as follows: "Dig a trench ten or twelve inches deep, fill in four or six inches of well-rotted manure, and level up with rich garden soil." She thinks they do better climbing on brush than on twine. Her preference is for pink and white colors as "prettiest and sweetest" and "looking the best with a large variety of flowers."

The Baltimore Sun is asked by a lady how to permanently remove hair from the upper lip. The Sun gallantly answers that this depends in the ourset upon whose mustache it is on the lady's lip. If it is owned by a young man, or an old sinner, or any other man, it may be bitten off or otherwise effectually removed without injury to the lady. If it is the lady's own mustache she will doubtless get rid of it as soon by letting it alone as she will by pulling at it, cutting or burning it. Furthermore, she will probably soon realize by letting it alone that its importance as a personal defect has been exaggerated, and that it will in time either disappear of itself or at least cease to attract attention.

Parents little know how much pain they often cause their children by their shameful neglect of dress and manners among strangers; and I hold that farmers have no right to bring discredit upon our business and class, by a carelessness of appearance or ungainly behavior. If we do not wish our children to feel ashamed to be thought farmers, let us show them that farmers appear as well, and are as careful in the little matters of etiquette that mark the gentleman or lady, as those of city manners. If any class of people can afford to be well dressed, both at home and when they leave their homes to meet strangers, farmers can. Teach the boys to take care of the carriages and harness, and with a small outlay of paint, varnish and oil, you may have turnouts that will not cause your children to blush when they drive to town or to church.

Sowing Seed Grass in Spring.

Prof. E. M. Shelton of Kansas says that "the time to sow grass seed is in the spring, and recent experience shows that this work should not be undertaken too early in the season." Sowing grass seed late in spring may answer on the new lands of Kansas, but, in the older states the weeds that invariably start at this season would soon smother the young grass unless cut down every few weeks during the summer. Furthermore, all the hardy species of grass that we have ever tried start more uniformly and take root more rapidly in the autumn than in spring; besides, there is less danger of droughts killing the young plants at this season than in early summer. We have tried both seasons and have never failed to get a good stand of plants when the seed was sown early in the fall, but have seldom made a success of spring seeding.

Brief Farm Notes.

Drainage of Flower Pots.—No other matter connected with plant culture is of greater importance. If applied water does not settle away in a few minutes, it indicates that there is a stoppage in the soil which must be removed. A pointed stick thrust through the hole in the bottom of the pot will usually set the trouble right.

A neighbor who raises many cabbages sent his hired boy into the field almost daily [illegible]

American Cultivator, "continually accused as having no taste for flowers. The statement is not true. Some farmers do not like flowers and some city people do not. As a rule the farmer enjoys the beautiful things of nature more than people of other occupations do. He may not, like them, be constantly going into raptures over country scenes and rural beauties, but if he lacks the frivolous interjections of city people, he possesses a more desirable, a more persistent love for nature and her jewels."

Illustrating the fact that better culture of smaller surface may be the shortest way to success, the Orange County Farmer mentions one who keeps more stock, raises more grain and makes more money on thirty acres than another in the same town who skims ten times as much land.

Stacking Grain.

From the South and West.

The great secret of successful stacking is to keep the center of the stack full and high. This is the very point in which so many stackers fail. To keep the middle of the stack as high as it should be is not an easy matter by any means, for the more elevated the center is the greater the tendency of the outside courses to slip out and spoil the stack. But the stacker must remember that as the stack settles, the middle, bearing the greater weight, sinks the most, and two weeks after the stack is built will be much lower than at the beginning. If the middle sinks so low that the outside course of sheaves being lower than the butts, the stacks will spoil, as rain will pass into the stack instead of passing off it. Each inside course should cover the bands of the sheaves in the course outside of it; this, if followed out honestly, will keep the middle of the stack high enough. In laying the outside bundles, stick each bundle into the one below it, using considerable force, but being careful not to displace the lower sheaf. This is the only effective method of laying the bundles to prevent slipping; and at times it is not sufficient. When such is the case, place a flat board against the offending bundles, and stay the board with inclining props if below the bulge, or lean poles against the sheaves if above the bulge.

The second point to be observed in the building of a stack is to shape the bundles; that is, put the butts in that position which will suit the shape of the stack. While standing in the shock the sheaves have inclined inward toward a common center. This has given the butts a diagonal shape. This makes one side of the sheaf longer than the other. Below the bulge lay the long side of the bundle up; above the bulge lay the long side down. When the bundles are laid in this way the stack is smooth, as it should be; not because it looks nicer; but because there are no sharp projections to catch the rain and carry it into the stack. This may seem like a small point, but it is of sufficient importance to be observed by the man who desires to put up a stack which will preserve the grain.

Okra, Egg Plant and Salsify.

These are all valuable vegetables, but are appreciated by but few persons. And probably the reason is, too few know how to prepare them for the table:

Okra.—This is a mucilaginous vegetable used much for pickles, and is also served by washing and slicing the pods, then simmer in a little water till tender, and season with salt, pepper and butter.

Egg Plant.—There is a great mistake in taking to market or trying to eat ripe egg plants. They are only useful when green and about two-thirds grown. They are worthless to eat when ripe.

To prepare them for the table, they should be cut in slices half an inch in thickness, lay in salted water an hour, wipe each slice dry, dip in floor or fine corn meal, season with pepper and fry brown in a little hot fat, or dip in beaten eggs, then in fine crumbs, and fry in hot lard.

Salsify.—This is called by many persons "Vegetable Oyster." It is good boiled. Soak clean, cut in pieces half an inch long, boil till tender, drain, and serve with drawn butter or white sauce. Or mash fine, season to taste, and a little cream and serve. This is according to Mrs. Ewing. Or it can be fried, by boiling first, then mash fine, season to taste, add a teaspoonful of cream and a well beaten egg, make into small cakes and brown on a griddle, or fry in hot fat.

Sciatica and Rheumatism.

New York Tribune.

C. L. C. writes: "I had sciatica about a year and was thoroughly cured by heating my feet as hot as I could bear four times a day, say for fifteen minutes after breakfast, dinner and supper and before retiring at night. I did not use medicine or liniments of any kind. Since my recovery friends have tried it for neuralgia and rheumatism with equal success." W. J. T. writes: "I send a remedy which I have used myself and have known others to use with great benefit; it is simple and harmless yet very efficient. Benzoic acid six grains, pulverized borax four grains. Mix. This makes one dose. Take a dose every six hours. Three or four doses are [illegible]

The Great American Girl.

This is what Sir Lepel Griffin says of the American girl: "Stylish and pretty, independent and pure minded, is the American girl. She adores pleasure, dress, luxury; shows herself morally without concealment, such as she is, in a manner to deceive no one; [illegible] intimacy in appearance almost conjugal. The one thus elected is allowed to describe his feelings, and to speak of his love from morning till night, but it is not permitted him to kiss even the tips of her fingers. Words without deeds she amuses herself with as much as possible before marriage. In one she has created the Paris fashions. Parisins detest her, provincials despise her. Yet men of all nations are bewitched with her, yet they don't marry her unless she has a large fortune. With reddish hair paler than gold, frank black eyes, which neither droop nor quail, and a figure which is impossible to imitate, she lies back in a carriage as if it were a hammock; a natural and easy pose, quite unconscious of voluptuousness. On foot she steps along briskly and unconcernedly, her heels tapping the pavment as she walks. Attracting many glances she is yet much occupied with herself and little with others; a plant from the broad wilds, which, put in a narrow space, and finding itself hemmed in, stretches across the glass without disquieting itself with the thin, frozen plants which vegetate around it. If understood better, and criticised less, this young girl would be more truly estimated at her just value." Sir Lepel has evidently recovered from his attack of dyspepsia.

Starting a Blackberry Patch.

The most common method of starting a new blackberry plantation is to use plants of the last year's growth, but it is well to remind growers that they can do just about as well with suckers of the current year if they will plant carefully and water at the time of setting. Dig up plants in April or May, while in full growth, cut the top off near the ground, expose the roots as little as possible, plant very soon, pour water about the roots before filling the hole with earth; then fill and pack the earth closely about it. I treated several hundred so this spring, and they are doing rather better, I think, than plants of last year set in April. Of these quite a good many die for some reason, and it is an excellent plan to fill these vacancies with suckers of the current year—much better than to wait a full year. The same is true of all raspberries which propagate by suckers. If one waits a year, the young plants then must compete with their older neighbors, the roots of which already begin to monopolize the ground. The second year it is still worse, and indeed it is well nigh impossible then to fill the vacancies successfully. For these reasons, when a plantation of anything is started—trees as well as vines or plants—it is very important that they all start at the same time.—Country Gentleman.

Flax Culture.

The experience of the present season, no less than that of several seasons past, during which the Rural has advocated the method, has strengthened our faith that flax culture for potatoes, as well as for Indian corn, will give larger crops than hilling up. Except that under-level culture, some of the tubers are occasionally exposed to the air and light, and become green or "burn," we know of no objection to this mode of culture; while, contrary to what is the case in hilling-up, the roots which would naturally extend from hill to hill, are not interfered with; and the rain may sink directly and evenly into the ground, instead of being shed by the mounds of soil about the stems, and carried to the valleys. We have practiced this system for five years, both in sandy and clayey soil, and we feel very confident that the crops so raised are more than enough to pay for the burnt potatoes which are found here and there.

The Possibilities of Irrigation.

From the Trenton Times.

Mr. A. N. Cole, of Wellsville, N. Y., the veteran ex-editor, has made discoveries in the matter of irrigation, and secured a patent therefor, which seems destined to work a great revolution in the value of lands. By his system he grows strawberries to the size of peaches, and increases the size, beauty and perfection of all fruits to a degree to defy credence. He says in a letter in the Wellsville Free Press: "I grow such turnips, beets, cabbages and cauliflowers as have never been seen on the Atlantic coast. A full bushel of tomatoes to the plant can be grown, and that, too, of marvelous size and beauty. As stated in previous articles, 1,000 bushels of peapods can be grown to the acre. All forms, in short, of vegetable growth are so developed as to do away with fungus, deadliest enemy of plant life, securing stalk, bud, blossom and fruit in completest perfection. This is done by hanging up on our hillsides in a succession of trenches, deep dug in the hard-pan, aggregations of water to be held in reserve till they find their way by the laws of gravity, in even and uniform currents of subterranean flow, to the streams in the valleys, securing such perfection of irragation in their track as to give plant life inspiration such as has never before been so much as approximated."

Love and Intellect.

"Oh, My little Utsey Bumpey—How has it been getting on since its Freddie left? Does it kiss its little sweet self for its Freddie every two free minutes as it said it would? It won't forget to meet its Duckey at the car station to seving o'clock this evening? Please don't. Bump oo, bite oo, kiss oo, squeeze oo, pound oo fat head on the wall. OWN FREDDIE."

Key to the above—This is one of those affairs that need a "map" with it. It is a copy of a bona fide letter written by a young man suffering in the last stages of a somewhat frequent disease, called "long engagement." It is a sad case. He was formerly known to the writer as a bright young person. The doctors only hold out one hope now. [illegible] —Boston Globe.

The Inter Ocean announces that "Colonel John C. Vaughn, an old lawyer and journalist of Cleveland, who was for many years prominent in Ohio politics, [illegible] Giddings and William Lloyd Garrison, [illegible]

Personal Paragraphs.

The great-grandmother of General George B. McClellan, Mrs. Samuel McClellan, planted three elms in Woodstock, Ct., for joy, when she heard the news of the battle of Lexington, and they are now the largest and finest elms in the town.

Hon. L. E. Chittenden, Register of the Treasury under President Lincoln, has presented to the university of Vermont his large and valuable cabinet of shells, containing from 2,000 to 3,000 species and a rare collection of the eggs of American birds.

The statement that a daughter of A. C. Ramsage of Bellaire, Ohio, who was bitten on the right hand nine years ago this summer by a copperhead snake, has suffered intensely on each anniversary of the day on which she was bitten, the arm and hand becoming swollen and the original symptoms of paralysis appearing, has aroused much interest in the medical profession.

It is related that when Chief Justice Waite and Judge Hall of North Carolina, with other dignitaries of the bench, were down Chesapeake Bay on a Goverement steamer with a party of official excursionists, Judge Hall became very seasick. As he was retching over the side of the vessel and moaning aloud in his agony the Chief Justice stepped gently to his side and, laying a soothing hand on his shoulder, said: "My dear Hall, can I do anything for you? Just suggest what you wish." "I wish," said the seasick Judge, "Your Honor would overrule this motion."

An English critic who has been describing the genesis of the famous ballad, "Auld Robin Gray," says that Lady Anne Lindsay, who wrote it, told her little sister one day that she was writing a ballad, and was oppressing her heroine with all manner of misfortunes. "I have already sent Jamie to sea, broken her father's arm, made her mother fall sick, and given her auld Robin Gray for a lover; but poor thing, I wish to add another misfortune to her in five lines." "Then steal her coo (cow)," piped up her little sister, and accordingly the cow was stolen and the ballad completed.

Henry Villard's reception on his recent visit to his old home in Rheinish Bavaria was very enthusiastic. He was met at the depot by a deputation of prominent citizens, and was accompanied along the streets by a procession of carriages. In the evening he was serenaded by singing societies, and the next day deputations from various local organizations visited him and presented him with an address. Mr. Villard is now back in New York.

"Julia Jackson, the only child of 'Stonewall' Jackson, is here," writes an Old Point correspondent of the Louisville Courier-Journal, and adds: "She is a slight blue-eyed girl, with fair hair, dark eyebrows and long lashes, which give strength and character to her mobile changing face. She is quite an accomplished young lady, swims like a fish, shoots like a rifleman and rides like a Kentucky belle, in her gray, confederate uniform, trimmed with big brass buttons. It is very pretty to see the deference paid the widow and only child of their lost leader by all the southern men and women who may chance to meet them. Mrs. Jackson is a modest little lady, with charming manners and sweet voice."

According to several correspondents there is a remarkable beauty at Long Branch. Her name is Gloria Cespedes, and she is the daugter of Gen. Cespedes, who was killed fourteen years ago in the Cuban revolution. She is described as a beautiful specimen of the pure Spanish type. Her face, while characteristic of her nationality, is more regular and delicate in its features than is usual among her countrywomen. Her hair is jet, her eyes large and lustrously soft, her complexion rich and clear and her expression bright and amiable. Still more remarkable than her perfection of head is her faultlessness of figure, combining stateliness and grace in both carriage and pose. Whenever she appears among the dancers in a hotel parlor or the loungers on a veranda there is nothing else to be looked at. She is young, not being yet out of her girlhood, and hardly conscious of the admiration she excites.

Edward Everett's Oratory.

Edward Everett was perhaps the most finished platform speaker ever heard in the United States. He bestowed the greatest pains upon his speeches, and tried to make them so complete that not a word or a gesture should be suggested by the inspiration of delivery. His orations were planned with so much forethought that no afterthought was allowed to change even the curve of an attitude or the uplifting of an eyebrow. No actor ever had more confidence in his art than had this consummate rhetorician in his oratorical tactics.

It was well known that he had certain tricks of delivery. But so carefully were they rehearsed that only the initiated hearer could detect them in the public performance. "The art conceals the art!" was said again and again by the cultured persons who listened to him.

In his oration on Washington there is a passage of thrilling power in which he apostrophizes the patriots of the Revolution. Once, when he was to deliver the oration, there was an old soldier of the Revolution among those who had been invited to meet the orator in the vestry and accompany him to the platform.

When the old soldier was introduced to Mr. Everett, that gentleman took him aside and requested him to rise and stand before the audience when he should hear certain words that he would address to him personally. The orator began his oration, and soon held his audience in rapt attention. When he reached the point in which the old soldier was to take a part, he turned toward him with the exclamation, "Rise, venerable man!"

The old man rose from his chair.

"Sit down, sir! sit down! It is us who should stand in your presence!"

Rounds of applause greeted the act, and even those who knew the orator's tactics thought that, for once, he had been betrayed into an improvisation.

"What a strange man that Mr. Everett is!" said the old man to his neighbor, as he took his seat. "He asked me to rise, and now he tells me to sit down. I don't understand it."

One of his favorite devices was to provide himself with the physical object to which he intended to refer, and at the proper moment exhibit it to the audience.

In his oration on Webster, he spoke of him as "some mighty admiral, dark and terrible; his broad pennant streaming at the main, the stars and stripes at the fore, the mizzen and the peak."

As he spoke these words, he caught up from the table the flag of the Union and waved it to and fro. Shouts of applause greeted the apparently unconscious but studied gesture.

In the days when the public were excited about the laying of the first ocean telegraph, he described in an eloquent speech the electric wire which was destined to lie on the ocean's bed and connect two continents. In the midst of the description, he took quickly from his pocket a piece of the Atlantic cable, and held it up before the wondering eyes of the audience.

He spoke of it as murmuring through leagues of ocean the thought of America, and as being a greater wonder than the printed page which murmured to us through the centuries the thought of Homer. As he uttered this, he held up a small copy of the "Iliad" and the "Odyssey."

It was a pleasure to listen to this brilliant master of the rhetorician's art. But pleased as was the taste, the heart remained unmoved. Every one admired the orator; few went away mastered by his ideas. The secret of this destitution of power was that the rhetoric and not the idea, had mastered the orator.

A Young Lady's Death That Recalls Mrs. Longfellow's Death.

From the New York Sun.

Since the death of the young and lovely wife of the poet Longfellow, which occurred more than twenty years ago at her beautiful home in Cambridge, scarcely anything more tragical has taken place among well-known people than the accident by which Miss Laura Delano lost her life. When the worst has happened suggestions are as unavailing as regrets and yet calamities of this kind are all the more harrowing by reason of their appearing to the survivors to be so unnecessary and easily avoided. In the case of Mrs. Longfellow, the sleeve of her muslin dress was ignited by a taper which she was using in making sealing wax impressions to amuse her children. Terror, confusion and dismay followed. The horse had been put in summer order, after the fashion of American housekeepers in those days; not a carpet, rug or blanket was to be had and although her husband was on the spot and nearly lost his own life in heroic efforts to extinguish the flames the unfortunate lady perished on her own lawn and in sight of all that she held most dear. Almost the same tragedy was enacted in the case of Miss Delano [illegible]

Polk County Journal.

H. E. COOKE, Publisher.

CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

There is great complaint of the smuggling of Chinese of both sexes across from British Columbia to American soil. American citizens on the Pacific coast are justly incensed because the laws are so scandalously evaded. They are a unit in demanding that the chinese shall go and not return.

If the railroad rates of transportation were the same as in 1865, the price of wheat in Chicoga based on the parity of New York quotations would be about fifty cents per bushel. In that period the rate has declined about 65 per cent. The average charges on lake and canal from Chicago to New York in August were 5.96 cents for wheat and 4.77 cents for corn, which are about 30 per cent. of the rates charged in 1872.

Harper's Bazaar has an article descriptive of winter in Manitoba which gives one a chill to read, as it depicts scenes not unlike records of life in the arctic zone, and makes one feel like encouraging expeditions for the relief of the denizens of that inhospitable country. There must be considerable exaggeration in the article. Were it literal truth Manitoba would soon become depopulated, by the flight of its inhabitants to Minnesota and Dakota.

American travelers often speak of the good order maintained in the leading European capitals, and it is well to look for the cause. London with a population of 3,814,571, requires the restraint of 12,642 police and 4,874 troops. Paris contains 1,988,748 inhabitants, and is kept under by 14,000 soldiers and 12,500 policemen. Berlin has a population of 1,118,000, 25,000 troops and a police force 3,400. Vienna is the residence of 1,020,707 people, 30,000 troops and 2,629 police. St. Petersburg has 970,000 inhabitants, 22,000 soldiers and 2,800 policemen. The police alone of these cities, constitute a pretty large army, and supplemented by regularly disciplined troops, manage to keep the people quiet but do not repress crime.

Among the papers of general economic interest read at a late meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, was one by Mr. John Biddulph Martin, of London, on "The Future of the United States," in which he devoted special attention to an inquiry as to the means by which the enormous population of the future, which the rapid occupation of our soil foreshadows, is to be fed. The speaker contended that Great Britain would long supply a market for cheap American food products; that, as the result of railway building, we would have a large accretion of bona fide railway securities; that the ultimate abolition of the national debt would create a fall in the rate of interest, which would be seriously felt by those depending on fixed incomes, and would result in lower wages and prices generally; that the continuance of the large national income from customs duties on imports would necessitate their abolition; and finally, that with the increase of population and diffusion of wealth, individual fortunes will be less easily made and less opportunity given for gigantic operations in produce of stocks.

Any evidence of Southern prosperity is gratifying to the North, as to the whole country. The rapid development of manufacturing industries in that section has been considered matter for congratulation. But proper intelligence is the only true foundation of permanent prosperity, as a general principle. For this reason it is a pleasure to learn from the New Orleans Times, that the South to-day is spending for education twice as much as it spent twenty-five years ago, and four times as much as in 1870, when the rate of taxation was three times as great as now. The aggregate amount appropriated for public school purposes in twelve Southern States is about $10,000,000 and the number of pupils is nearly 3,000,000. The Southern people deserve the highest credit for their activity in this direction.

There could not be a better burlesque of power than is furnished by the excursion of the czar of Russia to Warsaw. This potentate assumes to be the most powerful human being. He rules with almost absolute sway over a national domain that is the largest in extent of territory in the world, and sustains an enormous population. Moreover, he is assumedly invested with sacred and almost divine functions as the anointed of God. This autocrat and demi-god, it seems, is going on a picnic to Warsaw, where he has asked two other emperors to meet him and be his guests. Now, what festivities mark his journey? Cossacks are stationed on either side of the railroad track along the entire line of the route. The provisions for the royal guests and the domestics are all to be brought from St. Petersburg, so that there shall be no poison in the wine or dynamite in the beef. During the royal visit all shops and public houses are to be closed at nine o'clock, which in the latitude of Warsaw at this time of the year is practically the hour of dusk, and there is to be one policeman for every five houses in the city. The comic opera could not furnish a richer parody than

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

Washington News.

Lieut. Col. Orlando H. Moore, Seventeeth infantry, having been found by an army retiring board incapacitated for active service, on account of disability incident to the service, is, by direction of the president, retired from active service.

For the last three months it has been repeatedly stated that Commissioner Dudley, of the pension bureau, would resign to enter some other business, but he still sticks. There is a new report of this kind, from the very best of authorities, that Dudley will resign his office, and enter into the banking business.

Postoffices established:—Dakota—Cromwell, Burleigh county; Hill city, Pennington county. Minnesota—New Grove, Lincoln county. Wisconsin—Rube, Manitowoc county. Postoffice names changed—Dakota—Kibby, Cass county, to Binghampton. Postmasters commissioned Johanna C. Schroeder, Moltke, Minn.; Edward N. Davis, Donaldson, late Davis, Minn. New offices—John J. Strate, Gertrude, Pembina county, Dak.; Alice A. Teagarden, Nelson, Guthrie county, Iowa.

Washington Special: The president has probably enjoyed nothing more, in a small way, during his term of office than the snubbing he has embraced the opportunity to give Assistant Secretary French by lifting Second Assistant Coon over his head and designating him to take care of the treasury department until Judge Folger's successor is appointed. Mr. Arthur has never been able to more than endure French, and would have been happy at any time to have dismissed him on a fair excuse. It was French who did John Sherman's bidding at the time Sherman was a candidate for president, and a certain man as collector of the important port of New York stood so threateningly in the way. French, upon going to New York to investigate Arthur, was not content to execute his commission—which was unscrupulous enough—but went out of his way in his zeal for Sherman and in the hope of removal to belittle the collector and bring his office into as much odium as possible. There is no sympathy for French here.

Rail and River Notes.

The contract for the building of the Northern Pacific bridge across St. Louis bay, between Duluth and Superior, was let yesterday by Gen. Andrew Anderson, chief engineer of the road. The truss work was given to Salspaugh & Co., of Minneapolis, the pile bridging to the Detroit Iron Bridge Building company, and the timber building to Winston Bros. of Minneapolis. All the contractors agree to have their work finished by the last of next January. The bridge will be nearly one mile in length. The draw bridge will be 240 feet, the truss span 160 feet, and the pile bridging 4,200 feet.

Casualties of the Week.

Sixteen frame buildings in the business part of Berlin, Wis., were burned Thursday night. Loss $20,000; insurance $1,000.

The steamer Dakotah was sunk in the Mississippi river, near Providence, Mo., recently, on her trip up that stream. The freight was valued at $24,000; insured for $15,000.

While a Bellaire, Ohio, policeman was firing wildly after a fleeing desperado, Willie Welsh, aged seventeen, dodged out of an alley and fatally stopped one of the bullets.

Michael Kennedy, section foreman for the Oregon Railway and Navigation company, was run over by an express train near Dalles, Or., yesterday. His body was cut in twain. He was an old railroad man, recently from the East.

The forest fires of Michigan which threatened to do so much damage, have been checked by a change in the wind and are no longer feared. An East Tawas special says, however, that the fires again started yesterday, with a northwest gale blowing and increasing. The telegraph poles are burned between Standish and Au Gres.

David Cover, a prominent citizen of Stillwater, was drowned last Sunday afternoon by slipping between floating logs into the mill pond. Cover was born in Adamsburg, Westmoreland county, Pa., May 22, 1826. He settled in Stillwater about twenty-one years ago, and engaged in lumber business most of the time since, and acquired considerable property. He was a prominent citizen, and vice president of the Washington County Agricultural society. He leaves a wife and four children.

Crimes and Criminals.

Intense excitement has been caused at Uniontown, Pa., by the discovery of an atrocious attempt to take the lives of the members of the Nutt family, whose head Capt. Nutt, was murdered by Dukes. The well from which the supply of water was drawn was poisoned by some unknown miscreant. Two of the young ladies are already dead other members of the family are expected to die.

Lehon Fry proposed marriage to Mrs. Penrose Garmon, a widow, living near Homer Center, Ohio. Being rejected, Fry drew a revolver and shot Mrs. Garmon in the head, inflicting a severe but not fatal wound. Supposing he had killed her, Fry procured a shotgun, put the muzzle to his mouth and blew his head off.

Personal News Notes.

Dr. David S. Hart of Stonington, the oldest school teacher in Connecticut, was born in 1799, began teaching in 1816, graduated at Yale in 1823 and does not use spectacles.

Carlos Ramen, employed in a hotel at Springfield, Mass., who lost a fortune by the Chicago fire, is about to receive several million dollars by the death of an uncle in spain. He speaks six languages, and was once an instructor in a Pennsylvania college.

General News Items.

Last Friday night at 12 o'clock the 5644th year of the Jewish nation came into existence.

The Baltimore & Ohio Telegraph company will at once spend $1,000,000 on a line to the Northwest and another to the South Atlantic cities.

At the meeting of the Army of the Cumberland at Buffalo, officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: President, Lieut. Gen. Phil Sheridan; corresponding secretary, Col. Henry M. Cist; treasurer, Gen. James Fullerton; recording secretary, Col. John W. Steele.

In Indianapolis, Frederick Rand, was named receiver of the Indiana Banking company to succeed John C. S. Harrison. The prosecuting attorney asked permission to file a nolle prosequi to the indictment charging Harrison with embezzlement. It is understood the request will be granted.

The great organ of the New Orleans exposition now building will have between 3,000 and 4,000 pipes, ranging from the grand double open diapason, which will be thirty-two feet in length, to the smallest pipe in the organ, which will be but five-eighths of an inch in length. The organ will be fifty feet wide by forty in height.

President Bates, of the Baltimore & Ohio Telegraph company, has been authorized to obtain estimates for extensions and improvements involving an expenditure of not to exceed $2,000,000. Plans and estimates are now being considered for extensions of the Baltimore & Ohio system to St. Paul, Minn., Kansas City, Richmond, Va., Norfolk, Va., Charleston, S. C., and Savannah, Atlanta and Augusta, Ga.

The failure of Harsfeld, Friend & Co., manufacturers and wholesale dealers in cloaks, in Chicago was announced Friday, and caused considerable excitement in business circles. It is understood that their heaviest creditors are in Boston and New York City. Their total liabilities will probably be $200,000, and the assets, including book accounts, may realize $150,000.

At the town of Cheney, Wash. Ter., the banking house of F. J. S. Danford & Co. closed its doors recently. Danford and wife, both [illegible] absconded from the country, taking all available assets, including deposits. The fugitives have both gone to Victoria, B. C., and can safely [illegible] there, [illegible] to arrest them there. D. [illegible], cashier of the bank, has been arrested. The loss to depositors will probably reach $20,000.

The harvest is practically completed in Manitoba, and the result is shown to be an average yield of twenty-five bushels of wheat to the acre, against an average of twenty-three bushels last year, giving to the farmers an export of from five to seven million of bushels. Barley will average about forty bushels to the acre, and oats somewhat less. Crops have sustained no damage from frost, and damage from any cause has been slight, and the grain will be gathered in good shape.

At Helena, Montana, six gentlemen set sail in a twenty-foot boat called "The Rose," with the intention of descending the Mississippi and Missouri rivers. The party includes John C. Major, ex-street commissioner; Harry Parrent, clerk; Arthur Pervin, correspondent of the Chicago Inter Ocean; Henry Lehman, baker; J. H. Lowry, clerk, and Friend Miner, painter. This will be the first trip by any kind of a craft from the source of the Missouri to to the mouth of the Mississippi, a distance of about 4,000 miles.

Reports have reached here that farmers in Virginia and Maryland, living along the Potomac river and Chesapeake and Ohio canal, whose hogs died from cholera, which is raging in that section, have been throwing dead hogs into the river and canal. As the Potomac river is the sole source of water supply of this city, Dr. Townsend, of the health board, went up the river for that purpose. He returned tonight, and says he found there had been but little exaggeration in the reports; that carcases of hogs in various stages of decomposition floated in the river and canal or were lodged among rocks along the banks, and that canal boatmen from further up the river reported the stench from putrefying carcasses in the upper river and canal, terrible.

Foreign Flashes.

The Russian corvette at Vladivostok seized the American schooner Eliza, for having contraband goods on board, and the English schooner Helena, for illegal hunting.

Russian newspapers speak of the appointment of Earl Dufferin as viceroy of India as an augury of the continuance of entente cordiale between England and Russia, and as a guarantee of the satisfactory delimitation of the Afghan frontier.

Two thousand French troops landed Wednesday at Kinpai Pass, on the river below Foo Choo, and attacked the Chinese. The latter were defeated at a heavy loss, and are in full retreat. Vessels belonging to Admiral Courbet's squadron have been cruising about the Chusan islands which lie just off the coast, some distance to the southeast of here. It is thought that Admiral Courbet may make these islands his headquarters during his operations in the Yang Tse river. The islands are of great strategical importance, but malaria exists there of a deadly character.

A portion of the Paris press are making violent attacks upon the American press for their comments on the bombardment of Foo Chow. Le Paris in an article entitled "Our good friends, the Yankees," says: "All that hateful malice can dictate to scribblers in delirium, has found its way into their columns. It is a pity that Frenchmen are unable to read the diatribes and understand the folly and fanaticism of their American friends. France never had from England, her traditional enemy, or Germany, her enemy of yesterday, more undeserved or odious outrages than those with which Americans, whom she has always treated with affection, have covered her.

The Losses on the Chippewa.

Eugene Shaw, general manager of the Daniel Shaw Lumber company of Eau Claire, Wis., has written a letter to Mr. Henry Reed of Dubuque in regard to the flood, in which he says:

We have come out on top of twenty-seven feet of water, five feet more than June, 1880. We haven't lost a log on the river, and our Dells dam is as solid as rock. The loss on the river will reach $1,000,000, about $500,000 to the railroads, $100,000 to the cities of Eau Claire and Chippewa Falls, $150,000 to all lumber interests on the river and $250,000 to individuals. Our company didn't lose a slab, and I estimate our loss in time and by wetting at $2,500. Think it will delay us one week. The greatest loss was sustained by poor people, including farmers, but none of them will suffer for food or clothing. The lumbermen are fortunate for once. Our booms were 100 per cent. stronger than in 1880, and we know how to get ready for big water. Twelve bridges across the Chippewa are gone, half of which belonged to the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway. Very few of the mills will start again this fall, as many of them had already stopped.

Condition of Crops in Foreign Countries

The report of the United States commissioner of agriculture for September has just been issued. It gives a very interesting report on the condition of the crops in Europe, India and other foreign countries. In Europe, as compared with last year, the barley and oat acreage have fallen off 5.8 and 2.8 per cent respectively. The slight gain of 2¼ per cent in wheat has no significance beyond the fine condition of the land in the last sowing season. In 1883 there was a loss of nearly 400,000 acres on a basis of 3,000,000 in wheat, and the rebound this year of 63,000 acres is but temporary. The tendency to put cultivated into pasture lands will be greater than ever this coming year. The highest estimate for wheat is 33 bushels, and the lowest 30, the more careful estimates keeping within 31. The total production is 80,516,817 bushels, the highest being 106,000,000. The commissioner says with regard to the crop in Great Britain and Ireland that the results of the harvest have created widespread satisfaction. The report of the harvests in Austria, Hungary, Russia and France are very favorable. It is estimated in France that 40,000,000 bushels can be imported. A dispatch to London from Calcutta expresses the opinion that India will be able to export 50,000,000 bushels of wheat to foreign countries this year. The commissioner observes that the increase of exports from India from a few hundred thousand bushels per annum ten to twenty years ago, to 37,148,543 bushels in 1881-82, and 39,127,977 bushels of sixty pounds for 1883-84, has excited the attention of the wheat-growing countries. Conditions have not been favorable in former years for large India exports, mainly from lack of transportation facilities. The careless cleaning of the grain and the mixing of the various kinds, with the resulting deterioration in quality, has also tended to keep the price too low for active supply for exportation. It is now proposed to increase India's railway facilities, and the home government is asked to assist in the extension.

The Chicago Markets.

Wheat, Chicago spring, 74@74¼c; No. 3 Chicago spring, 58c; No. 2 red, 78c; No. 3 red, 63c.
Corn, cash, 54¼@55c.
Oats, cash, 25c.
Rye, 53½c.
Barley, 65c.
Pork, cash, $16.75.
Lard, cash, $7.20@$7.55.

Milwaukee Markets.

Wheat, No. 2, 73⅝c.
Corn, No. 2, 55c.
Oats, No. 2 white, 28⅛c.
Rye, No. 1, 53c; No. 2, 51c.
Barley, No. 2, 60½c; extra No. 3, 46c.
Mess Pork, $16 cash.
Lard—Prime steam, $7.20.
Butter, choice creamery, 21@23c; fair to good, 17@20c; best dairy, 16@19c.

Minneapolis Markets.

Wheat, No. 1 hard, 79½c; No. 2 hard, 74c; No. 1, 68c.
Corn, No. 2, 53c; rejected, 48@50c; condemned, 35@40c.
Oats, No. 2 old, white, 25@26c; No. 3, new, 25½c; rejected, 22@24c; condemned, 22@23c.
Barley, No. 2, 58@60c.
Mixed Feed, No. 1, $17.50@$18; No. 2, $16.50@17.
Corn Meal, unbolted, $17@$18; bolted, $21@$23.
Hay, timothy, $9@9.50; wild, choice, $8@8.50; No. 2 wild, $5.50@6.75.

St. Paul Markets.

Wheat—No. 1 hard, new, 79c; No. 2 hard, 75c; No. 2, 63c.
Corn, No. 2, 50c; No. 3, 48c.
Oats, No. 2 mixed, 24c; No. 2 white, 25c; No. 3 extra, 24c.
Rye, No. 2, 45c.
Barley, No. 2, 50c; No. 3, 40c.
Ground Feed, $18.50.
Baled Hay, $8; timothy hay, $10.00@$10.50.
Flax Seed, $1.15.
Timothy seed, $1.20.
Potatoes, 35c.
Eggs, 14c.
Butter, dairy fair, 12½c; choice, [illegible] creamery, 15c.

MINNESOTA NEWS NOTES.

CONCERNING THE INSANE:

The Report to Be Presented to the Governor Regarding the State Institutions for the Insane.

St. Peter, Special, Sept. 17.—The report of the officials of the hospitals for the insane will be sent to the governor in a few days. The report is for the twenty months preceding the 31st day of July, 1884, and includes estimates of expenditures for the next two years. The report shows that there are 806 patients on the roll at St. Peter and 387 at Rochester, making a total of 1,193 at the two places. This is an increase of 330 in the twenty months, or an average increase of 16½ per month. The report says:

The above figures at first sight seem startling, and lead one to ask, "Are we all going crazy?" But when we carefully consider the rapidly increasing population of our growing state, ever bearing in mind that we cannot increase the population without increasing criminals and insane proportionately, then the figures are not so startling as they seem.

The trustees have long been desirous of disposing of the temporary buildings in St. Peter, but owing to the rapid increase of insane they have not had sufficient room to dispense with the temporary buildings. The trustees in their report will ask the legislature to pass a bill allowing them to sell these buildings as soon thereafter as they can secure sufficient room without them. The report asks for expenses for the next two years, as follows:

ST. PETER.

Current expenses, considering the average number of patients for 1885 and 1886 at 775 at $3.40 per week	$136,020
1886 and 1887, average number 850 patients at $3.40 per week	150,280
For building a detached building in 1885	50,000
For building detached building in 1886	25,000
Building barn and root cellar	3,500
For completing fire-proof center building and laundry	3,000
Annual repairs	3,000

The board in their report will renew their request for an appropriation for sufficient amount of funds to enable them to insure all the hospital buildings at both cities. If the legislatures refuse to appropriate money for this purpose and there should be loss by fire, the responsibility will rest with the legislature not with the trustees.

ROCHESTER.

Appropriations asked in the report for Rochester are as follows:

For 1885 and 1886 the number of patients, estimated at 550, at $3.40 each per week	$97,240
1886 and 1887, 600 patients per week, at $3.40	106,080
Reconstructing center building	72,000
Stock barn	2,500
Annual repairs	2,000
Purchase of pasture land	1,200
Building detached building, 1886	50,000
Pump for fire protection	500

For the twenty months ending July 31, 1884, Mr. Dryer, hospital steward of the First hospital, disbursed for the hospitals here alone $300,851.77. This amount was for current expenses, building and furnishing, for which vouchers are on record at the steward's office; also at the office of the state auditor.

Minnesota Educators' Exhibit.

The committee appointed to prepare for the state educational exhibit at the New Orleans exhibition has issued a circular to the principals of school in Minnesota, giving instructions how to co-operate in making the Minnesota exhibit. In order that a large amount of the material for exhibition may not be unnecessarily duplicated, the committee suggest that no attempt be made by each school to make full exhibits, or prepare work under all classes suggested, but to prepare such work as it can do best. Thus the committee will at its command a collection of the best and distinctive work of all the schools of the state.

First—Educational Literature—(1) State documents: Reports, laws, etc. (2) Reports and catalogues: Courses of study of colleges, normal schools, graded schools, institutions for deaf, blind, insane and reform. (3) Productions of authors: Educational journal, text books, histories, professional works, monographs, etc.

Second—School Buildings—Plans and photographs of grounds, buildings, rooms, furniture.

Third—Apparatus or Appliances for Instruction—(1) Kindergarten supplies; (2) primary and intermediate instruction, as charts, maps, etc.; (3) secondary or high school instruction; (4) superior or collegiate.

Fourth—School work—(1) Kindergarten gifts and occupations. (2) Primary and intermediate work: Writing and drawing on slate and paper; exercises in numbers, languages, composition and reproduction; drawing and sketching of maps, geographical and historical, and examination papers in all subjects. (3) Collegiate work: Scientific, mechanical and clssical.

Teachers are asked to examine the schedule given and make reply, if possible, by the 19th inst., to the following: As to how many of these departments they will make contribution, and about how much floor and wall space they will require. The amount for the entire educational exhibit will be 30x50 feet, with wall space belonging.

It is also desirable to know what amount of charges for packing and cartage to the depot will teachers ask to have defrayed by the state. The committee on plan of exhibit will meet the 19th to consider reports made, and to make such further directions as will conduce to the unity and effect of the exhibit.

While out riding with his wife and baby, Frank Knox of Granite Falls accidentally shot himself in the shoulder, from the effects of which he died.

A G. A. R. post was organized in Faribault on Monday evening, by Department Commander E. C. Babb. The charter membership is seventy-three. The post is named Michael Cook Post No. 123, in honor of Maj. Michael Cook, of the Tenth Minnesota volunteers, who died of wounds received at the battle of Nashville. A meeting of the post will be held on Monday evening next.

At St. Paul, Mrs. Sadie T. Morse filed her complaint in the district court to procure a divorce from her husband, S. F. B. Morse, on the ground of drunkenness, cruelty and desertion. She alleges that they were married in Brooklyn, N. Y., on the 21th day of June, 1882. She is thirty and he thirty-two years of age. Her former name was Sadie Ten Eyck Prince. She has resided in St. Paul one year. She charges that he was in the habit of getting drunk, and while in that condition striking her with his fist, oftentimes bruising her severely.

A fight, in which knives were used, occurred at a rink opening at Motley; the proprietor of the rink being assailed by roughs whom he had rebuked for disorderly conduct. Several participants were considerably injured. The guilty parties were arrested.

Young stock are reported dying of a mysterious disease in Dodge county.

The tenacity with which the farmers are holding on to their wheat in the hope of better prices has already had some effect on the millers' association, and prices in the country have been raised two cents all around. Whether this will induce the farmers to ship more liberally remains to be seen.

Hon. John B. Brisbin of St. Paul, at a Murphy meeting in the Opera House last Sunday, signed the temperance pledge, donned the blue ribbon, and made an eloquent address.

At a harvest home festival in the Universalist church at Minneapolis last Friday, Rev. Dr. Tuttle, denounced agricultural fairs, as at present conducted, and also the option business.

S. S. Baken was arrested at Grand Meadow, for selling liquor contrary to the ordinances of the village. Six separate indictments were preferred against him.

Frank Crowley was killed in a Minneapolis saw mill.

Nicolai O. Julsrud, a prominent farmer of Norwegian Grove, near Barnesville, Minn., whose young horses became unmanageable while he was mowing, was thrown in front of the sickle and cut so severely that his life is despaired of.

The Liquor Dealers' association of St. Paul and Minneapolis, through a committee for that purpose, have sent out circular letters to saloonkeepers, druggists and all others having influence and supposed to be friendly to the liquor interest, imploring them to do all in their power to secure the nomination and election to the legislature of men opposed to the submitting of a constitutional amendment prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors in the state, to a popular vote.

On Saturday afternoon the wood belonging to the railroad company at New York Mills on the N. P. R. R., took fire and about five hundred cords were burned. About four hundred cords were sawed ready for use. No other property was burned, with the exception of three or four freight cars. The wood was all heavily insured.

The sovereign grand lodge of Odd Fellows was formally welcomed at Minneapolis Monday by Hon. Eugene Wilson, as representative of Gov. Hubbard on the part of the state, and by Mayor Billsbury for the city. The first session was devoted to the presentation of reports and the afternoon to viewing the city and points of interest in the vicinity. Tuesday the lodge paid a visit to St. Paul, where they were suitably entertained.

Duluth's wheat receipts last week were 910,533 bushels, the largest in the history of the place.

An inquest on the death of E. A. Craig at Fairmont resulted in a verdict of death by his own hand.

The Burns rape case engaged attention of the district court at Brainerd, Judge Stearns presiding, Monday. It promises to unfold some very sensational features. The defendant, in the face of an alleged strong case against him, summoned a large number of female witnesses, for what purpose did not yet appear.

Hamline university will open for the fall and winter terms on the 23d inst. Prof. Mearkle, teacher of mathematics, has been added to the faculty.

The marriage of Henry H. Barber, cashier of the First National bank, at Brainerd, to Miss Jennie M., daughter of Hon. L. P. White, Sr., agent of the Puget Sound Land company, an old and very worthy resident was quite a social sensation.

Gen. Washburn has donated a site for the Washburn orphanage at Minneapolis.

At Minneapolis Adolph Schiller prays for a divorce on the ground of too much step-son.

Otto Loveland and Ole Straun of Minneapolis were drowned at Minnetonka.

The Murray county fair will be held at Slayton Sept. 24 and 25.

The Jackson county fair has been postponed to Sept. 29 and 30.

About three months ago Charles Spires of Birch Dale, Todd county, disappeared suddenly, and has not been heard of since.

St. Paul again owes a surprisingly low tax levy to the thrift, vigilance and business capacity of Comptroller Roche. His scheme for the levy of 1884 was presented to the council and promptly accepted. The new assessment of $61,000,000 of course made some reduction in the rate of levy inevitable, but it is not without some skill and effort that it has been cut down to the singularly low figure of sixteen mills for all purposes. The city levy is 11.7 mills, the county and state demanding the rest. There are few cities of the size of St. Paul, and in its progressive condition, which can show so low a rate of taxation.

The Minneapolis Tribune finally admits that it is sold to A. J. Blethen, the business manager and co-owner of the Kansas City Journal, and William E. Haskell, son of E. B. Haskell, editor of the Boston Herald.

The Burns rape case was began in the district court at Brainerd and the testimony for the state presented showed that Jack Burns, a sporting character and a saloonkeeper, took a girl named Emma Mays, aged twenty out riding, and having given her considerable drink, took her from the wagon and forcibly outraged her. The physical proofs of violence were presented by a surgeon and the girl's mother. A sensational disclosure was that when Burns was served with the warrant of arrest he got the officer to take him to see the girl to ascertain if some settlement could not be made, and the girl opened fire on him with a revolver, but missing Burns, wounded the officer.

The Mazoppa mills schedule has been filed, and shows assets of $251,212.84, to pay liabilities of $133,100.

As James Scanlan, a farmer of the town of Sheridan, Redwood county, was returning home from Redwood Falls he was thrown head foremost from his wagon, owing to the front wheels of his vehicle getting into a slough-hole in the road. He was so badly injured that death resulted.

Rev. J. W. Horner tendered his resignation of the pastorate of the Congregational church in Lake City, to take effect at the expiration of three months, giving as his reason therefor that he thought it would be for the interest of the church and society.

Last year Goodhue county had an acreage of 140,835 in wheat, with a yield of 1,824,693; average per acre of 12.95. This year she has an acreage of 139,898, but with an average yield of eighteen bushels to the acre, which is considered a low estimate, the yield will be 2,518,164 bushels. She still maintains her reputation as the banner wheat county of the state.

A portion of the dwelling house of August Long, near Cokato, was blown down by Monday's storm.

The Third ward of Fergus Falls has voted $10,000 for a school house.

The McLeod county fair will be held at Hutchinson Sept. 24, 25, and 26.

Hon. J. D. Allen's fine residence in Le Roy was badly scorched by fire. Damage over $1,000.

The following is the list of delegates appointed by Gov. Hubbard to represent Minnesota at the eleventh annual conference of charities and corrections, which meets at St. Louis Oct. 13, 1884: Dr. C. K. Bartlett, St. Peter; Hon. J. F. Norrish, Hastings; Prof. J. F. Noyes, Faribault; Hon. J. D. Ludden, J. G. Richeldaffer, Mrs. Horace Thompson, Rev. H. H. Hart, Rev. M. McG. Dana and Dr. C. H. Boardman, St. Paul; Dr. C. Hewitt, Red Wing; E. S. Jones, D. C. Bell and Nelson Williams, Minneapolis; Hon. C. H. Berry, Winona; Hon. Reuben Reynolds, Crookston; Hon. William W. Campbell, Litchfield; Hon. H. B. Wells, Preston; George H. Knight, Faribault; Hon. A. H. Young, Minneapolis; Hon. D. W. Ingersoll, St. Paul.

J. L. Bliar, a marble cutter of Owatonna, who had been doing efficient service during fair week as a special police, was assaulted last Thursday night by some roughs of Barrett's circus, who interfered with him while attempting to arrest some employes of the circus who were insulting a girl after the evening entertainment was over. One rough struck Blair across the head with a club. After being removed to his house the physicians discovered that his skull was crushed, and he died at 8 o'clock Friday morning. Sheriff Murray and three witnesses went to Rochester and arrested the assailant who was taken to Owatonna, and jailed.

Kelly, the murderer of J. L. Blair, the Owatonna policeman, is visited daily by numbers of people. Some say he has murder written in his face; others say the negro blood shows in his eyes, whilst others admire his manly form and looks. His weight was 205 pounds, but the worry of the past few days is fast reducing him.

Quite a panic occured among the little ones of the model department of the normal school at Mankato. A large square of plaster loosened and fell, striking quite a number, but luckily injuring none. The piece was about ten feet square and had it not broken in smaller pieces before reaching the floor, serious damage might have ensued.

A Maine club has been formed at Minneapolis with the following officers: President, W. D. Washburn; vice presidents, H. G. O. Morrison and J. H. Martin; secretary, C. C. Garland; treasurer, E. C. Cobb.

Mr. Edmund I. Bangs of Massachusetts and Miss Minnie Carpenter, daughter of S. B. Carpenter, Esq., of Lake Emily, Nicollet county were married Monday evening at the residence of the bride's parents at the lake by Rev. Tenny, of the Presbyterian church. The newly married couple left on the night train for Massachusetts, where they will reside in the future.

James Rutherford, an old settler of Washington county, died Monday night, of apoplexy. Mr. Rutherford was a native of New York, and seventy-two years of age. He settled in Washington county about the year 1850, taking a homestead about four miles out of Stillwater, where he has since resided. He was a well-to-do farmer, and had acquired considerable property.

THE WILD WESTERN GIRL:

Chicago Sun.

She touches my cheek, and I quiver—
I tremble with exquisite pains;
She sighs—like an overcharged river
My blood rushes on through my veins.
She smiles—and in mad tiger fashion,
As a she-tiger fondles her own,
I clasp her with fierceness and passion,
And kiss her with shudder and groan.
—Ella Wheeler.

She smiled when I mentioned the oysters,
And grinned at the sight of a stew,
Very much as a frolicsome boy stirs
When he dons his first jacket of blue.
I gazed with enchantment and wonder
On her beautiful Omaha hair,
And squandered my money like thunder
On this wild witching maiden so fair.

But when she was filled to repletion,
With stews and hot coffee and fries,
And the supper had reached a completion,
In front of her Ben-Butler's eyes;
Behold, she arose from the table,
And accepted the arm of another,
And ere to pursue I was able,
She had gone with her strapping big brother.

THE LION'S CLAW.

Julien de Rhe, lieutenant in the navy, had come back in a sad condition from his expedition to Cochin China; and when, after three long months of illness in his Touraine home, he grew strong enough to walk a few yards on the terrace of the banks of the Loire, with his mother and sister on each side of him—how lovingly they had nursed him, the good souls!—those shivering fits still came over him sometimes if the autumn winds were colder than usual.

"You should go to Pau for the winter," said the doctor; "the climate is mild and not too hot—just the thing for you—calming and soothing; and you will come back to your mother, in three months' time, a man again."

And so it was that, toward the middle of November, Julien de Rhe, leaning from his sunlit window in the Hotel Gardères, looked out on the sublime panorama of the Pyrenees, puffing the whilst at those cigarettes which seem so delicious to a convalescent, and fell to thinking of those he had smoked formerly in secret between decks on the Borda. They brought back all the sensations of his sixteenth year.

"Why, the place is full of pretty women," said the young fellow the first time he went out to listen to the band in the Place Royale, and to stroll in the sun in front of the statue of good King Henry; and though he was neither a libertine nor a fop, the sailor, beginning to enjoy life again, dressed himself in his best cap, and his frock coat with the three new gold bands, and the rosette of the Legion of Honor, that his mother had brought to him when he lay in bed so ill that he never hoped to wear it but once—on the black cloth of his coffin.

It had been a good idea, all the same, to come to Pau. How beautiful it was—the sun that warmed without burning, the blue heavens, the wild landscape, with its far-off boundary of hills, and beyond its snow peaks rising into the sky! And how amusing it was to stroll about in that cosmopolitan crowd, among the fair foreigners, and listen to their voices talking every language in Europe, and mingling together like the different songs of the birds in an aviary. It is true that there were some disagreeable sights as well—such as the young Englishman, for instance, in the last stage of consumption, who was wheeled about in a little carriage by his servant, wrapped in shawl and comforters; the Englishman who had eyes like a boiled cod-fish, and wore a black respirator over his mouth. Ah! it was enough to make one shiver. And then after the first movement of pity—men are such egotists—Julien remembered what he looked like himself when he landed at Toulon, as thin as a skeleton, with circles around his eyes like two rings of chocolate; and he thought that, now he was cured, he had had a narrow escape.

And Julien de Rhe felt that it was a good thing to be alive, to breathe the soft, warm air out there in the sunshine, well dressed, freshly shaved, and proud of the rosette at his buttonhole. And he gave money to the beggars, gazed after the pretty women who passed him, and at last stopped, feeling quite softened at the sight, to watch the pretty little American girls, in black stockings and gloves and floating white dresses, who were dancing in a ring around one of the trees of the Place Royale, to the tune of the double-quick march which the band was playing.

He was just ready to fall in love, this happy convalescent, and it was a case of love at first sight the day he saw Mademoiselle Olga Barbarine, the most beautiful girl of all the Russian colony, jump from her horse in front of the Hotel Gassion, where she lived with her mother.

It was five o'clock in the evening, and she had just returned from the hunt. The five or six admirers, in pink, who had accompanied her had jumped off their horses together, to help her down. She took the first hand that came, and as soon as she was off her horse, she knocked on one of the tables in the veranda with the handle of her riding-whip, and calling for a cup of milk, which she drank at a draught, stood there a moment, laughing, looking like some goddess of old with her slender form distinctly outlined as if molded in her black riding-habit, and the waves of her shining auburn hair loosened from her man's hat and falling on her shoulders. She held her empty cup in both hands, satisfied, and, as it were, intoxicated by the fresh beverage, and behind her the setting sun lit up her golden hair till it encircled her face like a halo.

Then, suddenly growing grave again, she put down the cup on the table, gave a slight, disdainful bow to the group in pink, and walked, with a queenly step, into the hotel, tapping her boot with her riding-whip.

Three days later Julien de Rhe, who had spent his time asking his friends, "Who is she? I am madly in love with her; I adore her," etc., was introduced—not a very difficult matter—to the Barbarines, and made one of the squadron of admirers of the beautiful Russian.

Was she really a Russian, this intoxicating creature, who had been galloping about all day and waltzing all night, ever since the beginning of the season? Yes, by her reputed father, her mother's first husband, the Count Barbarine. But every one knew the mother had been divorced just at the very time of her daughter's birth, and that Madame Barbarine, whose father was a New York banker named Jacobson, had long kept up a liaison that was almost public, with a northern prince—some Christian or Oscar. Had she any nationality, this child who had been brought up, by turns, in a Scotch nursery, in a convent at Naples, in a school at Geneva; who had slept half her nights on the cushions of express trains, and in whose memory, as in a stereoscope, there was nothing but a succession of watering-places, sea-side towns, winter cities, and other places of fashionable resort, to which, for the last fifteen years, her mother—still a handsome woman, in spite of the eruption on her face—had carried her blase person, her ennui, her samovar, and her pet monkeys? Alas! she had no country, this strange girl, who, with all the modesty of a maiden, had the audacity of a boy, and who said, laughing at herself, "As for me, I am neither from London, nor from Paris, nor from Vienna, nor from St Petersburg. I am from the table d'hote."

Had she any relations? None, it seemed. Her true father—the Oscar, or Christian, to whom Madame Barbarine so often alluded had been dead several years, and her father according to the law—the Russian count—had never taken any notice of her. He was completely ruined, and had no other means of existance but his gun. He was a dead-shot, and earned his living by winning prizes at the pigeon matches, like a sort of civilized Leatherstocking. As for the countess, though she had periodic attacks of motherly sentimentalism that set ones teeth on edge they rang so false, she was blessed with the most perfect, absolute, and utter selfishness. When Olga, who was then eight years old, had had typhoid fever, and nearly died of it, Madame Barbarine, while she was nursing her little girl for appearance's sake, never once forgot to put on her greased gloves at night to keep her hands white.

Julien de Rhe learned all those things when he enrolled himself in the flying squadron that was always manœuvring round about Mademoiselle Olga Barbarine. Yet he fell in love with her desperately, this strange and touching girl, who looked him so straight in the face, and who, the day the lieutenant was introduced to her by a mutual friend, said to him, as she lit her phereall cigarette:

"Ah! you are the man who is so much in love with me? How do you do?"

And she shook his hand like a man.

He fell in love with her, the good honest sailor, and to love her all the more that, before long, he come to understand and pity her. For he was not mistaken; Olga was strange, and badly brought up; but she had no coquetry, and her soul was proud and true. Who knows? Perhaps she felt the vanity of her life of pleasure and agitation. What is certain is that she judged, and judged severely, all those young fellows who danced attendance upon her in the hunting field, and wrote their names on her programme every evening. They were all in love with her, but none of them really respected her, for there was not one among them who had as yet made up his mind to ask her to marry him. And she treated them pretty roughly, and called them to order—with a good stroke of her riding-whip, like the handsome horsewoman she was—when they ventured to whisper too close in her ear in the whirl of a waltz, or to squeeze the hand she held out to them in good-fellowship. Julien, whose refinement of heart stood him instead of quickness of perception—it is often the simple-minded who see the most clearly—had discovered the hidden treasures of loyalty in the soul of this patrician, who was in reality so unhappy. He loved her for her beauty certainly, and his senses reeled when he felt her lean upon his arm in the pauses of the dance—this grand, fair woman, with her dark eyes, and her skin that seemed so like the rose after a storm, when, in her nonchalant way, she talked to him, intoxicating him with the violet fragrance of her breath and the glitter of her starry eyes. But he loved her as well, he loved her above all for the pain she hid so proudly; and his heart burned as he watched the sad, sorrowful glance that Olga bent on her mother when Madame Barbarine, at her four-to-six tea—sitting with her back to the light to hide the black spots on her nose, against which even the anti-bolbos was powerless—hinted almost openly at her royal conquests in the northern courts.

He would marry her! Yes, he would take her away from these perilous surroundings. He would take her to his own mother, who was a good woman. She should breathe the purifying and strengthening atmosphere of a home that was worthy of the name. In a word, he would save her!

He often thought of it; he thought of nothing else now. He even fancied sometimes that Olga guessed his intention, and at Madame Barbarine's four-to-six, where Olga treated all her admirers in that frank boyish way of hers, when she handed the sailor his tea in a glass, after the Prussian fashion, he thought he saw in the depths of the young girl's eyes a sweet far-away light that seemed to respond to his generous pity and infinite tenderness.

* * * * * *

"Yes, Mademoiselle, my sick leave is up in a week. I shall leave Pau to-morrow. I shall spend a few days in Touraine with my sister, and from there I shall go back to Brest as aid-de-camp to the naval prefect. In a year or eighteen months I shall go to sea again."

They were alone in the reading-room of the hotel, standing near an open window, with thousands of stars twinkling and glimmering above them in the dark heavens.

"Good-bye, then, and a pleasant journey," answered Olga with her fresh, firm voice. "I want to ask you for something, Monsieur de Rhe. Yes, that lion's claw mounted on a little gold ring that you wear at your watch-chain. I have a fancy for it. It came from a lion that you once killed out hunting in Africa, didn't it? I am a sort of wild animal myself. That trinket pleases me. Give it to me; I will keep it in remembrance of you.

Julien unfastened the little charm and put it into the girls hand; then suddenly he caught her hand in both his own and whispered passionately:

"I love you! Will you be my wife?"

Olga loosened her hand gently, still holding the lion's claw; then, crossing her arms upon her breast, she looked Julien full in the face for a moment with no sign of emotion on her own.

"No," she said, at last, "no! And yet you are the first man who has loved me and told me so in that straightforward way. It is for that reason that I refuse."

"Olga!" cried Julien in a changed voice.

"Listen to me," she went on, interrupting him by a gesture, "and understand thoroughly why I answer no. I feel that I am not worthy of you, and I should not make you happy. You remember that letter of your sister's that you complained of having lost. Well, you dropped it here, and I picked it up and read it. Your sister answered the confessions you had made of your feelings toward me—feelings that I had guessed long ago. She rejoiced at them, like the simple, innocent child she is, but in terms that have shown me what a wide, what a terrible difference there is between me and the real maiden. When I read that letter I saw what your family was like. Yours is an old and honorable house—is it not?—into which you should bring none but an honorable wife. You should thank God, Monsieur de Rhe, that you have a gray-haired mother of whom you can never think without feeling a proud tenderness melting your heart. I have a mother, too, but I have been forced to judge her. You have only seen the ridiculous side, monsieur, but I know her better. If you were to ask her for my hand, she would refuse you, because you are of minor nobility, and your fortune is moderate. My mother has made up her mind I am to make a grand marriage; or, if not—if not, she will find me something else. Hein? You see I am pretty experienced for a girl of nineteen! It is horrible—is it not? But so it is. And that is why we were at Nice last winter, at Skeveningue last summer, and why we are now at Pau. That is why we knock about from one end of Europe to another like so much baggage; why we never sleep but in hotel beds, and only eat at the table d'hote. My mother was almost a royal princess, you know, and ever since I was fifteen she has given me to understand that I am destined to be an archduchess, if only a left-handed one. Marry a gentleman hardly more than a mere bourgeois! Why, in her eyes, I should be lowering myself. Ah, you must be disgusted with me; and I am ashamed of myself! No, don't deny it. No, you could never take me to your mother—I whose heart has been so defiled—as your wife. Besides, I am only an expensive and useless luxury that you have no need of, and that could never make you happy. And, for that matter, I don't love you—I don't love any one. Love is among the things that have been forbidden me. Farewell, Monsieur de Rhe. Go away, and say no more, for God's sake. Only—you leave me your lion's claw, won't you? It will remind me of a true-hearted man, to whom I have acted like a true-hearted woman. No; say no more. We must part forever. Farewell."

* * * * * *

Three years after the steam transport, Du Couedie, returning from Senegal, touched at the Canaries to take in letters. After she had started on her journey through the rough night again, the boatswain came into the officers' cabin and laid a packet of newspapers on the table.

Julien de Rhe opened a news sheet about three weeks old, from Paris, and read under the heading "Movements and Whereabouts," the following lines:

"His Majesty the King of Swabia, who is traveling incognito, under the name of the Count of Augsberg, arrived here yesterday evening.

"An annoying accident happened at the station on his majesty's arrival. The Baroness de Hall, who, only accompanied by her mother, the Countess Barbarine, was traveling with his majesty, lost a jewel—of slight value, though she apparently set great store on it. It is a simple lion's claw mounted on a small circlet of gold. Madame de Hall has offered a reward of two hundred francs for the recovery of this jewel."

"Look out, Julien, you are forgetting the hour of your watch, my dear fellow."

"Thank you," said Julien de Rhe, throwing down the paper, and walking as from a dream.

That night the man at the wheel, who was alone on the poop with the officer of the watch, saw him put his handkerchief to his face several times. There was a good deal of wind and sleet, yet, where he stood, it could not have reached him.—Translated for the Argonaut from the French by Mademoiselle Bouchier.

Eloquent.

There are those who are blind to the eloquence of a gesture or to the pathos of a look. They see the armless sleeve, but unless the poor soldier appeals to them with words, they do not feel the charity that beareth another's burden. Such resemble the gentleman who required, before he would be pitiful, that the expressive pantomine of the Irish beggar should be enforced by pathetic speech:

A gentleman passed a man who was a painful spectacle of pallor, squalor and wretchedness. The man said nothing, and the gentleman, turning back, accosted him thus: "If you are in want, why don't you beg?"

"Sure, it's begging I am, yer Honor."

"You didn't say a word."

"Of coorse not, yer Honor, but see how the skin is spakin' through the holes of me trousers, and the bones cryin' out through me skin! Look at me sunken cheeks, and the famine that's starin' in me eyes. Man alive! isn't it begging I am with a hundred tongues?"

IS THERE RELIEF IN LEGISLATION?

Those who are opposed to the farmers sending a representative to the Legislature, who will look well to the farmers' interests, will answer that question in the negative. The agents of the monopolies will say – no, there is no such thing as obtaining redress for your wrongs there, the Legislature has no power to manage business matters, and yet have not those very monopolies, through their agents in times past spent thousands of dollars in a Legislative canvass in the attempt to secure the sending of men who are friendly to their interests? Why are the Millers of Minneapolis so anxious to send the right men there, and so particular whom they send, if there is no power in legislation? Who has not heard of cases where the managers of railroad companies have spent thousands of dollars to manipulate and control Legislatures? If there is no power for good or evil in Legislatures, why waste money in the attempt to control them? The fact is (and none know it better than monopolists) that there is a power in the Legislature, a power for good to this country if properly exercised, and our farmer friends do not seem to half appreciate the fact in its application to the present question. If we send the right man into the Legislature next winter we will only be doing just what every district in the State is trying to do, and that man will find lots of friends there in the very start—men who are drawn together in sympathy upon one point in common. Men who have been sent there from the North and from the South, from the East and from the West, from all over the State, who are sent there for the purpose of framing such laws as shall afford relief from an excessive, grinding monopoly which has become so burdensome to the farming community that farmers in the State of Minnesota are little better than slaves. Who has given the Millers of Minneapolis the right to say to the farmer "You MUST sell your wheat for such a price and no other!" "You MUST sell your good No. Hard wheat for No. 1 Regular!" "You MUST put your wheat through our elevators and pay us an exhorbitant toll for that blessed (?) privilege!" "You MUST bring your wheat to us and accept just what we are a mind to dole out to you, and that small amount gives you barely the cost of producing and gives us the profits!" "You MUST wear out your fertile lands in our service because we have acquired the power to compel you to do so and you have not sand enough to send a man into the Legislature to break that power, and we intend to keep it until we are forced to yield it up!" Is not that the size of it, farmers? Are you not in the majority in the State, and can you not, if you will, send men into the Legislature who will and can break that power? Who can do it better than one of your own number—one who has suffered and is suffering from the same corroding evil, who has such large interests at stake that he could not afford to accept any amount of money any monopoly could afford to offer him to perpetuate their power, but whose very interests compel him to work for and with us? Yes, there is a power in legislation, and well those monopolists know it, but they trust that farmers will all be so blind to their best interests to use it. They hope that farmers will allow these matters to run in the same old grooves—will allow pot-house politicians to hoodwink them into the idea that things are not so bad off after all, and will send in a poor, inefficient stick whom, if the millers cannot absolutely control, will yet be too trifling to amount to anything. And shall we do it? Or shall we rise in the might of truth and justice and demand our rights by sending in a man capable of obtaining them at the point of the bayonet if needs be? This District, with its mighty interests, with its vote that justly entitles her to at least one representative in each and every county, must needs be content with only one, and we must—if we have got him—send the man who weighs as much mentally, morally and physically as the whole number to which we are justly entitled would if we had them. We trust that the Republican voters of this District are so fully aroused to the importance of the question that they will make no mistake in the matter of sending a representative to work for our interests. There is relief for this country to be found in legislation if we send the right man, and there is none if we don't. There are men in the District, whose efforts to obtain an open market in the past is an earnest of what they would do in the future, and there is not one among the true-hearted workers who would not willingly stand aside if a better man is brought forward. Let us make no mistake if we desire to obtain relief in legislation.

Why not send a farmer to the Legislature? We have men among them capable of filling the bill and the interests of farmers demands some one who understands their needs to attend to them. Farmers have it in their power to send whom they choose, and why not choose some one among their own number who has large interests himself at stake and who for that reason if for no other will be able to see that justice is done? Let us make no mistake [illegible]

HOW THEY DO IT.

Give the Democrats a chance, and if they fail to retrench and reform during a four years' rule, then it will be time to fight them. Stand by the ticket, and if we are successful and fail in the needed retrenchment and reform, then we will be with you if you feel like trying to defeat the party that betrays its trust.—[New York Sun.

Correct, these are sensible views expressed by an independent journal.—[Perham Bulletin.

In our issue of Sept. 11th we published an article from the New York Sun, which article was called out by a correspondent to the Sun, who wrote the first of the above two items and one week after the article appeared in the JOURNAL the Perham Bulletin takes the correspondent's item as though it was the utterance of the Sun, endorses it, swallows it whole and then goes on to expatiate upon it. What the Sun did say about the article was this:

"These are our correspondent's views of the present duties of the campaign, but they are not the views of The Sun. Trying to put the Democratic party into power under a leader totally incompetent or constitutionally unwilling to administer the trust that would be imposed on him as it ought to be administered, is an experiment of which we do not approve and which we do not propose to engage in. Our correspondent suggests that The Sun should support Mr. Cleveland now, and if he fails to accomplish the reforms that are so pressing, and to purify and rehabiliate the national administration according to the programme indicated by Samuel J. Tilden, then will be the time to turn around and fight the Democrats four years after their President has exhibited his incapacity beyond contradiction. But we can assure our correspondent that in the event which he foreshadows, the Democratic party would be beyond the possibility of fighting. It would go out of office as it came in, disgraced and mortified, and the Republicans whom the upholders of personal morality in candidates are now so anxious to overpower and to destroy, would regain their control of the Government and become more strongly intrenched and immovable than ever. It is a deplorable yet almost inevitable prospect, and we cannot contemplate it with the same adventurous spirit or daring cheerfulness that inspires our correspondent. We prefer to address the Democratic party now, and to point out its dangers beforehand rather than to precipitate such a catastrophe and involve it in difficulties from which escape would be difficult and perhaps impossible. To give a warning now is better than joining in an ineffectual lamentation afterward."

The Perham Bulletin must indeed be hard up for words of comfort with which comfort the faithful when it can boldly publish such a palpable fraud as that. It must think its Democratic readers a pack of fools to swallow such stuff, or else it thinks they don't read much, for any of them, reading the Sun article will detect the wilfull, brazen-faced lie at once and despise the liar.

AN OPEN LETTER.

KENNEDY, Minn., Sept. 22d, 1884.

HON. H. STEENERSON, Crookston,

DEAR SIR:—Yours of yesterday stating that my opponents are circulating broadcast over this district the reports that I have special favors of the R. R. Co., is regard to freights, is at hand and contents noted, and in compliance with your request for information on that point will state briefly: That 98 per cent. of all the freights I pay is on grain and lumber. Of wheat, I have shipped nearly 400 cars since I came here four years ago, and all but a few car loads of seed wheat were shipped to St. Paul, Minneapolis, Anoka or Duluth, and in no way, shape or manner have I had one cent less rates than the regular schedule or tariff of the Co.; no deviation whatever. I will give any man $5,000 that can prove to the contrary. Any farmer with a 40 acre farm can ship his wheat as cheaply as I can, 12 cents per bushel I would consider very high and I think that 10 cents per bushel would be about a reasonable rate to Minneapolis or Duluth.

I have shipped to this place since I came here, about 250 car loads of lumber, most of which I have put into farm buildings and a fifty thousand bushel elevator for my own convenience, and out of that number of cars, I had half rates on five cars for the elevator (same as allowed any man who may build one) and two cars of bridge timber that I used in bridges built at my own expense and thrown open to the public. Those seven cars were all that did not cost me full schedule, or tariff rates existing at time of shipment. The foregoing are the plain facts and I am willing to make an affidavit to every word of it.

I claim to have more at stake than any other farmer in the district, and I claim that my interest is identical with every other farmer in this valley, and I will stand by their interests through thick and thin, in case I shall have the honor of representing them in the next legislature. I cannot be bought, and will not be bulldozed.

Yours truly, H. W. DONALDSON.

Hard Versus Soft Wheat.

Lake Park Local.

The farmers in this vicinity cannot realize too quickly the importance, or we might almost say the necessity of raising hard wheat instead of soft. The advice to raise hard wheat has been so often given by so many different persons and papers and elevator men and millers that it almost seems futile to call attention to it, but the sooner the farmers change from raising soft wheat to hard, the better for themselves and the better for Becker County. The principal reason given for continuing to raise soft wheat is the cost of hard seed wheat. [illegible] be carefully considered, but after careful study we think all will acknowledge that the change would be a paying investment for every farmer. Suppose [illegible] bushel, the farmer would gain at the very least 90 cents per acre every year by raising hard instead of soft wheat, while the seed not at the very highest cost more than 75 cents an acre the first year and after that the farmer could save his own seed wheat. Now farmers, if you can buy hard seed wheat and the first year with a crop of only 15 bushels to the acre, gain more than enough to pay for the seed, and afterwards, without a cent of extra expense, gain 90 cents or $1.00 a year on each acre is it not for your own interest to raise hard wheat instead of soft? Now there is another point in favor of hard wheat. It is well known that soft wheat is much more liable to smut than hard is; so by raising hard wheat the farmer greatly decreases his chance of being "docked" three or four cents a bushel for smutty wheat. It costs no more to raise hard wheat than soft; the yield per acre is perhaps one or two bushels per acre less for hard wheat than for the soft, but this is more than made up by a difference in price of from 5 to 10 cents a bushel in favor of the hard wheat.

Thus saith the Lake Park (Becker Co.) Local man and it goes to show that he is decidedly mixed on the question and has never raised any wheat. Assuming that the difference is six cents and assuming that there is only a difference of two bushels per acre he jumps to the conclusion that it is more profitable to raise hard than soft wheat. His assertion, that if a man puts in one bushel of soft wheat at fifty cents and fifty cents with it to buy one bushel of No. 1 Hard at $1 per bushel the bushel of wheat only costs the man fifty cents, corresponds so well with the balance of his arguments in favor of soft wheat raising as to cast a shadow of doubt upon the whole in the minds of thinking farmers. On that theory the man's bushel of soft wheat is worth nothing at all. That only costs him his time and labor to produce and so of necessity can't be counted. That is a way that a great many are in the habit of looking at the matter but it is totally wrong in every essential particular. It is true, as the Local says, that the millers and elevator men have often urged and advised farmers to raise nothing but hard wheat and why? Do they offer any adequate inducements to the farmer to raise hard wheat? No doubt they do earnestly desire farmers to raise hard wheat because it is that very hard wheat that gives the millers the reputation of making a better quality of flour from spring wheat than can be made of winter wheat thus making the hard wheat worth very much more to the miller than the soft wheat is while the price is so near that the difference is scarcely perceptible. If you will take a chemical analysis of the two you will find out what makes our No. 1 Hard Scotch Fife wheat really worth for flouring purposes at least 25 cents per bushel more than the soft and you will find out why the millers are so anxious to get it and why they are so prolific in advice to the farmers to raise none but hard wheat. They DO want it but they DON'T want to pay what it is worth more than soft wheat. Now soft wheat will yield from six to ten bushels more per acre than hard wheat take one year with another and in some cases it will yield double. Call it only ten and you have a difference per acre of $4.75 per acre in favor of soft wheat on the farmers' side of the account. Now, if the millers would pay what hard wheat is actually worth more than soft, it would be to the advantage of the farmer to raise only hard wheat, clearly, but as long as they will not we think every farmer in the Valley ought to raise nothing but soft wheat until the millers would be obliged to come to time in order to encourage the raising of hard wheat, but this idea that the farmers ought to raise hard wheat merely because it is the best for the miller and because he advises it is too absurd to be entertained for a moment. It is true that the cry of "smut" is raised oftenest where soft wheat is raised but that don't prove that it exists in soft more than in hard wheat. It only shows that the miller will use any excuse to cry down the price of wheat and we know that while "smut" is about the only cry raised against raising soft wheat that there have been hundreds of bugbears brought against hard wheat to reduce the price if it. The Local should try to encourage its readers to raise as little wheat of any any kind as possible and go more into stock because it does not matter what kind of wheat a farmer raises the miller will find some excuse to cry it down and bear the price down to the lowest notch possible. We should say raise nothing but stock and soft wheat until the millers are ready to do us justice.

Duluth Tribune: There is one element in the canvass for legislative candidates that is not only uncertain, but also a decidedly interesting study. It is the fight the Farmers' Alliance are making to control the next legislature. The cry has gone forth, "Death to the monopolists and wheat ring." Farmers' grievances, though in many cases wholly imaginative, are the stock in trade, and are serving to bind the country people together. What their strength is, or how nearly they will come to controlling the incoming legislature, is hard to say. Doubtless, however, they will poll a great many votes, votes which, in many cases, will decide several district contests. What they are able to do is shown in Otter Tail, where they captured the Republican convention and nominated as they saw best. The vote they will cast will be a large factor, and it makes quite uncertain the outcome of the state contest. Of course, on national affairs it will cut no figure at all. There is something about the movement like the old granger movement and it may result in an upheaval that is entirely unlooked for. At any rate, politicians do well to study it carefully.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,

Crookston Minn., Sept. 20th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 11th, 1884, viz: SIDNEY BOTTINEAU, Hd. No. 9868, for the [illegible] and lots 1 and 2, [illegible] T. 149 R. 40. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: [illegible] Louis Berthiaume, A. Berthiaume [illegible] John [illegible] Charles [illegible] Polk Co., Minn. [illegible] JOHN CROMB, Register.

The Old Brick Block

IS THE PLACE

To Buy Dry Goods, Groceries, Clothing, Boots and Shoe Hats and Caps, or anything you want.

Fontaine & Anglim

IS THE FIRM

Who are ready, with a corps of affable clerks to show you their NEW FALL and WINTER STOCK and quote prices to astonish the natives.

Great Bargains

Don't forget to visit Fontaine & Anglim's Emporium, in the Old Brick Block,

MAIN STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN.

THE

J. I. CASE

THRESHING MACHINE COMPANY

The Dennet or Beloit

HARVESTING MACHINE COMPANY

And the Van Brunt & Davis

SEEDER COMPANY,

Are Represented

BY

STEENERSON BROS.,

CROOKSTON, MINN.

MONEY TO GIVE AWAY

IN BARGAINS AT

MARKHAM'S

THE LEADING GROCERY HOUSE

AND THE LARGEST BOOT AND SHOE STORE

IN CROOKSTON.

Goods Delivered to any Part of the City

FREE OF CHARGE.

FARMERS, FARMERS,

WE ARE

Selling Lower Than Ever!

You will always find it to your advantage to

Trade with Us!

We Sell the Best for the LOWEST LIVING PRICES. Remember the place,

Broadway, bet. 2d and Robert Sts.

D. BUCHANAN.

THE NEW ERA MANUFACTURING CO.,

Exclusive manufacturers of the

NEW ERA

Wagon Road Grader!

AND DITCHING MACHINE.

Manufactory 625 to 631 south Halsted street, Chicago, Illinois.

Having established our headquarters for the Red River Valley at CROOKSTON, MINN., all inquiries addressed to us will receive our personal attention. All machines fully warranted and free trial given upon application. Address all Red River Valley correspondence to the NEW ERA MANUFACTURING CO., Box 851, Crookston, Minn.

McKINNON BROS.,

Carriage Works

Robert Street,

Crookston, - Minn.

AGENTS FOR THE

J. I. CASE THRESHING MACHINES!

And Manufacturers of

Carriages, Wagons,

BUGGIES,

Cutters, Sleds, &c.

Axles, Springs, and all Repairs kept in stock,

DEALERS IN

FARM MACHINERY.

In Farm Machinery we have the Champion Seeder, Fargo Diamond Tooth Harrow, Kalamazoo Spring Tooth Harrow, Davenport and Grand Detour Sulky and Walking Plows, Buford Gang Plows, Field Rollers of all sizes, Warrior Mowers, the leading Hay Rake and first-class Harvesters and Binders, the Webber Wagon and McKinnon Bros. Wagon. In fact we have everything in machinery, from

A Wheelbarrow to a Threshing Machine!

EXTRAS

For all Machines constautly on hand

E. M. Walsh,

DEALER IN

Hardware, Tinware

BAR IRON, STEEL,

BLACKSMITHS SUPPLIES,

BUILDING PAPER,

&c., &c. Also Agent.

For the Celebrated Monitor Plows.

CROOKSTON, MINN.

A Big Bonanza!

JOSEPH BARRETT

Has decided to Put on the Market his

ADDITION

TO THE

City of Crookston,

Next adjoining the Crookston Driving Park. Parties desiring to purchase

CHOICE LOST

NOW IS YOUR TIME!

LOTS.

For Sale Separately, or in BLOCKS.

TERMS EASY!

Apply to the undersigned or at the office of C. B. Palmer, U. S. Land Office Building. Both English and French spoken.

JOSEPH BARRETT.

Polk County Journal.

Crookston, Minn., Thursday, September 25

RAILROAD TIME TABLE.

GOING NORTH.

	ARRIVE.	LEAVE.
No. 1 Passenger	10:45 p. m.	10:55 p. m.
" 9 Passenger	10:20 a. m.
" 19 Freight	12:30 a. m.
" 15 Freight	4:00 p. m.
" 23 Freight		10:30 a. m.

GOING SOUTH.

	ARRIVE.	LEAVE.
No. 2 Passenger	4:00 a. m.	4:00 a. m.
" 10 Passenger		5:00 p. m.
" 20 Freight		7:00 a. m.
" 22 Freight		6:15 p. m.
" 24 Freight	5:00 p. m.

DEVIL'S LAKE LINE.

	ARRIVE.	LEAVE.
No. 9 Passenger		10:20 a. m.
" 10 Passenger	5:30 p. m.
" 45 Freight		6:00 a. m.
" 46 Freight	7:00 p. m.

ST. HILAIRE BRANCH.

Trains leave Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays at 10:45 a. m., and arrive same days at 4:00 p. m.

☞ Passenger Trains No's 1 and 2, Main Line, run daily except Sunday. No's 3 and 4 run daily. Devil's Lake Passenger runs daily. Freights No's 23, 20 and 24 run daily. Freights No's 15 and 22, and Freights on Devil's Lake Line run daily except Sunday.

'ROUND HOME.

County politics seem badly mixed.

To-morrow is the big day. How's your pulse.

Archie Shannon is off on a collecting throughout the county.

Cold day for Bs, last Saturday. They don't swarm remarkably well after nine o'clock, p. m.

Mr. N. P. Stone, who has been having another severe time with his eyes, was out riding on Monday.

Ed George and P. A. Dufour left for Warren on Monday to attend the Marshall County term of court.

A. J. Clark, of the Marshall County Leader, paid us a visit on Saturday last. A. J. says Crookston is by all odds the boss town of the Northwest.

A large lot of logs for Walker's mill arrived and sawing was resumed at the mill on Monday morning. We are told that Mr. Walker intends to run day and night.

Wm. Box was down from his farm on the north side on Saturday. Mr. Box is making preparations to go into stock next year. He will put 200 cows on his farm.

C. Papin has a fine grade Jersey and Durham bull, one of the finest animals in the State. All who desire the use of good animals should not fail to call at Papin's and see this animal. [22-24]

H. G. Palmer and his son Ray went down to Minneapolis on Saturday. Mr. P. informed us that the Farmers' Elevator Company have about completed arrangements for money to buy wheat with, and will be ready soon to commence buying. At present these elevators only take in wheat to store or ship for other parties.

Mike LeGuee has started up his threshing machine on the side of the river and is pounding out the No. 1 Hard on Wm. Ross' place. Mike is a No. 1 Hard boy and knows how threshing should be done as is evidenced by the fact that the solid men of the county always want Mike to do their threshing. He is doing a thriving business and well deserves it.

Mr. F. T. Brown informs us that he is making arrangements to start a creamery near Maple Lake next year. His example should be so numerously followed that no farmer in Polk County would be very far from a creamery, then the wheat question would soon settle itself. We are glad to see this enterprise on its feet and we wish Mr. Brown abundant success.

Red Lake Falls Gazette: Walker's drive of 5,000,000 feet of logs, under Shasgreen, foreman, arrived Monday. Mr. Shasgreen informs us that part of the logs will be sent ahead from here and will reach Crookston in about a week, the balance which will accumulate along the shores and in jambs will be taken along by another crew. There are now fifty men engaged on the drive. Mr. Walker has about 5,000,000 feet of logs in Clearwater Lake which will remain there till next spring. Mr. Walker will cut about 25,000,000 feet at his Clearwater logging works this winter.

Bro. Wallace, of the Kittson County Enterprise, invites the readers of his lively paper to send in crop reports, and says: "All are invited to inform us how their crops turn out for publication." Now, Bro. Wallace, we want to just give you a pointer. If your experience is like ours you will observe a tendency in all crops to turn out better FOR PUBLICATION, than for any other earthly reason at all, but don't you publish one big yield—not just now. Wait until the sharks who make prices on these reports have filled their rapacious maw, then trot out your big reports. They will all keep well and will make excellent reading for the coming long winter evenings. If we could show that two-thirds of our wheat crop in the Northwest had all gone to a teetotal smash, it wouldn't hurt anything in the least—would be all the better, if the opposite were true in [illegible]

At Sealy's

[illegible] extra fine crab apple [illegible] bourbon whisky, eight [illegible] Maryland Club pure rye [illegible] extra dry champagne [illegible] imported Scotch ales and [illegible] Call and [illegible] [22-tf]

Be Not in a Hurry.

Grand Forks Herald.

Although it is apparent that the Millers' tyranny at Minneapolis can find a variety of excuses for fixing the price of No. 1 hard so low, it may be as well for the farmers to pay very little attention to their apologies and hold on to their wheat. "Hold fast to that which you have," remembering that "God helps him who helps himself," and that you may commit the folly of overreaching the dollars to grab the paltry pence of the saintly pharisees, if you let go. It is at least two months yet before the winter will set in. Vegetables are plenty; there is no danger of starvation. The merchants will be easy, for it is their interest to be so. The money lenders have no desire to imperil the future, and if any of them attempted to crowd the honest, frugal people to the wall, simply because it was in their power, they would be deemed little better than enemies of mankind. Do not rush now. Gather and garner your crops. If threshed, put them under lock and guard. Give the elevators a good long rest. Every bushel stored in the elevators is a contribution to the present unfair and one-sided system. The elevator men will tell you this is campaign clap-trap, and probably you will be fool enough to believe them. But we'll tell you all the same, and if you go in and get burnt we will have the satisfaction of telling you that it served you exactly right.

THE ENGLISH WHEAT CROP.

Farmers' Tribune.

The sensitive manner in which prices tend to protect themselves by affecting crop acreage is well illustrated by the statistics of the new wheat crop in England. In 1882 3,003,960 acres of English soil were in wheat. The area the next year was smaller on account of protracted bad weather which had interfered with sowing. Last fall—English wheat of course being all winter grain—was an unusually favorable one for sowing, and it was supposed the acreage would exceed that of two years previous. This expectation was by no means realized, this year's crop covering only 2,676,477 acres. The explanation lies in the fact that before seeding time last fall the price of wheat in England had declined to 40 shillings per quarter (about $1.25 per bushel) and farmers felt they could not meet the competition of imported wheat. They are now approaching the sowing season with prices lower than they have been for a hundred years, and with the advice of experts that they are not to expect a marked rise very soon. What will be the effect of wheat at nearer 30 than 40 shillings per quarter on the acreage of next year's crop? The Mark Lane Express as reviewed by Bradstreet's is authority for the opinion that not more than 2,000,000 acres will be seeded by British farmers this fall. That is to say, the English wheat crop will within three years decline fully one-third as the effect of low prices. On the other hand it should be remembered that the world's consumption of wheat not only does not decline, but steadily increases every year. If less wheat is grown in old countries and on high-priced lands, more must be grown on low-priced lands. The average yield this summer in England is remarkably good—a trifle over 30 bushels to the acre as against 28.4 for last year and 27 for the year before—and the crop therefore amounts to upward of 80,000,000 bushels, 72,000,000 of which the Mark Lane Express estimates will be available for consumption, deduction having been made for seed wheat, etc. By way of comparison, the present crop of spring wheat in Minnesota and Dakota is estimated at 64,000,000, and the Tribune here offers the prediction that next summer will show a yield of wheat in these two states greater than that of all England. The annual consumption of England being set down at about 200,000,000, it will be necessary to import 128,000,000 to eke out the available 72,000,000 of the home supply. This is the figure set by the authority above quoted.

Independent Candidates.

All notices under this head will be $5 each, cash invariably with the order. We shall make no deviation from this rule in favor of any one, so please do not ask it. [22-tf]

A BARGAIN.

A choice business location on Broadway 100x140 feet, for sale at a bargain. For particulars address the JOURNAL.

$100,000

To Loan on improved claims in sums of $250 to $2,000. Cash paid for school bonds. Call on or address,

JOHN McLEAN, Att'y at Law,

[47-tf] Crookston, Minn.

Send Money by American Express Money Orders. Receipts given, Money refunded if Orders are lost. Sold at all offices of the Company. Payable at 6,500 places. RATES: To $5, 5c. $10, 8c. $20, 10c. $30, 12. $40, 15. $50, 20c. [22-tf]

NOTICE.

Any man investing in property at Red Lake Falls, or vicinity, who loses by the investment, I will pay five dollars where he loses five cents.

[8-23] ALFRED GERVAIS.

Notice to Farmers.

C. Kretzschmar's Grist Mill at Red Lake Falls is again open for business. Flour will be exchanged for your wheat, or your wheat will be ground on shares. A good feed mill is run in connection with the mill, and satisfaction in all [illegible]

[16-tf] C. KRETZSCHMAR.

NOTICE.

As I still own my share of Crookston Nurseries, and purpose to continue the business, I will announce to our former customers and all that are desirous of obtaining trees and Plants the coming spring that I will sell said stock at prices below any competition. Call and see me before making purchase elsewhere. Residence on second block north of Court House, or address P. O. Box 754.

Most Respectfully,

[38-tf] E. W. HASELTINE.

To The Public.

We wish to state to the people of Crookston and vicinity, that we have purchased the stock of groceries owned by J. L. Bailey, on Broadway, opposite the post office. We purpose to carry on the trade at the old stand, and will keep on hand, at all times, a fresh stock of groceries, provisions, etc., and we ask a share of the patronage of the generous public.

[5-tf] BAUSCHMAN & MILETTE.

Money to Loan.

ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS to loan on improved farms from THREE to FIVE years time at very reasonable rates. Apply at my office on Broadway, in U. S. Land Office building.

[14tf] H. STEENERSON.

Just received. A car-load of Buggies selected by an experienced carriage builder all warranted. Call early and select one. McKinnon Bros.

TO PARTIES DESIRING INSURANCE!

We represent the following old and reliable Fire Insurance Companies:

	Assets.
Ætna	$9,182,644
American	1,804,519
Fire Association	4,279,676
Underwriters	3,699,794
Orient	1,411,894
Phœnix	5,919,403
Lancashire	6,787,983
Milwaukee Mech	1,129,875
Germania	2,700,725

Having represented nearly all of the above companies for 14 years we have acquainted ourselves with the business, and think that we can justly claim the patronage of the public, who can depend upon having insurance written correctly and losses adjusted promptly.

MOSER & MOECKEL.

The Red Lake Falls FLOURING MILL

Has lately been enlarged and is now prepared to do custom work without delay. Stable room free.

BUSE & COLBENTSON,

Proprietors, Red Lake Falls, Minn.

BROADWAY Meat Market.

FRANK JEROME & CO.,

Fresh and Salt Meats

OF ALL KINDS

VEGETABLES

In their season. All goods delivered if requested.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk. } ss. District Court, 11th Judicial District.

Carl Kretzschmar, Plaintiff,
vs.
The Red Lake Falls Milling and Lumber Company, a corporation, Defendant.

The State of Minnesota to the above named Defendant:

You are hereby summoned and required to answer the complaint of the Plaintiff in the above entitled action which has been filed with the clerk of the above court in his office in the Court House, in the City of Crookston, and County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, and to serve a copy of your answer to the said complaint on the subscriber at his office in the City of Crookston, in said county, within twenty days after the service of this summons upon you, exclusive of the day of such service; and if you fail to answer the said complaint within the time aforesaid, the Plaintiff in this action will take judgment against you for the sum of six thousand nine hundred and thirty-one dollars and sixty-eight cents ($6,931.68-100,) together with interest thereon from May 22d, 1884, besides the costs and disbursements of this action.

P. A. DUFOUR,

[21-27] Plaintiff's Att'y Crookston, Minn.

Christening and Wedding Cakes Made upon Short-est Notice in the Best Style.

A Choice and Well Selected Stock of Confectionery Always on hand.

John Crawford & Son,

Proprietors of

Crawford's Bakery,

SECOND STREET,

Crookston, Minn.

CONFECTIONERY.

Fresh Bread, Buns, Cakes and Biscuits. All Articles in the Fancy Baking Line.

FURNITURE STORE.

BROADWAY, CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

[illegible] BATAGLIA, Prop.

[illegible]

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First Publication September 11th, 1884.]

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of one hundred and thirty-eight and 33-100 dollars, ($138.33-100) which is claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by William Franz Jaenike and Gische Jaenike his wife, mortgagors, to Isaac Rattenburg, mortgagee, bearing date the 28th day of August A. D. 1882, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 28th day of August A. D. 1882, at 3:00 o'clock p. m., in book "I" of mortgages, on pages 128, 129, 130 and 131, and no action or proceeding having been instituted at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof,

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The Southeast quarter (se¼) of Section No. fourteen (14,) of Township No. one hundred and fifty (150) north, of Range No. forty-six (46) west, in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 25th day of October A. D. 1884, at 10 o'clock a. m., of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated Crookston, Sept. 6th A. D. 1884.

ISAAC RATTENBURG,
Mortgagee.

JOHN McLEAN,
Attorney for Mortgagee. [20-26]

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First Publication September 18th, 1884.]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the payment of the sum of two hundred and thirty-four and 23-100 dollars ($234.23-100) according to the condition of a certain mortgage duly made, executed, and delivered by John P. Larson and Catharina A. Larson, his wife, of Polk County, Minnesota, mortgagors, to Peter Stenseth, of Polk County, Minnesota, mortgagee, to secure the payment of one note of the sum of two hundred and fifteen dollars, with interest at the rate of seven per cent per annum, and bearing date the eighth day of June 1883 and payable on the eighth day of December 1883, and which mortgage was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota on the eighth day of June A. D. 1883, at 3:25 o'clock p. m. of that day in book "N" of mortgages, on page forty-six (46,) and whereas, no action or proceedings at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt or interest secured by said mortgage or any part thereof, and, whereas, there is claimed to be due, and is due, at the date of this notice the sum of two hundred and thirty-four 23-100 dollars ($234.23-100.)

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the provisions of the statute in such case made and provided, all the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, to-wit: The northwest quarter of Section one (1,) in Township one hundred and fifty-two (152) north, of Range forty-five (45) west, containing one hundred and sixty acres, more or less according to the government survey thereof, which tract or piece of land is situated in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, together with the hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging, will be sold by the Sheriff of Polk County, Minnesota, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County of Polk, on the 7th day of November A. D. 1884, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of said day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and fourteen and 45-100 dollars ($14.45-100) taxes, which has been paid by the mortgagee, and thirty dollars attorney's fees stipulated in said mortgage, besides the costs and disbursements allowed by law, subject nevertheless to redemption at any time within one year from date of sale as provided by law.

Dated September 18th 1884.

PETER STENSETH,
Mortgagee.

A. P. BOND,
Attorney for Mortgagee. [21-27]

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 15th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, on November 6th, 1884, viz: MELCHIOR SCHWEY, H'd No. 4917, for the se¼ S. 26, T. 152, R. 48. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Wm. Appel, Henry Horn, B. Carish and Michale Blyer, all of Euclid, Polk Co., Minn.

[21-26] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Sept. 15th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 6th, 1884, viz: WILLIAM APPEL, H'd No. 5883, for the sw¼ S. 26, T. 152, R. 48. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Henry G. Horn, M. Schwy, of Euclid, John Moser, Adolph Raugh, of Crookston, Minn.

[21-26] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 15th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 6th, 1884, viz: GEORGE H. HORN, Pre. D. S., No. 3932, for the se¼ S. 4, T. 152, R. 48. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: William Apple, M. Schwy, B. Tudemann and C. Stuts, all of Euclid, Polk Co., Minn.

[21-26] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 12th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 4th, 1884, viz: HENRY WITTY, Pre. D. S., No. 5712, for the s½ se¼ and n½ se¼ S. 26, T. 147, R. 43. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Even Bjorke, Isaac Holm, Frank Vogel and Iver Krohn, all of Valley, P. O., Polk Co., Minn.

[21-26] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 18th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Oct. 8th, 1884, viz: SAMUEL CROOKSHANKS, H'd No. 2074, for the sw¼ S. 4, T. 151, R. 47. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: James Westover, Walter Letta, Robt Leal and H. Toussaint, all of Crookston, Polk Co., Minn.

[21-26] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 11th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 4th, 1884, viz: GEORGE KRONSCHNABEL, H'd No. 9,591 for the se¼ S. 28, T. 149, R. 44. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Henry Utzinger, Crookston, C. Oehler, Fred Lieder and J. Guneruts, of Tilden, Polk Co., Minn.

[20-25] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 10th, 1884.

Complaint having been entered at this office by Carrie M. Peterson against William J. Young for abandoning his Homestead Entry No. 10,007, dated Dec. 13th, 1883, upon the nw¼ S. 8, T. 151, R. 46, in Polk County, Minn., with a view to the cancellation of said entry, the said parties are hereby summoned to appear at this office on the 15th day of Nov. 1884, at 2 o'clock p. m. to respond and furnish testimony concerning said alleged abandonment.

JOHN CROMB, Register.
[20-25] L. K. AAKER, Receiver.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 11th, 1884.

Complaint having been entered at this office by Andrew F. Vallom against Charles Dudley Hudson for failure to comply with law as to Timber Culture Entry No. 2,041, dated June 4th 1881, upon the s½ ne¼ and n½ se¼ S. 13, T. 149, R. 38, in Polk Co., Minn., with a view to the cancellation of said entry, contestant alleging that the said Charles Dudley Hudson has failed to plant said tract or any portion thereof to trees, tree seeds or cuttings since his entry and has failed to cultivate said land to crop or otherwise as required by law, and that there is not now any trees, tree seeds or cuttings standing or growing on said tract; the said parties are hereby summoned to appear at this office on the 8th day of November 1884, at 2 o'clock p. m. to respond and furnish testimony concerning said alleged failure.

[20-25] JOHN CROMB, Register.

N. F. CHINIQUY'S

Chicago Dry Goods House.

JUST RECEIVED

Full Lines Of

Dress Sstins, Lawns, Organdies.
Percales, Cambrics, Buntings, Piques
Marsailles, Prints, Embroideries.
Gloves, Hosiery, Handkerchiefs.
Hoop Skirts, Bustles, Corsets.
Parasols, Collars, Cuffs, Ruchings.
Lacesand Lace Goods, Gauze.
Underwear, Etc., Etc., Etc.
Cretonnes and Fringes.
Gent's Furnishing Goods.

The above goods were bought late in the season at very Low Prices and I will make it an aim to sell those goods very cheap.

No Trouble TO Show Goods

At N. F. CHINIQUY'S

Chicago Dry Goods Store.

JEROME'S ADDITION

TO THE

CITY OF CROOKSTON

IS NOW

Offered for Sale

This is the finest Residence Property in the City. High and dry, good cellars, water, and well sheltered. Enclosed on three sides by the river, and only three blocks from the heart of the city and Post Office.

HOW TO BE HEALTHY!

Drink LePage's

35c Tea and 35c pure Java Coffee

AND SMOKE MY NICKEL PILGRIM CIGAR.

HOW TO BE HEALTHY!

COME TO THE RED STAR GROCERY

And Save Money on everything you buy.

AND IF YOU ARE WISE

You will buy only Pure and Fresh Groceries. THE RED STAR GROCERY is the place to get them and there you will find Prices the Lowest. Farmers and others bring in your Butter and Eggs and get highest prices for them. Remember the RED STAR, one door south of Montreal House,

F. LEPAGE, Broadway, Crookston, Minn.

E. D. Schreader

LIVERY,

Feed and Sale Stable.

BEST TURNOUTS
IN THE CITY.

Single or Double Rigs, with or without driver or

SADDLE HORSES

Always ready at a moments notice by day or night. If you want a Nobby Turnout call at the Red Barn, Corner Main and Third Streets,

CROOKSTON, - - - MINNESOTA.

NEW DRUG STORE

IN GARFIELD

DR. A NELSON, Prop.

The citizens of this town and vicinity are respectfully invited to call at my new Drug Store in the town of Garfield and examine my stock of

DRUGS, MEDICINES, PAINTS, OILS AND YANKEE NOTIONS.

It is no longer necessary to go 40 or 55 miles for anything in this line, as I have a full supply at prices as reasonable as any town in the Northwest. Call and see

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON

I am also ready to answer all calls by day or night, for the practice of my profession. Call, or leave orders at my Drug Store in Garfield, Polk Co., Minn.

DR. A. NELSON.

First National Bank

OF CROOKSTON.

PAID IN CAPITAL, - - - $100,000
SURPLUS, - - - - 1,400

Money to loan on long or short time on approved security

Interest on time deposits. Faithful attention to Collections and prompt remittance.

GEO. O. ERSKINE, President.
K. D. CHASE, Vice President.
ANSEL BATES, Cashier.

A. YVERNAULT,

Dealer in

General Merchandise,

—MAIN STREET,—

Crookston, - - Minn.

All of my friends, both old and new, are cordially invited to call and examine my stock and get prices.

Fortier's Place,

Corner Broadway and Robert Street

EVERYTHING NEW, NEAT
—AND NOBBY.—

Billiards, Pool, and the Choicest Wines, Liquors and Cigars. The purest High Proof Whiskies at wholesale prices

PURE IMPORTED GOODS ON DROUGHT.

P. A. DUFOUR,

Attorney and Counselor at Law,

—MAIN STREET,—

CROOKSTON, MINN.

Commercial Hotel,

W. H. TOPPING, Proprietor

SECOND STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN

First-class in all respects. Terms reasonable. A share of the public patronage solicited.

A. A. JUST, M. D.,

Homoeopathic Physician and Surgeon,

Rooms corner Main street and Fletcher Avenue, over Eiken Bros. Hardware Store,

CROOKSTON, POLK COUNTY, MINN.

The Polk County Journal.

H. E. COOKE, Proprietor. DEVOTED TO THE WELFARE OF POLK COUNTY. TERMS---$1.50 Per Annum.

VOL. VIII. CROOKSTON, POLK COUNTY, MINNESOTA, OCTOBER 2, 1884. NO. 23

Polk County Journal.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY.

H. E. COOKE, Editor and Proprietor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Dollar and Fifty Cents. If paid in advance, to any address inside of Polk County. If outside of Polk County 15 cents must be added for postage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum to any address.

ADVERTISING RATES.

SPACE.	1 w.	2 w.	3 w.	1 m.	2 m	6 m.	1 year
½ inch....	50	$1 00	$1 15	$1 50	$3 00	4 50	$ 6 00
1 inch......	75	1 25	1 75	2 00	5 50	6 00	10 00
2 inches....	1 50	2 25	3 00	3 50	6 50	9 50	15 00
3 inches....	1 75	2 75	3 75	4 50	9 50	13 50	20 00
4 inches....	2 50	3 50	4 50	5 50	10 00	10 00	25 00
5 inches....	3 00	4 00	5 00	6 00	12 50	20 00	30 00
¼ column	3 50	5 50	5 50	6 50	15 00	25 00	35 00
½ column	6 00	7 50	10 00	12 00	20 00	35 00	50 00
1 column..	9 50	12 50	15 00	18 00	35 00	60 00	100 00

Entered at the Post Office in Crookston as Second Class matter.

Republican Ticket.

For President,
JAMES G. BLAINE.
of Maine.
For Vice President,
JOHN A. LOGAN.
of Illinois.
For Representative in Congress,
HON. KNUTE NELSON,
of Alexandria.

CROOKSTON!

THE COUNTY SEAT OF POLK COUNTY.

Polk County is distinguished by being the central and much the largest of the counties of the Red River Valley. Bounded on the west by the Red River and intersected by the Red Lake River, which rising in Red Lake runs nearly due west to its junction with the Red, at Grand Forks, and again intersected by the main line of the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway the great thoroughfare from St. Paul to Winnepeg, with an east and west line of railway crossing the valley on the north bank of the Red Lake River, and extending west into Dakota to Devil's Lake; this county should be, and doubtless is, the richest and every way the most inviting to home seekers and capitalists of the many counties in the Northwest that are now candidates for popular favor. The size of this county is also a distinguished feature. It has eighty townships already settled, organized in separate political communities, being more than four times the avarage size of the counties in the State. It contains a farm, for each, of one hundred and sixty acres, of the best land on this or any continent, all ready for the plow for eleven thousand five hundred and twenty farmers for there are here no deductions to be made for mountains, broken or boggy land, all is available, and of nearly uniform quality. These two streams are skirted by continuous belts of timber of about a half mile in width on each side consisting of oak, ash, elm, box elder and bass wood. Water is good and abundant. The length of the seasons between the last frost in the spring and the first in the fall avarages about four months. With these natural advantages we may reasonably expect all the lands to be put in cultivation in the near future giving us a rural population of fifty thousand with an equal number in the villages and cities. That this estimate is not extravagant will appear when it is stated that the settlement of the county dates practically from the year 1878 and it has now a population of about 20,000. Near the geographical centre of this great county, on the Red Lake River, where the main line of the St. P., M. & M. R'y crosses it and at the intersection of the two railroads of the county, and nestling in the groves along the banks of a beautiful river which doubles upon itself every half mile apparently to give every man a river front, is the

CITY OF CROOKSTON.

The valley of this stream is about one mile in width and is thirty feet above the river, and about the same below the general level of the adjacent prairie. Through this valley overgrown with forest trees, the Red Lake River in graceful folds touching now the right bank and then the left moves westward at the rate of four miles per hour to its point of conjunction with its sister the Red, in the centre of the great Red River Valley. For picturesque beauty and comfortable protection the townsite of Crookston is without a rival or a peer in the Northwest. The growth of the place dates from 1878 before which date from 1872 there were a few pioneers waiting for the building of the St. P., M. & M. R. R., through to the boundary line and for the settlement of the county, bur since 1878 its growth has been steady but not rapid, adding about 800 each year to its population. Fortunately it has escaped the epedemic BOOM so disastrous to most Northwestern towns.

WHAT CROOKSTON HAS!

She has a population of five thousand souls and every man woman and child of them absolutely free from malarial or pulmonary disease. Exuberant vitality, and robust and vigorous health is the rule and the exceptions are the new comers from below the 42d parallel who come here for that boon, most valued when lost—health. She has good educational advantages. Her central school building is a beautiful brick structure costing $25,000, two ward school buildings cost with the grounds $5,000. Ten teachers are now employed and more are needed. The total enrollment is 700, average attenpance something over 500. The schools are thoroughly graded and the high school fits students for admission to the freshman class of the State University. Seven churches representing that number of the phases of theological opinion is a sufficient variety to meet present requirements. A skating rink 44x120 feet and open day and night is presumed to minister both to pleasure and health. A fine opera house with a seating capacity of 600 is found to be a paying investment to its owner. Two well drilled bands in fine uniform enliven the streets on holidays and extra occasions. It has electric light, water works, fire companies, and of secret societies QUANTUM SUFFICIT. It has business establishments of course too numerous to mention, but among them are two banks, with fine brick buildings, the First National with a paid up capital of $100,000, and the Merchant's, now just changed to the Merchant's National with a paid up capital of $75,000, seven hotels, two wagon factories, a foundry and machine shop, plaining mill, sash, door and blind factory, two flouring mills of 450 barrels capacity, a saw mill with a capacity of 25,000,000 per year, large brewery, three livery barns, three exclusive hardware stores, and four drug stores with several large general stores, etc., etc. Crookston has the United States land office for this district which is doing an immense amount of business in disposing of the public lands under the homestead, pre-emption and timber culture laws. It is the county seat or political capitol of the immense County of Polk, larger than the State of Connecticut and with many times greater resources. This county will market this year, in the infancy of its development, 2,000,000 bushels of the famous No. 1 Hard wheat, and nearly one-half that amount at Crookston. From the foregoing sketch with the &c., &c., filled in by an ordinary effort of immigration, it will be seen that Crookston is, even now, "no mean city," considering its age, but like most western towns it is most remarkable for what IT IS TO BE; nor is this at all strange. There was a time in the history of all towns when their greatness lay concealed from all conservatives and croakers, but was plainly revealed to the far-seeing and enterprising man who boldly came to the front and put his capital and his brains to the work of transforming his hopes into realities, and the city of his imagination of yesterday materialized before the eyes of the doubter and the man of enterprise filled his coffers to his heart's content. What then are Crookston's

UNDEVELOPED RESOURCES.

1st. Its central location in the county, with its railroads running east and west, north and south, makes it as certainly a commercial center as its being a county seat makes it a political center for the County of Polk. The county contains 1,858,000 acres of the best of land, not one-tenth of which is under cultivation. It is all available. It now raises for export 2,000,000 bushels of wheat, and it is capable of raising 20,000,000 bushels, or what would be better still for all concerned, its equivalent in wheat and other products, and the soil and climate is just as well adapted to raising of barley, rye, oats, flax, peas, corn, stock and pork as to raising wheat, and as land is cheap and within easy reach of men of ordinary means, we have good reasons to expect that the same rate of settlement that has given us 20,000 in the past five years will continue for the next five and the next ten years, till the county will count its forty or fifty thousand people on its farms alone, and to handle the products of these farms and to supply them with dry goods, groceries, hardware, farm implements, furniture, lumber, &c., &c. will require a town centrally located and accessible by rail and wagon roads, of at least ten or fifteen thousand people.

2d. It has a large water power, a small part of which only is developed and in use. This might mean very little, in some localities it would, but here it is of immense significance. This is the great wheat field of the continent, and wheat will always be a staple production and its reduction to flour is a matter of POWER, and the fuel and other extra expenses for steam over water power, where wood is worth three dollars per cord or coal the equivalent of that price, is at least fifteen cents per barrel, or teirty dollars per day for a 200 barrel mill. Now, Crookston is in the geographical center of this great wheat field, the Red River Valley, which will soon produce for export fully 100,000,000 bushels of wheat, and a wheat worth in any milling market more by ten cents per bushel than any other wheat raised in America and as a consequence water power is worth more here for this manufacture alone than it is worth anywhere else in the world, and this would be true even if water powers were plenty on the Red River and all its tributaries, but there are no powers on the Red River nor its tributaries in the valley. At Fergus Falls, where the Red drops from the high land on the east into the valley there is a large power, but that is one hundred miles from here and this is the only power in the valley proper, and the only one anywhere on any line of railroad within one hundred miles. It is surely as valuable here as anywhere in the United States. The undeveloped power here that can be very cheaply improved is sufficient to operate ten flouring mills of a capacity of 200 barrels per day each. It is only a question of dilligence and promptness on the part of capitalists, as to who will make a fortune for himself and add several thousands to the population of this young city by the improvement of this power.

3d. Crookston is to be the great lumbering centre of the Northwest an industry as yet almost wholly undeveloped. There is on the Red Lake River a virgin body of white pine of three billion feet or over. It is mostly on an Indian Reservation and cannot be cut till the Indian title is extinguished. It is doing the Indians no good but is being domaged by fires and deteriorating in value. A bill is now on the calender of the House of Representatives of the United States, having been unanimously reported by the committee on Indian affairs and having the approbation of the Hon. Secretary of the Interior and the Commissioner of the Indian Bureau and is confidently expected to become a law at the next session of Congress that will open this body of pine to sale at auction. There is enough of this pine to supply eight mills of capacity each of 20,000,000 feet per year for twenty years and a market right at home to consume it all. Northwestern Minnesota and Northern Dakota, a vast prairie region much larger than the State of Illinois is to be supplied from this body of pine. It must float down the Red Lake River and Crookston is the first point it reaches where there are railroads to distribute it, and the only point having ample boomage facilities for handling the logs and at Crookston this lumber will be manufactured and from there distributed, but this is an infant industry, the first mill is only recently started and is now turning out 150,000 feet per day.

WHAT CROOKSTON NEEDS.

By this is meant what are the eligible openings for profitable investment.

It needs $400,000 of additional banking capital.

It needs more capital invested in every line of business and trade now established.

It needs tenament houses by the score; rents are very high; six room houses rent for from $20 to $25 per month.

It needs capital to improve its water power.

It needs ten good flouring mills.

It needs four or six good first-class saw mills.

It needs a paper mill to work up the thousands of tons of straw now being burnt on the surrounding prairies.

It needs a twine factory. $20,000 worth of binding twine has been sold in Crookston within the past six weeks.

It needs men of brains and pluck in all the trades and professions. In short, it offers the ground floor to such men as have built up the thriving commercial and manufacturing towns of the West, and to such it offers unequaled inducements.

Respectfully, R. REYNOLDS.

WHEAT PROBLEM.

Chicago Philosophy on the Value to Farmers and Business Men of Holding the Crop.

ON HOLDING WHEAT.

Grand Forks Herald.

The Chicago Tribune has a very sensible view of the wheat market question, following closely on the advice given by the Herald and other papers to the farmers to hold their crop. It says:

"The statements in our commercial columns with regard to the falling-off in the sales of wheat by farmers southwest and west prove that the American farmer has at least as much "spunk" as the Hindoo ryot when he is asked by the speculators to let him have his wheat for less than it cost to raise it. When the ryot, miserable as is his condition, is not offered what he considers a just price, he hides his wheat in "brown jugs" in the ground and waits for a better market. Our news indicates that the cultivators of the soil in Illinois Minnesota and Iowa have much the same kind of human nature under their white skins as is covered by the brown skins of Bombay and the Punjaub. Kansas City reports a sharp letting-up in deliveries, and a large part of the wheat going into elevators and storehouses in the Northwest is sent there simply for storage, and not to be forwarded to points of consumption.

This obstinate refusal of the Western tiller of the soil to take the advice of Wall Street, Market Lane, and fancy poultry editors in New York newspaper offices to throw away the sweat and toil of a year just to enable the gamblers in phantom wheat to win their bets is interesting for several reasons. It is interesting to the gamblers, for it is a notice to them that if they go on selling for future delivery wheat which the farmer intends to keep in his bins, the day may overtake them when they will not find the wheat to fill their contracts growing in the "alley" or on the floor of the produce exchange. It is interesting to the foreign buyers of our wheat, for it is evidence that our farmers, simple as they are, have not failed to notice that the great foreign merchants, while loudly proclaiming their complete independence of American supplies, are steadily buying our wheat all the time and are taking more of it than at this time last year. It is interesting as a financial symptom, for it proves that the farmers of this country have the money strength to hold their wheat themselves, and are not compelled to drop it into the custody of Europe or New York capitalists and manufacturers of the country as an indication that the farmer, the most important and most frequent buyer of goods, is determined to improve his purchasing power by holding over 100,000,000 bushels or more, getting the same price for the remaining 400,000,000, less the quantity he consumes, as he would have gotten for the whole 500,000,000 if he had sacrificed it, and finally selling the 100,000,000 held over at his own price.

It would be, indeed, remarkable if the American farmer, out of debt as he is for the most part and enriched by the sale of a series of big crops at high prices, were willing to part with this crop at the miserable prices he is now offered by the Liverpool buyers and the Wall Street short seller. The average yield of wheat on the farms of this country is thirteen bushels; this year it may be fifteen. All the wheat is not good enough to grade No. 2, and a good deal of it has to be sold in the neighborhood of 45 cents a bushel as "rejected." The average value of the consignments received here is now about 65 cents a bushel for good, bad and indifferent. At this rate the showing for the farmer is about as follows:

Fifteen bushels sold at 65 cts. in Chicago....		$9 75
Out of this—
The railroad takes an average of 21 cents a bushel..........	$3 15
The commission men, bankers and elevator men take 3 cts. a bushel.	45
It costs 5 cents a bushel to haul it to the depot..........	75
Total deduction between the farmer and Chicago, 29 cts. a bushel.........		$4 35
Leaving the farmer per acre....................		$5 40
Cost of seeding, plowing, etc., interest on land (fully) per acre....................		$7 00
Balance on the wrong side per acre..........		$1 60

This is the amount which at present prices in Chicago the farmer must present to the wheat-eaters of England and the "bears" of the Board of Trade, besides boarding himself and his family out of the savings of a previous year or the proceeds of a mortgage on his farm to keep himself alive.

Under the circumstances it is not surprising that the farmers have stopped sending their wheat to market, nor that, as announced by our dispatches, they are plowing a smaller area than last year for wheat. They had better turn their wheat fields into grass for cattle or let it lie fallow a year than work it for less than nothing a day.

If the farmers of the West will hold back 100 million bushels of this year's crop one year, not selling a bushel of it, they will get more money for the rest of their wheat than they will obtain for the whole yield if they sell it all within a twelvemonth; and the 100 millions held back from market, when brought out next year, will realize them twice the price they can now obtain for it. Let every Western farmer hold on to one-half or third of his wheat. Everyone can find storage at home for his surplus wheat for a year without much expense to him. He can better afford to borrow money for current expenses than throw away his wheat at present ruinous prices. Let the farmers also sow less wheat this fall and shorten up the acreage for next harvest, and thus let the consuming power of the world catch up with the supply. Just now the farmers are suffering from overproduction of wheat. The remedy is to produce less of that cereal.

Fall Goods! Fall Goods!

NEW YORK STORE.

We have Received a Full Line of

Staple and Fancy Dry Goods.
Notions, Boots and Shoes,
which we are offering at Low Prices.

We show in
DRESS GOODS
One of the Best Selected stocks in the city. All the fall and winter shades.

We call special attention to our line of
BLACK CASHMERES,
We ask comparison.

Black and Colored Silks and Satins.
We show an exceptionally fine line in these goods,

NOTIONS,
Hosiery and Underwear. Knit Goods and Shawls, Ribbons, White Goods and Linens. Embroideries and Laces, Corsets and Gloves, Etc., Etc.

VELVETS,
Black and Colored. Blankets, flannels and Quilts,
—CHEAP— —CHEAP— —CHEAP—

CANTON FLANNELS,
Bleached and unbleached and colored. Domestics of all kinds. Prints, ginghams, sheetings, jeans, ticking, cotton batting, &c., &c.

Hats and caps, complete stock. CARPETS, we have a full line of samples of Body Brussels, Tapestry and Ingrain.

BOOTS AND SHOES,
of well known makes. We make a special effort to have this department one of the most complete in the city.

All our stock has been selected with all possible care, having all the advantages that cash and experience can buy for us, we feel safe in guaranteeing all our customers as low prices, if not lower, than can be obtained elsewhere, quality taken into consideration. A CALL SOLICITED.

PROUD & MACDONELL.

Stewart & Lawrence,

—DEALERS IN—

Lumber, Sash, Doors, Mouldings,
Building Paper, &c.

1st Com. Dim's and Boards, rough,	$18	Siding, dry..............................	$18
2d " " " "	16	Flooring, "	21
3d " " " "	14	Lath,..............................	3
Ship Lap, dry..............................	17	Shingles	2

A full stock of Sash, Doors, Casings, Mouldings, Eve Trough and Building Paper constantly on hand.

Johnson & Stevens,
FISHER AND CROOKSTON,
WILL NEGOTIATE LOANS
Through the Corbin Banking Co., ew York,

SELL MINNESOTA CHIEF
Threshers and Engines,
Deering and Esterly Binders,
Studebaker Wagons,
and a variety of Rakes, Mowers, Plows, Etc., Etc.
KEEP A MORE
COMPLETE LINE OF REPAIRS
than any agency in the County.
Twine and Wire In Season

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., Sept. 17th, 1884.
Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 7th, 1884, viz: JOSEPH DURAND, H'd No. 7915, for the e½ sw¼ S. 14, T. 150, R. 48. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Ephraim Tromeley, L. Tillum, M. Lambert and John Borden, all of Terrebonne, Polk Co., Minn.
[21-26] JOHN CROMB, Register.

AIME GABOURY,
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,
Graduate Doctor in Medicine Laval University Canada. Licensed Coll. Phy. Surg. Quebec. Late of Michigan University, U. S.
Office over the Arcade Clothing Store,
CROOKSTON, MINN

CITY ICE HOUSE!
E. D. SCHRAEDER & CO., Proprietors,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

Having purchased the ice house business of Ruedy & Kindler, and put up during the past winter from 75,000 to 100,000 tons of ice, we are now prepared to supply the trade the coming summer at reasonable figures.
E. D. SCHRAEDER & Co.

DENTISTRY.
J. H. THOMAS, D. D. S.,
ROBERT STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN.
Artificial Teeth from one to an entire set inserted. Gold, Silver or Artificial Filling used as desired. Regulating Children's Teeth a specialty. ALL WORK WARRANTED.

EIKEN BROS.,
Corner of Fletcher and Main Stree
Crookston, Minn.
Dealers in
HARDWARE, TIWARE,
STOVES,
—AND—SHELFWARE.

WE KEEP A
FULL & COMPLETE STOCK,
—AND—
Invite the Patronage
OF ALL.

A. H. DUNLOP M. D.,
Graduate McGill University, Montreal.
LICENSED COLLEGE PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON QUEBEC.
Office on Robert Street, Crookston.

I have a good Hotel for sale, located right in the business part of the city.
H. W. LEWIS.

ELLIS & JOHNSON,
AGENTS FOR THE
WALTER A. WOOD
Mowing and Reaping
MACHINE COMPANY.
A Full Line of Repairs and Twine constantly on Hand.
Robert Street. Opposite Old Mill. CROOKSTON, MINN.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., Sept. 16th, 1884.
Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Oct 30th, 1884: viz: OLE PETERSON, H'd No. 2375, for the sw¼ S. 20, T. 149, R. 47. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: B. C. Jergenson, Jake Ide, Leonard Paulson and Iver C. Lamen, all of Andover, Polk Co., Minn.
[21-26] JOHN CROMB, Register.

MERCHANTS' Bank of Crookston.

H. B. MONTGOMERY.........President, St. Paul, Minn.
M. R. BROWN,..............Vice President, Crookston, Minn.
J. KELSO.........Second Vice President, Bellevue, Iowa.
Wm. ROSS..............................Cashier, Crookston, Minn.

CASH CAPITAL, $32,000
SURPLUS, $16,533.82.

Will receive deposits and allow interest by special contract.
Buy and Sell Foreign and Domestic Exchange, make collections, and do a strictly legitimate business.
Agents for foreign passage tickets.
De Skandinaviske Sprog tales her.
WM. ROSS, Cashier.

ATTENTION!
Now is the Time to Build
While you can buy
Cream Brick
at Very Low Figures. The Best Brick ever made in the Red River Valley. Manufactured by SWANSON & KOEPPE,
[11-18] Crookston, Minn.

SECOND STREET
MEAT MARKET
STANTON & CO., Proprietors.
Choice meats of every description. Fish and game in their season. Everything of the very best quality and lowest prices. Call and see us.
STANTON & CO.,
Dobson's Block, Second Street.

For Sale Cheap.
A complete set of bar fixtures. Call on August Wentzel for particulars.
[19-tf]

Polk County Journal.

Crookston, Minn., Thursday, October 2.

THE MARKETS.

Wheat is quoted in this market today as follows:

No. 1 Hard 61 cents.
No. 2 Hard 57 cents.
No. 1 Northern 57 cents.
No. 1 Regular 52 cents.

FLOUR.
Best,	per cwt.	$ 3.25
2d "	"	3.00
3d "	"	2.75
4th "	"	1.57

At Minneapolis:

No. 1 Hard 79 cents.
No. 2 Hard no quotations.
No. 1 Regular 69 cents.

Duluth quotations are as follows:

No. 1 Hard 80½ cents.
No. 2 " 76½ cents.
No. 1 Northern 77 cents.
No. 1 Regular 73 cents.

'ROUND HOME.

Trunks at half price at Chiniquy's.

W. A. A. Perkins, of Euclid, was in the city on Friday.

Cloaks, Dolmans and winter wraps at fifty cents on the dollar at Chiniquy's.

Go and hear Joseph Cook, one of the greatest living orators, at the Congregational church, October 8th.

If the Democrats don't make more blunders than the Republicans did, look out for fun and lots of it.

The largest stock of boots and shoes in the city selling at cost at Chiniquy's

H. C. Misner and W. H. Graver were down from Euclid to try and find out how the thing was did in the convention last Friday.

The best five cent cigars is at the Red Star Grocery, Broadway. [51-tf]

Jolly Joe Roberton, of Mallory, gave us the grip on Friday. Joe intends to take in the World's Fair some time next month.

You will find that you can save a great deal of money in buying goods at Chiniquy's.

Mrs. M. E. Bartlett left for a visit with relatives and friends in New York, early this week. She expects to return ere the holidays.

If you want a rattling good cigar, don't take our word for it, but take ten cents and go and try one of those what you read about at Van Dyke & Co's.

Mr. A. L. Lindsley, of Chicago who has been visiting some time with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Box, leaves for home on Friday morning accompanied by her mother.

Secure tickets for Joseph Cook's great lecture at G. M. Barber & Co's. Single tickets $1.00; two or more 75 cents each.

Go and buy your winter goods of Chiniquy as he is going out of business and selling at cost and below cost.

Mr. R. Huss departed for Yankton last week, whither his father and family have located. He orders THE JOURNAL to follow him so that he may keep posted on matters here.

What's the matter with those cigars of Van Dyke & Co's, if it is a good one you like.

We have heard it intimated that Republicans will not consider themselves bound by the convention of Friday The motto will probably be, and should be, "the best man for the place."

Terry Sheley, of Red Lake Falls, was seen perambulating our streets on Wednesday.

Mr. J. C. Davis, of St. Hilaire, was in the city on Friday to see how the "masheene" was run and gave THE JOURNAL a pleasant call. He reports farmers all happy up there, but would be happier if wheat was a dollar a bushel.

Don't fail to hear the world renowned Joseph Cook, Wednesday evening Oct. 8th, at the Congregational church.

Come and buy good goods at you own prices, at VAN DYKE & Co's.

Dr. A. Nelson, of Garfield, dropped in to chat with us and to set that subscription a peg ahead, while he was in to represent his town in the convention. The doctor is a pleasant gentleman and is earning an enviable reputation as a physician and surgeon, we learn.

If you don't want to take our word for it go and see that Van Dyke & Co. have one of the finest cigars you have smoked since.

The farmers about Fargo are talking of turning their attention to something besides wheat-raising. Some will try flax while many will engage in stock raising and all will leave out more land for summer-fallowing then ever before. Some of the bonanza farmers talk of leaving out whole sections and the result will be (as it should be everywhere) less wheat.

Prescriptions put up carefully at all times of the day or night, at VAN DYKE & Co's.

Mr. Albert McManus sends us a potato, raised on Isaiah Gervais' place at Red Lake Falls, which takes the cake. It weighs a trifle over five pounds. That tuber would be a good representative to send to the World's Fair at New Orleans. It is of the Peerless variety, planted May 20th, dug Sept. 24th, and Mr. Gervais says yielded at the rate of 400 bushels per acre.

For the next 30 days we are bound to sell goods 50 per cent. below cost in order to make room for new stock.
VAN DYKE & Co.

An attempt was made on Monday night to burglarize the store of Steenerson Bros. at Fisher. The safe was blown open and upwards of $300 in money and postage stamps [illegible]. It was thought they [illegible] and took the early [illegible] [illegible]apolis and it is reported [illegible] were arrested at Osakis [illegible] Sheriff Zwickey went [illegible] after them.

Nothing below cost at Chiniquy's.

Clark Van Housen returned from Chicago this morning.

Best cigars in the city at Van Dyke & Co's.

The vault at the court house is nearly ready to receive the millions of surplus wealth of the county.

Van Dyke & Co. offer fancy goods lower than ever.

H. M. Pierce declines the nomination as court commissioner on account of press of other business.

A fine lot of toilet articles to be sold very low, at VAN DYKE & Co's.

Conductors W. Alexander and J. B. Copeland are going to Boston to attend the conductor's convention to be held there.

Don't fail to hear the celebrated preacher, Rev. Jos. Cook next Wednesday evening at the Congregational church.

Al. Kaiser, ye genial editor of ye Thirteen Towns was in the city on Friday. Al. is getting fat and hearty up there—they can elect him alderman if he keeps on that way.

Two nimrods from Ada got on the train at Beltrami with 16 geese and as many or more ducks. They had no dog and claim that they wounded many that they could not get.

Go to Berthiaume Bros., for silverware and everything you want in the jewelry line.

Herb Mason is entertaining the small boy and others playing on a musical box that goes by steam all the while he folds the seductive packages of the festive peanut for a nickel a pack. Fresh roasted music is cheap at a nickel a pack.

A communication from Northcote, Kittson County, reached us this morning, too late for publication. It does not matter much, however, as a large majority of the delegates now elected are favorable to the correspondent's views and we think the rest of them will be.

Berthiaume Bros., have finished unpacking their new goods and now have them on exhibition.

INDEPENDENT CANDIDATES.

At the earnest request of many friends I hereby announce myself an independent candidate for the office of Register of Deeds for Polk County.
JOHN AMUNDSON.

By the request of many friends I take this method of announcing myself a candidate for re-election to the office of County Surveyor.
C. L. BRAINARD.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for re-election to the office of Probate Judge of Polk County.
Respectfully, R. J. MONTAGUE.

List of Patents Lately Received,

UNITED STATES LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Oct. 1, 1884.

The following patents have lately been received at the U. S. Land Office, and parties are requested to call and get them:

Amlot, John
Anderson, Christian
Anderson, Carrie, dead minor children of
Anderson, Brede
Anderson, Christian
Anre M Johnson
Ames, Lucius W
Anderson, Ole
Anderson, Tonette
Anderson, Ole
Amundson, Louise M.
Amundson, Knud
Aufinson, Even
Aufinson, John
Boyer, Firmin
Boddy, Albert
Bersagel, Rasmus R
Buse, Henry
Buck, William Jr
Bohne, Albert
Berland, Bertha Olson
Burns, Patrick
Broberg, Bengt S
Burns, John E
Brown, James M
Bauer, Benjamin
Benson, Henry
Clement, John
Champain, Eciphts
Cameron, John
Cullen, Peter
Chaninard, Alexis
Clookman, Mary
Charpentier, Oscar
Cravath, Lewellyn S
Dalen, Samuel H
Ducharme, Onezime
Degroselliier, Timothe
Dieslug, John
Ducharme, Joseph
Demaune, Wm Jr
Davis, Edward N
Dannais, Frank
Dubuque, Moise
Dubuque, Luc
Dalen, Andrew S
Engberg, Par E
Erickson, Andrew
Ellanson, Christian
Falske, William
Fasbak, Ingebright O
Fisher, Philip
Frazee, Dyrid
Froshaug, John O
Fuerst, Michael
Flyberg, P Peterson
Fauske, Ole O
Gervais, Henry
Gross, George B
Gervais, Benjamin
Goyette, Israel
Gervais, Louis Henry
Gilbertson, Gustef
Grotte, Peter J
Gjermundsen, Ole
Gulseth, Lars E
Gerard, Julius J
Gean, Christopher H
Graham, John
Gunderson, Peter
Gulbranson, Helgrem
Griffin, Jeremiah
Hartse, Mary
Harland, Andrew E
Hallegren, Frank B
Hanson, John E
Hynes, Stephen
Hansen, Lars
Hendrickson, Bjoin
Huber, Gustav
Hakenson, Admon
Hamilton, Chas J
Hedlund, Andrew
Hauge, Belest R
Ingebretson, Ole
Jenkins, Wesley
Jegtvigen, Ole
Johuk, Otto H
Jorgenson, Ole
Johanneson, Enoch
Jenkinson, Ben F
Johnson, Christian
Jere, Andrew T T
Johnson, Nicholas
Knudson, Lars
Klug, Fried
Knudson, Knudt T
Kennedy, George
Knuop, Wm
Koran, Christopher C
Klenetson, Kleinet
Kribs, Hudwick Sr
Kolbo, Hans A
Klemmetson, Henry
Knudson, Ole V
Laundreville, Medor
Loistam, Nels
Larson, Bertie
Loranger, Edmund
Laurent, Adelard
Loranger, Theophile
Lamb, Charles
Labonte, Francois
Linder, John—dead heirs of
Larson, John
Lockrem, Christopher G
Leeuyer, Pierre
Mittlum, Nils O
Molmville, Ephraim
McColler, Henry
Magneso, Michael
Moorhouse, Guel W
Murkens, John
Mullan, Fritz
Metcalf William
Marchand, Napoleon
Melbye, Hans J
Ness, Sngeberg E
Nelson, Christopher
Nosky, William M
Nilson, Jacob
Olson, Ole P
Olson, Ole G
Oleson, Lorents
Ostrem, Herman J
Olson, Mary—dead heirs of
Olson, Thomas G
Olsen, Halsten
Oleson, Asger
Olson, Halvor
Olsen, Hans C
Olsen, Niels
Olson, Morten
Paulson, Ole Jr
Perusse, Thomas
Parren, Jerry
Paulussen, Hubertus
Plimpton, Ira B
Puetz, John
Parks, Lazarus W
Pederson, Andrew
Robillard, Joseph
Rice, Eleanor L
Rost, Elias O
Roach, James
Risvold, Arnt J
Ringstad, Petter J
Sorcogel, Johannes E
Schele, John L
Sanagren, Johannes
Stone, Hopkins
Schultz, Frederich
Syverson, Ole
Selnes, Lorentz E
Steffenson, Syvert
Stensgaard, Lars J
Siebels, Edward
Swanson, Andrew
Svenson, Daniel
Svensen, Ivor P
Stine, Jacob
Scribner, Elisha B
Skavlem, Peder P
Stroder, Drnest
Skalet, Nils Jonsen
Thompson, Andrew
Thompson, John A
Tubbs, Satterlee O
Taylor, Lillie M
Turner, Alexander
Tabken, Henry
Torgerson, Ole
Thoreson, Annie
Tovsaint, Henry
Urseth, Hans O H
Upham, Payson E
Ulrich, Samuel
Vaelz, Albert
Valstrom, Ole
Valet, Frank
Wingfield, Wm H
Willy, Henry
Waugen, Mons J
Wilson, James A
Wolpart, Joseph H
Zachge, Julius

CROOKSTON, Minn., Sept. 20, 1884.

Pursuant to the instructions of the late Republican convention for Polk County, I hereby appoint the following persons as a County Central Committee:

R. J. McGuire, Crookston, Chairman,
Howard Lankester, Fisher,
O. A. Johnson, Rockshill,
A. Nelson, Garfield,
Ole Estenson, Vineland.
JOHN CROMB, Chairman.

There will be a meeting of stockholders of the Crookston Agricultural Association in the Engine house, Saturday night at 8 o'clock, all stock holders, stock subscribers and others interested are requested to be on hand as business of importance is to be transacted.
S. F. MARKHAM, Secretary. E. M. WALSH, President.

Send Money by American Express or Money Orders. Receipts given. Money refunded if Orders are lost. Sold at all offices of the Company. Payable at 6,000 places. RATES: To $5-5c.; $10-8c.; $20-10c.; $30-12; $40-15; $50-20c. [2-27]

NOTICE.

Any man investing in property at Red Lake Falls or vicinity who loses by the investment, I will pay five dollars where he looses five cents.
[3-28] ALFRED GERVAIS.

Notice to Farmers.

C. Kretzschmar's Grist Mill, at Red Lake Falls, is again open for business. Flour will be exchanged for wheat, or your wheat will be ground on shares. A good feed mill is run in connection with the mill and satisfaction in all cases is guaranteed. Flour and feed on hand at all times and sold at lowest market rates.
[16-tf] C. KRETZSCHMAR.

At Seely's

You can find some extra fine crab-apple cider; old bourbon whisky, eight years old. Maryland Club, pure rye; Jules and G. H. Mum's extra dry champagne; imported Scotch ales and porters for medicinal purposes; also a fine stock of imported cigars. Call and sample. [22-tf]

C. Papin has a fine grade Jersey and Durham bull, one of the finest animals in the State. All who desire the use of good animals should not fail to call at Papin's and see this animal. [22-24]

$100,000

To Loan on improved claims in sums of $250 to $2,000. Cash paid for school bonds. Call on or address,
JOHN McLEAN, Att'y at Law,
[47-tf] Crookston, Minn.

NOTICE.

As I still own my share of Crookston Nurseries, and purpose to continue the business, I will announce to our former customers and all that are desirous of obtaining trees and Plants the coming spring that I will sell said stock at prices below any competition. Call and see me before making purchase elsewhere. Residence on second block north of Court House, or address P. O. Box 754.
Most Respectfully,
[38-tf] E. W. HASELTINE.

For Rent.

To a small family, a part of my house on Broadway. Inquire at the JOURNAL office.
DR. G. A. CABLE.

The United States Internal Revenue Special Tax is due May 1st. Any information and a full line of blanks can be had by calling on or addressing.
JOHN McLEAN,
Attorney at Law,
[47-tf] Crookston, Minn.

PIANO TUNING.

Any parties having pianos or organs that need tuning or repairing can have their work satisfactorily done by leaving orders at the Linton House. Satisfaction guaranteed.
[9-tf] E. F. WHEELDEN.

John Knuppe.

General Agent in the Red River Valley of the Netherlands American Land Company of Amsterdam, Holland.

Money to loan on good real estate security, on time to suit the borrower. Office over Merchant's Bank. [1-tf]

LIST OF LETTERS.

Remaining uncalled for in the Crookston Post Office, for the week ending Sept. 29th, 1884. Persons calling for these letters will please say "advertised."

Anderson, Mrs S
Andreason, Ole
Anderson, Julus
Benson, Martin
Bigmen, Mrs M
Brosseau, Edmond
Bready, Frend
Carrel, J
Carlson, Anna C
Camey, Miss Robert
Dodge, Damon
Erikson, O
Friskos, Olle
Garbhol Hans Erikson
Grundson, Ingeberg
Hedlung, P E
Haglung, Ingeberg
Hansen, A
Hallstrom, A
Hockenbrought, James
Hang, Olina
Johnsen, John
Mattson, M
Martin, John
Merrill, Charlie
Orsoline, Adriano
Payment, Arthur
Pelletron, John
Pomeel, H
Ritchie, Wm
Scott, Mrs Dora
Shenyne, George
Snau, Mrs
Stevens, Mrs C
Tergesen, Tellef
Torske, Erik J
Thorjson, Jacob
Voolm, A
Wallace, J R
Wisnell, Areldia

POSTAL CARDS.

Anderson, E
Baby, Wm
Blood, J W
Davis, Martin M
Emerson, T H
Hanson, Gust
Hayen, Albert O
Hoyt, R S
Johnson, Sylvester
Jeffers, Virgina
Janson, Berthel
Larson, Engbor
Lindberg, August
Lindholm, Gustaf A
Marchan, Louis T
Olson, O M
Payment, Anthony

D. JACOBUS, P. M.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., Sept. 24th, 1884.
Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on No. 22d, 1884, viz: JOHN E. MARTELL, H'd No. 8242, for the sw¼ S. 24, T. 148, R. 47. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: M. G. Leguen, Chas. P. Cahoon, John A. Lytle and Stephen Dewal, all of Crookston, Polk Co., Minn.
[22-27] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., Oct. 21, 1884.
Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 27th, 1884, viz: THOMAS WALLACE, H'd No. 0730, for the nw¼ S. 31, T. 149 n. R. 46 w. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Peter Nissen, James Moore, Hans Clausen and Mathew Beatz, all of Crookston, Polk Co., Minn.
[22-28] JOHN CROMB, Register.

MERCHANTS' HOTEL,

J. B. MITTON, Proprietor,
CORNER BROADWAY AND ROBERT STREET,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

The new Merchants' Hotel, recently re-fitted and re-furnished is now ready to accommodate the traveling public, who are cordially invited to stop at the Merchants' when in the city.

JOHN N. IVES,

ATTORNEY AT LAW,
Collection and Land Office Business made a specialty. Money secured for final proofs on short notice.
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

W. L. Sargeant

Veterinary Surgeon.
CROOKSTON, - - - - MINN.
Diseases of horses and cattle a specialty.
[9-tf]

WM. WATTS,

ATTORNEY AT LAW,
AND DEALER IN
REAL ESTATE:
OFFICE OVER MERCHANTS' BANK.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., Sept. 17th, 1884.
Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 7th, 1884, viz: GUNDER T. HUNDLAND, H'd No. 9363, for the ne¼ S. 22, T. 152, R. 42. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Nicholas Thompson, Neese Thompson, H. Keogh and Hans P. Bjerge, all of St. Hilaire, Polk Co., Minn.
[2-27] JOHN CROMB, Registe.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn, Sept. 17th, 1884.
Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 7th, 1884, viz: JOHN LINDELL, Pre. D. S., No. 6952, for the n½ se¼ ne¼ sw¼ and lot 3, S. 7, T. 146, R. 41. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Erik J. Eriksson, John Berggvist, E. Eriksson and A. Larson, all of Rindal, Minn.
[2-27] JOHN CROMB, Register.

Wentzel & Rauch, Sample Rooms.

MAIN STREET, - - CROOKSTON, MINN.
For a fine mixed or straight drink call on the boys. The choicest liquors and cigars in stock. [9-tf]

Groceries, Provisions,

Flour, Feed

SMOKED, DRIED AND SALT

MEATS,

TEAS,
COFFEES,
SUGARS,
SPICES,
ETC.

Highest Market Price Paid for
FARM PRODUCE.

Bauchman & Millette,

Broadway, Opposite the Post Office,
Crookston, Minn.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., Sept. 17th, 1884.
Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 7th, 1884, viz: NICHOLAS THOMPSON, Pre. D. S., No. 7760, for the se¼ S. 10, T. 152, R. 42. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: O. T. Hundlen, H. Keogh, Neese Thompson and Hans P. Bjerge, all of St. Hilaire, Polk Co., Minn.
[2-27] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., Sept. 19th, 1884.
Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 10th, 1884, viz: HANS E. BERGE, Pre. D. S., No. 6935, for the sw¼ sw¼ S. 22, T. 147, R. 44. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Even Grotevig, Halvor Grotevig, Jacob Aldal, and A. Nelson, all of Aldal, Polk Co., Minn.
[2-27] JOHN CROMB, Register.

BERG & OLSON,

PRACTICAL WATCHMAKERS,
AND DEALERS IN CLOCKS,
WATCHES,
JEWELRY,
—ROBERT STREET,—
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

NEW LIVERY,

Feed and Sale

STABLES.,

CORNER MAIN AND FOURTH STS.,
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA
TERRY & COLLINS, Prop's.

☞ Good Turnouts at all times a reasonable prices. Good Hearse and careful driver when needed.

M. M. VAN DYKE,

Physician and Surgeon,
Corner of Main and Second Streets,
CROOKSTON MINN
Will attend to all professional calls promptly.

JOHN LEO. H. STEENERSON.

LEO & STEENERSON.

ATTORNEYS AT LAW
Room 3, U. S. Land Office Building,
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

Crookston Tonsorial

PARLORS.
PROF. THOMPSON, Proprietor.
Robert Street, Crookston, Minn.
Shaving, hair dressing and all work in my line promptly attended to the latest style of the art. Give me a call.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., Sept. 20th, 1884.
Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 11th, 1884, viz: JOSEPH MARLOW, Pre. D. S., No. 7250, for the s½ nw¼ and lots 3 and 4 S. 2, T. 151, R. 44. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Pierre St. Jean, John Daire, Aimable St. Jean and E. St. Jean, all of Red Lake Falls, Polk Co., Minn.
[22-27] JOHN CROMB, Register.

CHANGE IS THE ORDER OF THE DAY!

POTTER & GEORGE

— SUCCEED BEECHER & GEORGE OF —

MEDICAL HALL.

The reputation of the old firm will be kept up for good goods and moderate prices. Don't forget us.

POTTER & GEORGE,
Proprietors of Medical Hall.

E. D. CHILDS & CO.,

Proprietors of

CARMAN TOWNSITE,

AND

Dealers in Real Estate!

Why Don't You wait?

Wait till Crookston has ten thousand people. Three years!

Wait till Crookston is the largest and most important manufacturing town in the Northwest. Two years!

Wait till Crookston has two more large saw mills, and is cutting 75,000,000 feet a season. One year!

Wait till lots in SOUTH CROOKSTON are selling for twice their present valuation (six months) and THEN purchase

South Crookston Property.

But if you have time, just drop in and have a chat with

STEENERSON & McMANUS, Broadway.
JOHN IVES & SON, Broadway.
PALMER & BOND, Robert Street.
CROOKSTON IMPROVEMENT CO., Main Street.

Crookston City Bakery,

Peter Lorge, Prop.,

Keeps constantly on hand a full line of all goods usually found in a

First-Class Bakery.

Cigars and Tobacco, Nuts, Fruits, Candies; Pies, Cakes, Bread,

And everything to fill out a hungry man, constantly on hand.

MONEY! LAND!

$100,000 To Loan.

20,000 Acres of Land for Sale.

BRING IN YOUR PROPERTY
AND IT WILL BE SOLD.

Law and insurance, Collections Made.

CITY LOTS FOR SALE!

Houses, Rooms and Farms to Rent.

U. S. LAND OFFICE

Business promptly attended to.

CONTEST CASES A SPECIALTY.

Office Corner Broadway and Robert Street,

PALMER & BOND.

THE PIONEER

HARNESS SHOP.

M. RADENBUEHLER, Proprietor.
CORNER OAK AND THIRD STS., CROOKSTON MINN.
Is ready for the Spring trade with a full supply of Work and Light Harness. Single and Double, Saddles, Bridles, Whips, Blankets, etc. Give me a call before you purchase.

MERCHANTS'

BILLIARD HALL,

FRED ANDERSON, Proprietor.
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.
The choicest Wines, Liquors and Cigars constantly on hand.

THE

St. Paul, Minneapolis

—AND—

Manitoba

RAILWAY.

WITH ITS

1,400 Miles of Road

Is the only line extending through the

Park Region of Minnesota,

To all principal points in

Red River Valley,
Northern Minnesota,
Northern Dakota,
And to Devil's Lake and Turtle Mountain Districts.

—CONTAINING OVER—

9,000,000 Acres

GOVERNMENT LANDS!

The Land department of the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway has exclusive charge of the Company's Lands in Minnesota, and all correspondence relative to the purchase of lands, terms, description or price of any particular tract should be addressed to that department.

Maps and pamphlets describing the country and giving rates of fare to settlers, etc., mailed FREE on application.

JAS. B. POWER,
Land and Immigration Commissioner.
C. H. WARREN,
General Passenger Agent,
St. P., M. & M. R'y., St. Paul, Minn.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., Sept. 27th, 1884.
Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 10th, 1884, viz: PETRONELLE SVARTZ, Pre. D. S., No. 8207, for the lots 3 and 4, S. 6, T. 147, R. 41. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Svend Kuraas, John Jalmtrold, Thorwald Torpet and Ingebret Torpet, all of Aldal, Polk Co., Minn.
[21-7] JOHN CROMB, Register.

Crookston Nurseries

ESTABLISHED IN 1879.

Tree Claim Stock.

I desire to inform my customers and others that I shall make a great reduction from former prices on forest trees and seeds for tree-claims. I have good thrifty two year old trees, such as Box Elder, Ash and Cottonwood to sell by the thousand. I also furnish the hardier varieties of

SMALL FRUITS,

Such as Currants, Gooseberries, Raspberries and Strawberry plants, and young, thrifty Transcendent and Hislop Crab Apple trees. The firm of Heseltine Bros. having dissolved, I still continue business on the

—OLD NURSERY GROUNDS—

in Crookston. Hoping by fair dealing and promptness with my customers to merit their patronage.

Don't fail to write for Catalogue and Prices.

☞ ALL COMMUNICATIONS PROMPTLY ANSWERED.

F. T. HASELTINE,

[illegible], Crookston, Minn.

WANTED!

5,000 Men, Women and Children

—TO VISIT—

HACK & GALLASCH

General Store, where you can buy

13 lbs. Pure Sugar for	$1.00
12 lbs. Turkish Prunes for	1.00
5 three lb. cans Table Peaches for	1.00
Japan Tea from	20 to 60 cts per lb
1 long bar of soap and 1 towel, all for	25c

Our stock of

DRY GOODS, NOTIONS, AND DRESS GOODS IS COMPLETE.

Don't fail to visit our Shoe and Slipper department before buying elsewhere New and complete stock of Groceries Crockery, Glassware, Flour and Feed.

☞ We pay the highest market price for Butter, Eggs, Snake Root, Etc.

Call and see us. NO TROUBLE TO SHOW GOODS.

Cor. Main and Second Street,
CROOKSTON, MINN

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., Sept. 17th, 1884.
Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., Nov. 7th, 1884, viz: JOHN C. CHARLES, Pre. D. S. No. 8229, for the ne¼ S. 35, T. 148, R. 41. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: G. P. Bloom, James Yurgen, Thomas Olsen and Torkel Hydnud, all of Foston, Polk Co., Minn.
[22-27] JOHN CROMB, Register.

Bigham & Olafson

(Successors to Juve & Bergland,)

THE POPULAR MERCHANTS ON
MAIN STREET, CROOKSTON

Have on hand and are constantly receiving full lines of

DRY GOODS, GROCERIES,
CROCKERY,
CLOTHING,
BOOTS AND SHOES,
HATS AND CAPS

In fact everything usually found in first-class general store.

☞ Our goods are bought with great care and will be sold at

LOW PRICES

☞ FOR CASH. ☜

DR. M. WATTS,
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,
OFFICE ON ROBERT STREET.
Professional calls by day or night attended to with promptness.

Polk County Journal.

Crookston, Minn., Thursday, October 2.

THE MARKETS.

Wheat is quoted in this market today as follows:

No. 1 Hard 61 cents.
No. 2 Hard 57 cents.
No. 1 Northern 57 cents.
No. 1 Regular 52 cents.

Flour:
Best,	per cwt.	$ 3.25
2d	"	3.00
3d	"	2.75
4th	"	1.57

At Minneapolis:
No. 1 Hard 79 cents.
No. 2 Hard no quotations.
No. 1 Regular 69 cents.

Duluth quotations are as follows:
No. 1 Hard 80½ cents.
No. 2 " 76½ cents.
No. 1 Northern 77 cents.
No. 1 Regular 73 cents.

'ROUND HOME.

Trunks at half price at Chiniquy's.

W. A. A. Perkins, of Euclid, was in the city on Friday.

Cloaks, Dolmans and winter wraps at fifty cents on the dollar at Chiniquy's.

Go and hear Joseph Cook, one of the greatest living orators, at the Congregational church, October 8th.

If the Democrats don't make more blunders than the Republicans did, look out for fun and lots of it.

The largest stock of boots and shoes in the city selling at cost at Chiniquy's

H. C. Misner and W. H. Graver were down from Euclid to try and find out how the thing was did in the convention last Friday.

The best five cent cigars is at the Red Star Grocery, Broadway. [51-tf]

Jolly Joe Roberton, of Mallory, gave us the grip on Friday. Joe intends to take in the World's Fair some time next month.

You will find that you can save a great deal of money in buying goods at Chiniquy's.

Mrs. M. E. Bartlett left for a visit with relatives and friends in New York, early this week. She expects to return ere the holidays.

If you want a rattling good cigar, don't take our word for it but take ten cents and go and try one of those what you read about at Van Dyke & Co's.

Mr. A. L. Lindsley, of Chicago who has been visiting some time with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Box, leaves for home on Friday morning accompanied by her mother.

Secure tickets for Joseph Cook's great lecture at G. M. Barber & Co's. Single tickets $1.00; two or more 75 cents each.

Go and buy your winter goods of Chiniquy as he is going out of business and selling at cost and below cost.

Mr. R. Huss departed for Yankton last week, whither his father and family have located. He orders THE JOURNAL to follow him so that he may keep posted on matters here.

What's the matter with those cigars of Van Dyke & Co's, if it is a good one you like.

We have heard it intimated that Republicans will not consider themselves bound by the convention of Friday. The motto will probably be, and should be, "the best man for the place."

Terry Sheley, of Red Lake Falls, was seen perambulating our streets on Wednesday.

Mr. J. C. Davis, of St. Hilaire, was in the city on Friday to see how the "machene" was run and gave THE JOURNAL a pleasant call. He reports farmers all happy up there, but would be happier if wheat was a dollar a bushel.

Don't fail to hear the world renowned Joseph Cook, Wednesday evening, Oct. 8th, at the Congregational church.

Come and buy good goods at your own prices, at VAN DYKE & Co's.

Dr. A. Nelson, of Garfield, dropped in to chat with us and to set that subscription a peg ahead, while he was in to represent his town in the convention. The doctor is a pleasant gentleman and is earning an enviable reputation as a physician and surgeon, we learn.

If you don't want to take our word for it go and see that Van Dyke & Co. have one of the finest cigars you have smoked since [illegible]

The farmers about Fargo are talking of turning their attention to something besides wheat raising. Some will try flax while many will engage in stock raising and all will leave out more land for summer fallowing than ever before. Some of the bonanza farmers talk of leaving out whole sections and the result will be (as it should be everywhere) less wheat [illegible]

Prescriptions put up carefully at all times of the day or night at [illegible] VAN DYKE & Co's.

Mr. Huber McManus sends us a potato raised on Isaiah Gervais' place at Red Lake Falls, which takes the cake. It weighs a trifle over five pounds. That tuber would be a good representative to send to the World's Fair at New Orleans. It is of the Peerless variety, planted May 20th, dug Sept. 24th, and Mr. Gervais says it yielded at the rate of 400 bushels per acre. [illegible]

For the next 30 days we are bound to sell goods 50 per cent. below cost in order to make room for new stock. VAN DYKE & Co.

An attempt was made on Monday night to [illegible] the store of Steener[illegible]

[illegible]

Clark Van Housen returned from Chicago this morning.

Best cigars in the city at Van Dyke & Co's.

The vault at the court house is nearly ready to receive the millions of surplus wealth of the county.

Van Dyke & Co. offer fancy goods lower than ever.

H. M. Pierce declines the nomination as court commissioner on account of press of other business.

A fine lot of toilet articles to be sold very low, at VAN DYKE & Co's.

Conductors W. Alexander and J. B. Copeland are going to Boston to attend the conductor's convention to be held there.

Don't fail to hear the celebrated preacher, Rev. Jos. Cook next Wednesday evening at the Congregational church.

Al. Kaiser, ye genial editor of ye Thirteen Towns was in the city on Friday. Al. is getting fat and hearty up there—they can elect him alderman if he keeps on that way.

Two nimrods from Ada got on the train at Beltrami with 16 geese and as many or more ducks. They had no dog and claim that they wounded many that they could not get.

Go to Berthiaume Bros., for silverware and everything you want in the jewelry line.

Herb Mason is entertaining the small boy and others playing on a musical box that goes by steam all the while he folds the seductive packages of the festive peanut for a nickel a pack. Fresh roasted music is cheap at a nickel a pack.

A communication from Northcote, Kittson County, reached us this morning, too late for publication. It does not matter much, however, as a large majority of the delegates now elected are favorable to the correspondent's views and we think the rest of them will be.

Berthiaume Bros., have finished unpacking their new goods and now have them on exhibition.

INDEPENDENT CANDIDATES.

At the earnest request of many friends I hereby announce myself an independent candidate for the office of Register of Deeds for Polk County.

JOHN AMUNDSON.

By the request of many friends I take this method of announcing myself a candidate for re-election to the office of County Surveyor.

C. L. BRAINARD.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for re-election to the office of Probate Judge of Polk County.

Respectfully, R. J. MONTAGUE.

List of Patents Lately Received.

UNITED STATES LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Oct. 1, 1884.

The following patents have lately been received at the U. S. Land Office, and parties are requested to call and get them:

Amiot, John
Anderson, Christian
Anderson, Carrie, dead
minor children of
Anderson, Brede
Anderson, Christian
Anne M Johnson
Ames, Lucius W
Anderson, Ole
Anderson, Tonette
Anderson, Ole
Amundson, Louise M
Amundson, Knud
Aufinson, Even
Aufinson, John
Boyer, Firmin
Boddy, Albert
Bersagel, Rasmus R
Buse, Henry
Buck, William Jr
Bohne, Albert
Berland, Bertha Olson
Burns, Patrick
Broberg, Bengt S
Burns, John E
Brown, James M
Bauer, Benjamin
Benson, Henry
Clement, John
Champain, Eelphis
Cameron, John
Cullen, Peter
Chaninard, Alexis
Clookman, Mary
Charpentier, Oscar
Cravath, Lewellyn S
Dalen, Samuel H
Ducharme, Onezime
Degroseillier, Timothe
Diesing, John
Ducharme, Joseph
Demaune, Wm Jr
Davis, Edward N
Dannais, Frank
Dubuque, Moise
Dubuque, Luc
Dalen, Andrew S
Engberg, Par E
Erickson, Andrew
Eilanson, Christian
Falske, William
Faabak, Ingebright O
Fisher, Philip
Frazee, Dyrid
Frosbaug, John O
Fuerst, Michael
Flyberg, P Peterson
Faaske, Ole O
Gervais, Henry
Gross, George B
Gervais, Benjamin
Goyette, Israel
Gervais, Louis Henry
Gilbertson, Gustaf
Grotte, Peter J
Gjermundsen, Ole
Gulseth, Lars E
Gerard, Julius J
Gean, Christopher H
Graham, John
Gunderson, Peter
Gulbrandson, Helgrem
Grimm, Jeremiah
Hartse, Mary
Harland, Andrew B
Hallegren, Frank B
Hanson, John E
Hynes, Stephen
Hanson, Lars
Hendrickson, Bjoin
Huber, Gustav
Hakenson, Admon
Hamilton, Chas J
Hedlund, Andrew
[illegible]
Ingebretson, Ole
Jenkins, Wesley
[illegible]
[illegible]
Jorgenson, Ole
Johanneson, Knoch
Jenkinson, Ben F
Johnson, Christian
[illegible]
Johnson, Nicholas
Knudson, Lars
[illegible]
Knudson, Knud
Kennedy, George
Knoop, Wm
Koran, Christopher C
Klenetson, Kleinet
Kribs, Hudwick Sr
Kolbo, Hans A
Klemmetson, Henry
Knudson, Ole V
Laundreville, Medor
Lofstam, Nels
Larson, Bertie
Loranger, Edmund
Laurent, Adelard
Loranger, Theophile
Lamb, Charles
Labonte, Francois
Linder, John—dead
heirs of Larson, John
Lockrem, Christopher G
Leeuyer, Pierre
Mithun, Nils O
Molmville, Ephraim
McColler, Henry
Magnese, Michael
Moorhouse, Guel W
Markens, John
Mullan, Fritz
Metcalf, William
Marchand, Napoleon
Melbye, Hans J
Ness, Engeberg E
Nelson, Christopher
Nosky, William M
Nilson, Jacob
Olson, Ole F
Olson, Ole G
Oleson, Lorents
Ostrem, Herman J
Olson, Mary—dead
heirs of
Olson, Thomas G
Olsen, Halsten
Oleson, Asger
Olson, Halvor
Olsen, Hans C
Olsen, Niels
Olsen, Morten
Paulson, Ole Jr
Perusse, Thomas
Parren, Jerry
Paulussen, Hubertus
Plimpton, Ira B
Puets, John
Parks, Lazarus W
Pederson, Andrew
Robillard, Joseph
Rice, Eleanor L
Rost, Elias O
Roach, James
Risvold, Arnt J
Ringstad, Petter J
Soreoget, Johannes E
Schele, John L
Sanagren, Johannes
Stone, Hopkins
Schultz, Frederich
Syverson, Ole
Selnes, Lorentz E
Steffenson, Syvert
Stensgaard, Lars J
Siebels, Edward
Swanson, Andrew
Svengon, Daniel
Svensen, Ivon P
Stine, Jacob
Scribner, Elisha B
Skaylem, Peder P
Stroder, Druest
Skalet, Nils Jonsen
Thompson, Andrew
Thompson, John A
Tubbs, Satterlee C
Taylor, Lillie M
Turner, Alexander
Tabken, Henry
Torgerson, Ole
Thomson, Anniel
Toyerud, Henry
Urseth, Hans O
Upham, Faysonie
[illegible]
Vaels, Albert
Valstrom, Ole
Valst, Frank
Whitfield, Wm H
Willy, Henry
Waugen, Mons J
Wilson, James A
Wolpers, Joseph H
Zabel, Julius

CROOKSTON, Minn., Sept. 29, 1884.

Pursuant to the instructions of the late Republican convention for Polk County, I hereby appoint the following [illegible] County Central Committee:

[illegible] McGuire, Crookston, Chairman
[illegible]
[illegible]
A. Nelson, Garfield
[illegible]
JOHN CROMB, Chairman.

There will be a meeting of stock holders of the Crookston Agricultural Association in the Engine house, Saturday night at 8 o'clock, all stock holders, stock subscribers and others interested are requested to be on hand as business of importance is to be transacted.

S. F. MARKHAM, Secretary. E. M. WALSH, President.

Send Money by American Express or Money Orders. Receipts given. Money refunded if Orders are lost. Sold at all offices of the Company. Payable at 6,500 places. RATES: To $5-5c.; $10-8c.; $20-10c.; $30-12.; $40-15.; $50-20c. [2-27]

NOTICE.

Any man investing in property at Red Lake Falls or vicinity who loses by the investment, I will pay five dollars where he looses five cents.

[3-28] ALFRED GERVAIS.

Notice to Farmers.

C. Kretzschmar's Grist Mill, at Red Lake Falls, is again open for business. Flour will be exchanged for wheat, or your wheat will be ground on shares. A good feed mill is run in connection with the mill and satisfaction in all cases is guaranteed. Flour and feed on hand at all times and sold at lowest market rates.

[16-tf] C. KRETZSCHMAR.

At Seely's

You can find some extra fine crab-apple cider; old bourbon whisky, eight years old. Maryland Club, pure rye; Jules and G. H. Mum's extra dry champagne; imported Scotch ales and porters for medicinal purposes; also a fine stock of imported cigars. Call and sample. [22-tf]

C. Papin has a fine grade Jersey and Durham bull, one of the finest animals in the State. All who desire the use of good animals should not fail to call at Papin's and see this animal. [22-24]

$100,000

To Loan on improved claims in sums of $250 to $2,000. Cash paid for school bonds. Call on or address,

JOHN McLEAN, Att'y at Law,
[47-tf] Crookston, Minn.

NOTICE.

As I still own my share of Crookston Nurseries, and purpose to continue the business, I will announce to our former customers and all that are desirous of obtaining trees and Plants the coming spring that I will sell said stock at prices below any competition. Call and see me before making purchase elsewhere. Residence on second block north of Court House, or address P. O. Box 754, Most Respectfully, [38-tf] E. W. HASELTINE.

For Rent.

To a small family, a part of my house on Broadway. Inquire at the JOURNAL office.

DR. G. A. CABLE.

The United States Internal Revenue Special Tax is due May 1st. Any information and a full line of blanks can be had by calling on or addressing,

JOHN McLEAN,
Attorney at Law,
[47-tf] Crookston, Minn.

PIANO TUNING.

Any parties having pianos or organs that need tuning or repairing can have their work satisfactorily done by leaving orders at the Linton House. Satisfaction guaranteed.

[9-tf] E. F. WHEELDEN.

John Kruppe.

General Agent in the Red River Valley of the Netherlands American Land Company of Amsterdam, Holland.

Money to loan on good real estate security, on time to suit the borrower. Office over Merchant's Bank. [1-tf]

LIST OF LETTERS.

Remaining uncalled for in the Crookston Post Office, for the week ending Sept. 29th, 1884. Persons calling for these letters will please say "advertised."

Anderson, Mrs S
Andreason, Ole
Anderson, Julus
Benson, Martin
Bigmien, Mrs M
Brosseau, Edmond
Bready, Fread
Carrel, J
Carlson, Anna C
Camey, Miss Robert
Dodge, Damon
Erikson, O
Friskos, Olle
Garbhol Hans Erikson
Grundson, Ingeburg
Hedlung, P E
Haglung, Ingeberg
Hansen, A
Hallstrom, A
Hockenbrought, James
Haug, Ollna
Johnsen, John
Mattston, M
Martin, John
Morrill, Charlie
Orsoline, Adriano
Payment, Arthur
Pellietren, John
Pomeel, H
Ritchie, Wm
Scott, Mrs Dora
Shenyne, George
Snau, Mrs
Stevens, Mrs C
Tergesen, Tellef
Torske, Erik J
Thornson, Jacob
Voolm, A
Wallace, J R
Wisnell, Areldia

POSTAL CARDS.

Anderson, E
Baby, Wm
Blood, J W
Davis, Martin M
Emerson, T H
Hanson, Gust
Hayen, Albert O
Hoyt, R S
Johnson, Sylvester
Jeffers, Virginia
Janson, Berthel
Larson, Engbor
Lindberg, August
Lindholm, Gustaf A
Marchan, Louis T
Olson, O M
Payment, Anthony

D. JACOBUS, P. M.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 24th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 22d, 1884, viz: JOHN E. MARTELL, H'd No. 8842, for the sw¼ S. 24, T. 148, R. 47. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: M. G. Legube, Chas. P. Cahoon, John A. Lytle and Stephen Dowal, all of Crookston, Polk Co. Minn.

[22-27] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Oct. 1st, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 8th, 1884, viz: THOMAS WALLACE, H'd No. 2790, for the [illegible] He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Peter Nilson, James Moore, Hank Clausen and Mathew Baatz, all of Crookston, Polk Co., Minn.

[22-28] JOHN CROMB, Register.

MERCHANTS' HOTEL,

[illegible] HAMILTON, Proprietor.
CORNER BROADWAY AND ROBERT STREET,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

The new Merchants' Hotel recently re-fitted and refurnished is now ready to accommodate the traveling public who are cordially invited to stop at the Merchants' when in the city.

JOHN N. IVES,

[illegible]

W. L. Sargeant

Veterinary Surgeon.

CROOKSTON, MINN.

Diseases of horses and cattle a specialty. [9-tf]

WM. WATTS,

ATTORNEY AT LAW,
AND DEALER IN
REAL ESTATE.
OFFICE OVER MERCHANTS' BANK.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 17th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 7th, 1884, viz: GUNDER T. HUNDLAND, H'd No. 9483, for the ne¼ S. 22, T. 152, R. 42. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Nicholas Thompson, Neese Thompson, H. Keogh and Hans P. Bjerge, all of St. Hilaire, Polk Co., Minn.

[2-27] JOHN CROMB, Registe.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 17th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 7th, 1884, viz: JOHN LINDELL, Pre. D. S., No. 6352, for the n½ se¼ ne¼ sw¼ and lot 3, S. 7, T. 146, R. 43. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Erik J. Eriksson, John Berggvist, E. Eriksson and A. Larson, all of Rindal, Minn.

[2-27] JOHN CROMB, Register.

Wentzel & Rauch,

Sample Rooms.

MAIN STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN.

For a fine mixed or straight drink call on the boys. The choicest liquors and cigars in stock. [9-tf]

Groceries, Provisions,

Flour, Feed
SMOKED, DRIED AND SALT
MEATS,
TEAS,
COFFEES,
SUGARS,
SPICES,
ETC.

Highest Market Price Paid for
FARM PRODUCE.

Bauchman & Millette,

Broadway, Opposite the Post Office,
Crookston, Minn.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 17th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 7th, 1884, viz: NICHOLAS THOMPSON, Pre. D. S., No. 7760, for the se¼ S. 10, T. 152, R. 42. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: G. T. Hundlen, H. Keogh, Neese Thompson and Hans P. Bjerge, all of St. Hilaire, Polk Co., Minn.

[22-27] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 10th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 10th, 1884, viz: HANS E. BERGE, Pre. D. S., No. 6933, for the sw¼ sw¼ S. 22, T. 147, R. 44. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Even Grotevig, Halvor Grotevig, Jacob Aldal and A. Nelson, all of Aldal, Polk Co., Minn.

[22-27] JOHN CROMB, Register.

BERG & OLSON,

PRACTICAL WATCHMAKERS,
AND DEALERS IN CLOCKS,
WATCHES,
JEWELRY,
ROBERT STREET,
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

NEW LIVERY,

Feed and Sale
STABLES.,

CORNER MAIN AND FOURTH STS.,
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA

TERRY & COLLINS, Prop's.

Good Turnouts at all times at reasonable prices. Good Hearse and careful driver when needed.

M. M. VAN DYKE,

Physician and Surgeon,

Corner of Main and Second Streets,
CROOKSTON MINN

Will attend to all professional calls promptly.

JOHN LEO. H. STEENERSON.

LEO & STEENERSON,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW

Room 8, U. S. Land Office Building,
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

Crookston Tonsorial

PARLORS.

PROF. THOMPSON, Proprietor.
Robert Street, Crookston, Minn.

Shaving, hair dressing and all work in my line promptly attended to the latest style of the art. Give me a call.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 29th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 11th, 1884, viz: [illegible] He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Pierre St. Jean, [illegible] all of Red Lake Falls, Polk Co., Minn.

[22-27] JOHN CROMB, Register.

CHANGE IS THE ORDER OF THE DAY!

POTTER & GEORGE

— SUCCEED BEECHER & GEORGE OF —

MEDICAL HALL.

The reputation of the old firm will be kept up for good goods and moderate prices. Don't forget us.

POTTER & GEORGE,
Proprietors of Medical Hall.

E. D. CHILDS & CO.,

Proprietors of

CARMAN TOWNSITE,

AND

Dealers in Real Estate!

Why Don't You wait?

Wait till Crookston has ten thousand people. Three years!

Wait till Crookston is the largest and most important manufacturing town in the Northwest. Two years!

Wait till Crookston has two more large saw mills, and is cutting 75,000,000 feet a season. One year!

Wait till lots in SOUTH CROOKSTON are selling for twice their present valuation (six months) and THEN purchase

South Crookston Property.

But if you have time, just drop in and have a chat with

STEENERSON & McMANUS, Broadway.
JOHN IVES & SON, Broadway.
PALMER & BOND, Robert Street.
CROOKSTON IMPROVEMENT CO., Main Street.

Crookston City Bakery,

Peter Lorge, Prop.,

Keeps constantly on hand a full line of all goods usually found in a

First-Class Bakery.

Cigars and Tobacco, Nuts, Fruits, Candies; Pies, Cakes, Bread,

And everything to fill out a hungry man, constantly on hand.

MONEY! LAND!

$100,000 To Loan. 20,000 Acres of Land for Sale.

BRING IN YOUR PROPERTY
AND IT WILL BE SOLD.

Law and Insurance, Collections Made.

CITY LOTS FOR SALE!

Houses, Rooms and Farms to Rent.

U. S. LAND OFFICE

Business promptly attended to.

CONTEST CASES A SPECIALTY.

Office Corner Broadway and Robert Street,

PALMER & BOND.

THE PIONEER
HARNESS SHOP.

[illegible], Proprietor.
CORNER OAK AND THIRD STS., CROOKSTON MINN

Is ready for the Spring trade with a full supply of Work and Light Harness, Single and Double, Saddles, Bridles, Whips, Blankets, etc. Give me a call before you purchase.

MERCHANTS'
BILLIARD HALL,

FRED ANDERSON, Proprietor,
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA,

The choicest Wines, Liquors and Cigars constantly on hand.

THE
St. Paul,
Minneapolis
—AND—Manitoba
RAILWAY,
WITH ITS

1,400 Miles of Road

Is the only line extending through the

Park Region of Minnesota,

To all principal points in

Red River Valley,
Northern Minnesota,
Northern Dakota,
And to Devil's Lake and Turtle Mountain Districts.

—CONTAINING OVER—

9,000,000 Acres

GOVERNMENT LANDS!

The Land department of the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway has exclusive charge of the Company's Lands in Minnesota, and all correspondence relative to the purchase of lands, terms, description or price of any particular tract should be addressed to that department. Maps and pamphlets describing the country and giving rates of fare to settlers, etc., mailed FREE on application.

JAS. B. POWER,
Land and Immigration Commissioner
C. H. WARREN,
General Passenger Agent,
St. P., M. & M. R'y., St. Paul, Minn.

U. S. LAND OFFICE.
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 24th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 10th, 1884, viz: PETRONELLE SVARTZ, Pre. D. S., No. 8267, for the lots 3 and 4, S. 6, T. 147, R. 41. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Svend Kuraas, John Jaintrold, Thorvald Torpet and Ingebret Torpet, all of Aldal, Polk Co., Minn.

[22-7] JOHN CROMB, Register.

Crookston Nurseries

ESTABLISHED IN 1879.

Tree Claim Stock.

I desire to inform my customers and others that I shall make a great reduction from former prices on forest trees and seeds for tree-claims. I have good thrifty two year old trees, such as Box Elder, Ash and Cottonwood to sell by the thousand. I also furnish the hardier varieties of

SMALL FRUITS,

Such as Currants, Gooseberries, Raspberries and Strawberry plants, and young, thrifty Transcendent and Hislop Crab Apple trees. The firm of Heseltine Bros. having dissolved, I still continue business on the

—OLD NURSERY GROUNDS—

in Crookston. Hoping by fair dealing and promptness with my customers to merit their patronage.

Don't fail to write for Catalogue and Prices.

All Communications Promptly Answered.

F. T. HASELTINE,

Proprietor of the Crookston Nurseries, Crookston, Minn.

WANTED!

5,000 Men, Women and Children

—TO VISIT—

HACK & GALLASCH'

General Store, where you can buy

13 lbs. Pure Sugar for	$1.00
12 lbs. Turkish Prunes for	1.00
5 three lb. cans Table Peaches for	1.00
Japan Tea from	20 to 60 cts per lb
1 long bar of soap and 1 towel, all for	25c

Our stock of

DRY GOODS, NOTIONS, AND DRESS GOODS IS COMPLETE.

Don't fail to visit our Shoe and Slipper department before buying elsewhere. New and complete stock of Groceries Crockery, Glassware, Flour and Feed.

We pay the highest market price for Butter, Eggs, Snake Root, Etc. Call and see us. NO TROUBLE TO SHOW GOODS.

Cor. Main and Second Street,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 17th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., Nov. 7th, 1884, viz: JOHN C. CHARLES, Pre. D. S. No. 8229, for the ne¼ S. 35, T. 148, R. 41. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: G. P. Bloom, James Yurgen, Thomas Olsen and Torkel Hydmud, all of Fosston, Polk Co., Minn.

[22-27] JOHN CROMB, Register.

Bigham & Olafson

(Successors to Juve & Bergland,)

THE POPULAR MERCHANTS ON
MAIN STREET, CROOKSTON

Have on hand and are constantly receiving full lines of

DRY GOODS, GROCERIES,
CROCKERY,
CLOTHING,
BOOTS AND SHOES,
HATS AND CAPS

In fact everything usually found in a first-class general store.

Our goods are bought with great care and will be sold at

LOW PRICES
FOR CASH.

DR. M. WATTS,
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON.
OFFICE ON ROBERT STREET.

Professional calls by day or night attended to with promptness.

ESTRANGED.

There are some souls that ever walk alone
In this brief round of human life,
Stifling within the ever rising moan
Lest it betray their constant inward strife.
No soft caressing hands are laid in theirs,
No voices speaking kindly words of cheer,
We meet and pass them often unawares
Although they see us, and check the rising tear.
These are the cereus of a midnight bloom
So rare and fair, tho' shrouded 'mid the gloom.
The mystic plan of life would still be incomplete
Unless the path of fate, which these have trod
Still bore the imprint of their weary feet
Striving and toiling toward the heights of God.

DR. TRIM'S ROMANCE.

From the New Orleans Times-Democrat.

I

"Upon my word, mamma, I look upon it as an impertinence." Mrs. Talbot laid her baby across her lap face down and jolted it gently, at the same time patting persuasively its exceedingly limp back. "Positively an impertinence," she went on; "it's as much as to say, 'You are so expert in this sort of thing, and have married off your own children so well, pray help me out with mine.' Really, mamma, it's an insult. I should write Aunt Trim a very sharp letter if I were in your place."

Mrs. Fargo did not reply. She sat tapping her gold spectacles lightly against the open page of the letter she had been reading, while her blue eyes wandered abstractedly over the wide fields of blooming cotton that stretched away beyond the garden fence.

The imputation her daughter hinted at so resentfully did not disturb her in the least. If she had maneuvered a little to secure advantageous settlements for her children, and she would not have denied that she had, her maneuvers had been so successful that she had nothing to regret. Certainly Ella Talbot had no reason to complain. She had a kind, indulgent husband, a beautiful home and a baby which, though still too young to excite much enthusiasm on the part of a novice in infants, was pronounced by its grandmother a remarkably fine child.

Her other daughter and her two sons were equally well provided for, and Mrs. Fargo might reasonably have considered herself entitled to rest from her labors.

The mail, however, had just brought her a plaintive entreaty from her sister, Mrs. Trim, that she would lend her aid in marrying off her son Albert a bachelor of 35, who seemed bent upon remaining single. He was a homeopathic physician in good practice, and well enough in appearance; indeed some of his more enthusiastic lady patients maintained that he was decidedly handsome, and of a very kind and amiable disposition. "None of the women here seem to please him," wrote his mother. "It has occurred to me that one from the country might suit him. Do look for a sensible woman of suitable age, and domestic habits, and possessing other desirable qualifications, of which you are so good a judge."

It was probably the "other qualifications" clause that gave so much offense to Ella, it having been charged that for the sake of advantages covered by this ambiguous euphemism she had jilted a younger and poorer suitor, to accept the wealthy but elderly Mr. Talbot.

"I really believe Amelia Pullyn would do," said Mrs. Fargo at last, looking at her daughter as calmly as she had contemplated the cotton fields.

"Mamma! you are actually thinking of it!"

"Why not? I see nothing unreasonable in thinking about the happiness of my own nephew and the comfort of my sister. If you will let me have the carriage this afternoon, Ella, I'll drive over and see Amelia."

"Mamma, I protest!" exclaimed Ella, shaking the baby up so violently as to elicit a squeal of remonstrance. "Besides, Amelia wouldn't thank him. You know she is determined never to marry again."

"Nonsense!" returned Mrs. Fargo, with her good-natured laugh, "you think, because she refused John, she is immovably fixed in her resolve. Don't jolt the child so, Ella. He is quite red in the face."

Mrs. Talbot promptly reversed the baby, who now began to protest so violently against his mother's treatment, that she called the nurse to remove him.

John being her own husband, the allusion was not agreeable. It was true that the episode had occurred before she made Mr. Talbot's acquaintance, but few women have the magnanimity to forgive the superior discrimination of an antecedent rival.

"I'm sure John has reason to congratulate himself, at all events," she said a little sharply. "Amelia's drawl and her melancholy combined would drive a man wild. Besides, it is said she has consumption."

"Consumption," repeated Mrs. Fargo, laughing again. "She looks like it, and as for her melancholy, you don't suppose that is incurable, do you?"

"I don't think Albert Trim is the man to cure it, anyhow. He is solemn as an owl himself."

"That's just the point. They will cure each other. It will be a beautiful illustration of Albert's favorite principle, similia similibus. His being a physician is a great point in his favor, too. Amelia will not feel that she is disgracing Dr. Pullyn's memory by accepting a second husband of the same profession."

"Gracious heavens! You have got to the accepting point already. You forget Dr. Pullyn was an allopathist."

"Oh, that makes nothing, as Madame Paulin would say. Love reconciles all differences. Do not Catholic and Protestant marry? Why not homeopathist and allopathist?"

"I really believe what that spiteful Mrs. Grimes said of you is true," said Ella, looking thoughtfully at her mother, "and you would make a match for your bitterest [illegible]"

"No, it isn't, and the proof is that I [illegible] make one for [illegible] Della, which [illegible] he wished. Well, if I am to [illegible] I must get ready, I suppose. I can [illegible] the carriage [illegible] [illegible] supposed your animosities would hardly permit you to accept."

[illegible]

"Oh, I'm to much like my mother to allow my animosities to interfere with my pleasure," replied Ella, laughing.

II

Mrs. Pullyn, in deepest weeds, notwithstanding the heat of the weather, received her guests with the smile of soft melancholy that so well became her pale beauty.

"Sit down," she said in the tone of one who invites to some mournful ceremony. "Are you well?" and she looked prepared for the worst.

"Oh, yes, we are always well," said Mrs. Fargo.

"You are very fortunate," drawled the widow; "I am never well."

"What is the matter," asked Mrs. Fargo, as sympathetically as if she heard this complaint for the first time.

"I don't know," and oh, that it were possible to print her soft drawl. "I've hunted all through the doctors' books, and I don't find any symptoms that resemble mine so much as those laid down for consumption."

"Do you cough?"

"No, but I have all the other symptoms, and I am so languid and have no appetite; I don't know what can make me so."

"Have you had advice?" asked Mrs. Fargo, anxiously.

"Why, no. You know I have all the doctor's books and his prescriptions and formulas, and—and everything. I don't need to consult anybody."

"But, my dear child, you are surely not trying to treat yourself in so grave a case, a thing the wisest and most skillful physicians never attempts. You'll poison yourself, that's what you'll do.

Mrs. Pullyn looked at her with mild pitying superiority.

"Nobody could possibly know more about it than he did," she said "and nobody could understand my constitution so well. If the medicines he prescribed do no good nothing could do good."

"Really, you ought to have been in India," said Ella.

Amelia turned her large, liquid eyes toward the speaker, and her resigned smile provoked Ella to go on.

"I think the Indian plan better than yours. I should greatly prefer being burned at once to slowly sacrificing myself by swallowing my husband's medicines."

At this moment a lovely little girl bounded into the room and ran to embrace her mother. Mrs. Pullyn kissed her with effusion, then stood her upon her lap, and, looking over her brown curly head at Mrs. Talbot, said gently: "You can't suppose I want to die?"

"Why, certainly not," responded Mrs. Fargo, again taking up the word, "and we don't intend to let you, either. So, to prevent it, I shall take you in hand myself. Come here, Pet," holding out her hands to the little girl. "come tell grandma you' pitty name, sweet."

"Go to the lady, Gracie," said her mother, "go kiss the lady."

Gracie went shyly, holding on to her mothers hand, and only staying long enough to plant a hasty kiss on Mrs. Fargo's chin, and then ran back to her refuge in her mother's lap.

"Yes, indeed," resumed Mrs. Fargo. "I shall just take you in hand myself. Your mother and I were schoolmates, and I was always very fond of her, which gives me a sort of right over her daughter. You shall come down to the city with me next week. My own house is all in disarray with the painters and paperers, but we will stop with my sister, and you shall see a physician."

Amelia did not reply save by her melancholy smile. She seemed to be reflecting, however, and presently she said:

"Are you going to the city next week?"

"Yes, for a few days. I want to see what the people are doing in my house, and get measured for a dress or two before my dressmaker is crowded. Won't you come with me?"

"I have been thinking of going down. I have a tooth that troubles me. I ought to have it attended to, I suppose."

"Yes, indeed, you can never be too prompt about a matter of that kind. Well, where shall we meet?"

"I don't know; perhaps I won't go."

"Oh, yes, you must; Ella's is nearest the railroad. I shall drive over Sunday evening, and take you back to stay over night with me, and we'll start Monday morning."

"Really, I don't know, my health is so uncertain," objected the widow. But Mrs. Fargo was not to be put off.

"I shall come for you," she said, as she kissed her good-by at the front door, "and mind you're ready. Gracie will come, too."

"Oh, yes, if I go," sighed the widow. "I never leave Gracie behind."

III

So down to the city came Mrs. Fargo and Mrs. Pullyn, an amiable dragoness flying peaceably away with her victim by steam train.

Mrs. Trim's house stood in a quiet up-town street across which the tall trees met in friendly conference. Mrs. Trim met them in the hall, an elderly woman whose once blonde hair had faded to a yellowish white, and whose corpulancy bordered upon the miraculous. She kissed Amelia affectionately, though she had never seen her before, and leading her into the parlor left her there while she withdrew to a sitting-room with her sister.

"You have been very prompt," she said seating herself in her own especially wide-armed chair. "I was surprised to find you had one already on hand, as it were."

"I had never thought about her until your letter came," returned Mrs Fargo, "and I don't know now whether it will amount to anything. They are both so dull it is like trying to strike fire with two wet sticks."

Meantime in the parlor, Amelia had taken off Gracie's hat, and was holding the half-sleeping child upon her lap, and looking abstractedly out through the blinds into the quiet street. It was characteristic of Mrs. Fargo that she had not mentioned her sister's name, and Amelia was wondering in her own mind how she should address her hostess upon their next meeting, when a gentleman entered by a door at the end of the room, and came directly toward the sofa near which she sat. He was a tall, fair man, with a little professional stoop in the shoulders. Dr. Albert Trim, in fact, coming according to his habit to rest a few moments before dinner in the shaded parlor. [illegible]

He was close upon Amelia before he saw her, and [illegible] slowly rising and letting Gracie slip to the floor confronted him with a suppressed scream [illegible]

"What, you!" exclaimed the Doctor, coming to a sudden stand [illegible]

"You!" repeated Amelia, who [illegible]

"In my house!" continued the Doctor. "I never knew [illegible] you [illegible] [illegible] may be sure I did not [illegible] once." She snatched up Gracie's hat, and turned toward the door, dragging the child after her.

"You shall not stir. I am delighted to see you here; you shall not leave."

"I shall leave, and this moment, too."

She caught Gracie up, and made a movement to dart past him, but he stepped before her with one arm outstretched, barring the way. Gracie alarmed at this gesture, uttered a piercing shriek. There was a sound of quick steps approaching, and Mrs. Fargo appeared upon the threshold. Dr. Trim dropped his arm, and Amelia with flushed face and indignant mein, approached Mrs. Fargo.

"What in the world is the matter?" exclaimed this lady. "Albert, I thought you were a robber. How have you been frightening Mrs. Pullyn?"

"Shall I explain?" asked the Doctor, looking toward Amelia, who vanished through the door without replying.

"Why, where are you going?" cried a voice in the hall. It was Mrs. Trim, who arrested her guest on the way to the front door.

Mrs. Fargo and Albert now rushed out, and the storm center was transferred to the hall.

"You must not go Amelia. I entreat you do not go," cried Albert wildly.

"Of course you will not go," said Mrs. Fargo, with decision. "I never heard of anything so absurd; come back directly. I insist upon knowing the meaning of all this." She took Amelia by the arm and almost forcibly led her back into the parlor. "It is clear you two have met before," she continued, assuming the office of inquisitor; "when and where was it?"

"Shall I tell?" asked Albert.

Amelia maintained a haughty silence.

"You do not object, and, really, I see no reason why you should. Mother, you have often wondered that I did not marry. This is the reason." He pointed to Amelia, who still stood draped in her long widow's veil, clasping the white-robed child in her arms.

"I was not to blame," she said calmly.

"You were to blame; you should not have let your father influence you."

"You should not have disputed with my father. He was older than you, and of course knew better."

"That is an exploded assumption. But I am not going to renew that discussion with you." Then with a suddenly-awakened tenderness he advanced and took from her tired arms the little girl, who was nodding heavily against her shoulder.

"There, sit down," he said gently. After all these years we may certainly let the old quarrel rest. I was so taken by surprise that I did not do justice to the tender feeling my heart has always retained for you."

"Tender feeling—quarrel! What in the name of heaven are you talking about?" cried Mrs. Fargo, impatiently.

"I am going to tell you," returned Albert, laying the head of the sleeping child against his breast, and beginning to walk the floor. "How like you she is, Amelia," he said, looking fondly at her. "See, mother, this should have been your grandchild. Yes, we were engaged. You remember, Amelia, the night I proposed? It was after the ball at the college, and we were walking home together through the moonlit village street. You wore rose-pink silk, with tulle over it, and the tulle was all in tatters, but you looked as lovely as an angel; and you said 'Yes' without hesitation, like the frank, sweet girl you were. Ah! we were very happy."

"But you would always dispute with papa about the proper treatment in fevers, and the giving of calomel, and all that," said Amelia, sadly. "Papa, who had practiced medicine forty years, and who of course knew so much better."

"Ah! don't speak of that," pleaded Albert humbly, melting more and more, wrought upon not by memory alone, but by that inexplicable tenderness that will flow out about a little head nestled against the breast; "I own that I was wrong."

"You admit it, at last!" exclaimed Amelia, with an air of triumph.

"Wrong in disputing, I mean; not in the principle.

"You cling to your heresy? Papa said it was flat heresy."

"What have medical theories to do with my loving you?" he asked, pausing before her and looking earnestly at her. "You married, to please you father, an old-school physician, twenty years older than yourself. Did his medical orthodoxy make you happy?"

She did not reply.

"Tell me," he insisted, "were you happy with him?"

"You shan't question me so," she replied, making a last struggle. "Give me my baby. I don't love to have any one hold her but myself."

"See how sweetly she is sleeping in my arms, Amelia. I have never been so happy since the night we walked home from the dance together. Doesn't your heart tell you you owe me some reparation for all the happiness you have kept back from me?"

Amelia fluttered her fan and looked at the floor. It was a stained floor she noticed.

"Let me keep the baby," he urged. "Let me teach her to call me papa."

A faint smile curved Amelia's lips, but she did not look up. He bent on one knee before her.

"Say yes again, dear," he whispered. "I'll be so good to you both."

The smile grew more decided, and she bent forward as if to kiss the child's fair temple, but Albert, perhaps misinterpreting her design, bent forward also, and the kiss fell upon his mustached lip.

Mrs. Trim and Mrs. Fargo, who had tiptoed from the room a few moments before, were embracing each other in the sitting room with tears of irrepressible laughter. Half an hour later Mrs. Fargo returned to the parlor, thoughtfully overturning a chair as she came through the hall.

"Well," she said, "if you two have come to a place where you can leave off, perhaps you will come to dinner."

"We are resolved never to leave off," said Albert, "but dinner will not be amiss."

"I'm afraid it will be a very much amiss," observed his mother. "It has been waiting an hour [illegible]"

"Never mind," rejoined Mrs. Fargo cheerfully, "we'll wash it down with phials of Nux [illegible]"

The well known firm of William A. Drown & Co., late of New York and of Philadelphia, Boston and Chicago, one of the largest manufacturers of umbrellas in the United States, announce that they will retire from business and go into liquidation on account of the poor health of William A. Drown. Creditors will be paid in full.

Jackets for Women Who Wish to Look Stout.

Clara Belle in Cincinnati Enquirer.

The short cloak jacket or the jersey is the most popular vestment for morning walks or traveling, but jackets of ribbed-velvet or corduroy velveteen are also much worn, and the short mantelet, either with or without long ends in front, is seen in broche velvet, grenadine lined with bright or black silks or surahs; and, for afternoon or evening wear, the Figaro or Carmen jacket, also in velvet gauze broche, is likewise adopted. This coquettish little garment must be seen to be fully understood and appreciated, but I will try to describe it. It is tight fitting back and front, cut very short, especially over the hips. The bottom is trimmed with a lace flounce, caught up in draperies with jet ornaments. There is no special manner of draping this lace basque, the object of which is to give an air of unstudied grace to the garment. There are no sleeves in this jacket, but a deep lace flounce, plaited in at the shoulders, falls over the arm to the elbow, and this, it its turn, is covered by a deep epaulet or over sleeve of rich jet beaded network, the loops and pendants of which fall as low as the lace flounce itself—that is to say, from ten to twelve inches in length. Ladies who are young, or who, not being stout, wish to appear so, wear these Figaro jackets or very small mantelets.

Types of Croakers.

A lady, while the dentist was busy with her teeth, uttered dismal groans. "You seem to be in acute pain, madam," said the sympathizing dentist; "do I hurt you much?" "Oh, not in the least; but I do love to groan." That woman is a type. She represents the croakers, of whom the Scientific Californian thus speaks:

There is a certain class of people who are never happy except when they are predicting that the country is going to the dogs. They are always filled with gloomy forebodings about the future.

If there is a strike in a town in Connecticut, they feel certain that the country is going to be turned into a commune, and the streets are to run with blood.

They take a positive delight in predicting late frosts, and they regard the grasshopper and cotton-worm as friends and brethren.

It rarely ever happens that any of their predictions come to pass, but that does not discourage them in the least. They keep on, hoping for something worse to turn up in the future.

Home Life.

The morality of happiness is discussed in the Popular Science Monthly by a writer who says of home life: "Consider home life, for example. In nearly every home there are those who are disposed to take unfair advantage of the rest; and they are far better restrained by the quiet resistance of their attempts than in any other way—certainly far better than by yielding, continued till nothing but the anger roused by some attempt, more barefaced than the rest, moves to resistance. We see this especially exemplified in the families of careless parents—unselfish, perhaps in a sense, but really negligent of their duties. It has been said for this reason that unselfish parents have commonly selfish children, which seems contrary to the law of heredity, but illustrates rather the natural influence of defective training. The fact really is that the children of selfish parents are as a rule more selfish in character than those of the unselfish; they grow up to be as unpleasant in their ways as the children of careless, unwatchful parents; and their unpleasantness is more apt to be permanent. Yet the unchecked ways of children whose parents yield unwisely to them illustrate well on a small scale (even though happily the mischief is often transient) how the assertion of just claims, and the restraint of wrong-doing, involve a form of egotism which must be regarded as a duty."

Save the Children—Croup will come, be Prepared for it.

Croup will attack the children; it cannot well be avoided, but the "little ones" can be saved terrible racking pain and torture, and the parents sorrow and anguish, by having a bottle of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil at hand to give them on the first appearance of Croup. It never fails to give relief. One mother writes:—"My little girl had Croup of the worst form, and Thomas' Eclectric Oil relieved when everything else failed. Five minutes after the first dose she was quite easy."

Take a child screaming with pain from a burn, and you can immediately stop the pain with DR. THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL. As it is almost impossible to protect the rising generation from an occasional burn, fathers and mothers should provide for the emergency by keeping DR. THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL handy. It is just as good for a scald, a frost bite, bruise, a strain, and heals a cut quickly.

When the children cough, Eclectric Oil will at once stop the cough.

When they have colds, it will cure them quicker than anything you can use.

If throats are sore, rub Eclectric Oil around the tonsils, and a few drops given internally will cure in 12 hours.

Rev. Benjamin F. Martain, of Long Branch, and Mrs. Caleb Hurdle, one of his parishioners, are missing, and are supposed to have gone off together.

A Printer's Error.

Sweet are the uses of adversity, the printer's copy said, but he set it up, sweet are the uses of advertising. Sweet, indeed, to those who in sickness and suffering have seen the advertisement of some sovereign remedy, which upon trial has brought them from death's door. "The best thing I ever saw in my paper was the advertisement of Dr. Pierce's 'Golden Medical Discovery,'" is again and again the testimony of those who have been healed by it of lung disease, bronchial affections, tumors, ulcers, liver complaints and the ills to which flesh is heir.

The Logan National bank closed at West Liberty, O., caused by the cashier loaning nearly all the available funds to one firm. The bank had a capital of only $50,000.

[illegible] power in either sex, however induced, speedily, thoroughly and permanently cured. Address, with three letter stamps for reply and book of particulars, World's Dispensary Medical Association, 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

New York parties have bought twenty-six thousand acres of land, a portion under cultivation, near Las Vegas Springs, N. M. The purpose is to found an Episcopal colony of [illegible] people, in connection with which an educational institution will be established.

[illegible] Look Well to the Name. The only genuine German Hop Bitters are those made by Dr. C. D. Warner, whose name [illegible] every bottle and [illegible]

Joseph Sarver, at Indiana, Pa., and Michael Murray, at Evansville, in the same state, paid the debt of nature and the law on the gallows Tuesday.

"Nip't in the Bud!"

Sad to say, many a good thing attains to nothing more than a fair beginning. On the other hand it is a matter for congratulation that the growth of some evil things may be also promptly frustrated. A large proportion of the cases of the most wide-spread and fatal of diseases—consumption have their inception in nasal catarrh. Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy is pleasant, soothing and effectual. Try it. It has cured thousands. All druggists.

Two frame dwellings owned by Nels Nelson, valued at $1,600, and the residence of Mr. Stearns, in Eau Claire, were burned on Sunday. Stearns' loss, $1,500.

"Buchu-Paiba." Quick, complete, cure all annoying kidney and urinary diseases. $1.

Allen's Iron Tonic Bitters build up and tone the system. All genuine bear the signature of J. P. Allen, Druggist, St. Paul. Minn.

For a cold in the head, there is nothing so good as Piso's Remedy for Catarrh.

Prof. J. Lord Taylor died at Andover, Mass., aged seventy-three years. He was one of the most eminent divines of the Congregational church.

Sportsmen all through this section of the country, say the Parker Repeating Breech-loading shot gun is the best and truest they ever handled. See advertisement in another column.—Peck's Sun.

According to the Army and Navy Gazette, Lieut. J. M. Burns, Seventeenth infantry, has been appointed aide-de-camp to Gen. Stanley.

"Rough on Itch" cures humors, eruptions, ringworms, tetter, salt rheum, frosted feet, chilblains.

Just So.

A lady reader writes to say that she has been losing her hair and wants to know what she shall do to prevent it. Either keep your bureau drawer locked or get a bottle of Carboline the great Petroleum Hair Renewer.

Frazer Axle Grease is the best. Sold everywhere.

The low price of wheat caused the failure of Macnider & Co., of Bismarck, for $48,000, with $30,000 assets.

An Invaluable Remedy.—None except those who have suffered all the horrors of Dyspepsia can fully appreciate the value and efficacy of Perry Davis' Pain Killer, a sovereign remedy for this distressing disease in all its forms is used internally and externally, test its virtues.

A twelve-year-old girl in Lewiston, Me., has recently become the mother of a child which weighed three pounds at birth.

"Rough on Rats." Clears out rats, mice, flies, roaches, bed-bugs, ants, vermin, chipmunks. 15c.

Don't Be Swindled.

The only genuine German Hop Bitters and White Wine of Tar Syrup are Dr. C. D. Warner's whose name appears on every bottle, label and wrapper of the genuine.

The personal estate of the late Bishop Matthew Simpson is valued at $93,083.

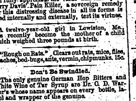
"Rough on Corns." 15c. Ask for it. Complete cure, hard or soft corns, warts, bunions.

Pure Cod Liver Oil made from selected livers, on the sea-shore, by Caswell, Hazard & Co., New York. It is absolutely pure and sweet. Patients who have once taken it prefer it to all others. Physicians have decided it superior to any of the other oils in market.

Chapped Hands, Face Pimples, and rough Skin cured by using Juniper Tar Soap, made by Caswell, Hazard & Co., New York.

PILES Itching or Bleeding, relieved and permanently cured by Cole's Carbolisalve. Get the Genuine. 25 cents and 75 cents at druggists or by mail. J. W. COLE & CO., Prop's, Black River Falls, Wis.

ST. JACOBS OIL



TRADE MARK

THE GREAT GERMAN REMEDY FOR PAIN.

CURES Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Lumbago, Backache, Headache, Toothache, Sore Throat, Swellings, Sprains, Bruises, Burns, Scalds, Frost Bites, AND ALL OTHER BODILY PAINS AND ACHES.

Sold by Druggists and Dealers everywhere. Fifty Cents a bottle. Directions in 11 Languages.

THE CHARLES A. VOGELER CO. (Successors to A. VOGELER & CO.) Baltimore, Md., U.S.A.

TO THE PEOPLE !

This Should Be Read By All.

It Treats on a Subject of Interest to Every Family.

Important Intelligence from the Old Country, Where Cholera has Prevailed.

ASIATIC CHOLERA.

Almost every case cured with

PERRY DAVIS'

Pain-Killer

[From Rev. R. Telford, missionary in China, now visiting his home in Pennsylvania.]

WASHINGTON, PENN.

DEAR SIRS,—During a residence of some ten years as a missionary in Siam and China, I found your Vegetable Pain Killer a most valuable remedy for that fearful scourge, the cholera. In administering the medicine, I found it most effectual to give a teaspoonful of Pain-Killer in a gill of hot water, sweetened with sugar, then, after about fifteen minutes, begin to give about a tea-spoonful of the same mixture every few minutes until relief was obtained. Apply hot applications to the extremities. Bathe the stomach with the Pain-Killer clear, and and the limbs briskly. Of those who had the cholera, and took the medicine faithfully in the way stated above, eight out of ten recovered.

Truly yours, R. TELFORD.

The late Rev. Dr. Granger repeatedly expressed his belief that he owed his life to the timely use of PERRY DAVIS'S PAIN-KILLER. During his recent visit to the missions in Burmah, he had a severe attack of the cholera, and was immediately relieved by the use of the Pain-Killer.

Directions accompany each bottle.

Price 25 cts., 50 cts., and $1 per bottle.

J. N. HARRIS & CO., Limited,

Cincinnati, Ohio.

Proprietors for the Southern and Western States.

For sale by all Medicine Dealers.

Thirty Years Record.

HUNT'S KIDNEY & LIVER REMEDY NEVER KNOWN TO FAIL

Endorsed by Physicians.

IT IS A SPECIFIC FOR Kidney & Liver Troubles [illegible]

IT IS RELIABLE in curing Bright's Disease, Pains in the Back, Loins or Side, Retention or Non-Retention of Urine.

HIGHLY RECOMMENDED [illegible]

IT WORKS PROMPTLY [illegible]

USE IT AT ONCE. [illegible]

HUNT'S REMEDY CO., Providence, [illegible] SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

"I owe my Restoration to Health and Beauty to the CUTICURA REMEDIES."

Testimonial of a Boston lady.

DISFIGURING Humors, Humiliating Eruptions Itching Tortures, Scrofula, Salt Rheum and Infantile Humors, cured by the CUTICURA REMEDIES.

CUTICURA RESOLVENT, the new blood purifier, cleanses the blood and perspiration of impurities and poisonous elements, and thus removes the cause.

CUTICURA, the great Skin Cure, instantly allays Itching and Inflammation, clears the Skin and Scalp, heals Ulcers and Sores, and restores the Hair.

CUTICURA SOAP, an exquisite Skin Beautifier and Toilet Requisite, prepared from CUTICURA, is indispensable in treating Skin Diseases, Baby Humors, Skin Blemishes, Chapped and Oily Skin.

CUTICURA REMEDIES are absolutely pure, and the only infallible Blood Purifiers and Skin Beautifiers.

Sold everywhere. Price, Cuticura, 50 cents, Soap, 25 cents; Resolvent, $1. POTTER DRUG AND CHEMICAL CO., BOSTON, MASS.

DON'T SEND US MONEY but name, and receive our new sample Book FREE. Capitol Card Co., Hartford, Conn.

TUTT'S PILLS

25 YEARS IN USE.

The Greatest Medical Triumph of the Age!

SYMPTOMS OF A TORPID LIVER.

Loss of appetite, Bowels costive, Pain in the head, with a dull sensation in the back part, Pain under the shoulder-blade, Fullness after eating, with a disinclination to exertion of body or mind, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, with a feeling of having neglected some duty, Weariness, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, Headache over the right eye, Restlessness, with fitful dreams, Highly colored Urine, and CONSTIPATION.

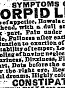
TUTT'S PILLS are especially adapted to such cases, one dose effects such a change of feeling as to astonish the sufferer. They Increase the Appetite, and cause the body to Take on Flesh, thus the system is nourished, and by their Tonic Action on the Digestive Organs, Regular Stools are produced. Price 25c. 44 Murray St., N.Y.

TUTT'S HAIR DYE.

GRAY HAIR OR WHISKERS changed to a GLOSSY BLACK by a single application of this DYE. It imparts a natural color, acts instantaneously. Sold by Druggists, or sent by express on receipt of $1.

Office, 44 Murray St., New York.

HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED



STOMACH BITTERS

The reputation of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters as a preventive of epidemics, a stomachic, an invigorant, a general restorative, and a specific for fever and ague, indigestion, billious affections, rheumatism, nervous debility, constitutional weakness, is established upon the sound basis of more than twenty years experience, and can no more be shaken by the claptrap nostrums of unscientific pretenders, than the everlasting hills by the winds that rustle through their defiles. For sale by all Druggists and Dealers generally.

The BUYERS' GUIDE is issued Sept. and March, each year: 224 pages, 8½ x 11½ inches, with over 3,300 illustrations—a whole picture gallery. Gives wholesale prices direct to consumers on all goods for personal or family use. Tells how to order, and gives exact cost of everything you use, eat, drink, wear, or have fun with. These invaluable books contain information gleaned from the markets of the world. We will mail a copy Free to any address upon receipt of the postage—8 cents. Let us hear from you. Respectfully,

MONTGOMERY WARD & CO.

227 & 229 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

ONE DOLLAR FOR THE WEEKLY PIONEER PRESS TWELVE MONTHS ★

AGENTS WANTED to sell the only authentic life of GEN. JOHN A. LOGAN. It is an admirably-written, cloth-bound book of nearly 500 pages, on heavy, tinted paper. Contains life-like steel portrait of Logan. Cover bears reproduction, in original colors, of Fifteenth Corps Banner, and striking illustration of Logan at the Battle before Atlanta, embossed in gold and black. Thousands selling, large profits to agents. Sent to any address post-paid upon receipt of One Dollar. Address THE NATIONAL TRIBUNE, Washington, D. C.

Mention paper in which you saw this.

REVOLUTION IN SHOT GUNS.

LOOK SPORTSMEN! $23 FOR $13 AS PER SPECIAL OFFER

The Parker Repeating Breechloading Shot Gun.

Equal in Capacity to 4 Double Barreled Shot Guns. Shoots 8 Rounds with one Loading. 3 Patents.

The question has long been asked, Why cannot a Repeating Shot Gun be made on a similar principle as the Winchester and other Repeating Rifles? After years of experimenting we have solved this difficult problem, and we now offer, as a result of this great achievement, the Parker Repeating 8 Shot Breechloading Shot Gun, pronounced by all sportsmen who have tested it to be par excellence the greatest discovery yet made in firearms. It will supersede all other shot guns, and is even now causing a stampede among gunners who purchase it at sight. Description: The Magazine holds 8 Rounds; can be loaded in 30 seconds, and the 8 Rounds fired consecutively in 15 seconds. It is Breechloading with Automatic Shell Ejector, which throws out the fired shell and reloads itself at the same time by the simple Lever Movement. It also has the Patent Magazine Cut Off, and can be instantly converted into a Single loader if desired. The Locks, Mountings, and Heel Plate are made of the very best Steel, and Case Hardened. The Barrels are of uniform length, and made of the Finest Blued Steel and guaranteed U. S. Government Proof. Stock is of selected Walnut, oiled and polished. The ammunition can be procured from dealers. Its parts are so substantially connected it will never get out of order. The action is so simple even a boy can comprehend and handle it with perfect safety. We caution gun buyers against irresponsible firms who deceptively advertise and offer bogus, altered, and toy guns, dear at any price, and unsafe to shoot. We send with each gun our warrantee, as follows:

Read Our Warrantee. The Parker Magazine Repeating 8 Shot Breechloading Shot Gun, as offered by us, we warrant to be as represented in Cut and Reading, and also to be made of the finest materials, and hand made. If found otherwise, we will refund money or satisfactorily exchange for other guns. Signed, Parker & Co.

We will offer a limited number of these excellent guns at $17.10 each (the first cost), as per special and limited coupon offer. Our reasons for doing so are manifold, we want to quickly and immediately place and distribute this season a certain number over the United States. Our experience is, one single gun, when shown around and handled by a sportsman, will sell dozens in his vicinity. This is our main reason in making this big reduction, as we well know duplicate orders at our Regular Rates will follow the sale of one gun sold this way. This is where we make our profit, as no sportsman will hesitate to invest $23.00 for this superior of all shot guns when he sees it. It sells itself, and shows double the value.

ACCURATE REPRESENTATION

ENDORSED BY SPORTSMEN EVERYWHERE. AT 100 YARDS HAS NEVER FAILED TO KILL

WEIGHT 7½ TO 9 LBS. BORES 12 TO 16

WE CHALLENGE THE ARMOURERS OF THE WORLD FOR ITS EQUAL IN RAPIDITY OF ACTION, BRILLIANT EXECUTION, ACCURACY, BALANCE, & COMPACTNESS, LIGHT RECOIL, PRECISION AT LONG RANGE, HEAVY OR LIGHT SHOOTING.

Our Special and Limited Offer. Upon receipt of this coupon and $13.00 before Nov. 25, 1884, we agree to securely pack and box free of all charges and ship to any one address in the United States One Parker Magazine Repeating 8 Shot Breechloading Shot Gun, with one dozen Loaded Shells free. But after Nov. 25, 1884, and up to Jan. 1, 1885, the price will be $15.50. After Jan. 1, 1885, the standard price will be $23.00. Only one gun will be sent to any one person at $13.00. Our object is distribution; and to get the gun at this price, you must cut out this coupon and return it to us with your order.

COUPON

We will send C. O. D. with privilege to examine, but on account of trouble of shipping, tracing, and charges of C. O. D. we charge $1.50 extra to Coupon Offer. Not a single gun has been returned, they give such good satisfaction. This fact alone is high praise. Testimonials are easily manufactured. The test of the pudding is in the eating. We will furnish the names of hundreds of purchasers who will gladly answer any inquiry about the merits of this firearm. We extend an invitation to sportsmen to call and examine this, the Coming Shot Gun. Money can be sent by Registered Letter, Money Order, Express, or by Check and Draft. Address all orders to PARKER & CO., Gun Row, 88 Chambers St. (near Broadway), New York.

This Advertisement will not appear again.

[illegible] So as to give our entire attention to the sale of this Repeating Shot Gun, we will close out our stock of Fine Double Barreled Breechloading Shot Guns at prices from $12.50 upward, worth double.

PARSONS' PURGATIVE PILLS MAKE NEW RICH BLOOD

Positively cure SICK HEADACHE, Biliousness, and all LIVER and BOWEL Complaints, MALARIA, BLOOD POISON, and Skin Diseases (ONE PILL A DOSE). For Female Complaints these Pills have no equal. "I find them a valuable Cathartic and Liver Pill."—Dr. T. M. Palmer, Monticello, Fla. [illegible] Sold everywhere, or sent by mail for 25 cts. in stamps. Valuable information FREE. I. S. JOHNSON & CO., BOSTON, MASS.

"I Have Suffered!"

With every disease imaginable for the last three years. Our Druggist, T. J. Anderson, recommending
"Hop Bitters" to me,
I used two bottles!
Am entirely cured, and heartily recommend Hop Bitters to every one. J. D. Walker, Buckner, Mo.

I write this as a
Token of the great appreciation I have of your Hop
* * * Bitters. I was afflicted
With inflammatory rheumatism ! ! !
For nearly
Seven years and no medicine seemed to do me any Good! ! !
Until I tried two bottles of your Hop Bitters, and to my surprise I am as well to-day as ever I was. I hope "You may have abundant success"
"In this great and"
Valuable medicine:
Anyone! * * wishing to know more about my cure?
Can learn by addressing me, E. M. Williams, 1103 16th street, Washington, D. C.

——I consider your
Remedy the best remedy in existence
For Indigestion, kidney —Complaint
"And nervous debility. I have just"
Returned
"From the south in a fruitless search for health, and find that your Bitters are doing me more
Good!
Than anything else;
A month ago I was extremely
"Emaciated ! ! !"
And scarcely able to walk. Now I am Gaining strength! and "Flesh!"
And hardly a day passes but what I am complimented on my improved appearance, and it is all due to Hop Bitters! J. Wickliffe Jackson,
—Wilmington, Del.

None genuine without a bunch of green Hops on the white label. Shun all the vile, poisonous stuff with "Hop" or "Hops" in their name.

WHITE BEAVER'S COUGH CREAM Heals Diseased Lungs.

Send stamp for my circular, "$750 a year, or, How I Manage Poultry." How to make an Incubator costing less than $5. How to build cheap poultry-houses, preserve eggs, cure cholera, make hens lay, &c. A new book. C. C. BENEY, Abilene, Kansas. Breeder P. R. Fowls and P. C. Swine. Swine circulars free.

LEARN TELEGRAPHY, or SHORT-HAND and TYPE WRITING HERE. Situations furnished. Address Valentine Bros., Janesville, Wis.

OPIUM Morphine Habit Cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till Cured. DR. J. STEPHENS, Lebanon, Ohio.

DYKE'S BEARD ELIXIR Forces luxuriant Mustache, Whiskers, or hair on bald heads in 20 to 30 days. No injury. Easily used. Beats the world. 2 or 3 Pkgs does the work. Will prove it or forfeit $100.00. Price per Package with directions sealed and postpaid 25 cents, 3 for 50 cts. stamps or silver. L. A. L. SMITH & CO., Agents, Palatine, Ills.

MORPHINE and CHLORAL HABITS EASILY CURED. BOOK FREE. Dr. J. C. Hoffman, Jefferson, Wisconsin. OPIUM

BUSINESS CHANCE A man in any live town can do a profitable business in our goods alone, or in connection with furniture or any class of house-furnishing goods or groceries, small capitel and large profits. For particulars address. F. A. PAYNE, 199 East Seventh st., St. Paul Minn.

GUNS ShotGuns Revolvers, Rifles, Etc. Large Ill. Catalogue free. Address Great Western Gun Works, Pittsburgh, Pa.

25 CTS PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION 25 CTS

Gossamer Garments Free!

To introduce "Happy Days," our new 16 page Illustrated Magazine, we will send free to any lady sending 26 cts. in stamps for three months subscription, two Ladies' Full Size Waterproof Gossamer Garments with catalogue of other rubber goods, provided they will show them to their friends and induce other sales. Address Pubs Happy Day, Hartford, Conn.

Dr. Spinney & Co.

Treat all Chronic and Nervous Diseases. Young men who may be suffering with Weakness, Nervous Debility, Despondency, Aversion to Society, Kidney troubles, or any similar diseases, can here find a safe and speedy cure. There are many of the age of thirty to sixty who are often troubled with uncomfortable symptoms, accompanied by weakening of the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. Examination reveals the fact that the patient's system is undergoing a depletion which rapidly exhausts every vital function. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause. The doctor will guarantee a cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration. Pamphlet, with full particulars, sent free to any address. Call on or address DR. SPINNEY & CO., 37 S. Third st., Minneapolis, Minn.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND IS A POSITIVE CURE FOR All those painful Complaints and Weaknesses so common to our best FEMALE POPULATION.

Price $1 in liquid, pill or lozenge form.

Its purpose is solely for the legitimate healing of disease and the relief of pain, and that it does all it claims to do, thousands of ladies can gladly testify.

It will cure entirely all Ovarian troubles, Inflammation and Ulceration, Falling and Displacements, and consequent Spinal Weakness, and is particularly adapted to the change of life.

It removes Faintness, Flatulency, destroys all craving for stimulants, and relieves Weakness of the Stomach. It cures Bloating, Headaches, Nervous Prostration, General Debility, Sleeplessness, Depression and Indigestion. That feeling of bearing down, causing pain, and backache, is always permanently cured by its use.

Send stamp to Lynn, Mass., for pamphlet. Letters of inquiry confidentially answered. For sale at druggists.

HOW I WON MY WIFE.

Translated from the German by Rhoda.

The opening of the Grand Industrial Exposition had brought me to the city in the early part of the spring of 1879. Tired from long standing and walking around, more tired still by the shows and wonderful exhibitions of the mighty progress of civilization at home displayed at this exposition, I turned my steps homeward one afternoon earlier than usual. I had taken leave of my friends, making an engagement for a reunion later on in the evening, and directed my course to one of the quiet quarters of the city in which my hotel was situated. The less frequent the bazaars and shop-windows became so much more insignificant became the number of foot passengers on the streets. But it seemed to me a much more stylish looking part of the city than the public drives of the central portion, because here the high, grave-looking houses were either Government offices or were inhabited by city officials or wealthy private citizens.

Before me walked for some distance a young and elegantly attired lady. At a curve of the street I succeeded in getting a fleeting glimpse of her profile, and felt myself thereby urged to observe carefully even the knot of golden, blonde, sunshiny hair, half covered by the dark English hat, as well as the extremely delicate, graceful figure of the still youthful girl.

Suddenly her step faltered, she half turned, lingered for a moment, and then walked hastily toward me, past me, and back over the road by which she had just come. Not far ahead of us came sauntering along an officer, with a lady on his arm, gayly chatting and laughing. Could they have frightened my Unknown? A sudden interest stirred within me; I wished to gain some insight into her strange conduct, and therefore made a hasty turn, following her and keeping only a few paces behind.

Then I saw how she pressed the little clenched hand passionately to her heart, and with tears in her violet eyes and a half sad, half scornful expression, murmured something to herself which my excited imagination fancied to be: "O, foolish heart, why art thou not quiet; why mounts the blood to my cheek and compels me to turn back lest I betray myself!"

This childish ebullition moved me unconsciously, and a feeling of jealousy stole over me against that officer whom I had involuntarily thought of in connection with this young girl. If I had only dared to address her; but that I could not bring myself to do. She evidently belonged to the first class of society, and nothing was further from my thoughts than a desire to insult or intrude upon her. But fortune favored me. A small package which she had hitherto carried slipped from her arm without her having remarked it. Quickly I picked it up and gave it back to its fair owner, with a few polite words. She looked at me with a surprised, somewhat haughty glance, as I remained standing before her rather longer than was absolutely necessary. Her large, violet, childlike eyes were still filled with tears, and the delicate face was deathly pale.

"I thank you" she said, briefly, taking the package from my hand. But I did not allow myself to be dismissed thus quickly.

"You are not well, my dear young lady," said I; "will you not command my services?" Something in my voice, perhaps also, my quiet respectful manner, seemed to inspire her with confidence. She looked at me with wonder in her beautiful, tearful eyes, and said, less curtly than before:

"You are very kind, sir. I would like to have a droschke."

I bowed, and while she stood at the window of a flower store, I hurried down the street, and soon found an empty vehicle, in which I joyfully, and with a gentle feeling of expectation of what would happen next, drove back to my little Unknown.

Meanwhile she had regained her self-command; only her hand yet trembled as she in entering the carriage laid it lightly in mine, and it felt ice-cold through her glove.

"Your residence?" I asked. She named one of the elegant streets in the west end, and as I called the address to the coachman I knew how certain I would be not to forget it myself. I closed the carriage door; she then bowed her lovely head at the open window and thanked me for my service; but she spoke confusedly, and in her embarrassment her pale cheeks colored with a rosy blush, so that she appeared even more charming than before.

"May I call to-morrow and inquire after your health?" I ventured to ask; but she seemed taken by surprise at the question and hesitated to answer, while the blush deepened on her cheek.

"Hi!" cried the coachman at this moment; the horse started off, and as I stepped again on the side walk the vehicle was already rattling away.

As if in a dream I entered my hotel. I could not refrain from laughing at myself; this ardor, this interest about a young lady entirely unknown to me—more beautiful, more dazzling visions than this childish, shy girl had often during my life crossed my path without having attracted me particularly. I was a riddle to myself; however, I made the firm resolve to find out by to-morrow some particulars about this new street acquaintance.

A few hours later I sat with a number of pleasant friends in one of the best restaurants under the lindens. The conversation was lively and cheerful, and there were many ladies and gentlemen continually going in and out.

In the neighborhood of the table at which we sat and made ourselves merry was gathered a large party, joyous and gay like ours.

Some young girlish face before us having attracted me I, involuntarily, looked around for my Unknown, but there—yes, certainly, there he was next to the little blonde coquette, with the seductive little snub nose and the showy white felt hat—the officer of Lutzower street, the same before whom my little friend had taken flight, for although I had no foundation for the idea, since we had met many other men on that street, I could not help thinking of the large, showy, handsome, but utterly blasé and insolent looking lieutenant of infantry in connection with her.

"Who is that pale officer?" asked I of my friend Erich.

"Where?"

I indicated the direction to him. "The one with the black beard, next to the little blonde lady."

"Ha!" said Erich, and laughed. "Why, he is the lately betrothed, the handsome Paumwolf. I thought you surely must know him."

"No, no; but what is the story about him?" I inquired. [illegible]

"Well, nothing more than that yonder blonde has—with some trouble, it must be admitted—captured him for life, after he has caused nearly ninety-nine others to dream of the same happy fate. For myself, I never could have attempted such an elegiac calm after breaking off a love affair. But he has been unfortunate. Young ladies with and without pedigree, with and without money-bags bow down to him after he has devoted himself to them half an hour, entirely conquered by his irresistible fascinations. And it is just the same with the old ones. Many, to be sure, allege, indeed, that behind that titanic brow there is nothing but a cornfield, and that a thrashed-out one!"

While Erich had been speaking my eyes had wandered away from Paumwolf. His pale face, framed in by curling black beard and hair, reminded me, in fact, of the Zeus of Otricoli. To me it was in the highest degree repugnant [illegible]

"Enough tears have recently been flowing from beautiful eyes, since his betrothal with Fraulein Josepha Maier has appeared in the Gazette. [illegible]"

"Maier?" I involuntarily asked.

"Yes," laughed Erich, "simply Maier, [illegible] but passably pretty and immensely rich, of course. And since Fraulein Josepha does not look Jewish, Paumwolf can endure that his father-in-law in spe should have formerly been a cloth merchant in Frankfort-on-the-Main. [illegible]"

The conversation having once turned on the handsome Paumwolf, it did not soon leave the subject. On the other side of our table the people were whispering about him, and one said [illegible]

"It is quite incomprehensible to me that he [illegible] he so recently courted. The girl is altogether [illegible] assessor, who sat at our table and seemed to have heard our dialogue called out to me, "I can give you the address. Baron—Kurprinzen street, No. 35."

[illegible]

Now that was the very dwelling of my Unknown. I felt all the blood rush to my heart; then thanking him for the information, took my hat and stick, and without waiting to reply to the jesting remarks of those remaining at the table, left the place to saunter, without aim or object, through the moonlit streets.

How, after long wandering hither and thither, I finally found myself before the much-thought-of house in Kurprinzen street I surely cannot tell. I went on the opposite side of the street and looked at the house standing before me in the clear moonlight. In the midst of blooming gardens the dainty villa rose, with its antique, vine-covered and many columned gallery in front like the enchanted castles in story books. And the little fay who wandered about therein? Was she still awake, sheltered behind the one single window of the gable end, which was still lighted—grieving, perhaps, about the unfaithful Paumpwolf? With pity, scorn and—yes, I will confess it—burning jealousy in my heart, I at length turned my steps homeward to my quiet lodging.

After a rather sleepless and restless night, and several anxious morning hours I made my way at the proper time for visiting, to Kurprinzen street. Now I was on the steps. Oh, the beating of my heart, the almost painful oppression that came over me! My pulses had not throbbed so wildly since long years ago, when the first volley of musketry whistled round my ears. In the lonely old family estate of Barwalde in the Mark, the last few years had passed away so quietly and monotonously; grave studies and a practical application of knowledge gained in early and distant travels had occupied me so exclusively that the etiquette of the great world had become strange and unknown to me. And yet it was not timidity alone which caused the blood to fly like lightning through my veins, which made me remark with almost tender interest the elegant brass plate with the name engraved: "Von Gerdshof." Now! Courage! The bell is pulled! I am in for it!

An old servant dressed in livery answered my ring and on my asking if the master was at home, took my card and left me with the conventional "I will inquire;" but soon returned and opened for me the lofty folding door to the left of the entrance. His assurance that the master would be pleased to see me sounded very consoling to me.

Within the elegantly furnished salon I found the general, an old, dignified gentleman, with erect military bearing, a martial, but not unfriendly countenance and a long, gray beard, which however was carefully shaved from the broad chin. After I had expressed to him my pleasure at being able to help his daughter in her dilemma, and he had thanked me for the slight service—he seemed to be informed of everything and to have expected me somewhat—we passed from the usual forms of politeness to a lively conversation, that extended over every possible topic. The time passed as if on wings; almost an hour was thus spent in chatting with the amiable old gentleman, and yet Fraulein Eveline had not appeared. But when at parting the general said he hoped to see me often at his house during my stay in the city, I could not refrain from pressing his hand in deep heartfelt gratitude. Not long afterward I received a delicately-written card—decidedly a lady's handwriting—in which Herr General Von Gerdshof did himself the honor to invite Herr Baron Von T—— to dine. I must confess I never received an invitation with similar joy. What was the excitement and expectation of the first court ball, as compared with the impatient throbbing of my heart, with which I, on the appointed day, betook myself to the dinner. A numerous company had already assembled; many of the persons present were known to me, were indeed friends, so that I soon found myself most delightfully situated.

And the daughter of the house?

There stood Eveline with her friend, her graceful figure moving with bewitching grace among the guests; for she was obliged to assist that aged, somewhat conventional-looking lady in doing the honors of the house—the General's wife had been dead many years—and I could not help admiring the tact and self-possession with which she, in spite of her youth, so charmingly filled her position as hostess. Here she asked an old gentleman after the health of his sick spouse; there whispered some pleasant remark to a young lady about her tasteful toilet, or repelled a too gallant cavalier with a scornful glance or a saucy answer. With each and all she knew just the right tone to take. She was surrounded by all. Every one flocked about her, who, like an apparition out of a story book, moved around among those molded fashion plates. And yet there lay in her violet eyes, when she believed herself to be unobserved, a sad expression which did not accord with the conventional smile of the sweet, small mouth.

At length the signal for dinner was given. Eveline laid the tips of her dainty fingers on the arm of a tall blonde cavalier, a cousin of the family. To my great annoyance, my portion was Countess Soundes, no longer in the first bloom of youth. I must add I had secretly hoped to see Eveline's angelic head at my side. With a mien, which was certainly not very amiable I offered the Countess my arm and led her to the places designed for us. Though otherwise a most estimable lady, she almost drove me to despair with her loquacity, and while she even before soup inquired about my recent journey in the East and expressed a desire to hear something about my last new work, my glance strayed impatiently past the questioner in a vain search for Eveline. I had not had the opportunity to exchange one word with her. She had only nodded to me from across the room, pleasantly and confidingly, as to an old acquaintance.

Pretty soon I felt a gentle touch on my arm, and a voice only too well remembered asked shyly and at the same time saucily:

"Does mein Herr no longer recognize his protege?"

I turned quickly, and yes, there indeed was Eveline, who had been sitting next to me for full five minutes without my having observed her. My neighbor, the Countess, and Eveline's escort, the cousin in the Guards, very soon understood how much they might expect to be entertained by Eveline or myself during the four or five hours passed at the table. How the time sped and what were the general topics of conversation we never knew. But I was entirely happy during the whole time. Not once did I discover in her eyes that melancholy drooping which had before made me anxious. Oh, if I could only succeed in making her forget Paumwolf! To this fond, proud thought I concentrated all my mind and efforts. With rapture I noticed how her eyes hung so earnestly on my lips as I told her of my distant travels and of my restless wandering about from one distant land to another. And when I spoke of my dear solitary Barwalde, with its sombre fir trees, and its rush-grown ponds, of my immense library and the beautiful grand piano which I often trusted to the hands of my overseer, just to have some accompanying instrument to my beloved violoncello; when I said: "Surely, Fraulein Eveline also plays on the piano, and very much better, too, than my overseer," a thoughtful smile spread over the dear, sweet face. She loved music very much, she replied, and it would give her pleasure to accompany me some day.

"I hope you will do that at Barwalde," I cried passionately. She dropped her lids over her clear violet eyes and a deep blush spread over her cheek.

Eight days afterward Eveline was my betrothed. What did I care for all the Paumwolfs in the whole world?

On one of the very first days of our engagement we met the betrothed pair, Maier and Paumwolf, on the street.

"Shall we turn back, Evi?" I asked playfully, though I could not prevent a slight feeling of anxiety from raising in my heart. She became very grave for a moment, then nestling closer to my side, looked up at me with her innocent, childlike eyes.

"You know that I have left all that behind me," she said softly.

I pressed her arm more closely to me. "Oh, Evi, my own sweet Evi!" I was so happy, so proud that even the bold curiosity with which Lieutenant Paumwolf stared at us in passing could not irritate me.

Eveline and I have lived many years at our quiet old Barwalde, where the sun never seemed to have risen until Eveline's blonde head flitted through the house and grounds. But the happiest hours in our blissful life are those in which we sit confidently together after the cares and duties of the day are over, and the tones of the piano and violoncello mingle their sounds on the still evening air.

Romances sometimes occur outside of books. A very wealthy family in Providence, R. I., who had moved in the first circles and who lived in one of the finest residences on the [illegible]

VISIT TO AN INDIAN PRINCE.

From the Chicago Inter Ocean.

Baroda is the capital of the territory of one of the most powerful princes in India, the Guicowar. While traveling in India, in 1868 I had been informed that this prince received European travelers courteously, and was assured that, once established as his guest, I should assist at festivals and ceremonies which it would be difficult to witness at any other court in India. Thanks to numerous letters of introduction which I had procured from persons of influence at Bombay, I was certain to be well received by the prince, and to be able to gratify my strong desire to see a purely Mahrattah court. The officer with whom I was staying offered to introduce me to some influential people about the court. We accordingly proceeded to the city, which is connected with the English encampment by a a good road, nearly two mile long, passing through charming scenery.

At length we came to a large monumental gateway, flanked by high, round towers, the facade of which is painted with figures of monsters and divinities, and the Guicowar's soldiers presenting arms to us, we entered the city. After a short drive we alighted from our carriage before the palace of Tatia Sahib Kilidar, to whom I expressed a wish to be presented. This palace, a large brick building differs from the neighboring houses only in the richness of the carved woodwork and the profusion of color on its facade. The ground floor is laid out in shops, and a single door, very narrow, gives access to the interior. My companion, without hesitation, proceeded to ascend a dark staircase, nearly perpendicular, and so narrow that I could easily touch both walls with my elbows. It was closed in at the summit by a heavy trap door, which a servant opened and closed after us. "How," I asked, "can people who, I am told, live surrounded by almost supernatural luxury, condemn themselves to go up and down such a break-neck affair?" The captain explained the reason of this singularity.

The Mahrattan nobles came into this country as usurpers; mere peasants' sons, they had expelled the ancient nobility. Being exposed to the vengeance of the dispossessed hand-owners, each of them made his palace a fortress difficult of approach. Afterward their constant quarrels with the sovereign induced them to return, as a measure of precaution, to a system established as a precaution against the dagger of the assassin. The staircase always opens into a guard-room, and surprise is impossible, for one man could easily defend the passage against a hundred.

We traversed sundry large rooms, several courts and a labyrinth of corridors. The house seemed full of soldiers and attendants of the Kilidar; it was more like a barrack than a palace. Some were playing with dice, others singing to the accompaniment of the lute, and many were stretched, fast asleep, on the floor. On story after story we were received by an usher, bearing a silver wand, who showed us the way. When we reached the fifth floor we came on a spacious terrace, covering the whole palace, surrounded by elegant apartments with galleries in front supported on columns. Contrary to the European custom, which gives the upper story to servants, here the master of the house always occupies it himself; indeed, it is by far the coolest and pleasantest part of the house. Out of reach of the emanations from the bazaars, the apartments admit the air freely, and the terraces, stuccoed, and sheltered from the sun by thick awnings, are transformed into spacious rooms.

We were shown into the presence of Tatia Sahib, who advanced and shook hands with us. Taken unawares by our visit, he was still in undress, which was excused by the heat of the day and very graciously apologized for not having received me in a manner worthy of the honor I conferred upon him. We sat down on sofas, which were placed in a veranda supported by Moorish arcades, the walls of which were covered with glasses, pictures, and native curiosities. The Kilidar was a man of between twenty-five and thirty years of age, and the most perfect type of a Mahrattah. His bust, bare and bronzed was admirably formed; his features delicate and exceedingly handsome. His expression was somewhat fierce, although his large black eyes always in motion, his rich earrings, and pearl necklaces that hung down upon his breast, gave him an effeminate air. I had a long conversation with him about Europe. He assured me that the King would be happy to see me, and would do his best to make my sojourn agreeable. On taking leave, he made me a thousand protestations of friendship, begged me to consider his palace my own. Thence we called on several other nobles, and everywhere I met with the same warm reception. The Captain proposed that we should call on a great Hindoo lady, the widow of Harribakti, the late Keeper of the Royal Treasury, who, free from control, and of advanced ideas, liked to frequent good European society.

Rare, indeed, in that country, is the opportunity of entering the house of great fortune and high caste. The rules of the Zenana are so strict, the prejudices so deeply rooted, that even widows scarcely dare break through the "purdah screen," the word commonly used in India to designate harem life.

The Widow Haribakti received us in a room hung with damask and magnificently decorated. Draped in a thin veil of rose colored silk and half reclining on velvet cushions she shone forth in the midst of all her splendid surroundings. Her figure was of striking beauty. Her dress glittered with jewels and gold. When we entered she gracefully rose, and having shaken hands, invited us to take our seats on each side of her. She asked several questions about Europe, the manners and customs of the people, and above all the costumes of the ladies. My answers sometimes made her laugh, but what astonished her most was that our women of high caste could bring themselves to go out on foot into the streets and public promenades, enter lively and animated conversation on various subjects, and the English words she introduced indicated in the lady a degree of education that one would never expect to find within the walls of a [illegible]

[illegible] withdrew, astonished to find so much grace and amiability. The pansopari is a mixture of betel, areca and lime, which it is the custom to offer to persons of distinction when they are on the point of retiring from an interview—a mixture by no means agreeable to chew for the first time—but one soon gets used to it. The master of the house also pours rose-water on the hands and beards of his visitors. I returned to the camp delighted with my first excursion and utterly astounded at the facility with which I had received permission to these various Hindoo houses.

A SUCCESSFUL WOMAN SPECULATOR.

The Parsimonious "Princess of Wales" and Her Husband Worth $35,000,000.

From the New York World.

"One of the most daring and successful speculators in the world," said a prominent member of the stock exchange, "is the Princess of Wales."

"What!" ejaculated his hearer, "the Princess of Wales a speculator in stocks."

"The Princess of Wales I speak of is not the wife of the royal heir of the throne of Great Britain. This title has been given by common consent to a daughter of a rich old whaler of New Bedford, who died a number of years ago, leaving an immense fortune. This wealth she has doubled several times by her wonderful operations in stocks. I wonder you have never heard of her. You have certainly heard of her husband, who is in every way a much less remarkable person than she is. Until recently he was a prominent director and some time ago was, I believe, for a short period president of one of the largest railroads in this country. He is a noted speculator, and his name is not at all descriptive of his sagacity and shrewdness. He is a man of remarkable height, standing nearly seven feet high. He is well known both in the London and New York stock markets, at the former by a remarkable deal in Erie and at the latter for the part he took in advancing the prices several years ago of Louisville and Nashville.

"When the father of the lady of whom I first spoke died he left her $9,000,000. This made her one of the richest women in America, and as significant of the source of her wealth she was called the 'Princess of Wales' by those who knew of her. She inherited with her millions a talent for the acquisition of money and an overmastering passion to keep it. Of course she had many suitors, but among them all there was none who could match her fortune with his own. That was what she was looking for. Failing in this, she contented herself with a gentleman who could produce evidence of being worth $700,000. This he had made in the manilla trade. He was of a liberal disposition and lives in a generous manner. After his marriage, however, his wife's stronger intellect changed his disposition, and made him also the victim of a mania for saving.

"It is related of the early days of their courtship that in order to facilitate his entrance into her house he gave a liberal fee to the servant. Learning of it she nearly broke off all further intercourse with him, as she could never marry a man who exhibited such extravagance. When the marriage paper was made out she had it stipulated that all their joint living and personal expenses should be paid by him alone, notwithstanding that her fortune was ten or twelve times as large as his. Following their marriage came a grand career of accumulation. Not satisfied with a fortune of princely proportions, they proposed, by parsimony and speculation to double and triple it. The death of an aunt added $1,000,000 to the wife's treasure. She began immediately, however, to cut down what she called her husband's extravagant expenses.

"She compelled him to give up his elegant bachelor apartments and hire the most economical quarters. The birth of a son gave a more unselfish aspect to her passion for gain. It was not now for herself that she saved, but for her child. She made up her mind that he should be one of the richest—if not the richest—men in America. While coasting one day, however, he met with an accident which has made him a cripple for life. He also became subject to violent fits.

"An anecdote here will illustrate her extreme parsimony. They were boarding at Babylon, L. I., when the lad was attacked with convulsions. A doctor was sent for, but before his arrival the child had recovered and the 'Princess' waited at the window for the physician. As he drew up she shouted to him: 'Don't come in, doctor; he is all right now.' Thus she saved a doctor's fee. Under her direction their combined fortunes were so invested as to save as far as possible the payment of taxes. Though both Americans they hired two or three rooms in London, and this they announced as their residence though they pass most of their time in this country. He is about 55 years old and she about 50. The lad is about 15 years of age. They have rolled up their wealth until now I have no doubt that $35,000,000 scarcely represents its extent. Though possessed of an annual income of $3,000,000 I venture to say that their total expenses do not average more than $2,500 per year. Rather than pay for a cab I have known her to walk to a party through a foot of snow with a pair of old stockings drawn over her shoes. But they could not have created all this wealth simply by saving. No; the larger part of it is the result of successful speculations. She is remarkably shrewd in her investment in stocks and he is not far behind her in talent of this kind. He may be remembered as having made a million dollars in a few days in London by the rapid advance in Erie, following the expulsion of Gould from the management. He has also made large sums by his deals in Louisville and Nashville in this country. A peculiarity of their speculations is that they operate on separate accounts, and often without each other's knowledge. She has made her stock investments largely, it is said, through the banking house of John J. Cisco & Co. Her operations are large and daring, but almost uniformly successful. For a long time she made Reading a specialty and thought nothing of buying 20,000 or 30,000 shares at a time. Even during the recent depression in stocks they have generally been right on the market and have added to their immense accumulations. [illegible] She is undoubtedly the richest woman in the world except perhaps Queen Victoria and Mrs. Coutts Bartlett, rich as [illegible]

READS LIKE A ROMANCE.

The Story of Two Young Girls, Adopted in Babyhood, and Who Are Now Returned to Their Friends.

From the St. Louis Republican.

If walls have ears, as the adage asserts, then pine bounderies of the Mayor's office heard the details of a most romantic story yesterday morning. A gentleman occupying a high official position in the city government called at the Mayor's office in a sad mood and paid his adopted daughter's fare from St. Louis to some point in Arizona, where she was to join her own mother of whose existence she only recently became aware. The city official paid the money with a sigh, and as he received the ticket which was to be the instrument of transporting from him one whom he had learned to love as a daughter, his eyes became moist and his voice grew husky.

"Commodore, the history of that girls vicissitudes is a strange one."

"Come inside," said Commodore Smith, "and make Sergeant McGrew and myself your confidantes. We have hearts softened by constant contact with misery and can at least go out toward you in the way of sympathy."

The gentleman addressed ran the back of his hand rapidly over his eyes and followed the pair into the sanctum sanctorum of the Chief Executive of the city. Then the following tale was told:

In the year 1860 a happy family lived in Maryville, Cal., a husband, wife, and two children, both girls, one 4 and the other 2 years of age. Suddenly it became known that the father was becoming addicted to drink, and it was not long before he was a hopeless drunkard. His wife got a divorce from him, and the Court gave her the custody of the two children. Shortly afterward, while the latter were sick with the measles, the husband kidnapped them and took them East, and wrote to the wife stating that both the children had died. The mother, knowing the children were sick when torn from her side, believed the false missive, and mourned them as dead. Subsequently the man came to St. Louis with the children. Finding that his health was failing him, he made strenuous efforts to get his children adopted by persons in good circumstances. The younger child was adopted by a family which moved to Erie, Pa., and the oldest girl became a member of the family of an employe of one of the city institutions. Since then he has become the head of an important department of the city government. The child was adopted ten years ago. The father afterward led an aimless life, doing chores for saloons and writing bills of fare for restaurants, in return for which he received in the first instance occasional drinks and in the second occasional meals. About a year ago he obtained free transportation from the Mayor to Olney, Ill. Before leaving for that place, however, he had an interview with his oldest daughter, in the course of which he confided to her the story of her abduction, and the fact of her mother's existence.

He obtained from her a solemn promise not to repeat what he had told her till after his death. He bade his daughter farewell, and left her forever. He died in April last, and the daughter in St. Louis told her adopted parents what she knew of her antecedents. A rich bachelor uncle in Maryville, Cal., was written to, and it was learned in reply that the mother had married a wealthy judge in Arizona. A letter was then dispatched to the mother, and a few days ago a reply was received from the judge, her husband, inclosing $100, and asking the adopted parents to send the girl at once to him in Arizona. In the course of his letter the stepfather says:

"You are coming, my dear daughter, to loving hearts who have many years mourned you as dead. On your journey hither do not stint yourself. Take a sleeping car, and buy everything that will make your journey pleasant and relieve its tediousness."

The girl has always been treated as a member of the family by her adopted parents, and she has received a good education. The youngest child has not been as fortunate in the matter of education, and she will be sent to school in the East before returning to her mother's house. The adopted father of the oldest girl has made her a present of her ticket to Arizona, and the $100 which her stepfather sent will be used in the purchase of clothes and other necessaries for the journey. The adopted parents, while loth to part with the young girl, who had been so long their charge, say they have too much affection for her to stand in the way of her social advancement.

Sumner's Divorced Wife.

Foreign gossip says that Junius S. Morgan, the well-known American banker of London, is about to marry the divorced wife of Charles Sumner. He is 70 years old, has been a widower six years, and is worth $20,000,000. The lady to whom they say he is to be married wears the name of Mrs. Alice Mason. She discarded the Sumner name when she got the divorce from the celebrated Massachusetts statesman. She was a widow when he married her, and her first husband's name was Mason. The latter name she chose to keep. There has always been a mystery about her separation from Sumner. They were married soon after the war, in 1866, and the next year she got her divorce, they lived together but a few months, when she left him in disgust. Sumner was then an old man and had always lived a bachelor, and he did not long survive his unfortunate matrimonial venture. Mrs. Mason is not yet an old woman, having been quite young and very attractive in personal appearance when she was married to Sumner. She has an ample fortune in her own right.

Smuggling Chinese immigrants through from British Columbia into Washington territory has become a profitable business for photographers and the makers of affidavits. The contrabands under the U. S. Chinese restriction act are landed in British Columbia, and they are got into the territory of the United States by means of a game played with photographs and affidavits. The Chinamen are photographed in Victoria, and the photos are sent to Seattle and exhibited to those in the scheme, who do the swearing that the Chinaman photographed was a resident on United States territory before the passage of the restriction act. Thus the Chinese are run over the line as rapidly as they were permitted to land at San Francisco. The people of California are greatly enraged at the continued attempts of judicial authorities to override the Congressional enactments for the exclusion of the Chinese.

ABSENT-MINDED WOMEN.

Stories Told by Chuckling Chicago Husbands About Their Better Halves.

From the Chicago News.

"Speaking of absent-minded people," said a west sider, "women beat the nation at that. There is my wife, one of the most careful and most level-headed women in the world. But one night last winter we went to a large party, and we both, for special reasons, were more than anxious to appear well. My wife was greatly concerned about me, as I am the absent-minded member of the family, and looked me over critically and carefully after I left the coat room and before we went down stairs. She was herself all right, of course and was superbly dressed. We went down in high feather, and had passed through the parlors and had spent a delightful half hour on parade duty, as it were, when my wife suddenly turned pale in what I thought was a fainting fit. I hurried her from the room, and was about to turn the house upside down in search of restoratives when she clutched my sleeve and pointed to her feet. She had before leaving home drawn over her shoes a pair of my socks, and had forgotten to remove them. The thought that she had been parading before three hundred people with those socks on was too much for her."

A South Sider, who had listened to this, said, after indulging in a contented couckle: "My wife tells almost as good a story as that on herself. She is, as everybody knows who knows her at all, very particular about her dress, and she grieves over a spot on my coat or a lack of polish on my shoes with a grief that will not be comforted. She went down street shopping on one occasion this spring, and in trying on bonnets became a little disturbed over the fact that none of the new shapes suited her face. She, therefore picked up her parasol, walked out of the store, called on a very aristocratic acquaintance, and then came home. A glance in the hall glass showed that she had no bonnet on. She had taken it off to try on the new ones, and, as she expressed it, had been parading along the streets with nothing on her head but a small veil across her forehead. She didn't scold me about the spots on my coat for a week."

"I have a better story than that," said a superintendent of one of the departments at Field's. 'Not long ago a fashionably dressed lady came in early, and in the course of her bargening put her parasol on the counter near a large feather duster which one of the clerks had been using. After making some purchases the lady caught up the duster instead of her parasol, and went out. As soon as I discovered the mistake I sent a boy after her with the parasol, but he did not overtake her until she had made quite a journey.

"In fact she flourished that feather duster along the street, flourishing it about as she went into another store, and put it down on the counter, still under the impression that it was a parasol, and seeing the feather duster asked for her parasol. The clerk explained that she had not brought any parasol in. She was indignant at such an intimation, and was delivering the clerk a sharp lecture on the subject when in walked our boy with her parasol and explanation. She was so overcome that she had to be sent home in a carrriage."

The Fatted Calf.

From The Youth's Companion.

The danger in going too much into detail in talking about subjects with which one is not very familiar is exemplified in the story of an English town-bred curate, who had consented to do duty on Sunday for his friend, the rector of a country parish in the Midlands.

The subject of the morning sermon was the parable of the prodigal son; and, in the hope of impressing upon his hearers the joy which the patriarch felt on the return of his son, as instanced by his ordering the fatted calf to be killed, the young curate felt a pardonable pride in dwelling upon a subject which could not fail to be comprehensible to the dullest cowboy in the congregation.

"Remember," he said, "this was no ordinary calf which was to be killed; it was no common calf or beast suffering from murrain, no half-starved calf slowly awaiting death. No; it was not merely a fatted calf, but" (becoming more expressive) "it was the fatted calf which had been prized and loved by the family for many years."

A sea of wide eyes and gapping mouths arrested for a moment the eloquence of the fledgling parson, and in the next moment there was such a chuckling and grins and fluttering of old heads below as had not been witnessed, even in the memory of the sexton, for more than "many years."

About Watches.

From the Philadelphia Press.

"All the very small chatelaine ladies' watches are made in Switzerland or France," said one of a firm of well known dealers and importers of watches yesterday. "The smallest lady's watch made in this country, is what is called a six-size case, about an inch and a half in diameter, whereas there are French and Swiss watches no larger than a ten cent piece, set in a ring of a bracelet. As size is an important feature in a watch, and as, if the watch is small, it must compensate by the fineness of its work for what they lack in size, these microscopic watches are very expensive, costing not less than $100 or $150. But there is a lady's watch, about an inch in diameter, made in Switzerland, that can be sold as low as $18. Unless a man cares to pay $250 for a Jergessen chronometer, he can buy a good watch for all ordinary purposes for $100 in America as a man need care to own. A very good American watch in a silver case can be bought as low as $12. The price of watches is down about as low as it can get. Watches that sold for $35 a few years years ago are now retailing for $13. This only applies to the cheaper grades of watches. The finer grades could be sold cheaper than they are now, and yet at a profit for the manufacturer."

It costs $300 to equip a locomotive with a Westinghouse air brake, and $100 for each of the cars. This includes the royalty.

Human Longevity.

From a Letter in the Boston Advertiser.

While fully agreeing with the general conclusion of your article on longevity, viz: that there is a tendency to exaggerate the age of old persons, and that there are fewer centenarians than most people suppose, I think you judge in an extreme of skepticism in making 105 years the outside authenticated life. The late Sir George Cornwall Lewis actually doubted that any man or woman had ever reached 100 years. Mr. Thorne appears at first to have coincided with him, but the case of Lady Smith, who reached 105, and other indisputable instances, led him to advance his figure to a half-decade beyond the century.

I think there are numerous thoroughly authenticated instances of considerable greater longevity. The late William Thomas, of Plymouth, recently the oldest surviving graduate of Harvard College, was fond of relating in his old age how, on the 1st of January, 1800, being then in his eleventh year, he visited with several ministers, in attendance at an ordination. Ebenezer Cobb, a life-long resident of the town, who remembered Peregrine White's funeral in 1703, as well he might, having been born in 1694. He survived until September 1801, being 107 1-2 years at his death. He was a respectable citizen of a town whose records were kept and neighbors abundant, and there could be no doubt as to his age. In 1878 a pauper—a bedridden and bitterly idiotic woman—died at the Dayton, (Ohio), poor-house, or infirmary as is the more euphonistic western term. She had been there forty-one years, and her age was reported at 76 when she was admitted. There was no motive for deception or exaggeration in 1837. If no mistake was made she was 117 at her decease, and even if a decade be struck off by way of caution, she must have been 107.

A few years ago General H. V. Boynton furnished me, by request, a transcript from the Pension Bureau giving the ages at which various revolutionary soldiers and their widows had died. Unfortunately it is not just now at hand, but it recorded several deaths of persons in their "centenarian teens;" of one, if I remember rightly, who had reached 121, and of quite a number ranging from 100 to 110 years. The pension bureau requires clear proof of service and of continued life. If there was deception in one or two of these cases there could not be in all, and there could be no motive for pensioners to exaggregate their age at the time of being put on the rolls.

Mrs. Angelina Rodesta, a native of Italy, died in 1878, aged 109. Of her extreme age no one who saw her could doubt. Her eyes had that hazy, far-off look characteristic of centenarians and monogenarians. Her son, who was not quite sure of her exact age, sent to her birthplace, and the Latin document, duly attested by the parish priest, declared that her baptism took place on January 12, 1769. I saw her when she was past 100. Her bodily strength was sufficient to allow her to dance at the annual balls of the Italian residents of Cincinnati up to nearly the time of her death, but she was mentally quite childish.

"Master" Sullivan, the father of the General, and the first American ancestor of the well-known Massachusetts and New Hampshire families, is credited with dying in 1796, aged 105. Mrs. Eastman, mother of Judge Joel Eastman, the distinguished citizen of Coos county, N. H., died in 1867, aged 105 years and 6 months. As she was one of the little school girls who discovered in 1768 the buried infant of their teacher, Ruth Blay—who was hanged because Sheriff Packer would not wait for Governor Wentworth's reprieve to arrive—there can be no doubt as to her real longevity.

I might make the list considerably longer, but must content myself with referring to the account of Samuel Welch, of Bow, N. H., recorded in the second volume of Farmer and Moore's "Historical collections of New Hampshire." Welch died April 5, 1823, and Messrs. Farmer and Moore visited him about a year before. He was then in his 115th year. If the public records of his birthplace, Kingston, N. H., are correct, he was born in February 13, 1711, though he insisted that he was born the September previous, the time when his father requested the record to be made having been inserted as that of the birth itself. His mind was clear when he was seen by the two eminent antiquaries. They conversed with him at length, and we refer the doubting to the details of the interview.

It is true, as you say, that no graduate of Harvard has ever attained 103 years. Yale has been favored with fewer centenarian alumni than Harvard, but one of these few reached 103. In 1857 there were living graduates of Dartmouth, all Presbyterian and Congregational ministers, Rev. John Sawyer, of Maine, aged 102 years; Rev. Laban Ainsworth, seventy-five years minister to Jaffrey, N. H.—the longest pastorate, I think, on record, and preceded by a year of "supply"—aged 100; Rev. Ethan Osborne, of New Jersey, 98; and Rev. Zachariah Greene, of Hempstead, L. I., aged 97. Before 1858 were ended all were dead, Mr. Sawyer at 103, Mr. Ainsworth at 100 and some months, Mr. Osborne at 99, and Mr. Greene at 98. Just now Elbert Porter, Dartmouth's oldest living graduate, bids fair to round out his century, having passed his 99th anniversary last December.

The Jordan Canal.

It seems that the proposed Jordan Canal, the plans for which have appeared in the foreign scientific journals, is not to be, in any proper sense, a canal, but rather a large inland sea, some 300 miles long, with an average of 10 to 15 miles in breadth. The waters of the Dead Sea would be raised from their present level about 1300 feet, and its area, of course, be largely increased. The river Jordan, the Dead Sea and Lake Tiberias would all disappear with some square miles of land, principally on the western side of the Jordan valley as now existing, and in their place would be a vast inland sheet of water, fertilizing the neighboring desert with the rainfall produced by the evaporation from its surface. According to this plan, therefore, there would be, instead of a simple canal, a wide open channel, traversing Palestine from north to south, navigable in every sense of the term, with safe harbors here and there on either side.

WAS IT FLIRTING.

I was engaged to Angeline Melville, and I thought myself the luckiest man living. Angeline was so handsome that no stranger ever saw her without expressing admiration, and did not weary with the face after years of familiarity with it. She was well bread, accomplished and a great heiress. I had reason to believe that she was very fond of me. No man could be more content than I was, as I leaned back in the first-class carriage, which took me from Glasgow into the country to the Vale of Cruix, where I was to preach a few Sabbaths. The pulpit was vacant, and I was going to try my wings. With my pecuniary prospects I scarcely thought I should care to accept a call to the Vale of Cruix, but I had no objection to filling its pulpit for a few weeks, especially as Angelina had gone to the west coast, and Glasgow was warm and stuffy and stupid.

Casual remembrances of elegant parsonages built in Queen Anne's style, of a study where the footfalls were softened by Persian rugs, and the doors draped in portieres of velvets; chairs and a desk, carved richly as some old confessional, flitted through my mind. And I thought also of a table spread with silver and rare china, with a lady at its head who resembled a queen. And I breathed a luxurious sigh as I awakened from my day dream to a knowledge that the words "Vale of Cruix" were being shouted on the platform, and that the train was coming to a standstill.

I seized my traveling bag from the rack overhead and hurried out of the carriage. The porters had just pulled four or five trunks on the platform. Two old wagons stood in the road, one driven by an old woman, in a sun bonnet, the other by a red haired boy with bare feet, and a queer knock-kneed horse, attached to a queerer old gig, was standing at a little distance. A young man in a light summer suit and a city family bent on rural happiness were my companions on the platform. The former put his trunks on the first wagon, kissed the old woman in the sunbonet, took the reins and drove away. He was evidently the son of the family, come home to spend his vacation. The rest of the trunks and the city family—mother, father, little boy, nursemaid and baby—were put in the wagon and driven off by the boy.

When the train moved away I was left alone on the platform—alone but for the stationmaster, who sat upon a bench smoking a clay pipe. In a moment more the official, without looking at me, made the remark: "Deacon Stevenson, has come for the new minister. He's over in the hotel, and will be back in a minute."

"Thank you," said I.

The stationmaster took no notice of me, but having climbed up on a stool and made some changes in a timeregister on the wall of the station, locked the door, put the key in his pocket and sauntered away down the railroad. I took his place upon the bench and waited. In a few minutes a prim little old gentleman appeared upon the top of the hill, carrying in one hand a tin can, in the other a tin pail, and under either arm a brown paper parcel. I knew at a glance that it was Stevenson.

Are you Mr. Mactaggert?" he inquired mildly, as he approached. "I want to know. I hadn't any expectation of being kept so long; but, you see, it saves the women folks trouble to fetch things when I drive to town. Step in, won't you? I'll just hang this paraffine ile on behind. Some dislike the smell—maybe you do. The sugar loaf tea and coffee can go under the seat as well as not. How's your health, sir, and how do you like Vale of Cruix?"

I answered that my health was good, and that I had not, as yet, seen much of the Vale of Cruix.

"No, you haven't," said the old gentleman. "Well, we'll drive through it now."

And he shook the reins and the old horse began to stumble along. And on we drove past certain rows of brick houses very much like each other, and with the same flowers in their front gardens, until, having passed the church, we came to one happily set about by old oak trees, before the gate of which we drew up.

A girl stood at the gate—a fair girl in a blue muslin dress and white apron.

"Take the sugar, Mary, before it gets upset," said the deacon. "This is Mr. Mactaggert, that's going to preach for us. Mr. Mactaggert, this is my daughter Mary."

We both bowed, and she vanished with the parcels.

"What a lovely creature!" said I to myself. "Nothing like Angelina, but so pretty!" And I found myself thinking of her as I washed and brushed my hair in the blue-walled bedroom on the second floor, with white-fringed counterpanes and curtains, and two black silhouettes over the mantel piece, on either side of the china vases of roses.

There were only four of us at the table—the deacon, his wife (a stout lady who never said more than she could help), Mary and myself. Mary had spent the last winter at Glasgow, and we talked about all she had seen. She was self-possessed without being forward, and oh, so pretty! Now, Angelina was splendid and queenly, so this was mild praise that she could not have objected to, only I said it very often. I preached on the next Sunday. It was settled that I should spend the summer there. I wrote this to Angelina:

"Since you cannot be with me it does not matter where I am—this stupid place as well as any other. Address to the care of Deacon Stevenson. I shall remain with him while I preach here."

It was a pleasant summer, despite the dullness of the place. How good the quaint old deacon was when one really knew him! How motherly was Mrs. Stevenson! As for Mary, she grew sweeter every day. I often wondered what Angelina would have said could she have seen me helping her to pick blackberries, to find the runaway cow, to carry home the milk-pail, driving her over to the country grocery and returning with a freight of groceries—Angelina, who knew nothing of domestic details, and whose monogrammed and perfumed letters were often brought over from the office in company with the paraffine can. I wrote my sermons at one end of the round table, while Mary sat at the other sewing, [illegible] lamp with a green paper shade. Now and then a big bug would fly into the window and go humming about our heads, or a moth would try to singe its wings over the chimney, and I would drive it out. The old people would go to bed after a while, and then Mary and I would find ourselves hungry, and she would go into the kitchen to find something good. I always held the light for her; and when something good was found we ate it in the back porch, sitting side by side on the step, like two children. She was so like a child—that little Mary—that it seemed no harm to ask her to kiss me good-night, or to hold her hand in mine as it rested on my arm in our long walks home from church on Sunday evening.

The summer passed; October came; Angelina returned to the city and wrote to me. It was while we were eating peaches and cream in the back porch that evening that I said to Mary: "I will tell you a secret, if you will keep it for a while, Mary."

"Oh, of course I will, Mr. Mactaggert."

"I am going to be married this autumn, Mary," I said. "Those pretty letters you always thought came from my sister are from the lady who is to marry me. She is very beautiful, very rich, very stylish, but very kind. You must come and see us, Mary, when you are married. I shall tell Angelina how good you have been to me—what a sweet little sister I have found out here in the Vale of Cruix. Why, Mary—"

For, as I spoke, I felt the little hand I held grow cold and heavy in mine. I saw her sink backward. The big china bowl of peaches and cream slipped with a crash to the ground and was shattered to pieces.

I caught the poor child in my arms. In a moment she came to herself and said she had overtired herself, she thought. They had been baking all day, and it was warm. And now she bade me good night. But I did not see her next day, nor the next. She kept her room, and was not well enough to bid me good-by.

Poor little Mary! I felt very miserable. However, Angelina met me at Glasgow. She was more beautiful than ever—more elegant in contrast to my simple country friend—and very soon I laughed at myself for the thought that had been in my heart. Of course, I said it was the baking that had overcome Mary—it was not my news. I had only been to her as a friend—as a brother. I had not made love to her. But I thought of Mary a great deal, and I missed her every hour, exactly—oh, yes, exactly—as I might a sister.

I wrote to Mrs. Stevenson, and her answer was very brief.

"I haven't much time to write," she said in her postscript. "Mary is sick, and besides being driven I am anxious."

This letter was in my pocket on that day when Angelina and I went together to the bazar for the benefit of the Church of St. Matthew.

After we had roamed about the bazar and bought all sorts of knicknacks I escorted Angelina to a seat, and there sat down to wait while one of the ladies, who, "on this occasion only," was doing good, onerous hard work, brought us a tray of refreshments.

As we sat there sipping our coffee two women sat down at the next table with their backs to us.

"I am very tired, are you not, Mrs. Russell?" And the other answered:

"Yes, I am tired. I don't think that it is worth the while to come all the way from Vale of Cruix to Glasgow sight seeing."

This was the voice of Stevenson's nearest neighbor, and I liked and respected her, yet did not feel quite sure how Angelina would like an introduction, and so refrained from looking round and making myself known.

"I think we'd better have tea," said the voice; "it's more refreshing than coffee. Oh, how is Mary to-day? Think of my never asking before."

"Mary is poorly," said Mrs. Russell. "Oh, Mrs. Cullen, what a pity it is that flirting young minister came down to the Vale of Cruix. I don't know what Mrs. Stevenson was about to let him do as he did! We all thought he was courting Mary. She did, poor child. She just loved him dearly. And that day before he went away he told her he was engaged to some girl in Glasgow. I'm afraid it's broken her heart. She told me all about it. 'Oh, Aunt Russell,' she said, 'I know I ought to be ashamed but I can't help it. He seemed to like me so. I hope I shall die of this fever, for life is nothing to me.' Ashamed? Wy, thiis he who ought to be ashamed. Of all the things, a minister to be a cold, cruel flirt. And that is what Hugh Mactaggert is."

I listened, but I could not move or speak. I felt as though my heart also was breaking; and oh, the time I suffered! The women drank their tea and left, and then Angelina turned to me with a cold sarcastic smile.

"I see by your face that the little story is perfectly true, Mr. Mactaggert," she said.

"Angelina," I faltered, "I have done nothing that should give offense to you."

"Nothing but love another woman," she answered. "Love her and let her see it, meaning to marry me. Don't think I'm hurt; indeed, I am relieved! I should have kept my word to you but for this; but not so gladly as I once should. You are a very good looking man, but on the whole you dont suit me. I met Mr. S. at Millport, and he does. Frankly, I have been thinking what a pity it was I must decline his offer. As for this—Mary, is it not?—wouldn't she make a very good minister's wife?"

It came to my mind that she would—that she was the only wife for me; that Angelina, splendid as she was, would never have made me happy.

But I only said, "Miss Melville, if you desire to have your freedom I have no choice."

"I desire it greatly," she answered.

"It is yours," I said, with a bow.

After that I think we were both happier than we had been for days, and we shook hands when we parted.

That night I went up to the Vale of Cruix, and I told Mary that my marriage had been broken off and that she was the only woman I had ever loved. She tried to summon up her pride and refuse me, but failed in the attempt, and let me take her to my heart. To-day I am pastor of the church at the Vale of Cruix. Mary is my wife, and we are as plain and quiet a pair as you could fancy. I even help my wife pick currants, and I have taken a turn at the garden when help is scarce. But I do not envy Mr. S. his wife nor pine for the luxurious possibilities that I lost with Angelina. Mary and my little home content me.

But one thing is on my conscience. I have never been able to satisfy myself on the question, "Did I flirt with Mary?" I hope not. I wish I was sure.—English Magazine.

THE HOME CIRCLE AND FARM.

The Model Woman.

Charles Dickens: She only is a true and noble wife for whose ambition a husband's love and her children's adoration are sufficient, who applies her military instincts to the discipline of her household and whose legislatives exercise themselves in making laws for her nurse, whose intellect has field enough for her in communion with her husband, and whose heart asks no other honors than his love and admiration; a woman who does think it a weakness to attend to her toilet, and who does not disdain to be beautiful, who believes in the virtue of glossy hair and well-fitting gowns, and who eschews rents and raveled edges, slipshod shoes and audacious make-ups; a woman who speaks low, and does not speak much; who is patient, and gentle, and intellectual and industrious; who loves more than she reasons, and yet does not love blindly; who never scolds and never argues but adjusts with a smile; such a woman is the wife we have all dreamed of once in our lives, and is the mother we still worship in the backward distance of the past.

Don't Fret

When I see a woman, with that beautiful countenance which has won the heart of her husband, darkened by a frown, constantly fretting and making all about her uncomfortable because there will be "dirt somewhere, the maid-servant is slow, and don't understand her buisiness, baby is cross, always crossest when much is to be done, husband is unreasonable, didn't want me to do anything before marriage, expects more of me now than I can do," and so on, I am tempted to exclaim, "Hush, dear woman, these useless, sinful repinings! examine yourself; perchance the blame lies at your own door after all. There is a talisman possessing a magic charm that will scatter all these evils. It is cheerfulness. The maid-servant is quickened and improved by kind, encouraging words. The very cast of your countenance, the tones of your voice, are forming the temperament of that little one. Then, let your husband see that instead of a termagant and a fretter, his wife is gentle, kind, uncomplaining, self-denying, shedding peace and happiness around his hearth, and brightening his home by the sunlight of her smiles. A man of sense is not slow in discovering the gentler virtues of his wife. The secret of her influence over him lies here. It is the mystic tie binding him to her, that aught of earth, nor death itself, has power to sever.

Feeding Salt.

The Western Rural says, in answering a correspondent who asks if cows need salt, and if they should be fed enough to create great thirst, that all animals need salt; that they will not take more than is good for them, unless it be mixed with their food so that they must take it in order to get the food. Their system contains salt, and needs more than food usually contains. Hence the necessity of supplying it directly. But we do not think that feeding it to an extent that it would create thirst would be advisable. Salt is a poison and when taken in large quantities acts as such. Besides this, if the animal is in a constant state of thirst it is an unnatural condition, and, probably a state of fever. If administered in such quantities and in such a way as to cause thirst, the purpose would be to increase the flow of milk. But we do not believe that anything valuable could be accomplished by pursuing such a course. Doubtless if the cow would be made to drink a large quantity of water, she would yield an increased quantity of milk, but it would be overtaxing her and the milk would not be as good. It may be assumed that nature has made each individual cow so that she will maintain a correct balance between her food and her drink; and it would be just as reasanable to force additional food down her throat after she had eaten enough as it would be to force additional water down her throat after she had drank enough. Water is a very important feature in caring for dairy cows. The cow ought to have all the water that she naturally needs, and it should be just as pure as the water we drink ourselves; but we do not believe that any process of forcing her to drink should be adopted. Too much weakens digestion in any animal. We may very soon learn what the effect upon digestion is if we will contract the habit of drinking large quantities of water ourselves.

Less Fancy and More Pork.

Colonel F. D. Curtis, who raises anually more than 100 head of swine, acknowledges having had "the short nose and short ear hobby" and "had it bad," and held to it until the abbreviation extended also to weights and profits. Now he wants less fancy and more pork—long bodies with broad backs and full rounded hams." "Not mammoths," he tells the Farm Journal, but "good medium sizes," such as have in his pens and pastures averaged 330 pounds at eight and a half months age. "If these had been of the fancy breeds with the short noses and clumpy bodies, they could not have been made to weigh more than half as much. Such large hogs are more active and vigorous. They will help themselves, which is quite an item in swine rearing, and they will grow on grass and eat any kind of coarse food and thrive on it. They also have less fat, which is in their favor."

When Should a Cow Go Dry.

From the Dairy.

There is such a thing as burning a candle at both ends. One may easily do this in the dairy, and while the "good, easy man" thinks he is making a good deal of light at the same cost, suddenly his candle may go out. This kind of thing may go on when one milks the cows up to the time of calving or nearly so, and even encourages it by feeding for that end. But then it may not. And it is the dairyman's business to know all about it, and not take any general rule for his guide. There is no rule without a multitude of exceptions, and these are as numerous as times and places and circumstances, and as circumstances alter cases, [illegible] above depends upon circumstances. There are cows that will not go dry, but will milk from [illegible]. Is the dairyman to worry himself and the cow in useless defiance of her natural habit? By no means. He must suit his case to the circumstances, and reduce the milk yield as much as possible by milking once a day perhaps, and compensate the cow for her extra burden by giving her more feed up to a safe limit. What this limit may be depends wholly upon the ability of the cow to healthfully digest and dispose of the food. And no one but the intelligent owner can say what this limit may be, for it will vary, as cows vary, and no two cows are precisely alike. As long as the cow is in thriving condition, not losing flesh or making fat, the limit is not reached.

But as a rule, to be contracted and expanded judiciously and safely, it might be said that a cow should be dried off six weeks before she is due to calve. That up to to that time she should be liberally fed, in the usual manner; that thenceforth her food should be curtailed or even changed to dry hay; and if her condition is reduced sowewhat, so much the better. It will make it safer for her and the calf. The milking may be done once a day, or not wholly completed, leaving a little in the udder. We have even taken a little milk several times a day from a cow in this condition, with the effect of rapidly drying the udder. But it is a dangerous tning, and one to be avoided, to leave any considerable quantity of milk in a cow's udder at this time.

A Disappointed Wife.

"Pipsey Potts" in Arthur's Magazine.

She was sentimental, and yet practical, and one of the best of managing housewives. She said to us once:

"I did wish Tobias would say to me, as other kind, married men said to their wives, that they were glad of the day that made them one; that their homes were so happy and so well kept; that they envied no man, and all these comfortable things that go so far to make life blessed and enjoyable, and one time I laid a plan to make Tobias say beautiful things to me. The cow he had bought at a sale had never been payed for. It was to have been in three payments, and by dint of the closest kind of financiering and extra managing I raised the money, and little by little I paid on it, until finally the old farmer gave me the note. Now I was sure that as soon as Toby saw what I had done he would gather me to his bosom and wail out, "my treasure!, my priceless treasure!" In the evening after tea, while he sat reading, I stole up to his chair, laid my hand on his shoulder, and said, as I thurst the note before his face:

"See here; what do you think of this?'

"He paused. He took the slip of paper listlessly between his thumb and finger and turned it over, turned it back, and then looked at it calmly. I supposed he was geting ready to weep. Instead he handed it back carelessly and resumed his paper. I said:

"'What do you think of it?'

"'Oh! it's all right, fur as I can see,' was the indifferent reply?"

And the wife! She had the good sense to laugh over it at the time, she told us, though we presume she did sneak away and wipe her eyes when she was so rudely waked from the dream she had indulged in.

The Horse's Lungs.

The horse derives his power of endurance from an increased interior lung surface. No matter how great his stature, or how heavy his muscle, if he is deficient in lung power, he will be like a locomotive having very large and very heavy driving wheels, surmounted with a disproportionately small boiler; the wheels and shaft sufficient for a train of thirty loaded cars, while steam for moving half that number is all the boiler can generate. A horse of ten hundred, having full lung development, and withal well muscled, will move a given load a greater distance in a specified time than a horse with a fifth more size, but having scant lung surface. Bulk and heavy muscles, out of proportion to the lung capacity, is a direct detriment. The horse does not get his reinvigoration, as is commonly supposed, directly and at once from the air he breathes, but, on the other hand, the renewal of vigor comes through the rapid change wrought upon the blood by its contact with the air in the delicate lung tissue. The air, as such, gives no tone or impetus to the muscles through the act of breathing, but forty times in a minute the heart sends the venous blood, deprived of its valuable properties by reason of having left these remote tissues, muscular and otherwise, where needed, to the lungs, instantly as it were, it is aerated, goes back to the heart, and again forty times a minute, in the horse, and nearly twice that frequently in the human subject, the heart sends the oxygenated blood to the brain, muscles and all other tissues; and it is upon its reaching its destination that the horse receives the benefit of the lung capacity he possesses, and not before.—National Live Stock Journal.

German Matrimonial Exchange

The establishment of a "matrionial exchange" is a late Berlin movement. Its object is the promotion of marriages, for the patriotic purpose of increasing the German people. In the marriage chamber of commerce, single people of all ages, and both sexes meet, and those who fancy each other talk matrimonial matters over in couples, and agree or disagree as the case may be, and nobody hurt. It is a practical proceeding, with no manner of sentiment in it, but such parties are generally in earnest, and mean business. No time is fooled away in moonshine. The object is wedlock, and the conversations are directly to the purpose, and sometimes couples join their fortunes upon mutual faith, sometimes references are given and required, and nearly always, if the earnest man or woman sticks to it, the result is a match more or less eligible. The entrance fee to the chamber is $1.50 for Berliners and $2.25 for provincials, which entitles them to admission until their object is attained, or all hope is abandoned. All parties contract, in case of their marriage through the agency of the chamber, to pay the association one per cent. of their annual income during their wedded lives. This novel chamber of commerce seems to work well in Germany, and may serve the patriotic purpose while it adds to the general happiness of mankind.

Personal Paragraphs.

Maggie McDonald of Philadelphia, aged fourteen, rosy cheeked, strong and healthy, weighing nearly 180 pounds has a habit of barking, over which she has no control. Physicians attribute disease of the brain as the cause of the strange affliction.

Stanley, the African explorer, describes a strong man who was 6 feet 5 inches, and rather disproportionately slender. He could toss an ordinary sized man ten feet in the air and catch him in his descent. He would take one of the large white Muscat donkeys by the ears, and with a sudden movement of his right foot lay the surprised ass on his back. He could carry a 3-year-old bullock half way round his master's plantation. Once he actually bore 12 men on his back, shoulders and chest, a distance of 300 feet.

Mr. Albert S. Warner, the very brilliant young business man at the head of the First National Bank of Albion, N. Y., and chief executor of the great Burrows estate, to which the bank belonged, has gone to join Eno and Dickinson. He had plundered the estate of everything he could lay his hands on, and lost all in stock speculation. One by one the very brilliant young business men are going over the border.

A copy of what purports to be the will of the late George W. Rice, photographer of the Greely expidition, has been produced in Washington. The will is in the informal character of a letter writer at Camp Clay, Ellesmere Land, February 1, 1884, and directed to Lieutenant Kislinbury, who is requested to act in conjunction with Sergeant Brainard and M. P. Rice, as an executor. The letter is written in anticipation of a journey upon which the deceased was about to start, in the endeavor to find a cache of food for his starving comrades. It is of a melancholy interest throughout. After disposing of keepsakes and other personal property, he leaves $1,000 to his betrothed in Washington, and the rest of his estate to his father, mother and sister, who are now living in Nova Scotia.

Mrs. Clemmer once wrote of her early experiences: "I once entered into a written contract to write one column per day on any subject I was instructed to write on, for three years in advance, and at the end of that three years I had not for a single day failed to fulfill my task, which included everything from book review, comments on government, public men and affairs, to a common advertisement paragraph. You see I did not miss the apprenticeship of literary work. It was a toilsome time, but it cured me utterly of the mental perversity that awaits for inspiration of creative moods to do what is necessary to be done." Her sister, Miss Maggie Clemmer, lives in Utica.

There was a most impressive moment in one of Spurgeon's sermons a few Sundays ago. He was urging his hearers to prayer against a besetting sin. "Let us breathe it now," said he, and as he raised his hand it seemed as if with that act he lifted the vast congregation up on the heights of prayer. There was perfect stillness, and you could feel that the whole assemblage was silently praying. The sermon was plain, direct, matter-of-fact in the highest degree, absolutely without sensationalism of any kind, and showing little claim on the part of the preacher to brilliancy or eloquence. A preacher more unlike Beecher, with whom it is natural to compare him, could hardly be imagined. He seems to owe his great success to strength of character and that mysterious quality called leadership.

Sunken Treasures.

The list of treasure lost in the sea would indeed be a long and melancholy one; instancing, for example, the Madagascar, from Australia, which, in the early days of the gold fever there, having on board the precious yellow dust in enormous quantity, was never heard of, and left not even the faintest clew to speculations as to her fate. And in later years the Thunder steamer from Calcutta to China, with some £300,000 worth of silver, destined never to reach the expectant consignees, was supposed to be lying abandoned among the awful sandbanks at the mouth of the Houghly, but, in spite of many rumors, never to be seen there. These are instances, out of many, of treasures never heard of. The wreck of the Royal Charter steamer from Australia, lost in a frightful gale on the Anglesea coast in October, 1859, with some £800,000 of gold on board, will doubtless occur to the reader's mind, coupled as it was with such a lamentable loss of life. In this case, happily a great part of the treasure was recovered subsquently, but there is still a fortune left at Moelfra tor the fortunate being who can find it. In old days Vigo Bay had always an attractive sound to treasure seekers, from the reported wealth on board the Spanish fleet destroyed there by Sir G. Rooke in 1702; but the infinite pains, money and patience expended over its recovery have been thrown away, the silver (even if it is there, which is somewhat doubtful) obstinately refusing to make a reappearance in the world.—Belgravia.

How Bonner Bluffed the Herald.

Robert Bonner, of the New York Ledger, is one of the few really self-made men of this city, and one of the substantial few. His history of sixty years is well known to most readers, but I think the following anecdote illustrative of him has never been properly told. He had been advertising quite largely in his way in the Herald, of this city, sometimes taking as much as two columns to announce a blood-curdling tale by Selvanus Cobb, Jr., or some other of his sensational story writers. On one occasion he went to the Herald with a six-line advertisement which he wished inserted once in each column of one of of the advertising pages, the rest of the column and page to be blank. The clerk taking the advertisement referred it to Joseph Elliott, then the publisher of the Herald, to whom Mr. Bonner said: "Can't I have a page to myself?" "Certainly you can," was the reply. "Can't I have two?" Bonner asked. "Yes." "Can't I have four?" "I guess so." "How about eight?" Elliott had to consult with Hudson or Bennett, and there was some mechanical difficulty. Bonner had to content himself with his six-line advertisement inserted twenty-four times, at a cost, for the single day's publication of about $2,000. But he always claimed to have 'bluffed' the Herald.—Correspondence Chicago Inter-Ocean.

WHY BEEF COMES HIGH

An Instructive Little Talk with a Thoughtful Butcher.

From the Philadelphia Star.

Inquiring of a leading butcher for a piece of a shin of beef, for soup purposes, we were told that he did not offer such meats to his customers.

"Why not?"

"Because nobody wants to buy them. The almost sole inquiry is for sirloin, rib roast, tenderloin and other choice pieces."

"But there is no part of the bullock from which such excellent soup can be made as the shin."

"I know it, but you can't persuade the majority of buyers to believe that. Many of them would regard it a disgrace to have it known that a piece of shin beef ever found its way to their table. And that is one of the reasons why I am compelled to charge you 22 cents a pound for the choice cut of rump and 30 cents for the best sirloin. Do you understand."

"I don't think I do," said the journalist.

"Don't you know that we buy our beef carcasses by the pound, and that the skins, neck and other inferior pieces all cost the same? If we can not sell the less desirable cuts at anything like the price they cost us, we must necessarily charge such prices as will enable us to make a living profit. Hence the seemingly high charges for the better cuts. People will have no other, and, as a consequence, we have large quantities of the less desirable meats on hand, which we are compelled to dispose of at such prices as we can get."

"But are not these less desirable pieces, as you call them, good and nutritious?"

"Of course they are. If the American women generally understood cooking as they should and were willing to put themselves to a little trouble, there is not a pound of meat in a whole carcass that could not be made into a palatable dish. But many of them know comparatively nothing, and many of those who do are not willing to give the time required to the preparation of the poorer cuts, when they can get a tender steak ready for the gridiron or a roasting piece ready for the spit. We are a wasteful people, very wasteful. If our working people could but be made to comprehend what great economy there is in being able to cook well, they would be more anxious to have their daughters taught the art. Why, sir, I am convinced that a moderately skillful cook can serve just as toothsome dishes as are found on most tables at one-half the cost of the latter. There are many pounds of beef now on this stall, first-class beef though not generally so considered, which I will sell you at one-third the price I am compelled to ask for sirloin or rump steak; meat just as nutritious and wholesome, but requiring a little more skill in preparation.

"But that is none of my business. If I were to undertake to advise I would soon have my hands full. Hence I receive and fill orders as they are given. Do you know that one-half the housekeepers have no conception of any other methods of cooking beef, but to fry, broil, roast or boil, and yet, as every one ought to know, beef can be cooked acceptably in fifty different ways, and in most of them without any increased expense. I know of several housekeepers, ladies of means and refinement, who have given the subject thought and consideration, who thoroughly understand cooking, and who are not ashamed or afraid to be seen buying some of these inferior pieces. I have learned from them a number of recipes, which I have had tried at my own house and have found them admirable. Yes, sir, we are a wasteful peeple, especially in the use of meats, though for that matter I could point you to great improvidence in table furnishing in many other directions;" and, drawing his large, keen knife over a sharpening steel in a style that made one tremble for his fingers, the philosophical victualer proceeded to deftly cut a sirloin for a lady customer, leaving the writer to ponder over his remarks.

Manners of the Moors.

Tangier Letter to Pittsburgh Chronicle Telegraph.

Absolutely barbaric in their habits, the 5,000,000 or 6,000,000 of inhabitants—a census was never taken—can not be said, however, to be entirely deprived of a certain kind of civilization. But this civilization is diametrically opposed to our own. After having carefully observed their habits and modes of life, I can readily understand why you could easier make a Chinaman or an Indian accept our civilization than a Moor. I will quote but a few instances in my daily life. To honor a person the European arises and removes his hat; the Mussulman remains seated with his head covered. When entering a place of worship, or a house, instead of removing his hat, the Mussulman takes off his shoes and leaves them outside the door. We consider the right side as the place of honor; the Moor the left. When inviting a friend to enter his house the Moor steps in first and lets his guest follow him. Kissing the hand is a sign of respect with us; the Moor when saluting kisses his own hand. It would not be very dignified for a European King to carry an open umbrella when in Kingly attire; in Morocco the umbrella is the emblem of imperial majesty, and no one else is permitted to carry one. All this is only a matter of custom. There are many habits, however, which would never be brought to correspond with our own. I hardly need mention polygamy, the secrecy with which females are surrounded and hidded from view, nor the existing slavery, which can not be stopped. We take our meals by daylight and sleep at night; in the month of the Ramadan, the great religious, and I may social festival of the Mohammedans, they partake not of a drop of water or a morsel of food in daylight. They take their meals at night and spend the night in extravagant feasts and orgies. We undress for our night's rest; the Mohammedan sleeps in his daily dress. His day of rest is Friday instead of Sunday. We write from the left to the right; he writes from right to left. We begin to read a book on the first page, his first page is our last. In short, I believe those two civilizations have actually nothing in common.

Death Before A Camera.

"I suppose," said a Cincinnati photographer to a Times-Star man, "when I was learning my trade in a country town of this state, I had an experience I wont forget until death. The 'boss' had gone out for a day's hunt. Business was slack and he knew the other boy and myself could run the shop. I had made a few tintypes and considered myself a natural operator. To run the gallery for a day was bliss, and I was anxious for a sitter; before 9 o'clock I got everything cleaned up, bath and plates in order, and sat in the front window awaiting customers. An old man came in at 11 a. m. He was right from the country; had mud on his boots, and all the other 'testimony'. He was 'goin' west to his darters and wanted a picture to take with him, you know.' I knew all about it and soon had him in the chair, the iron clamps behind his ears and the camera 'gun' aimed at his gray head. He was quite nervous about something and asked me to wait. 'I want my picture drawed off to look like this,' he said, as he pulled a tintype of a young man from his pocket. 'The same pose like, you know,' he said, as he told me that it was his son who had been killed at Stone River. 'He was a dear good boy, he was,' said the old man, with a weak voice and a sigh—'and I'll soon be with him.'

"I got him in position while he still held in his hand the dead boy's picture. I went through the usual ceremony, telling him, All ready now, right still,' and as I took the cloth from the table turned my back to prevent any embarrassment. In thirty seconds I said, 'That will do.' He never moved. 'You may rest now,' I said, but he sat still, and held the precious tintype as if wrapt in thought. Thinking that he was deaf, I touched him on the shoulder. Still he did not move, and I noticed a fixed stare in his eyes. He was dead. He had died in the chair and I had the negative of a dying man. Of course I got help and sent word to his friends. The doctors said he died of heart disease. I developed his picture and started as I saw the face of a dead man look at me from the collodion coating. It was a nervous day for me I can tell you, and I have always been careful with old people.

"Talking about love affairs in photographs, I had a funny experience some time ago. A woman, handsome and determined, had a picture made holding a pistol to her head, as if about to commit suicide. This she sent to her lover, who was probably getting tired of her. Underneath the picture she wrote: 'If you don't I will. He understood.' It had its effect, for in two weeks I made a group picture of them both, and she was attired as a bride."

"Women have their vagaries, even for pictures?"

"Well, I should say so. To them the picture of a lover is very dear. A young woman who became infatuated with a drummer had me print a picture of him on the flesh or her arm. We can photograph on flesh very nicely now, and I made a good print. I fixed it thoroughly, and she went away happy. A month later she came back with blushes and wanted it taken off. Her lover had turned out to be a married man, and of course she hated him for his cruel deception. However, she wears it yet, as I told her to let it wear off."

WHIRLING SPIRE OF WATER.

How a Funnel of Sea-Foam Danced Along the Surface of a Jersey Inlet.

From the New Jersey Coast Pilot.

While your correspondent and a friend were sailing in Great Bay on the afternoon of July 16 they saw a huge waterspout—the first ever known in that body of water. Our attention was at first attracted by a violent commotion of the water, covering a space of probably twenty yards in diameter. By the aid of a pair of marine glasses we watched it attentively during its formation, and as it pursued its rapid flight toward the west we were enabled to make the following obseravations: The body of water appeared to be leaping and foaming with great violence and was traveling at the rate of eight or ten miles an hour. As it moved swiftly on its course it gradually ascended toward a dense, black cloud that overhung it. Presently we observed the cloud to change in appearance, a portion of it becoming elongated and descended toward the waters that rose to meet it, and, as it drew the water up into it, changed from an inky blackness to a much lighter color.

The thing was now complete and consisted of a mass of seething, foaming water whose diameter had increased to forty yards or more, to which was joined a narrow funnel, which extended at least a quarter of an mile upward, where it united with the heavy, black cloud that still hovered over it. The funnel, if such we may call it, at first ran down in almost a perpendicular direction, but soon changed in a double curve, and as it swayed to and fro in the air it presented the appearance of a huge rope, connecting the mass of water with the inky cloud above.

The whole affair lasted, as near as we could judge, for about fifteen minutes, when the upper portion gradually became less dense until it finally disappeared, while the waters continued in agitation a few minutes longer. From the time we discovered it until its dissolution it kept up the same rate of speed had any boats been in its path it would assuredly have meant destruction to them.

An Inducement for Immigration.

Mr. Geo. Hamilton, from his quiet and orderly down east home, was in Missouri looking for a farm, when a land agent showed him through Ray county, and offered the following inducements to settle there: "There is no such land elsewhere in Missouri, and the society can not be surpassed. Do you see that house over there? Well, there is where the Ford brothers lived, and where poor Charlie committed suicide. And also that one across the field? Wood Hite was killed in that house. Over yonder a little ways is the old homestead of the James family. If you could only stay over until to-morrow I would take pleasure in introducing you to Frank, whom we expect over from Boonville to spend a day or two with us. About six miles further on we come to the Mormon settlement. All good people to live among. We have about 500 of them, voters in this county." Mr. Hamilton took the next train home. He won't settle in Missouri.

WAS IT FLIRTING.

I was engaged to Angeline Melville, and I thought myself the luckiest man living. Angeline was so handsome that no stranger ever saw her without expressing admiration, and did not weary with the face after years of familiarity with it. She was well bread, accomplished and a great heiress. I had reason to believe that she was very fond of me. No man could be more content than I was, as I leaned back in the first-class carriage, which took me from Glasgow into the country to the Vale of Cruix, where I was to preach a few Sabbaths. The pulpit was vacant, and I was going to try my wings. With my pecuniary prospects I scarcely thought I should care to accept a call to the Vale of Cruix, but I had no objection to filling its pulpit for a few weeks, especially as Angelina had gone to the west coast, and Glasgow was warm and stuffy and stupid.

Casual remembrances of elegant parsonages built in Queen Anne's style, of a study where the footfalls were softened by Persian rugs, and the doors draped in portieres of velvets; chairs and a desk, carved richly as some old confessional, flitted through my mind. And I thought also of a table spread with silver and rare china, with a lady at its head who resembled a queen. And I breathed a luxurious sigh as I awakened from my day dream to a knowledge that the words "Vale of Cruix" were being shouted on the platform, and that the train was coming to a standstill.

I siezed my traveling bag from the rack overhead and hurried out of the carriage. The porters had just pulled four or five trunks on the platform. Two old wagons stood in the road, one driven by an old woman, in a sun bonnet, the other by a red haired boy with bare feet, and a queer knock-kneed horse attached to a queerer old gig, was standing at a little distance. A young man in a light summer suit and a city family bent on rural happiness were my companions on the platform. The former put his trunks on the first wagon; kissed the old woman in the sunbonet, took the reins and drove away. He was evidently the son of the family, come home to spend his vacation. The rest of the trunks and the city family—mother, father, little boy, nursemaid and baby—were put in the wagon and driven off by the boy.

When the train moved away I was left alone on the platform—alone but for the stationmaster, who sat upon a bench smoking a clay pipe. In a moment more the official, without looking at me, made the remark: "Deacon Stevenson, has come for the new minister. He's over in the hotel, and will be back in a minute."

"Thank you," said I.

The stationmaster took no notice of me, but having climbed up on a stool and made some changes in a timeregister on the wall of the station, locked the door, put the key in his pocket and sauntered away down the railroad. I took his place upon the bench and waited. In a few minutes a prim little old gentleman appeared upon the top of the hill, carrying in one hand a tin can, in the other a tin pail, and under either arm a brown paper parcel. I knew at a glance that it was Stevenson.

Are you Mr. Mactaggert?" he inquired mildly, as he approached. "I want to know. I hadn't any expectation of being kept so long; but, you see, it saves the women folks trouble to fetch things when I drive to town. Step in, won't you? I'll just hang this paraffine ile on behind. Some dislike the smell—maybe you do. The sugar loaf tea and coffee can go under the seat as well as not. How's your health, sir, and how do you like Vale of Cruix?"

I answered that my health was good, and that I had not, as yet, seen much of the Vale of Cruix.

"No, you haven't," said the old gentleman. "Well, we'll drive through it now."

And he shook the reins and the old horse began to stumble along. And on we drove past certain rows of brick houses very much like each other, and with the same flowers in their front gardens, until, having passed the church, we came to one happily set about by old oak trees, before the gate of which we drew up.

A girl stood at the gate—a fair girl in a blue muslin dress and white apron.

"Take the sugar, Mary, before it gets upset," said the deacon. "This is Mr. Mactaggert, that's going to preach for us. Mr. Mactaggert, this is my daughter Mary."

We both bowed, and she vanished with the parcels.

"What a lovely creature!" said I, to myself. "Nothing like Angelina, but so pretty!" And I found myself thinking of her as I washed and brushed my hair in the blue-walled bedroom on the second floor, with white-fringed counterpanes and curtains, and two black silhouettes over the mantel piece, on either side of the china vases of roses.

There were only four of us at the table—the deacon, his wife (a stout lady who never said more than she could help), Mary and myself. Mary had spent the last winter at Glasgow, and we talked about all she had seen. She was self-possessed without being forward, and oh, so pretty! Now, Angelina was splendid and queenly; so this was mild praise that she could not have objected to, only I said it very often. I preached on the next Sunday. It was settled that I should spend the summer there. I wrote this to Angelina:

"Since you cannot be with me it does not matter where I am—this stupid place as well as any other. Address to the care of Deacon Stevenson. I shall remain with him while I preach here."

It was a pleasant summer, despite the dullness of the place. How good the quaint old deacon was, when one really knew him! How motherly was Mrs. Stevenson! As for Mary, she grew sweeter every day. I often wondered what Angelina would have said could she have seen me helping her to pick blackberries, to find the runaway cow, to carry home the milk-pail, driving her over to the country grocery and returning with a freight of groceries. Angelina, who knew nothing of domestic details and whose monogramed and perfumed letters were often brought over from the office in company with the paraffine can. I wrote my sermons at one end of the round table while Mary sat at the other sewing. Between us was a lamp with a green paper shade. Now and then a big bug would fly into the window and go humming about our heads or a moth would [illegible] its wings over the chimney and I would drive it out. The old people would go to bed after a while, and then Mary and I would find ourselves hungry, and she would go into the kitchen to find something good. I always held the light for her; and when something good was found we ate it in the back porch, sitting side by side on the step, like two children. She was so like a child—that little Mary—that it seemed no harm to ask her to kiss me good-night, or to hold her hand in mine as it rested on my arm in our long walks home from church on Sunday evening.

The summer passed; October came; Angelina returned to the city and wrote to me. It was while we were eating peaches and cream in the back porch that evening that I said to Mary: "I will tell you a secret, if you will keep it for a while, Mary."

"Oh, of course I will, Mr. Mactaggert."

"I am going to be married this autumn, Mary," I said. "Those pretty letters you always thought came from my sister are from the lady who is to marry me. She is very beautiful, very rich, very stylish, but very kind. You must come and see us, Mary, when you are married. I shall tell Angelina how good you have been to me—what a sweet little sister I have found out here in the Vale of Cruix. Why, Mary—"

For, as I spoke, I felt the little hand I held grow cold and heavy in mine. I saw her sink backward. The big china bowl of peaches and cream slipped with a crash to the ground and was shattered to pieces.

I caught the poor child in my arms. In a moment she came to herself and said she had overtired herself, she thought. They had been baking all day, and it was warm. And now she bade me good night. But I did not see her next day, nor the next. She kept her room, and was not well enough to bid me good-by.

Poor little Mary! I felt very miserable. However, Angelina met me at Glasgow. She was more beautiful than ever—more elegant in contrast to my simple country friend—and very soon I laughed at myself for the thought that had been in my heart. Of course, I said it was the baking that had overcome Mary—it was not my news. I had only been to her as a friend—as a brother. I had not made love to her. But I thought of Mary a great deal, and I missed her every hour, exactly—oh, yes, exactly—as I might a sister.

I wrote to Mrs. Stevenson, and her answer was very brief.

"I haven't much time to write," she said in her postscript. "Mary is sick, and besides being driven I am anxious."

This letter was in my pocket on that day when Angelina and I went together to the bazar for the benefit of the Church of St. Matthew.

After we had roamed about the bazar and bought all sorts of knicknacks I escorted Angelina to a seat, and there sat down to wait while one of the ladies, who, "on this occasion only," was doing good, onerous hard work, brought us a tray of refreshments.

As we sat there sipping our coffee two women sat down at the next table with their backs to us.

"I am very tired, are you not, Mrs. Russell?" And the other answered:

"Yes, I am tired. I don't think that it is worth the while to come all the way from Vale of Cruix to Glasgow sight seeing."

This was the voice of Stevenson's nearest neighbor, and I liked and respected her, yet did not feel quite sure how Angelina would like an introduction, and so refrained from looking round and making myself known.

"I think we'd better have tea," said the voice; "it's more refreshing than coffee. Oh, how is Mary to-day? Think of my never asking before."

"Mary is poorly," said Mrs. Russell. "Oh, Mrs. Cullen, what a pity it is that flirting young minister came down to the Vale of Cruix. I don't know what Mrs. Stevenson was about to let him do as he did! We all thought he was courting Mary. She did, poor child. She just loved him dearly. And that day before he went away he told her he was engaged to some girl in Glasgow. I'm afraid it's broken her heart. She told me all about it. 'Oh, Aunt Russell,' she said, 'I know I ought to be ashamed but I can't help it. He seemed to like me so. I hope I shall die of this fever, for life is nothing to me.' Ashamed? Wy, thiis he who ought to be ashamed. Of all the things, a minister to be a cold, cruel flirt. And that is what Hugh Mactaggert is."

I listened, but I could not move or speak. I felt as though my heart also was breaking; and oh, the time I suffered! The women drank their tea and left, and then Angelina turned to me with a cold sarcastic smile.

"I see by your face that the little story is perfectly true, Mr. Mactaggert," she said.

"Angelina," I faltered, "I have done nothing that should give offense to you."

"Nothing but love another woman," she answered. "Love her and let her see it, meaning to marry me. Don't think I'm hurt; indeed, I am relieved! I should have kept my word to you but for this; but not so gladly as I once should. You are a very good looking man, but on the whole you dont suit me. I met Mr. S. at Millport, and he does. Frankly, I have been thinking what a pity it was I must decline his offer. As for this—Mary, is it not?—wouldn't she make a very good minister's wife?"

It came to my mind that she would—that she was the only wife for me; that Angelina, splendid as she was, would never have made me happy.

But I only said, "Miss Melville, if you desire to have your freedom I have no choice."

"I desire it greatly," she answered.

"It is yours," I said, with a bow.

After that I think we were both happier than we had been for days, and we shook hands when we parted. That night I went up to the Vale of Cruix, and I told Mary that my marriage had been broken off and that she was the only woman I had ever loved. She tried to summon up her pride and refuse me, but failed in the attempt, and let me take her to my heart. To-day I am pastor of the church at the Vale of Cruix. Mary is my wife, and we are as plain and quiet a pair as you could fancy. I even help my wife pick currants, and I have taken a turn at the garden when help is scarce. But I do not envy Mr. S. his wife nor long for the luxurious possibilities that I lost with Angelina. Mary and my little home content me. But one thing is on my conscience. I have never been able to ask myself the question, 'Did I flirt with Mary?' If not, what was it?—English Magazine.

THE HOME CIRCLE AND FARM.

The Model Woman.

Charles Dickens. She only is a true and noble wife for whose ambition a husband's love and her children's adoration are sufficient, who applies her military instincts to the discipline of her household and whose legislatives exercise themselves in making laws for her nurse, whose intellect has field enough for her in communion with her husband, and whose heart asks no other honors than his love and admiration; a woman who does think it a weakness to attend to her toilet, and who does not disdain to be beautiful, who believes in the virtue of glossy hair and well-fitting gowns, and who eschews rents and raveled edges, slipshod shoes and audacious make-ups; a woman who speaks low, and does not speak much; who is patient, and gentle, and intellectual and industrious; who loves more than she reasons, and yet does not love blindly; who never scolds and never argues but adjusts with a smile; such a woman is the wife we have all dreamed of once in our lives, and is the mother we still worship in the backward distance of the past.

Don't Fret

When I see a woman, with that beautiful countenance which has won the heart of her husband, darkened by a frown, constantly fretting and making all about her uncomfortable because there will be "dirt somewhere, the maid-servant is slow, and don't understand her business, baby is cross, always crossest when much is to be done, husband is unreasonable, didn't want me to do anything before marriage, expects more of me now than I can do," and so on, I am tempted to exclaim, "Hush, dear woman, these useless, sinful repinings! examine yourself; perchance the blame lies at your own door after all. There is a talisman possessing a magic charm that will scatter all these evils. It is cheerfulness. The maid-servant is quickened and improved by kind, encouraging words. The very cast of your countenance, the tones of your voice, are forming the temperament of that little one. Then, let your husband see that instead of a termagant and a fretter, his wife is gentle, kind, uncomplaining, self-denying, shedding peace and happiness around his hearth, and brightening his home by the sunlight of her smiles. A man of sense is not slow in discovering the gentler virtues of his wife. The secret of her influence over him lies here. It is the mystic tie binding him to her, that aught of earth, nor death itself, has power to sever.

Feeding Salt.

The Western Rural says, in answering a correspondent who asks if cows need salt, and if they should be fed enough to create great thirst, that all animals need salt; that they will not take more than is good for them, unless it be mixed with their food so that they must take it in order to get the food. Their system contains salt, and needs more than food usually contains. Hence the necessity of supplying it directly. But we do not think that feeding it to an extent that it would create thirst would be advisable. Salt is a poison and when taken in large quantities acts as such. Besides this, if the animal is in a constant state of thirst it is an unnatural condition, and, probably a state of fever. If administered in such quantities and in such a way as to cause thirst, the purpose would be to increase the flow of milk. But we do not believe that anything valuable could be accomplished by pursuing such a course. Doubtless if the cow would be made to drink a large quantity of water, she would yield an increased quantity of milk, but it would be overtaxing her and the milk would not be as good. It may be assumed that nature has made each individual cow so that she will maintain a correct balance between her food and her drink; and it would be just as reasanable to force additional food down her throat after she had eaten enough as it would be to force additional water down her throat after she had drank enough. Water is a very important feature in caring for dairy cows. The cow ought to have all the water that she naturally needs, and it should be just as pure as the water we drink ourselves; but we do not believe that any process of forcing her to drink should be adopted. Too much weakens digestion in any animal. We may very soon learn what the effect upon digestion is if we will contract the habit of drinking large quantities of water ourselves.

Less Fancy and More Pork.

Colonel F. D. Curtis, who raises anually more than 100 head of swine, acknowledges having had "the short nose and short ear hobby" and "had it bad," and held to it until the abbreviation extended also to weights and profits. Now he wants less fancy and more pork—"long bodies with broad backs and full rounded hams." "Not mammoths," he tells the Farm Journal, but "good medium sizes," such as have in his pens and pastures averaged 380 pounds at eight and a half months age. "If these had been of the fancy breeds with the short noses and clumpy bodies, they could not have been made to weigh more than half as much. Such large hogs are more active and vigorous. They will help themselves, which is quite an item in swine rearing, and they will grow on grass and eat any kind of coarse food and thrive on it. They also have less fat, which is in their favor."

When Should a Cow Go Dry.

From the Dairy.

There is such a thing as burning a candle at both ends. One may easily do this in the dairy, and, while the good easy man thinks he is making a good deal of light at the same cost, suddenly his candle may go out. This kind of thing may go on when one milks the cows up to the time of calving, or near it, and even encourages it by feeding it for that end. But then it may not. And it is the dairyman's business to know all about it and not take any general rule for his guide. There is no rule without exceptions, and these are as numerous as times, places and circumstances, and as circumstances alter cases, so the reply to the question we have put above depends upon circumstances. There are cows that will not go dry, but will milk from calf to calf. Is the dairyman to worry himself and the cow in useless defiance of her natural habit? By no means. He must suit his case to the circumstances, and reduce the milk yield as much as possible by milking once a day perhaps, and compensate the cow for her extra burden by giving her more feed up to a safe limit. What this limit may be depends wholly upon the ability of the cow to healthfully digest and dispose of the food. And no one but the intelligent owner can say what this limit may be, for it will vary, as cows vary, and no two cows are precisely alike. As long as the cow is in thriving condition, not losing flesh or making fat, the limit is not reached.

But as a rule, to be contracted and expanded judiciously and safely, it might be said that a cow should be dried off six weeks before she is due to calve. That up to to that time she should be liberally fed, in the usual manner; that thenceforth her food should be curtailed or even changed to dry hay; and if her condition is reduced sowewhat, so much the better. It will make it safer for her and the calf. The milking may be done once a day, or not wholly completed, leaving a little in the udder. We have even taken a little milk several times a day from a cow in this condition, with the effect of rapidly drying the udder. But it is a dangerous thing, and one to be avoided, to leave any considerable quantity of milk in a cow's udder at this time.

A Disappointed Wife.

"Pipsey Potts" in Arthur's Magazine.

She was sentimental, and yet practical, and one of the best of managing housewives. She said to us once:

"I did wish Tobias would say to me, as other kind, married men said to their wives, that they were glad of the day that made them one; that their homes were so happy and so well kept; that they envied no man, and all these comfortable things that go so far to make life blessed and enjoyable, and one time I laid a plan to make Tobias say beautiful things to me. The cow he had bought at a sale had never been payed for. It was to have been in three payments, and by dint of the closest kind of financiering and extra managing I raised the money, and little by little I paid on it, until finally the old farmer gave me the note. Now I was sure that as soon as Toby saw what I had done he would gather me to his bosom and wail out, 'my treasure! my priceless treasure!' In the evening after tea, while he sat reading, I stole up to his chair, laid my hand on his shoulder, and said, as I thurst the note before his face:

"'See here; what do you think of this?'

"He paused. He took the slip of paper listlessly between his thumb and finger and turned it over, turned it back, and then looked at it calmly. I supposed he was geting ready to weep. Instead he handed it back carelessly and resumed his paper. I said:

"'What do you think of it?'

"'Oh! it's all right, fur as I can see,' was the indifferent reply?"

And the wife! She had the good sense to laugh over it at the time, she told us, though we presume she did sneak away and wipe her eyes when she was so rudely waked from the dream she had indulged in.

The Horse's Lungs.

The horse derives his power of endurance from an increased interior lung surface. No matter how great his stature, or how heavy his muscle, if he is deficient in lung power, he will be like a locomotive having very large and very heavy driving wheels, surmounted with a disproportionately small boiler; the wheels and shaft sufficient for a train of thirty loaded cars, while steam for moving half that number is all the boiler can generate. A horse of ten hundred, having full lung development, and withal well muscled, will move a given load a greater distance in a specified time than a horse with a fifth more size, but having scant lung surface. Bulk and heavy muscles, out of proportion to the lung capacity, is a direct detriment. The horse does not get his reinvigoration, as is commonly supposed, directly and at once from the air he breathes, but, on the other hand, the renewal of vigor comes through the rapid change wrought upon the blood by its contact with the air in the delicate lung tissue. The air, as such, gives no tone or impetus to the muscles through the act of breathing, but forty times in a minute the heart sends the venous blood, deprived of its valuable properties by reason of having left these remote tissues, muscular and otherwise, where needed, to the lungs, instantly as it were, it is aerated, goes back to the heart, and again forty times a minute, in the horse, and nearly twice that frequently in the human subject, the heart sends the oxygenated blood to the brain, muscles and all other tissues; and it is upon its reaching its destination that the horse receives the benefit of the lung capacity he possesses, and not before.—National Live Stock Journal.

German Matrimonial Exchange

The establishment of a "matrionial exchange" is a late Berlin movement. Its object is the promotion of marriages, for the patriotic purpose of increasing the German people. In the marriage chamber of commerce, single people of all ages, and both sexes meet, and those who fancy each other talk matrimonial matters over in couples, and agree or disagree as the case may be, and nobody hurt. It is a practical proceeding, with no manner of sentiment in it, but such parties are generally in earnest, and mean business. No time is fooled away in moonshine. The object is wedlock, and the conversations are directly to the purpose, and sometimes couples join their fortunes upon mutual faith, sometimes references are given and required, and nearly always, if the earnest man or woman sticks to it, the result is a match more or less eligible. The entrance fee to the chamber is $1.50 for Berlinese, and $2.25 for provincials, which entitles them to admission until their object is attained, or all hope is abandoned. All parties contract—in case of their marriage through the agency of the chamber—to pay the association one per cent of their annual income during their wedded lives. This novel chamber of commerce seems to work well in Germany, and may serve the patriotic purpose while it adds to the general happiness of mankind.

Personal Paragraphs.

Maggie McDonald of Philadelphia, aged fourteen, rosy cheeked, strong and healthy, weighing nearly 180 pounds has a habit of barking, over which she has no control. Physicians attribute disease of the brain as the cause of the strange affliction.

Stanley, the African explorer, describes a strong man who was 6 feet 5 inches, and rather disproportionately slender. He could toss an ordinary sized man ten feet in the air and catch him in his descent. He would take one of the large white Muscat donkeys by the ears, and with a sudden movement of his right foot lay the surprised ass on his back. He could carry a 3-year-old bullock half way round his master's plantation. Once he actually bore 12 men on his back, shoulders and chest, a distance of 300 feet.

Mr. Albert S. Warner, the very brilliant young business man at the head of the First National Bank of Albion, N. Y., and chief executor of the great Burrows estate, to which the bank belonged, has gone to join Eno and Dickinson. He had plundered the estate of everything he could lay his hands on, and lost all in stock speculation. One by one the very brilliant young business men are going over the border.

A copy of what purports to be the will of the late George W. Rice, photographer of the Greely expidition, has been produced in Washington. The will is in the informal character of a letter writer at Camp Clay, Ellesmere Land, February 1, 1884, and directed to Lieutenant Kislinbury, who is requested to act in conjunction with Sergeant Brainard and M. P. Rice, as an executor. The letter is written in anticipation of a journey upon which the deceased was about to start, in the endeavor to find a cache of food for his starving comrades. It is of a melancholy interest throughout. After disposing of keepsakes and other personal property, he leaves $1,000 to his betrothed in Washington, and the rest of his estate to his father, mother and sister, who are now living in Nova Scotia.

Mrs. Clemmer once wrote of her early experiences: "I once entered into a written contract to write one column per day on any subject I was instructed to write on, for three years in advance, and at the end of that three years I had not for a single day failed to fulfill my task, which included everything from book review, comments on government, public men and affairs, to a common advertisement paragraph. You see I did not miss the apprenticeship of literary work. It was a toilsome time, but it cured me utterly of the mental perversity that awaits for inspiration of creative moods to do what is necessary to be done." Her sister, Miss Maggie Clemmer, lives in Utica.

There was a most impressive moment in one of Spurgeon's sermons a few Sundays ago. He was urging his hearers to prayer against a besetting sin. "Let us breathe it now," said he, and as he raised his hand it seemed as if with that act he lifted the vast congregation up on the heights of prayer. There was perfect stillness, and you could feel that the whole assemblage was silently praying. The sermon was plain, direct, matter-of-fact in the highest degree, absolutely without sensationalism of any kind, and showing little claim on the part of the preacher to brilliancy or eloquence. A preacher more unlike Beecher, with whom it is natural to compare him, could hardly be imagined. He seems to owe his great success to strength of character and that mysterious quality called leadership.

Sunken Treasures.

The list of treasure lost in the sea would indeed be a long and melancholy one; instancing, for example, the Madagascar, from Australia, which, in the early days of the gold fever there, having on board the precious yellow dust in enormous quantity, was never heard of, and left not even the faintest clew to speculations as to her fate. And in later years the Thunder steamer from Calcutta to China, with some £300,000 worth of silver, destined never to reach the expectant consignees, was supposed to be lying abandoned among the awful sandbanks at the mouth of the Houghly, but, in spite of many rumors, never to be seen there. These are instances, out of many, of treasures never heard of. The wreck of the Royal Charter steamer from Australia, lost in a frightful gale on the Anglesea coast in October, 1859, with some £800,000 of gold on board, will doubtless occur to the reader's mind, coupled as it was with such a lamentable loss of life. In this case, happily a great part of the treasure was recovered subsquently, but there is still a fortune left at Moelfra for the fortunate being who can find it. In old days Vigo Bay had always an attractive sound to treasure seekers, from the reported wealth on board the Spanish fleet destroyed there by Sir G. Rooke in 1702; but the infinite pains, money and patience expended over its recovery, have been thrown away, the silver (even if it is there, which is somewhat doubtful) obstinately refusing to make a reappearance in the world.—Belgravia.

How Bonner Bluffed the Herald.

Robert Bonner, of the New York Ledger, is one of the few really self-made men of this city, and one of the substantial few. His history of sixty years is well known to most readers, but I think the following anecdote illustrative of him has never been properly told. He had been advertising quite largely in his way in the Herald, of this city, sometimes taking as much as two columns to announce a blood-curdling tale by Selvanus Cobb, Jr., or some other of his sensational story writers. On one occasion he went to the Herald with a six-line advertisement which he wished inserted once in each column of one of the advertising pages, the rest of the column and page to be blank. The clerk taking the advertisement referred it to Joseph Elliott, then the publisher of the Herald, to whom Mr. Bonner said "Can't I have a page to my self?" "Certainly you can," was the reply. "Can't I have two?" Bonner asked. "Yes." "Can't I have four?" "I guess so." "How about eight?" Elliott had to consult with Hudson or Bennett, and there was some mechanical difficulty. Bonner had to content himself with his six-line advertisement inserted twenty-four times at a cost, for the single day's publication, of about $2,000. But he always claimed to have "bluffed" the Herald.—Correspondence Chicago Inter Ocean.

WHY BEEF COMES HIGH

An Instructive Little Talk with a Thoughtful Butcher.

From the Philadelphia Star.

Inquiring of a leading butcher for a piece of a shin of beef, for soup purposes, we were told that he did not offer such meats to his customers.

"Why not?"

"Because nobody wants to buy them. The almost sole inquiry is for sirloin, rib roast, tenderloin and other choice pieces."

"But there is no part of the bullock from which such excellent soup can be made as the shin."

"I know it, but you can't persuade the majority of buyers to believe that. Many of them would regard it a disgrace to have it known that a piece of shin beef ever found its way to their table. And that is one of the reasons why I am compelled to charge you 22 cents a pound for the choice cut of rump and 30 cents for the best sirloin. Do you understand."

"I don't think I do," said the journalist.

"Don't you know that we buy our beef carcasses by the pound, and that the skins, neck and other inferior pieces all cost the same? If we can not sell the less desirable cuts at anything like the price they cost us, we must necessarily charge such prices as will enable us to make a living profit. Hence the seemingly high charges for the better cuts. People will have no other, and, as a consequence, we have large quantities of the less desirable meats on hand, which we are compelled to dispose of at such prices as we can get."

"But are not these less desirable pieces, as you call them, good and nutritious?"

"Of course they are. If the American women generally understood cooking as they should and were willing to put themselves to a little trouble, there is not a pound of meat in a whole carcass that could not be made into a palatable dish. But many of them know comparatively nothing, and many of those who do are not willing to give the time required to the preparation of the poorer cuts, when they can get a tender steak ready for the gridiron or a roasting piece ready for the spit. We are a wasteful people, very wasteful. If our working people could but be made to comprehend what great economy there is in being able to cook well, they would be more anxious to have their daughters taught the art. Why, sir, I am convinced that a moderately skillful cook can serve just as toothsome dishes as are found on most tables at one-half the cost of the latter. There are many pounds of beef now on this stall, first-class beef though not generally so considered, which I will sell you at one-third the price I am compelled to ask for sirloin or rump steak; meat just as nutritious and wholesome, but requiring a little more skill in preparation.

"But that is none of my business. If I were to undertake to advise I would soon have my hands full. Hence I receive and fill orders as they are given. Do you know that one-half the housekeepers have no conception of any other methods of cooking beef, but to fry, broil, roast or boil, and yet, as every one ought to know, beef can be cooked acceptably in fifty different ways, and in most of them without any increased expense. I know of several housekeepers, ladies of means and refinement, who have given the subject thought and consideration, who thoroughly understand cooking, and who are not ashamed or afraid to be seen buying some of these inferior pieces. I have learned from them a number of recipes, which I have had tried at my own house and have found them admirable. Yes, sir, we are a wasteful peeple, especially in the use of meats, though for that matter I could point you to great improvidence in table furnishing in many other directions;" and, drawing his large, keen knife over a sharpening steel in a style that made one tremble for his fingers, the philosophical victualer proceeded to deftly cut a sirloin for a lady customer, leaving the writer to ponder over his remarks.

Manners of the Moors.

Tangier Letter to Pittsburgh Chronicle Telegraph.

Absolutely barbaric in their habits, the 5,000,000 or 6,000,000 of inhabitants—a census was never taken—can not be said, however, to be entirely deprived of a certain kind of civilization. But this civilization is diametrically opposed to our own. After having carefully observed their habits and modes of life, I can readily understand why you could easier make a Chinaman or an Indian accept our civilization than a Moor. I will quote but a few instances in my daily life. To honor a person the European arises and removes his hat; the Mussulman remains seated with his head covered. When entering a place of worship, or a house, instead of removing his hat, the Mussulman takes off his shoes and leaves them outside the door. We consider the right side as the place of honor; the Moor the left. When inviting a friend to enter his house the Moor steps in first and lets his guest follow him. Kissing the hand is a sign of respect with us; the Moor when saluting kisses his own hand. It would not be very dignified for a European King to carry an open umbrella when in Kingly attire; in Morocco the umbrella is the emblem of imperial majesty, and no one else is permitted to carry one. All this is only a matter of custom. There are many habits, however, which would never be brought to correspond with our own. I hardly need mention polygamy, the secrecy with which females are surrounded and hidded from view, nor the existing slavery, which can not be stopped. We take our meals by daylight and sleep at night; in the month of the Rhamadam, the great religious, and I may social, festival of the Mohammedans, they partake not of a drop of water or a morsel of food in daylight. They take their meals at night and spend the night in extravagant feasts and orgies. We undress for our night's rest; the Mohammedan sleeps in his daily dress. His day of rest is Friday instead of Sunday. We write from the left to the right, he writes from right to left. We begin to read a book on the first page, his first page is our last. In short, I believe those two civilizations have actually nothing in common.

Death Before A Camera.

"I suppose," said a Cincinnati photographer to a Times-Star man, "when I was learning my trade in a country town of this state, I had an experience I wont forget until death. The 'boss' had gone out for a day's hunt. Business was slack and he knew the other boy and myself could run the shop. I had made a few tintypes and considered myself a natural operator. To run the gallery for a day was bliss, and I was anxious for a sitter; before 8 o'clock I got everything cleaned up, bath and plates in order, and sat in the front window awaiting customers. An old man came in at 11 a. m. He was right from the country; had mud on his boots, and all the other 'testimony'. He was 'goin' west to his darters and wanted a picture to take with him, you know.' I knew all about it and soon had him in the chair, the iron clamps behind his ears and the camera 'gun' aimed at his gray head. He was quite nervous about something and asked me to wait. 'I want my picture drawed off to look like this,' he said, as he pulled a tintype of a young man from his pocket. 'The same pose like, you know,' he said, as he told me that it was his son who had been killed at Stone River. 'He was a dear good boy, he was,' said the old man, with a weak voice and a sigh—'and I'll soon be with him.'

"I got him in position while he still held in his hand the dead boy's picture. I went through the usual ceremony, telling him, All ready now, right still,' and as I took the cloth from the table turned my back to prevent any embarrassment. In thirty seconds I said, 'That will do.' He never moved. 'You may rest now,' I said, but he sat still, and held the precious tintype as if wrapt in thought. Thinking that he was deaf, I touched him on the shoulder. Still he did not move, and I noticed a fixed stare in his eyes. He was dead. He had died in the chair and I had the negative of a dying man. Of course I got help and sent word to his friends. The doctors said he died of heart disease. I developed his picture and started as I saw the face of a dead man look at me from the collodion coating. It was a nervous day for me I can tell you, and I have always been careful with old people.

"Talking about love affairs in photographs, I had a funny experience some time ago. A woman, handsome and determined, had a picture made holding a pistol to her head, as if about to commit suicide. This she sent to her lover, who was probably getting tired of her. Underneath the picture she wrote: 'If you don't I will.' He understood. It had its effect, for in two weeks I made a group picture of them both, and she was attired as a bride."

"Women have their vagaries, even for pictures?"

"Well, I should say so. To them the picture of a lover is very dear. A young woman who became infatuated with a drummer had me print a picture of him on the flesh or her arm. We can photograph on flesh very nicely now, and I made a good print. I fixed it thoroughly, and she went away happy. A month later she came back with blushes and wanted it taken off. Her lover had turned out to be a married man, and of course she hated him for his cruel deception. However, she wears it yet, as I told her to let it wear off."

WHIRLING SPIRE OF WATER.

How a Funnel of Sea-Foam Danced Along the Surface of a Jersey Inlet.

From the New Jersey Coast Pilot.

While your correspondent and a friend were sailing in Great Bay on the afternoon of July 16 they saw a huge waterspout—the first ever known in that body of water. Our attention was at first attracted by a violent commotion of the water, covering a space of probably twenty yards in diameter. By the aid of a pair of marine glasses we watched it attentively during its formation, and as it pursued its rapid flight toward the west we were enabled to make the following obseavations: The body of water appeared to be leaping and foaming with great violence and was traveling at the rate of eight or ten miles an hour. As it moved swiftly on its course it gradually ascended toward a dense, black cloud that overhung it. Presently we observed the cloud to change in appearance, a portion of it becoming elongated and descended toward the waters that rose to meet it, and, as it drew the water up into it, changed from an inky blackness to a much lighter color.

The thing was now complete and consisted of a mass of seething, foaming water whose diameter had increased to forty yards or more, to which was joined a narrow funnel, which extended at least a quarter of an mile upward, where it united with the heavy, black cloud that still hovered over it. The funnel, if such we may call it, at first ran down in almost a perpendicular direction, but soon changed in a double curve, and as it swayed to and fro in the air it presented the appearance of a huge rope, connecting the mass of water with the inky cloud above.

The whole affair lasted, as near as we could judge, for about fifteen minutes, when the upper portion gradually became less dense until it finally disappeared, while the waters continued in agitation a few minutes longer. From the time we discovered it until its dissolution it kept up the same rate of speed had any boats been in its path it would assuredly have meant destruction to them.

An Inducement for Immigration.

Mr. Geo. Hamilton, from his quiet and orderly down east home, was in Missouri looking for a farm, when a land agent showed him through Ray county, and offered the following inducements to settle there: "There is no such land elsewhere in Missouri, and the society can not be surpassed. Do you see that house over there? Well, there is where the Ford brothers lived, and where poor Charlie committed suicide. And also that one across the field? Wood Hite was killed in that house. Over yonder a little ways is the old homestead of the James family. If you could only stay over until to-morrow I would take pleasure in introducing you to Frank, whom we expect over from Boonville to spend a day or two with us. About six miles further on we come to the Mormon settlement. All good people to live among. We have about 500 of them, voters in this county." Mr. Hamilton took the next train home. He won't settle in Missouri.

Polk County Journal.

H. B. COOKE, Publisher.

CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

Profiting by the experiences of former years every one who is at all provident will look out for his winter wood pile during this usually pleasant month. The lesson of a few years ago, when railroads and all other roads was early and continually blockaded, ought to last for a life time.

It is argued by some writers that if the depression in food products should continue for any great length of time an inevitable result would be a reduction in the price of farming lands all over the country. But there is no probability that the depression will continue until such a result is reached, because it is not at all likely that in years succeeding there will be such immense crops as have been grown this year in almost every locality at home and abroad.

In a general way the people of this country are becoming educated as to the necessity of the preservation of forests, as they are to the æsthetic value of the propagation and ornamental trees. The subject has two distinct phases, the material one and the æsthetic one. It is not alone the conservation of the streams which is to be considered important, as this undoubtedly is; the question of the increased cost of lumber if one of the highest consequences, reaching as it does in the matter of rents those who have little voice in dealing with the subject, but who are in the last analysis greatly affected by the manner in which it is dealt with.

Mr. Ignatius Donnelly, it is announced, will shortly publish a book which will startle those who are interested in the controversy regarding the authorship of "Shakespeare." It is said he has found in the works of Sir Francis Bacon a cipher, which, applied to "Shakespeare's" plays, proves beyond doubt that they were written by Bacon. Without reference to Mr. Donnelly's researches, it may be said that this same thing has been often proved—to the satisfaction of the writers—but it does not stay proved. Ingenious speculations may interest a few people and confuse some, but the vast majority of lovers of "Shakespeare" throughout the world, in generations past, present and to come, recognize no other man than William Shakespeare.

It is sometimes superficially argued that the great crops of American staples the country has garnered this year cannot be accounted very important facts in the improved times business men expect. Prices of the principal products undoubtedly rule low, and may continue so, such an immense amount has been gathered at the harvest, and the European market will not call for any extraordinary supply from us, as the yield on that side of the atlantic is reported to be very good. Let us form some opinion of what has been actually added to our national wealth the past year. To do so, we will only cite three of our many crops. 500,000,000 bushels of wheat have been harvested by our farmers and 1,800,000 bushels of corn. At the present almost phenomenally low prices, the wheat and corn raised in the Union during the spring and summer would be worth $1,482,000,000, which would more than pay the national debt—$1,487,000,000. Add another of the American staples, cotton, in which the product has been larger than ever before with the exception of a single year, mounting to the aggregate of 5,714,052 bales, worth at least $250,000,000, and we have abundance of golden reasons for feeling the strongest faith in the growing prosperity of the republic.

A Chicago paper says it is not a new thing in the United States, and in the border states especially, that the production of wheat does not pay expenses. Many can recollect when it required two bushels of corn raised in Ohio to pay the postage on a letter from Boston to the "Western Reserve," or northern Ohio. And many now will remember when corn in Illinois was dull of sale at ten cents a bushel, and dressed turkeys were offered at the doors of citizens for twenty-five cents. Yet even in those days there was no over-production except in places where distant markets could not be reached. Nearly every year we have accounts of famine in some parts of the world. Just now the depression in wheat, which has generally been regarded as a standard commodity, and has heretofore maintained something analogous to a standard price, appears to have carried down the prices of nearly all the staple commodities. For instance, the price of the whole range of metals is very much depressed, viz., iron, steel, lead, copper and the manufactured products of these staples. Iron and steel rails are cheap, lead and iron pipe are cheap. The bushel of wheat goes about as far in the purchase of these articles as it did two years ago. Moreover, the prices of the whole range of domestic [illegible] have been greatly reduced. [illegible]

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

Washington News.

The appointment of Judge Gresham to be secretary of the treasury is regarded both in political and financial circles as altogether a fitting one.

Postoffice established: Dakota—Hoskins, McIntosh county. Postoffice discontinued: Minnesota—Lisbon, Yellow Medicine county; mail to Granite Falls.

The capstone of the Washington monument is now being cut in the shed in the monument grounds, and it is expected that it will be completed during the present week.

Investigators from the railroad bureau of the interior department report that the Northern Pacific is to be one of the best of the transcontinental routes, that the Union Pacific is earning over $12,000 per month on its main line, and that the Central Pacific is a good-paying property. They say there are too many railroads in the West for the population.

Postoffices Discontinued—Dakota: Oberweis, Richland county; mail to Wahpeton. Montana—Crow Agency, Yellowstone county; mail to Stillwater. Washington territory—Harriston, Whitman county; mail to Sprague. Wisconsin—North La Crosse; mail to La Crosse. Postmasters Commissioned—Brainerd B. Harrington, Akron, Iowa; Nels J. Nelson, Etter, Minn.; Ira W. Bradshaw, Bon, Wis.

Mr. De Merolta, late Italian consul at Baltimore, who disappeared a few days ago, is said to have victimized several persons prominent in diplomatic circles in Washington. The aggregate debts he has left behind him unpaid in Washington, it is said, are $75,000. One of his creditors in this city says he seems to have lived on loans from his friends for a long time past, and he names among others who have been taken in by him for large sums, Robert Garrett, of the Burlington & Ohio railroad, and Mr. Knabe, of the piano manufacturing firm.

Rail and River Notes.

The earnings of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul system for the third week in September aggregated $510,000. The earnings for the same period in 1883 were $531,000, showing a decrease of $13,000.

Casualties of the Week.

Abe Smith & Co.'s extensive glass works at Pittsburg were burned. Loss $300,000.

The machine shop of the Lake City Tool company at Madison, Wis., was gutted by fire. Loss on building, patterns, and damage to machinery, $1,500; fully covered by insurance. It is supposed that the fire originated over the engine.

Crimes and Criminals.

Frank Frisbie, the defaulting exchange teller of the First National bank of Portland, Or., has received his sentence—one year's imprisonment, the very lowest penalty under the statute.

At Carrington, Ga., last Thursday, Homer Perry, a boy of fifteen, was sentenced to hang Nov. 7 for criminal assault. At Canton, Ga., George Hill was sentenced to hang Oct. 31 for chopping his rival to pieces.

A negro named Short seized a well-known lady at Carthage, Ala., and dragging her into a clump of bushes ravished her. She gave the alarm and a posse of one hundred hunted the negro down and riddled him with bullets.

Darwin N. Gardner, ex-police clerk of Cleveland O., shot his wife, who, before marriage, was known as Alice Phillips, or Tucker, and then shot himself. Gardner is fatally wounded. The wife is wounded in the temple, but will probably recover.

Black Hank Adams, the negro who betrayed and abducted Amanda Ayres, the daughter of one of Sussex county's (N. J.) wealthiest farmers, has been found guilty at Newton, N. J., of rape and abduction, and sentenced to the state prison for fifteen years.

J. L. Danford, the defaulting president of the bank at Cheney, Wash., who absconded some days ago to British Columbia, has fled from Victoria in consequence of American detectives being there to capture him. The avowed purpose of these officers is to bring Danford back to American soil.

Frand Bernier and Frank Reed, both old residents of Toledo, Wash., engaged in a quarrel over a very trivial affair. Blows were exchanged, when both drew knives and made a mutual attack. Berner was stabbed five times from the effects of which he died almost instantly. Reed received very slight injuries.

Personal News Notes.

The estate of the late Senator Anthony is worth $600,000.

Ned Gilmore, of Niblo's Garden, N. Y., has just fallen heir to $100,000.

Couldock will soon celebrate in Boston his fiftieth year on the stage and his seventieth birthday anniversary.

William Mead, the young man who eloped with Miss Roma Sickles, was formerly a Western Union telegraph operator in Indianapolis.

At Cincinnati the sister of the late Lieut. Clark moves to disbar T. C. Hildebrandt, a prominent attorney, for refusing to account for money collected.

William Beach Hazelton, a well-known journalist, heretofore connected with various papers in Baltimore and Washington, has been sent to the insane asylum.

The parents of Sarah Schuer, the New York Jewess, who eloped with H. E. Friedman, have concluded to refuse to have anything more to do with her or her husband.

Robert Toombs said recently, in his emphatic way, that the late Bishop Pierce was physically intellectually and morally the most symmetrical man of the nineteenth century.

A dispatch from Deer Park, Md., states that John W. Garrett is sinking rapidly and his death is expected any moment. He is passing away quietly without suffering, surrounded by members of his family.

Mrs. S. H. Clark, a charitable lady of Baltimore, who was buried on Wednesday, weighed 532 pounds. No hearse sufficiently large to hold the casket could be obtained, and a special vehicle was provided.

Alexander Mitchell has telegraphed to two friends in New York that the rumors concerning his resignation of the presidency of the St. Paul road are false. This puts an end to the speculation caused by the report which originated in the fertile brain of newspaper correspondents.

General News Items.

Henry Bickford, a Cincinnati manufacturer of machinery, assigned. Assets, $35,000; liabilities, $25,000.

"Give me Conk, or give me cold pizen," is the alternative of Mrs. Cornelia Conklin, nee Maud, the deserted Oyster Bay, L. I., bride.

It is contemplated to erect a statue at New Orleans to the late Capt. Samuel C. Reid, who commanded the brig Gen. Armstrong, to commemorate his battle with the British squadron at Fayal, Sept. 26 and 27, 1814.

J. L. Danford, absconding president of the Savings Bank of Cheney, Wash., telegraphs from British Columbia that he had sold all his interest in the bank to parties who had assumed its debts and liabilities. He claims that he has done nothing dishonorable.

[illegible] in the Rock Hill S. C. Herald: All persons are hereby requested to take up [illegible]

1883.—Judges Sawyer, Hoffman, and Sabin, had previously ruled otherwise.

Two years ago Bishop Gilmour, of the Cleveland diocese, published a communication in his paper, the Catholic Universe, and in the Penny Press, in which he charged Edwin Cowles, editor of the Leader, with having treated a daughter in so brutal a manner as to cause her to become an invalid. Mr. Cowles had the Bishop and editor of the Universe arrested for criminal libel, and instituted suits against the bishop, the Universe, and the Penny Press for $25,000 each. Owing to the continued illness of Mr. Cowles' daughter her deposition could not be taken, and the cases were continued from time to time. Last Thursday the bishop published a card, making a retraction of his libelous charges he published, and the suit will be withdrawn.

Foreign Flashes.

A Shanghai dispatch to the London Times states the Franco-Prussian alliance means the disintegration of China and its partition between those two countries; France taking the three southern provinces and Russia, having China as a recruiting ground for her armies, the two countries being connected by railways. The alliance also means Franco-Russian preponderence in Europe, and therefore fraught with danger to Germany. It also means the extinction of the China trade, and imperils all the English possessions in the east.

Apropos of the popular agitation in favor of the franchise bill, London Truth says: The cabinet is greatly impressed by the attitude of the country, and has resolved to create fresh peers if a small majority of the house of lords rejects the franchise bill a second time. If, however, the bill is rejected by a large majority, parliament will be asked to express its views regarding the future constitutional position of the house of lords, either by resolution or address to the crown. If the resolution of parliament is brought about this autumn, the country will be consulted, not regarding the commons but regarding the lords. This policy has been consented to by the queen, and the royal dukes will vote with the Liberals when the franchise bill is brought before the house of lords again.

A sweet Little Pet.

At Rathdrum, Idaho, a pet bear broke loose and ran on the streets in a rage. The animal attacked a girl twelve years old and dreadfully mangled the child with its teeth and claws and nearly crushed her to death by hugging. Four men hearing the girl's cries rushed to the rescue. The bear turned furiously on them, dropping the child. Three men were badly torn, one having a hand nearly chewed off. The fourth man escaped the animal's fury. Before the bear could be despatched he made his escape. It is reported that the girl cannot live. The people are greatly incensed against the owner of the animal.

New Secretary of the Treasury.

The President has appointed Postmaster General Gresham, Secretary of the Treasury vice Folger deceased. First Assistant Postmaster General Hatton will act as postmaster general until Gresham's successor is appointed. Walter Q. Gresham is fifty-one years of age. In 1882, after serving a term in the Indiana legislature, he accepted a lieutenant colonelcy in an Indiana regiment, and at the end of the war had attained a general's position under Sherman. After the war he resumed the practice of law, and, declining the collectorship of the port of New Orleans, offered him by President Grant, was made United States district judge by the latter, his court being located at Indianapolis. During his judgeship he rendered several noted decisions. He succeeded ex-Senator Howe as Postmaster general, his cabinet appointment being dated April 3, 1883.

Sad Death of a Very Brave Man.

New York Special: Isaac Newton, chief engineer of the Croton water department, committed suicide by cutting his throat. He had been drinking hard of late. The coroner's jury decided that Newton took his life while insane. Financial trouble caused the act. The estate left by the elder Newton, who was Commodore Vanderbilt's associate in North river navigation enterprises, has been diminished lately by failures of debtors. Newton was chief engineer of the aqueduct and forty-five years old. He was John Ericsson's favorite pupil and planned the new aqueduct. He managed the engine of the Monitor in her fight with the Merrimac, having to be brought to the deck three times because of fainting in the close atmosphere of the engine room. He was ignorant which way the battle was going till the victory was won. When assistant engineer of a frigate in the war he was publicly thanked by the secretary of the navy for his heroic conduct during a fire on the ship. When the crew was inclined to abandon her he threatened to brain any man who attempted to pass him on the gangway, where he stationed himself. Newton feared the depletion of his father's estate would leave his mother and sister in want.

Will of the Dead Millionaire.

Cincinnati Special:—Wednesday afternoon Charles W. West's will was admitted to probate. The will directs that the funeral expenses shall first be paid, and wills to the children of Samuel C. West—Emma W. Brown or her heirs, $50,000; Mary A. Hazard, or her heirs, $25,000; Edward G. West, or his heirs, $40,000; the Philadelphia Safe Deposit and Insurance company, $40,000 in trust for George W. and Rebecca West, children of Samuel C. West, to be invested by the company, in accordance with the laws of Pennsylvania, the net income to be paid in equal amounts quarterly, and at their death the principal is devised to their respective heirs, less the legal charges of the company; to the children of George West, or their heirs, $20,000 each; to Ida Graham, neice of the testator, and Charles W. Lathbury, $2,600 each; Children's Home, $10,000; Cincinnati Orphan asylum, $10,000; German Protestant Orphan asylum, $10,000; Catholic Orphans, Cumminsville, $10,000; Sisters of the Good Shepard, Bank street, $5,000; Little Sisters of the Poor, Baum street, $5,000; Widow's Home, Walnut Hills, $10,000; Old Men's home, Walnut Hills, $50,000. There are three executors, of which John T. West and Henry Lewis are two, and each of them are to receive $25,000. The public bequests are all to Cincinnati institutions. Mr. West's nephew, John T. West of Minneapolis, receives the balance of the estate. The aggregate value of the entire estate is in the vicinity of $2,000,000.

The Chicago Markets.

Wheat, Chicago spring, 75@75¼c; No. 3, Chicago spring, 58c; No. 2 red, 78c; No. 3 red, 64c.

Corn, cash, 76¼@78c.
Oats, cash, 25c.
Rye, 55¼c.
Barley, 66c.
Pork, cash, $16.75.
Lard, cash, $7.20@$7.25.

Milwaukee Markets.

Wheat, No. 2, 74¼c.
Corn, No. 2, 55c.
Oats, No. 2 white, 28¼c.
Rye No. 1, 53c; No. 2 53c.
Barley, No. 2, 60¼c; extra, No. 3, 46c.
Mess Pork, $16 cash.
Lard—Prime steam, $7.20.
Butter, choice creamery, 24@26c; fair to good 20@23c; best dairy, 17@19c.

Minneapolis Markets.

Wheat, No. 1 hard, 79¼c; No. 2 hard, 74c; No. 1, 68c.
Corn, No. 2, 55c; rejected, 48@50c; condemned 35@40c.
Oats, No. 2 old white, 26@26c; No. 2, new, 25¼c; rejected, 22@24c; condemned, 22@23c.
Barley, No. 2, 58@60c.
Mixed Feed—No. 1, $17.50@18; No. 2, $16.50@17.
Corn Meal—unbolted, $17@$18; bolted, $21@$23.
Hay, timothy, $8@$9.50; wild, choice, $8@$8.50; No. 2 wild, $5.50@$6.75.

St. Paul Markets.

Wheat—No. 1 hard, new, 79c; No. 2 hard, 75c; No. 2, 68c.
Corn—No. 2, 50c; No. 3, 48c.
Oats—No. 2 mixed, 24c; No. 2 white, 25c; No. [illegible]
[illegible]
Ground Feed, $18.00 [illegible]
Baled Hay, [illegible] timothy, Hay, $10.00@$10.50
Timothy seed, $1.30 [illegible]

MINNESOTA AT NEW ORLEANS.

Official Publication of the Departments and Divisions of the State Exhibit and the Superintendents Thereof—General Directions.

With the approval of Gov. Hubbard, Oliver Gibbs, Jr., of Lake City, United States commissioner and secretary of the state board of collective exhibits preparing for display at New Orleans, and Samuel E. Adams, Minneapolis, United States alternate commissioner and treasurer, have issued a circular which embodies all the facts in connection with the world's exposition, which opens Dec. 1. As there have been some changes, the following amended list of superintendents of Minnesota departments is furnished:

CORRECT LIST OF SUPERINTENDENTS.

Agricultural Products—Prof. Edward D. Porter, agricultural college, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis. Prof. Porter will have the general supervision of the entire display of farm products for the state.

Fruits—F. G. Gould, Excelsior.

Growing Trees and Plants—J. M. Underwood, Lake City.

Dairy Products—C. E. Marvin, Rochester; F. A. Richardson, Austin, assistant. Mr. Marvin is also general superintendent of the department of dairy products and dairy stock for the world's exposition, appointed by the director general.

Live Stock—R. C. Judson, secretary state board of agriculture, Farmington.

Poultry and Pet Stock—Henry Kalb, Rochester.

Geology, Flora and Fauna—Prof. N. H. Winchell, state geologist, Minneapolis.

Fish and Fisheries—Dr. R. O. Sweeny, chairman state fish commission, St. Paul.

Sanitary Exhibits—Dr. C. N. Hewitt, secretary state board of health, Red Wing.

Educational Exhibits—Prof. D. L. Kiehle, state superintendent of public instruction, St. Paul.

Amber Cane Sugar and Syrup—Seth H. Kinney, Morristown; J. F. Porter, Red Wing, assistant.

Lakes and Summer Resorts—Charles Hallock, Minneapolis.

Flour Manufacturing—L. C. Porter, Winona.

Lumber Exhibits—E. W. Durant, Stillwater.

Manufactures and Mechanics—David E. Bailey, 257 First avenue south, Minneapolis.

Minnesota Publications—H. D. West, West Publishing company, St. Paul.

Immigration Pamphlets—H. H. Young, secretary state board of immigration, St. Paul.

Railway Exhibits—Gen. J. H. Baker, railroad commissioner, St. Paul.

Minnesota Land System—M. S. Chandler, United States surveyor general, St. Paul.

Relics and Curiosities—J. Fletcher Williams, secretary State Historical society, St. Paul.

Department of Woman's Work—Mrs. Isabel C. Marston, Minneapolis, superintendent; David E. Bailey, secretary; office, Room 14, 257 First avenue south, Minneapolis.

GENERAL SUGGESTIONS.

Each of the superintendents is held responsible for his particular division. The design is to represent at the world's exposition not only all the industries, arts, resources and attractions of the state, but to make our exhibits embrace a representation of every county and every industrial class and interest. Collecting agents, who are to be experts in the several lines assigned them, are to be appointed by superintendents, but voluntary contributions are earnestly requested. Especial attention is called to the department of women's work, which will be made a feature. The circular further states:

The exposition opens Dec. 1. As soon as possible thereafter a list of all the materials placed in the exposition from Minnesota will be prepared and returned to the governor, with the name and postoffice address of every contributor; and at the close of the exposition the commissioner will make a final report to the governor, embracing a general view of the exposition, a comparative view of the several state exhibits, and a history of our Minnesota department, including reports from the several superintendents, describing the special exhibits under their charge from our state.

All materials, except live stock, dairy products, and supplementary educational exhibits, should be sent in by the 25th of October, and cars ready to move Nov. 1.

MINNESOTA STATE BANKS.

A Fragment From the Forthcoming Biennial Report of Examiner Knox—Thirty-Two State Banks Now in Operation.

A fragment of the biennial report of Bank Examiner H. M. Knox, has gained publicity; the section relating to new banking capital, etc., in Minnesota within the last two years. As yet but two-thirds of the whole report is in the hands of the printers. During the two years charters were granted by the state to the following new banks:

The Bank of Benson; the Wright County bank, Delano; the Bank of Glencoe; the Grant County Bank, Herman; the Morrison County bank, Little Falls; the Bank of Minneapolis; the Bank of North Minneapolis; the Scandia bank, Minneapolis; the Bank of Ortonville; the Pipe Stone County bank; the Bank of Minnesota, St. Paul; the Germania bank, St. Paul; the People's bank, St. Paul; and the Nicollet County bank, St. Peter;—in all fourteen. The following have been changed to the national system: The State bank, Anoka; the Bank of St. Cloud; the Bank of Shakopee and the Bank of Wabasha. Changed to private bank with same name, the Morrison County bank; and failed, the Bank of Farmington. There are now in operation thirty-two state banks, whose resources and liabilities are thus summarized:

RESOURCES.

Loans and discounts	$9,814,784 25
Over drafts	81,358 59
Stocks and bonds	258,835 67
Due from other banks	1,210,505 48
Banking house furniture and fixtures	252,345 54
Other real estate	118,767 67
Expenses and taxes paid	128,818 59
Checks and cash items	35,378 73
Exchanges for clearing house	74,920 75
Cash on hand	817,482 54
Other resources	27,584 81
Total	$12,820,702 62

LIABILITIES.

Capital stock paid in	$3,475,000 00
Surplus fund	423,182 18
Other undivided profits	364,855 12
Dividends unpaid	861 04
Due to depositors	7,698,715 15
Due to other banks	630,904 11
Bills payable and rediscounts	224,545 82
Other liabilities	3,139 24
	$12,820,702 62

FURTHER FIGURES.

The net increase in capital stock is $1,141,250, and in surplus, $128,218.14. The increase in capital, surplus and individual deposits amounts to $2,453,268.48, and the increase in loans, $2,407,467.41. The banks held in cash on June 20, $817,482.64, or 9.8 per cent of the immediate liabilities and in corresponding banks the sum of $1,210,505.48, or 14.5 per cent of immediate liabilities, and in both, classes of available funds the sum of $2,027,988.02, or 24.3 per cent of such liabilities. The total increase of deposits of the banks are $584,415.79, and the total increase of resources the same. The combined capital, surplus and individual deposits of all the banks of the state show a grand total of $45,489,006. The loans of the eighty-six national, state and savings banks amount to $37,572,756. The increase of the banks are: National, 15; state, 8; savings, 0; private, 12; making an increase of 35.

Cost of State School Books.

Superintendent of Public Instruction Kiehle has issued a circular to county auditors in which he says that on and after Oct. 1, 1884, the state text books will be sold by the various agents at prices named in the accompanying schedule. A reduction of five cents has been made in the price of the common school geography, first reader and American history. This change will entitle the several agents to a credit of six cents for each of these books remaining unsold at that time. A circular to state text book agents says that by reason of larger orders for text books since the adoption of the agency plan, the cost of transportation has been so decreased as to warrant the reduction of the selling price of several of the books. It is therefore ordered that on and after Oct. 1, 1884, the "Common School Geography" shall be sold for 80 cents, the "First Reader" for 10 cents, and the "American History" for 60 cents.

The price of state text books are now as follows:

Common school speller, 15 cents; introductory geography, 50 cents; common school geography, 80 cents; first reader, 10 cents; second reader, 20 cents; third reader, 30 cents; fourth reader, 40 cents; higher reader, 90 cents; geography of Minnesota, 50 cents; primary arithmetic, 15 cents; intellectual arithmetic, 25 cents; elementary arithmetic, 30 cents; practical arithmetic, 50 cents; how to speak and write, 27 cents; lessons in language, 25 cents; English grammar, 50 cents; American history, 60 cents; physiology and hygiene, 55 cents; academic dictionary, $1.40; writing books, 10 cents each; manual of penmanship, $1.10.

Frederick Sawyer, eldest son of A. J. Sawyer, a prominent wheat man of Duluth, died at Avon Springs, N. Y., of abscess on the side, aged twenty-six.

Ira O. Gilbert of Duluth, a dealer in pine lands, died Saturday. He went to Duluth four years ago [illegible] together for the purpose of handling their own wheat. They have hired an agent to attend to their business who will receive his pay from the association.

Capt. and Mrs. William Adams, of Richfield, have lately donated to the First Congregational church, of Villard, Minn., $1,000 for building a church. The donation was made on condition that a $2,000 building should be erected.

Murphy closed his St. Paul crusade. His converts perfected a permanent organization with John B. Brisbin as president.

R. F. Knox of Granite Falls accidentally shot himself through the arm while hunting, and died from loss of blood.

James Scanlan of Sherican, Minn., was thrown from his wagon and paralyzed, dying the next day.

Saturday night the Meriden mill at Meriden nine miles from Owatonna, was destroyed by fire. The mill was built about six years since by a co-operation of the citizens of Meriden and the farmers of the western part of Steele county and of Waseca county. It has been idle since last spring. The original cost of the mill was about $23,000, and a good many thousands have been added since in the way of improved machinery. Last year the cyclone damaged the mill, and the cost of repairing and new machinery to the amount of $4,000 put in created a floating debt which was extinguished by a sheriff's sale of machinery. The amount of insurance could not be learned.

George Van Wagner, an employe of the Winona Wagon works, committed suicide by shooting himself in the head with a revolver in the cellar of the Fair Grounds house. He was about thirty years of age and single. Dissipation and despondency were the cause.

Mrs. Professor Moses Marston of Minneapolis has been appointed superintendent of woman's Work Department of Minnesota for the great New Orleans exhibition. Members of advisory department have been appointed St. Paul, Minneapolis, and some twenty other cities and towns. The committee will be in communication with Mrs. Marston, and will aid her in making the collections in pencil drawings, pen drawing, charcoal drawing, red chalk drawing, painting on silk and satin and velvet, mineral painting, china and tile, wood carving, wood engraving, knitting, darning, hand sewing, silk embroidery, etching worsted embroidery, linen, chenille, Kensington embroidery, bullion embroidery, cotton embroidery, bead embroidery, Arrasine embroidery, fish scale and ribbon work. Lace work in Guipure silk, Honiton silk, applique silk, Macreme silk and Irish point and crochet work will also be received. Typewriting, artificial flower work and any other branches of woman's work and industry are suitable for the department.

The sovereign grand lodge of Odd Fellows held its closing sessions the 22d at Minneapolis, transacting the odds and ends of their business, and installing officers, as follows: Judge Garey, of Baltimore, grand sire; John W. White, of Albison, N. Y., deputy grand sire; Theodore A. Ross, of Baltimore, grand secretary; Allen Jenks, Baltimore, assistant grand secretary; Isaac A. Shepard, Philadelphia, grand treasurer; John T. Jakes, Delaware, grand marshal; Rev. J. W. Venable, Hopkinsville, Ky., grand chaplain; Dr. J. E. Herwell, Nashville, Tenn., grand guardian; C. H. Whitney, Lansing, Mich., grand messenger. The committee which had been investigating the matter of the Patriarchal circle reported recommending that the grand lodge discountenance that institution.

P. G. La Chappelle of Crookston has brought to St. Paul a pair of elk, a cow elk, and a nondescript of the deer family found north of Hudson's bay, and known to the Esquimaux as the Lost Man's Friend. The elk are fine specimens, bearing their fourth-year antlers. One is a cross between a moose and an elk. La Chappelle bought the bucks from Sitting Bull in the region west of Mouse river. He says the moose-elk can trot to sulky in 2:06. He will take the lot to New Orleans, where they will be shown in the world's fair. The cow elk gives about six quarts of milk daily, and can be milked as regularly as a cow.

The big woods of Minnesota cover 5,000 square miles or 3,200,000 acres of surface. These woods contain only hardwood growths, including white and black oak, maple, hickory, basswood, elm, cottonwood, tamarack and enough other varieties to make an aggregate of over thirty different kinds. The hardwood tract extends in a belt across the middle of the State, and surrounding its northeastern corner is an immense pine region covering 21,000 square miles or 13,440,000 acres.

A little fourteen-months-old boy of Mr. Adam Dobbleford of Winona was drowned in a tub partially filled with water.

George Gee of Danville, Ill., is under arrest at Minneapolis for inducing a young lady to elope with him under promise of marriage, he being a married man.

Jack Frost gave some of the northern counties a gentle nip.

The Olivet Presbyterian church was dedicated at Minneapolis.

Prof. E. F. Mearkle, who was formerly a teacher in the Hamlin University, has been added to the faculty, and begins his duties immediately on the opening of the school.

WINDOM, Special:—Judge Severance sentenced Ole Frengen, to nine years at hard labor in the State prison at Stillwater for the murder of Jodine Hansen. The prisoner's counsel made a statement in his behalf tending to show that the prisoner procured the strychnine and oil of tansy at the request of the girl, and the understanding between them was that if the tansy did not produce abortion the strychnine would; that he procured the strychnine at Jackson, and fearing she might take too large a dose and cause death, fixed a small powder of it and took it to her. The prisoner is a Norwegian, unable to speak English, and professes to have no knowledge of the effects of the poison beyond what the girl told him. He expressed no emotion when the sentence was pronounced and maintained the same stolid composure he has throughout all the proceedings. Sheriff Barlow will leave for Stillwater with the prisoner. Two other prisoners were fined $200 each for selling liquor to miners.

C. M. Dittman's house, St. Paul was damaged by fire.

According to the report of Inspector General O. B. Gould, the First regiment has 500 officers and men, with an average attendance of 489. The Second regiment has 614 men and officers, average attendance 466; Emmet Light artillery, 60 enrolled, 44 in attendance. The expenses of three regiments were First Regiment, $10,477.10; Second regiment, $9,282.73; Light artillery, $770.81. Each of them received $8,252 from the state, the balance being raised by regimental subscription.

The Silver Mine Exchange saloon, Duluth, was burned. Loss, $2,500; insured $1,600.

The fireman and brakeman on train No. 25 of the Cannon Valley division of the Minneapolis & St. Louis exchanged places while switching Saturday night, at Cascade Junction, and in coupling cars the former was caught between the draw-bars and his left arm completely crushed. He was taken to Northfield and his arm amputated.

While Frank Bouton and wife, of Lake City, were at church Sunday evening thieves entered their dwelling and took $25 from the pocket book which he left in his every day clothes, not overlooking a small sum in the portemonnie of Mrs. Bonton, which lay on the bureau. A young lady who occupies an upper apartment in the house heard the robbers at their work below, and suspected their "racket," but did not dare to move or even look out of the window when they went away.

The Sauk Center Tribune says the money taken from the Osakis bank has not been recovered. Mr. Johnson took possession of J. B. Streeter's stock, wagons, etc. for debt due. Mr. Streeter having disappeared, is charged with the robbery, and most of the people in Osakis believe him guilty.

Seven-year-old Charley Briest was drowned at Stillwater.

Frederick Pagenkopf, a well-known farmer in the town of Warsaw, Rice county, fell dead [illegible] heart disease [illegible]

[illegible] of Kasota was [illegible] about $150 worth of plunder [illegible] supposed to be [illegible]

MR. BLAINE'S MARRIAGE.

Mr Blaine Tells All About His Marriage in a Letter to William Walter Phelps.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—Hon. William Walter Phelps gives to the public the following private letter addressed to him nearly two weeks ago:

Augusta, Sept. 6, 1884.—My Dear Mr. Phelps: I have your favor of the 4th, advising me that "the continuous invention and wide circulation of evil reports render it advisable (in your judgment) not to wait the slow process of the law, but to speak directly to the public in my own vindication." In this opinion many others, on whose judgment I rely, concur. I shrink instinctively from the suggestion, although I feel sure I could strengthen the confidence of all who feel friendly to me by bringing to view the simple thread of truth which is concealed in this endless tissue of falsehood. You can imagine how inexpressibly painful it must be to discuss one's domestic life in the press, although I think with you that under the circumstances I could count upon the generosity of the public to justify a statement which might otherwise seem objectionable. I can in any event safely commit the facts to you for personal communication to those friends who have taken so delicate and so considerate an interest in my affairs. The leisure hours of to-day, when our campaign is ended, and we wait only for the election gives me the opportunity for this prompt reply and for the following essential details: At Georgetown, Ky., in the spring of 1848, when I was but eighteen years of age, I first met the lady who for more than thirty-four years has been my wife. Our acquaintance resulted, at the end of six months, in an engagement, which, without prospect of speedy marriage, we naturally

SOUGHT TO KEEP TO OURSELVES.

Two years later, in the spring of 1850, when I was maturing plans to leave my profession in Kentucky and establish myself elsewhere, I was suddenly summoned to Pennsylvania by the death of my father. It being very doubtful if I could return to Kentucky, I was threathened with an indefinite separation from her who possessed my entire devotion. My one wish was to secure her to myself by an indissoluble tie against every possible contingency in life, and on the 30th of June, 1850, just prior to my departure from Kentucky, we were, in the presence of trusted friends, united by what I know was in my state of Pennsylvania a perfect and fully legal form of marriage. On reaching home I found my family, and especially my bereaved mother, strongly discountenanced my business plans as involving too long a separation from home and kindred. I complied with her wish that I should resume at least for a time, my occupation in Kentucky, whither I returned in the latter part of August. During the ensuing winter, induced by misgivings which were increased by legal consultations, I became alarmed least a doubt might be thrown upon the validity of our marriage, by reason of non-compliance with the law of the state where it had occurred for I had learned that the laws of Kentucky made a license, certified by the clerk of the county court, an indispensable requisite of a legal marriage. After much deliberation and with an ardent desire to guard in the most effectual manner against any possible embarrassment resulting from our position, for which I alone was responsible, we decided that the simplest and at the same time surest way, was to repair to Pennsylvania and have another marriage service performed. This was done in the presence of witnesses, in the city of Pittsburg, in the month of March, 1851, but was not otherwise made public for obvious reasons. It was solemnized only to procure an indisputable validity, the first marriage being by my wife and myself always held sacred. At the mature age of fifty-four I do not defend the wisdom or prudence of a secret marriage, suggested by the ARDOR AND INEXPERIENCE OF YOUTH.

but its honor and its purity were inviolate as I believe in the sight of God, and cannot be made to appear otherwise by the wicked devices of men. It brought to me a companionship which has been my chief happiness from boyhood's years to this hour, and has crowned me with whatever success I have attained in life. My eldest child, a son, was born in his grandmother's house on the 18th day of June, 1851, in the city of Augusta, Me., and died in her arms three years later. His ashes repose in the cemetery of his native city, beneath a stone which recorded his name and the limits of his innocent life. That stone which had stood for almost an entire generation, has been recently defaced by brutal and sacreligious hands. As a candidate for the presidency I knew that I should encounter many forms of calumny and personal defamation, but I confess I did not expect to be called upon to defend the name of a beloved and honored wife, who is a mother and a grandmother, nor did I expect the grave of my little child would be cruelly desecrated. Against such gross forms of wrong the law gives no adequate redress, and I know that in the end my most effective appeal against the unspeakable outrages I resist, must be to the noble manhood and the noble womanhood of America.—Your friend, very sincerely,

James G. Blaine.

REGARDS IT CONCLUSIVE.

New York, Special Telegram, Sept. 20.—The Times this morning says:

The statement which Mr. Blaine makes in his letter so William Walter Phelps should close all lips upon a subject which has been introduced in this campaign only where manliness was forgotten.

AGAINST THE ST. JOHN TICKET.

A Strong Letter from Mrs. J. Ellen Foster

There are hundreds of letters being written to those who have been prominently identified with the prohibition cause in Iowa and other States, asking what course is the wisest and best for avowed temperance people to follow. Some are urging the support of the St. John ticket, while others who look at the subject more clearly and with more foresight, deprecate such action as unwise, untimely, and sure to be unfortunate for the cause of temperance. We are permitted to print below a private letter from Mrs. J. Ellen Foster to Rev. Dr. E. O. K. Young, which will be read with great interest at this time. Mrs. Foster is known all over the United States as one of the foremost workers in the cause of prohibition, and an efficient officer in the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union. Her advice will be given the weight to which her successful work for years in the temperance cause entitles it. The letter is as follows:

BUFFALO, Aug. 27, 1884.—Rev. E. K. Young, D. D., Des Moines, Ia.—My Dear Friend: My allegiance in public work is first of all due to the Woman's Christian Temperance Union. I believe that as a National organization we should be non-partisan in our attitude toward the political questions of the day, even toward party prohibition. It is my sincere conviction, strengthened by a personal knowledge of the work the country over, that the overthrow of the liquor traffic will be soonest accomplished if our organizations withholding party effort and give themselves wholly to the regular lines of temperance work which have been developed by God's providence during the ten years since the crusade. We have some twenty-five distinct departments of work under the general divisions, preventive, educational, evangelistic, social and legal. These cover every phase of the question, and afford the widest scope of the work of our organization. I deprecate greatly the seeming attempt on the part of some of our women to ally the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union with the National Prohibition party. I believe the larger part of our membership and of our best advisers deplore what they consider an unwarranted and an untenable position.

Having been chosen by the National Union Superintendent of the Department of Legislative work and petitions, I must keep myself free from partisanship. As an individual I cannot and do not smother my convictions. Either James G. Blaine or Grover Cleveland will be President of these United States, as between them I do not see how any christian voter can hesitate. Writing as I do from this city of Buffalo, where Cleveland's home is—no, where he lives—he has no home—I do not hesitate to say as for me and mine, let it be the true husband, the honest father, the home man—James G. Blaine.

Further than this, I do not believe the demand for National Constitutional prohibition is the "best endorsement of prohibition principles." The prohibition of the liquor traffic is not, by either the letter or the spirit of the constitution, the subject of National legislation. It must come by states; it can come in no other way, unless by an armed resistance to law in the states it should become necessary for the general government as a war measure to aid the states by military intervention. Peaceable revolution according to constitutional methods must come by state legislation. So also just as prohibition cannot be carried in the state till a considerable number of voters in the state are themselves prohibitionists, so national prohibition cannot be a practical issue, until a considerable number of States are prohibition States. When three quarters of the States agree the constitution of the United States may be amended and national prohibition be the rule of the land. It is sometimes argued that the thirteenth amendment abolishing slavery in the States was submitted by Congress before the States had taken similiar State action, but we remember that at this time there was so large a majority of free States that they controlled the Government, and carried on a great and terrible war. The question of slavery on its political side was a controversy between States, concerning which the General Government and a National legislation was the only Court of Appeal. The prohibition of the liquor traffic is not a question between States, but between the people of a State, and National political action is not at this time the proper court in which to try this cause.

I have taught this doctrine from ocean to ocean; could I now fail to stand for the application of the truths I have taught? This is why I could not if I were a voter enter the political field for the nominees of the Pittsburg convention. I honor John P. St. John; he has my high esteem, my profound respect, and so of Mr. Daniel of whom I am honored by numbering among my personal friends. I believe they each were actuated by the high motive of disinterested patriotism. I simply do not agree with them as to this one method of obtaining what we all desire.

I do not see how there can be two opinions as to the duty of Iowa prohibitionists. I have no arithmetic with which to estimate the mental calibre or the moral sense of any Iowa man who claims to be for temperance and does not stand by the republican party, with the rights and privileges conferred by the 'bad man's plank."

The prohibitionists of Iowa, dwelling in the Canaan of triumphant majorities, even though their enemies be not yet all cast out, can hardly appreciate the weariness, even the bitterness, of those still in the wilderness with their children daily dying by the wayside. God has many ways of accomplishing His purposes; there are many battalions in His great army. Let us not sit in judgment upon those who differ with us as to what is the most effective mode of warfare at this particular point of time in the long struggle. Let no friend be disturbed at this difference of opinion; let no enemy be rejoiced thereby, we shall still keep the unity of the spirit in the bonds of peace, and in the final victory shall rejoice together. Yours sincerely,

J. ELLEN FOSTER.

Fearful Record of Democratic Knavery and Dishonesty.

In 1876 Senator Davis of West Virginia offered a resolution in the senate of the United States calling upon the treasury for a report of defalcations between the years 1861 and 1876 in view of using it against the Republicans in the campaign of the latter year. Senator Sherman offered an amendment to make the report cover prior Democratic administrations, beginning with the year 1830. The amendment was adopted and the resolution as amended was passed. The result was a voluminous report, covering many hundred pages and containing a great deal of mighty interesting reading. Only a very general statement compiled from the report was printed, but vast column of names and official figures never saw the light of day. It is scarcely necessary to say that the report was never circulated by the Democratic campaign committee. It is said that in 1880 it was proposed by certain Democratic leaders to resurrect this report and use it as campaign ammunition in Ohio, but the movement was promptly stopped by Senator Pendleton, who knows all about the report. A gentleman who had access to the report at the time it was presented to the senate, and made copious extracts from it, furnishes the following interesting observations:

Mr. Thomas A. Hendricks and other leading Democrats having made the charge of official corruption against the Republican party, it becomes the duty of all honest and fair-minded men to look into the matter and see which of the two great political parties of the country stand most in need of reform. While doing the stealing themselves the Democrats have always from the first been ready to charge corruption and stealing upon their opponents. They shout "stop thief" to cover up the rascalities of their own thieving officials. They bellow for reform always when out of office. Terribly and fearfully corrupt themselves, they naturally suspect all others of dishonesty. It would be well for these self-righteous Democrats to take a retrospective glance at the past history of their party while in power, going back, for instance, to the palmy days of Jackson. The defalcation of Samuel Swartwout, collector of customs at New York under President Jackson's administration, according to report of committee, Twenty-fifth congress, third session, No. 313, amounted to the sum of $1,225,705. Jesse Hoyt, Swartwout's successor from 1838 to 1841, followed the example of his illustrious predecessor and stole from the government the sum of $248,871, and like Swartwout, was allowed to go scot free. Here then is the sum of $1,447,477 stolen from the government by two Democratic officials under Democratic rule. Following down through the different new administrations from the first term of Andrew Jackson to the end of the most corrupt and thieving administration of James Buchanan, it will be seen that stealing was the order of the day in all departments of the government. In verification of which a partial list of Democratic plunderers are given below, the office they held and the amount stolen by each:

Amos Binney, purser in navy	$70,562
James Brooks, purser in navy	59,603
P. A. Southall, purser in navy	40,553
B. B. Brown, purser in navy	32,569
Joseph Colston, purser in navy	33,369
R. R. Crum, quartermaster	294,729
T. G. Morgan, collector customs at New Orleans	212,238
G. W. Hawkins, quartermaster	71,721
Robert Temple, pension agent	100,424
Luther Blake, Indian agent	15,759
R. D. C. Colton, Indian Agent	68,878
W. H. Kerr, postmaster New Orleans	39,60
J. Ruther, postmaster Sacramento, Cal	18,877
S. F. Marks, postmaster New Orleans	17,56
William Sinn, collector customs St. Louis	20,407
Total	$1,[illegible]6,693

The above, including the Swartwout and Hoyt defalcations, will make the sum $2,571,-273. This fearful indictment ought to be enough to settle all pretentions of the Democratic party to anything like honesty. If they all stole at the above rate, with the comparitively limited resources of the government at that time, what would they do now if they were again placed in power? Take, for example, the Swartwout case. A defalcation in those days and under the circumstances of $1,225,000 would be equal to about $20,000,000 now, considering the advance in the revenue of the port of New York in 1830 and in 1884. In view of the above facts and the failure of the democracy to make good the charge of corruption against the republican party, and the positive evidence on record of democratic knavery and dishonesty, candid and honest public men and all parties should unite in deprecation of such a party, and cast their votes and influence for the men and party whose aim have always been honest, and whose glorious record stands out in such striking contrast with the overwhelming and irrefutable evidence of democratic dishonesty.

Senator Windom took the stump in Ohio last week. Five speeches are expected from him. He began on Wednesday, the 24th, and spoke every night. On the 30th he, with Mrs. Windom and their daughter, left Ohio for Winona. After a few days' rest at home Mr. Windom will speak at four or five points in the First, Fourth and Fifth congressional districts. In the Fourth district he will speak in St. Paul, Minneapolis, Stillwater and Anoka; Duluth, Moorhead, Fergus Falls and Crookston in the Fifth, and Winona, Red Wing and Owatonna in the First.

An ardent republican in Harrisburg, Pa., is prepared to bet $1,000 that Blaine will be the next president, and another $1,000 that he will carry New York; $1,000 that he will get more majority in Pennsylvania than the combined majorities for Cleveland in New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Indiana, California, Nevada and Oregon.

General Thomas Ewing says of Mr. Blaine: "He is my kinsman and my intimate friend. In every private relation of life—as son, husband, father, friend—I know no kinder, purer or better man; and among our public men he stands unsurpassed as an embodiment of the spirit and genius of the American people. I don't believe if every letter he ever wrote and every word he ever uttered were published to the world, that they would fasten on him a single act or thought of official corruption. If a man be true in all private relations, as from his boyhood I have known him to be, he is not likely to be false to the people."

Information has reached the national Republican committee that the Democratic managers in Ohio have already begun to import voters from Kentucky into their state for service at the October election.

The Republican circus on Friday made some bad breaks which the Democratic side-show at Red Lake Fall, next Wednesday, might profit by—but they won't do it, unless Polk County Democrats are an improvement on the lot. But that don't change the fact that they have a splendid opportunity to teach the Republican party in the county a salutary lesson. If they proceed to nominate a good solid ticket throughout, that the people can heartily endorse, they stand a good chance to win several places on the ticket. The circus on the 25th was a good one—for a circus. The performers were all highly trained and showed great proficiency. Among the unusual features introduced were Democrats, mongrels, half-breeds, a few stalwarts and now and then a thoroughbred. The side-show at the Falls bids fair to be a "trooly loil" and brilliant affair. Among its features is notable one to deny towns the right to representation by proxy. This seems to us to be all gratuitous, wholly unnecessary, as doubtless the show will be slimly enough attended—unless Republicans and reporters are attracted by curiosity to attend. If any overwhelmingly Democratic town (?) desires representation, and for some good reason or other cannot send her regularly elected delegate, she will be denied her seat in the synagogue, she cannot send a proxy. While this "proxy" business may be carried to extremes, there is yet a golden mean that could be established to advantage.

THE REPUBLICAN COUNTY CONVENTION.

The Republican County Convention met at the Court House, in this city, on Friday, Sept. 25th—and Friday is an unlucky day. John Cromb was elected temporary chairman and E. E. Lommen temporary secretary. On motion the chair appointed as committee on credentials:

F. M. Hunt, Red Lake Falls.
C. B. Rockwood, Keystone.
Dr. A. Nelson, Aldal.
A. P. Hanson, Crookston.
H. H. Bangen, Vineland.

The committee found every town in the county represented, except three, either by representatives in person or by proxy. The temporary organization was made permanent and a motion to vote on nominations by ballot prevailed. A motion to suspend the rules and nominate by acclamation in the cases of Auditor and Treasurer prevailed, and P. J. McGuire was nominated Auditor and O. H. Lokken, Treasurer by acclamation. Six nominations for Sheriff followed, viz: W. F. Zwickey, B. F. Zarracher, A. N. Hopkins, Joe Berthiaume, J. J. Ide and Elias Steenerson. On informal ballot Zwickey received 44, Zarracher 3, Berthiaume 18, Hopkins 7, Ide 6 and Steenerson 19. On the first formal ballot Zwickey received 49, Berthiaume 16, Hopkins 9, Ide 5, Steenerson 8. Zwickey was declared the nominee and now the next thing is to elect.

One ballot settled the Register of Deeds business, viz: A. D. Stephens 57, C. S. Spendley 11, John Amundson 17. By hard work and sharp figuring Andy captured the nomination, but there is still more work to do before the Register is elected.

It took three ballots to settle the attorney's hash. T. C. Schmidt, D. E. Hattlestad, John McLean and C. H. Palmer were put in nomination. 1st heat. Hattlestad 37, McLean 17, Palmer 15, Schmidt 16. Second round, Hattlestad 43, Schmidt 18, McLean 14, Palmer 11. Nobody seriously hurt and a new deal ordered. At this juncture C. B. Rockwood jumped up on the stove or a sheet of paper or some other prominent object and began to shuffle the pack in a lively manner. He called attention to the fact that there was a good bit of Crookston being worked onto the ticket, somehow, and gave the convention some very healthy advice, which might well have come earlier in the session. After he subsided McLean and Palmer withdrew in favor of Schmidt and the two horses came up champing their bits and smiling. Inevitable result: Schmidt 48, Hattlestad 40; while four guerillas fired into the bush at short range. Schmidt declared the nominee, cigars, etc., etc., etc., ad lib.

For Judge of Probate J. G. McGrew was nominated, and a motion was made to suspend the rules and nominate him by acclamation. Judge Fjoser was mentioned, but somehow, in the confusion, he did not prove a stayer, and Mr. McGrew was declared the candidate. For County Surveyor, W. F. Arnold, Ole Hamery and C. L. Brainard bobbed up serenely, Ole going through like a bunch of sprouted grain with a boom that made the cylinder hum, viz: Hamery 40, Arnold 21, Brainard 13.

As it was now getting dark and steam down pretty low and the crew deserting in squads (showing that the "job" was completed) the feeder hollered for a little more steam to sort of hump the rest of the business off in a bunch. H. M. Pierce was nominated Court Commissioner by acclamation, ditto Dr. M. Van Dyke for Coroner. The chair appointed a committee to select the delegates to the Senatorial Convention, which committee selected Geo. Reis, T. Sullivan, John Cromb, Hugh Thompson, Lewis Foss, John McLean and Andrew Sture. These gentlemen were fed through without a kick, then the First District withdrew to select a candidate for County Commissioner, meanwhile the chair appointed J. H. Sanders, John McLean and Dr. Lankester a committee on rules to report to the County Central Committee in 30 days. The First District reported the name of George Goodrich for candidate for county commissioner, and then the fires were put out and the janitor left to stack the straw, and everybody went home as well pleased as could be expected under the circumstances.

Price of Wheat.

Northwestern Farmer.

There seems to be little doubt among those who should be posted on the prices of wheat, that the bottom has been reached and that better prices for the principal cereal will be had. Besides the quantities of wheat in sight there is another fact to be taken into consideration, and that is quality of the supply. Russia has not a large crop and the quality of her yield is very poor, while the Indian stuff that England will receive is a lower grade than ever before. This indicates an increased demand for the good grades of grain, and a very marked increase in the price to be paid, a little later, for the splendid wheat of the Red River Valley. The visible supply of wheat has been greatly overestimated, and it is highly probable that, when the actual figures are made known, it will be found that foreign consumers will need a much larger amount than has been calculated upon. It is not the purpose of this article to give advice as to whether it is best or not for farmers to hold their wheat; but it does seem, from the best information obtainable, that those who do hold on a little while will obtain an increased price for their product.

Beecher Stands by Cleveland.

New York Sun.

To a correspondent who asked, "Can you advise young men to vote for Grover Cleveland?" the Rev. Henry Ward Beecher of Brooklyn replies as follows:

"As regards the sin of Cleveland in the Halpin case, when divested of the exaggerations—so far from being an encouragement to sin, it will be a vivid example and warning to ambitious young men to avoid evil and to maintain social purity. Cleveland has already suffered loss, mortification, and damage for the commission of a grievous sin, and to-day it stands in his path with a rod of chastisement and if he fails to gain the highest place in this Government it will be by reason of that very transgression. That he will be elected I both hope and believe, but the chief danger to his ambition to-day springs from that sin of twelve years ago. Is there no warning in that? No voice to young men?"

What a lesson and what a teacher! The sin, then, consisted in being found out. The inconvenience and mortification of exposure during a political canvass are punishment enough. Grover Cleveland has earned promotion to to the highest office in the land by his services to the cause of social purity as a vivid example and warning to ambitious young men. Is that what Mr. Beecher desires to say?

Few men will be surprised to learn that Beecher stands by Cleveland. Few will be astonished to hear from Mr. Beecher that Cleveland's case "appeals very strongly" to his "generosity and chivalry."

Malice Still at Work.

Messrs. Warren Fisher and James Mulligan invite the public to take a further look into Mr. Blaine's private affairs. They have caused to be published nearly a score more of letters written by and to Mr. Blaine in reference to his railroad and other transactions, in connection with Messrs. Fisher and Caldwell. They show that Mr. Blaine had at one time an interest in the securities of the Fort Smith & Little Rock Railroad Company; that he sold some of the securities to his friends; that he thought at one time of co-operating with Fisher and Caldwell in establishing a national bank at Little Rock, Arkansas; that he had some misunderstanding with his associates about a loan of $25,000; that he was sometimes pressed for money in a period of declining values and just prior to the panic of 1873.

Mr. Blaine's opponents no doubt will seek to convert these letters into an additional political capital against him. For this purpose they were published without comment. Candid and impartial men will see in them nothing but the confidential expressions of a man of business, mindful of the possible misconstruction of censorious critics, who embarked on a legitimate enterprise which brought him, in the end, only disappointment and loss.—[Philadelphia Press.

FREIGHT RATES.

What the Pioneer Press thinks of them.

In an article in which the Pioneer Press seems to be trying to give the Rock Island road the grand bluff the Press says:

"The Pioneer Press is not disposed to take much stock in the persistently recurring rumors that the Rock Island is projecting an extension of its Iowa branches northwestward into the Red River Valley toward Winnipeg or Bismarck. For the Manitoba and Northern Pacific companies are in a condition to make it extremely hot for this and other Chicago roads invading their territory. They can haul the wheat of that region at one-fourth or fifth of the mileage of the Chicago lines, to a better market than Chicago at Duluth or Minneapolis, AT A RATE SO LOW THAT IT WOULD BE IMPOSSIBLE for the Chicago or Milwaukee roads to compete for its transportation. The rich wheat belt of the Red River Valley and beyond offers on the surface a tempting prize to the various Chicago corporations which have been pushing their lines in southwestern Minnesota and Southern Dakota, but they are likely to find that commercial laws have placed a pretty positive limit to the profitable extension of their lines in that direction. The development of the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Duluth system of railroads has brought into operation commercial forces which set definite bounds to the aggressive reach of Chicago for new tributary territory. There is no physical obstacle to the extension of the Chicago lines into Northern Dakota, or even into Manitoba. They may even be able, within certain limited belts of territory where there are no competing off-shoots from St. Paul and Duluth system, to make them temporarily profitable. But they are destined to meet an insuperable economical obstacle in the superior advantages which the latter possess, in their ability to haul the wheat of that region to a better market than Chicago, over lines only a quarter or a fifth as long, AND AT RATES CAPABLE OF INDEFINITE REDUCTION BELOW THE POINT OF POSSIBLE COMPETITION BY THE CHICAGO LINES. Nor is there any physical or economical obstacle to the indefinite multiplication and extension by the Manitoba and Northern Pacific of their short-haul lines into every section of the territory in Minnesota and Dakota sought to be traversed by the Chicago lines; and there are few points in Western Minnesota or in Dakota where they could not do the business at rates would defy successful competition by the Chicago lines. It is not at all likely that the Rhode Island or other Chicago corporations, strong as they may be in money resources, and ambitious as they may be of new fields in which to levy tribute for Chicago, have overlooked the conditions which limit the domains into which they can profitably enter."

All of which goes to show that the sooner the Rock Island or some other road enters this territory the better it will be for the country and the sooner will farmers have a chance to secure a fair share of their own profits.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, } ss. District Court, 11th
County of Polk. } Judicial District.

Worth Harris and Benjamin F. Rogers, copartners as Harris & Rogers, Plaintiffs, vs.
E. Wisterman, Defendant.

The State of Minnesota, to the above named Defendant.

You are hereby summoned and required to answer the complaint of the Plaintiff in the above entitled action which is filed in the office of the Clerk of the District Court of the Eleventh Judicial District, in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and to serve a copy of your answer to the said complaint on the subscriber, at his office in the city of Crookston, in said county, within twenty days after the service of this summons upon you exclusive of the day of such service; and if you fail to answer the said complaint within the time aforesaid, the Plaintiff in this action will take judgment against you for the sum of one hundred and seventeen dollars and 93 cents, with interest at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum from the 1st day of October 1883, together with the costs and disbursements of this action.

Dated Crookston, Sept. 30th, 1884.

JOHN McLEAN,
Plaintiff's Attorney Crookston, Minn.

[21-27]

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 29th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 14th, 1884, viz: CHARLES KINDLER, H'd No. 2841, for the s½ nw¼ and lots 3 and 4 S. 4, T. 151, R. 45. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: G. Kind, H. Smith, Wm. Wylie and M. Lamproux, all of Wylie, Minn.

[22-28] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 25th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 13th, 1884, viz: JACOB HANSON, Pre. D. S., No. 6296, for the n½ ne¼ and e½ nw¼ S. 24, T. 148, R. 45. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: T. Bakken, H. Hanson, O. Jacobson and J. Gilvertson, all of Fertile, Minn.

[22-28] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 26th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 14th, 1884, viz: GOTTLIEB KIND, H'd No. 10231, for the se¼ nw¼, s½ ne¼ ne¼ sw¼ S. 25, T. 152, R. 45. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: W. Wylie, C. Kindler, H. Smith and M. Lamproux, all of Wylie, Minn.

[22-28] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Oct. 1st, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 11th, 1884, viz: JEAN B. PATENAUDE, Pre. D. S., No. 8851, for the w½ sw¼ and w¼ nw¼ S. 26, T. 154, R. 45. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Pierre Lecuyer, Timothee Desgroseille, Joseph Laframboise and Philip Beaupre, all of Gentilly, Polk Co., Minn.

[22-28] JOHN CROMB, Register.

Tom Morris,
—THE—
CITY
JEWELER
Represents the
CELEBRATED
Rockford Quick Train
WATCH
THE ONLY
Railroad
Watch
IN EXISTENCE.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston Minn., Sept. 20th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 11th, 1884, viz: SIDNEY BOTTINEAU, H'd No. 10258, for the s½ ne¼ and lots 1 and 2, S. 6, T. 149, R. 40. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Louis Berthiaume, A. Berthiaume, of Gentilly, John Clements, Charles Gervais, of Little Prairie, Polk Co., Minn.

[21-27] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 20th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 11th, 1884, viz: DAMASE LEDUC, H'd No. 9819, for the n½ sw¼ and n½ se¼ S. 32, T. 149, R. 46. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: T. Genereux, P. Genereux, E. Berrette and L. C. Couvrette, all of Crookston, Polk Co., Minn.

[21-27] JOHN CROMB, Register.

The Old Brick Block
IS THE PLACE
To Buy Dry Goods, Groceries, Clothing, Boots and Shoe Hats and Caps, or anything you want.
Fontaine & Anglim
IS THE FIRM
Who are ready, with a corps of affable clerks to show you their NEW FALL and WINTER STOCK and quote prices to astonish the natives.
Great Bargains
Don't forget to visit Fontaine & Anglim's Emporium, in the Old Brick Block,
MAIN STREET. CROOKSTON, MINN.

THE
J. I. CASE
THRESHING MACHINE COMPANY
The Dennet or Beloit
HARVESTING MACHINE COMPANY
And the Van Brunt & Davis
SEEDER COMPANY,
Are Represented
BY
STEENERSON BROS.,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

MONEY TO GIVE AWAY
IN BARGAINS AT MARKHAM'S
THE LEADING GROCERY HOUSE
AND THE LARGEST BOOT AND SHOE STORE
IN CROOKSTON,
Goods Delivered to any Part of the City
FREE OF CHARGE.

FARMERS, FARMERS,
WE ARE
Selling Lower Than Ever!
You will always find it to your advantage to
Trade with Us!
We Sell the Best for the LOWEST LIVING PRICES. Remember the place,
Broadway, bet. 2d and Robert Sts.
D. BUCHANAN.

THE NEW ERA MANUFACTURING CO.,
Exclusive manufacturers of the
NEW ERA
Wagon Road Grader!
AND DITCHINGMACHINE.
Manufactory 625 to 631 south Halsted street, Chicago, Illinois.
Having established our headquarters for the Red River Valley at CROOKSTON, MINN., all inquiries addressed to us will receive our personal attention. All machines fully warranted and free trial given upon application. Address all Red River Valley correspondence to the NEW ERA MANUFACTURING CO., Box 851, Crookston, Minn.

McKINNON BROS.,
Carriage Works
Robert Street,
Crookston, - Minn.
AGENTS FOR THE
J. I. CASE THRESHING MACHINES!
And Manufacturers of Carriages, Wagons,
BUGGIES,
Cutters, Sleds, &c.
Axles, Springs, and all Repairs kept in stock,
DEALERS IN
FARM MACHINERY.
In Farm Machinery we have the Champion Seeder, Fargo Diamond Tooth Harrow, Kalamazoo Spring Tooth Harrow, Davenport and Grand Detour Sulky and Walking Plows, Buford Gang Plows, Field Rollers of all sizes, Warrior Mowers, the leading Hay Rake and first-class Harvesters and Binders, the Webber Wagon and McKinnon Bros. Wagon. In fact we have everything in machinery, from A Wheelbarrow to a Threshing Machine!
—EXTRAS—
For all Machines constantly on hand

E. M. Walsh,
DEALER IN
Hardware, Tinware
BAR IRON, STEEL,
BLACKSMITHS SUPPLIES,
BUILDING PAPER,
&c., &c. Also Agent
For the Celebrated Monitor Plows.
CROOKSTON, MINN.

A Big Bonanza!
JOSEPH BARRETT
Has decided to Put on the Market his ADDITION
TO THE
City of Crookston,
Next adjoining the Crookston Driving Park. Parties desiring to purchase
CHOICE LOST
NOW IS YOUR TIME!
LOTS
For Sale Separately, or in BLOCKS.
TERMS EASY!
Apply to the undersigned or at the office of C. B. Palmer, U. S. Land Office Building. Both English and French spoken.
JOSEPH BARRETT.

The Republican circus on Friday made some bad breaks which the Democratic side show at Red Lake Fall, next Wednesday, might profit by—but they won't do it, unless Polk County Democrats are an improvement on the lot. But that don't change the fact that they have a splendid opportunity to teach the Republican party in the county a salutary lesson. If they proceed to nominate a good solid ticket throughout, that the people can heartily endorse, they stand a good chance to win several places on the ticket. The circus on the 26th was a good one—for a circus. The performers were all highly trained and showed great proficiency. Among the unusual features introduced were Democrats, mongrels, half-breeds, a few stalwarts, and now and then a thoroughbred. The side-show at the Falls bids fair to be a "trooly loil" and brilliant affair. Among its features is notable one to deny towns the right to representation by proxy. This seems to us to be all gratuitous, wholly unnecessary, as doubtless the show will be slimly enough attended—unless Republicans and reporters are attracted by curiosity to attend. If any overwhelmingly Democratic town (?) desires representation, and for some good reason or other cannot send her regularly elected delegate, she will be denied her seat in the synagogue, she cannot send a proxy. While this "proxy" business may be carried to extremes, there is yet a golden mean that could be established to advantage.

THE REPUBLICAN COUNTY CONVENTION.

The Republican County Convention met at the Court House, in this city, on Friday, Sept. 26th—and Friday is an unlucky day. John Cromb was elected temporary chairman and E. E. Lommen temporary secretary. On motion the chair appointed as committee on credentials:

F. M. Hunt, Red Lake Falls.
C. B. Rockwood, Keystone.
Dr. A. Nelson, Aldal.
A. P. Hanson, Crookston.
H. H. Bangen, Vineland.

The committee found every town in the county represented, except three, either by representatives in person or by proxy. The temporary organization was made permanent and a motion to vote on nominations by ballot prevailed. A motion to suspend the rules and nominate by acclamation in the cases of Auditor and Treasurer prevailed, and P. J. McGuire was nominated Auditor and O. H. Lecken, Treasurer, by acclamation. Six nominations for Sheriff followed, viz: W. F. Zwickey, B. F. Zarracher, A. N. Hopkins, Joe Berthiaume, J. J. Ide and Elias Steenerson. On informal ballot Zwickey received 44, Zarracher 3, Berthiaume 18, Hopkins 7, Ide 6 and Steenerson 10. On the first formal ballot Zwickey received 49, Berthiaume 16, Hopkins 9, Ide 5, Steenerson 8. Zwickey was declared the nominee and now the next thing is to elect.

One ballot settled the Register of Deeds business, viz: A. D. Stephens 57, C. S. Spendley 11, John Amundson 17. By hard work and sharp figuring Andy captured the nomination, but there is still more work to do before the Register is elected.

It took three ballots to settle the attorney's hash. T. C. Schmidt, D. E. Hattlestad, John McLean and O. H. Palmer were put in nomination. 1st heat: Hattlestad 37, McLean 17, Palmer 15, Schmidt 15. Second round, Hattlestad 43, Schmidt 18, McLean 14, Palmer 11. Nobody seriously hurt and a new deal ordered. At this juncture C. B. Rockwood jumped up on the stove or a sheet of paper or some other prominent object and began to shuffle the pack in a lively manner. He called attention to the fact that there was a good bit of Crookston being worked on to the ticket, somehow, and gave the convention some very healthy advice, which might well have come earlier in the session. After he subsided McLean and Palmer withdrew in favor of Schmidt and the two horses came up champing their bits and smiling. Inevitable result: Schmidt 48, Hattlestad 50, while four guerillas fired into the bush at short range. Schmidt declared the nominee, cigars, etc., etc., etc., ad lib.

For Judge of Probate J. G. McGrew was nominated, and a motion was made to suspend the rules and nominate him by acclamation. Judge Fjosor was mentioned, but somehow, in the confusion, he did not prove a stayer, and Mr. McGrew was declared the candidate. For County Surveyor, W. F. Arnold, Ole Hamery and O. L. Brainard bobbed up serenely, Ole going through like a bunch of sprouted grain [illegible] boom that made the cylinder hum, viz: Hamery 40, Arnold 21, Brainard 13.

As it was now getting dark and steam down pretty low and the crew deserting in squads (showing that the job was completed), the feeders hollered for a little more steam to sort of jump the rest of the business off in a bunch. [illegible] was nominated County Commissioner by acclamation, ditto Dr. [illegible] Van Dyke for Coroner. The chair appointed a committee to select the delegates to the Senatorial Convention, which committee selected Geo. [illegible] T. Sullivan, John Cromb, Hugh Thompson, Lewis Foss, John McLean and Andrew Blure. These gentlemen were fed through without a kick, then the first District withdrew to select a candidate for County Commissioner, meanwhile the chair appointed J. H. Sandon, John [illegible] and Dr. Lankester a committee [illegible]

Price of Wheat.

Northwestern Farmer.

There seems to be little doubt among those who should be posted on the prices of wheat, that the bottom has been reached and that better prices for the principal cereal will be had. Besides the quantities of wheat in sight there is another fact to be taken into consideration, and that is quality of the supply. Russia has not a large crop and the quality of her yield is very poor, while the Indian stuff that England will receive is a lower grade than ever before. This indicates an increased demand for the good grades of grain, and a very marked increase in the price to be paid, a little later, for the splendid wheat of the Red River Valley. The visible supply of wheat has been greatly overestimated, and it is highly probable that, when the actual figures are made known, it will be found that foreign consumers will need a much larger amount than has been calculated upon. It is not the purpose of this article to give advice as to whether it is best or not for farmers to hold their wheat; but it does seem, from the best information obtainable, that those who do hold on a little while will obtain an increased price for their product.

Beecher Stands by Cleveland.

New York Sun.

To a correspondent who asked, "Can you advise young men to vote for Grover Cleveland?" the Rev. Henry Ward Beecher of Brooklyn replies as follows:

"As regards the sin of Cleveland in the Halpin case, when divested of the exaggerations—so far from being an encouragement to sin, it will be a vivid example and warning to ambitious young men to avoid evil and to maintain social purity. Cleveland has already suffered loss, mortification, and damage for the commission of a grievous sin, and to-day it stands in his path with a rod of chastisement and if he fails to gain the highest place in this Government it will be by reason of that very transgression. That he will be elected I both hope and believe, but the chief danger to his ambition to-day springs from that sin of twelve years ago. Is there no warning in that? No voice to young men?"

What a lesson and what a teacher! The sin, then, consisted in being found out. The inconvenience and mortification of exposure during a political canvass are punishment enough. Grover Cleveland has earned promotion to to the highest office in the land by his services to the cause of social purity as a vivid example and warning to ambitious young men. Is that what Mr. Beecher desires to say?

Few men will be surprised to learn that Beecher stands by Cleveland. Few will be astonished to hear from Mr. Beecher that Cleveland's case "appeals very strongly" to his "generosity and chivalry."

Malice Still at Work.

Messrs. Warren Fisher and James Mulligan invite the public to take a further look into Mr. Blaine's private affairs. They have caused to be published nearly a score more of letters written by and to Mr. Blaine in reference to his railroad and other transactions, in connection with Messrs. Fisher and Caldwell. They show that Mr. Blaine had at one time an interest in the securities of the Fort Smith & Little Rock Railroad Company; that he sold some of the securities to his friends; that he thought at one time of co-operating with Fisher and Caldwell in establishing a national bank at Little Rock, Arkansas; that he had some misunderstanding with his associates about a loan of $25,000; that he was sometimes pressed for money in a period of declining values and just prior to the panic of 1873.

Mr. Blaine's opponents no doubt will seek to convert these letters into an additional political capital against him. For this purpose they were published without comment. Candid and impartial men will see in them nothing but the confidential expressions of a man of business, mindful of the possible misconstruction of censorious critics, who embarked on a legitimate enterprise which brought him, in the end, only disappointment and loss.—[Philadelphia Press.

FREIGHT RATES.

What the Pioneer Press thinks of them.

In an article in which the Pioneer Press seems to be trying to give the Rock Island road the grand bluff, the Press says:

"The Pioneer Press is not disposed to take much stock in the persistently recurring rumors that the Rock Island is projecting an extension of its Iowa branches northwestward into the Red River Valley toward Winnipeg or Bismarck. For the Manitoba and Northern Pacific companies are in a condition to make it extremely hot for this and other Chicago roads invading their territory. They can haul the wheat of this region at one-fourth or fifth of the mileage of the Chicago lines, to a better market than Chicago at Duluth or Minneapolis, AT A RATE SO LOW THAT IT WOULD BE IMPOSSIBLE for the Chicago or Milwaukee roads to compete for its transportation. The rich wheat belt of the Red River Valley and beyond offers on the surface a tempting prize to the various Chicago corporations which have been pushing their lines in Southwestern Minnesota and Southern Dakota, but they are likely to find that commercial laws have placed a pretty positive limit to the profitable extension of their lines in that direction. The development of the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Duluth system of railroads has brought into operation commercial forces which set definite bounds to the aggressive reach of Chicago for new tributary territory. [illegible] is no physical obstacle to the extension of the Chicago lines into Northern Dakota or even into Manitoba. They may even locate in this [illegible] half of territory, where there is [illegible] competing of a line from St. Paul and Duluth system, to be more than temporarily profitable. But they are destined to meet an insuperable economic obstacle in the superior advantages which the [illegible] and extension by the Manitoba and Northern Pacific of their short-haul lines into every section of the territory in Minnesota and Dakota sought to be traversed by the Chicago lines; and there are few points in Western Minnesota or in Dakota where they could not do the business at rates would defy successful competition by the Chicago lines. It is not at all likely that the Rhode Island or other Chicago corporations, strong as they may be in money resources, and ambitious as they may be of new fields in which to levy tribute for Chicago, have overlooked the conditions which limit the domains into which they can profitably enter."

All of which goes to show that the sooner the Rock Island or some other road enters this territory the better it will be for the country and the sooner will farmers have a chance to secure a fair share of their own profits.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk. } ss. District Court, 11th Judicial District.

Worth Harris, and Benjamin F. Rogers, copartners as Harris & Rogers, Plaintiffs, vs.
E. Wisterman, Defendant.

The State of Minnesota, to the above named Defendant:

You are hereby summoned and required to answer the complaint of the Plaintiff in the above entitled action which is filed in the office of the Clerk of the District Court of the Eleventh Judicial District, in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and to serve a copy of your answer to the said complaint on the subscriber, at his office in the city of Crookston, in said county, within twenty days after the service of this summons upon you exclusive of the day of such service; and if you fail to answer the said complaint within the time aforesaid, the Plaintiff in this action will take judgment against you for the sum of one hundred and seventeen dollars and 93 cents, with interest at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum from the 1st day of October 1883, together with the costs and disbursements of this action.

Dated Crookston, Sept. 30th, 1884.

JOHN McLEAN,
Plaintiff's Attorney Crookston, Minn.

[2-29]

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 29th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 14th, 1884, viz: CHARLES KINDLER, H'd No. 9811, for the s½ nw¼ and lots 3 and 4 S. 1, T. 151, R. 45. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: G. Kind, H. Smith, Wm. Wylie and M. Lamproux, all of Wylie, Minn.

[3-2] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 29th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 15th, 1884, viz: JACOB HANSON, Pre. D. S., No. 6303, for the n½ ne¼ and e½ nw¼ S. 24, T. 143, R. 45. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: T. Baskan, H. Hanson, O. Jacobson and J. Gilvertson, all of Fertile, Minn.

[3-28] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 26th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 14th, 1884, viz: GOTTLIEB KIND, H'd No. 10301, for the se¼ nw¼, s½ ne¼, ne¼ se¼ S. 35, T. 152, R. 45. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: W. Wylie, C. Kindler, H. Smith and M. Lamproux, all of Wylie, Minn.

[2-2] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Oct. 1st, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 11th, 1884, viz: JEAN B. PATENAUDE, Pre. D. S. No. 8831, for the w½ sw¼ and w½ nw¼ S. 26, T. 151, R. 45. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Pierre Lecuyer, Timothee Desgroseillie, Joseph Laframboise and Philip Beaupre, all of Gentilly, Polk Co., Minn.

[2-3] JOHN CROMB, Register.

Tom Morris,

—THE—

CITY

JEWELER

Represents the

CELEBRATED

Rockford Quick Train WATCH

THE ONLY

Railroad Watch

IN EXISTENCE.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. [illegible] 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 11th, 1884, viz: [illegible] for [illegible] He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Louis Berthiaume, A. A. Ber[illegible] [illegible] of Gentilly, John Glennon, Charles [illegible]

JOHN CROMB, Register.

The Old Brick Block

IS THE PLACE

To Buy Dry Goods, Groceries, Clothing, Boots and Shoe Hats and Caps, or anything you want.

Fontaine & Anglim

IS THE FIRM

Who are ready, with a corps of affable clerks to show you their NEW FALL and WINTER STOCK and quote prices to astonish the natives.

Great Bargains

Don't forget to visit Fontaine & Anglim's Emporium, in the Old Brick Block,

MAIN STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN.

THE

J. I. CASE

THRESHING MACHINE COMPANY

The Dennet or Beloit

HARVESTING MACHINE COMPANY

And the Van Brunt & Davis

SEEDER COMPANY,

Are Represented

BY

STEENERSON BROS.,

CROOKSTON, MINN.

MONEY TO GIVE AWAY

IN BARGAINS AT

MARKHAM'S

THE LEADING GROCERY HOUSE

AND THE LARGEST BOOT AND SHOE STORE

IN CROOKSTON.

Goods Delivered to any Part of the City

FREE OF CHARGE.

FARMERS, — FARMERS,

WE ARE

Selling Lower Than Ever!

You will always find it to your advantage to

Trade with Us!

We Sell the Best for the LOWEST LIVING PRICES. Remember the place,

Broadway, bet. 2d and Robert Sts.

D. BUCHANAN.

THE NEW ERA MANUFACTURING CO.,

Exclusive manufacturers of the

NEW ERA

Wagon Road Grader!

AND DITCHING MACHINE

Manufactory 625 to 631 South Halsted street, Chicago, Illinois.

McKINNON BROS.,

Carriage Works

Robert Street,

Crookston, - Minn.

AGENTS FOR THE

J. I. CASE THRESHING MACHINES!

And Manufacturers of

Carriages, Wagons,

BUGGIES,

Cutters, Sleds, &c.

Axles, Springs, and all Repairs kept in stock,

DEALERS IN

FARM MACHINERY.

In Farm Machinery we have the Champion Seeder, Fargo Diamond Tooth Harrow, Kalamazoo Spring Tooth Harrow, Davenport and Grand Detour Sulky and Walking Plows, Buford Gang Plows, Field Rollers of all sizes, Warrior Mowers, the leading Hay Rake and first-class Harvesters and Binders, the Webber Wagon and McKinnon Bros. Wagon, In fact we have everything in machinery, from

A Wheelbarrow to a Threshing Machine!

—EXTRAS—

For all Machines constantly on hand

E. M. Walsh,

DEALER IN

Hardware, Tinware

BAR IRON, STEEL,

BLACKSMITHS SUPPLIES,

BUILDING PAPER,

&c., &c. Also Agent

For the Celebrated Monitor Plows.

CROOKSTON, MINN.

A Big Bonanza!

JOSEPH BARRETT

Has decided to Put on the Market his

ADDITION

TO THE

City of Crookston,

Next adjoining the Crookston Driving Park. Parties desiring to purchase

CHOICE LOST

NOW IS YOUR TIME!

LOTS

For Sale Separately, or in BLOCKS.

TERMS EASY!

Apply to the undersigned or at the office of C. B. Palmer, U. S. Land Office Building. Both English and French spoken.

JOSEPH BARRETT.

Polk County Journal.

Crookston, Minn., Thursday, October 2.

RAILROAD TIME TABLE.

GOING NORTH.

	ARRIVE.	LEAVE.
No. 1 Passenger	10:45 p. m.	10:55 p. m.
" 9 Passenger	10:30 a. m.
" 19 Freight	12:30 a. m.
" 15 Freight	4:00 p. m.
" 23 Freight		10:30 a. m.

GOING SOUTH.

	ARRIVE.	LEAVE.
No. 2 Passenger	4:00 a. m.	4:00 a. m.
" 10 Passenger		5:00 p. m.
" 20 Freight		7:00 a. m.
" 22 Freight		6:15 p. m.
" 24 Freight	5:00 p. m.

DEVIL'S LAKE LINE.

	ARRIVE.	LEAVE.
No. 9 Passenger		10:20 a. m.
" 10 Passenger	5:30 p. m.
" 45 Freight		6:00 a. m.
" 46 Freight	7:00 p. m.

ST. HILAIRE BRANCH.

Trains leave Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays at 10:45 a. m., and arrive same days at 4:00 p. m.

Passenger Trains No's 1 and 2, Main Line, run daily except Sunday. No's 3 and 4 run daily. Devil's Lake Passenger runs daily. Freights No's 23, 20 and 24 run daily. Freights No's 15 and 22, and Freights on Devil's Lake Line run daily except Sunday.

Independent Candidates.

All notices under this head will be $5 each, cash invariably with the order. We shall make no deviation from this rule in favor of any one, so please do not ask it. [22-tf]

Grand Opening Dinner.

Grand Forks Herald: To-day the formal opening of the Richardson house took place under W. H. Topping, the new proprietor, and it can be truthfully said that in all which pertains to solid merit of entertainment and excellence of fare the house has fully proven its claim to a front rank of merit. In addition to the regular guests there were a large number of invited ladies and gentlemen, among them some of the leading citizens, who partook of the hospitalities so generously afforded. The menu was elaborate and prepared with true gustatory art. The feast was rich and relished by all, the general verdict being that Mr. Topping and his assistants know how to cater to the public.

Norman County Republican Convention.

The Republican County Convention for Norman County was held at Ada, on Thursday, Sept. 25th, and the following excellent ticket was nominated:

For Auditor, John Sheley; for Treasurer, A. K. Strand; for Register of Deeds, N. Kjeldsen; for Sheriff, K. J. Lee; for Judge of Probate, Gabriel Bjornson; for County Attorney, H. H. Phelps; for Coroner, Fred Kayle; for Superintendent of Schools, S. A. Farnsworth; Delegates to the Senatorial Convention, P. L. Ramstad, John Holton and N. O. Henderson.

A motion to instruct the delegates to work first, last and all the time for Hon. A. H. Baker was lost. A motion that the delegates go uninstructed carried, was reconsidered, and then a motion to instruct the delegation to use all honorable means to secure the nomination of Chas. Canning was carried by a large majority. Mr. Baker is to be the second choice.

Norman County has made a wise selection in the person of Mr. Canning. He is an honest Scotch farmer, a man of broad and liberal views, of good education. He early became identified in the farmers' movement and has done much to aid the cause. In the State Farmers' Convention at St. Paul last winter, he made many friends among the farmers from every portion of the State, and should he receive the nomination he would go into the Legislature in sympathy with the majority who will be elected on this issue, and thus prepared to do effective work in the cause of the farmers. His addresses before the Farmers' Convention at St. Paul showed him to be a man of good sound practical common sense, and that his heart is in the cause wholly. If he should receive the nomination he would be elected, and Norman County and the District would never have occasion to regret the choice. The following resolutions were reported by the committee on resolutions and adopted:

To the Delegates of Norman County in Convention assembled:

GENTLEMEN:—Your committee on resolutions do submit the following:

Resolved, That this convention do all in its power to eradicate the evils which exist in the matter of class legislation by the Legislature of Minnesota, and the discrimination which is made by the railroads of this State in favor of monopoly and against the producers.

Resolved, That the next representative of this Legislative District be a man from the people and in the interest of the people of this District, and a man who we are satisfied that will stand up and assert the rights of the farmers and will denounce the unjust discrimination of the railroads against the farming community in the next Legislature and will do all in his power to obtain the [illegible] laws for the good of the [illegible]

[illegible] endorse the princi[illegible] [illegible] actions of [illegible] on in the last Con[illegible] and his re-election [illegible] to the same [illegible] stand by and sup[illegible] this convention [illegible]

Not in the Back.

New York Sun.

That flimsy and fussy journal, the Boston Post, accused the Sun of stabbing Grover Cleveland in the back. This is ridiculous. The Sun strikes nobody in the back. When it has to strike it hits squarely in the face. As for Mr. Cleveland, our fault has been that we have shown him too great forbearance. We have done him more than justice in supposing that in some important cases that his motives have been good. We were long deceived in Mr. Cleveland. His high pretensions and solemn assumtions of pure aims and unselfish patriotism imposed upon us. But after his nomination, which we strenuously opposed, a more careful scrutiny of his character and antecedents became indispensible, and ever since then we have dealt with him, not sternly according to all his deserts, but mildly and forbearingly, though decisively. At last the whole truth seems to be revealed respecting Mr. Cleveland. He stands forth as a coarse person, unworthy of confidence, and, above all, most unworthy of high political preferment. At one time we thought it possible to support him as a candidate; still later we thought he should be preferred to Mr. Blaine; but now we see that both these views of him were mistaken. He ought not to be supported. Grover Cleveland should be withdrawn as a candidate by the indignant voice of the deluded and outraged Democracy.

The leading feature of the American Agriculturist for October is a fifteen column tabulated list of settlers in the Western States and Territories who are willing to furnish free, all information regarding their respective localities to applicants in the Eastern, Middle and Southern States. This, a double number, embracing two hundred and fifty columns of matter—over one hundred illustrations, and two hundred articles on every variety of topics pertaining to the farm, garden and household. Joseph Harris, besides his instructive Walks and Talks, has a timely article on "Sheep in Winter," and Gathering Crops. D. D. Moore writes on Agricultural Fairs as Educators. Adobes, the cheapest building material of the Far West, are described by J. L. Townsend of Utah. Remarkable milk and butter records of Holland cows are given by Dudley Miller. The ailments of numerous Farm Animals are prescribed for by Prof. D. D. Slade, of Harvard University. Col. M. C. Weld tells what he saw "Among the Farmers," and writes on milk-fever, sheep, breaking colts, etc. Beautifying the Farm is treated by Elias A. Long. David W. Judd continues his notes of travel in the Far West. Dr. Byron D. Halsted writes about Experiments in Crop Feeding. The Cottonwood Beetle and other insects. The Ripening and Decay of Fruit is treated by Doctor George Thurber, who describes an entirely new plum, Japanese radishes, and has numerous other horticultural articles. Legal points in Hiring Farm Help are made plain by H. A. Haigh. Housekeepers will find full directions for making pickles by Aunt Hattie. Ethel Stone gives hints on Table Etiquette, and useful and ornamental articles are illustrated. The boys and girls have an illustrated story, the Doctor's Talks, a Dakota Boy's Letter, Puzzles, etc. All interested in the trotting feats of Jay-Eye-See, will be glad to see a portrait of this horse. The full page and other illustrations are executed by such leading artists as Forbes, Bennett and Scranton. Price $1.50 a year; single numbers 15 cents. Address American Agriculturist, 751 Broadway, New York.

Republican Senatorial Convention.

The Republicans of the 45th Senatorial District are hereby notified to meet in delegate convention in the Court house hall, in the city of Crookston, on the 15th day of Oct. at 2 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of placing in nomination a Representative to the State Legislature. The counties will be entitled to delegates as follows: Kittson 3, Marshall 3, Polk 7, Norman 3.

M. R. BROWN, Chairman. PETER RAMSTAD, Secretary.

To The Public.

We wish to state to the people of Crookston and vicinity, that we have purchased the stock of groceries owned by J. L. Bailey, on Broadway, opposite the post office. We purpose to carry on the trade at the old stand, and will keep on hand, at all times, a fresh stock of groceries, provisions, etc., and we ask a share of the patronage of the generous public.

[5-tf] BAUSCHMAN & MILETTE.

Money to Loan.

ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS to loan on improved farms from THREE to FIVE years time at very reasonable rates. Apply at my office on Broadway, in U. S. Land Office building.

[14tf] H. STEENERSON.

Just received.—A car-load of Buggies selected by an experienced carriage-builder all warranted. Call early and select one. McKinnon Bros.

TO PARTIES DESIRING INSURANCE!

We represent the following old and reliable Fire Insurance Companies:

	Assets.
Ætna	$9,182,644
American	1,804,519
Fire Association	4,279,676
Underwriters	3,699,794
Orient	1,411,894
Phenix	5,919,408
Lancashire	6,787,983
Milwaukee Mech.	1,129,875
Germania	2,700,729

Having represented nearly all of the above companies for 14 years we have acquainted ourselves with the business, and think that we can justly claim the patronage of the public who can depend upon having insurance written correctly and losses adjusted promptly. [illegible]

[illegible]

A BARGAIN.

A choice business location on Broadway 100x140 feet for sale at a bargain. [illegible] address the JOURNAL.

Democratic County Convention.

A delegate convention of Democrats of Polk County is hereby called to meet in Kretzschmar's Hall, at the Village of Red Lake Falls, on Wednesday Oct. 8th, 1884 for the purpose of putting in nomination candidates for the following named offices: County Auditor, County Treasurer, Sheriff, Register of Deeds, County Attorney, Judge of Probate, County Surveyor, Court Commissioner and Coroner. And also for the purpose of selecting delegates to attend a Democratic Legislative District Convention, to be held at the city of Crookston on the 16th day of Oct. 1884.

In towns where there is no local committee it is recommended that the Democratic voters hold caucuses at the usual place of holding elections, on Saturday Oct. 4th at 7 o'clock p. m., to select delegates to the convention.

All delegates and proxies must reside in the towns and wards which they claim to represent.

Each organized town or ward in the county is entitled to one delegate and one additional delegate for each 50 votes or major fraction thereof cast for A. Biermann for Governor at the general election in 1883.

Towns and wards will be entitled to representation as follows:

Angus,	1	Lowell,	1
Andover,	1	Lambert,	1
Bygland,	1	Nesbit,	1
Belgium,	1	North Star,	1
Black River,	1	Onstead,	1
Crookston,	1	Polk Centre,	1
City of Crookston		Poplar River,	1
1st ward,	2	Rose Bud,	1
2d ward,	2	Reis,	1
3d ward,	1	River Falls,	1
4th ward,	2	Roome,	1
Euclid,	1	Russia,	1
Emardville,	1	Red Lake Falls,	2
Fairfax,	1	Red Lake Falls Village	3
Fanny,	1	Sletten,	1
Fisher,	3	Sanders,	1
Garden,	1	Sullivan,	2
Godfrey,	1	Tabor,	1
Garfield,	1	Tynsid,	1
Grand Forks,	3	Terrebonne,	1
Gervais,	1	Tilden,	1
Grove Park,	1	Vineland,	1
Gentilly,	1	Woodside,	1
Huntsville,	1	Winger,	1
Hubbard,	1	Wyandotte,	1
Brislet,	1	Knute,	1
Hammond,	1	Norden,	1
Higdem,	1	Hill River,	1
Kertsonville,	1	Badger,	1
Keystone,	1	King,	1
Louisville,	2	Brandswold,	1
Lake Pleasant,	2	Wergland,	1
Liberty,	1

By order of the Committee,

JOHN N. IVES, Chairman.

The Red Lake Falls

FLOURING

MILL

Has lately been enlarged and is now prepared to do custom work without delay. Stable room free.

BUSE & COLBENTSON,

Proprietors, Red Lake Falls, Minn.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., Sept. 17th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 7th, 1884, viz: JACOB LARSON, Pre. D. S., No. 6866, for the nw¼ S. 12, T. 147, R. 44. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: J. B. Rungun, Ole Oleson Costen, Hans Aulison and Christopher Erickson, all of Aldal, Polk Co., Minn.

[21-26] JOHN CROMB, Register.

BROADWAY

Meat Market.

FRANK JEROME & CO.,

Fresh and Salt Meats

OF ALL KINDS

VEGETABLES

In their season. All goods delivered if requested.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk. } ss. District Court, 11th Judicial District.

Carl Kretzschmar, Plaintiff, vs. The Red Lake Falls Milling and Lumber Company, a corporation, Defendant.

The State of Minnesota to the above named Defendant:

You are hereby summoned and required to answer the complaint of the Plaintiff in the above entitled action which has been filed with the clerk of the above court in his office in the Court House, in the City of Crookston, and County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, and to serve a copy of your answer to the said complaint on the subscriber at his office in the City of Crookston, in said county, within twenty days after the service of this summons upon you, exclusive of the day of such service; and if you fail to answer the said complaint within the time aforesaid, the Plaintiff in this action will take judgment against you for the sum of six thousand nine hundred and thirty-one dollars and sixty-eight cents ($6,931.68-100,) together with interest thereon from May 22d, 1884, besides the costs and disbursements of this action.

P. A. DUFOUR,

[21-27] Plaintiff's Att'y Crookston, Minn.

Christening and Wedding Cakes Made upon Shortest Notice in the Best Style.

A Choice and Well Selected Stock of Confectionery Always on hand.

John Crawford & Son,

Proprietors of

Crawford's

Bakery,

SECOND STR[illegible]T,

Crookston, Minn.

CONFECTIONERY

Fresh Bread, Buns, Cakes and Biscuits. All Articles in the Fancy Baking Line.

FURNITURE STORE,

BROADWAY, CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

[illegible] P. BATAGLIA, Prop.

Keeps constantly on hand a well selected stock of Wardrobes, Bureaus, Sofas, Lounges, Bed steads, Bed Springs, Tables, Chairs, Rocking chairs, Stands, Ornaments, Picture Mouldings and Picture Frames. REPAIRING DONE TO ORDER. Coffins of all kinds kept constantly on hand.

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First Publication September 11th, 1884.]

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of one hundred and thirty-eight and 82-100 dollars, ($138.82-100) which is claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by William Franz Jaenike and Gische Jaenike his wife, mortgagors, to Isaac Rattenburg, mortgagee, bearing date the 28th day of August A. D. 1882, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 28th day of August A. D. 1882, at 5:30 o'clock p. m., in book "I" of mortgages, on pages 124, 129, 130 and 131; and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The Southeast quarter (se¼) of Section No. fourteen (14,) of Township No. one hundred and fifty (150) north, of Range No. forty-six (46) west, in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 25th day of October A. D. 1884, at 10 o'clock a. m., of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated Crookston, Sept. 5th A. D. 1884.

ISAAC RATTENBURG, Mortgagee.

JOHN McLEAN, Attorney for Mortgagee. [20-26]

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First Publication September 18th, 1884.]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the payment of the sum of two hundred and thirty-four and 23-100 dollars ($234.23-100) according to the condition of a certain mortgage duly made, executed and delivered by John P. Larson and Catharina A. Larson, his wife, of Polk County, Minnesota, mortgagors, to Peter Stenseth, of Polk County, Minnesota, mortgagee, to secure the payment of one note of the sum of two hundred and fifteen dollars, with interest at the rate of seven per cent per annum, and bearing date the eighth day of June 1883 and payable on the eighth day of December 1883, and which mortgage was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota on the eighth day of June A. D. 1883, at 3:25 o'clock p. m. of that day in book "N" of mortgages, on page forty-six (46,) and whereas, no action or proceedings at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt or interest secured by said mortgage or any part thereof, and, whereas, there is claimed to be due, and is due, at the date of this notice the sum of two hundred and thirty-four 23-100 dollars ($234.23-100).

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the provisions of the statute in such case made and provided, all the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, to-wit: The northwest quarter of Section one (1,) in Township one hundred and fifty-two ('52) north, of Range forty-five (45) west, containing one hundred and sixty acres, more or less according to the government survey thereof, which tract or piece of land is situated in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, together with the hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging, will be sold by the Sheriff of Polk County, Minnesota, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County of Polk, on the 7th day of November A. D. 1884, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of said day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and fourteen and 45-100 dollars $(14.45-100) taxes, which has been paid by the mortgagee, and thirty dollars attorney's fees stipulated in said mortgage, besides the costs and disbursements allowed by law, subject nevertheless to redemption at any time within one year from date of sale as provided by law.

Dated September 18th 1884.

PETER STENSETH, Mortgagee.

A. P. BOND, Attorney for Mortgagee. [21-27]

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., Sept. 15th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, on November 6th, 1884, viz: MELCHIOR SCHWEY, H'd No. 4907, for the se¼ S. 25, T. 152, R. 48. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Wm. Appel, Henry Horn, B. Carish and Michale Biver, all of Euclid, Polk Co., Minn.

[21-26] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Sept. 15th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given, that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 6th, 1884, viz: WILLIAM APPEL, H'd No. 5953, for the sw¼ S. 26, T. 152, R. 48. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Henry G. Horn, M. Schwy, of Euclid, John Moser, Adolph Raugh, of Crookston, Minn.

[21-26] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., Sept. 15th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 6th, 1884, viz: GEORGE H. HORN, Per. D. S., No. 8,932, for the se¼ S. 4, T. 152, R. 48. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: William Apple, M. Schwy, B. Tudemann and C. Stuts, all of Euclid, Polk Co., Minn.

[21-26] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., Sept. 12th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 4th, 1884, viz: HENRY WITTY, Pre. D. S., No. 8718, for the s½ se¼ and n½ se¼ S. 26, T. 147, R. 43. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Even Bjorke, Isaac Holm, Frank Vogel and Iver Krohn, all of Valley, P. O., Polk Co., Minn.

[21-26] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., Sept. 18th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Oct. 30th, 1884, viz: SAMUEL CROOKSHANKS, H'd No. 2074, for the sw¼ S. 4, T. 151, R. 47. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: James Westover, Walter Letts, Robt Leal and H. Toucsaint, all of Crookston, Polk Co., Minn.

[21-26] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., Sept. 11th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 4th, 1884, viz: GEORGE KRONSCHNABEL, H'd No. 9,591 for the se¼ S. 28, T. 149, R. 44. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Henry Utzinger, Crookston, C. Oehler, Fred Lieder and J. Guncrutz, of Tilden, Polk Co., Minn.

[20-25] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., Sept. 10th, 1884.

Complaint having been entered at this office by Carrie M. Peterson against William J. Young for abandoning his Homestead Entry No. 10,097, dated Dec. 13th, 1883, upon the nw¼ S. 8, T. 151, R. 46, in Polk County, Minn., with a view to the cancellation of said entry; the said parties are hereby summoned to appear at this office on the 15th day of Nov. 1884, at 2 o'clock p. m. to respond and furnish testimony concerning said alleged abandonment.

JOHN CROMB, Register.

[20-25] L. K. AAKER, Receiver.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., Sept. 11th, 1884.

Complaint having been entered at this office by Andrew P. Vallom against Charles Dudley Hudson for failure to comply with law as to Timber Culture Entry No. 2,041, dated June 4th 1881, upon the s½ ne¼ and n½ se¼ S. 18, T. 149, R. 42, in Polk Co., Minn., with a view to the cancellation of said entry, contestant alleging that the said Charles Dudley Hudson has failed to plant said tract, or any portion thereof to trees, tree seeds or cuttings since his entry and has failed to cultivate said land, to crop or otherwise as required by law, and that there is not now any trees, tree seeds or cuttings standing or growing on said tract, the said parties are hereby summoned to appear at this office on the 5th day of November 1884, at 2 o'clock p. m. to respond and furnish testimony concerning said alleged failure.

[20-25] JOHN CROMB, Register.

Closing Out Sale

AT

CHINIQUY'S

Chicago Dry Goods House.

Having decided to

Quit Business,

I will sell at retail, or in lots, my

ENTIRE STOCK AT COST

And Below Cost,

—CONSISTING OF—

DRESS GOODS,
FLANNELS, BLANKETS,
JEANS, NOTIONS, YARNS,
HOSIERY, UNDERWEAR,
Boots and Shoes,
Trunks and Valises, Etc., Etc.

Terms Net CaSh!

JEROME'S

ADDITION

TO THE

CITY OF CROOKSTON

IS NOW

Offered for Sale

This is the finest Residence Property in the City. High and dry, good cellars, water, and well sheltered. Enclosed on three sides by the river, and only three blocks from the heart of the city and Post Office.

HOW TO BE HEALTHY!

Drink LePage's

35c Tea and 35c pure Java Coffee

AND SMOKE MY NICKEL PILGRIM CIGAR.

HOW TO BE HEALTHY!

COME TO THE RED STAR GROCERY

And Save Money on everything you buy.

AND IF YOU ARE WISE

You will buy only Pure and Fresh Groceries. THE RED STAR GROCERY is the place to get them and there you will find Prices the Lowest. Farmers and others bring in your Butter and Eggs and get highest prices for them. Remember the RED STAR, one door south of Montreal House.

F. LEPAGE, Broadway, Crookston, Minn.

E. D. Schreader

LIVERY,

Feed and Sale Stable.

BEST TURNOUTS

IN THE CITY.

Single or Double Rigs, with or without driver or

SADDLE HORSES

Always ready at a moments notice by day or night. If you want a Nobby Turnout call at the Red Barn, Corner Main and Third Streets,

CROOKSTON, - - - MINNESOTA.

NEW

DRUG STORE

IN GARFIELD

DR. A NELSON, Prop.

The citizens of this town and vicinity are respectfully invited to call at my new Drug Store in the town of Garfield and examine my stock of

DRUGS, MEDICINES, PAINTS, OILS AND YANKEE NOTIONS.

It is no longer necessary to go 40 or 55 miles for anything in this line, as I have a full supply at prices as reasonable as any town in the Northwest. Call and see

PHYSICIAN & SURGEON

I am also ready to answer all calls by day or night, for the practice of my profession. Call, or leave orders at my Drug Store in Garfield, Polk Co., Minn.

DR. A. NELSON.

First National Bank

OF CROOKSTON.

PAID IN CAPITAL, - - $100,000
SURPLUS, - - - 1,400

Money to loan on long or short time on approved security

Interest on time deposits. Faithful attention to Collections and prompt remittance.

GEO. O. ERSKINE, President.
K. D. CHASE, Vice President.
ANSEL BATES, Cashier.

A. YVERNAULT,

Dealer in

General

Merchandise,

—MAIN STREET,—

Crookston, - - Minn.

All of my friends, both old and new, are cordially invited to call and examine my stock and get prices.

Fortier's Place,

Corner Broadway and Robert Street

EVERYTHING .... NEW, NEAT
—AND NOBBY.—

Billiards, Pool, and the Choicest Wines, Liquors and Cigars. The purest High Proof Whiskies at wholesale prices

PURE IMPORTED GOODS ON DROUGHT.

P. A. DUFOUR,

Attorney and Counselor at Law,

—MAIN STREET,—

CROOKSTON, - - MINN.

Commercial Hotel,

W. H. TOPPING, Proprietor

SECOND STREET, - - CROOKSTON, MINN

First-class in all respects. Terms reasonable. A share of the public patronage solicited.

A. A. JUST, M. D.,

Homoeopathic Physician and Surgeon.

Rooms corner Main street and Fletcher Avenue, over Eiken Bros. Hardware Store,

CROOKSTON, POLK COUNTY, MINN.

The Polk County Journal.

H. E. COOKE, Proprietor. DEVOTED TO THE WELFARE OF POLK COUNTY. TERMS---$1.50 Per Annum.

VOL. VIII. CROOKSTON, POLK COUNTY, MINNESOTA, OCTOBER 9, 1884. NO. 24

Polk County Journal.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY.

H. E. COOKE, Editor and Proprietor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Dollar and Fifty Cents, if paid in advance, to any address inside of Polk County. If outside of Polk County 15 cents must be added for postage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum to any address.

ADVERTISING RATES.

SPACE.	1 w.	2 w.	3 w.	1 m.	3 m.	6 m.	1 year
½ inch....	50	$1 00	$1 15	$1 50	$2 00	4 50	$ 6 00
1 inch....	75	1 25	1 75	2 00	5 50	6 00	10 00
2 inches...	1 50	2 25	3 00	3 70	6 50	9 50	15 00
3 inches...	1 75	2 75	3 75	4 70	9 70	13 70	20 00
4 inches...	2 50	3 50	4 50	5 50	10 00	10 00	25 00
5 inches...	3 00	4 00	5 00	6 50	12 50	10 00	30 00
¼ column	3 70	5 50	5 50	6 50	15 00	25 00	35 00
½ column	6 00	7 50	10 00	12 00	20 00	25 00	50 00
1 column	9 50	12 50	15 00	18 00	35 00	60 00	100 00

Entered at the Post Office in Crookston as Second Class matter.

Competition in Wheat Growing.

From the Pioneer Press.

The time is drawing near when the area devoted to wheat growing must be determined more closely than ever before by the adaptability of soil and climate to the production of the varieties most in demand of the world's markets. The fact that this cereal finds a home in all latitudes from the equator to the frigid zone, joined with the fact that it has heretofore been a product for which the demand was practically unlimited, commanding a sale so ready and certain that a bushel of wheat was the practical equivalent of a certain amount of cash, has distributed the culture of wheat more widely than that of any other agricultural product. We are now in the presence of circumstances which bid fair to change all this. Constant additions to the wheat acreage of this country, renewed attention given to wheat cultivation by nations which have grown a little restive at depending so largely for their food supply upon a foreign source, and especially the appearance of India as a gigantic competitor among the wheat producers of the world show that over-production of wheat is not an impossibility; and by overproduction is meant only that the supply furnished by an enormously expanded area the world over has grown to proportions which threaten to reduce prices below the level of a living profit. When this happens, the farmer who raises wheat under the least favorable circumstances must just as surely turn his attention to other productions more suited to the locality where he is fixed, and less abundant in the world's storehouse, as the builders of railroads must engage in other employments when all the railroads needed to carry on the transportation business of a community at reasonable rates have been supplied. We are not far from that limit now. In spite of a greatly decreased wheat crop last year, prices have remained obstinately low. In the least favored sections, the wheat grower is able to command a market which will barely recompense him for the capital and labor expended upon his crop, leaving no margin of profit whatever, if it does not involve him in actual loss. Except in years of war or famine, there is some reason to doubt that the foreign demand will ever again reach its old dimensions. If this be true, then the business of wheat cultivation is upon the eve of changes which must culminate in the survival of the fittest. Of course every State will endeavor to raise enough for home consumption. But it will be cultivated for general consumption and for export on an extensive scale only in those sections which are endowed with distinguished natural advantages as compared with the foremost wheat-producing regions of the world. It becomes of some moment, therefore, to know, if possible, where the regions so favored are to be found.

The incontrovertible facts of nature and the indications of statistics unite in confirming the belief that the southern portion of the United States, and the great middle belt as well, will soon be compelled to abandon to some considerable extent the raising of wheat as a staple crop, and that the Northwest is destined to retain permanently its place as a chief source of the world's supply. As the area devoted to wheat expands in the Northwest it will gradually contract in the States which are commonly known as the corn belt, and industry will turn to other channels of usefulness. Some seasons for this faith will not be hard to find. In the first place, we note that the conditions of the market already point toward this consummation. The highest grade of wheat commands about 78 cents at Minneapolis. At Kansas City the price is 55 cents. It is evident that the farmer of the Northwest is a competitor on more than equal terms with the wheat raiser farther to the south, and that in the event of close competition he can drive the latter to the wall. That competition has already come. The farmer of Western Kansas cannot afford to raise wheat at 40 cents per bushel. Probably it costs him nearly the whole of that, and the first effect of the market will be to turn his attention to more remunerative crops. Under these conditions, little increase of wheat acreage can be expected in the States of the middle belt. Extensions must be limited chiefly to the Northwest, and this not only because the market is at present more favorable, but for the deeper reason which lies behind that apparent favoritism. Northwestern wheat brings a high price in the market because it is a unique and superior grade. The grain known as No. 1 hard cannot be produced south of a certain latitude any more than bananas can be grown in Canada. The cultivation of this variety is a species of natural monopoly, and it will be profitable according to the value of that variety for consumptive purposes. Now it is known to every one that this hard wheat is in universal and permanent demand. It is absolutely necessary for mixing with the softer varieties in order to produce the best flour. The steady demand for it at high prices is accounted for by this fact; and the fact being one growing out of natural conditions, its effects will be persistent. In an analysis of fifty varieties of the finest wheat raised in the various States, only five others attained the percentage of albuminoid matter shown by the three Minnesota grades subject to examination. The largest amount of albumen, as reported by the chemist of the agricultural department, was found in a Minnesota variety. And it is this intrinsic value, discovered by practical millers long ago, which gives to the wheat of the Northwest a permanent value, insuring it against competition before which other sections must yield. How real that competition is the market quotations serve well enough to show. The wheat acreage of Europe is being increased wherever it is practicable. India and Australia have come into the field, and their appearance is ominous. For the calendar year 1882, India exported 15,000,000 hundred weight of wheat. In 1883 the amount grew to 22,300,000 hundred weight. What is her export capacity under the stimulus of profitable demand is matter of controversy. Now it is to to be marked that this Indian wheat is mostly of the soft varieties. By mixing it with the harder grain a fine flour may be produced. And here we see a powerful cause at work at once to reduce the production of soft wheat on this side of the ocean, and to steady or actually increase the demand for that product which has made the fame of the Northwest. Sooner or later, then, it would appear that the great States of the middle belt which have long led in wheat production must devote themselves more particularly to other industries; to the growing of corn, in which they have no equals; to the production of all the minor grains whose consumption is capable of great expansion; to the woolgrowing industry, already so widely engaged in; to any and all of those multifarious branches of agriculture for which they are by nature so admirably suited. But it appears probale that they will gradually retire from wheat culture except for home consumption. Already their production of this grain seems to be at a standstill, if not actually retrograding. The wheat crop of the United States in 1883 was reduced about one-sixth as compared with 1882. But the crop of Illinois fell off more than one-half, that of Indiana nearly 40 per cent., that of Ohio more than 40 per cent., and so of the other States which were not subject to large increases of acreage by the taking up of new land. This tendency we may expect to see working with increased power in the future. There is no market at remunerative rates for all the wheat which the world can produce. The palm will go to the best, and industry must adjust itself to the new conditions. But the farmer who has cast his lot in the zone where hard wheat can be raised may be sure that no accident of time or change can rob him of his market; while the thinning of the ranks by natural competition will result in increasing advantage to him who is destined by nature to be the final survivor,

Raising Onion Seed.

For two years onion seed has been very cheap. If we may judge from past experience it will sooner or later be high again. It is a good time for those who have had the experience in raising seed, and wish to engage in the business, to set out a few bushels of onions. Let them select the very best onions, and especially avoid all those with thick necks. It does not pay to grow your onion seed unless you grow the very best. You can buy plenty of poor seed—and lose money by it.

Onions for seed can be set out in the autumn or in the spring. If proper precautions are taken, autumn is the better time. The land must be moderately rich, and thoroughly worked. Onion roots run down deep into the subsoil, and it is therefore essential that the sub-soil should be free from stagnant water. Low, mucky land that will produce good crops of onions, will not always produce onion seed. Dry upland is better and more certain—or rather it is less uncertain, for at best, onion seed growing is rather an uncertain business. You may get a good crop of seed and a good price, and the crop may bring you in one thousand dollars per acre—or it may all "blast." We mark out the rows three and a half feet apart. Make a furrow three inches deep. Set out the onions in the rows so thick that they will almost touch each other, and cover carefully and well two or three inches deep. If heavy rains wash the soil away from the onions, they must be covered again before winter sets in. If they cannot be well covered with earth, draw out some manure or straw, and spread it two or three inches thick over the rows, or over the whole surface of the land. There is no danger of the onions being injured by the frost, provided they are well covered, but if this precaution is not taken, and we have little snow for a cover, many of the onions will be killed. The same remarks apply to onion sets. These can be safely set in the autumn, but they must be carefully covered with earth, or with earth and manure or straw. When proper care is used, we would much prefer setting them out in the autumn.—[American Agriculturist for October.

The Steam Plow is Coming.

The next thing we want is the steam plow. It will surely come—and when it does come, we shall wonder how we ever got along without it. It is not ten years since a steam threshing machine was a rare thing, and the Deacon and others shook their wise heads, and talked about fires, insurance, and explosions. Now we have steam threshers by the score, and I do not know of an old-fashioned horse-power machine in use. The Deacon is threshing with a steamer to-day, and a traction engine at that, with all the modern improvements, and is as happy as a clam. He would laugh at the idea of hitching his well-cared for teams to a threshing machine. The rapid introduction of the steam threshers is proof to my mind, that when it is once proved that plowing can be done by steam, there will be plenty of people to take hold of the business. The farmers will not own the steam plow any more than they own the steam threshers. They will gladly have the work done by the acre—just as many of us now have our wheat, and barley, and oats cut and bound by a reaper and binder, and our grain threshed by the bushel. One of my neighbors has two or three binders, and two or three steam threshers, and his boys go around cutting and threshing grain, making quite a business of it. If we keep all the horses we need to do the work promptly and thoroughly, there are times when there will be little for them to do. But the horses must be fed all the time. The iron horse eats only when he is at work. If he does not cost too much, and the food he eats is as cheap as it ought to be, he is just the horse that the American farmer needs. Our seasons are short, and we have a good deal of hard plowing to be done just at a time when there is plenty of other work for the horses. On my own farm, for instance, I have fifty acres of land that I would like to sow to wheat this fall. During the dry, hot weather in August, our strongest and best wheat land, especially if we have just harvested a crop of barley or oats, is hard to plow. The poor horses come home at noon and night covered with sweat and dust, and tormented with flies. If I had a good steam plow, I could find plenty of other work for the horses to do, and if I could not, they would enjoy a few days vacation in a good pasture. The steam plow, or cultivator, would break up this hard, dry, strong wheat land, and the scorching sun would kill the weeds, and we could soon get it into prime order for winter wheat. We shall soon have plenty of young men able to manage the engines. Mark my work, steam plows will be as common as steam threshers, as soon as railroad directors and coal companies have had a little common sense hammered into them.—[Joseph Harris in American Agriculturist for October.

How Frogs Help Farmers.

Mr. C. M. Weed, of the Michigan Agricultural College, has recently examined the contents of the stomachs of eight common frogs (Rana halecina,) and finds undoubted evidence of the usefulness of frogs as destroyers of insects injurious to farm and garden crops. The average quantities of various insects and other substances determined by the examinations are as follows: Insects, eighty per cent.; Spiders, five per cent.; Sow-bugs, one per cent.; and the balance, vegetable matter of various kinds. Of the insects, over half are known to be injurious, and one-quarter are on the doubtful list. Much of the vegetable matter, (leaves, etc.,) was probably swallowed accidentally, along with the insects and spiders. Nearly all the stomachs contained grasshoppers, and in one they made up seventy-six per cent. of the contents. The Carabid beetles formed a large part of the food taken by some of the frogs. The Strawberry Crown Girdler was well represented, as also were several other other pests of the garden. Much has been said for and against the frogs, the robin and the crow, but there is no evidence of usefulness more positive than the finding of large numbers of injurious insects in the stomachs of these creatures. Under the dissecting knife, the frog is sure to have its right to live vindicated. By their good works we shall know them, and learn to protect our croaking friends, as well as their relatives, the toads.—[American Agriculturist for October.

Live Stock in October.

Keep the horses in the stables at night. The season is now too far advanced for night-pasturing. A cold storm might do exposed horses much harm. When unavoidably drenched, rub the horses thoroughly and blanket them. Oil the harnesses and keep them clean. The pasture supply of food for cows is now falling off, and green food must be added. The vegetable garden and the root field should furnish wholesome food. It is, however, not wise to feed any waste rubbish to the milch cows. Young stock should be kept in a thriving condition; their future value largely depends upon a vigorous, early growth. Early lambs to those who have the facilities for raising them are always profitable. Weed out the poor ewes, and prepare them for the shambles. Use only pure-blood rams. Plan now for lambs to come in March. Brood sows should be in good condition. Bear in mind that it pays best to fatten and dispose of the hogs before the coldest winter weather comes. Push them now for the early market. Fowl need warm winter quarters provided for them with abundance of wholesome food and pure water. They do not bear crowding closely together in large numbers.—[American Agriculturist for October.

The Old Game Re-Commenced.

Grand Forks Herald: This morning, Mr. A. Walstrom, one of the pioneers of the Red River Valley, who has lived near East Grand Forks for the last fourteen years, came into the Herald office to file his complaint against the Pillsbury & Hurlbut elevator in East Grand Forks. He sold four loads of wheat there the other day. It was measured right from the thresher, the first three loads having each 20 sacks of two bushels each, and the fourth load 24 sacks of two bushels each. For the first two loads the agent allowed a weight of 83 bushels, and for the last two, containing 44 sacks or 88 measured bushels, only 82 bushels and 40 lbs. The men who delivered the wheat complained of the shortage, but the agent ordered them out and told them to be still. When they reported to Walstrom he promptly went to that agent and gave him a piece of his mind, as his wheat was clean and all No. 1 hard and not subject to dockage. The agent finally allowed him five bushels of the amount docked, and Walstrom came direct to the Herald, accompanied by two others, gave an account of the transaction and entered his name on the books, as every farmer who values his rights will do. From the foregoing it will be seen that the kicking has commenced.

Peterson's Magazine for November is on our table—ahead, as usual, of all others. How the publisher can afford to keep improving it, as he does, is a standing wonder. With this number appears the prospectus for next year. It promises even better things, and "Peterson" always keeps his promises. There will be over 1,200 printed pages, 14 steel-engravings, 12 double-sized colored steel fashion-plates, from 800 to 900 wood-cuts, six copyright novelets, one hundred smaller stories, etc., etc. In short, the magazine will continue to be, as heretofore, the cheapest and best for ladies. The terms are only Two Dollars a year. To clubs, it is cheaper still, viz: four copies for six dollars and a half, with an extra copy to the person getting up the club. Or five copies for eight dollars, with both an extra copy and the "Pearl of Price," a beautiful illustrated volume, or a large steel-engraving, "The Lion In Love." Everybody should take this magazine. Now is the time to subscribe. Address CHARLES J. PETERSON, 306 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa. Specimens are sent, gratis, if written for, to get up clubs with.

Just received. A car-load of Buggies selected by an experienced carriage-builder all warranted. Call early and select one. McKinnon Bros.

LIST OF LETTERS

Remaining uncalled for in the Crookston Post Office, for the week ending Oct. 6th, 1884. Persons calling for these letters will please say "advertised."

Anderson, Cerina M
Anderson, Karaline
Bowen, Isaac
Bakken, Ole Larson
Cyrs, Ex Zord M
Davis, Mrs Clara H
David, Mr
Erickson, H A
Easbrrn, Jennie
Hanson, Miss Lottie
Haskell, Moses
Krueger, Herman
Lindquist, Klara
Lamfew, Mons
Mithougen, Miss S—2
Moorison, J
Naleral, Karl
Ormberg, N P
Peterson, Marie Jenstre
Setter, Andre N
Skore, Currie Olson
St Louis, Joseph
Torsen, Even
Vaudrin, Cl
Jrillard, Jno B
Winnerat, Them O
Wallace, Mr J R

PACKAGES

August Linberg
C H Peterson—2

D. JACOBUS, P. M.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Oct. 4th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 18th, 1884, viz: GEORGE A. CABLE, H'd No. 1848, for the e½ nw¼ and lots 1 and 2 S. 30, T. 140, R. 43. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: John E. Van Tuyl, George Tice, Albert Tice and George Pollard, and of Mentor, Minn.

[24-29] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Oct., 4th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 15th, 1884, viz: WALTER LATTA, H'd No. 2018, for the nw¼ S. 22, T. 151, R. 47. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Samuel Crookshank, John G. Tenny, A. J. Adam, of Fanny, Robert Teal, of Euclid, Minn.

[24-29] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Oct. 6th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., Nov. 19th, 1884, viz: ALDERIC LEGAULT, H'd No. 10817, for the e½ se¼, se¼ ne¼ and lot 1 S. 2, T. 149, R. 44. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Joseph L. Dayoust, Joseph Tontant, of Carman, Romuldas Beaudry, Alfred Desjardin, of Tilden, Minn.

[24-29] JOHN CROMB, Register.

Fall Goods! Fall Goods!

NEW YORK STORE.

We have Received a Full Line of

Staple and Fancy Dry Goods.
Notions Boots and Shoes,
which we are offering at Low Prices.

We show in

DRESS GOODS

One of the Best Selected stocks in the city. All the fall and winter shades.

We call special attention to our line of

BLACK CASHMERES,

We ask comparison.

Black and Colored Silks and Satins.

We show an exceptionally fine line in these goods.

NOTIONS,

Hosiery and Underwear, Knit Goods and Shawls, Ribbons, White Goods and Linens, Embroideries and Laces, Corsets and Gloves, Etc., Etc.

VELVETS,

Black and Colored. Blankets, flannels and Quilts,

—CHEAP— —CHEAP— —CHEAP—

CANTON FLANNELS,

Bleached and unbleached and colored. Domestics of all kinds. Prints, ginghams, sheetings, jeans, ticking, cotton batting, &c., &c.

Hats and caps, complete stock. CARPETS, we have a full line of samples of Body Brussels, Tapestry and Ingrain.

BOOTS AND SHOES,

of well known makes. We make a special effort to have this department one of the most complete in the city.

☞ All our stock has been selected with all possible care, having all the advantages that cash and experience can buy for us, we feel safe in guaranteeing all our customers as low prices, if not lower, than can be obtained elsewhere, quality taken into consideration. ---- A CALL SOLICITED. ----

PROUD & MACDONELL.

Stewart & Lawrence,

—DEALERS IN—

Lumber, Sash, Doors, Mouldings,
Building Paper, &c.

1st Com. Dim's and Boards, rough, $18
2d " " " " 16
3d " " " " 14
Ship Lap, dry.......... 17
Siding, dry.......... $18
Flooring, " 21
Lath,.......... 3
Shingles.......... 2

☞ A full stock of Sash, Doors, Casings, Mouldings, Eve Trough and Building Paper constantly on hand.

Johnson & Stephens,

FISHER AND CROOKSTON,

WILL NEGOTIATE LOANS!

Through the Corbin Banking Co., New York,

SELL MINNESOTA CHIEF

Threshers and Engines,

Deering and Esterly Binders,
Studebaker Wagons,

and a variety of Rakes, Mowers,
Plows, Etc., Etc.

KEEP A MORE

COMPLETE LINE OF REPAIRS

than any agency in the County.

Twine and Wire In Season

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 17th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 7th, 1884, viz: JOSEPH DURAND, H'd No. 7915, for the e½ sw¼ S. 14, T. 150, R. 48. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Ephraim Tremeley, L. Tillum, M. Lambert and John Borden, all of Terrebonne, Polk Co., Minn.

[21-26] JOHN CROMB, Register.

AIME GABOURY,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,

Graduate Doctor in Medicine Laval University Canada. Licensed Coll. Phy. Surg., Quebec Late of Michigan University, U. S.

Office over the "Arcade" Clothing Store,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

CITY ICE HOUSE!

E. D. SCHRAEDER & CO., Proprietors,

CROOKSTON, - - - -MINN.

Having purchased the ice house business of Ruedy & Kindler, and put up during the past winter from 75,000 to 100,000 tons of ice, we are now prepared to supply the trade the coming summer at reasonable figures.

E. D. SCHRAEDER & Co.

DENTISTRY.

J. H. THOMAS, D. D. S.,

ROBERT STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN.

Artificial Teeth from one to an entire set inserted. Gold, Silver or Artificial Filling used as desired. Regulating Children's Teeth a specialty. ALL WORK WARRANTED.

EIKEN BROS.,

Corner of Fletcher and Main Stree
Crookston, Minn.

Dealers in

HARDWARE, TIWARE,

STOVES,

—AND—

SHELFWARE.

WE KEEP A

FULL and COMPLETE

STOCK,

—AND—

Invite the Patronage

OF ALL.

A. H. DUNLOP M. D.,

Graduate McGill University, Montreal.

LICENSED COLLEGE PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON QUEBEC.

Office on Robert Street, Crookston.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 16th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Oct 20th, 1884: viz: OLE PETERSON, H'd No. 2373, for the sw¼, S. 29, T. 149, R. 47. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: B. C. Jergenson, Jake Id., Leonard Paulson and Iver C. Lamen, all of Andover, Polk Co., Minn.

[21-26] JOHN CROMB, Register.

MERCHANTS'

Bank of Crookston.

H. B. MONTGOMERY.........President,
St. Paul, Minn.
M. R. BROWN,.............Vice President,
Crookston, Minn.
J. KELSO.........Second Vice President,
Bellevue, Iowa.
Wm. ROSS..........................Cashier,
Crookston, Minn.

CASH CAPITAL, $32,000

SURPLUS, $16,533.82.

Will receive deposits and allow interest by special contract.

Buy and Sell Foreign and Domestic Exchange, make collections, and do a strictly legitimate business.

Agents for foreign passage tickets.

De Skandinaviske Sprog tales her.

WM. ROSS, Cashier.

ATTENTION

Now is the Time to Build

While you can buy

Cream Brick

at Very Low Figures. The Best Brick ever made in the Red River Valley. Manufactured by

SWANSON & KOEPPE,

[11-18] Crookston, Minn.

SECOND STREET

MEAT MARKET

STANTON & CO., Proprietors.

Choice meats of every description. Fish and game in their season. Everything of the very best quality and lowest prices. Call and see us.

STANTON & CO.,
Dobson's Block, Second Street.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston Minn., Sept. 20th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 11th, 1884, viz: SIDNEY BOTTINEAU, H'd No. 9258, for the e½ ne¼ and lots 1 and 2, S. 6, T. 149, R. 40. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Louis Berthiaume, A. Berthiaume, of Gentilly, John Clements, Charles Gervais, of Little Prairie, Polk Co., Minn.

[22-27] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 20th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 11th, 1884, viz: DAMASE LEDUC, H'd No. 9819, for the n½ sw¼ and n½ se¼ S. 32, T. 148, R. 45. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: T. Genereux, P. Genereux, E. Barrette and L. C. Couvrette, all of Crookston, Polk Co., Minn.

[22-27] JOHN CROMB, Register.

The Polk County Journal.

H. E. COOKE, Proprietor. DEVOTED TO THE WELFARE OF POLK COUNTY. TERMS---$1.50 Per Annum.

VOL. VIII. CROOKSTON, POLK COUNTY, MINNESOTA, OCTOBER 9, 1884. NO. 24

Polk County Journal.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY.

H. E. COOKE, Editor and Proprietor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Dollar and Fifty Cents, if paid in advance, to any address inside of Polk County. If outside of Polk County 15 cents must be added for postage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum to any address.

ADVERTISING RATES.

SPACE.	1 w.	2 w.	3 w.	1 m.	3 m.	6 m.	1 year
½ inch	50	$1 00	$1 15	$1 50	$2 00	4 50	$6 00
1 inch	75	1 25	1 75	2 00	5 50	6 00	10 00
2 inches	1 50	2 25	3 00	3 50	6 50	9 50	16 00
3 inches	1 75	2 75	3 75	4 50	9 00	13 50	20 00
4 inches	2 50	3 50	4 50	5 50	10 50	10 00	25 00
5 inches	3 00	4 00	5 00	6 00	12 50	10 00	30 00
¼ column	3 50	5 50	5 50	6 50	15 00	25 00	35 00
½ column	6 00	7 50	10 00	12 00	20 00	35 00	60 00
1 column	9 50	12 50	15 00	18 00	35 00	60 00	100 00

Entered at the Post Office in Crookston as Second Class matter.

Competition in Wheat Growing.

From the Pioneer Press.

The time is drawing near when the area devoted to wheat growing must be determined more closely than ever before by the adaptability of soil and climate to the production of the varieties most in demand of the world's markets. The fact that this cereal finds a home in all latitudes from the equator to the frigid zone, joined with the fact that it has heretofore been a product for which the demand was practically unlimited, commanding a sale so ready and certain that a bushel of wheat was the practical equivalent of a certain amount of cash, has distributed the culture of wheat more widely than that of any other agricultural product. We are now in the presence of circumstances which bid fair to change all this. Constant additions to the wheat acreage of this country, renewed attention given to wheat cultivation by nations which have grown a little restive at depending so largely for their food supply upon a foreign source, and especially the appearance of India as a gigantic competitor among the wheat producers of the world show that over-production of wheat is not an impossibility; and by overproduction is meant only that the supply furnished by an enormously expanded area the world over has grown to proportions which threaten to reduce prices below the level of a living profit. When this happens, the farmer who raises wheat under the least favorable circumstances must just as surely turn his attention to other productions more suited to the locality where he is fixed, and less abundant in the world's storehouse, as the builders of railroads must engage in other employments when all the railroads needed to carry on the transportation business of a community at reasonable rates have been supplied. We are not far from that limit now. In spite of a greatly decreased wheat crop last year, prices have remained obstinately low. In the least favored sections, the wheat grower is able to command a market which will barely recompense him for the capital and labor expended upon his crop, leaving no margin of profit whatever, if it does not involve him in actual loss. Except in years of war or famine, there is some reason to doubt that the foreign demand will ever again reach its old dimensions. If this be true, then the business of wheat cultivation is upon the eve of changes which must culminate in the survival of the fittest. Of course every State will endeavor to raise enough for home consumption. But it will be cultivated for general consumption and for export on an extensive scale only in those sections which are endowed with distinguished natural advantages as compared with the foremost wheat-producing regions of the world. It becomes of some moment, therefore, to know, if possible, where the regions so favored are to be found.

The incontrovertible facts of nature and the indications of statistics unite in confirming the belief that the southern portion of the United States, and the great middle belt as well, will soon be compelled to abandon to some considerable extent the raising of wheat as a staple crop, and that the Northwest is destined to retain permanently its place as a chief source of the world's supply. As the area devoted to wheat expands in the Northwest it will gradually contract in the States which are commonly known as the corn belt, and industry will turn to other channels of usefulness. Some reasons for this [illegible] will not be hard to find. In the first place, we note that the conditions of the market already point toward this consummation. The highest grade of wheat commands about 78 cents at Minneapolis. At Kansas City the price is 56 cents. It is evident that the farmer of the Northwest is a competitor on more than equal terms with the wheat raiser farther to the south, and that in the event of close competition he can drive the latter to the wall. That competition has already come. The farmer of Western Kansas cannot afford to raise wheat at 40 cents per bushel. Probably it costs him nearly the whole of that, and the first effect of the market will be to turn his attention to more remunerative crops. Under these conditions little increase of wheat acreage can be expected in the States of the middle belt. Extension must be limited chiefly to the Northwest, and this not only because the market is at present more favorable, but for the deeper reason which lies behind the apparent [illegible] ing to the value of that variety for consumptive purposes. Now it is known to every one that this hard wheat is in universal and permanent demand. It is absolutely necessary for mixing with the softer varieties in order to produce the best flour. The steady demand for it at high prices is accounted for by this fact; and the fact being one growing out of natural conditions, its effects will be persistent. In an analysis of fifty varieties of the finest wheat raised in the various States, only five others attained the percentage of albuminoid matter shown by the three Minnesota grades subject to examination. The largest amount of albumen, as reported by the chemist of the agricultural department, was found in a Minnesota variety. And it is this intrinsic value, discovered by practical millers long ago, which gives to the wheat of the Northwest a permanent value, insuring it against competition before which other sections must yield. How real that competition is, the market quotations serve well enough to show. The wheat acreage of Europe is being increased wherever it is practicable. India and Australia have come into the field, and their appearance is ominous. For the calendar year 1882, India exported 15,000,000 hundred weight of wheat. In 1883 the amount grew to 22,300,000 hundred weight. What is her export capacity under the stimulus of profitable demand is matter of controversy. Now it is to to be marked that this Indian wheat is mostly of the soft varieties. By mixing it with the harder grain a fine flour may be produced. And here we see a powerful cause at work at once to reduce the production of soft wheat on this side of the ocean, and to steady or actually increase the demand for that product which has made the fame of the Northwest. Sooner or later, then, it would appear that the great States of the middle belt which have long led in wheat production must devote themselves more particularly to other industries; to the growing of corn, in which they have no equals; to the production of all the minor grains whose consumption is capable of great expansion; to the woolgrowing industry, already so widely engaged in; to any and all of those multifarious branches of agriculture for which they are by nature so admirably suited. But it appears probale that they will gradually retire from wheat culture except for home consumption. Already their production of this grain seems to be at a standstill, if not actually retrograding. The wheat crop of the United States in 1883 was reduced about one-sixth as compared with 1882. But the crop of Illinois fell off more than one-half, that of Indiana nearly 40 per cent., that of Ohio more than 40 per cent., and so of the other States which were not subject to large increases of acreage by the taking up of new land. This tendency we may expect to see working with increased power in the future. There is no market at remunerative rates for all the wheat which the world can produce. The palm will go to the best, and industry must adjust itself to the new conditions. But the farmer who has cast his lot in the zone where hard wheat can be raised may be sure that no accident of time or change can rob him of his market, while the thinning of the ranks by natural competition will result in increasing advantage to him who is destined by nature to be the final survivor.

Raising Onion Seed.

For two years onion seed has been very cheap. If we may judge from past experience it will sooner or later be high again. It is a good time for those who have had the experience in raising seed, and wish to engage in the business, to set out a few bushels of onions. Let them select the very best onions, and especially avoid all those with thick necks. It does not pay to grow your onion seed unless you grow the very best. You can buy plenty of poor seed—and lose money by it.

Onions for seed can be set out in the autumn or in the spring. If proper precautions are taken, autumn is the better time. The land must be moderately rich, and thoroughly worked. Onion roots run down deep into the subsoil, and it is therefore essential that the sub-soil should be free from stagnant water. Low, mucky land that will produce good crops of onions will not always produce onion seed. Dry upland is better and more certain—or rather it is less uncertain, for at best, onion seed growing is rather an uncertain business. You may get a good crop of seed and a good price, and the crop may bring you in one thousand dollars per acre—or it may all blast. We mark out the rows three and a half feet apart. Make a furrow three inches deep. Set out the onions in the rows so thick that they will almost touch each other and cover carefully and well two or three inches deep. If heavy rains wash the soil away from the onions they must be covered again before winter sets in. If they cannot be well covered with earth, throw out some manure or straw and spread it two or three inches thick over the rows so as to cover the whole surface of the land. There is no danger of the onions being injured by the frost provided they are well covered, but if these precautions are not taken and we have [illegible]

The Steam Plow is Coming.

The next thing we want is the steam plow. It will surely come—and when it does come, we shall wonder how we ever got along without it. It is not ten years since a steam threshing machine was a rare thing, and the Deacon and others shook their wise heads, and talked about fires, insurance, and explosions. Now we have steam threshers by the score, and I do not know of an old-fashioned horse-power machine in use. The Deacon is threshing with a steamer to-day, and a traction engine at that, with all the modern improvements, and is as happy as a clam. He would laugh at the idea of hitching his well-cared for teams to a threshing machine. The rapid introduction of the steam threshers is proof to my mind, that when it is once proved that plowing can be done by steam, there will be plenty of people to take hold of the business. The farmers will not own the steam plow any more than they own the steam threshers. They will gladly have the work done by the acre—just as many of us now have our wheat, and barley, and oats cut and bound by a reaper and binder, and our grain threshed by the bushel. One of my neighbors has two or three binders, and two or three steam threshers, and his boys go around cutting and threshing grain, making quite a business of it. If we keep all the horses we need to do the work promptly and thoroughly, there are times when there will be little for them to do. But the horses must be fed all the time. The iron horse eats only when he is at work. If he does not cost too much, and the food he eats is as cheap as it ought to be, he is just the horse that the American farmer needs. Our seasons are short, and we have a good deal of hard plowing to be done just at a time when there is plenty of other work for the horses. On my own farm, for instance, I have fifty acres of land that I would like to sow to wheat this fall. During the dry, hot weather in August, our strongest and best wheat-land, especially if we have just harvested a crop of barley or oats, is hard to plow. The poor horses come home at noon and night covered with sweat and dust, and tormented with flies. If I had a good steam plow, I could find plenty of other work for the horses to do, and if I could not, they would enjoy a few days vacation in a good pasture. The steam plow, or cultivator, would break up this hard, dry, strong wheat land, and the scorching sun would kill the weeds, and we could soon get it into prime order for winter wheat. We shall soon have plenty of young men able to manage the engines. Mark my work, steam plows will be as common as steam threshers, as soon as railroad directors and coal companies have had a little common sense hammered into them.—[Joseph Harris in American Agriculturist for October.

How Frogs Help Farmers.

Mr. C. M. Weed, of the Michigan Agricultural College, has recently examined the contents of the stomachs of eight common frogs (Rana halecina,) and finds undoubted evidence of the usefulness of frogs as destroyers of insects injurious to farm and garden crops. The average quantities of various insects and other substances determined by the examinations, are as follows: Insects, eighty per cent.; Spiders, five per cent.; Sow-bugs, one per cent.; and the balance, vegetable matter of various kinds. Of the insects, over half are known to be injurious, and one-quarter are on the doubtful list. Much of the vegetable matter, (leaves, etc.,) was probably swallowed accidentally along with the insects and spiders. Nearly all the stomachs contained grasshoppers, and in one they made up seventy-six per cent. of the contents. The Carabid beetles formed a large part of the food taken by some of the frogs. The Strawberry Crown Girdler was well represented, as also were several other other pests of the garden. Much has been said for and against the frogs, the robin and the crow, but there is no evidence of usefulness more positive than the finding of large numbers of injurious insects in the stomachs of these creatures. Under the dissecting knife the frog is sure to have its right to live vindicated. By their good works ye shall know them, and learn to protect our croaking friends as well as their relatives the toads.—[American Agriculturist for October.

Live Stock in October.

Keep the horses in the stables at night. The season is now too far advanced for night pasturing. A cold storm might do exposed horses much harm. When unavoidably drenched rub the horses thoroughly and blanket them. Oil the harness and keep them clean. The pasture supply of food for cows is now falling off and green food must be added. [illegible] growth. Early lambs to those who have the facilities for raising them are always profitable. Weed out the poor ewes, and prepare them for the shambles. Use only pure-blood rams. Plan now for lambs to come in March. Brood sows should be in good condition. Bear in mind that it pays best to fatten and dispose of the hogs before the coldest winter weather comes. Push them now for the early market. Fowl need warm winter quarters provided for them with abundance of wholesome food and pure water. They do not bear crowding closely together in large numbers.—[American Agriculturist for October.

The Old Game Re-Commenced.

Grand Forks Herald: This morning, Mr. A. Walstrom, one of the pioneers of the Red River Valley, who has lived near East Grand Forks for the last fourteen years, came into the Herald office to file his complaint against the Pillsbury & Hurlbut elevator in East Grand Forks. He sold four loads of wheat there the other day. It was measured right from the thresher, the first three loads having each 20 sacks of two bushels each, and the fourth load 24 sacks of two bushels each. For the first two loads the agent allowed a weight of 83 bushels, and for the last two, containing 44 sacks or 88 measured bushels, only 82 bushels and 40 lbs. The men who delivered the wheat complained of the shortage, but the agent ordered them out and told them to be still. When they reported to Walstrom he promptly went to that agent and gave him a piece of his mind, as his wheat was clean and all No. 1 hard and not subject to dockage. The agent finally allowed him five bushels of the amount docked, and Walstrom came direct to the Herald, accompanied by two others, gave an account of the transaction and entered his name on the books, as every farmer who values his rights will do. From the foregoing it will be seen that the kicking has commenced.

Peterson's Magazine for November is on our table—ahead, as usual, of all others. How the publisher can afford to keep improving it, as he does, is a standing wonder. With this number appears the prospectus for next year. It promises even better things, and "Peterson" always keeps his promises. There will be over 1,200 printed pages, 14 steel-engravings, 12 double-sized, colored steel fashion-plates, from 800 to 900 wood-cuts, six copyright novelets, one hundred smaller stories, etc., etc. In short, the magazine will continue to be, as heretofore, the cheapest and best for ladies. The terms are only Two Dollars a year. To clubs, it is cheaper still, viz: four copies for six dollars and a half, with an extra copy to the person getting up the club. Or five copies for eight dollars, with both an extra copy and the "Pearl of Price," a beautiful illustrated volume, or a large steel-engraving, "The Lion In Love." Everybody should take this magazine. Now is the time to subscribe. Address CHARLES J. PETERSON, 306 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa. Specimens are sent, gratis, if written for, to get up clubs with.

Just received. A car-load of Buggies selected by an experienced carriage-builder all warranted. Call early and select one. McKinnon Bros.

LIST OF LETTERS

Remaining uncalled for in the Crookston Post Office, for the week ending Oct. 6th, 1884. Persons calling for these letters will please say "advertised."

Anderson, Cerina M
Anderson, Karaline
Bowen, Isaac
Bikken, Ole Larson
Cyrs, Ex Zord M
Davis, Mrs Clara H
David, M
Erickson, H A
Esabrun, Jennie
Hanson, Miss Lottie
Haskell, Moses
Krueger, Herman
Lindquist, Klara
Lamow, Moms
Malthougen, Miss S—2
Moorison, J
Naleraj, Karl
Ormberg, N P
Peterson, Maria Jensine
Setter, Andre N
Skore, Currie Olson
St Louis, Joseph
Torsen, Even
Vaudrin, Ci
Jrillard, Jno B
Winnevot, Thom O
Wallace, Mr J R

PACKAGES

August Linberg
C H Peterson—2

D. JACOBUS, P. M.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., Oct. 4th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 18th, 1884, viz: GEORGE A. DABLK, H'd No. 8048, for the e½ nw¼ and lots 1 and 2 S. 30, T. 149, R. 48. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: John B. Van Tuyl, George Tice, Albert Tice and George Pollard, all of Mentor, Minn.

[illegible] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., Oct. 4th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 18th, 1884, viz: WALTER LATTA, H'd No. 2018, for the nw¼ S. 22, T. 151, R. 47. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Samuel Crookshank, John G. Tenny, A. U. Adam, of Fanny, Robert Teal, of Euclid, Minn.

[21-26] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., Oct. [illegible] 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., Nov. 18th, 1884, viz: [illegible]

[illegible] JOHN CROMB, Register.

Fall Goods! Fall Goods!

NEW YORK STORE.

We have Received a Full Line of

Staple and Fancy Dry Goods. Notions Boots and Shoes, which we are offering at Low Prices.

We show in

DRESS GOODS

One of the Best Selected stocks in the city. All the fall and winter shades.

We call special attention to our line of

BLACK CASHMERES,

We ask comparison.

Black and Colored Silks and Satins.

We show an exceptionally fine line in these goods.

NOTIONS,

Hosiery and Underwear. Knit Goods and Shawls, Ribbons, White Goods and Linens, Embroideries and Laces, Corsets and Gloves, Etc., Etc.

VELVETS,

Black and Colored. Blankets, flannels and Quilts,

—CHEAP— —CHEAP— —CHEAP—

CANTON FLANNELS,

Bleached and unbleached and colored. Domestics of all kinds. Prints, ginghams, sheetings, jeans, ticking, cotton batting, &c., &c.

Hats and caps, complete stock. CARPETS, we have a full line of samples of Body Brussels, Tapestry and Ingrain.

BOOTS AND SHOES,

of well known makes. We make a special effort to have this department one of the most complete in the city.

All our stock has been selected with all possible care, having all the advantages that cash and experience can buy for us, we feel safe in guaranteeing all our customers as low prices, if not lower, than can be obtained elsewhere, quality taken into consideration.

---- A CALL SOLICITED. ----

PROUD & MACDONELL.

Stewart & Lawrence,

—DEALERS IN—

Lumber, Sash, Doors, Mouldings,

Building Paper, &c.

1st Com.–Dim's and Boards, rough,	$18	Siding, dry	$18
2d " " " "	16	Flooring, "	21
3d " " " "	14	Lath,	3
Ship Lap, dry	17	Shingles	2

A full stock of Sash, Doors, Casings, Mouldings, Eve Trough and Building Paper constantly on hand.

Johnson & Stephens,

FISHER AND CROOKSTON,

WILL NEGOTIATE LOANS!

Through the Corbin Banking Co., New York,

SELL MINNESOTA CHIEF

Threshers and Engines,

Deering and Esterly Binders,
Studebaker Wagons,

and a variety of Rakes, Mowers, Plows, Etc., Etc.

KEEP A MORE

COMPLETE LINE OF REPAIRS

than any agency in the County.

Twine and Wire In Season

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., Sept. 17th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 7th, 1884, viz: JOSEPH DURAND, H'd No. 7915, for the e½ sw¼ S. 14, T. 150, R. 48. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Ephraim Trumbly, Jr., Tillum, M. Lambert and John Borden, all of Terrebonne, Polk Co., Minn.

[21-26] JOHN CROMB, Register.

CITY ICE HOUSE!

R. D. SCHRAEDER & CO., Proprietors.

CROOKSTON, MINN.

Having purchased the ice house business of Ruedy & Kindler, and put up during the past winter from 75,000 to 100,000 tons of ice, we are now prepared to supply the trade the coming summer at reasonable figures.

R. D. SCHRAEDER & Co.

AIME GABOURY,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,

Graduate Doctor in Medicine Laval University, Canada. Licensed College Physicians & Surgeons Quebec. [illegible] Michigan University [illegible] over the Arcade Clothing Store.

CROOKSTON, MINN.

DENTISTRY.

J. H. THOMAS, D. D. S.

ROBERT STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN.

Artificial teeth from one to an entire set inserted. Gold, Silver or Artificial Filling used as desired. Regulating Children's Teeth a specialty. ALL WORK WARRANTED.

EIKEN BROS.,

Corner of Fletcher and Main Stree
Crookston, Minn.

Dealers in

HARDWARE, TIWARE,

STOVES,

—AND—

SHELFWARE.

WE KEEP A

FULL & COMPLETE

STOCK,

—AND—

Invite the Patronage

OF ALL.

A. H. DUNLOP M. D.,

—Graduate McGill University, Montreal.

LICENSED COLLEGE PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON QUEBEC.

Office on Robert Street, Crookston.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., Sept. 10th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Oct 30th, 1884: viz: OLE PETERSON, H'd No. 2373, for the sw¼ S. 29, T. 149, R. 47. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: B. C. Jergenson, Jake Id., Leonard Paulson and Iver C. Lamen; all of Andover, Polk Co., Minn.

[21-26] JOHN CROMB, Register.

MERCHANTS'

Bank of Crookston.

H. B. MONTGOMERY.........President,
St. Paul, Minn.
M. R. BROWN,............Vice President,
Crookston, Minn.
J. KELSO........Second Vice President,
Bellevue, Iowa.
Wm. ROSS.......................Cashier,
Crookston, Minn.

CASH CAPITAL, $32,000

SURPLUS, $16,533.82.

Will receive deposits and allow interest by special contract.

Buy and Sell Foreign and Domestic Exchange, make collections, and do a strictly legitimate business.

Agents for foreign passage tickets.

De Skandinaviske Sprog tales her.

WM. ROSS, Cashier.

ATTENTION

Now is the Time to Build

While you can buy

Cream Brick

at Very Low Figures. The Best Brick ever made in the Red River Valley. Manufactured by

SWANSON & KOEPPE,

[11-18] Crookston, Minn.

SECOND STREET

MEAT MARKET

STANTON & CO., Proprietors.

Choice meats of every description. Fish and game in their season. Everything of the very best quality and lowest prices. Call and see us.

STANTON & CO.,
Dobson's Block, Second Street.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston Minn., Sept. 20th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 11th, 1884, viz: SIDNEY BOTTINEAU, H'd No. 9268, for the e½ ne¼ and lots 1 and 2, S. 6, T. 149, R. 40. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Louis Berthiaume, A. Berthiaume, of Gentilly, John Clements, Charles Gervais, of Little Prairie, Polk Co., Minn.

[22-27] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., Sept. 20th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 11th, 1884, viz: DAMASE LEDUC, H'd No. 9812, for the n½ sw¼ and n½ se¼ S. 32, T. 148, R. 45. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: T. Genereux, F. Genereux, E. Barrette and L. C. Couvrette, all of Crookston, Polk Co., Minn.

[22-27] JOHN CROMB, Register.

Polk County Journal.

Crookston, Minn., Thursday, October 9.

THE MARKETS.

Wheat is quoted in this market today as follows:

No. 1 Hard 58 cents.
No. 2 Hard 53 cents.
No. 1 Northern 53 cents.
No. 1 Regular 43 cents.

FLOUR:
Best,	per cwt.	$ 3.25
2d	"	3.00
3d	"	2.75
4th	"	1.57

At Minneapolis:

No. 1 Hard 79 cents.
No. 2 Hard no quotations.
No. 1 Regular 69 cents.

Duluth quotations are as follows:

No. 1 Hard 79 cents.
No. 2 " 76½ cents.
No. 1 Northern 77 cents.
No. 1 Regular 78 cents.

'ROUND HOME.

Trunks at half price at Chiniquy's.

Mr. Jacobus has put an electric light in the post office.

Best cigars in the city at Van Dyke & Co's.

Rev. Mr. Wood, of Detroit, was in this week canvassing for "Twenty years in Congress." Most candidates try for one term first.

The Crookston Roller Mills sports a fine new delivery wagon. It is a dandy and the driver, on his high perch, looks as slick as a dude.

A fine lot of toilet articles to be sold very low, at VAN DYKE & CO'S.

Dan McDonald was the lucky man who drew the prize at Fontaine & Anglim's, consisting of a handsome and valuable china sett.

Cloaks, Dolmans and winter wraps at fifty cents on the dollar at Chiniquy's.

Aitken Demers, the man who was brought to this city from Maple Lake awhile since, charged with stealing grain, was released on Tuesday, he having paid his fine.

The largest stock of boots and shoes in the city selling at cost at Chiniquy's

Election tickets will be printed at this office at $5 per thousand. Cash must accompany each order to receive attention. Don't ask for credit on tickets as they must be cash in every case.

The best five cent cigars is at the Red Star Grocery, Broadway. [51-tf]

Buyers for the Roller Mills are on the streets offering 58 cents for No. 1 Hard wheat, which is the going price; even while they pay no more, apparently, than the elevators, they give better grades, which is a big point in favor of the farmer.

You will find that you can save a great deal of money in buying goods at Chiniquy's.

The roller flouring mills started up on Monday and are now running in full blast. The business now seems to be permanent, and Mr. K. D. Chase deserves high compliments for his patience during this vexatious seige, and we trust he will reap his reward.

If you want a rattling good cigar, don't take our word for it but take ten cents and go and try one of those what you read about at Van Dyke & Co's.

Knute Holdal has returned from a trip along the C. P. R. R. as far west as the Rocky Mountains. He says that although it is a healthy country, and some gold and silver abounds, it is not as desirable a place to live as the Red River Valley, and Knute thinks he will still stick to his first love.

Mr. D. Sulzback, representing M. Sulzback & Co., cigar manufacturers, of Grand Forks, D. T., was in the city last week, working up trade in the interest of the firm. Their brand, "The Golden Standard of the Northwest," is a cigar that every dealer should have. Mr. S. will be around every 30 days.

The Dems (some of them) started on their pilgrimage to their Mecca, (Red Lake Falls) on Tuesday, the balance (what there was left) going early on Wednesday morning, (and Wednesday was a terribly "cold" day.) It is cruelly asserted (by some) that Wednesday was selected for the side-show on account of its coldness, as some kinds of meat preserves better in cold weather, and it would not do to put so "fresh" a ticket in the "field" earlier in the summer, when the weather is very warm.

On Thursday evening next the citizens of Crookston and vicinity will have the the privilege of listening to the eloquent Hon. Morton S. Wilkinson, (than whom there is no more fluent speaker in the State,) and Col. L. L. Baxter, Democratic nominee for Congress, in a vain attempt to bolster up the lost cause and show reasons why Cleveland should preside over this nation and why Baxter should go to Congress. If these gentlemen can afford to come so far in so hopeless a cause we can all afford to go a little way to listen to them.

About 10:30 on Wednesday the fire department was hastily summoned by the clanging bell which told that the fire-fiend was holding high carnival in our midst. The fire occurred in a little frame building back of the round house, owned by Wm. Withrow. As near as we can learn at this writing no one was in the house at the time except a babe a little over one year old, Mrs. Withrow having gone to a neighbor's a few minutes before the fire broke out. She soon became aware of the fire and hastening home began getting things out as rapidly as possible. The poor little babe was terribly burned about the face and hands before it could be rescued and was taken to Mr. H[illegible]'s where Dr. Gaboury attended the little sufferer. No one appears to know the origin of the fire. The house is a total loss. No insurance. The department did nobly, had two streams upon the house which soon cooled the ardor of the flames, although the building was one m[illegible] After the fire was extin[illegible] [illegible]

Notions below cost at Chiniquy's.

The lecture of Rev. Jos. Cook was well attended and proved a success both financially and otherwise.

What's the matter with those cigars of Van Dyke & Co's, if it is a good one you like.

The little baby so badly injured at the fire on Wednesday is doing nicely and it bids fair to recover soon. Sweet oil, freely used, is doing wonders for it.

Fargo Argus: A paper in South Dakota says that one of the grandest sights in Dakota at this season of the year is to see the wife stacking grain while the husband is off electioneering.

Come and buy good goods at you own prices, at VAN DYKE & CO'S.

Tollef Farden, the delegate from Tilden, was made happy on Oct. 1st by the arrival of a lusty ten pound boy which, Tollef says, he is holding in reserve for future county attorney.

If you don't want to take our word for it go and see that Van Dyke & Co. have one of the finest cigars you have smoked since.

The Bright Slave, played by the German Comedy Company at Ericssons Hall on Saturday evening was a success not withstanding the rain. The company have been earnestly requested to repeat it and may conclude to do so at an early day.

Van Dyke & Co. offer fancy goods lower than ever.

Coroner Shepard was summoned to go to Beltrami on Saturday to inquire into the cause of the death of a man found dead near the track. The jury found that the man came to his death by being run over by the cars on the night of Friday, Oct. 3d.

Prescriptions put up carefully at all times of the day or night, at

VAN DYKE & CO'S.

Joe Little, who came to this country in the early days with Wm. Stuart, and who worked for Stuart for some time, was in the city this week with John Mullen, of Fergus Falls, on a visit. Joe thinks Crookston has made wonderful improvements since he first came.

For the next 30 days we are bound to sell goods 50 per cent. below cost in order to make room for new stock.

VAN DYKE & CO.

On Sunday last a man named John Ettes was found in a barn on Sampson's Addition and taken to the engine house for care. As he was worse next morning he was taken to Lorge's boarding house where he soon after died. He was buried on Tuesday. The verdict of the coroner's jury was death from exposure.

Coming!

Milton Nobles will shortly appear at the Opera House in this city in "Love and Law." Mr. Nobles has the reputation of being the best actor in his line that travels. The press notices he receives are very flattering.

INDEPENDENT CANDIDATES.

At the earnest request of many friends I hereby announce myself an independent candidate for the office of Register of Deeds for Polk County.

JOHN AMUNDSON.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for re-election to the office of Probate Judge of Polk County.

Respectfully, R. J. MONTAGUE.

By the request of many friends I take this method of announcing myself a candidate for re-election to the office of County Surveyor.

C. L. BRAINARD.

RED LAKE FALLS, Oct. 8, 1884.

EDITOR JOURNAL: I hereby withdraw my independent candidacy for the office of County Surveyor and earnestly request my friends to support Gardner Stevens, the Democratic nominee.

Respectfully, C. L. BRAINARD.

Money to Loan.

ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS to loan on improved farms from THREE to FIVE years time at very reasonable rates. Apply at my office on Broadway, in U. S. Land Office building.

[14tf.] H. STEENERSON.

Send Money by American Express or Money Orders. Receipts given. Money refunded if Orders are lost. Sold at all offices of the Company. Payable at 6,500 places. RATES: To $5-5c.; $10-8c.; $20-10c.; $30-12; $40-15.; $50-20c. [2-27]

NOTICE.

Any man investing in property at Red Lake Falls or vicinity who loses by the investment, I will pay five dollars where he looses five cents.

[8-28] ALFRED GERVAIS.

C. Papin has a fine grade Jersey and Durham bull, one of the finest animals in the State. All who desire the use of good animals should not fail to call at Papin's and see this animal. [22-24]

$100,000

To Loan on improved claims in sums of $250 to $2,000. Cash paid for school bonds. Call on or address,

JOHN MCLEAN, Att'y at Law,
[47-tf] Crookston, Minn.

PIANO TUNING.

Any parties having pianos or organs that need tuning or repairing can have their work satisfactorily done by leaving orders at the Linton House. Satisfaction guaranteed.

[9-tf] E. F. WHEELDEN.

John Knuppe.

General Agent in the Red River Valley of the Netherlands American Land Company, of Amsterdam, Holland.

Money to loan on good real estate security on time to suit the borrower. Office over Merchant's Bank. [1-tf]

Independent Candidates.

All notices under this head will be cash, cash invariably with the order. [illegible] shall make no deviation from this [illegible] of any one, so please do [illegible] [22-24]

GRAND
Democratic Rally
AT CROOKSTON,
On Thursday, Oct. 16th, 1884.

Hon. M. S. Wilkinson
EX-U. S. SENATOR,
—AND—
COL. L. L. BAXTER,

Democratic candidate for Congress from the 5th District, will address the people of Polk and adjoining counties, on the

POLITICAL ISSUES OF THE DAY

at Crookston, Minn., Oct. 16th, 1884, afternoon and evening. Turn out and make it a Grand Democratic Rally.

BY ORDER OF COM.

CHEAPEST AND BEST!

Peterson's Magazine!

Unequaled Premiums for 1885

FULL-SIZE DRESS PATTERNS.

Peterson's Magazine is the best and cheapest of the lady's books. It gives more for the money and combines greater merits, than and other. Its immense circulation and long-established reputation enable its proprietor to distance all competition. In short, it has the

Best Steel Engravings,
Best Colored Fashions,
Best Dress Patterns,
Best Original Stories,
Best Work-Table Patterns,
Best Music, Etc., Etc.

The stories, novelets, etc., in "Peterson," are admitted to be the best published. All the most popular female writers contribute to it. Every month, a Full Size Dress Pattern is given, which is alone worth the price of the number. Every month, also, there appears a engraved on steel, twice the size of others, and superbly colored. Also, Household, Cookery, and other receipts; articles on Art Embroidery, Flower Culture, House Decoration—in short, everything interesting to ladies.

Colored Steel Fashion-Plate!

TERMS, ALWAYS IN ADVANCE, $2.00 A YEAR.

☞ Unparalleled Offers to Clubs. ☜

2 Copies for $3.50. 3 Copies for $4.50

With the "Pearl of Price," a splendid illustrated volume of poetry, or large steel-engraving, "The Lion in Love," for getting up club.

4 Copies for $6.50. 6 Copies for $9.00

With an extra copy of the Magazine for 1885, as a premium, to the person getting up the club.

5 Copies for $8.00. 7 Copies for $10.50

With both an extra copy of the Magazine for 1885, and the large steel-engraving, or the "Pearl of Price," to the person getting up the club.

☞ For larger clubs still greater inducements.

Address, post-paid,

CHARLES J. PETERSON,
306 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.

☞ Specimens sent gratis, if written for, to get up clubs with.

Christening and Wedding Cakes Made upon Shortest Notice in the Best Style.

A Choice and Well Selected Stock of Confectionery Always on hand.

John Crawford & Son,
Proprietors of Crawford's
Bakery,
SECOND STREET,
Crookston, Minn.

CONFECTIONERY

Fresh Bread, Buns, Cakes and Biscuits. All Articles in the Fancy Baking Line.

Tom Morris,
—THE—
CITY
JEWELER
Represents the
CELEBRATED
Rockford Quick Train
WATCH
THE ONLY
Railroad
Watch
IN EXISTENCE.

W. L. Sargeant
Veterinary Surgeon.
CROOKSTON, - - - - MINN.

Diseases of horses and cattle a specialty.
[9-tf]

WM. WATTS,
ATTORNEY AT LAW,
AND DEALER IN
REAL ESTATE:
OFFICE OVER MERCHANTS' BANK.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 17th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 7th, 1884, viz: GUNDER T. HUNDLAND, H'd No. 9483, for the ne¼ S. 22, T. 152, R. 42. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Nicholas Thompson, Neese Thompson, H. Keogh and Hans P. Bjerge, all of St. Hilaire, Polk Co., Minn.

[22-27] JOHN CROMB, Registe.

U. S. LAND OFFICE.
Crookston, Minn, Sept. 17th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-nomed settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 7th, 1884, viz: JOHN LINDELL, Pre. D. S., No. 6352, for the n½ se¼ ne¼ sw¼ and lot 3, S. 7, T. 146, R. 43. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Erik J. Erikson, John Berggvist, E. Eriksson and A. Larson, all of Rindal, Minn.

[22-27] JOHN CROMB, Register.

Wentzel & Rauch,
Sample Rooms.
MAIN STREET, - - CROOKSTON, MINN.

For a fine mixed or straight drink call on the boys. The choicest liquors and cigars in stock. [9-tf]

Groceries, Provisions,
Flour, Feed
SMOKED, DRIED AND SALT
MEATS,
TEAS,
COFFEES,
SUGARS,
SPICES,
ETC.

Highest Market Price Paid for
FARM PRODUCE.
Bauchman & Millette.
Broadway, Opposite the Post Office,
Crookston, Minn.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 17th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 7th, 1884, viz: NICHOLAS THOMPSON, Pre. D. S., No. 7760, for the se¼ S. 10, T. 152, R. 42. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: G. T. Hundlen, H. Keogh, Neese Thompson and Hans P. Bjerge, all of St. Hilaire, Polk Co., Minn.

[22-27] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 19th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 10th, 1884, viz: HANS E. BERGE, Pre. D. S., No. 6935, for the sw¼ sw¼ S. 22, T. 147, R. 44. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Even Grotevig, Halver Grotevig, Jacob Aldal and A. Nelson, all of Aldal, Polk Co., Minn.

[22-27] JOHN CROMB, Register.

BERG & OLSON,
PRACTICAL WATCHMAKERS,
AND DEALERS IN CLOCKS,
WATCHES,
JEWELRY,
—ROBERT STREET,—
CROOKSTON, - - MINNESOTA.

NEW LIVERY,
Feed and Sale
STABLES.,
CORNER MAIN AND FOURTH STS.,
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA
TERRY & COLLINS, Prop's.

☞ Good Turnouts at all times a reasonable prices. Good Hearse and careful driver when needed.

M. M. VAN DYKE,
Physician and Surgeon,
Corner of Main and Second Streets,
CROOKSTON - - MINN
Will attend to all professional calls promptly.

JOHN LEO. H. STEENERSON.
LEO & STEENERSON.
ATTORNEYS AT LAW
Room 3, U. S. Land Office Building,
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

Crookston Tonsorial
PARLORS.
PROF. THOMPSON, Proprietor.
Robert Street, Crookston, Minn.

Shaving, hair dressing and all work in my line promptly attended to the latest style of the art. Give me a call.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 20th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 11th, 1884, viz: JOSEPH MARLOW, Pre. D. S., No. 7290, for the s½ nw¼ and lots 3 and 4 S. 2, T. 151, R. 44. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Pierre St. Jean, John Dairey, Aimable St. Jean and E. St. Jean, all of Red Lake Falls, Polk Co., Minn.

[22-27] JOHN CROMB, Register.

CHANGE IS THE ORDER OF THE DAY!

POTTER & GEORGE
— SUCCEED BEECHER & GEORGE OF —
MEDICAL HALL.

The reputation of the old firm will be kept up for good goods and moderate prices. Don't forget us.

POTTER & GEORGE,
Proprietors of Medical Hall.

E. D. CHILDS & CO.,
Proprietors of
CARMAN TOWNSITE,
AND
Dealers in Real Estate!

Why Don't You wait?

Wait till Crookston has ten thousand people. Three years!

Wait till Crookston is the largest and most important manufacturing town in the Northwest. Two years!

Wait till Crookston has two more large saw mills, and is cutting 75,000,000 feet a season. One year!

Wait till lots in SOUTH CROOKSTON are selling for twice their present valuation (six months) and THEN purchase

South Crookston Property.

But if you have time, just drop in and have a chat with

STEENERSON & McMANUS, Broadway.
JOHN IVES & SON, Broadway.
PALMER & BOND, Robert Street.
CROOKSTON IMPROVEMENT CO., Main Street.

Crookston City Bakery,
Peter Lorge, Prop.,

Keeps constantly on hand a full line of all goods usually found in a

First-Class Bakery.

Cigars and Tobacco, Nuts, Fruits, Candies; Pies, Cakes, Bread,

And everything to fill out a hungry man, constantly on hand.

FARMERS,—FARMERS,
WE ARE
Selling Lower Than Ever!

You will always find it to your advantage to

Trade with Us!

We Sell the Best for the LOWEST LIVING PRICES. Remember the place,

Broadway, bet. 2d and Robert Sts.

D. BUCHANAN.

THE
St. Paul,
Minneapolis
—AND—Manitoba
RAILWAY,
WITH ITS
1,400 Miles of Road

Is the only line extending through the

Park Region of Minnesota,

To all principal points in
Red River Valley,
Northern Minnesota,
Northern Dakota,
And to Devil's Lake and Turtle Mountain Districts.

—CONTAINING OVER—
9,000,000 Acres
GOVERNMENT LANDS!

The Land department of the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway has exclusive charge of the Company's Lands in Minnesota, and all correspondence relative to the purchase of lands, terms, description or price of any particular tract should be addressed to that department. Maps and pamphlets describing the country and giving rates of fare to settlers, etc., mailed FREE on application.

JAS. B. POWER,
Land and Immigration Commissioner
C. H. WARREN,
General Passenger Agent,
St. P., M. & M. R'y., St. Paul, Minn.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 20th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 10th, 1884, viz: PETRONELLE SVARTZ, Pre. D. S., No. 8207, for the lots 3 and 4, S. 6, T. 147, R. 41. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Svend Kuraas, John Jaintrold, Thorwald Torpet and Ingebret Torpet, all of Aldal, Polk Co., Minn.

[22-27] JOHN CROMB, Register.

Crookston Nurseries
ESTABLISHED IN 1879.
Tree Claim Stock.

I desire to inform my customers and others that I shall make a great reduction from former prices on forest trees and seeds for tree-claims. I have good thrifty two year old trees, such as Box Elder, Ash and Cottonwood to sell by the thousand. I also furnish the hardier varieties of

SMALL FRUITS,

Such as Currants, Gooseberries, Raspberries and Strawberry plants, and young, thrifty Transcendent and Hislop Crab Apple trees. The firm of Heseltine Bros. having dissolved, I still continue business on the

—OLD NURSERY GROUNDS—

in Crookston. Hoping by fair dealing and promptness with my customers to merit their patronage.

Don't fail to write for Catalogue and Prices.

☞ ALL COMMUNICATIONS PROMPTLY ANSWERED.

F. T. HASELTINE,
Proprietor of the Crookston Nurseries, Crookston, Minn.

WANTED!

5,000 Men, Women and Children
—TO VISIT—
HACK & GALLASCH'
General Store, where you can buy

13 lbs. Pure Sugar for..........$1.00
12 lbs. Turkish Prunes for.......... 1.00
5 three lb. cans Table Peaches for.. 1.00
Japan Tea from..........20 to 60 cts per lb
1 long bar of soap and 1 towel, all for.......... 25c

Our stock of
DRY GOODS, NOTIONS,
AND DRESS GOODS IS COMPLETE.

Don't fail to visit our Shoe and Slipper department before buying elsewhere New and complete stock of Groceries Crockery, Glassware, Flour and Feed.

☞ We pay the highest market price for Butter, Eggs, Snake Root, Etc.

Call and see us. NO TROUBLE TO SHOW GOODS.

Cor. Main and Second Street,
CROOKSTON, - - - MINN

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 17th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., Nov. 7th, 1884, viz: JOHN C. CHARLES, Pre. D. S. No. 8422, for the ne¼ S. 35, T. 148, R. 41. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: G. P. Bloom, James Yurgen, Thomas Olsen and Torkel Hydnud, all of Foston, Polk Co., Minn.

[22-27] JOHN CROMB, Register.

Bigham & Olafson
(Successors to Juve & Bergland.)
THE POPULAR MERCHANTS ON
MAIN STREET, - - CROOKSTON

Have on hand and are constantly receiving full lines of

DRY GOODS, GROCERIES,
CROCKERY,
CLOTHING,
BOOTS AND SHOES,
HATS AND CAPS

In fact everything usually found in first-class general store.

☞ Our goods are bought with great care and will be sold at

LOW PRICES
☞ FOR CASH. ☜

DR. M. WATTS.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,
OFFICE ON ROBERT SRREET,

Professional calls by day or night attended to with promptness.

MINNESOTA NEWS NOTES.

Minnesota Baptists.

At the meeting in Winona of the Baptist State Convention, the report of the corresponding secretary of the convention board, Rev. H. C. Woods, was presented. This report represents only the work done by the missionaries of the entire work of the whole denomination. The convention, in cooperation with the Home Mission society, has had in its employ thirty missionaries, their terms of service varying from one month to a full year. The summary of their work gives 1,303 week's of labor; 3,409 sermons preached; 43 churches and 17 out-stations supplied; 1,833 prayer meetings attended; 7,944 religious visits made; 252 additions by baptism; 379 by letter and experience; total 631, raising the membership of the mission churches to 1,454. Benevolent contributions to home missions, $655; to foreign missions, $401.97; to the publication society, $163.57; to ministerial education, $93; to other benevolent objects, about $250. Twenty-five missionary pastors report baptisms, the largest numbers being 34 in Swede church, St. Paul; 33 into Emmanuel church, Minneapolis; 27 at Crookston; 23 at Brainerd; 18 into the Norwegian church, Minneapolis; 17 at Stillwater; 15 into the Norwegian church, St. Paul; 15 at Granite Falls; 14 in the Red river valley. Never in the history of the convention have the missionaries reported so many baptisms. The churches, with rare exception, have paid their pastors the full amount of salary pledged. The benevolent record shows a growing appreciation of the work of missions, home and foreign. The mission churches have made a record, in some respects the best in twenty-five years. The report was referred to a special committee—Messrs. Field, Luke and Gates.

W. P. Todd of Brown's Valley, launched a yacht without ballast, the craft capsized and the engine and boiler are at the bottom of the lake.

Lightning struck the roller skating rink of Stuart & Benham at Sauk Center. John Boobar was badly shocked, and burned severely down his right side, tearing his clothing and one shoe all to pieces. He was knocked senseless by the shock. Burt Rice was so badly stunned that he had to be taken home. Man Mattison esaped with a severe shock. Mr. Boobar will recover.

An official of the Milwaukee & St. Paul road, recently, in response to an inquiry by a citizen of Mankato, why that company did not extend its Wells branch northward from Mankato, said that it was the intention to do it next season, and that to make such an extension is what induced the Milwaukee and Manitoba companies to purchase the St. Cloud and Mankato franchises, for which he claimed a good round sum was paid the directors.

Arthur O. Sherman proposes to make a trip from St. Paul to New Orleans, down the Mississippi in a skiff, with no companion but a spaniel. He started Wednesday and expects to reach New Orleans in time for the opening of the exposition, Dec. 1.

Major Naylor, of the First regiment, has resigned his commission but his resignation has not reached the adjutant general, as it must pass through the hands of Col. Bend, who is still absent.

Commissioner Gibbs and Prof. Porter will leave Monday, the 6th, for New Orleans, to confer with Director General Burke, select space allotted to Minnesota, and arrange plans for the collective exhibit of the state. They will be absent about ten days. On their return a meeting of the superintendents of the various divisions of the exhibit will be called to make final arrangements for the transportation and installation of the goods.

Died, at her residence in Faribault, Monday 29th, Mrs. Matilda Hulett, wife of the late Hon. Luke Hulett, aged seventy years. Mr. and Mrs. Hulett were among the earliest settlers in that locality.

Rev. W. W. Pratt has resigned the pastorate of the Calvary Baptist church of Minneapolis after a successful service of two years.

Sunday evening Bishop Ireland addressed one of the largest audiences that ever assembled at Glencoe upon the subject of temperance. He pointed out two remedies against the evil of intemperance; the one moral that every one abstain from the use of alcoholic drink; the other political, that we pass and enforce high license laws.

S. Biedleman of Villard was attacked and severely injured by his Holstein bull.

Mr. Patrick Smith, one of the earliest settlers in Olmsted county, died at Elkton, Dak., several days since, aged fifty-two years. His remains were buried from St. Bridget's church.

Over three-fourths of the taxpayers in Owatonna signed a petition asking the city council to give $500 to Mrs. Blair, the widow of J. L. Blair who was killed by a circus man. They also asked that the city pay his funeral expenses.

Lightning struck the house of Abraham Lang, on the La Crescent ridge north of Mound Prairie, setting the house on fire and paralyzing Mrs. Lang, who laid unconscious for some two hours. Another bolt set fire to the straw stack, which was consumed, together with all of Mr. Lang's hay.

A seven-year-old son of Fred Koblancer of Martin, was severely, if not fatally, injured by being run over by a wagon.

Itasca county not being organized and justices of the peace being needed, Gov. Hubbard has appointed A. T. Nason, C. Barnes and John Wakefield as county commissioners to arrange districts and provide for the required election.

A farmers and business men's insurance company has been organized at Fergus Falls, with the following officers: President, Charles J. Sawbridge; secretary, William D. Lowry; treasurer, James Compton; medical director, Dr. D. R. Greenlee; general agent, Jay Henry Long.

Warner Marshall of Fergus Falls, was held in $500 bonds to appear before the grand jury, on a charge of attempting to ravish a six-year-old daughter of Mr. Woodworth.

The $6,000 appropriated by the state for the county agricultural societies is being divided by the auditor. The appropriation will give about $145 to each society.

The third explanatory circular in connection with the New Orleans exhibition has been issued by Superintendent D. L. Kiehle. It announces that that part of the exhibit included under "Educational Literature" will be collected and arranged by Prof. William F. Phelps, Winona. It is decided to send a supplementary contribution to the exhibit on or about Dec. 10. This will include such work of the present term as cannot be ready by Nov. 1. In order to have uniformity in the exhibit, schools can purchase through the superintendent special ruled paper at $3 per thousand half sheets. The following will be provided schools upon application: Labels for classes of pupil's work, giving the place, school, grade, number belonging, number contributing. The name, age and grade of each pupil will be placed on ruled lines provided on the paper referred to above. A blank statement of articles consigned, and with directions for the disposition to be made of them at the close of the exposition. Labels for packages with proper form and all necessary directions for shipping. Every separate article should have the address of the school upon it, that in cases of confusion it can readily be identified. [illegible]

Richard L. Dent, of the London Tea company, said to be well known in St. Paul, was arrested at Eau Claire recently, charged with obtaining money under false pretenses. He was held to answer. [illegible]

Maj. Allen, agent at Red Wing agency, says last spring he received for the Chippewas about twenty-three bushels of seed wheat, which owing to lack of preparation, was sown four weeks later than it should have been. The yield has so far exceeded the expectations, however, the last of the threshing showing a yield of twenty bushels per acre, that it has stimulated the Indians to making extra efforts [illegible]

News was received in St. Paul recently of the death, on the 21st inst., at Springfield, Ill., of Frank B. Brown. Mr. Brown was well known to lumbermen and others in St. Paul, Minneapolis and Stillwater, and at one time was superintendent of the C. N. Nelson lumber yards in St. Paul.

T. J. Farver of Kilkenny, was found dead on a railroad track at Minneapolis.

Fire consumed the store building, the upper half occupied as a dwelling, of Pfeffer & Kranz, at Johnston Station, seven miles from Graceville, Minn. Loss, $2,400; insurance $1,200.

Robert Goodhue, brakeman, was killed at North Branch on the Duluth road by being run over by a train. He leaves a wife and one child living at St. Paul.

William Kiefer of Kingston, Meeker county, was kicked in the abdomen by one of his horses on Thursday evening, receiving injuries that terminated in his death Friday night. He was thirty years old, and had been married six months.

A thorough comparative inquiry into the rentals of business property in St. Paul gives interesting results. In spite of apparent inequalities, the actual rental of most property in the city corresponds pretty closely to an interest of 8 or 10 per cent upon its valuation. The apparently high rents upon some very shabby buildings are justified, upon inquiry, by the enormously high value of the ground.

Gov. Hubbard declines to order a court martial to try charges made against Adj. Gen. MacCarthy against Col. Bend, of disrespect toward his commanding officer, and of conduct prejudicial to good order and military discipline. In reviewing the case to the adjutant general, however, the governor takes occasion to censure Col. Bend rather severely, holding that his answers to the charges are entirely insufficient.

J. Crowley was run over and killed by a train at Wyoming, near Rush City. He has relatives in Nova Scotia.

In Minneapolis Mr. Warde's supers were largely composed of university students on the night "Richard III." was presented. They were in the army to be defeated," according to the text of the play, but in the heat of the battle well nigh overcame Richmond's force, composed of bootblacks and newsboys. The battle was fought with so much earnestness that eighteen spears were broken and half a dozen really wounded.

Seymour, Sabin & Co. have been sued in the United States circuit court by the First National bank of Stevens Point, Wis., on a note for $5,000, given on Jan. 15 last, to run four months, and indorsed by Dwight M. Sabin.

Adolph Johnson was killed Wednesday in a Minneapolis roller mill.

Minneapolis Engine and Machine works, alias Crocker, Fell & Boardman, are financially embarrassed, and a receiver was appointed in the district court.

The frame dwelling house of Samuel Weisberger in Duluth caught fire from a defective flue recently, and was burned. The furniture was saved. Loss, $1,000; insured.

The trial of Rapist Burns at Brainerd was enlivened by vigorous attempts on the part of the prosecutrix to kill the defendant.

Senator Sabin has arranged to start up two flouring mills at Stillwater.

Minnesota leads the country in the amount of track laid during the nine months of the present year, the total number of miles being 280. The amount laid in Dakota was 112 miles. These figures do not include mileage put in operation, but only the track actually laid since Dec. 31.

Near Morris, Samuel H. McKee, a well digger, while decending a wall was killed by gas with which the well had suddenly become filled.

In a storm Mr. Copen's barn, near Lake Crystal, Minn., was struck by lightning and burned, with one fine blooded mare, two colts, three full-blooded Durham calves one blooded shorthorn bull, one hay stack, sixty-five tons of hay in the barn, a set of harness, seeder, harvester and buggy. Loss, 2,500.

The house of Julius Seeman at Rollingstone, Winona county, was burned. Loss, $1,000; partially insured.

The postoffice safe at Wadena was blown open early Thursday morning. The postmaster lives up stairs over the postoffice, and on hearing the noise rushed down, but the burglars had left. Nothing but some postage stamps were taken. The other contents of the safe were scattered on the floor by the explosion and left there.

Henry Nelson, living near Rockford, Minn., was found dead in his room, having apparently died in a fit.

The postoffice at Fisher was entered by burglars, the safe blown open, and $225 stolen. The thieves then entered the stable of Steenerson Bros., took the horse and buggy belonging to them and drove to Crookston, where they took the train for the south.

Judge Brill at St. Paul, decides that citizens must be allowed free access to the abstract books.

At the Baptist State Convention at Winona, Hon M. H. Dunnell, spoke briefly on the history and difficulties of the academy of Owatonna. The speaker corrected some statements of Mr. Gates and said the Owatonna academy had its origin in St. Paul and was placed under the management of men from various parts of the state. Owatonna had given liberally toward it. Her contributions were more then those of St. Paul or Minneapolis, and had aggregated $8,000. What the institution needed was the hearty and generous support of the Baptists of the state. The speaker expressed himself in active sympathy with the educational interests of the denomination. The committee on nominations reported the following: Members for the board of education, three years, W. W. Huntington, George A. Pillsbury, M. H. Dunnell, E. P. Drake, Gen. Bishop; two years, R. R. Riddell, F. O. Hoblitt, D. D. Merrill, A. F. Gale, H. C. Woods; one year, E. Wescott, J. T. Barnum, E. R. Smith, J. H. Drake, C. F. Menage.

Articles of incorporation have been filed with the secretary of state of the Farmers Union Elevator company of Kandiyohi and Swift counties. The object of the company is the keeping and operating of elevators and handling of wheat. Kerkhoven is to be the headquarters of the company, with branch offices in Minneapolis, St. Paul and Duluth; capital stock $12,000, and $9,000 is fixed as the amount necessary to start in business with. There are twenty-four incorporators, and all are farmers living in the counties mentioned.

Judge Brill, of the District Court of Ramsey county in a recent decision says: "As a matter of public policy the records of every public office should be kept open to the public inspection within reasonable limits of time, place and manner. The records belong to the public and not to the officer, who is but the servant of the public. According to the American system of government public policy requires that the ordinary work of public officers should be open to inspection, and the reason urged by the defendant why the rule should not apply to this particular office, namely: That considerable portions of the abstract records are kept in pencil and fully blurred or erased, in reality only emphasizes the necessity for the rule, for if there [illegible]

Col. D. A. Robertson [illegible] for an extended absence in Europe. They sail on the [illegible] French line for Havre, and will [illegible] Paris, where they will [illegible] Their absence is likely to extend over a period of four years, during which time the colonel's grandchildren, who accompany him, will be educated in France and Germany. [illegible]

Ortonville has been greatly excited by the [illegible]

[illegible]

BRITISH LORDS.

John Bright Describes the House of Lords.

In the course of his recent speech in Birmingham, where his friends think the great orator equaled even his former efforts, John Bright said:

"Now would you allow me to put a question or two to you, and, in some sort, to myself? I should like to ask you who or what are these peers who take upon themselves this authority? (Cries of Nothing!") To look at them as they are entering the house or leaving the house you would observe that they are very much like other men. (Loud laughter.) They are not taller, they are not stronger, they have no claim, I believe, to be called more learned. (Loud laughter.) We know that the bulk of them are not more accustomed to business, and we believe that we feel that they have less sympathy than other men with their fellow countrymen. (Cheers.) Now in some respects they are peculiar. ("Hear, hear!" and laughter) and the great bulk of the people would say that in some respects they are greatly to be envied. For example, the members of the house of peers—the 500 persons or families—are reported to be the owners of one-fifth the whole of the land in the United Kingdom. ("Shame!")

I do not in the least object to any man owning an estate which he has honestly come by. I would not deprive landowner, or manufacturer, or merchant, or shopkeeper, or laborer of anything that is his; and I am not calling in question the legality of the ownership of all this land by the 500 peers or peers' families, whose claims we are now discussing. But, besides this, I see it is reported that the 500 peers are possessors of not less—I believe considerably more—than 4000 livings of the Church of England. ("Shame!") If this be so, then it follows that the house of peers among them can appoint, and do appoint in the main, several thousand teachers of the people in what are to be considered the highest things. Besides this, the house of lords, or members of that house for the most part, are lord lieutenants of counties. In that office they appoint almost all the county magistrates. The county magistrates administer justice wisely (laughter), well they profess to do it (laughter); and, with some exceptions, we may believe that they honestly, in the main, endeavor to perform their duty.

Beyond this, again, the members of the house of lords, the great land owners, as you know, exercise a very powerful control over the county representation. There are counties in which the whole representation, without fear of contest, will be found to be in the hands of two, three, or four members of the house of lords. ("Shame!") They have yet another peculiarity which I ought not to omit to mention, in that as great owners of land they are liable to a very much lighter taxation—direct taxation—upon land than is the case with any other class of land owners in any European kingdom or in the United States of America. ("Shame!") Now, I have spoken of the peers quite apart from the house of peers.

But now we come to the question of their position in the house of lords, because that is what we have now to deal with. (Hear, hear.) We call them as you know, the upper house—(laughter)—and when a bill leaves the house of commons it has gone up to the house of lords, and if a bill comes from the house of lords it has gone down to the house of commons. (Laughter.) I do not know why that distinction is made; but you will consider this fact—that the members of the house of lords do not enter that house in any degree from any personal merit that attaches to them. (Hear, hear.) It is not because they have performed any good or great deed that has recommended them to the favor of their fellow countrymen; it is not by the choice of or by the approval of their fellowmen that they become members of the house of peers and legislators for a great nation. It was once said in ages past—whether it was a dream or not I will not say—that the path to the temple of honor lay thro' the temple of virtue—("Hear, hear.")—but the law-making peer, he never dreams that he is going to the temple of legislative honor thro' the temple of virtue. (Laughter.) But if he does not know, we all know that he goes into the temple of honor thro' the sepulcher of a dead ancestor. (Laughter and loud cheers.) I was struck the other day with a few words which I saw in one of the Psalms of old times. If you turn to the seventy-third Psalm you will find the words I am going to read. Speaking of some very unpleasant and troublesome people in his day, the psalmist says: "They are not in trouble as other men," (laughter) "neither are they plagued like other men." (Renewed laughter.) "Therefore," he says, "pride compasseth them about as a chain; they speak wickedly concerning oppression; they speak loftily." (Laughter and great cheering.) It becomes you to consider this fact, that every bill which becomes an act or a law in this country must pass through their hands and depend upon their vote. ("Hear, hear!")

The additions to the house of lords may make it more powerful and more numerous, but I have never found that they make it more liberal. ("Hear, hear!") Listen to this fact. During the last three years there have been fifty new members enter the house of lords, not by creation—a few of them only by creation. In the bulk by succession to their fathers. ("Shame!") But when they go in they do as their fathers did. (A voice, "Worse, worse.") Some of them do much worse than their fathers. (Hear, hear!) The fact is the breed remains unchanged, and the honor of peers is unchanged. There is no power under heaven that can change them, and it rests with our countrymen. (Loud cheers.) The fact is, that privilege everywhere tends to beget ignorance and selfishness and arrogance. ("Hear, hear.") In the house of commons, coming from the people, there is always [illegible]

Compressed Matters.

A very witty newspaper paragraphist recently received a letter requesting him to state what were the principal causes of his wit. The answer was promptly returned. It was this: "Nine hours of sleep every night, three square meals every day, and a good salary."

One of the most remarkable telegraphic feats on record, it is said, was the recent delivery of a message from Melbourne, Australia, to London in twenty-three minutes. It went by land and sea over 18,808 miles of wire.

It is curious, says an exchange, how few people know the benefit of fruit at breakfast time. A saucer of berries, an orange or banana, pear or apple, at 6 in the morning, will make the sky look brighter and fill the world with sunshine even on cloudy days; and yet many people never think of eating fruit in the morning.

Fort Sumter is now a very insignificant place compared to what it once was. It has been razed to one story, and looks quite dilapidated. It has on it a few guns, not more than half a dozen, and the foundation of the traverses of the best guns are rotten and unfit for even ten minutes of service. The government pays about $200 per month to a man and his assistants to keep the lights on this fort and to watch it. The channel between the fort and Morris Island has almost filled up and at low water the sand is visible almost across.

The capital of Idaho is Boise City. There is no capitol building as yet, the legislature sitting in a hall hired for the purpose. The governor's executive office is in a brick dwelling only one story high. The new governor, Bunn, arrived on the day of a circus. The proprietor proposed to suspend the morning performance and hold the inauguration ceremonies in the tent. His offer was accepted, and the circus people joined in the procession. A platform was erected on the right side of the ring, and on it sat eight ministers and a bishop. The tumblers, bare-back riders and acrobats waited until the close of the ceremonies, when the tent was cleared, the people bought tickets, and the second show began.

Statistics of the French savings bank for the last year show the following: The total number of deposits increased from £4,321,027 in 1882 to £4,535,431. The amount of the deposits last year was only £25,128,806, as against £29,780,212 in 1882; but the latter was an exceptional year, as the very liberal measure relating to savings banks, which was passed in 1881, came into force. The amount of withdrawals also showed a falling off of more than seven and a half millions sterling, and at the close of last year the total value of the deposits was £72,648,541, or £2,800,000 more than at the close of 1882.

One-seventh of our time is given us for vacation for rest, for a feast unto the Lord, for the enjoyment of our best faculties for cessation from toil and care. The merchant who on this day reckons up his gains, misses the Sabbath, the laborer who on this day still labors misses his. The greater the difference we make in this day and the six days of labor the more profit do we get from both. He who rests on the Sabbath can work the better for it on the six days. He who works diligently on the six days cannot fail to need and to enjoy the rest of the Sabbath.

At Sherman, the highest elevation of the Rockies on the Union Pacific Railroad, is the monument to Oak Ames. It is a solid pile of granite rocks, and only cost $75,000. "What is the peculiarity of that monument?" was asked of Governor Hoyt, of Wyoming. "First it is very ugly," he said. "Second, it cost a good deal of money. Third, it commemorates a stupendous piece of rascality in Congress." That covered the case.

Tacubaya, Near the City of Mexico.

Mrs. Von Glumer, in the Manhattan.

The attractions of Tacubaya and San Angel are their pure and lovely gardens filled with magnificent trees. With a little care, the trees and plants of all climes grow here side by side. The houses have windows, with iron bars and sashes with glass (opening in French fashion) on the street, but the large gardens are in the rear or on one side of them. A few gardens have large iron gates. Those of the Mier, Barron, and Escandon families are handsome, and that of Mier, at the entrance to the "Calle Real," is really monumental. Pines, elms, poplar and willow, pear apple and peach trees grow in fraternal neighborhood with the palm, the banana and the cactus. Fuchias, lilies, violets, heliotropes, pansies, honeysuckles and geraniums flower all the year round. The geraniums grow to an immense height (I have walls covered with them to the height of twelve and sixteen feet), on espaliers like apricots and grapes. Their flowers are of many varieties and shades, from pure white and light pink to the richest crimson, purple and lilac, and some are varigated with these tints; their shapes vary from the "rose" to the "cinq feuilles." The calla lily flowers exuberantly in the shade of the trees, above which the aromatic eucalyptus rears its head far beyond the pines, and then throws out immense branches. Roses of this kind are now flowering (March 18), and the apple, pear and peach trees are in bloom. Fig trees grow beside them and yield delicious fruit in the autumn. One can sit out of doors all the year round with comfort. In winter a shawl and wrap are needed, and the sun's direct rays are often pleasant. In other seasons light woolen or cotton clothing is comfortable, and one seeks or shuns the sun according to the weather and hour of the day. Afternoon showers are very frequent in summer, [illegible]

Insanity of the Actor McCollough.

Chicago Special: The actor was not informed that all his engagements had been canceled. He was simply told that he would not play in Chicago any more. Under the impression that he would play in Detroit as understood, he took a carriage and drove to the depot. Mr. Brooks followed him and induced him to get into a carriage, and he was driven back to the hotel. It was necessary to use force to prevent his going out again, and struggling desperately, McCollough was taken to his room. In the struggle Manager Brooks received a severe blow on the head from the actor's cane. He is in fact practically a prisoner in his room under the surveillance of Pinkerton detectives who use every available ruse to amuse him and distract him from his determination to go to Detroit, which would have been the next point in his tour, and physical force is only employed when absolutely necessary. Opiates have been administered from time to time, and he is now quiet, and his friends hope for good results from his rest. After he had been forcibly taken to his room, he took part in a game of cards, and soon wanted to leave the room. Persuasion failing, a detective barred his way, when he flew into a rage, seized a cane and felled the officer to the floor senseless, with a gash several inches long in his scalp. Others then rushed in and over-powered him.

Another Fascinating Hack Driver.

Troy, N. Y., Special: The coachman boom has struck Troy and William B. Bartholomew has married Miss Emma Babcock, the niece of William J. Simmons, a wealthy resident of that city. The marriage is still unknown to Mr. Simmons who is out of town and it was not revealed to any one except the interested parties. For years past Mr. Simmons has treated his niece, who is an orphan, as a daughter, and it was generally understood that she would inherit the bulk of his property. Bartholomew is a medium sized man, thirty years old, and while not what is called handsome, would pass for good looking when "dressed up." He had been employed by Mr. Simmons four months, and says that he loved Miss Babcock before the Morosini elopement, but did not dare tell her so until he had ventured one or two remarks in jest in regard to recent events. The encouragement he received led him to declare his passion. It was reciprocated, and they were married by a German minister of this city last Friday evening. Miss Babcock is a handsome brunette, nineteen years of age. Now that the secret is out, Bartholomew is afraid of the row that he says Simmons will make when he returns to Troy, and the couple are making arrangements to leave the city.

Careless and Fatal Explosion.

Des Moines, Special Telegram, Oct. 2.—A terrible casualty, resulting in the death of one man and the maiming and probably fatally injuring of ten others, happened at the Excelsior mine, five miles south of Des Moines last Wednesday night about 10 o'clock. William Harrison, and a dozen others, mostly Swedish miners, were in the saloon of Michael Fox. Harrison was smoking, and noticing a can of powder which he mistook for fruit or jelly, he was about to help himself, when a coal dropped from his pipe and ignited the powder. The explosion which ensued was terrific. Harrison was blown to pieces. The saloon was demolished and ten of the bystanders, mostly Swedish miners, were badly injured, and some of them fatally. The report of the explosion was distinctly heard in this city. There is great excitement among the miners.

The Glen house and outbuildings at Mount Washington, N. H., were burned recently. The loss is over $225,000. Insurance $100,000. The hotel will be rebuilt immediately.

Lowell, Mass., February 21, '84.

For a long time, and from some unknown cause I have been troubled with a lame back, also a tired feeling on arising in the morning. I bought a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters and before it was used my back was much better as well as my whole system. I think it a fine medicine.

F. H. Cilley.

Providence, R. I., April 4, '84.

I have been troubled with Dyspepsia for four years and could not get relief; finally tried Burdock Blood Bitters and received immediate relief. It is a splendid medicine for Dyspepsia.

Chas. R. Sweet,
No. 65 William street.

Parkersburg, W. Va., March 4, '84.

I have been using Burdock Blood Bitters for boils and sores on my face, and by using the Burdock have removed all eruptions so that my face is clear; this was done in a remarkably short time, little over one week.

Chas. Anderson

Lancaster, Pa., March 8, '84.

For many years I have been troubled with Billious disorder to the extent that I was scarcely ever without a severe headache at night. I was restless and seldom enjoyed a comfortable night's sleep. A short time ago I commenced the use of Burdock Blood Bitters; my headache disappeared and I have no more sleepless nights.

Mrs. Dan'l H. Herr.

What may be termed the opening of the society season in New York occurred at Grace church Wednesday afternoon, when Miss Leonie Blanch Jerome, the daughter of Leonard W. Jerome, was given in marriage to John Leslie, lieutenant in the Grenadier Guards and only son of Sir John Leslie, Bart., of Glasslough, Ireland. Miss Jerome, who will be remembered as the sister of Lady Churchill, was attired in an imported Worth costume of white brocade silk, trimmed with point d'Alencon. Her ornaments were diamond pendants and necklace. The ceremony was performed by the Rt. Rev. Bishop H. Otter. The bridal couple will sail for London within a few days.

The military order of the Loyal Legion of the United States in New York, invested officers for the ensuing year, among them Commander-General Grant.

For Half a Life-time.

Mrs. John Gemmell-Milroy, Mifflin Co., Pa., in the spring of 1864 injured her spine and partial paralysis ensued. For nearly twenty years she was unable to walk. In the Spring of 1883, she was advised to use St. Jacob's Oil, the great conqueror of pain. The first application gave instantaneous relief. Before the second bottle was exhausted she was able to walk and is cured.

A party of forty-six emigrants sailed Wednesday for Liberia, with the Rev. William Fair, an Episcopal missionary, who has been for some time engaged in missionary work in Washington Territory, but who has given it up to go to Liberia. The emigrants will settle in Bowersville, a town of about one thousand inhabitants. They come from Pennsylvania, Missouri, Kansas and Nebraska. Among them are three teachers, graduates of one of the state normal schools of Pennsylvania, and representatives of all the leading trades. They go out under the auspices of the African Colonization society.

Emanuel M. Hewlett, a negro lawyer and Fred Douglass' son-in-law, has brought suit at Washington against a steamboat for refusing him passage.

George Hills, cashier of the Sioux City & Pacific, confesses himself short $8,100.

Greenville, Ct., May 8, 1883.

Was attacked with severe kidney disease. Hunt's [Kidney and Liver] Remedy was advised and one bottle completely cured me. Chas. H. Alexander, Foreman Dye House, Shetucket Mills.

"I will certify to the truth of the above. John A. Morgan, Druggist, Greenville, Conn.

Public speakers and singers use Piso's cure for hoarseness and weak lungs.

Young Men!—Read This. The Voltaic Belt Co., of Marshall, Mich., offer to send their celebrated Electro-Voltaic Belt and other Electric Appliances on trial for thirty days, to men (young or old) afflicted with nervous debility, loss of vitality and all kindred troubles. Also for rheumatism, neuralgia, paralysis, and many other diseases. Complete restoration to health, vigor and manhood guaranteed. No risk is incurred as thirty days trial is allowed. Write them at once for illustrated pamphlet free.

Mrs. David O'Farrell, an old widow, [illegible]

[illegible]

He Must Confess.

Dear Sir:—I used the White Wine of Tar Syrup you sent me, and must confess I derived more benefit to my lungs from it than from any remedy I have ever tried, and cheerfully recommend it to every one having any kind of lung trouble.

Truly yours,
Rev. A. M. Humphrey,
Minister of Baptist Church.
Trilla, Coles Co., Ills.

At Chicago Michael Shay beat his wife to death with the body of her new-born infant.

"Over and Over Again."

Repetition is sometimes the only way to impress a truth upon the mind. Accordingly take notice that Dr. Pierce's "Pleasant Purgative Pellets," (the original Little Liver Pills) continue to be wonderfully effective in cases of sick and nervous headache, constipation, indigestion, rush of blood to the head, cold extremities, and all ailments arising from obstruction of the bodily functions. Their action is thorough yet gentle, and the ingredients being entirely vegetable, they can be taken with impunity into the most delicate stomach. All druggists.

Rev. William Nolan of Birmingham Ky., aged seventy-four has just married his fifth wife, a girl of twenty.

Old Inveterate Strictures

of the urethra, speedily and permanently cured by our improved methods. Pamphlet, references and terms, two three-cent stamps. World's Dispensary Medical Association, 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

When everything else fails, Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy cures.

Dakota democrats nominated John B. Wilson of Deadwood for delegate to congress.

For Dyspepsia take Allen's Iron Tonic Bitters. All genuine bear the signature of J. P. Allen, Druggist, St. Paul, Minn.

The September reduction of the public debt was $12,047,039.

Stinging, irritation, inflammation, all kidney and urinary complaints, cured by 'Buchu-Paiba.' $1.

Plain as the Nose on Your Face.

What is the difference between a person's nose and Carboline the Great Petroleum Hair Renewer. Ans:—one is the center of the head and the other is a head-scenter.

A Dallas, Tex., merchant aged fifty, has just married a charming young widow of fifteen.

Bed-bugs, flies, roaches, ants, rats, mice, cleared out by "Rough on Rats." 15c.

The New York World edition last Sunday reached 103,670.

An Invaluable Remedy.—None except those who have suffered all the horrors of Dyspepsia, can fully appreciate the value and efficacy of Perry Davis' Pain Killer, a sovereign remedy for this distressing disease in all its forms is used internally and externally, test its virtues.

Frank Chanfran the actor has been stricken with paralysis.

"Rough on Pain." Quick cure for Colic, Cramps, Diarrhœa, Aches, Pains, Sprains, Headache.

Mensman's Peptonized Beef Tonic, the only preparation of beef containing its ENTIRE NUTRITIOUS PROPERTIES. It contains blood-making, force-generating and life-sustaining properties; invaluable for Indigestion, Dyspepsia, nervous prostration, and all forms of general debility; also, in all enfeebled conditions, whether the result of exhaustion, nervous prostration, overwork, or acute disease, particularly if resulting from pulmonary complaints. Caswell, Hazard & Co., Proprietors, New York. Sold by Druggists.

Barbed Wire.

If you have barbed wire fences, keep Veterinary Carbolisalve in your stables. It is the best remedy for wounds of all kinds. 50c. and 1.00 cans at druggists or by mail. J. W. COLE & CO., Props., Black River Falls, Wis.

BUSINESS CHANCE A man in any live town can do a profitable business in our goods alone, or in connection with furniture or any class of house-furnishing goods or groceries, small capital and large profits. For particulars address F. A. PAYNE, 129 East Seventh st., St. Paul Minn.

TO THE PEOPLE!

This Should Be Read By All.

It Treats on a Subject of Interest to Every Family.

Important Intelligence from the Old Country, Where Cholera has Prevailed.

ASIATIC CHOLERA.

Almost every case cured with

PERRY DAVIS'

Pain-Killer

[From Rev. R. Telford, missionary in China, now visiting his home in Pennsylvania.]

Washington, Penn.

Dear Sirs,—During a residence of some ten years as a missionary in Siam and China, I found your Vegetable Pain Killer a most valuable remedy for that fearful scourge, the cholera. In administering the medicine, I found it most effectual to give a tea-spoonful of Pain-Killer in a gill of hot water, sweetened with sugar, then, after about fifteen minutes, begin to give about a tea-spoonful of the same mixture every few minutes until relief was obtained. Apply hot applications to the extremities. Bathe the stomach with the Pain-Killer clear, and rub the limbs briskly. Of those who had the cholera, and took the medicine faithfully in the way stated above, eight out of ten recovered.

Truly yours, R. TELFORD.

The late Rev. Dr. Granger repeatedly expressed his belief that he owed his life to the timely use of PERRY DAVIS'S PAIN-KILLER. During his recent visit to the missions in Burmah, he had a severe attack of the cholera, and was immediately relieved by the use of the Pain-Killer.

Directions accompany each bottle.

Price 25 cts., 50 cts., and $1 per bottle.

J. N. HARRIS & CO., Limited,
Cincinnati, Ohio.

Proprietors for the Southern and Western States.

For sale by all Medicine Dealers.

TUTT'S PILLS

25 YEARS IN USE.

The Greatest Medical Triumph of the Age!

SYMPTOMS OF A TORPID LIVER.

Loss of appetite, Bowels costive, Pain in the head, with a dull sensation in the back part, Pain under the shoulder-blade, Fullness after eating, with a disinclination to exertion of body or mind, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, with a feeling of having neglected some duty, Weariness, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, Headache over the right eye, Restlessness, with fitful dreams, Highly colored Urine, and CONSTIPATION.

TUTT'S PILLS are especially adapted to such cases, one dose effects such a change of feeling as to astonish the sufferer. They Increase the Appetite, and cause the body to Take on Flesh, thus the system is nourished, and by their Tonic Action on the Digestive Organs, Regular Stools are produced. Price 25c. 44 Murray St., N. Y.

TUTT'S HAIR DYE.

GRAY HAIR or WHISKERS changed to a GLOSSY BLACK by a single application of this DYE. It imparts a natural color, acts instantaneously. Sold by Druggists, or sent by express on receipt of $1.

Office, 44 Murray St., New York.

THE TIFFIN Well Boring & Rock Drilling MACHINERY!

For Horse or Steam Power.

Hundreds of the best men in 35 States and Territories use it and will have no other [illegible]

RELIABLE! DURABLE! SIMPLE!

Established over [illegible] years, we have ample facilities to fill orders promptly and [illegible] satisfaction of our customers. Catalogue FREE. Address LOOMIS & NYMAN, Tiffin, Ohio.

PARSONS' PURGATIVE PILLS

[illegible]

"See What Cuticura Does for Me!"

INFANTILE and Birth Humors, Milk Crust, Scalled Head, Eczemas, and every form of Itching, Scaly, Pimply, Scrofulous and inherited Diseases of the Blood, Skin, and Scalp, with Loss of Hair, cured by the CUTICURA REMEDIES. Absolutely pure and safe. Cuticura the great Skin Cure, 50 cts.; Cuticura Soap, an exquisite Skin Beautifier and only Medicinal Baby Soap, 25 cts. and Cuticura Resolvent, the new Blood Purifier, $1, are sold by druggists. Potter Drug and Chemical Co., Boston. Send for "How to Cure Skin Diseases."

ROCKFORD WATCHES

Are unequalled in EXACTING SERVICE.

Used by the Chief Mechanician of the U. S. Coast Survey; by the Admiral commanding in the U. S. Naval Observatory, for Astronomical work; and by Locomotive Engineers, Conductors and Railway men. They are recognized as THE BEST for all uses in which close time and durability are requisites. Sold in principal cities and towns by the COMPANY'S exclusive Agents (leading jewelers,) who give a Full Warranty.

HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS

Protection. No such protective against chills and fever and other diseases of a malarial type exists as Hostetter's Stomache Bitters. It relieves constipation, liver disorders, rheumatism, kidney and bladder ailments with certainty and promtitude. A change, as gratifying as it is complete, soon takes place in the appearance, as well as the sensation, of the wan and haggard invalid who uses this standard promoter of health and strength. For sale by all druggists and Dealers generally.

WHITE BEAVER'S COUGH CREAM Heals Diseased Lungs.

40 HORSESHOE HAND BOQUET CHROMO CARDS, 10c. C. W. BROOKS, Putney, Vt.

OPIUM Morphine Habit Cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till Cured. Dr. J. Stephens, Lebanon, Ohio.

50c. to $2.00 per hour at home. No peddling. No humbug. The secret revealed, and 15 samples worth $5.00 for 10c. (Name this paper.) Add's H. E. SLAYTON, Montpelier, Vt.

SOLDIERS or heirs send stamp for circulars showing who is entitled to pension, bounty, &c. L. C. WOOD, Pension Atty., Washington, D.C.

LEARN TELEGRAPHY, or SHORT-HAND and TYPE WRITING HERE. Situations furnished. Address Valentine Bros., Janesville, Wis.

MORPHINE and CHLORAL HABITS EASILY CURED. BOOK FREE. Dr. J. C. Hoffman, Jefferson, Wisconsin. OPIUM FRAZER AXLE GREASE! BEST IN THE WORLD. Get the Genuine. Sold Everywhere.

PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION. CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.

NEW ENGLAND CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC.
MUSIC. Vocal and Instrumental and Tuning.
ART. Drawing, Painting, Modeling and Portraiture.
ORATORY. Literature and Languages.
HOME. Elegant accommodations for 500 lady students.
FALL TERM begins Sept. 11th. Beautifully Ill'd Calendar free. Address E. TOURJEE, Director.
FRANKLIN SQUARE, BOSTON, MASS.

JOSEPH GILLOTT'S STEEL PENS
SOLD BY ALL DEALERS THROUGHOUT THE WORLD
GOLD MEDAL PARIS EXPOSITION—1878.

U.S. STANDARD. JONES OF BINGHAMTON. 5 TON WAGON SCALES, Iron Levers, Steel Bearings, Brass Tare Beam and Beam Box, $60 and JONES he pays the freight—for free Price List mention this paper and address JONES OF BINGHAMTON, Binghamton, N. Y.

The BUYERS' GUIDE is issued Sept. and March, each year: 224 pages, 8½ x 11½ inches, with over 3,300 illustrations—a whole picture gallery. Gives wholesale prices direct to consumers on all goods for personal or family use. Tells how to order, and gives exact cost of everything you use, drink, eat, wear, or have fun with. These invaluable books contain information gleaned from the markets of the world. We will mail a copy Free to any address upon receipt of the postage—8 cents. Let us hear from you. Respectfully,
MONTGOMERY WARD & CO.
227 & 229 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

Dr. Spinney & Co.

Treat all Chronic and Nervous Diseases. Young men who may be suffering with Weakness, Nervous Debility, Despondency, Aversion to Society, Kidney troubles, or any similar diseases, can here find a safe and speedy cure. There are many of the age of thirty to sixty who are often troubled with uncomfortable symptoms, accompanied by weakening of the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. Examination reveals the fact that the patient's system is undergoing a depletion which rapidly exhausts every vital function. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause. The doctor will guarantee a cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration. Pamphlet, with full particulars, sent free to any address. Call on or address DR. SPINNEY & CO., 37 S. Third st., Minneapolis, Minn.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND IS A POSITIVE CURE FOR All those painful Complaints and Weaknesses so common to our best FEMALE POPULATION.

Price $1 in liquid, pill or lozenge form.

Its purpose is solely for the legitimate healing of disease and the relief of pain, and that it does all it claims to do, thousands of ladies can gladly testify.

It will cure entirely all Ovarian troubles, Inflammation and Ulceration, Falling and Displacements, and consequent Spinal Weakness, and is particularly adapted to the change of life.

It removes Faintness, Flatulency, destroys all craving for stimulants, and relieves Weakness of the Stomach. It cures Bloating, Headaches, Nervous Prostration, General Debility, Sleeplessness, Depression and Indigestion. That feeling of bearing down, causing pain, and backache, is always permanently cured by its use.

Send stamp to Lynn, Mass., for pamphlet. Letters of inquiry confidentially answered. For sale at druggists.

N. W. N. U. [illegible] 1884 No. 41.

THE OLD MOTHER HUBBARD.

When old Mother Hubbard
Went to the cupboard
Her costume was modest, though queer;
As the ham-bone she sought
'Twas little she thought
How the future would deal with her gear.

When first her old fashion
Became a strong passion,
They truthfully copied her gown—
Of fancies the oddest,
Short-waisted and modest,
Long-sleeved, narrow-skirted, and brown.

But the late innovation
That's shocking the nation
Leaves her arms, like the cupboard, all bare.
Of the puffy high neck
There is left not a speck,
And too much is revealed of the fair.

The gauzy confusion
Of lace and illusion
Would shock Mother Hubbard outright;
She'd never indorse it,
Nor own to the corset—
Mayhap she would die of the fright.
—New York Morning Journal.

THE BRAVEST ARE NOBLEST.

"Lena, you will surely not disappoint me in this; you will not dance with Captain Lemore again?"

"But I will, Clarence; I have promised him the very next waltz, and he's a splendid dancer! And why should I not be as civil to him as to others? He is a gentleman."

"If he was, he would never have made you the subject of an unmanly boast, Lena; refuse him all dances to-night, if for no other reason, because I ask it; because you are the one love of my life, Lena!"

The brown eyes of the girl softened, and she laid one white hand on his; the light fell gently upon the two young faces, one so fair and proud, the other dark and wondrous lovely, as Clarence Amherst lifted the white hand to his lips; and then, before Lena Dale could give the promise that trembled on her tongue, a light foot fall sounded on the marble of the conservatory floor, and a tall, military figure advanced toward them.

"Miss Dale, our waltz," he spoke in clear tones that told of habit of command; and the girl, with a sudden movement, drew her hand from the clasp of her lover and, with a warm color on her dark cheek, laid it upon his arm—the newcomer's.

The act was prompted by a sudden, uncontrollable shyness, as she met the captain's cool, half-surprised glance; she had no intention of dancing with him, and yet, how could she now decline when her hand was on his arm and he was leading her away?

A moment later, and Clarence, who had followed to the door of the ball room, saw her gliding through the waltz with the man who was his rival, and paled to his very lips.

* * * * *

"You wish your engagement broken? You hold my conduct as blame-worthy? Sir, it is unfortunate that you allow me to see now—before too late—how tyrannical you can be! Consider the words unsaid that bound us. Here is your ring."

Tall and beautiful, with flashing, dusky eyes, and swiftly-pulsing bosom, she stood before Clarence, and, drawing off the gleaming circlet that adorned her hand, offered it to him.

"Lena, beloved, you do not understand! I but wish to spare you future mortification! Let me explain!"

"Captain Lemore is waiting. I am to dance with him. You will excuse me from the boredom of intemperate speeches at present. Ah, Captain Lemore!"

Clarence took no notice of the tall, handsome captain who gave him a careless nod as, drawing Lena's hand through his arm, he led her away—that peculiar, foreign face was anything but beautiful in his sight just then.

* * * * *

"Leave me here a moment, Captain Lemore, if you please, and I wish you would bring me an ice."

"I will be back in a moment. Are you comfortable there? I have been selfish in urging you to dance so often; but I shall ask now only the last waltz. I may have that, may I not?"

Lena smiled indifferently, as she leaned back in her curtained corner and gave a languid assent. The tall Captain pressed the hand he had been holding and vanished, leaving her behind the falling curtain, completely hidden from sight.

"Captain Lemore will win his wager," said a voice just without her hiding place; "he made a bet to-day with Gray and Vane that he would dance five waltzes with Miss Dale, and he has danced four already. Half of the men present know of the wager, and all look for him to fail."

"But matters looks as if he was going to win," said another voice. "I wonder what Amherst will say when he hears; I learned to-day that he is engaged to Miss Dale."

"If he is he ought to call the captain out. I would in his place!"

A low laugh reached Lena for reply, as the two friends moved away, and she crushed the spray of crimson flowers in her white hand till they were a mass of shapeless leaves, the red of indignant pride surging to her dark cheek.

But Captain Lemore was instantly at her side, holding a tiny salver with the ice he had been sent for.

"Captain Lemore," the girl's voice was low but clear as a silver bell. She moved slightly, so that her great midnight eyes rested fairly on his face. "Captain Lemore, I have always looked among the bravest for the noblest. Was I right?"

The captain smiled as he drew a tiny table to her side and placed the salver on it. Then stood before her, towering high in his handsome strength.

"The bravest should be noblest," he said, still smiling. "Always think them so, Miss Dale."

"And yet men call you brave, Captain Lemore!"

A sudden wave of color swept his face at the words.

"And you are so, for I have heard of the gallant [illegible]

She stopped him with a gesture, her lip curling.

"Circumstances never excuse such things," she said, coldly, "is it necessary for me to tell you that you have lost your wager? I dance no more."

"I would not have won!" he cried eagerly, lifting his head for a moment; "I would have released you from your promise, would have managed in some way to have been true to what is within me, after all! I had forgotten the wager; had forgotten everything but that you were kind to me and I was happy near you. Do not think me more unworthy than I am!"

Lena Dale stood up, a softness in her eyes, and laid her gloved hand on his arm.

"There's another nobility in you," she said, gently; "when another temptation comes, because of the pardon I now grant you, be noble ever, as you are ever brave!"

"You pardon me!" he cried, taking the hand from his arm and holding it to his bosom. "I ask more of your womanhood! I ask pardon for the love which I have given you, solely against my will, knowing you would not return it—knowing you pledged to another! I ask you to remember me kindly in the future, and with pardon for my presumption."

"Pardon!" she echoed, a tremor stirring her heart at his earnest words. "Oh, my hero! if I could accept your heart—with its few weaknesses, perhaps, its sterling worth I know—how royal I would count the gift! I can not. And now, although I dance no more to-night nor ever again with you, lead me back to the dancers."

He did so; and when others had gathered about them, he silently drew apart watching her with gloomy, yearning eyes; and Lena wondered why there was so dull an ache at her heart, when Clarence would come to her on the morrow.

And Clarence did seek her on the morrow; but, somehow, the betrothal was not renewed; the young man waited months, and then sought her again; but Lena told him, kindly, gently, that she had never loved him with the love which a wife should give him—she knew it now.

Five years drifted by after that night at the ball when Lena Dale had broken her troth, and Clarence Amherst led a fair young bride to the altar, while she still went her calm, womanly way unwed.

Since that night she had not seen Captain Lemore, but she heard often of the gallant soldier whose chivalry toward her sex placed him above his own, whose nobility matched his bravery, and whose face had never been turned from a foe!

Was it because he still remembered? she would sometimes wonder, and then, when she had almost taught herself to hope no more for sight of his handsome face, they met! The man with a scar, for which men honored him, across his bearded cheek; the woman who had outlived her girlhood.

Is it not hard to comprehend a human heart? They had been wildely parted, but love had bridged the distance between, and Captain Lemore says his wife has made him what he is, and to her the world must give his laurels.—Philadelphia Call.

Take Rest and Recreation.

The crowd and rush of the farm is about over. The small grain is safely secured, and the corn is now beyond your help for a season, and the delightful season of the year for visiting is near at hand. Go somewhere. Leave for a season the interminable round of farm life. By some process change to some other hands the care of stock, hoeing and delving and other nessessary drudgery of the farm. Manage to let some person do the milking, cooking and washing so the wife and daughters can go to some neighborhood, lake or city for rest, recreation and amusement. Too many farmers constantly labor and toil, dragging themselves about in a weary existence, until they sigh for the rest of Heaven, which a wearied mind and body will imagine that the greatest pleasure there will be in having nothing to do. You will be like the city drudge who had been wearied through a long life with the crowd and bustle of never ceasing toil, sighing for the pure air and green fields, and a "lodge in some vast wilderness."

Leave the farm with all its cares and get out of sight of it. If you cannot study any place to go, and cannot possibly screw up your mind to go somewhere, why not just start early in the morning and go out to some grove, where there are singing birds and flowing streams, and scream and roll like a horse released from confinement. Anything to throw off the blues, and the desperation felt within. Suicide is becoming epidemic, from a feeling that the pleasures of life are not worth living for. Try and get up something besides a picnic, with its detestable ice cream, dyspeptic cake, refreshment stand with a lemon peel soaked in a gallon of luke warm water, which are a humbug and a caricature on pleasure and recreation.

Get out of these deep worn ruts. But if nothing else go to the thickest woods you can find, and commune with nature in its divine simplicity and purity. Seek the grand old hills, or in any other way get in close communion with Mother Nature, and from her pure breast woo rest and repose.

Or if you can possibly spare the means and time, hie thee away with select ones of the family to the lakes, the mountains or the plains—somewhere as different as possible from your own immediate surroundings. The sight needs change of scene—the lungs demand change of atmosphere—and the heart yearns for association with long parted friends, or new and congenial companions. Go somewhere. Do something to break life's dull monotony. Wake up the almost dormant aspirations of your soul. Rekindle the fires of youth. Feel that the earth is full of pleasures, and that life is glorious. And after a season of rest and recreation return to your farm and you will see it in a new light [illegible]

[illegible]

GRAND-AUNT GARRAWAY.

"To my Grand-aunt Garraway's!" said Phœbe, bursting into tears. "Up in the Catskills, where one never hears anything but tree-toads and whip-poor-wills, and the grass grows in the middle of the road, and there isn't a wagon goes past, unless you count the hay-carts and the daily stage!"

"Horrible!" said Miss Parks, the sewing-woman.

"I'd as soon be buried alive!" sobbed Phœbe.

"I never heard of anything so cruel in all my life!" said Jemima, the maid-of-all-work. "Not even in the last number of 'Ferdinetta the Forsaken,' where the poor heroine is forbidden to—"

"Do hold your tongue, Jemima, and get about your work!" said Phœbe, sharply. "Who asked you to interfere? Mamma will be very angry when she comes in and finds the parlors not done up."

And Jemima slunk away rather discomfited.

"I am sure 'Ferdinetta the Forsaken' never would have spoken to a poor help that way," thought she with a sniff. "Miss Phœbe can't be a real heroine!"

While Miss Parks remained to console pretty Phœbe Tacson as she helped to pack the trunks which were to be sent to Grand-aunt Garraway's by express.

"And I'm not even to be allowed to bid him good by!" wailed the forlorn young damsel. "Oh, I don't see how mamma can be so hard-hearted!"

"Is he very handsome?" said Miss Parks, whose life had not known many love affairs.

"Exactly like a Troubadour!" said Phœbe, enthusiastically.

"Dear, dear!" said Miss Parks, with a vague idea of black velvet, a guitar and white satin sleeve linings.

"With melancholy eyes, and a moustache as black as ink," said Phœbe. "Oh, don't put my collars in the same tray with the French-heeled boots, please!"

"And what is his business?" said Miss Parks.

"He is here on a private embassy for the Russian government," said Phœbe, proudly. "But that's just what mamma won't believe. He says he cannot divulge his identity without betraying his trust. As soon as his mission is over, he says he will produce the most satisfactory explanations; but mamma actually believes him to be an impostor!"

"Oh, dear!" said Miss Parks.

"You see, mamma isn't a physiognomist," said Phœbe, "or she would read truth plainly inscribed upon his noble brow. The checked summer silks next, Miss Parks, though I don't know what use checked summer silks will be to me at Grandaunt Garraway's."

"But you can write to him every day, dear," soothed Miss Parks.

"They will intercept the letters," sighed Phœbe.

"Never mind," said Miss Parks, folding up an India foulard polonaise; "the torch of love will burn all the brighter for a few brief obscurations."

"What a dear, comforting creature you are!" said Phœbe, stooping to kiss Miss Parks' knobby forehead.

"I, too, have passed through the fiery ordeal," sighed Miss Parks, returning the caress, as she packed a cologne-bottle and a traveling ink-stand into the muffling folds of a red Shetland shawl.

So Phœbe was sent to Grandaunt Garraway's, at the foot of High Peak, to get her out of the way of Mr. Middleton De Motte.

She was a little disappointed that the snug Queen Anne cottage was not more dungeon-like, and that the solitary mountain path turned out to be a well-traveled turnpike. She had made up her mind to thorough martyrdom; and Mrs. Garraway, instead of being a hook-nosed old crone, with a gold-headed cane and a temper, was a cheerful old lady, whose cheeks were tinted with fresh bloom, like a winter apple, and who wore a black silk dress with lace ruffles.

The parlor floor was covered with a real Turkey rug; there was a cabinet of old china in the corner; a little maid in a white cap waited at the table; and Grandaunt Garraway's jewel case was a marvel to behold.

The old lady had traveled in Europe, read all the newest books, and drove a little basket phaeton with a fat, dappled pony, and, to Phœbe's surprise, she was eminently sympathetic.

"Dear aunty," said the girl, "I never dreamed you were as nice as this!"

"Well, my dear," said Grandaunt Garrway, "I have been young myself, and I don't believe in putting too much constraint upon the heart"—(here Phœbe jumped up and kissed her)—"so, when I got your mother's letter, I thought the whole matter over. If you really believe you can't live without this young man—"

"Darling aunty!" faltered Phœbe, "may I tell you a secret?"

"Confide entirely in me, my child," said Grandaunt Garraway, patting her cheek.

"Well, then, he met me under the apple tree last night," confessed Phœbe, "by the light of the moon!"

"You've written to him then?" said Grandaunt Garraway, with a shrewd twinkle in her hazel eyes.

"Y-yes," owned Phœbe. "I told him it was unlike anything that I had anticipated. I described your pretty furniture and choice china, and the solid silver tea service, with the Garraway monogram on it, and your set of amethysts, and he came on by the earliest train."

"Oh, he did!" said Grandaunt Garraway.

"He said he was hungering and thirsting for one of my sweet glances," added Phœbe, blushing very prettily. "And he slept on the hay in the barn last night."

"My dear child, this will never do!" pronounced Grandaunt Garraway. "He must come here!"

"Here, aunty!"

"I want to see him for myself," said Mrs. Garraway.

"But what will mamma say?"

"Your mother, my child, has every confidence in my judgment," said Grand-aunt Garraway impressively. [illegible] Aunt Garraway.

lady, with dignity, "I invite him here as a guest. My husband's nephew, Harry Sanford, is to be here to-night from Boston; but there is plenty of room. Harry shall sleep in the cedar chamber. Mr. De Motte shall have the red room. Where is he now?"

"I—I think he's having a cigar and reading the newspaper in the smoke house," rather guiltily confessed Phœbe.

"Go and call him in," said Mrs. Garraway. "Tell him he shall be welcome."

And Phœbe obeyed, scarcely able to believe her own ears.

"She's a deal better than any Fairy Godmother I ever heard of," thought she.

Mr. De Motte was indeed tall and Troubadour-like. He had dark, pensive eyes, and wore a very handsome satin necktie; and if his finger nails were not as clean as Mrs. Garraway liked to see, and his pocket handkerchiefs were not of the finest linen, still people thought differently upon such subjects.

"Harry Sanford looks the most of a gentleman," thought Mrs. Garraway.

And even Phœbe, in a mental comparison, could not help owning to herself that Mr. Sanford seemed the most at his ease.

"But then," thought Phœbe, "he hasn't any diplomatic troubles on his mind. I wish, though, that dear Middleton wouldn't eat green peas with his fork, and that he would take a little more notice of the chair covers, and not drag them off every time he sits down. I never knew before that he chewed tobacco. I hope that it won't make Grand-aunt Garraway nervous!"

But Grand-aunt Garraway smiled her sweetest, and seemed to notice nothing amiss.

And Harry Sanford diligently talked politics, and did his best to amuse the stranger.

Nevertheless, when Phœbe went to bed that night, she was not so happy as she expected to be.

For a diplomat, Mr. De Motte was not so remarkably intelligent, after all, and she was very certain that his grammar was not altogether correct.

She hoped that Harry Sanford had not observed it.

In the dead of the night, Grand-aunt Garraway's hand fell softly on Phœbe's shoulder. She started up.

"Hush!" said the old lady. "Don't utter a sound. Get up. Come down stairs with me."

"What is the matter?" gasped the girl.

"Your fine lover is breaking into my cherry-wood bureau," said Mrs. Garraway. "He has a complete set of burglar's tools. But don't look so frightened, my dear. The jewel-case is here, but it is empty. Harry Sanford has the pins and pendants at the county bank. He's welcome to all he can find. And Harry and the farm laborer have got his accomplice safely tied outside; and they're ready to seize on him the moment he steps across the threshold. But come! I want you to see for yourself!"

And, standing on the staircase, where she could peep through the transom-light into the back parlor, Phœbe beheld her Troubadour lover picking locks and prying open drawers in a most business-like manner.

In spite of her resolutions, she uttered a little cry.

Mr. De Motte looked up and saw her. The next instant the room was in darkness.

* * * * *

"But we caught the fellow as neatly as possible," Mr. Harry Sanford said, afterward, "with the empty jewel-case in his possession and a lot of silver spoons in his breast pocket. He's an old hand, the Albany authorities say. 'Light-fingered Lemuel,' they call him; and he's safe to get a long term in the penitentiary."

Alas, poor Phœbe!

"But how did you know he was a —a thief, Aunt Garraway?" she said.

"I didn't know, child," said the old lady. "I only suspected that everything wasn't right. But don't fret. One doesn't expect a young girl like you to be the best judge of character in the world. Harry Sanford declared he was a rascal the first moment he set eyes on him."

"You see," said Harry, "he never looked me straight in the eyes. That is an unfailing symptom."

And Harry Sanford set him so diligently to work to console the disillusionized maiden that he soon succeeded in restoring her temporarily eclipsed smiles.

So the expedition to Grand-aunt Garraway's proved a success, after all. The Middleton DeMotte engagement was broken up, and there is every probability that a new one will rise, Phenix like, out of the ashes.

A Russian Trick.

A Cossack rode up to the door of a little inn at Braile, dismounted, drank a succession of glasses of brandy, and then made a show of remounting his horse. The landlord reminded him that he had not paid for his drink. The Cossack, with a heavy sigh, drew out his dirty purse, and began fumbling for a coin, when his horse gave a sudden snort and fell to the ground. The Cossack was in despair, he did everything he could to raise the beast upon its legs, but all was in vain. "He is dead! He is dead!" cried out in chorus a number of bystanders, who had been attracted to the spot by the accident. The poor Cossack would not believe it. The crowd, knowing that a Cossack's horse is his own property, and that the loss of the animal would strike a terrible blow to the owner, began to make a collection in order to mitigate his sufferings as far as possible. Even the landlord was touched, forgot his bill, and presented the bereaved man with another glass of brandy, refusing any pay. The Cossack lifted up his saddle, slung his lance over his shoulder, dropped a farewell tear over the faithful beast, and walked sorrowfully away. When he was about one thousand paces distant he suddenly stopped, turned round and gave a long shrill whistle. At the sound of the well known signal, the horse sprang up, neighed a friendly answer, and darted off with lightning speed to his grinning owner. The Cossack was soon on his back, making significant symbols of thanks to the assembled crowd for their generosity and sympathy, and in a few minutes he was out of sight, and the landlord of the krotchma was loudly [illegible] he would never [illegible]

HIS FAVORITE FLOWER.

There it stood in the old farm-house window, that scarlet geranium, its clusters of blossoms glowing like spots of flame, and the velvety green of its leaves expanding with almost tropical luxuriance of growth. No petted favorite of the greenhouse ever throve more determinedly, for it took its stand on the good old democratic platform, and grew just as vigorously in that low-ceiled room as if it were the conservatory of a ducal palace.

The fire in the chimney leaped and fell fitfully with the uncertain gusts of wind that wailed round the lonely house, and sent the red leaves whirling down the road. The sky was gray and cheerless, save where a belt of lurid gold above the western woods marked the coming of the sullen November sunset; and an indescribable something of the contagious melancholy in earth, air, and sky seemed to have drifted down on Annie Wilton's heart, as she lay on the chintz-covered sofa beside the fire, her large brown eyes half-closed, and the needle lying idly on the delicate strip of ruffling with which she had been busying herself.

Was she pretty, do you ask me? Well, that depends entirely upon one's idea of prettiness. Of color, freshness, rosy bloom, she had none. Do you call a pale anemone, a fragile violet, or a colorless statue beautiful? Of all these things, Anne Wilton might have reminded one, as she lay there, white and still, the brown braids falling around her oval cheeks, and the small hands crossed upon her breast.

"My goodness, Anne, the fire's all going out, and here you are half asleep!"

Anne opened her eyes and became cognizant of the bustling presence of a rosy, dimpled damsel, with cheeks like winter apples, and black, roguish eyes, who threw fresh coal upon the fire, gave the hearthrug an adjusting shake, and bustled round the room with infectious activity.

"Better tonight, Anne?" she asked suddenly, pausing beside the chintz sofa, as a bird might light abruptly on the branch of a tree, for she was not unlike a bird in her quick motions and easy grace, this bright-eyed little maiden.

"I shall be better very soon, Grace?" said the sick girl, evasively, taking Grace Warren's rosy fingers in her own transparent palm. "Did you inquire for letters at the postoffice, as you came by?"

"Yes; but there were no letters, of course."

Anne was silent a moment, and the unshed tears trembled on her lashes.

"Grace," she said softly, "do you remember that it is three years ago to-day since—since Alfred went away?"

"Remember it?—of course I do; and I've not a bit of patience when I remember it. To think how he has thrown us all aside, the friends of his youth and poverty, like out-grown garments, now that he has become a prosperous lawyer and a famous man! And he has even forgotten you, Anne, his promised wife!"

"Hush, dear! There was no formal engagement between us."

"I don't care!" ejaculated Grace, with sparkling eyes; "the compact was none the less sacred in Heaven's eyes; and if Alfred Courtenay marries that rich heiress people talk about —don't turn so pale, Anne—surely the room is too warm. Shall I call your mother?"

"No; I am better now," said Anne, trying to smile. "It was only a momentary faintness."

"I know what is is!" said Grace, nodding her head emphatically. "Dr. Jay always said it wasn't healthy to keep that large geranium in the window. Those spreading branches and clusters of flowers absorb every breath of fresh air. Let me take it up stairs, Anne?"

"Not for the world, dear!" said Anne, earnestly. "I would not miss the sight of its cheerful flowers for anything earth can give. Alfred brought it to me when it was a little sprig scarcely two inches high, and he always used to say that its bright blossoms in the window seemed like a welcome to him in the winter evenings, when—"

Anne's voice broke down here, and she turned her cheek to the pillow, crying quietly. Grace said nothing, only stroked her friend's brown hair with a touch that was full of unspoken sympathy. She knew that tears were Anne's best medicine just then.

And so we leave the two young girls in the red glinting of the firelight and the chill gleam of the November sunset, and turn to a far different scene.

Mrs. Montague Frances was "at home"—"at home" amid blazing chandeliers, hot-house japonicas, and gilded ceilings, to her dear five hundred friends in brocades and jewels. The mansion was in a glow from cellar to basement —long lines of carriages were setting down the fashionable world at the carpeted doorsteps—and the band had just struck up a mazurka, when Mr. Courtenay lounged into the salon.

"There's your fascinating young lawyer, Madelon," whispered a blooming matron in black velvet and diamonds.

And Madelon Frances turned her stately head, while the deep rose-color suffused her cheek and brow.

The hostess' beautiful daughter was a brilliant brunette; the liquid softness of her jet black eyes and clear, dark skin made you think of something almost imperial in the curve of her small rose-red mouth. Her dress was of simple white muslin, without a solitary ornament, and amid the shining profusion of her raven locks were twisted two or three vivid blossoms of the scarlet geranium.

Nor was she the only one in the throng who noticed Courtenay's entrance. A "rising man," his brilliant talents had already constituted him somewhat of a "lion" in metropolitan circles, and he was greeted on all sides by welcoming words.

"Here comes Courtenay—wonder when he means to propose?" languidly remarked an exquisitely-dressed sprig of the jeunesse doree.

"Propose—to whom?" asked his companion.

"Why, to Miss Madelon, of course. It is pretty plain that she likes him; and he would be a fool to hesitate at the chance of obtaining a beautiful wife and a fortune at the same time. Lucky fellow, that!"

"Well, I, for one, never could see what the ladies find to admire in Courtenay," remarked the other, misanthropically, lowering his voice as the gentleman in question passed by. "Hallo! what's the matter? He isn't ill, is he?"

For Courtenay had paused suddenly, with a strange pallor overspreading his cheek, as his eye fell upon Miss Frances' beautiful profile.

"Tell me," he said turning to Colonel Anderton, who stood close by, and speaking in a husky whisper, "what flower is that Miss Frances wears in her hair?"

"Flower?" repeated Anderton, leaning a little forward to get a glimpse of the young lady spoken of. "Why, scarlet geranium, of course; and very becoming it is to her Andalusian style! But you are not ill, Courtenay? Shall I get you a glass of wine?"

"No; I am perfectly well," returned Courtenay, speaking in a strange, unnatural tone.

For an instant the brilliant confusion of the ball-room seemed to have ebbed from sight, and he saw only the wide old farmhouse kitchen, with its low ceiling, and—oh, best remembered of all—Anne Wilton's seraph face, half-visible among the scarlet geranium blossoms, as she gazed down the darkened road, watching for his coming form! All the mists of sophism and worldly pride melted from around his breast, and he saw himself as he was—a recreant lover—a cold blooded deceiver!

"It is not yet too late!" he murmured inwardly. "Great heavens! and could it be possible that I could have contemplated marrying a woman I never loved, merely for her wealth and position? Oh, Anne, my first and only love, help me to prove true to myself and heaven!"

"Going, Courtenay—and so early! Why, you have not even spoken to Miss Frances!" ejaculated Colonel Anderton, in astonishment, as his friend turned to leave the room.

"I must go. I have just remembered business of the utmost importance," said Courtenay, in hurried and constrained accents. "Make my excuses to the ladies—and my adieus, also, if you will be so kind, Colonel. I find myself obliged to leave town for an indefinite period of time."

Before Colonel Anderton could recover breath to ask the meaning of this strange freak, Alfred Courtenay had left the room and the house.

The red leaves were raining sorrowfully down from the great tree at the turn of the road as Alfred Courtenay came in sight of the old, brown farm-house, with its weather-stained chimneys, and the apple orchard at its back.

He paused and shaded his eyes with one tremulous hand. There was the window with its white muslin curtains—and there, also, blossomed a scarlet geranium.

"I accept the omen!" he murmured, once more striding forward. "If she had taken it away, I should have felt that my place in her heart was justly forfeited—now, I am reassured!"

Softly—softly his footsteps fell on the gray floorstone, and the warm threshold—softly his hand fell on the latch, as it opened. The fire flashed up as he entered the room, and he could see Anne's brown hair drooping around her head, as she sat with her back to him, wearily trying to read. The latch slipped from his touch and clicked warningly.

"Grace, is it you?"

There was no answer, and Anne turned round in surprise. Another instant, and the bitter years of waiting and disappointment were all forgotten upon Alfred Courtenay's breast!

When Grace Warren came in, rosy with her frosty walk, she scarcely recognized pale, fragile Anne Wilton in the blushing, smiling girl who sat there beside a visitor. Happiness is a better physician than all the M. D.'s in creation.

And when Anne Wilton was married, her young friends all marvelled that instead of orange buds, or white jessamine, she wore in her soft curls only a blossom of the scarlet geranium. When they questioned her on the subject, she answered simply, "It is Alfred's favorite flower."

THE HAWAIIAN ISLANDS.

A Clergyman's Observations of Changes During the Past Twenty-five Years—Condition of the Native Classes.

Some thirty years ago says the San Francisco Bulletin Rev. E. G. Beckwith, now pastor of the Third Congregational Church of this city, was a teacher at the Sandwich Islands. Twenty-five years ago he left the islands, and has not since returned until last June, when he was invited to deliver the annual address at Oahu College, Honolulu. Since his return to this city he has delivered, at the Third Congregational Church, several Sunday-evening addresses upon the subject of the changes which he observed had taken place in the islands during the twenty-five years of his absence. Sunday night he gave the final lecture of the course.

The Golden Age of the islands was from the year 1840 to 1855, when they were under the rule of Kamehameha III. This king, under the influence of the Christian missionaries, enacted wise legislation, the object of which was the benefit of the native race. He gave the people a constitution. And perhaps the wisest act of his reign was the division of all the lands into small patches, which the natives were allowed to purchase in fee simple upon paying merely the cost of survey. The effect of this was to give the natives homesteads, and develop among them the beneficent idea of home life, which before they had almost entirely lacked.

Since the death of that King, and during the last twenty-five years, the changes in the islands have been most marked, and, so far as the native race is concerned, painfully disastrous. And the chief cause has been the increase of of the great sugar enterprise. There is no diversity of industry now. Everything is sugar. Potatoes or grapes, for instance, are grown hardly anywhere on the islands. Every one has rushed into sugar planting with an idea of becoming rich. Yet hardly any fortunes have been made, and if the Reciprocity Treaty should not be renewed and present prices of sugar should continue, nearly all the planters of the islands would be bankrupt.

The effects upon the natives of the growth of the great plantations and the vast influx of capital, have been manifold. The great demand for labor has made it more profitable for them to work for others than for themselves upon their homesteads. As a result they are losing their home ties. Twenty thousand male Chinese without families, have been flooded in upon the population, to work on the plantations. These have not only their evil effect upon the morals of the people, but are gradually ousting them from their little land holdings.

The increased distribution of wages among the natives has hastened their ruin. They have more money than ever before. Being mere children, unfit to manage business, unable to save money and easily led into temptation, their little wealth injures them more than it benefits. Honolulu is a moral perfect maelstrom to them. There the men go to earn the highest wages, and the young ladies to be 'introduced into society.' There they find the best opportunity to spend money, and the most luring temptations to vice. To these they yield. Few ever escape from Honolulu, and most of these who do, go away to die.

A general attempt is now being made to teach the natives English. This is absolutely necessary in order to unify the nation in the midst of the increasing foreign population. And yet even this hastens their ruin. For it enables them to come into closer relations with that portion of the foreign element which are responsible largely for the increase of vice among them. They get to know the unscrupulous and vicious foreigners too well.

The deterioration in the morals of the people has been rapid and appalling. The tendency of the race was always towards gross licentiousness. If the influx of foreigners has not increased this, it has at least introduced among the people attendant diseases which are eating away the life of the race. Drunkenness has made alarming increase.

Twenty-five years ago there was a law absolutely prohibiting the sale of liquors to the natives. Now there is a license law. Twenty-five years ago Mr. Beckwith rarely saw a native under the influence of liquor. Now the streets of Honolulu reel with drunken natives. He saw on this visit of two weeks more drunkards than he saw before in eight years.

The present evils are due in large measure to the utter selfishness of the government. The interests of the natives are entirely lost sight of. The king, who owes his sovereignty, not to his lineage, but to a political trick, cares only for his own agrandizements. A short time ago a resolution of lack of confidence in the ministry was lost by one vote; the ministers all voting for themselves. Shortly after the resolution was actually carried in spite of the ministers, and yet in the face of that defeat they have not grace or sense enough to resign. The natives hate King Kalakuka. But Queen Emma, who is of genuine royal blood, they love. Not long ago, to propitiate the people, the king conceded large reductions in the expenses of certain branches of the government. And after the people had made a great demonstration of gratitude to him for the act, he then asked an appropriation for the royal stables, which exceeded the total amount of reduction. The nation is dying in the hands of bad and selfish men.

In 1863 the American Boards of Foreign Missions formally withdrew from active work in the islands, intending as fast as practicable to place native preachers over the churches. Experience has shown that this course was a mistake. The natives were not then fit to carry on the work themselves, and the loss of the restraining and guiding hand of the Christian missionary has proved not the least factor in hastening the certain doom of the native nation.

The Bedouins Light Drinkers.

Gen. R. E. Colston, late of the Egyptian General Staff, says in the September Century: "In the 'Waterless Land,' water is the paramount question. If it be asked how a large body of Bedouins like the 10,000 who nearly destroyed the British squares at Tamai, manage to subsist, the reason is plain. In the first place, they do not need the enormous trains required for a European army. They are the most abstemious of men. Each man carries a skin of water and a small bag of grain, procured by purchase or barter from caravans. Their camels and goats move with them, supplying them with milk and meat, and subsisting upon the scanty herbage and the foliage of the thorny mimosa, growing in secluded wadies. As to water, they know every nook and hollow in the mountains, away from the trails, where a few barrels of water collect in some shaded ravine, and they can scatter, every man for himself, to fill their water-skins. Besides, the Bedouins, accustomed from infancy to regard water as most precious and rare, use it with most wonderful economy. Neither men or animals drink more than once in forty-eight hours. As to washing they never endulge in such wasteful nonsense. When Bedouins came to my camp, water was always offered them. Their answer would frequently be: 'No, thanks; I drank yesterday.' They know too well the importance of keeping up the habit of abstemiousness. No wonder they can subsist where invaders would quickly perish."

Water for Young Animals.

Young farm animals of any class should have access to water, especially in warm weather, however abundant be the supply of milk furnished by their dams or fed them from the pail. They may do well without water, but our observation is that quite young animals often drink water freely and with decided relish, even when they have an abundance of milk. If regularly placed before them, with reasonable care as to its temperature, we have never known injury, while we have often thought we saw decided good effects.—Breeders' Gazette.

An Old Prospector's Life.

Denver Tribune.

Mr. Curtis Chamberlain of the Denver University has a picture in the art department of the Exposition of an old prospector. Simply in its technic, it is a good piece of work. In a higher and better way, it is a fine work of art; it is one of the rare pictures that appeals to the feelings and awakens memory into vivid life. The picture is of a grizzled and gray miner, with a battered hat, unkept hair and sun-browned face. In one hand he holds a magnifying glass, and in the other a piece of oar. The look in his eyes and the smile on his face say as plainly as words could say, "I've struck it.

Instinctively the one who sees it thinks of the strange life it represents. How often he has watched the same look on the face of prospectors, and how often in a day or two the look has changed back to the ordinary, indifferent or contented one that fate's hardest buffetings never destroys. One wonders if the old prospector will go to bed as rich in a week as he seems to be and thinks he is now. Long, long years ago the old man learned that

"Oft expectation fails and most Where most it promises."

And if to-morrow the good ore in his discovery hole "plays out" he will not be surprised or disappointed. The realization of his hopes, that for a day seemed to take form as a tangible fact may have taken its place in the long line of others like it that have gone before.

The life and character of the old prospectors are things that are best understood. Most every one knows the life is one of exposure, toil and danger; but few know that it has its compensations. There is a freedom about it that only his type of men can ever enjoy. We never saw an inveterate prospector who was not by nature a poet and bohemian, though he did not know it himself. There is something in the wildness of his surroundings that finds a responsive chord in his nature. As he climbs up the mountain side these summer days, and up above him against the blue sky there lies a bank of snow, he sees it touched with changing hues of violet and pearl that flush and fade along the horizon, and feels a joy and happiness that he can not, perhaps analyze; he only knows that he enjoys the life.

The prospector is necessarily an optionist. He cannot appreciate the gloomy probabilities of the future; hope always paints it in the rosiest colors. If he were of the nature that coolly stopped to think of the host of blanks and the few prizes there are in this great lottery of chances, he would cease to be a prospector. He is much of a Colonel Sellars, and he is only acting natural when he puts a fabulous price on his prospect hole. He can see "millions in it," and wonders why others cannot see the same. No one so well as he has had the opportunity to learn

"How quickly nature falls into revolt
When gold becomes her object."

Yet no one is so sure that in his present and particular case nature is on his side. His representations are not dishonest; they are simply the voice of an over-hopful nature. He lives an ideal life. His residence is a grand castle in Spain. He lies on the hard ground, with a ragged blanket for a bed, and looks up through the pine boughs and leaves in the shining stars. Then fancy weaves her web and he is on a bed of down, drawn round with silken ribbons. He is in his castle in Spain.

He eats his bacon and bread from a tin plate and drinks his muddy coffee from a tin cup. In his castle are tables set with shining glass and frosted silver, and bubling champagne invites his thirst. Homeless, wifeless, childless, he dreams of an earthly heaven that will some day be his when his "ship comes in," and enjoys the dream maybe more than most men can enjoy the reality. Sometimes, perhaps, cold and fever may lay their hands upon him, and his lonely life pass away, while only angels are present to close his eyes. No wife or child will mourn his loss, and when his whitened bones and grinning skull are found men will wonder whose remains they are, and over them will place the simple inscription: "Unknown.

A Blushing Chinese Bride.

From the Portland Oregonian.

There was a great commotion in the heart of Chinatown yesterday afternoon. A wedding in high life was on the tapis, and a crowd of 400 or 500 Chinamen surrounded the home of the bride, in an endeavor to catch a glimpse of the lady as she went to meet the happy man. When the girl started down the narrow stairs, in charge of an old woman, the curious heathens made a rush for the doorway, and when she appeared upon the sidewalk, with her blushing face hid behind a fan, the excitement became so intense that the services of the policeman were necessary to clear a way to the carriage. Every face in the surgling crowd was adorned with a generous grin, and a chorous of "Ahs" greeted the rare and radiant maiden who was about to launch upon the uncertain sea of matrimony.

The bride's dress was of pale blue hi-long, trimmed with rare old toyah, while the pantaloons were of six full widths of yellow sigee. Her hair was dressed a la Hong Kong, there being no bangs of any description. Her charming little feet were half hidden in a bewitching pair of silk slippers with the heels knocked off. This vision of loveliness was carefully placed in a closed carriage and driven to the apartments of the bridegroom, who was wondering what sort of a companion his relatives and friends had selected for him.

There the scenes enacted on Morrison street were repeated as the bride was hurried up another flight of narrow stairs and disappeared from view, amid showers of rice and papers.

One of the most extraordinary courtships that have occurred within memory was carried on within the walls of a Brooklyn prison between a young farmer of Connecticut and a young woman imprisoned for theft. The farmer had heard of the culprit, and deciding that she might make a good wife if under proper guidance, determined to win her. The circumstance proved either an abnormal development of philanthropy or a dime novel love of sensationalism.

A single shoe manufactory in Massachusetts turns out by patent machinery in 12 months as many pairs of boots and shoes as 30,000 shoe-makers in Paris make by hand in the same period of time.

HUNTING FOR H----.

N. Y. Sun.

This is O'Flannigan's account of it as he told it to me. I have made no alterations, being unwilling to take any responsibilities upon myself in a matter of such importance. Said he:

"There are more fools in the world than you would think for. When our geographical society met last we found that we had got hold of one. This was the new member. So I just set it down as a maxim, then, that if fools can work their way into even a geographical society, there isn't any place that's safe against them. However, that's neither here nor there; I simply mention it in passing; it hasn't anything to do with what I started out to tell you about.

"Well, as I was saying before. I was loaded up solid with my sublime project. I was a festering volcano of excitement. It was as much as I could do to hold in till my turn should come. And when it did come, at last, I was in such a state that I could only pant it out in broken phrase, with gaspings for breath between. It made an immense stir. It was received with prodigious favor. The end of every sentence was drowned in applause. I closed by stating:

"'So, gentlemen, my project, in a word, is to send out a discovery expedition to search for a new and direct road to Hall.' I pronounced it hall, out of deference to the society, all the members being religious; but you can pronounce it your own way.

"I sat down amid a storm of applause which lasted several minutes, during which my hand was wrung by throng after throng of geographers, who said my idea was the grandest one of the age, and would make my name immortal.

"Quiet was hardly restored when the new member spoke up and said:

"'But who wants to go to Hall?' He pronounced it the old way.

"It was a most strange question. Members glanced at each other in a surprised and somewhat affronted way, and said nothing. Then the new member spoke up again:

"'Nobody wants to go to Hall; nobody wants to travel any road to Hall; so where in the nation is the use in hunting up a new one?'

"After an awkward pause, the president said, with a cold and cruel blandness of tone and manner:

"'It is evident that our new acquisition is not familiar with the ways of geographical societies. If he will reflect a moment, it may occur to him that his question need be changed in words only, not in sense, to read, "Where is the use in searching for the Northwest passage?"'

"It was an awful shot. I pitied the poor ass with all my heart; and I could see that others did, too, though naturally we couldn't help enjoying the annihilating completeness of the presidents retort. But what do you think? It never pheazed the new member at all. He didn't know he was hit—he actually didn't. No, he looked up as sweet and innocent as the child unborn, and says:

"'In my day I have wanted to ask that very question as much as upward to 500,000 times.'

"If he didn't say it, I wish I may never stir. And he didn't stop there, either, but goes right on as calm as anything and says:

"'What do you want of a Northwest passage, anyway, after you've got it? Do you calculate that anybody's going to use it?'

"'Use it? says the president, who saw that sarcasm was wanted on this numbskull, and didn't propose to throw away any more of it on him. 'No, we don't expect any body to use it. There would be no occasion to use it anyway, because the old routes are far better and quicker and easier. And besides nobody could use it, for the reason that from the nature of the climate and the shortness of the season it is simply non-usable.'

"'Well, then,' says the new member, as calm as that door-nob there, 'what do you want it for?'

"'Want it for?' snaps the president, rather hotly. 'We don't want it, we only want to find it.'

"'Well, that is odd,' says the new member. 'I don't seem to get your idea, somehow. What do you want to find it for, if you don't want it after you've found it? As I understand it, England and America and other countries have been hunting for it for fifty years, and they've spent about $35,000,000 and got no end of ships mashed up in the ice, and no end of men frozen to death, and scurvied to death, and starved to death, and so on, and buried around here and there on a lot of skinned rocks in the Arctic ocean—and that's all that's been accomplished; and it appears to me it's a big price to pay and a long ways to go just to start an international graveyard. Yes, and as I said before, the thing that is too many for me is, what do you want to find that Northwest passage for, if you dont want it after you've found it?'

"'My friend,' says the president, pretty fiercely, 'if you knew anything about geographical societies, you wouldn't ask so foolish and irrelevant a question. Geographical societies do not trouble themselves to hunt for things that are wanted—everyboby does that; there is no occasion to gather together a learned and expensive organization for such a purpose. It is the distinct and peculiar province of a geographical society to hunt for things that are not wanted. We do not seek them out because they are needed, but simply to prove that they are there.'

"'It's a big thing,' says the new member, sardonically, and moved off and pretended to interest himself in our new chart, wherein the search for the Holy Grail, the crusades for the recovery of the Holy Sepulchre, and the search for the northwest passage are ingeniously contrasted.

"The society now settled down to business, and asked me for the details of my project. I said that, to begin with, exhaustive study and investigation had convinced me that Hall was not located within the body of our globe, hence I inferred that it must be above us somewhere—doubtless in some part of the empty space between us and the stars. Continuing, I said: '[illegible] I propose to employ balloons [illegible] with pure oxygen. I would [illegible] a fleet of balloons, but simply one [illegible] start the first one up, say, about the beginning of the coming summer. I would start up the second, to hunt for the first, say, about a year later. After an interval of a year more, I would start up the third to hunt for the other two, and bring home buttons and other such relics of the crews as might be found. Every year thereafter I would send up a fresh balloon to hunt for the previous balloons and carry relief to the survivors—that is gravestones and monuments and so on, to be set up where the birds and the comets might see them from time to time, and be reminded of the brave deeds of the departed martyrs to science. This method, you see, is systematic; the very thing which all previous efforts of this kind have lacked was system. We have always waited till we knew an expedition was lost before we sent out another to hunt for it; whereas, since we knew it would get lost, the right and only wise course would have been to send out a procession of expeditions at brief and regular intervals, so that they could begin to hunt for each other without disastrous delays. Many spoons and jack-knives and other valuable relics have been irretrievably lost to science because the search expeditions waited so long that these things got snowed up meantime, or were captured by the natives and bartered off for blubber. Now, under my system, nothing of the kind will happen. The balloons will follow each other at short and measured intervals, and the work of hunting for each other, and gravestoning each other and gathering up each other's remains, will begin right away, as you may say. And by keeping this sort of thing up right along and briskly there is not a question that sooner or later one or another of these balloons will find Hall—and collapse into it, and stay there, too. And the whole honor of it will belong to this geographical society, this great nation and congress.'

"The applause which greeted me when I sat down was something marvelous. I felt that the next most glorious thing to going to Hall under my system was to have originated the way. It was at this point that the new member meandered up to the front and made that little speech that I said I was going to tell you about, you know. Said he:

"'Gentlemen, I wish to resign. If it was your idea to hunt up a cheaper and softer Northwest passage to Paradise, you could count me in every time. But I don't want any of this present project in mine. Now, mind, I tell you. I think that a geographical society that lays out to take all this trouble and spend all this money to find that other place is harnessing itself to a mighty unnecessary contract. For just this reason: It won't benefit the general public, for they don't want to go there, and, moreover, they don't even wish to know where it is; and as for the geographical societies, they don't need to worry, for if they will sit still and keep cool they will land there all in good time and plenty soon enough.'

"Whereupon we fired him out."

How People Remember.

Dr. Allen Starr, in Popular Science Monthly.

If, now, we make models of four brains, and on the first mark out the location of the various areas connected with the various sensory organs, as determined by the anatomical connection of the white nerve threads; on the second mark out the location of the various areas which physiologists have shown to govern various sensory organs; on the third mark out the various areas whose disease produces disturbance of action in the various sensory organs; and loss of memories of perceptions by those organs; and on the fourth mark out the various areas which wither after diseases of the various sensory organs—we shall find that upon all four brains the areas belonging to any one organ coincide. We may, therefore, conclude that each class of sensations and each class of memories has its own definite area of the gray matter on the surface of the brain. Memories of objects seen are located in the posterior part in the occipital region. Memories of sounds heard are located in the lower lateral part in the temporal region. Memories of motions in the limbs, and of touch in those limbs, are located side by side in the central lateral region. Memories of speech are located in the frontal region. It is, therefore, a mistake to speak of memory as a single faculty of the mind. It is really an assemblage of distinct memories which we possess, each kind of memory being as different from the others, both in its nature and in its location, as are the different organs of sense through which the original perceptions came.

Four years ago, John C. Calhoun, a grand nephew of the famous South Carolina statesman, was married in St. Louis. After living with his wife a few months they separated, he going to Texas and she remaining in St. Louis. Mrs. Calhoun offered her services to the Sisters of the House of the Good Shepherd in St. Louis. They were accepted, and she has been there ever since. Meanwhile Calhoun repented and sought for his wife, without success, until yesterday, when he found her at the convent. They were reunited, and, at her desire, another marriage ceremony was performed.

Pointing out that there is one Protestant Evangelical church to every 675 of the population in the South, one to every 1000 in the West, and one to every 8000 in the Northern cities, the Nashville Christian Advocate pronounces it a curious view of the matter that induces our brethren in the North to expend a large amount of money on the South as a mission field.

Some Bavarian brewers have been made to understand that the Government does not mean that beer, the people's beverage, shall be adulterated with impunity. Thirty-three brewers have lately been condemned to pay fines ranging from $50 to $950, and three others were sent to jail for eight months.

Emma Abbott, the singer, has reached home after a tour of Europe. She is now able to [illegible] in four or five languages.

Bismarck [illegible]

BOTH FORGIVING.

"Well, Nettie, here I am! What is it you want to ask me?"

"I have heard a report that you are paying attention to a young woman in Woodville. Is it true?"

The girl spoke quietly, but there was a slumbering fire in her great black eyes which told a story of repressed passion.

The young man addressed changed color and winced under her steady look, but he made pretense of answering it lightly.

"So it is the same old story you have sent for me to come and hear. You are a jealous little piece, Nettie."

"Harmon, will you tell me the truth? I had much rather hear you speak out like a man, even if it breaks my heart, than to die by degrees while doubting you—and I do doubt you."

"Then, if you will be happier to know, instead of imagine, the truth, here it is: I am going to be married to the girl in Woodville next Tuesday evening. She's one of the meek sort, and won't keep me in hot water by her jealousy as you do."

Anger had evidently got the better of prudence in Harmon Hart's mind, or he might have continued to temporize with the girl who had been supplanted in his fickle fancy by the newer and more attractive charms of her rival.

Nettie's cheeks blanched, and she stood for a moment as though turned into stone. Then she pointed to the door.

"Go, false heart! Never let me see your face again! But know this: I will spoil your happiness, as you have ruined mine!"

Without a word the young man obeyed her, but strive as he would, he could not keep his cheeks from blanching. He looked the despicable, cringing creature that he was—for he who wins a girl's heart to break it always has the characteristics of a coward.

But, once out of Nettie's presence, the momentary feeling of uneasiness vanished, and he said half aloud:

"That's a good job over; she took it easier than I thought she would. All I have to do now is to hurry up the wedding day, and set out for the West with Kitty. Her money will buy and stock a farm, and we'll live in clover. She's a good little thing and not a spitfire like Nettie."

Kitty Nash was considered quite an heiress in the country neighborhood where she lived.

Upon the death of her father she had come with her mother to make her home at Meadow Farm with a childless old uncle.

She had £600 invested in Government securities, and upon her mother's death would inherit as much more. So mercenary feelings might have helped to cause the change in Harmon Hart's matrimonial intentions.

But Kitty rejoiced in his love, and was bright and engaging in her ways that each day thightened her chains about her lover, and by this very means prepared for him a surer punishment in the coming days. For Kitty was totally ignorant of the claims of Nettie upon Harmon, and, sweet tempered as she was, there existed a strong undercurrent of firmness beneath her gay, light-hearted manner.

Then, too, Kitty was an unsparing critic of her own actions, having a most tender conscience about wrong doing of any kind.

But Harmon rushed on to his fate. The wedding day was set, the feast was being made ready, the minister was in his place and the bride and groom had taken their positions before him.

Suddenly the sound of horse's hoofs sounded upon the graveled carriage sweep. They came fast and furiously, and then a messenger dismounted before the door, and, striding in, said:

"I have an important message for the bride. It must be given to her at once."

So, robed in her vestal white, Kitty received the letter, and paused to read it before the ceremony should proceed.

Then, with cheeks and lips as white as her dress, she turned to Harmon and handed it to him with the question:

"Is it true that you had no right to ask me to be your wife? Read that and answer me as truly as though you were lying on your death-bed."

Harmon took the letter and ran his eyes over the uncertain writing. Cold chills ran through his veins as he read, for he felt that the threat contained therein was a genuine one. Thus the note ran:

"May the girl who has won the hand and false heart of the man who has ruined my happiness see before her my ghost every time she looks at Harmon Hart. My living form she can not ever see, for before this is read I shall be dead and out of my misery.

"NETTIE STANTON."

"Harmon, is it true? Have you wronged the girl that wrote that letter?"

Slowly and reluctantly Harmon's answer came from his ashy lips. But Kitty's eyes would have seen the truth for themselves if he had denied it.

"I have done her wrong in this way, Kittie. I had promised to marry her. But she drove me wild with her jealous folly, and, oh, Kitty, I could not help loving you; you are the one to blame after all."

"Then I will be the one to teach you your duty. I shall never exchange another word with you after we part to-day. Go to that unhappy girl and tell her you are sorry, and that you will prove yourself, even at this late period, a man of honor. Tell her also that Kitty Nash accepted your attentions, not knowing that another had a prior right to you."

Without waiting for an answer from Harmon, Kitty turned to the minister and expressed her sorrow at his having been summoned on a bootless errand. Then she left, holding herself proudly erect and only showing the pain that was gnawing at her heart by the hectic flush which burned so redly upon her cheeks. What passed after she had shut herself into her own room was only known to herself and to Him who sees the secret thoughts of the heart.

The sympathy of the community was [illegible] carried out her threat to destroy herself or not, but that was the general opinion in the neighborhood, and it was shared by Harmon, who at last driven to desparation by the coolness of his treatment, joined perhaps to the pangs of conscience, left the place, and was, after a time, no longer even thought about.

* * * * *

Two years later, upon one of the visiting days at the hospital, a beautiful and stately young matron accompanied a party of friends through the wards. She herself was one of the lady managers, and knew about all the different workings of the beneficent institution.

Her guests were from out of town, two of them being a bride and groom. The latter was her cousin, who had been ordered to the country the year previous to recruit after a course of exhaustive study in his Alma Mater. He had been captivated by the naive sweetness of a young country maiden and had succeeded in winning her love—not, however, without some trouble. For she had received one bitter lesson in life which had made her doubtful of mankind in general. But here she was with him, as pretty as a rose just bursting into blossom, and this was her wedding trip.

"Katharine," said Mrs. Mellville, "I am sure you will admire one of the nurses in the —— Ward. She is a perfect picture in her nun like garb, with her black eyes and red cheeks. But she is so quiet that one would think she must have met with a shock which had turned her into a beautiful statute of silence."

"You are growing absolutely romantic, Cousin Lizzie!" said Oscar Wrighton laughingly. "When did the change take place in you?"

"But she is as quick and efficient as though she lived and breathed only to give aid to the sick and dying," continued the lady, smiling at Oscar, but paying no other heed to his words. "Here she is now. But something must have happened; she looks strangely excited."

All eyes were at once turned towards the young woman specified by Mrs. Mellville.

She was indeed worthy of the enconium which had been passed upon her.

She was tall and slight, with large, flashing, black eyes and exquisitely cut features, which looked all the more sculpturesque for the plain white setting of her nurse's cap.

She was bending over a cot upon which lay a man whose life was evidently fast ebbing away; and, as Mrs. Mellville paused and spoke to her, her agitated face made it apparent that she had been recently moved by some strong emotion.

Mrs. Mellville was about to question her about the patients under her care, when a suppressed cry from the young bride attracted the attention of all.

Katharine had turned very white, and was clinging to her husband's arm, while her eyes were fixed upon the death-like face upon the pillow.

"Oh," she said, shudderingly, "it is Harmon Hart!"

With a tender "Never mind, Kitty; he is nothing to you now," her husband was about to draw her away from the spot; but like a flash had come an intuition of her personality to the nurse.

She fixed her eyes upon Katharine's shocked face and asked gently:

"Are you she who was Kitty Nash?"

"Yes."

"Then providence has brought you to this bedside at this moment. I am Nettie Stanton, and the man who wronged us both lies before us. He is dying. I have forgiven him freely. Will you also speed his parting soul?"

At this moment the patient opened his eyes and turned them first upon Nettie, then upon Kittie; but he closed them again with a groan.

"Kitty is here, Harmon," said Nettie softly, "and I have told her that I have forgiven you. I am sure she also cherishes no hard feelings toward you," turning her eyes upon Katharine.

But even as Nettie spoke a shiver passed over Harmon's white face, and he was no more.

Then with lips as pallid as that of the dead, Nettie bent and kissed his marble forehead.

Harmon had been her first and only love, and now that he was dead she would remain his faithful mourner through the rest of her life.

The two women who had thus strangely met beside that solemn deathbed formed for each other a lifelong friendship.

Later on Nettie told Katharine how in her despair she had attempted to drown herself and had been rescued by a stranger, who had taken her to his home in an exhausted condition. How his wife,—an earnest Christian woman—had cared for her tenderly and had labored successfully to bring her to a knowledge of her Savior during the long illness which followed, and how she had risen from her sick bed determined to devote her future life to doing good to her suffering fellow beings, choosing for her sphere of action the duties of a nurse.

The Warlike Aspect of Base Ball.

From the New York Hour.

The so-called national game of base ball is rapidly assuming the aspect of an armed conflict between opposing forces. It is probable that there is not a single totally unfractured player in the land, and the number killed or fatally wounded on the ball field foots up an aggregate that might put many a respectable battlefield to shame. Of course, these chances of maiming or slaughter lend additional excitement to the spectators, if not to the players, but apparently not enough. A tendency has lately been exhibited to give a crowning finish to the game by immolating the umpire at its close. Within a fortnight three of these unhappy officials narrowly escaped with their lives and a choice assortment of bruises. Now, this was plainly unreasonable. Base ball is played to furnish sport to the public, who certainly pay well for it, and if the death of the umpire is necessary to top off the public's pleasure, why should he demur? Hereafter care should be taken to select umpires without what Matthew Arnold would call this bloodthirsty clinging to life.

The New York Journal of Commerce publishes a list of seventy-seven cotton mills [illegible]

FARM, FIELD AND FIRESIDE.

Farm Notes.

One of the products of Vermont is spruce gum. One dealer in Bennington annually ships 18,000 pounds.

Nearly 10,000 American cattle were last year thrown from Atlantic steamships into the ocean on account of exhaustion or injury.

California race horses have made their best time at home, and have not equaled it when taken to the eastern turf. The San Francisco Chronicle, therefore, concludes that the climate is as well adapted to the best development of the thoroughbred horse as that of Arabia or Barbary, and much better than that of England, Ireland, or any of the Atlantic states.

That much of our waste land may be profitably used is shown by Mr. Joseph Harris in his catalogue, who states that celery and cauliflower need very rich land and plenty of water, and, therefore, some of our rich swamps, with a stream of water through them, might be easily converted into a favorable place for these two vegetables. Celery can be set out as late as the 1st of August.

Don't work the horses a whole day without water. Some in a cask could easily be taken along to the field for them.

The eagerness with which cattle and sheep seek shade from the midsummer sun, should lead us to plant shade trees and otherwise to provide shelter for them in the fields.

A keg or bag of charcoal kept in milk rooms or cellars where there is milk will be found advantageous, especially if the cellar is damp, says the Indiana Farmer. The charcoal will absorb both dampness and odors from the air and thus preserve the milk, in great measure, from taint.

A correspondent of the Indiana Farmer says he has never known the following remedy to fail to produce satisfactory results in garget or caked bag: Hog's lard, one-half pound; powdered iodide of potash, one ounce; powdered camphor, one ounce; soft extract belladonna, two drachms; oil amber, one ounce. Mix to form an ointment; rub well twice a day.

Summer Dresses.

Pretty Summer Dresses are sent to the wash tub with reluctance; nobody knows how they will come out of it. First the laundress must be cautioned not to hang them in the sun to dry, or all your precautions will be in vain, and they must be hung up wrong side out, like all other wearing apparel, so that passing dust will not stick to the outer surface. Since soap ruins some delicate colors have the summer dresses washed with borax. This helps to remove soil and stains without removing the color also; it should be added to the water in the proportion of a tablespoonful to a gallon of water. Powdered borax may be purchased at any drug store; it should be dissolved in very hot water. For very delicate colors it is well to dissolve a tablespoonful of alum in enough lukewarm water to wet the dress thoroughly; rinse it up and down several times, then rub it gently in warm, not hot, suds; rinse thoroughly in cold water into which you have put a small handful of salt; iron, if possible, before it becomes dry; but if it should dry more speedily than you expect, iron it under a damp cloth. Many of the fashionable fabrics now used are intended to be rough-dried and simply pulled straight. Never use very hot starch in colored dresses.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Remedy for Rheumatism.

To a medical man the announcement of a remedy for rheumatism is about as definite as a remedy for illness. There are various forms of rheumatism, and any part of the body may be affected. It is therefore absurd to claim that the same remedy will relieve all cases. But there is a form of the complaint that is very common in malarial districts, for which we would suggest a treatment that has been highly commended by persons who have employed it.

Take one or two teaspoonfuls of Rochelle salts in half a glass of cold water; follow this immediately with a glass of lemonade, which contains all the juice of a large lemon and the requisite quantity of sugar to render it pleasant to drink. This simple treatment may be employed once or twice a day, according to the severity of the rheumatism. We are assured that this plan will cure in eight to twelve days any rheumatism of miasmatic character. The treatment is indeed based on scientific principles. Citric acid separates any excess of bile from the blood, and the Rochelle salts hastens its elimination from the system. This form of rheumatism depends upon an unhealthy condition of the blood caused by malarial poison; consequently no form of treatment could be more rational than the one above suggested. And nothing can be more absurd than to expect to cure rheumatism with liniments and massage alone. These are simply useful in affording relief until more thorough remedies have time to act.—Hall's Journal of Health.

Currant Jelly.

A correspondent who vouches for its excellence sends the following recipe: Pick over the currants, taking out all defective ones, leaves, etc., but it is not necessary to pick them from the stems. Put them into a preserving-kettle, and to every quart of currants allow one-half a teacupful of water. Let them boil thoroughly until they are all broken and the juice appears to be all out. Strain through a piece of flannel. Weigh the juice, and to every pound of it allow an equal weight of white granulated sugar. Let the kettle be thoroughly washed; and now pour into it the juice with the sugar. Stir occasionally until thoroughly dissolved. As soon as it begins to boil, a white scum rises to the top, which must be skimmed off. By the time this is accomplished, the jelley is done, and can be taken from the fire. On no account let it boil with the sugar longer than four minutes. The glasses should be filled at once, before it congeals, which it will begin to do immediately. To prevent their cracking, a little of the hot jelly should be poured into the bottom of each of the tumblers, to heat them slightly, before filling up. This rule will apply to all jellies made of fruit.

Treatment of Garget in a Cow.

What is a remedy for garget in cows.

Ans.—Be careful to draw all the milk, and especially all the clotted and thick matter, which, if left in the milk ducts, will do much harm. To facilitate this, rub the udder gently with the hands, or inject a solution of one teaspoonful of carbonate of soda in a pint of water into the udder with a syringe, and, after working the udder gently for a few minutes, milk it out. The soda will dissolve the thickened milk. When the attack comes on, mix one ounce of saltpeter, pounded fine on a little molasses, and smear it on the tongue or teeth, or add to it some bran slops once a day till the trouble disappears. Milk from the gargeted part of the udder is unfit for use.—Rural New Yorker.

Whitewash.

The wholesomeness of a dwelling is much increased by its being frequently whitewashed. This is particularly important in hot weather and when there is reason to fear an epidemic. The finer whitewash, made with whiting and size, may be used on interior walls and ceilings. It is made by pouring water on cakes of whiting and stirring until the liquid is like a thin cream, when a small quantity of warm size or dissolved glue is added to prevent the color rubbing off. It is necessary, first, to remove the dirt and the old whitewash by washing it away with a brush and plenty of clean water. But for purifying purposes there is nothing as good as the genuine lime wash. The wash is made by placing in a pail some freshly burned quick lime and pouring in sufficient water to cover it. If the lime is fresh, great heat is given out and the lime gradually crumbles into a paste. Boiled oil—a preparation of linseed oil, sold by all paint dealers and druggists—should then be added in the proportion of one pint to each gallon of wash. For cheapness any refuse fat, such as dripping, may be used instead of the oil. This is necessary to [illegible] consistence of cream and applied with a brush [illegible] piled freely in summer time. Everything in the cellar should be whitewashed frequently and every dark corner about the yard where dirt could lodge.

How to Preserve Ripe Grapes.

Burying in jars, waxing the end of each cluster, wrapping in paper, using cotton or sawdust, are variously advised for keeping grapes, but all these methods are too fussy, complicated and unnecessary. Grapes will, without special treatment, keep about as well as apples, if the temperature is cool enough, and not too damp or dry. At our great vineyards the grapes are gathered from the vines into keeping boxes about three feet long, eighteen inches wide, and ten inches deep, the sides tapering to prevent the weight of the fruit pressing too heavily on that beneath. The grapes should be handled as little as possible; they are placed in the boxes as picked, and not disturbed again for several months, being immediately stored in cool, dry cellars until the market suits the grower—often until January or February. They are then packed in boxes of different sizes as the market may demand, and shipped in cases. The fruit must be ripe—imperfectly ripened grapes will not keep by any method. Select kinds that have thick skin and a reputation for keeping. Catawba and Isabella are good keepers, but they are too late in ripening for most localities. Agawam, Salem, Lindly and Diana are better. Concord is not considered a good keeper, but can often be kept until February. When first picked, the house cellar is the coolest place a farmer has, so put them there. As the season advances and the cellar windows are closed, the cellar becomes too warm. No fruit should be kept in the house cellar then. As the cold weather comes on, place the baskets of grapes in a room where they will be kept as cool as possible and will not freeze, and where it is not too dry. If there should be danger of frost, throw a heavy blanket over a pile of the baskets. The grapes will stand considerable cold, but will not endure warmth. Grapes in winter are a great luxury, and withal healthful and appetizing.—Sacramento, Cal. Bee

Oiling Wagon Wheels.

A well made wheel will endure constant wear from ten to twenty-five years, if care is taken to use the right kind and proper amount of grease, but if this matter is not attended to it will be used up in five or six years. Lard should never be used on a wagon, for it will penetrate the hub and work its way out around the tenons of the spokes and wheel. Tallow is the best lubricator for wooden axle trees and castor oil for hubs, but many of the present axle greases are also excellent, and have the merit of being cheaper and easier to handle. Just grease enough should be applied to the spindle of a wagon to give it a slight coating. This is better than more, for the surplus put on will work out at the ends and be forced by the shoulder bands and nut washer into the hub around the outside of the boxes. To oil an iron axle tree, first wipe the spindle clean with a piece of cloth wet with spirits of turpentine, and then apply a few drops of castor oil near the shoulder and end. One teaspoonful is sufficient for the whole.—Farming World.

ACTORS IN SUMMER.

None With Any Money Just Now and a Poor Winter Outlook.

From the New York Sun.

"None of them have any money," remarked the old comedian, as he took his place beside the writer again and ostentatiously dried his moustache, "but they are as happy as so many millionaires. You see, an actor is obliged to lie idle for four or five months every year without pay. How many business men there are who would not be poverty-stricken under such conditions?"

"But I thought that they occasionally had summer engagements?"

"Nor this year," said the old comedian, gloomily. "This is the worst year for actors that I have ever known and this is my forty-seventh year in the 'perfesh.' All the theatres closed in May and the early part of June, because the people wouldn't have any more of them and the few combinations that started out had to walk home within a fortnight. The watering places will have nothing to do with itinerant shows and the country towns have caught a new craze."

"What is it?"

"Roller skating. Every small town and village of the country now has its roller skating rink, where the people gather and put in their time plunging around the floors and trying to master the elusive skate. They have professional teachers from the city in many instances and as the cost of enjoying the sport is very light it has virtually superseded the theatres as a form of amusement. Then, added to this, comes the political excitement. While men can hear stump speeches, brass bands and campaign lies they care little for the artistic enjoyment afforded by the drama. The campaign committees have fireworks, ratification meetings and banner raisings in the towns all the way through the country and of course we have to suffer."

"It seems like a gloomy outlook."

"More so than people outside of the professional ranks can imagine. It is a fact that no one will deny that the majority of managers closed last season in debt. Through the provinces the traveling companies nearly all lost money, and the successes in New York, as you will doubtless remember, can be counted upon your ten fingers. There is little reason to hope that, with the opposition of all the torchlight processions, politicians and other political flummery, next season will be any better. The managers are shy about making contracts and the outlook for the actors grows more and more solemn every day."

A burst of laughter from a neighboring group seemed to belie his words. It was as merry and good-natured a crowd as could be found anywhere in town, despite the gloomy outlook for its members.

Rescued and Rescuer Meet.

From the Lewiston Me., Journal.

The best stories of reunions come a few days afterward. One concerning a well-known loyal major, one of a fighting family, is now being told with great zest among the boys. On Thursday, Major B. J. Hill was seen on the steps of the Elm House crying. He was not doing an ostentatious job, but the fact was unmistakable. It was in the midst of the greetings that a slim man, rather young in appearance, shook hands with Major Hill. He said, "How d'ye do," with an expectant air, and then stood waiting a recognition which did not seem to be forthcoming. Then he said "Don't you remember me?" The result of a close scrutiny was not fruitful in recognition, and the man proceeded, "Don't you remember the boy that lugged you off the field at Cold Harbor?" Then there was a recognition and one of the most affecting scenes possible in such a reunion. It was twenty years ago that young fellow then [illegible] Major Hill off the field at Cold Harbor [illegible]

How the Benders Died.

The sudden disappearance of the members of the murderous Bender family after the revelation of their numerous atrocities, and the failure of all efforts to discover the whereabouts of the fugitives, enshrouded the whole affair with an air of impenetrable mystery. The vail was not lifted until some twelve months ago, when the St. Louis Republican published the story of one of the avenging party which overtook and annihilated the whole family in the Indian Territory not far from the banks of the Grand river. The author of that graphic narrative, Capt. J. C. Reeves, of Appleton City, Mo., is at present a transient guest at the Hotel Barnum, and when seen by a Republican reporter he cheerfully consented to give all the details of the Benders' tragic ending, except the name of the man by whose hand they were slain.

"When Dr. York was missed," the Captain began, "Col. York traced his brother to the house occupied by the Benders. Being unable to obtain any further information of his lost brother he returned to Independence, Kan., and communicated the result of his investigation to Capt. Stone, Sheriff of Montgomery county. The next day Col. York and Capt. Stone visited the Bender residence, and they were received by the man who married Kate Bender, and who went by the name of John Bender. John Bender admitted that Dr. York had stayed at their house, and asserted that he had heard nothing of the Doctor since. Being unable to obtain any satisfaction, Col. York and Capt. Stone retraced their steps to Independence. A posse was formed, and the company started forth determined to investigate the matter to the bottom. When they arrived at the Bender homestead the birds had flown. The house and garden were examined, and in the garden we found nine bodies of murdered persons, one of which was recognized as that of Dr. York. Public indignation at this discovery knew no bounds, and the excitement became intense.

"A party consisting of S. S. Peterson, deputy United States marshal, Col. York, Bell Wright, George Dawson and myself was formed to follow the trail of the Benders. We tracked the wagon to Thayer, Kas., where we found the wagon abandoned. At this point we took the railrood cars for Chanute, on the M., K. and T. railroad. At Chanute we procured another wagon and proceeded in the direction of the Grand river, which runs through the Indian territory. It was in Indian territory on the banks of the Grand river that Col. York, who was in the van of the party, overhauled the Benders. They all died very suddenly and they are buried in the Indian territory near where they fell. I have nothing more to say. That ends the story."

Mexico and It's Resources.

The tableland of Mexico, elevated 5,000 to 8,000 feet above the level of the sea, constitutes the region which ultimately, according to Humboldt, was to be traversed by the people going to the North and South. Mexico has a population of about 10,000,000, of whom about 200,000 are Europeans speaking the Spanish language, and of the remainder about 4,500,000 are Indians. These Indians are different from the Indians familiar to us in their appearance, their bearing, and their utterance. They have finely-shaped heads, good, broad, square foreheads, intelligent eyes. They have, in short, about them the characteristics of their descent from their noble ancestry. Their industries are very little developed as yet. I don't see any immediate prospect but that in the near future there will be a great development of the arts of industry in Mexico. It is a country, as you know, of marvellous richness in mineral wealth. It is estimated that the amount of wealth taken from the mines of Mexico is already more than $4,000,000,000. The prospect of Mexico being able to raise all variety of agricultural products lies in the fact that, notwithstanding her position according to latitude, she embraces every degree of climate that you could find from Florida to the mouth of the St. Lawrence. Along the shores of Mexico, by the level of the sea, you find everything that is grown in the tropics. As you go inland, up the mountain ranges to the tableland, you come into a temperate zone, where you find all the products of such a climate. Heretofore a great disadvantage has rested upon Mexico, from the fact that she has had no means of communication The treasures dug out of her mines have been transported with great labor, cost and slowness. Her agricultural products have been almost worthless, except in the immediate vicinity of the cities. All this is now changed by the railroad connections established. The significance of a Mexican exhibition in an institute like this is that she now has the means of transportation. Mexico is now able to bring here, not only the curiosity of past dynasties, but also the products of her soil and mines. Her citizens can send here now exhibits of every industry and specimen of their handicraft and skill. Now we shall be able to welcome them in person; to learn of the opportunities of the country, to foster and encourage, as has heretofore been impossible, the mutual commercial intercourse between the two republics. The time has gone by when nations live in isolation. All the old barriers are broken down. In the progress of the sciences, in the multiplication of the arts, the world has become unified; all men are learning that nations should dwell together, and should share.—Ex-Governor Rice's Address at the Institute Fair, Boston.

Julia Brace, a blind deaf mute known all over the country, died at Bloomfield, Conn., Tuesday, aged 75. She lost her sight and hearing at 4 years old and soon became dumb. She entered the American asylum at Hartford at the age of 19, and stayed there until twenty or twenty-five years ago, when she moved to Bloomfield. She was one of the early wonders of the asylum with Laura Bridgman. She could distinguish the clothes of different pupils by the touch, and was regularly employed to sort and put away the washing.

Edison, the inventor, is the largest buyer of steam engines in the country, having purchased of one firm 238 engines in the last two years.

Polk County Journal.

H. E. COOKE, Publisher.

CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

The national treasury is loaded down with over $180,000,000 gold and $45,000,000 silver. These sums are far beyond any present or prospective requirements of the government and are continually increasing in volume.

The mere signing on Sunday of a contract which is not delivered on that day does not avoid the contract, according to the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in the case of the Gibbs & Sterrett Manufacturing Company vs. Brucker, of which a report has appeared.

Bigamy is a crime very much more common among men than among women, but occasionally there is a female bigamist with a long record of matrimonial experiences. A late trial in New York has attracted a good deal of attention. A woman who now calls herself Annie E. Whetmore, was arrested some time ago for bigamy in marrying a man named Hawes, whom she was believed to know was already married. Her trial lasted several days, and though Hawes turned state's evidence she was triumphantly acquitted. In the course of the trial it came out that the woman, who is not old by any means, had at various times in her career and at various places comprising about half of the states of the Union, been Mrs. Gentles, Mrs. Wallingford, Mrs. Collier, Mrs. Tiffany, Mrs. Redheffer, Mrs. Baukert, Mrs. Hooper, Mrs. Peacock, and finally Mrs. Hawes. From all of these varied marital obligations, except the last, she had been freed by divorce, usually applied for and obtained within a few months after the ceremony of marriage. She always managed to have a good case, and her husbands do not appear to have thrown any impediment in the way of her fullest liberty.

The King and Emperor business in Europe has seemed to be in a fatal decline, and doubtless it is, but King Humbert of Italy has so conducted himself during the cholera visitation, as to relieve the whole Kingly procession to some extent, from utter uselessness and worse. It is not much, perhaps, that he should visit the hospitals of plague-stricken Naples. Priests and doctors do that in the course of their professional duty, and would be cursed and dispised as selfish cravens if they did not, and royalty is a profession which has its obligations as well as any other. But the simple manliness of his bearing, his frank sympathy, bringing hope and cheer into those dreary abodes of misery, are not professional, but personal qualities. A correspondent says that in visiting one of the Naples hospitals the king passed through the wards calmly, without haste, conversing with those who were able to answer him, noting down their requests and shaking hands with many who could not speak. A cigar was offered him as a safeguard against infection, but he smilingly declined it, saying: "We must not spoil the air for the patients." When he had passed through the wards on the first floor, he was told there was no more to be seen, but he said: "There must be a second story, let us go there also. We are all equal here."

The savings banks of New Hampshire, with aggregate deposits of $42,091,596, have over $10,000,000 loaned to farmers at the west and secured by mortgages. These investments are scattered through Illinois, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado, Iowa, Minnesota and Dakota, and are in addition to loans on city property in Chicago, St. Louis, Minneapolis and St. Paul. The average rate of interest on the farm mortgages is 6½ per cent., the depositors at home receive 4 and 4½ per cent. The New Hampshire Bank Commissioners, having examined these western investments carefully, report that they are amply secured, that the interest is invariably paid when due, and that they have been unable to discover any loss whatever to the investing banks on account of their principal or interest. Nevertheless the most conservative financiers question the wisdom of locking up so great a proportion of the assets of the New Hampshire banks so far from home, when the recovery of the money must depend in some measure on the uncertain contingency of crop success. Hence the commissioners have cautioned the institutions under their charge against [illegible] extension of this line of investment.

Two [illegible] Captain Boycott [illegible]

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

Rail and River Notes.

The Oregon Navigation company asked to list $6,000,000 gold debenture bonds in the New York stock exchange.

The Pullman Palace Car company reports that their business is as satisfactory as ever before, and that their earnings for the current year have exceeded those of any previous years to the present time. Their shops are busy and they have recently closed an important contract with the Merchants' Despatch and Transportation company for a lot of refrigerator cars, which will occupy them for some time.

Casualties of the Week.

Judson Silk of Northfield, Minn., who was shot in the arm while hunting, died the following day.

Col. George H. Woods, a well known grain and commission merchant, was found dead in his room at the Hotel Brunswick, Decatur, Ill., recently, having died suddenly of apoplexy. He served during the war on the staffs of Gen. Phil Sheridan and Gen. Hooker.

Findlay McLellan, a miner, was fatally injured in the Colusia mine at Garrison, Mont. In stepping in the bucket to go to the bottom of the shaft he missed his footing and was precipitated a distance of 600 feet. Almost every bone in his body was broken, his head almost flattened out and his flesh horribly lacerated. He died instantly.

Crimes and Criminals.

The body of Will Lesuer of Grand Rapids, Mich., was washed ashore near Ashland, Wis. Murder is suspected.

Newcomb, Buchanan & Co. of Louisville are said to have duplicated receipts on from 4,000 to 5,000 barrels of whisky.

At Barron, Wis., John O'Leary, convicted of highway robbery, was married to a cyprian just before starting for a year's residence in the Waupun prison.

A great grandson of Patrick Henry was among the drunks and disorderlies who occupied the Louisville calaboose recently, and has probably retired to the rock pile.

A grand jury of Denver has brought in an indictment against Brick Pomeroy. The charges are perjury and gaining money under false pretenses. The requisition papers for Pomeroy's arrest have been issued. The perjury consists in swearing to his advertising bills which he knew to be false.

In Butte, Charles Studer, who was shot by his fifteen-year-old stepson, is dead. Studer married the mother of the boy in Nevada, and having became separated from his wife, followed her and the boy to Butte, where he offensively renewed his attentions, though the woman objected to living with him again.

Inspector Newcombe, of the New York postal detective service, is working up a mysterious mail robbery. On Monday George Crosby, a New York broker, registered a letter said to contain $50,500 in bonds to John L. Watrous of East Hampton, Conn. When the package arrived at East Hampton the securities were gone. Investigation showed that the securities reached New Haven postoffice intact.

Some unknown person fired into a car in which Gov. St. John sat, on his way from Carlisle to Terre Haute recently. The ball passed through the window on the opposite side, making a clean hole and lodging in the side on which St. John sat and a little in front of him. The train was just slowing up south of Sullivan when the shot was fired. The governor took the matter coolly.

Personal News Notes.

Bancroft, the historian, celebrated his eighty-fourth birthday anniversary at Newport Oct. 3. Congratulations from all parts of the world poured in.

Victoria Morosini proposes to sue in open court for the recovery of $75,000 worth of diamonds given her by her father, and now in the latter's possession.

Hillhouse Raymond owns the best horse ranch in Montana. He has 350 head of blooded horses. His fences enclose 10,000 acres of pasture land and he is now making preparations to enclose 10,000 acres more.

Maj. Daniel Simpson, who for over seventy years has acted as drummer for the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Boston, celebrated on Monday the ninety-fourth anniversary of his birth. He was a drummer boy in the war of 1812.

A relative of Miss Welton, the lady who lost her life on Long's Peak, says her mother is traveling abroad. Miss Welton was of a gentle and womanly disposition, gave largely to charity, and was sensitive upon only one subject—her age, which was forty-two years. She was fond of excitement and adventure, but her impulses were controlled by a large amount of caution.

General News Items.

The failures of the week numbered 183 against 201 the week preceding.

Mallon and Rourke, foundry, of New York city, made an assignment. The assets are not known, but estimated at over $100,000.

Breed & Edwards, plow manufacturers of Pittsburg, have made an assignment. Liabilities, $70,000, and nominal assets, $100,000.

P. Lears Matthews, proprietor of the McLean Furniture company, of Lawrenceburg, Ind., has assigned. Liabilities, $20,000; assets, $2,000.

Schedules in the assignment of Henry S. Burger, Richard W. Hurlburt and Cyrus A. Healy, surviving members of Burger, Hurlburt & Livingston, New York sugar refiners, show liabilities, $450,000; nominal assets, [illegible]; actual assets, $300,000.

The grocery firm of Fisher & McEachern, Eau Claire, made an assignment recently. Liabilities, $25,000; assets, $35,000. The principal creditors are Gray, Burt & Kingman, Chicago, and the Eau Claire Grocery company. Cause, slow collections and depression in business.

Montreal Special.—Globensky, father of the daughter who followed her own inclinations in marrying, has finally expressed his intention of disposing of his effects and proceeding to England to live. The young couple have not returned and no tidings have been received of their destination or honeymoon.

Foreign Flashes.

The late Baroness Lionel Nathan de Rothschild left by her will about $500,000 to various [illegible]

During the performance of "Pinafore" in a Dublin theater, the song "He is an Englishman" was drowned in hisses [illegible]

The Irish farmers boycotted the Bessborough agricultural fair at Piltown, in the county of Waterford, recently because Lord Bessborough, [illegible] upon his return to England. He was the recipient of a remarkable farewell ovation. During his travels with his party in the northern territory they were attacked by blacks and some of the party killed. The Duke himself narrowly escaped with his life. Parties have started in pursuit of the blacks to revenge the lives of those killed in the encounter.

[illegible]

The Noble Indian and Bishop Whipple.

Carlisle, Eng., dispatch.—At the church congress on the 2d inst. the bishop of Minnesota, describing foreign missions, narrated the efforts made by the the American church among native Indians. He said there were eight Indian clergymen in a congregation of 1,500 in his own diocese living a civilized and Christian life. The bishop of Fond du Lac also testified to the success of missions in his diocese, where there had been 900 baptized and 800 communicants from one tribe of Indians. The remarks of the bishop were loudly cheered.

Shocking Fanaticism in Pennsylvania.

Erie, Pa., Special Telegram.—The failure of the Erie County Savings bank developed a distressing case of insanity which came nigh terminating with a sacrifice of life. Leo and Francesca Schroeck, a young Bavarian couple, had their all in the defunct bank. During their distress that followed the failure of the bank, a former friend, John Flick of Bavaria, came with a story that Schroeck had committed a crime in the old country and he had been sent to impose a penance. A season of fasting and prayer resulted in a united purpose to bury all their household goods in a grave, and then at 6 o'clock to crucify Schroeck. When found by the officers they had carried out the first part of the programme and had Schroeck stripped ready for the sacrifice. Both Mr. and Mrs. Schroeck are in jail and Flick is at large. The indignation is renewed against the Erie bank officers on account of this affair. It was found that the people intended to enact the death of Christ, to be followed by the killing of children to represent Herod's slaughter of innocents.

Frightful Catastrophe Near Bayfield.

Bayfield, (Wis.) Special: A construction train with three flat cars loaded with piles, and accompanied by twenty-two men, all told, left Washburn after dinner to repair a washout one-half mile south of this point. The train was running at about fifteen miles an hour when it struck a washout just north of the Pike creek bridge, and the engine and tender plunged headlong into it. All the hands were riding on the tender and in the cab of the engine at the time of the accident; and as the engine made the fatal plunge one of the rails ran up through the boiler and the firebox, letting the steam and water escape into the cab and tender, scalding the inmates in a frightful manner. The Masonic lodge of this city was conducting a funeral a short distance from the scene of the accident, and immediately repaired to the spot. The sight was sickening, indeed. Men with the flesh hanging in shreds from faces hands and bodies were lying on the grass or among the ruins. One man was found dead, his skull crushed and otherwise mangled. Another died after being taken from the wreck. The names of the dead are Johnson and McConnell. It is thought that some of those scalded will die.

Death of Frank L. Chanfrau.

New York Special: Frank Chanfrau died Oct. 2. He never recovered consciousness after the stroke of apoplexy with which he was stricken last evening while at dinner. The previous night he forgot his lines for the moment and seemed dazed for a few seconds, but recovered himself and finished the performance. He was deeply moved by the news of McCullough's misfortune, but went to rehearsal, and showed no further signs of illness until the shock, after which he never spoke. He lingered on through the night without any sign other than that he was still living, and died so quickly that no one knew the exact hour at which he breathed his last.

Mr. Chanfrau was one of the few remaining old-timers on the stage who had his training under the stock company system and worked himself up from the lowest rounds of the profession, playing everything that came to his hand, whether it was tragedy, comedy or farce. He was at the time of his death about sixty years old. His first hit was made in '49, while playing general utility at the old Bowery theater, New York, in the part of Mose, the fireman, in "A Glance at New York." The firemen of those days were mostly toughs, butcher boys who wore fancy suspenders with initials worked by their girls, rolled up their trousers and chewed enormous amounts of tobacco. Like Lemaitre with Robert Macaire, Chanfrau resolved to win fame by overdoing the part, appearing in the most exaggerated suspenders and signaling his arrival upon the stage by ejecting a torrent of tobacco juice from his mouth. It caught the boys and he became the pet of the Bowery forthwith.

The Chicago Markets.

Wheat, Chicago spring, 79@79⅝c; No. 3, Chicago spring, 63c; No. 2 red, 82c; No. 3 red, 72c.

Corn, cash, 76¼@78c.

Oats, cash, 26c.

Rye, 55½c.

Barley, 62c.

Pork, cash, $16.75.

Lard, cash, $7.25@$7.30.

Milwaukee Markets.

Wheat, No. 2, 70⅝c.

Corn, No. 2, 55c.

Oats, No. 2 white, 30½c.

Rye, No. 1, 55c; No. 2, 53c.

Barley, No. 2, 58½c; extra No. 3, 47c.

Mess Pork, $16 cash.

Lard—Prime steam, $7.27.

Butter, choice creamery, 26@29c; fair to good, 23@26c; best dairy, 19@21c.

Minneapolis Markets.

WHEAT, No. 1 hard, 80½c; No. 2 hard, 75c; No. 1, 72c.

Corn, No. 2, 55c; rejected, 48@50c; condemned, 35@40c.

Oats, No. 2 old, white, 25@26c; No. 2, new, 26½c; rejected, 22@24c; condemned, 22@23c.

Barley, No. 2, 58@60c.

Mixed Feed, No. 1, $17.50@$18; No. 2, $16.50@17.

Corn Meal, unbolted, $17@$18; bolted, $21@$23.

Hay, timothy, $9@9.50; wild, choice, $8@8.50; No. 2 wild, $5.50@6.75.

St. Paul Markets.

WHEAT.—No. 1 hard, new, 79c; No. 2 hard, 74c; No. 2, 66c.

Corn, No. 2, 53c; No. 3, 48c.

Oats, No. 2 mixed, 24c; No. 2 white, 25c; No. 3 extra, 24c.

Rye, No. 2, 48c.

Barley, No. 2, 57c; No. 3, 40c.

Ground Feed, $18.50.

Baled Hay, $8; timothy hay, $10.00@$10.50.

Flax Seed, $1.15.

Timothy seed, $1.20.

Potatoes, 25c.

Eggs, 14½c.

Butter, dairy fair, 12½c; choice, 15c; creamery, 18c.

Miscellaneous Telegrams.

Iceland was swept by a disastrous hurricane Sept. 11.

John Lyons, of Marquette county, Mich., walked off the dock and slip at Duluth, and drowned.

The duke of Cambridge reviewed the cavalry at Dublin Thursday. He made a private visit to Cardinal McCabe and then started for Belfast, where a loyal reception was given him.

It is stated that the United States in the commercial negotiations in Madrid offered to reduce the duties on sugar and raw tobacco imported from Cuba in return for reduced Cuban duties on American cereals. The question of tariffs is still undecided [illegible]

[illegible]

REPUBLICAN POLITICS.

Progress of the Campaign of Blaine and Logan.

Why Ex-Senator Grady Bolts Cleveland.

New York Telegram.

Ex-Senator Grady, rising to protest against the passage of the resolution and the adoption of the address, made a long speech. He reviewed the whole political career of Cleveland, and quoted freely from the columns of the Times and the Herald in the past in support of the position he (Grady) had now taken. In the course of his speech Grady said:

Neither in the nomination of the ticket nor in the methods by which it was brought about is there the slightest claim upon the great body of Democratic voters for its support. The great majority of the delegates to the convention who named Cleveland their first choice represented Republican constituencies. The number of delegates who openly and earnestly opposed his nomination were recorded, in spite of all their protests as favorable to his candidacy. Every influence that could be employed or engineered by the monopolists who have secured control of the party management was exerted to make him the candidate, and, as you well know, the delegates who left their homes loud in their professions of hostility to his candidacy as inviting certain defeat to the party gave evidence soon after their arrival at Chicago of a change of heart, which only the most simple and charitable have ascribed to pure and worthy motives. The expressed design of men who urged his nomination was to conciliate disgruntled Republicans, not to please Democrats. Preserving to myself the supreme right of a citizen exercising an act of sovereignty, I decline to prostitute my prerogative to the purposes of party managers. Suffrage has been bestowed on me by the institutions of my country that it may be exercised for the country's welfare. To the prosperity and benefits of this land I dedicate it, and I can reconcile without desecration any disposition of it that would result in the support of the political nondescript, clothed in the outward garb of a Democrat, ignorant of the cardinal principles of the political faith which he assumes to profess, and accepting from Democrats their votes that he may delight Republicans and Independents by the manner in which he will exercise the powers conferred upon him by a betrayed and deluded party. But my vote will not be lost to the Democracy. It will be cast for the candidate whose followers will be numbered by hundreds of thousands, whose motives cannot be impugned, for their action can not be inspired by selfish hopes of reward. It will be registered for the principles which the Democratic party professed when it held popular confidence, and for abandoning which it lost popular support. It will be given for the candidate who has no hope of election and no desire for sordid benefits, for political preferment, but who braves fatigue, abuse, and pecuniary loss that true Democrats may find his candidacy a channel through which they may express their sentiments.

I turn my back on the Democratic party, captured and betrayed by Know-nothing demagogues hungry for places and spoils, to join the pure Democracy which struggles for principles which the party organization has abandoned. I denounce the candidate whose only merit is his obscurity that I may follow a statesman whose life has made glorious the history of his country. I decline to bow down before a graven image because I prefer to follow the teachings of the apostle of the true political faith. Preferring shining ability to a dull mediocrity, a true reformer to a sham reformer, a statesman to a hangman, an illustrious citizen to a political adventurer, I decline to support Grover Cleveland for the Presidency, and here and now, in the presence of a leader whom I have always regarded as my political sponser, in the midst of brethren and comrades with whom I have shared many hard-fought battles in the political field, and before the eyes of all the country, to whom I have this night laid bare my motives and purposes, I declare myself in favor of Benjamin F. Butler, soldier, jurist, statesman, and patriot, and I appeal to time for my vindication.

Senator Hoar Speaks Again.

Senator George F. Hoar of Massachusetts made another ringing speech a few days ago, which is thus reported by the Boston traveler:

He proceeded to a discussion of the Southern question. The Southern white Democracy he said, have successfully accomplished their purpose of practically disfranchising the black men of the South, and the forty-four electoral votes representing that colored population in the Electoral College are to be cast by fraud and force, and without right, by the old Southern white slave-holding Democracy.

There is not an intelligent man on this continent that has the slightest idea that Grover Cleveland could be declared President of the United States, unless the votes of Mississippi, South Carolina, Florida, Louisiana and Virginia, forty in all, shall be counted in his favor. There is not an intelligent man on this continent who does not know that the votes of every one of those states would be given, if they could be freely cast, for the republican candidate. [Applause.]

The gentleman who calls himself an Independent, and who proposes, by reason of some dislike or disapprobation of the Republican candidate, to vote for Grover Cleveland, is not to help elect a president of the United States; he is only to make possible the consummation of a political crime by which the choice of a minority of this people may be wrongfully seated in the Presidential chair. He will tell you that he thinks your candidate has done wrong, or offered to do wrong, or made a suggestion of wrong, and yet, can there be a crime against human society so great as the robbery of 6,000,000 of American freemen of their right to vote and as the seating of a usurper in the Presidential chair? I made this statement in Boston at the beginning of the campaign, and I was met by an Independent Boston paper with the statement that I was talking about an issue ten years old; that I was going back into the past to rake up forgotten questions.

Why, my friends, I went down South three months ago, myself, as Chairman of a committee of the Senate, charged with an investigation into the political practices which prevail at this moment in the State of Mississippi.

A voice—How about Rhode Island?

Mr. Hoar—Well, how about Rhode Island? Is there a man in Rhode Island who can not cast his vote according to the Constitution and laws which her people have established? [Loud applause.]

Mr. Hoar then told in a graphic manner the story of the murder of Matthews and the Copiah outrages, by which methods, he said, unless Massachusetts be consistent, a Democratic President is to be seated on the 4th of next March. As further bearing upon this topic, which his friends of the Boston Daily Advertiser said was ten years old, Mr. Hoar read a few sentences from a speech of one Long, a Democratic candidate for Presidential Elector in the state of Florida, showing the Democratic purposes and campaign methods. You want a Bankrupt law; you want a law by which the Massachusetts creditor, if he has debtors anywhere in the country, can have his fair and honest share with the other creditors. But these forty usurped votes that will be cast in solid mass against that Bankrupt law.

You want a navy, but these forty usurped votes are to be cast in solid column every time against the creation of a navy.

You want a tariff for protection to the wages of the American workman, but those forty usurped votes are to be cast in solid mass against the interests and desires of the Massachusetts working people.

I suppose you have a considerable number of foreign-born citizens here—from Germany, from Canada, but most of all from Ireland. These men are our brethren; they are American citizens.

When it is proposed to have a navy by which we can protect their rights when they go home to visit their relations in the Old World, and when we undertake to maintain and improve and perfect the policy which keeps up the rate of their wages here, upon which the comfort of their homes is to depend, I think it is a pretty important present issue whether we are to be encountered by forty fraudulent white democratic votes in the house of representatives (applause) and by a president seated in the presidential chair as a usurper by forty-four electoral votes. [Applause.]

Mr. Hoar then proceeded to a somewhat detailed discussion on the tariff question, treating it substantially as in former speeches and illustrating it by figures which he has used before. [illegible]

We are met to-day by our old adversary, the Democratic party, in the same manner in which [illegible] met us in [illegible] years past. When the question was whether slavery should be extended into the Territories, they met our arguments by calling Abraham Lincoln a baboon. [illegible] people knew better. Now the Democratic party is trying the same thing again. I think the choice and judgment of the Republican party should count for something in determining the character of a Presidential candidate. [Applause.]

I agree with the Boston Daily Advertiser, which declared, when these things were fresh, in 1876, that the men who were pursuing James G. Blaine were the vilest set of political assassins that ever disgraced this or any other country [applause]; and I am prepared to indorse that sentiment now, notwithstanding any recent accession to their number. [Laughter.]

In closing, Mr. Hoar said: I think that the Union is safer with the men who saved it than with those who sought to destroy it. I think liberty and equality are better assured in the hands of the men who abolished slavery than in the hands of men who tried to preserve it. I think that the wages of the American workman, that the comfort and dignity of the workman's home, are better off in the charge of the men who achieved the independence of American manufactures and who have built up these mighty industries, than they are in the hands of the men who have been striving to pull down those industries and to put them under the heel of England. [Applause.]

Large Majority Predicted.

Chicago Special: Joseph B. McCullaugh of St. Louis has returned from a visit to New York. "I met Blaine before he started on his western trip," said the editor, "and I told him my opinion about Ohio. It was that the state is republican by 50,000 majority, and if all the republicans could be got to the polls in October it would be carried by them by that number of votes. There is no doubt at all about their carrying it. The only question is as to their majority. The degree of the momentum given the campaign by the Ohio result will depend on this majority. It will carry the state by 20,000, nothing can prevent Blaine's election. If the state should go democratic, we are whipped. There would be no sort of question, if the democrats carried Ohio, of their national success. I don't think the republicans are making any particular effort to carry Indiana. We concede that to the democrats. Four years ago we carried it at an immense outlay. This year we don't want it if we get New York and hold our strength in the Northern states which have usually gone republican."

"Can you carry New York?"

"If Ohio republican majority there is no doubt about it."

What Wm. Walter Phelps Says.

William Walter Phelps, who passed a few hours in Washington, is reported by the Star as saying that "the people who were trying to cry Blaine down simply did not realize how overwhelming his strength is." He thought Blaine's election was as certain as anything which has not already happened could be. He felt sure of New Jersey, saying that Irish opposition to Cleveland in that state was exceedingly strong. Ohio was safe, and in New York the results would be astonishing; the combinations in that state were all favorable to Blaine, and the Republican committee felt perfect confidence in the situation. In relation to the bets offered by democrats in the New York World, such as $1,000 even that Cleveland would carry the state by 50,000 majority, or $1,000 to $500 that he would get 10,000, etc., he said that it was all for brag, and no money could be found when Blaine's friends wanted to cover it.

Mr. Blaine's Action in the Case of American Citizens.

The Chicago Citizen John F. Finerty's Paper.

On the 24th of May, 1881, before the coercion act had come into his posession, he wrote to Mr. Lowell to use all care and diligence in protecting American citizens, and on the 2d of June following wrote to Mr. Lowell a letter, from which we extract the following instructions in reference to the case of Joseph B. Walsh, of Castlebar, Mayo:

"Whatever the necessity may be in the estimation of her majesty's government for the existence and enforcement in Ireland of the exceptional legislative measures recently enacted in respect to that country, this government cannot view with unconcern the application of the summary proceedings attendant upon the prosecution of these measures to naturalized citizens of the United States of Irish origin, whose business relations may render necessary their presence in Ireland or any part of the United Kingdom, or whose filial instinct and love for kindred may have prompted them to revisit their native country.

"If American citizens, while within British jurisdiction, offend against British laws, this government will not seek to shield them from the legal consequences of the acts; but it must insist upon the application to their cases of those common principles of criminal jurisprudence which in the United States secure to every man who offends against its laws, whether he be an American citizen or foreign subject, those incidents to a criminal prosecution which afford the best safeguard to liberty and the strongest protection against oppression under the form of law, which might otherwise be practiced through excessive zeal.

That an accused person shall immediately upon arrest be informed of the specific crime or offense upon which he is held, and that he shall be afforded an opportunity for a speedy trial before an impartial court and jury, are essentials to every criminal prosecution, necessary alike to the protection of innocence and the ascertainment of guilt. You will lose no time in making the necessary inquiries into the cause of Mr. Walsh's arrest and detention, in which it is probable Mr. Barrows, the consul at Dublin, may be able to aid you. And if you shall find that the circumstances of the case, in the light of this and previous instructions, are such as to call for interference on the part of this government, you will make such temperate but earnest representations as in your judgment will conduce to his speedy trial, or in case there is no specific charge against him, his prompt release from imprisonment.

It is desired that you will report the result of your proceedings to the department with as little delay as convenient." Now what bolder doctrine in regard to American citizenship could Irish-Americans ask than is enunciated here?

Mr. Blaine acted on it throughout, though Guiteau's bullet sped soon after the receipt of the instructions by Mr. Lowell, sadly interfering with his course.

We have been asked several times in the past three or four weeks to explain what is called the McSweeney case. We have refrained so far from doing so, waiting until the campaign orators had exhausted themselves. Now for the facts:

Daniel McSweeney was at one time a resident of California, and no doubt became a citizen of of the United States. In 1876 he returned to his native place in Ireland, near Cardonagh, Donegal. He took up his residence there, occupied a farm, and tilled it, and after a few years was elected a poor-law guardian for his district of the Dunfanaghy union. In 1879, 1880, and 1881 he took a very prominent part in the land league movement. His American experiences made him the most aggressive land leaguer, perhaps, in all Donegal. He was suspected by "Buckshot" Forster, was arrested under the coercion act in July, 1881, and claimed American citizenship. This, it will be remembered, was after Garfield had been shot, and while he was lying on a bed of pain. About a month after he was arrested McSweeney wrote to Mr. Lowell claiming American protection. Mr. Lowell, who is a slow going person, and particularly slow when the case of Irish-American citizens are concerned, communicated with Mr. Simms, the American consul at Belfast, and requested him to investigate the McSweeney case. Mr. Simms did as requested, and reported that Mr. McSweeney, though at one time an American citizen, had apparently retruned to his former allegiance, inasmuch as he had accepted office in Ireland, an office created by the British government contrary to the protest of the Irish people, and had taken up his domicile permanently under the British crown, thereby forfeiting his claims to American citizenship. Mr. Simms advised Mr. Lowell that Mr. McSweeney's case was not for the interference of the American government. While this correspondence was going on Mr. McSweeney became impatient and wrote to Mr. Blaine, then Secretary of State. Mrs. McSweeney also wrote. Mr. Blaine of course referred their letters to Mr. Lowell, who communicated back to Mr. Blaine the result of his investigations. Mr. Blaine advised a further scrutiny, because of the appeal made by Mrs. McSweeney. [illegible]

Before the reply to the American minister at London was received, Garfield had died, and Frelinghuysen had taken his place. The action of Mr. Blaine, however had been productive of good, and in a few months after Mr. McSweeney was released. These are the facts as far as his case is concerned.

Mr. McSweeney, to be sure, complains that Mr. Blaine did not answer his or his wife's letters. This is foolish. If the Secretary of State replied to every complaint made there would be no surplus in the treasury, that is certain. Mr. Blaine did what was meet and proper under the circumstances. He referred the case to Mr. Lowell, the American minister to Great Britian. Mr. Lowell acted, though tardily, on Mr. Blaine's instructions.

Now, it must be remembered in this connection, that Mr. McSweeney had acted as a British subject in Ireland, by holding office. He has held the same office ever since. He is now a poor-law guardian of the Dunfanaghy union, Donegal, Ireland, and only a few months ago he was a defendant in a British court, at Londonderry, Ireland, at the suit of an officer of the union. He is also a candidate for parliament. If elected, he would have to take an oath of allegiance to Queen Victoria, though when he became an American citizen he foreswore allegiance to that personage.

What would American citizens think of a man, an Irishman, or an Englishman, or a scotchman, for instance, who, after accepting the office of alderman, county commissioner, or supervisor, should, when arrested under American law, claim British protection? McSweeney, the Donegal poor-law guardian, claiming American protection, is a parallel case, is it not?

Another Terrible Arraignment.

George H. Ball of Buffalo adds another chapter to the campaign literature, containing further details of Gov. Cleveland's private life. After rehearsing former charges, Mr. Ball continues: "Investigations disclosed still more proof of debaucheries too horrible to relate and too vile to be readily believed. For many years, days devoted to business have been followed by nights of sin. He has lived a bachelor; had no home; avoided the restraints even of hotel or boardinghouse life; lodged in rooms on the third floor in a business block, and made those rooms a harem; foraged outside also in the city and surrounding villages, a champion libertine, an artful seducer, a foe to virtue, an enemy of the family, a snare to youth, and hostile to true womanhood. The Halpin case was not solitary. Women now married and anxious to cover the sins of their youth have been his victims, and are now alarmed lest their relations to him shall be exposed. Some disgraced and broken-hearted victims of his lust now slumber in the grave. Since he has become governor of this great state he has not abated his lecheries. Abundant rumors implicate him at Albany, and well-authenticated facts convict him in Buffalo. His repeated visits to this city have been preceded, with one or two exceptions, by the appearance of veiled female at the foot of the stairs leading to his rooms. She entered the rooms, set things in order, remained with him while he remained, and departed when he returned to the capital. Both of them have been freely exposed in their night-cloths, and seen by several reputable witnesses who are ready to appear and testify in court when properly called. The last amour of this nature, clearly verified, occurred so late as April, 1884. He was here the 4th and 5th of July, but the veiled woman for some reason did not appear at his rooms. These allegations do not rest on rumors, hearsay, or second-hand statement, but upon the testimony of men and women who are personally cognizant of the facts related. Some of our pastors have acted as a provisional committee to listen to the testimony given. A written summary of the evidence has been reviewed by able counsel and pronounced surprisingly full and conclusive. Fully thirty of the ministers of Buffalo, after hearing this summary read, do not hesitate to pronounce him guilty of habitual unchastity and intemperance. The feeling has become deep and wide-spread in Buffalo that he is, indeed, a "moral loper," as the leading democrat Purcell, months since, declared. The possibility of his remaining in the field after his true character has been exposed alarms us. The plea that personal character is of small account in high officials is shocking."

Mr. Blaine on Ohio.

Mr. Blaine's tour through Ohio has been a continued ovation. At every stopping place the people gathered in vast masses to get a sight of him and to hear a word from his life. Nearly all his speeches were brief and mostly without reference to politics; but on a few occasions he referred to the pending canvass.

At Toledo he said: I should at any time deem it unprofitable to speak disrespectfully of political opponents. I should in my present position, deem it altogether improper. I would rather be the victim of slander than the author of it [great cheering]. But there are some things which I do not deem unbecoming to me, holding the position I do, to call your attention to. The Republican party has governed the country for twenty-four years in the spirit and according to the measures of a broad nationality. The progress under our government in that spirit has far transcended the progress made in all the previous years of the nation's history. [Applause.] To remand the government now to the control of our opponents, who do not believe in the constitutionality of the measures which have given this progress, would be a step backward into the dark. [Applause and shouts of "Correct."] When we argue the question of a protective tariff, we are not permitted to regard it merely as one to be settled on the basis of expediency, because the large majority of our opponents hold a protective tariff to be unconstitutional. There is not one great measure that the Republican party has adopted nor one great step the party has taken since the inauguration of Abraham Lincoln in 1861, that the Democratic party has not opposed and has not considered unconstitutional. So that to-day to remand the government of the United States to the control of the Democracy is not merely an ordinary change of parties; it is a total reversal of the policy that has distinguished the government of the United states since 1861. [Renewed applause.] It is giving to the narrowing dogma of states rights the precedence in the grand march which has been made, and which could only be made, under the banner of a broad nationality. ["That's right."] It is on that great plane that the Republican party has done me the honor to present me as a candidate before you. [Applause.] It is on that plane, with all that it implies, that I am before you and before all the people of the United States to-day. [Enthusiastic cheering.]

At Hamilton, he spoke more at length, as follows:

Citizens of Ohio: It is now forty years since the question of a protective tariff engaged the attention of the American people as profoundly as it does to-day. It was in the contest between Mr. Clay and Polk, in 1844, that the great national debate on this question took place, and the protective tariff was defeated, not by the popular vote, but by the bad faith of the party which succeeded in the election; and I beg to call your attention to the fact that the policy of protecting American industry has never been defeated in the United States by popular vote. A contrary policy has been forced on the people at different times through the bad faith of their representatives; but never, I repeat, by popular vote upon a deliberate appeal to the people in their primary capacity. It therefore would seem to be the duty of the people of the United States, if a majority of them believe in the policy of protection, to see to it that that party is sustained which can be trusted to uphold it. [Cheers.] "Yes, but," said a gentleman to me yesterday, "protection does not always secure abundant prosperity. There are a great many idle men now in the country." We'll grant there are. There has never yet been a policy devised by the art of man that will insure, through all times and all seasons, a continuous flow of prosperity; but the question is whether, over a given series of years, there has not been a larger degree of prosperity to the people under the policy of protection than under the policy of free trade. The question is to be gauged and tested not by the experience of a single year, but by the experience of a series of years. We have had the protective tariff now for more than two decades, and ask you whether there has ever been another period in which the United States has made such progress as during the last twenty years. But it is true, now and then there will come a little reaction in business. There will come a little lull and a little reaction even in the laws of nature. You had a great drouth in Ohio this year, but you do not on that account avow that you will have no more rain. [Great cheering.] On the contrary, you are the more firmly persuaded that rain is the only element that will restore the fertility of your soil and richness to your crops. So in this little dullness in the business of the country. The one great element that can be relied on to restore prosperity is the protective tariff. [Renewed cheering.] The question, then, is for Ohio to decide. On the 14th day of this month you will have an opportunity to tell the people of the United States whether you believe in that doctrine. If you do, you will insure not only its continuance but its permanent triumph. [Applause.] But if, on the other hand, you should falter and fall back, it might prove disastrous elsewhere. The responsibility is on you. Is your courage equal to your responsibility? Is your confidence equal to your courage? Then I have nothing more to say except to bid you good bye. [Enthusiastic and prolonged cheering.]

AN EXCITING SPORT.

Spearing Swordfish off Cape May.

Correspondence Philadelphia Times.

"Hey-o!" came from the man in the cross-trees.

"Where away?" yelled the skipper, unhooking his booted leg from the wheel and glancing around.

"Right off the weather bow," sang out the mate, who had sprung into the rigging.

"Aye, I see him," replied the skipper. A moment later all eyes on board were watching a sharp glistening fin that was darting through the water in the same general direction as ourselves.

The mate now took his place in the pulpit, and seizing the steel lily stood ready for the game, while the rope was carefully coiled and the keg made ready to toss at the right moment. For ten minutes the vessel and fish moved along gallantly side by side. The skipper, however, was gradually hauling the vessel on the wind and the two approached each other until the swordfish was close alongside. Then came the supreme moment. The skipper wound away at the wheel and the little vessel shot up into the wind, laying the swordfish right across the bows, and as it rushed along amidst the foam, the harpooner raised his weapon; for a moment the steel lily flashed; then, with a dull thud, it entered the back of the fish.

"Stand clear the line!" shouted the mate, as he sprang back upon the deck and the schooner fell away again.

The warning was well heeded, as the rope was rushing over the side like a "streak of greased lightening," as the skipper had it. It was soon exhausted, and as the end came the mate held aloft the keg and as the last fathom of rope rushed away, tossed it over and away it went, followed by a wave of foam and spray, to ultimately tire the gamy fish.

"Naow all we hev to dew," said the skipper, "is to follow along and pick up another if we can. In August I've had as many as eight kegs out at once, and got so many that we had to make Boston and leave the water alive with 'em. Then again they'll be so tarnation scarce that you won't see one a day."

"There's several curious things about a so'd fish," he continued; "one is that though they can sink a boat with their sword, yet a child can hold them by it. One day my twelve-year-old boy was setting in the boat a-fishing, and as he hauled in the line a so'd fish followed the bait, and as it stuck its sword out of water the lad grabbed it, and the fish could'nt get away and we took it aboard. The next curious thing is about the young. I never thought nothin' about them until a fellow came aboard one day and sez he, 'Cap, I'll give ye $200 for a young swordfish under fifteen inches.' Wall, I thought I had a soft snap, and I let out among the mackerel men that I would pay $50 for one; but curious enough, there wasn't a man that had ever seen one and, of course, I didn't get it. When I went ashore I told the fellow about it, and he said it was the general belief among naturalists that they only breed in European waters as the young are never found here."

We had now gained on the flying keg, and as the dory was hauled alongside two of the crew and the writer as volunteer tumbled in, and in a few moments had the keg alongside. The oars were then pulled in, and a moment later the bowman has seized the keg and the dory was rushing along—a swordfish express. "The work of "taking in" now commenced, one man steering the dory after the erratic steed, the others hauling in on the rope. As the fish felt the strain it renewed its exertions and started off at a furious pace that threatened to leave the vessel far behind. But the sport was of short duration and the dory was rapidly hauled ahead, until finally the sharp fin was close by, and with a rush the fish was laid alongside, one man holding it while the rest got to the windward to prevent a capsize. It was then, as the mate said, that the alleged fun commenced.

Hauled partly out of the water, by the rope, the great fish gave a vicious cut to the left with its sharp weapon, that caused all hands to drop as if sent for, and for some time this lowly position was the best, all things considered. The rope was kept taut and the struggles of the game were terrific. If a head was raised it seemed immediately to become the object of attack. Finally, however, an oar was lifted and a violent blow upon the head placed the swordfish hors du combat. The schooner now came alongside, a block and tackle was rigged and the gamy fish was hoisted aboard.

It was about eight feet in length, the privateersman of the finny tribe, its entire make-up denoting speed. The sword is a long extension of the upper jaw, formed of hardened cartilage, and the explanation of its power of penetrating ships accords with that of the candle that can be shot through a board. It is not so much the hardness of the projectile as the force with which it is fired; and in regard to that force the sword-fish has well been compared to a cannon.

Changes in Barroom Styles.

The New York Sun thinks we are living in a go-ahead age, and instances the changes in barroom styles. Twelve years ago the floor was sanded, pictures of Flora Temple, Peytona and Fashion hung upon the walls, chairs and tables were wooden and primitive, the ceiling was dingy, chandeliers were rusty and fly-tracked, chopped pigs' feet were served as lunch, and whisky and brandy were poured from the bottle. Now all is changed. The barrooms are nooks of luxury. Turkish rugs cover the floors, expensive paintings adorn the walls, marble-topped tables and richly upholstered chairs await occupants, ceilings are frescoed and exquisitely stuccoed, blue enameling, refined bronzed chandeliers, choice salmon is the staple feature in free lunches, and liquors are poured from delicate decanters of cut glass.

The Great Northern Railway has erected in London a hospital for its sick horses at a cost of $50,000.

The divorce case of Emma L. Merell against Asher F., her husband, was tried before Judge Brill at St. Paul. The defendant did not put in an appearance.

Republican Ticket.

For President,
JAMES G. BLAINE,
of Maine.
For Vice President,
JOHN A. LOGAN,
of Illinois.
For Representative in Congress,
HON. KNUTE NELSON,
of Alexandria.

County Ticket.

For Treasurer,
O. H. LUCKEN.
For Auditor,
P. J. McGUIRE.
For Sheriff,
W. F. ZWICKEY.
For Register of Deeds,
A. D. STEPHENS.
For County Attorney,
P. C. SCHMIDT.
For Judge of Probate,
J. G. McGREW.
For County Surveyor,
O. L. HAMERY.
For Coroner,
DR. M. VAN DYKE.

Elsewhere we give place to a communication from Kittson County which, if half of it is true, shows a state of things truly deplorable. We are obliged to take it with a large grain of allowance, because we do not believe Capt. Donaldson is that kind of a man; should he prove to be he should be sat down upon, as that is not the kind of a man we want to represent this District. We have given place to all communications bearing on this question, for the reason that the question is a very important one, and it is right that the voters should have an opportunity to see and know all that can be said for or against any candidate, and with that knowledge before them, be prepared to select a man that will benefit the District. Then, if a poor selection is made, it cannot be said that THE JOURNAL was to blame by suppressing any of the facts.

The Democrats met in solemn conclave on Wednesday, and after a somewhat dramatic (and some assert) stormy interview, incubated the following list of victims:

For Auditor, Joseph Langevin; for Treasurer, M. E. Kirsch; for Sheriff, Dr. L. Beaupre; for Attorney, John Leo; for Judge of Probate, R. J. Montague; for Register of Deeds, John Patterson; for Court Commissioner, J. W. Lilly; for Surveyor, Gardner Stevens.

We consider the ticket by no means a strong one and dictated solely by policy, and we think it is a wrong policy which renders it inharmonious. It certainly will not unite the Democratic vote. It is not put up for lack of material in the party, for the Democrats have in their ranks men, whom, had they been placed upon the ticket, would have drawn largely upon the Republican strength, but that ticket will not do it. They had a chance—one in a thousand—to profit by the mistakes made by the other party, but, as we predicted, they disregarded it and have put in the field a purely policy ticket, put up to cater to a mistaken notion of the importance of the national issue. How carefully they have selected NATIONALITIES and LOCALITIES without regard to QUALIFICATION. This is so plain and the object to secure votes so plain that it will catch nobody. If it has any effect at all it has the effect to weaken the ticket. So far the Republican ticket is by far the best and the strongest. And now comes the fireworks. We are told that an independent ticket will be inflicted upon a helpless people wholly upon a high-toned moral issue with no other earthly purpose—except it be to scoop in the offices. We wait with breathless anxiety the advent of the high moral ticket. We want to see the color of its hair.

Kittson County "Solid."

The claim is made by Mr. Donaldson, and his backers, that Kittson County is solid for Donaldson, in view of the capturing of the convention held at Hallock on the 2d inst.

The south was solid under a shot gun policy, and Kittson County has been made to appear solid for Donaldson by a policy scarcely less vigorous, and scarcely less reprehensible. In proof of this, we submit the following statements, all of which when stated as facts, are facts, and can be suppported by affidavits.

1. The Kittson County Central Committee was composed of H. W. Donaldson, Chairman, and N. P. Peterson, a worthy farmer; the 3d member having turned Democrat and resigned. Donaldson as Chairman called the convention at an early day, October 2d, giving only 12 days notice through one paper only; and this at an exceedingly busy time, when farmers could not leave their stacking, and in some cases at least, did not know of the caucuses called in their town. This plan was favorable to the exclusion of farmers from the caucuses and the manipulation thereof by the political blowers and strikers of Donaldson. Had the convention been postponed 10 days as in Marshall County, farmers would have been over their pressing work, and would doubtless have turned out in much greater force.

2. All the newly organized towns were omitted from the call, by Donaldson, the effect being to keep the number of delegates composing the convention down to 13, of which 7 would be a majority; and to control this number, and thus capture the convention, Donaldson strained every nerve, and used every advantage which $50,000 in chattel mortgages against Kittson County farmers and over 200 farm laborers gave him. [illegible] Kennedy, where Donaldson's store is situated, is in the town of Tegner, and is entitled to 2 delegates on account of 50 votes cast by Donaldson's men. The town is largely Scandinavians, many if not most of whom are opposed to Donaldson, although many of them are so much indebted to him that they are not in a situation to openly oppose him. The caucus in this town was called by Donaldson's attorney at Donaldson's store, in the corner of the town, at the unreasonable hour of 12:30 p. m., Sept. 27, an hour when few, if any farmers could have been present, if indeed, they happened to hear of it at all. The result was that most of the Scandinavians were not aware of the caucus, or could not be present, and there were present only H. W. Donaldson, 5 or 6 of his clerks and employees, besides two or three other parties, who appeared to be mere spectators, taking no active part in the proceedings. Of course the 2 delegates were quite unanimously elected by the motions and votes of H. W. Donaldson and his clerks, one being Donaldson himself, and the other a Swede under his control.

4. In Hallock a political trade, was doubtless made, with the present and prospective county officials, who exerted the "ring" influence in Donaldson's favor, in return for services previously rendered, or to be rendered hereafter.

5. In the town of Thompson the caucus was packed with the men employed on one of the three farms operated by Donaldson situated in this town; by their votes a very worthy gentleman and solid farmer was elected delegate, but he proved himself, whether intentionally or otherwise, a pliant tool in the hands of Donaldson, while acting as chairman of the convention.

6. In the town of Red River, in which one of the smallest farming headquarters of Donaldson is situated, where but a few men are usually employed, 40 men from the large farm in the adjoining town were sent in to pack the caucus, led by their foreman, and it was effectually controlled. In this town the inhabitants, all Scandinavians, are opposed almost unanimously to Donaldson, and only two of them voted for his delegate. The rest of the voters, finding themselves overpowered, held a separate caucus, and sent a delegate to Hallock, but his credentials were ignored by the committee on credentials, and he was choked down while trying to keep the floor to claim his rights; while the delegate elected by the Donaldson employees was duly admitted.

7. In the town of Davis (adjoining Kennedy) a large number of the voters are more or less in debt to Donaldson; the chattel mortgages in his favor on file numbering 21, and aggregating about $5,000. At this caucus, Donaldson himself, his attorney and one of his foremen were present. Voters were strictly watched, and although the voting was by ballot, a species of intimidation was carried on. The attorney was seen to examine the tickets voted by the mortgagors, and to take tickets from them and give them others, which he told them they were to vote. A three cornered fight took place here, the clear majority against Donaldson being split into two parts, owing to local causes. After balloting till 12 p. m., the caucus adjourned till another evening. On the Sunday which intervened, Donaldson and his attorney rode through the town, calling on the indebted; telling them what he wanted them to do, and that he intended to help his friends, and not those who were working against him. On the second evening balloting continued for some hours, when finally the anti-Donaldson men combined, resulting in the defeat of his delegate by a handsome majority. Upon this the chief fugle-men of the would-be-legislator became abusive and turbulent, shaking his fist under the noses of respectable citizens, and doing all in his power to promote a breach of the peace, which indeed came very near occurring.

8. In St. Vincent the caucus was principally composed of railway employees, all of whom, as of course they would naturally be, are Donaldson men, the farmers not being present, and the 2 delegates were thus easily secured.

9. In two of the newly organized towns not included in the call, bogus caucuses were held by the handful of Donaldson men in the towns, and unknown to the other voters; and delegates were present in the convention armed with credentials, to be used in case of need; but as all was satisfactory without them they did not show up.

In this manner, a two-thirds majority of the 13 delegates was secured and when the convention met, all was naturally "solid." Motions were made, put and carried through under whip and spur, no opportunity for debate being given, and the anti-Donaldson delegates, of whom there were several, seeing that there was no show even to obtain the floor, made no attempt to interrupt the harmony of the proceedings, except by voting "no" on a viva voce election of delegates to the Crookston convention. Of course they were outvoted, and the Donaldson nominees were duly, but not unaniously elected.

The Anti-Donaldson men deemed it best to maintain a dignified silence, conscious that Kittson County is not the District, and that there is an appeal beyond the dictum of packed Conventions, and that is to the sovereign people themselves. Parties familiar with the feeling of the Kittson County people assure us that the popular feeling is very strong against Donaldson, and it remains to be seen whether Marshall County and the 45th District will sanction this attempt to overrule control the popular will, or whether they will rebuke it in convention and at the polls.

CITIZEN.

MEETING OF COUNTY BOARD.

The board of County Commissioners assembled at their office in the city of Crookston on Wednesday Oct. 1st, 1884, at 2 o'clock p. m. pursuant to adjournment. All members present. Commissioner Brown in the chair. The minutes of the last session were read and on motion approved.

Messrs. Potter & George of Crookston were appointed text-book agents and their bond fixed at $1,000.

The following liquor licenses were granted: Joseph Allard, of Carman, John B. LaBree of North, and A. Gilmour of Garfield.

The liquor bond of Beaudette & Son and O. P. Gaudette & Bro. of Gentilly and Richard Davison of Mallory were approved and said parties were required to pay the necessary fees into the County Treasury.

The vault built by August Koeppe at the court house was accepted and the chairman authorized to issue his order on the county treasurer for the sum of $984 in payment of same. The chairman was authorized to make the necessary repairs on court-house.

On application of Isadore Fortier Esqr. the sum of $75 was appropriated out of the county poor fund for the purpose of sending an indigent family (Mrs. J. B. Lerenystol) to Canada and the Auditor was directed to issue his warrant for said amount.

On motion the chairman was authorized to send Andrew Miller and family (destitute) out of the county.

Sealed bids being opened for appointment as overseer of the poor, the lowest bid being $600 per annum, it was decided not to make any appointment for the reason that the amount paid out last year to the several members of the board for such services did not exceed $120.

Dr. A. Gaboury was appointed physician for the 3rd district for one year at a salary of $270.

The Auditor was directed to advertise for bids from physicians for attending to the poor in the 13 Townships.

On motion the sum of $8.00 per month for 8 months was allowed John Shagerstrom a pauper residing in the 3rd commissioners district.

The application of Charles Lopton, Henry Burkhardt, J. Hunter and John Gurest were granted.

On motion the sum of $10.00 per month for 8 months was allowed John Ludopky a pauper residing in the 3rd commissioner district.

School district No. 131 was organized comprising sections 1, 2, 3, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, township 149, range 40, in compliance with the prayers of the petitioners.

The petetion of Osmund Osmundson was rejected.

The application of Wm. Iland for correction of assessment for the year 1884 was granted and a reduction of $11.00 ordered.

The application of A. O. Bailey was favorably recommended to the State Auditor.

Messrs. Sullivan and Bradish reported that the township of Grand Forks had completed the bridge situated in the north end of said township, and the chairman was directed to issue his order on the county treasurer for the sum of $400.00 in favor of the treasurer of said township.

The Chairman was authorized and directed to issue his order on the county treasurer for the sum of $500 in favor of A. E. Rhinehart for building a bridge in Higdem township.

The petition of W. D. Bailey and others for a county road from the south eastern corner of Polk county to Crookston was received and no action was taken on said petition. However, on recommendation of commissioners Nelson and Kretzschmar the sum of $500 was appropriated for the purpose of aiding the several towns through which said proposed road may pass towards the establishing of suitable highways. Such amount to be expended under the supervision of commissioner Kretzschmar.

The salary of janitor was raised $5 per month during the winter season. On motion the chairman was authorized to employ a suitable party to examine the several combination bridges in the county and make report at the next session of the board.

The following claims were audited and allowed.

August Koeppe plastering done at court house $5.50
Crookston Telephone Co. use of instrument to Oct. 1st, 1884....$26.25.
H. A. Massey constable fees..$5.10.
O. M. Holmes printing.....$112.60.
R. Fennery witness fees......$4.00.
Beecher & George sundries.... 2.65.
H. W. Lewis jurors fees and mileage (coroner)..................$0.74.
Stewart & Lawrence lumber.$20.06.
John H. Lucken witness fees.$4.60.
Pioneer Press Co. stationery $322.18.
G. W. Lewis drawing jury.....$2.00.
Henry Sheppard coroner fees $10.40.
Dr. C. E. Dampier attendance on prisoners.........................$2.00.
J. W. Lily justice fees.......$16.15.
G. M. Barber & Co. stationery.....................................$7.50.
Thos. C. Shapleigh fees of clerk of district court...............$156.54.
P. J. McGuire postage and express charges.......................$16.85.
K. Nelson Mdse. to paupers.$27.35.
M. Kundert assisting coroner.$5.00.
Osmund Olson boarding a pauper....................................$32.00.
K. Nelson commissioner fee and mileage.........................$12.60.
E. A. Bradish commissioner fee and mileage.........................$15.90.
T. Sullivan commissioner fee and mileage.........................$16.30.
Carl Kretzsmar commissioner fee and mileage.....................$10.40.
M. H. Brown commissioner fee and mileage and committee work..$30.20.
T. Sullivan attendance on pauper ....$6.00.

The claim of Damas Dallick was laid over.

On motion the Board adjourned until the 7th day of November at 2 o'clock p. m.

P. J. McGUIRE,
Clerk.

NOTICE.

As I have established a Nursery in Crookston and propose to continue the business, I will announce to our former customers and all that are desirous of obtaining trees and plants the coming spring that I will sell said stock at prices below any competition. Call and see me before making purchase elsewhere. Residence on second block north of Court House or address P. O. Box 75[illegible].
Most Respectfully,
[illegible]

Closing Out Sale
AT CHINIQUY'S
Chicago Dry Goods House.

Having decided to
Quit Business,
I will sell at retail, or in lots, my
ENTIRE STOCK AT COST
And Below Cost,
—CONSISTING OF—
DRESS GOODS,
FLANNELS, BLANKETS,
JEANS, NOTIONS, YARNS,
HOSIERY, UNDERWEAR,
Boots and Shoes,
Trunks and Valises, Etc., Etc.

Terms Net Cash!

A Gold Watch Earned In Six Days.

Some weeks since, a lady, (Mrs. Rev. J. A. Brown, Pittsville, Wis., to whom we refer those who wish to know how we deal with those who work for us,) wrote to us that she needed a watch and asked if she could not earn one by introducing our valuable books. We replied, making her a special offer, and she soon earned a beautiful gold watch, and was so pleased with it, and such a sensation was made in her neighborhood by her success, that we have concluded to extend the offer, and have printed a circular, giving full particulars, which we send free to any address. Any active lady can earn the watch in 6 days. Other valuable articles sent to those who want something else. This offer is made to introduce our publications where they are not known. Address, BUCKEYE PUB. CO., Minneapolis, Minn.

Hard Pen Prices.

Minnesota Farmer: The agricultural interests would have greater cause to hang its harp on the weeping willow tree if it were not for the fact that low prices of other commodities compensate in some measure for the low prices of farm products. We have reached a period which takes all the significance out of the oft-cited times "before the war" when everything was so delightfully cheap. In a little over two years we have experienced an average decline in prices of about thirty per cent. Railroad stocks and wheat are not the only forms of property that have been shrinking in nominal value. If the farmer's wheat which brought $1.25 in Chicago about two years ago will only bring 75 cents now, that same farmer can buy his sugar to-day at just about the same percentage of decline. Sugar which was quoted in New York at 09½ in July, 1882, is now quoted at 06½. He can buy his clothing at an average of about fifteen per cent. reduction. Coal in the new market has declined 20 per cent in two years. Petroleum has dropped 34 per cent. in the past fourteen months. Nails are 38 per cent. cheaper, and all kinds of iron products are similarly cheapened. The farmer should note also another point, and act upon it. While grain has fallen 30 per cent., the prices of fresh meats in the new market have advanced. A good stock farm is a profitable piece of property in these times. The situation should teach northwestern farmers the importance of getting into condition to feed their grain to stock. Taking into account the reduced cost of living resulting from low prices of such articles as the farmer is obliged to purchase, the man who markets his surplus in the form of live stock has little reason to complain of the times. If he sells lower than two years ago he buys still lower. A period of low prices has come to stay awhile. Some articles have reached the bottom and will slowly rise; others have not yet struck the shelf rock. Prosperity does not mean high prices, but properly balanced prices and the adjustment [illegible]

The Red Lake Falls
FLOURING
MILL

Has lately been enlarged and is now prepared to do custom work without delay. Stable room free.
BUSE & COLBENTSON,
Proprietors, Red Lake Falls, Minn.

FURNITURE STORE,
BROADWAY, CROOKSTON MINNESOTA.
P. BATAGLIA, Prop.

Keeps constantly on hand a well selected stock of Wardrobes, Bureaus, Sofas, Lounges, Bedsteads, Bed Springs, Tables, Chairs, Rocking Chairs, Stands, Ornaments, Picture Mouldings, and Picture Frames. REPAIRING DONE TO ORDER. Coffins of all kinds kept constantly on hand.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 24th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on No. 22d, 1884, viz: JOHN E. MARTELL, H'd No. 8292, for the sw¼ S. 24, T. 148, R. 47. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: M. G. Leguee, Chas P. Cahoon, John A. Lytle and Stephen Dewal, all of Crookston, Polk Co., Minn.

[22-27] JOHN CROMB, Register.

THE PIONEER
HARNESS SHOP,
M. RAUENBUEHLER, Proprietor,
CORNER OAK AND THIRD STS., CROOKSTON MINN

Is ready for the Spring trade with a full supply of Work and Light Harness, Single and Double, saddles, Bridles, Whips, Blankets, etc. Give me a call before you purchase.

MERCHANTS'
BILLIARD HALL,
FRED ANDERSON, Proprietor.
CROOKSTON, - MINNESOTA.

The choicest Wines, Liquors and Cigars constantly on hand.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Oct. 2d, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 8th, 1884; viz: THOMAS WALLACE, H'd No. 2736, for the nw¼ S. 34, T. 149 n. R. 46 w. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Peter Nissen, James Moore, Hans Clausen and Mathew Baatz, all of Crookston, Polk Co., Minn.

[23-28] JOHN CROMB, Register.

MERCHANTS' HOTEL,
J. E. MITTON, Proprietor,
CORNER BROADWAY AND ROBERT STREET,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

The new Merchants' Hotel, recently re-fitted and re-furnished is now ready to accommodate the traveling public, who are cordially invited to stop at the Merchants' when in the city.

JOHN N. IVES.
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
Collection and Land Office Business made a specialty. Money secured for final proofs on short notice.
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Oct. 8th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 20th, 1884, viz: OSCAR B. JOHNSON, Pre. D. S. No. 8468, for the sw¼ S. 12, T. 148, R. 46. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Oren Simmons, John Hraness, John Johnson and G. P. Houre, all of Crookston, Minn.

[24-29] JOHN CROMB, Register.

McKINNON BROS.,
Carriage Works
Robert Street,
Crookston, - Minn.
AGENTS FOR THE
J. I. CASE THRESHING MACHINES!
And Manufacturers of Carriages, Wagons,
BUGGIES,
Cutters, Sleds, &c.
Axles, Springs, and all Repairs kept in stock,
DEALERS IN
FARM MACHINERY.

In Farm Machinery we have the Champion Seeder, Fargo Diamond Tooth Harrow, Kalamazoo Spring Tooth Harrow, Davenport and Grand Detour Sulky and Walking Plows, Buford Gang Plows, Field Rollers of all sizes, Warrior Mowers, the leading Hay Rake and first-class Harvesters and Binders, the Webber Wagon and McKinnon Bros. Wagon. In fact we have everything in machinery, from

A Wheelbarrow to a Threshing Machine!
—EXTRAS—
For all Machines constantly on hand

E. M. Walsh,
DEALER IN
Hardware, Tinware
BAR IRON, STEEL,
BLACKSMITHS SUPPLIES,
BUILDING PAPER,
&c., &c. Also Agent
For the Celebrated Monitor Plows.
CROOKSTON, MINN.

THE
J. I. CASE
THRESHING MACHINE COMPANY
The Dennet or Beloit
HARVESTING MACHINE COMPANY!
And the Van Brunt & Davis
SEEDER COMPANY,
Are Represented
BY
STEENERSON BROS.,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

The Old Brick Block
IS THE PLACE
To Buy Dry Goods, Groceries, Clothing, Boots and Shoe Hats and Caps, or anything you want.
FONTAINE & ANGLIM
IS THE FIRM
Who are ready with a corps of affable clerks to show you their NEW FALL and WINTER STOCK and quote prices to astonish the natives.
Great Bargains!
Don't forget to visit Fontaine & Anglim's Emporium, in the Old Brick Block
MAIN STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN.

Polk County Journal.

Crookston, Minn., Thursday, October 9.

RAILROAD TIME TABLE.

GOING NORTH.

	ARRIVE.	LEAVE.
No. 1 Passenger	10:45 p. m.	10:55 p. m.
9 Passenger	10:20 a. m.
13 Freight	12:30 a. m.
15 Freight	4:00 p. m.
23 Freight		10:30 a. m.

GOING SOUTH.

	ARRIVE.	LEAVE.
No. 2 Passenger	4:00 a. m.	4:30 a. m.
10 Passenger		5:00 p. m.
20 Freight		7:00 a. m.
22 Freight		6:15 p. m.
24 Freight	5:00 p. m.

DEVIL'S LAKE LINE.

	ARRIVE.	LEAVE.
No. 9 Passenger		10:20 a. m.
10 Passenger	5:30 p. m.
45 Freight		6:00 a. m.
46 Freight	7:00 p. m.

ST. HILAIRE BRANCH.

Trains leave Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays at 10:15 a. m., and arrive same days at 4:00 p. m.

☞ Passenger Trains No's 1 and 2, Main Line, run daily except Sunday. No's 3 and 4 run daily. Devil's Lake Passenger runs daily. Freights No's 23, 20 and 24 run daily. Freights No's 15 and 22, and Freights on Devil's Lake Line run daily except Sunday.

Crookston!

COUNTY SEAT

—OF—

Polk County

MINN.

Polk County is distinguished by being the central and much the largest of the counties of the Red River Valley. Bounded on the west by the Red River and intersected by the Red Lake River, which rising in Red Lake runs nearly due west to its junction with the Red, at Grand Forks, and again intersected by the main line of the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway the great thoroughfare from St. Paul to Winnepeg, with an east and west line of railway crossing the valley on the north bank of the Red Lake River, and extending west into Dakota to Devil's Lake; this county should be, and doubtless is, the richest and every way the most inviting to home seekers and capitalists of the many counties in the Northwest that are now candidates for popular favor. The size of this county is also a distinguished feature. It has eighty townships already settled, organized in separate political communities, being more than four times the avarage size of the counties in the State. It contains a farm, for each, of one hundred and sixty acres, of the best land on this or any continent, all ready for the plow for eleven thousand five hundred and twenty farmers for there are here no deductions to be made for mountains, broken or boggy land, all is available, and of nearly uniform quality. These two streams are skirted by continuous belts of timber of about a half mile in width on each side consisting of oak, ash, elm, box elder and bass wood. Water is good and abundant. The length of the seasons between the last frost in the spring and the first in the fall avarages about four months. With these natural advantages we may reasonably expect all the lands to be put in cultivation in the near future giving us a rural population of fifty thousand with an equal number in the villages and cities. That this estimate is not extravagant will appear when it is stated that the settlement of the county dates practically from the year 1878 and it has now a population of about 20,000. Near the geographical centre of this great county, on the Red Lake River, where the main line of the St. P., M. & M. R'y crosses it and at the intersection of the two railroads of the county, and nestling in the groves along the banks of a beautiful river which doubles upon itself every half mile apparently to give every man a river front, is the

CITY OF CROOKSTON.

The valley of this stream is about one mile in width and is thirty feet above the river and about the same below the general level of the adjacent prairie. Through this valley overgrown with forest trees the Red Lake River in graceful folds touching now the right bank and then the left moves westward at the rate of four miles per hour to its point of conjunction with its sister, the Red, in the centre of the great Red River Valley. For picturesque beauty and comfortable protection the town site of Crookston is without a rival or a peer in the Northwest. The growth of the place dates from 1878 before which date from 1872 there were a few pioneers waiting for the building of the St. P., M. & M. R. R. through to the boundary line and for the settlement of the county, but since 1878 its growth has been steady but not rapid, adding about 800 each year to its population. Fortunately it has escaped the epidemic so [illegible] to most Northwestern [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] is the rule and the exceptions are the new comers from below the 42d parallel who come here for that boon, most valued when lost—health. She has good educational advantages. Her central school building is a beautiful brick structure, costing $25,000, two ward school buildings cost with the grounds $5,000. Ten teachers are now employed and more are needed. The total enrollment is 700, average attenpance something over 500. The schools are thoroughly graded and the high school fits students for admission to the freshman class of the State University. Seven churches representing that number of the phases of theological opinion is a sufficient variety to meet present requirements. A skating rink 44x120 feet and open day and night is presumed to minister both to pleasure and health. A fine opera house with a seating capacity of 600 is found to be a paying investment to its owner. Two well drilled bands in fine uniform enliven the streets on holidays and extra occasions. It has electric light, water works, fire companies, and of secret societies QUANTUM SUFFICET. It has business establishments of course too numerous to mention, but among them are two banks, with fine brick buildings, the First National with a paid up capital of $100,000, and the Merchant's, now just changed to the Merchant's National with a paid up capital of $75,000, seven hotels, two wagon factories, a foundry and machine shop, plaining mill, sash, door and blind factory, two flouring mills of 450 barrels capacity, a saw mill with a capacity of 25,000,000 per year, large brewery, three livery barns, three exclusive hardware stores, and four drug stores with several large general stores, etc., etc. Crookston has the United States land office for this district which is doing an immense amount of business in disposing of the public lands under the homestead, pre-emption and timber culture laws. It is the county seat or political capitol of the immense County of Polk, larger than the State of Connecticut and with many times greater resources. This county will market this year, in the infancy of its development, 2,000,000 bushels of the famous No. 1 Hard wheat, and nearly one-half that amount at Crookston. From the foregoing sketch with the &c., &c., filled in by an ordinary effort of immigration, it will be seen that Crookston is, even now, "no mean city," considering its age, but like most western towns it is most remarkable for what IT IS TO BE, nor is this at all strange. There was a time in the history of all towns when their greatness lay concealed from all conservatives and croakers, but was plainly revealed to the far-seeing and enterprising man who boldly came to the front and put his capital and his brains to the work of transforming his hopes into realities, and the city of his imagination of yesterday materialized before the eyes of the doubter and the man of enterprise filled his coffers to his heart's content. What then are Crookston's

UNDEVELOPED RESOURCES.

1st. Its central location in the county, with its railroads running east and west, north and south, makes it as certainly a commercial center as its being a county seat makes it a political center for the County of Polk. The county contains 1,853,000 acres of the best of land, not one-tenth of which is under cultivation. It is all available. It now raises for export 2,000,000 bushels of wheat, and it is capable of raising 20,000,000 bushels, or what would be better still for all concerned, its equivalent in wheat and other products, and the soil and climate is just as well adapted to raising of barley, rye, oats, flax, peas, corn, stock and pork as to raising wheat, and as land is cheap and within easy reach of men of ordinary means, we have good reasons to expect that the same rate of settlement that has given us 20,000 in the past five years will continue for the next five and the next ten years, till the county will count its forty or fifty thousand people on its farms alone, and to handle the products of these farms and to supply them with dry goods, groceries, hardware, farm implements, furniture, lumber, &c., &c. will require a town centrally located and accessible by rail and wagon roads, of at least ten or fifteen thousand people.

2d. It has a large water power, a small part of which only is developed and in use. This might mean very little, in some localities it would, but here it is of immense significance. This is the great wheat field of the continent, and wheat will always be a staple production and its reduction to flour is a matter of POWER, and the fuel and other extra expenses for steam over water power, where wood is worth three dollars per cord or coal the equivalent of that price, is at least fifteen cents per barrel, or thirty dollars per day, for a 200 barrel mill. Now, Crookston is in the geographical center of this great wheat field, the Red River Valley, which will soon produce for export fully 100,000,000 bushels of wheat, and a wheat worth in any milling market more by ten cents per bushel than any other wheat raised in America and as a consequence, water power is worth more here for this manufacture alone than it is worth anywhere else in the world, and this would be true even if water powers were plenty on the Red River and all its tributaries, but there are no powers on the Red River nor its tributaries in the valley. [illegible] where the Red drops [illegible] is the only power in the valley proper, and the only one anywhere on any line of railroad within one hundred miles. It is surely as valuable here as anywhere in the United States. The undeveloped power here that can be very cheaply improved is sufficient to operate ten flouring mills of a capacity of 200 barrels per day each. It is only a question of dilligence and promptness on the part of capitalists, as to who will make a fortune for himself and add several thousands to the population of this young city by the improvement of this power.

3d. Crookston is to be the great lumbering centre of the Northwest an industry as yet almost wholly undeveloped. There is on the Red Lake River a virgin body of white pine of three billion feet or over. It is mostly on an Indian Reservation and cannot be cut till the Indian title is extinguished. It is doing the Indians no good but is being domaged by fires and deteriorating in value. A bill is now on the calender of the House of Representatives of the United States, having been unanimously reported by the committee on Indian affairs and having the approbation of the Hon. Secretary of the Interior and the Commissioner of the Indian Bureau and is confidently expected to become a law at the next session of Congress that will open this body of pine to sale at auction. There is enough of this pine to supply eight mills of capacity each of 20,000,000 feet per year for twenty years and a market right at home to consume it all. Northwestern Minnesota and Northern Dakota, a vast prairie region much larger than the State of Illinois is to be supplied from this body of pine. It must float down the Red Lake River and Crookston is the first point it reaches where there are railroads to distribute it, and the only point having ample boomage facilities for handling the logs and at Crookston this lumber will be manufactured and from there distributed, but this is an infant industry, the first mill is only recently started and is now turning out 150,000 feet per day.

WHAT CROOKSTON NEEDS.

By this is meant what are the eligible openings for profitable investment.

It needs $400,000 of additional banking capital.

It needs more capital invested in every line of business and trade now established.

It needs tenament houses by the score; rents are very high; six room houses rent for from $20 to $25 per month.

It needs capital to improve its water power.

It needs ten good flouring mills.

It needs four or six good first-class saw mills.

It needs a paper mill to work up the thousands of tons of straw now being burnt on the surrounding prairies.

It needs a twine factory. $20,000 worth of binding twine has been sold in Crookston within the past six weeks.

It needs men of brains and pluck in all the trades and professions. In short, it offers the ground floor to such men as have built up the thriving commercial and manufacturing towns of the West, and to such it offers unequaled inducements.

Respectfully, R. REYNOLDS.

Republican Senatorial Convention.

The Republicans of the 45th Senatorial District are hereby notified to meet in delegate convention in the Court house hall, in the city of Crookston, on the 15th day of Oct. at 2 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of placing in nomination a Representative to the State Legislature. The counties will be entitled to delegates as follows: Kittson 3, Marshall 3, Polk 7, Norman 3.

M. R. BROWN, Chairman.
PETER RAMSTAD, Secretary.

To The Public.

We wish to state to the people of Crookston and vicinity, that we have purchased the stock of greceries owned by J. L. Bailey, on Broadway, opposite the post office. We purpose to carry on the trade at the old stand, and will keep on hand, at all times, a fresh stock of groceries, provisions, etc., and we ask a share of the patronage of the generous public.

[5-tf] BAUSCHMAN & MILETTE.

Notice to Farmers.

C. Kretzschmar's Grist Mill, at Red Lake Falls, is again open for business. Flour will be exchanged for wheat, or your wheat will be ground on shares. A good feed mill is run in connection with the mill and satisfaction in all cases is guaranteed. Flour and feed on hand at all times and sold at lowest market rates.

[10-tf] C. KRETZSCHMAR.

At Seely's

You can find some extra fine crab-apple cider; old bourbon whisky, eight years old. Maryland Club, pure rye; Jules and G. H. Mum's extra dry champagne; imported Scotch ales and porters for medicinal purposes; also a fine stock of imported cigars. Call and sample. [22-tf]

TO PARTIES DESIRING INSURANCE!

We represent the following old and reliable Fire Insurance Companies:

	Assets.
Ætna	$9,182,644
American	1,804,519
Fire Association	4,279,676
Underwriters	3,609,794
Orient	1,411,894
Phœnix	5,019,403
Lancashire	6,787,088
Milwaukee Mech	1,120,375
Germania	2,700,729

Having represented nearly all of the above companies for 14 years we have acquainted ourselves with the business and think that we can justly claim the patronage of the public, who can depend upon having insurance written correctly and losses adjusted promptly.

MOSER & MOECKEL.

The United States Internal Revenue Special Tax is due May 1st. Any information and a full line of blanks can be had by calling on or addressing

JOHN McLEAN,
Attorney at Law,
[17-tf] Crookston, Minn.

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First Publication September 18th, 1884.]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the payment of the sum of two hundred and thirty-four and 23-100 dollars ($234.23-100) according to the condition of a certain mortgage duly made, executed and delivered by John P. Larson and Catharina A. Larson, his wife, of Polk County, Minnesota, mortgagors, to Peter Stenseth, of Polk County, Minnesota, mortgagee, to secure the payment of one note of the sum of two hundred and fifteen dollars, with interest at the rate of seven per cent per annum, and bearing date the eighth day of June 1883 and payable on the eighth day of December 1883, and which mortgage was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota on the eighth day of June A. D. 1883, at 8:25 o'clock p. m. of that day in book "N" of mortgages, on page forty-six (46,) and whereas, no action or proceedings at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt or interest secured by said mortgage or any part thereof, and, whereas, there is claimed to be due, and is due, at the date of this notice the sum of two hundred and thirty-four 23-100 dollars ($234.23-100).

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the provisions of the statute in such case made and provided, all the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, to-wit: The northwest quarter of Section one (1,) in Township one hundred and fifty-two (152) north, of Range forty-five (45) west, containing one hundred and sixty acres, more or less according to the government survey thereof, which tract or piece of land is situated in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, together with the hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging, will be sold by the Sheriff of Polk County, Minnesota, at the frontdoor of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County of Polk, on the 7th day of November A. D. 1884, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of said day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and fourteen and 45-100 dollars $(14.45-100) taxes, which has been paid by the mortgagee, and thirty dollars attorney's fees stipulated in said mortgage, besides the costs and disbursements allowed by law, subject nevertheless to redemption at any time within one year from date of sale as provided by law.

Dated September 18th 1884.

PETER STENSETH,
Mortgagee.

A. P. BOND,
Attorney for Mortgagee. [21-27]

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 29th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 14th, 1884, viz: CHARLES KINDLER, H'd No. 9811, for the e½ nw¼ and lots 3 and 4 S. 1, T. 151, R. 45. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz G. Kind, H. Smith, Wm. Wylie and M. Lamproux, all of Wylie, Minn.

[3-8] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 29th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston Minn., on Nov. 18th, 1884, viz: JACOB HANSON, Pre. D. S. No. 6839, for the n½ ne¼ and e½ nw¼ S. 2, T. 148, R. 45. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: T. Bakkan, H. Hanson, O. Jacobson and J. Cliverison, all of Fertile, Minn.

[3-8] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 24th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 14th, 1884, viz: GOTTLIEB KIND, H'd No. 10231, for the se¼ nw¼, s½ ne¼, ne¼ se¼ S. 25, T. 152, R. 45. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: W. Wylie, C. Kindler, H. Smith and M. Lamproux, all of Wylie, Minn.

[22-2] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Oct. 1st, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 11th, 1884, viz: JEAN B. PATENAUDE, Pre. D. S. No. 6863, for the w½ sw¼ and w½ nw¼ S. 26, T. 150, R. 45. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Pierre Lecuyer, Timothee Desgroseilliе, Joseph Lafromboise and Philip Beaupre, all of Gentilly, Polk Co., Minn.

[22-28] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 15th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, on November 6th, 1884, viz: MELCHIOR SCHWEY, H'd No. 4967, for the se¼ S. 26, T. 152, R. 48. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Wm. Appel, Henry Horn, B. Carish and Michale Biver, all of Euclid, Polk Co., Minn.

[21-26] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Sept. 15th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 6th, 1884, viz: WILLIAM APPEL, H'd No. 5933, for the sw¼ S. 26, T. 152, R. 48. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Henry G. Horn, M. Schwy, of Euclid, John Moser, Adolph Raugh, of Crookston, Minn.

[21-26] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 15th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 6th, 1884, viz: GEORGE H. HORN, Per. D. S., No. 3182, for the se¼ S. 4, T. 152, R. 48. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: William Apple, M. Schwy, B. Tudemann and C. Stutz, all of Euclid, Polk Co., Minn.

[21-26] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 12th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 4th, 1884, viz: HENRY WITTY, Pre. D. S., No. 8718, for the s½ se¼ and n½ se¼ S. 26, T. 147, R. 43. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Even Bjorke, Isaac Holm, Frank Vogel and Iver Krohn, all of Valley, P. O., Polk Co., Minn.

[21-26] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 13th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Oct. 30th, 1884, viz: SAMUEL CROOKSHANKS, H'd No. 2074, for the sw¼ S. 4, T. 151, R. 47. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: James Westover, Walter Letts, Robt Leal and H. Toussaint, all of Crookston, Polk Co., Minn.

[21-26] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 11th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 4th, 1884, viz: GEORGE KRONSCHNABEL, H'd No. 9,691 for the se¼ S. 23, T. 149, R. 44. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Henry Utzinger, Crookston, C. Oehler, Fred Lieder and J. Gunerutz, of Tilden, Polk Co., Minn.

[20-25] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 10th, 1884.

Complaint having been entered at this office by Carrie M. Peterson against William J. Young for abandoning his Homestead Entry No. 10,037, dated Dec. 18th, 1883, upon the nw¼ S. 8, T. 151, R. 46, in Polk County, Minn., with a view to the cancellation of said entry; the said parties are hereby summoned to appear at this office on the 15th day of Nov., 1884, at 2 o'clock p. m., to respond and furnish testimony concerning said alleged abandonment.

JOHN CROMB, Register.
[20-25] L. K. AAKER, Receiver.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 17th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 7th, 1884, viz: JACOB LARSON, Pre. D. S. No. 6086, for the nw¼ S. 12, T. 147, R. 44. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: J. B. Rungun, Ole Olson Cosen, Hans Aulison and Christopher Erickson, all of Aldal, Polk Co., Minn.

[21-26] JOHN CROMB, Register.

Money to Give Away
IN BARGAINS,
AT MARKHAM'S,
THE LEADING GROCERY HOUSE
AND THE LARGEST BOOT AND SHOE STORE
IN CROOKSTON.
Goods Delivered to any Part of the City
FREE OF CHARGE

JEROME'S
ADDITION
TO THE
CITY OF CROOKSTON
IS NOW
Offered for Sale

This is the finest Residence Property in the City. High and dry, good cellars, water, and well sheltered. Enclosed on three sides by the river, and only three blocks from the heart of the city and Post Office.

HOW TO BE HEALTHY!
Drink LePage's
35c Tea and 35c pure Java Coffee
AND SMOKE MY NICKEL PILGRIM CIGAR.

HOW TO BE WEALTHY!
COME TO THE RED STAR GROCERY.
And Save Money on everything you buy.

AND IF YOU ARE WISE

You will buy only Pure and Fresh Groceries. THE RED STAR GROCERY is the place to get them and there you will find Prices the Lowest. Farmers and others bring in your Butter and Eggs and get highest prices for them. Remember the RED STAR, one door south of Montreal House.

E. LEPAGE, Broadway, Crookston, Minn.

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First Publication September 11th, 1884.]

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of one hundred and thirty-eight and 32-100 dollars, ($138.32-100) which is claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by William Franz Jaenike and Gische Jaenike his wife, mortgagors, to Isaac Rattenburg, mortgagee, bearing date the 28th day of August A. D. 1882, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 29th day of August A. D. 1882, at 3:00 o'clock p. m., in book "P" of mortgages, on pages 128, 129, 130 and 131, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The Southeast quarter (se¼) of Section No. fourteen (14) of Township No. one hundred and fifty (150) north, of Range No. forty-six (46) west, in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 25th day of October A. D. 1884, at 10 o'clock a. m., of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated Crookston, Sept. 8th A. D. 1884.

ISAAC RATTENBURG,
Mortgagee.

JOHN McLEAN,
Attorney for Mortgagee. [20-26]

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 11th, 1884.

Complaint having been entered at this office by Andrew P. Vallom against Charles Dudley Hudson for failure to comply with law as to Timber Culture Entry No. 2,011, dated June 4th 1881, upon the s½ ne¼ and n½ se¼ S. 18, T. 149, R. 43, in Polk Co., Minn., with a view to the cancellation of said entry; contestant alleging that the said Charles Dudley Hudson has failed to plant said tract, or any portion thereof to trees, tree seeds or cuttings since his entry and has failed to cultivate said land to crop or otherwise as required by law, and that there is not now any trees, tree seeds or cuttings standing or growing on said tract, the said parties are hereby summoned to appear at this office on the 6th day of November 1884, at 2 o'clock p. m., to respond and furnish testimony concerning said alleged failure.

[20-25] JOHN CROMB, Register.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, } ss. District Court,
County of Polk. } 11th Judicial District.

Carl Kretzschmar, Plaintiff.
vs.
The Red Lake Falls Milling and Lumber Company, a corporation, Defendant.

The State of Minnesota to the above named Defendant:

You are hereby summoned and required to answer the complaint of the Plaintiff in the above entitled action which has been filed with the clerk of the above court in his office in the Court House, in the City of Crookston, and County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, and to serve a copy of your answer to the said complaint on the subscriber at his office in the City of Crookston, in said county, within twenty days after the service of this summons upon you, exclusive of the day of such service; and if you fail to answer the said complaint within the time aforesaid, the Plaintiff in this action will take judgment against you for the sum of six thousand nine hundred and thirty-one dollars and sixty-eight cents ($6,931.68-100.) together with interest thereon from May 22d, 1884, besides the costs and disbursements of this action.

P. A. DUFOUR,
[21-27] Plaintiff's Att'y Crookston, Minn.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, } ss. District Court, 11th
County of Polk. } Judicial District.

Worth Harris and Benjamin F. Rogers, copartners as Harris & Rogers, Plaintiffs.
vs.
E. Wisterman, Defendant.

The State of Minnesota, to the above named Defendant.

You are hereby summoned and required to answer the complaint of the Plaintiff in the above entitled action which is filed in the office of the Clerk of the District Court of the Eleventh Judicial District, in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and to serve a copy of your answer to the said complaint on the subscriber, at his office in the city of Crookston, in said county, within twenty days after the service of this summons upon you exclusive of the day of such service; and if you fail to answer the said complaint within the time aforesaid, the Plaintiff in this action will take judgment against you for the sum of one hundred and seventeen dollars and 93 cents, with interest at the rate of 7 per cent per annum from the 1st day of October 1883, together with the costs and disbursements of this action.

Dated Crookston, Sept. 30th, 1884.

JOHN McLEAN,
Plaintiff's Attorney Crookston, Minn.

[21-26]

For Sale Cheap.

A complete set of bar fixtures. Call on August Wentzel for particulars.

[19-tf]

E. D. Schreader
LIVERY,
Feed and Sale Stable.

BEST TURNOUTS
IN THE CITY.

Single or Double Rigs, with or without driver or

SADDLE HORSES

Always ready at a moments notice by day or night. If you want a Nobby Turnout call at the Red Barn, Corner Main and Third Streets,

CROOKSTON, - - - MINNESOTA.

NEW DRUG STORE
IN GARFIELD
DR. A NELSON, Prop.

The citizens of this town and vicinity are respectfully invited to call at my new Drug Store in the town of Garfield and examine my stock of

DRUGS, MEDICINES, PAINTS, OILS AND YANKEE NOTIONS.

It is no longer necessary to go 40 or 55 miles for anything in this line, as I have a full supply at prices as reasonable as any town in the Northwest. Call and see

PHYSICIAN & SURGEON

I am also ready to answer all calls by day or night, for the practice of my profession. Call, or leave orders at my Drug Store in Garfield, Polk Co., Minn.

DR. A. NELSON.

First National Bank
OF CROOKSTON.

PAID IN CAPITAL, - - $100,000
SURPLUS, - - - - 1,400

Money to loan on long or short time on approved security

Interest on time deposits. Faithful attention to Collections and prompt remittance.

GEO. O. ERSKINE, President.
K. D. CHASE, Vice President.
ANSEL BATES, Cashier.

A. YVERNAULT,

Dealer in

General
Merchandise,

—MAIN STREET.—

Crookston, - - - Minn.

All of my friends, both old and new, are cordially invited to call and examine my stock and get prices.

Fortier's Place,
Corner Broadway and Robert Street

EVERYTHING —— NEW, NEAT
—AND NOBBY.—

Billiards, Pool, and the Choicest Wines, Liquors and Cigars. The purest High Proof Whiskies at wholesale prices

PURE IMPORTED GOODS ON DROUGHT.

P. A. DUFOUR,
Attorney and Counselor at Law,
—MAIN STREET,—
CROOKSTON, - - - MINN.

Commercial Hotel,
W. H. TOPPING, Proprietor
SECOND STREET, - - CROOKSTON, MINN

First-class in all respects. Terms reasonable. A share of the public patronage solicited.

A. A. JUST, M. D.,
Homeopathic Physician and Surgeon.
Rooms corner Main street and Fletcher Avenue, over Eiken Bros. Hardware Store,
CROOKSTON, POLK COUNTY, MINN.

Polk County Journal.

Crookston, Minn., Thursday, October 9.

RAILROAD TIME TABLE.

GOING NORTH.

	ARRIVE.	LEAVE.
No. 1 Passenger	10:45 p. m.	10:55 p. m.
9 Passenger	10:20 a. m.
19 Freight	12:30 a. m.
15 Freight	4:00 p. m.
23 Freight		10:30 a. m.

GOING SOUTH.

	ARRIVE.	LEAVE.
No. 2 Passenger	4:00 a. m.	4:00 a. m.
10 Passenger		6:00 p. m.
20 Freight		7:00 a. m.
24 Freight		6:15 p. m.
22 Freight	5:00 p. m.

DEVIL'S LAKE LINE.

	ARRIVE.	LEAVE.
No. 9 Passenger		10:20 a. m.
10 Passenger	5:30 p. m.
15 Freight		6:00 a. m.
16 Freight	7:00 p. m.

ST. HILAIRE BRANCH.

Trains leave Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays at 10:15 a. m., and arrive same days at 4:00 p. m.

Passenger Trains No's 1 and 2, Main Line, run daily except Sunday. No's 3 and 4 run daily. Devil's Lake Passenger runs daily. Freights No's 23, 20 and 24 run daily. Freights No's 15 and 22, and Freights on Devil's Lake Line run daily except Sunday.

Crookston!

COUNTY SEAT

—OF—

Polk County

MINN.

Polk County is distinguished by being the central and much the largest of the counties of the Red River Valley. Bounded on the west by the Red River and intersected by the Red Lake River, which rising in Red Lake runs nearly due west to its junction with the Red at Grand Forks, and again intersected by the main line of the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway the great thoroughfare from St. Paul to Winnepeg, with an east and west line of railway crossing the valley on the north bank of the Red Lake River, and extending west into Dakota to Devil's Lake, this county should be, and doubtless is, the richest and every way the most inviting to home seekers and capitalists of the many counties in the Northwest that are now candidates for popular favor. The size of this county is also a distinguished feature. It has eighty townships already settled, organized in separate political communities, being more than four times the avarage size of the counties in the State. It contains a farm, for each, of one hundred and sixty acres, of the best land on this or any continent, all ready for the plow for eleven thousand five hundred and twenty farmers for there are here no deductions to be made for mountains, broken or boggy land, all is available, and of nearly uniform quality. These two streams are skirted by continuous belts of timber of about a half mile in width on each side consisting of oak, ash, elm, box elder and bass wood. Water is good and abundant. The length of the seasons between the last frost in the spring and the first in the fall avarages about four months. With these natural advantages we may reasonably expect all the lands to be put in cultivation in the near future giving us a rural population of fifty thousand with an equal number in the villages and cities. That this estimate is not extravagant will appear when it is stated that the settlement of the county dates practically from the year 1878 and it has now a population of about 20,000. Near the geographical centre of this great county, on the Red Lake River, where the main line of the St. P., M. & M. R'y crosses it and at the intersection of the two railroads of the county, and nestling in the groves along the banks of a beautiful river which doubles upon itself every half mile apparently to give every man a river front, is the

CITY OF CROOKSTON.

The valley of this stream is about one mile in width and is thirty feet above the river and about the same below the general level of the adjacent prairie. Through this valley overgrown with forest trees the Red Lake River in graceful folds touching now the right bank and then the left moves westward at the rate of four miles per hour to its point of conjunction with its sister the Red in the centre of the great Red River Valley. For picturesque beauty and comfortable protection the town site of Crookston is without a rival in the Northwest. The growth of the town dates from 1878. [illegible]

[illegible] is the rule and the exceptions are the new comers from below the 42d parallel who come here for that boon most valued when lost—health. She has good educational advantages. Her central school building is a beautiful brick structure, costing $25,000, two ward school buildings cost with the grounds $5,000. Ten teachers are now employed and more are needed. The total enrollment is 700, average attenpance something over 500. The schools are thoroughly graded and the high school fits students for admission to the freshman class of the State University. Seven churches representing that number of the phases of theological opinion is a sufficient variety to meet present requirements. A skating rink 44x120 feet and open day and night is presumed to minister both to pleasure and health. A fine opera house with a seating capacity of 600 is found to be a paying investment to its owner. Two well drilled bands in fine uniform enliven the streets on holieays and extra occasions. It has electric light, water works, fire companies, and of secret societies QUANTUM SUFFICIT. It has business establishments of course too numerous to mention, but among them are two banks, with fine brick buildings, the First National with a paid up capital of $100,000, and the Merchant's, now just changed to the Merchant's National with a paid up capital of $75,000, seven hotels, two wagon factories, a foundry and machine shop, a plaining mill, sash, door and blind factory, two flouring mills of 450 barrels capacity, a saw mill with a capacity of 25,000,000 per year, a large brewery, three livery barns, three exclusive hardware stores, and four drug stores with several large general stores, etc., etc. Crookston has the United States land office for this district which is doing an immense amount of business in disposing of the public lands under the homestead, pre-emption and timber culture laws. It is the county seat or political capitol of the immense County of Polk, larger than the State of Connecticut and with many times greater resources. This county will market this year, in the infancy of its development, 2,000,000 bushels of the famous No. 1 Hard wheat, and nearly one-half that amount, at Crookston. From the foregoing sketch with the &c., &c., filled in by an ordinary effort of immigration, it will be seen that Crookston is, even now, "no mean city," considering its age, but like most western towns it is most remarkable for what IT IS TO BE, nor is this at all strange. There was a time in the history of all towns when their greatness lay concealed from all conservatives and croakers, but was plainly revealed to the far-seeing and enterprising man who boldly came to the front and put his capital and his brains to the work of transforming his hopes into realities, and the city of his imagination of yesterday materialized before the eyes of the doubter and the man of enterprise filled his coffers to his heart's content. What then are Crookston's

UNDEVELOPED RESOURCES.

1st. Its central location in the county, with its railroads running east and west, north and south, makes it as certainly a commercial center as its being a county seat makes it a political center for the County of Polk. The county contains 1,853,000 acres of the best of land, not one-tenth of which is under cultivation. It is all available. It now raises for export 2,000,000 bushels of wheat, and it is capable of raising 20,000,000 bushels, or what would be better still for all concerned, its equivalent in wheat and other products, and the soil and climate is just as well adapted to raising of barley, rye, oats, flax, peas, corn, stock and pork as to raising wheat, and as land is cheap and within easy reach of men of ordinary means, we have good reasons to expect that the same rate of settlement that has given us 20,000 in the past five years will continue for the next five and the next ten years, till the county will count its forty or fifty thousand people on its farms alone, and to handle the products of these farms and to supply them with dry goods, groceries, hardware, farm implements, furniture, lumber, &c., &c., will require a town centrally located and accessible by rail and wagon roads, of at least ten or fifteen thousand people.

2d. It has a large water power, a small part of which only is developed and in use. This might mean very little, in some localities it would, but here, it is of immense significance. This is the great wheat field of the continent, and wheat will always be a staple production and its reduction to flour is a matter of POWER, and the fuel and other extra expenses for steam over water power, where wood is worth three dollars per cord or coal the equivalent of that price, is at least fifteen cents per barrel, or forty dollars per day for a 200 barrel mill. Now, Crookston is in the geographical center of this great wheat field, the Red River Valley, which will soon produce for export fully 100,000,000 bushels of wheat, and its wheat is worth in any milling market more by ten cents per bushel than any other wheat raised in America, and as a consequence water power is worth more here for the manufacture of flour than it is worth anywhere else in the world, and this would [illegible]

[illegible] is the only power in the valley proper, and the only one anywhere on any line of railroad within one hundred miles. It is surely as valuable here as anywhere in the United States. The undeveloped power here that can be very cheaply improved is sufficient to operate ten flouring mills of a capacity of 200 barrels per day each. It is only a question of diligence and promptness on the part of capitalists as to who will make a fortune for himself and add several thousands to the population of this young city by the improvement of this power.

3d. Crookston is to be the great lumbering centre of the Northwest an industry as yet almost wholly undeveloped. There is on the Red Lake River a virgin body of white pine of three billion feet or over. It is mostly on an Indian Reservation and cannot be cut till the Indian title is extinguished. It is doing the Indians no good but is being domaged by fires and deteriorating in value. A bill is now on the calender of the House of Representatives of the United States, having been unanimously reported by the committee on Indian affairs and having the approbation of the Hon. Secretary of the Interior and the Commissioner of the Indian Bureau and is confidently expected to become a law at the next session of Congress that will open this body of pine to sale at auction. There is enough of this pine to supply eight mills of capacity each of 20,000,000 feet per year for twenty years and a market right at home to consume it all. Northwestern Minnesota and Northern Dakota, a vast prairie region much larger than the State of Illinois is to be supplied from this body of pine. It must float down the Red Lake River and Crookston is the first point it reaches where there are railroads to distribute it, and the only point having ample boomage facilities for handling the logs and at Crookston this lumber will be manufactured and from there distributed, but this is an infant industry, the first mill is only recently started and is now turning out 150,000 feet per day.

WHAT CROOKSTON NEEDS.

By this is meant what are the eligible openings for profitable investment.

It needs $400,000 of additional banking capital.

It needs more capital invested in every line of business and trade now established.

It needs tenament houses by the score; rents are very high; six room houses rent for from $20 to $25 per month.

It needs capital to improve its water power.

It needs ten good flouring mills.

It needs four or six good first-class saw mills.

It needs a paper mill to work up the thousands of tons of straw now being burnt on the surrounding prairies.

It needs a twine factory. $20,000 worth of binding twine has been sold in Crookston within the past six weeks.

It needs men of brains and pluck in all the trades and professions. In short, it offers the ground floor to such men as have built up the thriving commercial and manufacturing towns of the West, and to such it offers unequaled inducements.

Respectfully, R. REYNOLDS.

Republican Senatorial Convention.

The Republicans of the 45th Senatorial District are hereby notified to meet in delegate convention in the Court house hall, in the city of Crookston, on the 15th day of Oct. at 2 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of placing in nomination a Representative to the State Legislature. The counties will be entitled to delegates as follows: Kittson 3, Marshall 3, Polk 7, Norman 3.

M. R. BROWN, Chairman. PETER RAMSTAD, Secretary.

To The Public.

We wish to state to the people of Crookston and vicinity, that we have purchased the stock of greceries owned by J. L. Bailey, on Broadway, opposite the post office. We purpose to carry on the trade at the old stand, and will keep on hand, at all times, a fresh stock of groceries, provisions, etc., and we ask a share of the patronage of the generous public.

[5-tf] BAUSCHMAN & MILETTE.

Notice to Farmers.

C. Kretzschmar's Grist Mill, at Red Lake Falls, is again open for business. Flour will be exchanged for wheat, or your wheat will be ground on shares. A good feed mill is run in connection with the mill and satisfaction in all cases is guaranteed. Flour and feed on hand at all times and sold at lowest market rates.

[16-tf] C. KRETZSCHMAR.

At Seely's

You can find some extra fine crab-apple cider, old bourbon whisky, eight years old, Maryland Club, pure rye; Jules and G. H. Mum's extra dry champagne, imported Scotch ales, and porters for medicinal purposes, also a fine stock of imported cigars. Call and sample. [22-tf]

TO PARTIES DESIRING INSURANCE!

We represent the following old and reliable Fire Insurance Companies:

	Assets.
Ætna	$9,182,044
American	1,804,519
Fire Association	4,279,076
Underwriters	8,600,794
Orient	1,411,804
Phoenix	5,019,408
Lancashire	10,787,988
Milwaukee Mech.	1,129,875
Germania	2,700,729

Having represented nearly all of the above companies for 14 years, we have acquainted ourselves with the business, and think that we can justly claim the patronage of the public who can depend upon having insurance written correctly and losses adjusted promptly. [illegible]

[illegible]

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First Publication September 18th, 1884.]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the payment of the sum of two hundred and thirty-four and 23-100 dollars ($234.23-100) according to the condition of a certain mortgage, duly made, executed and delivered by John P. Larson and Catharina A. Larson, his wife, of Polk County, Minnesota, mortgagors, to Peter Stenseth, of Polk County, Minnesota, mortgagee, to secure the payment of one note of the sum of two hundred and fifteen dollars, with interest at the rate of seven per cent per annum, and bearing date the eighth day of June 1883 and payable on the eighth day of December 1883, and which mortgage was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota on the eighth day of June A. D. 1883, at 5:23 o'clock p. m. of that day in book "N" of mortgages, on page forty-six (46,) and whereas, no action or proceedings at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt or interest secured by said mortgage or any part thereof, and, whereas, there is claimed to be due, and is due, at the date of this notice the sum of two hundred and thirty-four 23-100 dollars ($234.23-100.)

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the provisions of the statute in such case made and provided, all the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, to-wit: The northwest quarter of Section one (1,) in Township one hundred and fifty-two (152) north, of Range forty-five (45) west, containing one hundred and sixty acres, more or less according to the government survey thereof, which tract or piece of land is situated in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, together with the hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging, will be sold by the Sheriff of Polk County, Minnesota, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County of Polk, on the 7th day of November A. D. 1884, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of said day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and fourteen and 45-100 dollars $(14.45-100) taxes, which has been paid by the mortgagee, and thirty dollars attorney's fees stipulated in said mortgage, besides the costs and disbursements allowed by law, subject nevertheless to redemption at any time within one year from date of sale as provided by law.

Dated September 18th 1884.

PETER STENSETH, Mortgagee.

A. P. BOND, Attorney for Mortgagee. [21-27]

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn.; Sept. 29th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 14th, 1884, viz: CHARLES KINDLER, H'd No. 9811, for the s½ nw¼ and lots 3 and 4 S. 1, T. 151, R. 45. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: G. Kind, H. Smith, Wm. Wylie and M. Lamproux, all of Wylie, Minn.

[23-28] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., Sept. 29th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 15th, 1884, viz: JACOB HANSON, Pre. D. S., No. 6635, for the n½ ne¼ and e½ nw¼ S. 2, T. 148, R. 45. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: T. Bakkan, H. Hanson, O. Jacobson and J. Gilbertson, all of Fertile, Minn.

[23-28] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., Sept. 24th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 14th, 1884, viz: GOTTLIEB KIND, H'd No. 10231, for the se¼ nw¼, s½ ne¼, ne¼ se¼ S. 35, T. 152, R. 45. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: W. Wylie, C. Kindler, H. Smith and M. Lamproux, all of Wylie, Minn.

[23-28] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., Oct. 1st, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 11th, 1884, viz: JEAN B. PATENAUDE, Pre. D. S., No. 6663, for the w½ sw¼ and w½ nw¼ S. 26, T. 150, R. 45. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Pierre Lecuyer, Timothee Desgroseillie, Joseph Laframboise and Philip Beaupre, all of Gentilly, Polk Co., Minn.

[23-28] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., Sept. 15th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, on November 6th, 1884, viz: MELCHIOR SCHWEY, H'd No. 4967, for the se¼ S. 20, T. 152, R. 48. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Wm. Appel, Henry Horn, B. Carish and Michale Blyer, all of Euclid, Polk Co., Minn.

[21-26] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Sept. 15th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 6th, 1884, viz: WILLIAM APPEL, H'd No. 5933, for the sw¼ S. 28, T. 152, R. 48. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Henry G. Horn, M. Schwy, of Euclid; John Moser, Adolph Rangh, of Crookston, Minn.

[21-26] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., Sept. 15th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 6th, 1884, viz: GEORGE H. HORN, Pre. D. S., No. 3682, for the se¼ S. 4, T. 152, R. 48. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: William Apple, M. Schwy, B. Tudemann and C. Stutz, all of Euclid, Polk Co., Minn.

[21-26] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., Sept. 12th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 4th, 1884, viz: HENRY WITTY, Pre. D. S., No. 8718, for the s½ se¼ and n½ se¼ S. 26, T. 147, R. 43. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Even Bjorke, Isaac Holm, Frank Vogel and Iver Krohn, all of Valley, P. O., Polk Co., Minn.

[21-26] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., Sept. 13th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Oct. 30th, 1884, viz: SAMUEL CROOKSHANKS, H'd No. 2074, for the sw¼ S. 4, T. 151, R. 47. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: James Westover, Walter Leitz, Robt Leal and H. Toussaint, all of Crookston, Polk Co., Minn.

[21-26] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., Sept. 11th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 4th, 1884, viz: GEORGE KRONSCHNABEL, H'd No. 9,591 for the se¼ S. 23, T. 149, R. 44. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Henry Utzinger, Crookston; C. Oehler, Fred Lieder and J. Gunerutz, of Tilden, Polk Co., Minn.

[20-25] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., Sept. 10th, 1884.

Complaint having been entered at this office by Carrie M. Peterson against William J. Young for abandoning his Homestead Entry No. 10,077 dated Dec. 18th, 1883, upon the nw¼ S. [illegible] T. 151, R. 46 in Polk County, Minn., with a view to the cancellation of said entry; the said parties are hereby summoned to appear at this office on the 15th day of Nov. 1884, at 2 o'clock p. m., to respond and furnish testimony concerning said alleged abandonment.

JOHN CROMB, Register.

[20-25] I. K. AAKER, Receiver.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., Sept. [illegible] 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. [illegible] 1884, viz: JACOB LARSON, Pre. D. S., No. [illegible], for the [illegible] He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: [illegible] Polk Co., Minn.

[20-25] JOHN CROMB, Register.

Money to Give Away

IN BARGAINS,

AT MARKHAM'S,

THE LEADING GROCERY HOUSE

AND THE LARGEST BOOT AND SHOE STORE

IN CROOKSTON.

Goods Delivered to any Part of the City

FREE OF CHARGE

JEROME'S

ADDITION

TO THE

CITY OF CROOKSTON

IS NOW

Offered for Sale

This is the finest Residence Property in the City. High and dry, good cellars, water, and well sheltered. Enclosed on three sides by the river, and only three blocks from the heart of the city and Post Office.

HOW TO BE HEALTHY!

Drink LePage's

35c Tea and 35c pure Java Coffee

AND SMOKE MY NICKEL PILGRIM CIGAR.

HOW TO BE WEALTHY!

COME TO THE RED STAR GROCERY,

And Save Money on everything you buy.

AND IF YOU ARE WISE

You will buy only Pure and Fresh Groceries. THE RED STAR GROCERY is the place to get them and there you will find Prices the Lowest. Farmers and others bring in your Butter and Eggs and get highest prices for them. Remember the RED STAR, one door south of Montreal House.

E. LEPAGE, Broadway, Crookston, Minn.

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First Publication September 11th, 1884.]

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of one hundred and thirty-eight and 32-100 dollars, ($138.32-100) which is claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by William Franz Jaenike and Gische Jaenike his wife, mortgagors, to Isaac Rattenburg, mortgagee, bearing date the 28th day of August A. D. 1882, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 28th day of August A. D. 1882, at 5:00 o'clock p. m., in book "I" of mortgages, on pages 128, 129, 130 and 131, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The Southeast quarter (se¼) of Section No. fourteen (14,) of Township No. one hundred and fifty (150) north, of Range No. forty-six (46) west, in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 25th day of October A. D. 1884, at 10 o'clock a. m., of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated Crookston, Sept. 8th A. D. 1884.

ISAAC RATTENBURG, Mortgagee.

JOHN McLEAN, Attorney for Mortgagee. [21-26]

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., Sept. 11th, 1884.

Complaint having been entered at this office by Andrew P. Vallom against Charles Dudley Hudson for failure to comply with law as to Timber Culture Entry No. 2,041, dated June 4th 1881, upon the s½ ne¼ and n½ se¼ S. 18, T. 149, R. 48, in Polk Co., Minn., with a view to the cancellation of said entry; contestant alleging that the said Charles Dudley Hudson has failed to plant said tract, or any portion thereof to trees, tree seeds or cuttings since his entry and has failed to cultivate said land to crop or otherwise as required by law, and that there is not now any trees, tree seeds or cuttings standing or growing on said tract, the said parties are hereby summoned to appear at this office on the 5th day of November, 1884, at 2 o'clock p. m., to respond and furnish testimony concerning said alleged failure.

[20-25] JOHN CROMB, Register.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk. } ss. District Court, 11th Judicial District.

Carl Kretzschmar, Plaintiff. vs. The Red Lake Falls Milling and Lumber Company, a corporation, Defendant.

The State of Minnesota to the above named Defendant:

You are hereby summoned and required to answer the complaint of the Plaintiff in the above entitled action which has been filed with the clerk of the above court in his office in the Court House, in the City of Crookston, and County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, and to serve a copy of your answer to the said complaint on the subscriber at his office in the City of Crookston, in said county, within twenty days after the service of this summons upon you, exclusive of the day of such service; and if you fail to answer the said complaint within the time aforesaid, the Plaintiff in this action will take judgment against you for the sum of six thousand nine hundred and thirty-one dollars and sixty-eight cents ($6,931.68-100,) together with interest thereon from May 22d, 1884, besides the costs and disbursements of this action.

P. A. DUFOUR,

[21-27. Plaintiff's Att'y Crookston, Minn.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk. } ss. District Court, 11th Judicial District.

Worth Harris and Benjamin F. Rogers, copartners as Harris & Rogers, Plaintiffs. vs. E. Wisterman, Defendant.

The State of Minnesota, to the above named Defendant.

You are hereby summoned and required to answer the complaint of the Plaintiff in the above entitled action which is filed in the office of the Clerk of the District Court of the Eleventh Judicial District, in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and to serve a copy of your answer to the said complaint on the subscriber, at his office in the city of Crookston, in said county, within twenty days after the service of this summons upon you exclusive of the day of such service; and if you fail to answer the said complaint within the time aforesaid, the Plaintiff in this action will take judgment against you for the sum of one hundred and seventeen dollars and 93 cents, with interest at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum from the 1st day of October 1883, together with the costs and disbursements of this action.

Dated Crookston, Sept. 30th, 1884.

JOHN McLEAN, Plaintiff's Attorney Crookston, Minn.

[21-26]

For Sale Cheap.

A complete set of bar fixtures. Call on August Wentzel for particulars. [19-tf]

E. D. Schreader

LIVERY,

Feed and Sale Stable.

BEST TURNOUTS IN THE CITY.

Single or Double Rigs, with or without driver or

SADDLE HORSES

Always ready at a moments notice by day or night. If you want a Nobby Turnout call at the Red Barn, Corner Main and Third Streets,

CROOKSTON. - - - MINNESOTA.

NEW DRUG STORE

IN GARFIELD

DR. A NELSON, Prop.

The citizens of this town and vicinity are respectfully invited to call at my new Drug Store in the town of Garfield and examine my stock of

DRUGS, MEDICINES, PAINTS, OILS AND YANKEE NOTIONS.

It is no longer necessary to go 40 or 55 miles for anything in this line, as I have a full supply at prices as reasonable as any town in the Northwest. Call and see

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON

I am also ready to answer all calls by day or night, for the practice of my profession. Call, or leave orders at my Drug Store in Garfield, Polk Co., Minn.

DR. A. NELSON.

First National Bank

OF CROOKSTON.

PAID IN CAPITAL,	$100,000
SURPLUS,	1,400

Money to loan on long or short time on approved security.

Interest on time deposits. Faithful attention to Collections and prompt remittance.

GEO. O. ERSKINE, President.

K. D. CHASE, Vice President.

ANSEL BATES, Cashier.

A. YVERNAULT,

Dealer in

General

Merchandise,

—MAIN STREET.—

Crookston, - - Minn.

All of my friends, both old and new, are cordially invited to call and examine my stock and get prices.

Fortier's Place,

Corner Broadway and Robert Street

EVERYTHING NEW, NEAT AND NOBBY.

Billiards, Pool, and the Choicest Wines, Liquors and Cigars. The purest High Proof Whiskies at wholesale prices

PURE IMPORTED GOODS ON DROUGHT.

P. A. DUFOUR,

Attorney and Counselor at Law,

—MAIN STREET.—

CROOKSTON, - - MINN.

Commercial Hotel,

W. H. TOPPING, Proprietor

SECOND STREET, - - CROOKSTON, MINN

First-class in all respects. Terms reasonable. A share of the public patronage solicited.

A. A. JUST, M. D.,

Homoeopathic Physician and Surgeon.

Rooms corner Main street and Fletcher Avenue, over Eiken Bros. Hardware Store,

CROOKSTON, POLK COUNTY, MINN.

The Polk County Journal.

H. E. COOKE, Proprietor. | DEVOTED TO THE WELFARE OF POLK COUNTY. | TERMS---$1.50 Per Annum.

VOL. VIII. | CROOKSTON, POLK COUNTY, MINNESOTA, OCTOBER 16, 1884. | NO. 25

Polk County Journal.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY.

H. E. COOKE, Editor and Proprietor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Dollar and Fifty Cents, if paid in advance, to any address inside of Polk County. If outside of Polk County 15 cents must be added for postage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum to any address.

ADVERTISING RATES.

SPACE.	1 w.	2 w.	3 w.	1 m.	3 m.	6 m.	1 year
¼ inch	50	$1 00	$1 15	$1 50	$3 00	4 50	$6 00
1 inch	75	1 25	1 75	2 00	5 50	6 00	10 00
2 inches	1 50	2 25	3 00	3 50	6 50	9 50	15 00
3 inches	1 75	2 75	3 75	4 50	9 70	13 70	20 00
4 inches	2 50	3 50	4 50	5 50	10 00	10 00	25 00
5 inches	3 00	4 00	5 00	6 00	12 50	20 00	30 00
¼ column	3 50	5 50	5 50	6 50	15 00	25 00	35 00
½ column	6 00	7 50	10 00	12 00	20 00	35 00	50 00
1 column	9 50	12 50	15 00	18 00	35 00	60 00	100 00

Entered at the Post Office in Crookston as Second Class matter.

Republican Ticket.

For President,
JAMES G. BLAINE,
of Maine.

For Vice President,
JOHN A. LOGAN,
of Illinois.

For Presidential Electors,
C. F. KINDRED.
JOHN G. NELSON.
JOHN D. ALLEN.
W. B. DEAN.
J. G. THORPE.
A. D. PERKINS.
PETER RAUEN.

For Representative in Congress,
HON. KNUTE NELSON,
of Alexandria.

For Associate Justice of the Supreme Court,
JOHN M. BERRY.

County Ticket.

For Treasurer,
O. H. LUCKEN.
For Auditor,
P. J. McGUIRE.
For Sheriff,
W. F. ZWICKEY.
For Register of Deeds,
A. D. STEPHENS.
For County Attorney,
P. C. SCHMIDT, Jr.
For Judge of Probate,
J. G. McGREW.
For County Surveyor,
O. L. HAMERY.
For Court Commissioner,
D. E. HATTLESTAD.
For Coroner,
DR. M. VAN DYKE.

COUNTY NOMINATIONS.

THE JOURNAL has said, and still maintains that in county nominations the object should be the selection of the best men for the office. Too often this principle is lost sight of and the choice of nominees made a matter of bargain and sale. Instead of conventions being an assembly of the people to choose their best men for office they are simply a ring of politicians who make the nominations only a stepping stone to the furtherance of some scheme. This practice is all wrong and we condemn it, but it can never be remedied until the voters learn to take control of their primaries and send only such men as will truly represent their interests. The two parties have now had their conventions and of the two tickets now in the field the Republican party have selected the strongest and the best. For Auditor they have wisely chosen who is too well known to need an introduction by us. It is a familiar fact that Mr. McGuire has brought the Auditors office from a state of chaos up to be one of the best regulated offices in the State and we fully expect to see him some day called to step up higher and occupy the office of State Auditor (that is, providing always that he will accept). Genial, sociable, capable and honest, he has built up an enviable reputation that has attracted to him hosts of friends. For Treasurer, the nominee of the Republican party cannot be beaten has no superior and few equals for the office that he has so long and faithfully filled, and so well is he known for honesty, sobriety, capability and integrity that [illegible] he can occupy the office as long as he will. He is another who has so well performed his duties that he has already been mentioned for State Treasurer and it is by no means improbable that he will some day occupy that responsible position. The County of Polk can do no better than to elect him and she will do it by [illegible] term to the best of his ability and if, during that time he had not made some enemies he would not be a positive man and would be wholly unfit for the position. If he was so constituted as to please everybody he would lack that positive force of character which a Sheriff must have to be a good one. He has tried to discharge his duties honestly and faithfully and we have yet to see the man who says he has not and who will say wherein he has not and attempt to prove it. The records show wherein he has saved the county thousands of dollars needless expense. He is known to be a genial, free hearted companionable fellow, faithfully discharging his duties to the best of his ability and his experience in his first term renders him more capable of fulfilling the responsible duties of his office. There is one good point about him, rogues and thieves emphatically hate him, and many an honest man is loud in his praise. He was a soldier, serving his country well and faithfully in the 11th Minnesota, and the education received on the field serves him well in his present office. He has this advantage over his competitor—experience in the office, which is an important point, and if he is elected, as he certainly will be, being the best man up for the position, we know by his past history that the county need never blush for her Sheriff. For Register of Deeds

P. J. McGUIRE

O. H. LUCKEN

ANDREW D. STEPHENS

is the Republican nominee. It is generally the fashion to tell where a man is born, and all that, on these occasions, but we don't know where he was born and don't care a snap so long as he was born and is an honest, sober and upright young man, and a good worker, all of which is true of Mr. Stephens. We believe he is a Scandinavian with American principles and habits sticking out all over him prominently, strict and sound business principles which render him peculiarly available for the office. He has many friends throughout the county, friends who know that if he is elected the business of the office will be in safe hands and who will work hard to see that he does get there. As the Democrats do not offer a better man, there is no good reason for a true Republican to leave his party this fall. For County Attorney of Red Lake Falls, is the nominee. P. C. is a young man of fine education and good business qualifications, and he is bound to make his mark in the world. He has identified himself on the right side in politics and has become quite prominent. He had the misfortune recently to get his leg broken which will prevent his making as thorough a canvass as he otherwise would, but he is right on deck and will make as thorough a canvass as possible and should he be elected will make an A No. 1 County Attorney. For Judge of Probate

P. C. SCHMIDT, JR.,

CAPT. J. G. McGREW

was placed in nomination, than whom no better nor truer man could have been found. Mr. McGrew is an old Minnesotian, having settled in Filmore County at an early day, where he practiced law, published a paper, and contributed in no small degree to the upbuilding of our grand State. He enlisted as a private in the old Minnesota 5th, and the fact that ere the close of the war he was promoted to a captaincy, shows that he possesses the kind of stuff of which men are made. He was in some of the hardest fought battles of the war, discharging his duties faithfully. Returning, he took up the duties of private life where he had laid them down at his country's call, and the next thing we know we see him shooting off his mouth in the service of his country in her Legislative halls. In 1871 he removed to Audubon, in Becker County, at which place the writer became acquainted with him, and during all of the intervening time we have always found him to be the same noble hearted, true and upright public spirited citizen, as his past history has proven him. He has filled many responsible offices with credit, a staunch and true blue Republican always, the party containing no more honored name than his and no more deserving servant. That he will be elected we hope and trust, and we know that the county could find no man more worthy or one more qualified. Being a lawyer he will understand all points that could ever arise, and being a thoroughly honest man he will always be a safe man to deal with. Every Republican, every honest man, every old soldier and every one who cares for honesty, purity and ability [illegible] suddenly rich he must have become in that avocation, and some of them may object to him on account of his great riches made in raising the "golden No. 1 Hard," but we can assure them that Ole has not amassed many millions in that way. In fact, we know that all he did make he invested in instruments to aid him as a surveyor, and we know that there is no surveyor in this county who is better prepared to discharge the duties of the office. We think there is no doubt of his election, and we know that no better man is named for the position. For Court Commissioner the office demands an honest lawyer, and no more honest or capable man is named for the place than who is a young Scandinavian lawyer, well and favorably known in this county, and there is no doubt of his election. There you have the ticket that THE JOURNAL considers the best one in the field, which THE JOURNAL will earnestly support and hopes to see elected. There is no good reason why every sincere man, Republican, Democrat or Independent, cannot earnestly support and work for this ticket, and there is every good reason why all true, honest Republicans should do so. Party lines being now drawn, every true Republican should vote and work for his party ticket, especially so when that ticket is the best one in the field. No true Republican will be misled by vain sophistries, but will stand up for his ticket, work for it, vote for it, and elect it triumphantly by a large majority.

D. E. HATTLESTAD

That Immoral Issue.

The Baptist Weekly is another of the long list of religious journals who oppose the Buffalo bachelor on high moral grounds. It says:

"We have private information which we regard as entirely reliable that not only Dr. Ball, who has been unjustly made to bear the burden of exposing the scandal, but fourteen others of the clergymen of that city, hold Mr. Cleveland, from what facts they are familiar with, to be a man not merely guilty of a single dissolute act or two, but as a man of unchaste life and that through a course of years, extending into his public life. If there were evidence that he had repudiated his past, and even very recently become a different man in this respect, it would be some satisfaction; but we believe that no such regeneration of private character is claimed even by his friends.

There is many a worse man than Gov. Cleveland in high political office to-day, as there have been in the past; but we cannot as a champion of social and political morality advocate the election of such men; we deprecate it. In this instance we are compelled to declare that the supreme office of Presidency of this Republic ought not to be occupied by a man who would carry into it not only a conspicuous stain upon his reputation, but a record of facts in his personal history which, neither explained, repudiated nor, as far as we know, repented of, would tend to weaken the respect of our young men and women for personal and social purity."

The Reason Why.

Now, as to the reasons why Grover Cleveland is not a proper man for the laboring men of this country to elevate to the position of President of the United States. His record during the time in which he has been governor of the State of New York, has shown him to be the friend of monopolies and corporations, and the enemy of the common people and the laboring men.

Because he voted the bill to reduce the number of hours of work for a large class of laborers in the city of New York from seventeen hours to twelve, known as the street-car Drivers' bill.

Because, as governor of New York he voted a bill called the Mechanics Lien law, to prevent swindlers from robbing workmen out of their earnings and giving them a lien upon all buildings upon which they were working until their wages were paid.

Because he voted a bill to enable the workingmen, their wives and children to ride upon the elevated railroads of New York city for five cents, a bill demanded by the teeming millions of the city of New York.

Because he vetoed the bill to prohibit the employment of children under 15 years of age in any factory in the State of New York.

There are many other reasons which [illegible] why the laboring men of this country should [illegible]

Tom Morris,
—THE—
CITY
JEWELER
Represents the
CELEBRATED
Rockford Quick Train
WATCH
THE ONLY
Railroad
Watch
IN EXISTENCE.

Christening and Wedding Cakes Made upon Shortest Notice in the Best Style.
A Choice and Well Selected Stock of Confectionery Always on hand.

John Crawford & Son,
Proprietors of Crawford's
Bakery,
SECOND STREET,
Crookston, Minn.

CONFECTIONERY
Fresh Bread, Buns, Cakes and Biscuits. All Articles in the Fancy Baking Line.

Groceries, Provisions,
Flour, Feed
SMOKED, DRIED AND SALT
MEATS,
TEAS,
COFFEES,
SUGARS,
SPICES,
ETC.
Highest Market Price Paid for
FARM PRODUCE.
Bauchman & Millette,
Broadway, Opposite the Post Office,
Crookston, Minn.

BERG & OLSON,
PRACTICAL WATCHMAKERS
AND DEALERS IN CLOCKS,
WATCHES,
JEWELRY,
ROBERT STREET
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

NEW LIVERY,
Feed and Sale
STABLES,
[illegible]

Fall Goods! Fall Goods!

NEW YORK STORE.

We have Received a Full Line of
Staple and Fancy Dry Goods.
Notions Boots and Shoes,
which we are offering at Low Prices.

We show in
DRESS GOODS
One of the Best Selected stocks in the city. All the fall and winter shades.

We call special attention to our line of
BLACK CASHMERES,
We ask comparison.

Black and Colored Silks and Satins.
We show an exceptionally fine line in these goods.

NOTIONS,
Hosiery and Underwear, Knit Goods and Shawls, Ribbons, White Goods and Linens, Embroideries and Laces, Corsets and Gloves, Etc., Etc.

VELVETS,
Black and Colored. Blankets, flannels and Quilts,
—CHEAP— —CHEAP— —CHEAP—

CANTON FLANNELS,
Bleached and unbleached and colored. Domestics of all kinds. Prints, ginghams, sheetings, jeans, ticking, cotton batting, &c., &c.

Hats and caps, complete stock. CARPETS, we have a full line of samples of Body Brussels, Tapestry and Ingrain.

BOOTS AND SHOES
of well known makes. We make a special effort to have this department one of the most complete in the city.

All our stock has been selected with all possible care, having all the advantages that cash and experience can buy for us, we feel safe in guaranteeing all our customers as low prices, if not lower, than can be obtained elsewhere, quality taken into consideration.
—— A CALL SOLICITED, ——
PROUD & MACDONELL.

Stewart & Lawrence,
—DEALERS IN—
Lumber, Sash, Doors, Mouldings,
Building Paper, &c.

1st Com. Dim's and Boards, rough,	$18	Siding, dry	$18
2d " " " "	16	Flooring, "	21
3d " " " "	14	Lath,	3
Ship Lap, dry	17	Shingles	2

A full stock of Sash, Doors, Casings, Mouldings, Eve Trough and Building Paper constantly on hand.

Johnson & Stephens,
FISHER AND CROOKSTON,
WILL NEGOTIATE LOANS!
Through the Corbin Banking Co., New York,

SELL MINNESOTA CHIEF
Threshers and Engines,
Deering and Esterly Binders,
Studebaker Wagons,
and a variety of Rakes, Mowers, Plows, Etc., Etc.
KEEP A MORE
COMPLETE LINE OF REPAIRS
than any agency in the County.
Twine and Wire In Season

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 29th, 1884.
Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 17th, 1884; viz: JOSEPH DURAND, H'd No. [illegible] for the [illegible] He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: [illegible] all of [illegible] Polk Co., Minn.
[illegible] JOHN CROMB, Register.

AIME GABOURY,
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON.
[illegible]

CITY ICE HOUSE!
F. D. SCHRADER & CO., Proprietors,
CROOKSTON, MINN.
Having purchased the ice house business of Ruedy & Kindler, and put up during the past winter from 75,000 to 100,000 tons of ice, we are now prepared to supply the trade the coming summer at reasonable figures.
F. D. SCHRADER & CO.

DENTISTRY.
J. H. THOMAS, D.D.S.
[illegible] CROOKSTON, MINN.
[illegible]

EIKEN BROS.,
Corner of Fletcher and Main Stree
Crookston, Minn.
Dealers in
HARDWARE, TIWARE,
STOVES,
—AND—
SHELFWARE.
WE KEEP A
FULL & COMPLETE STOCK,
—AND—
Invite the Patronage
OF ALL.

A. H. DUNLOP M. D.,
Graduate McGill University, Montreal.
LICENSED COLLEGE PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON QUEBEC.
Office on Robert Street, Crookston.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 16th, 1884.
Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Oct 30th, 1884; viz: OLE PETERSON, H'd No. 2378, for the sw¼ S. 20, T. 149, R. 47. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: B. C. Jergenson, Jake Ide, Leonard Paulson and Iver C. Lanen, all of Andover, Polk Co., Minn.
[21-26] JOHN CROMB, Register.

MERCHANTS'
Bank of Crookston.

H. B. MONTGOMERY..........President,
St. Paul, Minn.
M. R. BROWN,............Vice President,
Crookston, Minn.
J. KELSO.........Second Vice President,
Bellevue, Iowa.
Wm. ROSS..........................Cashier,
Crookston, Minn.

CASH CAPITAL, $32,000
SURPLUS, $16,533.82.

Will receive deposits and allow interest by special contract.
Buy and Sell Foreign and Domestic Exchange, make collections, and do a strictly legitimate business.
Agents for foreign passage tickets.
De Skandinaviske Sprog tales her.
WM. ROSS, Cashier.

ATTENTION
Now is the Time to Build
While you can buy
Cream Brick
at Very Low Figures. The Best Brick ever made in the Red River Valley. Manufactured by SWANSON & KOEPPE,
[11-18] Crookston, Minn.

SECOND STREET
MEAT MARKET
STANTON & CO., Proprietors.
Choice meats of every description. Fish and game in their season. Everything of the very best quality and lowest prices. Call and see us.
STANTON & CO.,
Dobson's Block, Second Street.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston Minn., Sept. 20th, 1884.
Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 11th, 1884, viz: SIDNEY BOTTINEAU, H'd No. 9268, for the s½ nw¼ and lots 1 and 2, S. 6, T. 149, R. 40. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Louis Berthiaume, A. Berthiaume, of Gentilly, John Clements, Charles Gervais, of Little Prairie, Polk Co., Minn.
[22-27] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 20th, 1884.
Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 11th, 1884, viz: DAMASE [illegible], H'd No. [illegible], for the [illegible] He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: [illegible] all of Crookston, Polk Co., Minn.
[illegible] JOHN CROMB, Register.

The Polk County Journal.

H. E. COOKE, Proprietor. DEVOTED TO THE WELFARE OF POLK COUNTY. TERMS---$1.50 Per Annum.

VOL. VIII. CROOKSTON, POLK COUNTY, MINNESOTA, OCTOBER 16, 1884. NO. 25

Polk County Journal.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY.

H. E. COOKE, Editor and Proprietor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Dollar and Fifty Cents, if paid in advance, to any address inside of Polk County. If outside of Polk County 15 cents must be added for postage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum to any address.

ADVERTISING RATES.

SPACE.	1 w.	2 w.	3 w.	1 m.	2 m	6 m.	1 year
¼ inch	50	$1 00	$1 15	$1 50	$3 00	4 50	$ 6 00
1 inch	75	1 25	1 75	2 00	3 50	6 00	10 00
2 inches	1 50	2 25	3 00	3 50	6 50	9 50	15 00
3 inches	1 75	2 75	3 75	4 50	9 50	13 50	20 00
4 inches	2 50	3 50	4 50	5 50	10 00	10 00	25 00
5 inches	3 00	4 00	5 00	6 00	12 50	20 00	30 00
¼ column	3 50	5 50	5 50	6 50	15 00	25 00	35 00
½ column	6 00	7 50	10 00	12 00	20 00	35 00	50 00
1 column	9 50	12 50	15 00	18 00	35 00	60 00	100 00

Entered at the Post Office in Crookston as Second Class matter.

Republican Ticket.

For President,
JAMES G. BLAINE,
of Maine.

For Vice President,
JOHN A. LOGAN,
of Illinois.

For Presidential Electors,
C. F. KINDRED.
JOHN G. NELSON.
JOHN D. ALLEN.
W. B. DEAN.
L. G. THORPY.
A. D. PERKINS.
PETER KAUEN.

For Representative in Congress,
HON. KNUTE NELSON,
of Alexandria.

For Associate Justice of the Supreme Court,
JOHN M. BERRY.

County Ticket.

For Treasurer,
O. H. LUCKEN.
For Auditor,
P. J. McGUIRE.
For Sheriff,
W. F. ZWICKEY.
For Register of Deeds,
A. D. STEPHENS.
For County Attorney,
P. C. SCHMIDT, Jr.
For Judge of Probate,
J. G. McGREW.
For County Surveyor,
O. L. HAMERY.
For Court Commissioner,
D. E. HATTLESTAD.
For Coroner,
Dr. M. VAN DYKE.

COUNTY NOMINATIONS.

THE JOURNAL has said, and still maintains that in county nominations the object should be the selection of the best men for the office. Too often this principle is lost sight of and the choice of nominees made a matter of bargain and sale. Instead of conventions being an assembly of the people to choose their best men for office they are simply a ring of politicians who make the nominations only a stepping stone to the furtherance of some scheme. This practice is all wrong and we condemn it, but it can never be remedied until the voters learn to take control of their primaries and send only such men as will truly represent their interests. The two parties have now had their conventions and of the two tickets now in the field the Republican party have selected the strongest and the best. For Auditor they have wisely chosen who is too well known to need an introduction by us. It is a familiar fact that Mr. McGuire has brought the Auditors' office from a state of chaos up to be one of the best regulated offices in the State and we fully expect to see Mac some day called to step up higher and occupy the office of State Auditor (that is, providing always that he will accept). Genial, sociable, capable and honest, he has built up an enviable reputation that has attracted to him hosts of friends. For treasurer, the nominee of the Republican party cannot be beaten has no superior and few equals for the office that he has so long and faithfully filled, and so well is he known for honesty, sobriety, capability and integrity that doubtless he can occupy the office as long as he likes. He is an officer who has so well performed his duties that he has already been mentioned for State Treasurer and it is by no means improbable that he will one day occupy that responsible position. The County of Polk can do no better than to elect him and she will do it by a rousing majority. He, as well as McGuire, would be hard to beat because it is well known in the county that they are by far the best men we could get. For Sheriff, the sitting member, [illegible] appears as the nominee. He has filled the duties of his office during one term to the best of his ability and if, during that time he had not made some enemies he would not be a positive man and would be wholly unfit for the position. If he was so constituted as to please everybody he would lack that positive force of character which a Sheriff must have to be a good one. He has tried to discharge his duties honestly and faithfully and we have yet to see the man who says he has not and who will say wherein he has not and attempt to prove it. The records show wherein he has saved the county thousands of dollars needless expense. He is known to be a genial, free hearted companionable fellow, faithfully discharging his duties to the best of his ability and his experience in his first term renders him more capable of fulfilling the responsible duties of his office. There is one good point about him, rogues and thieves emphatically hate him, and many an honest man is loud in his praise. He was a soldier, serving his country well and faithfully in the 11th Minnesota, and the education received on the field serves him well in his present office. He has this advantage over his competitor—experience in the office, which is an important point, and if he is elected, as he certainly will be, being the best man up for the position, we know by his past history that the county need never blush for her Sheriff. For Register of Deeds is the Republican nominee. It is generally the fashion to tell where a man is born, and all that, on these occasions, but we don't know where he was born and don't care a snap so long as he was born and is an honest, sober and upright young man, and a good worker, all of which is true of Mr. Stephens. We believe he is a Scandinavian with American principles and habits sticking out all over him prominently, strict and sound business principles which render him peculiarly available for the office. He has many friends throughout the county, friends who know that if he is elected the business of the office will be in safe hands and who will work hard to see that he does get there. As the Democrats do not offer a better man, there is no good reason for a true Republican to leave his party this fall. For County Attorney of Red Lake Falls, is the nominee. P. C. is a young man of fine education and good business qualifications, and he is bound to make his mark in the world. He has identified himself on the right side in politics and has become quite prominent. He had the misfortune recently to get his leg broken which will prevent his making as thorough a canvass as he otherwise would, but he is right on deck and will make as thorough a canvass as possible and should he be elected will make an A No. 1 County Attorney. For Judge of Probate was placed in nomination, than whom no better nor truer man could have been found. Mr. McGrew is an old Minnesotian, having settled in Filmore County at an early day, where he practiced law, published a paper, and contributed in no small degree to the upbuilding of our grand State. He enlisted as a private in the old Minnesota 5th, and the fact that ere the close of the war he was promoted to a captaincy, shows that he possesses the kind of stuff of which men are made. He was in some of the hardest fought battles of the war, discharging his duties faithfully. Returning, he took up the duties of private life where he had laid them down at his country's call, and the next thing we know we see him shooting off his mouth in the service of his country in her Legislative hall. In 1871 he removed to Audubon, in Becker County, at which place the writer became acquainted with him, and during all of the intervening time we have always found him to be the same noble-hearted, true and upright public-spirited citizen, as his past history has proven him. He has filled many responsible offices with credit, a staunch and true blue Republican always, the party contains no more honored name than his and no more deserving servant. That he will be elected we hope and trust, and we know that the county could find no man more worthy or one more qualified. Being a lawyer he fully understands all points that could ever arise, and being a thoroughly honest man, he will always be a safe man to tie to. Every Republican, every honest man, every old soldier, and every man who cares for honesty, purity and efficiency in the administration of our official business should earnestly work for Capt. J. G. McGrew and the straight Republican ticket. For County Surveyor, a prominent young Scandinavian and a thorough surveyor, is the Republican nominee. He has been engaged in raising wheat and farmers all know how suddenly rich he must have become in that avocation, and some of them may object to him on account of his great riches made in raising the "golden No. 1 Hard," but we can assure them that Ole has not amassed many millions in that way. In fact, we know that all he did make he invested in instruments to aid him as a surveyor, and we know that there is no surveyor in this county who is better prepared to discharge the duties of the office. We think there is no doubt of his election, and we know that no better man is named for the position. For Court Commissioner the office demands an honest lawyer, and no more honest or capable man is named for the place than who is a young Scandinavian lawyer, well and favorably known in this county, and there is no doubt of his election. There you have the ticket that THE JOURNAL considers the best one in the field, which THE JOURNAL will earnestly support and hopes to see elected. There is no good reason why every sincere man, Republican, Democrat or Independent, cannot earnestly support and work for this ticket, and there is every good reason why all true, honest Republicans should do so. Party lines being now drawn, every true Republican should vote and work for his party ticket, especially so when that ticket is the best one in the field. No true Republican will be misled by vain sophistries, but will stand up for his ticket, work for it, vote for it, and elect it triumphantly by a large majority.

P. J. McGUIRE

O. H. LUCKEN

W. F. ZWICKEY

ANDREW D. STEPHENS

P. C. SCHMIDT, JR.,

CAPT. J. G. McGREW

O. L. HAMERY,

D. E. HATTLESTAD

That Immoral Issue.

The Baptist Weekly is another of the long list of religious journals who oppose the Buffalo bachelor on high moral grounds. It says:

"We have private information which we regard as entirely reliable that not only Dr. Ball, who has been unjustly made to bear the burden of exposing the scandal, but fourteen others of the clergymen of that city, hold Mr. Cleveland, from what facts they are familiar with, to be a man not merely guilty of a single dissolute act or two, but as a man of unchaste life and that through a course of years, extending into his public life. If there were evidence that he had repudiated his past, and even very recently become a different man in this respect, it would be some satisfaction; but we believe that no such regeneration of private character is claimed even by his friends.

There is many a worse man than Gov. Cleveland in high political office to-day, as there have been in the past; but we cannot as a champion of social and political morality advocate the election of such men; we deprecate it. In this instance we are compelled to declare that the supreme office of Presidency of this Republic ought not to be occupied by a man who would carry into it not only a conspicuous stain upon his reputation, but a record of facts in his personal history which, neither explained, repudiated nor, as far as we know, repented of, would tend to waken the respect of our young men and women for personal and social purity."

The Reason Why.

Now, as to the reasons why Grover Cleveland is not a proper man for the laboring men of this country to elevate to the position of President of the United States. His record during the time in which he has been governor of the State of New York, has shown him to be the friend of monopolies and corporations, and the enemy of the common people and the laboring men.

Because he voted the bill to reduce the number of hours of work for a large class of laborers in the city of New York, from seventeen hours to twelve, known as the street-car Drivers' bill.

Because, as governor of New York he voted a bill called the Mechanics' Lien law, to prevent swindlers from robbing workmen out of their earnings and giving them a lien upon all buildings upon which they were working, until their wages were paid.

Because he voted a bill to enable the workingmen, their wives and children to ride upon the elevated railroads of New York city for 5 cents fare, a bill demanded by the teeming millions of the city of New York.

Because he voted the bill to prohibit the employment of children under 13 years of age in any factory in the State of New York.

There are many other reasons which might be given why the laboring men of this country should see to it that this man should not be elected President of the United States, but we think we have enumerated a sufficient number.

We call upon all mechanics, laboring men and their friends to organize and see to it that every vote of this class is cast against Grover Cleveland for President at the election in November.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Tom Morris,
—THE—
CITY
JEWELER
Represents the
CELEBRATED
Rockford Quick Train
WATCH
THE ONLY
Railroad
Watch
IN EXISTENCE.

Christening and Wedding Cakes Made upon Shortest Notice in the Best Style.
A Choice and Well Selected Stock of Confectionery Always on hand.
John Crawford & Son,
Proprietors of Crawford's
Bakery,
SECOND STREET,
Crookston, Minn.

CONFECTIONERY.
Fresh Bread, Buns, Cakes and Biscuits. All Articles in the Fancy Baking Line.

Groceries, Provisions,
Flour, Feed
SMOKED, DRIED AND SALT
MEATS,
TEAS,
COFFEES,
SUGARS,
SPICES,
ETC.
Highest Market Price Paid for
FARM PRODUCE.
Bauchman & Millette.
Broadway, Opposite the Post Office,
Crookston, Minn.

BERG & OLSON,
PRACTICAL WATCHMAKERS,
AND DEALERS IN CLOCKS,
WATCHES,
JEWELRY,
—ROBERT STREET,—
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

NEW LIVERY,
Feed and Sale
STABLES,
Corner Main and Fourth Sts.
CROOKSTON, [illegible] MINNESOTA.
TERRY & COLLINS, Props.
Good Turnouts at all times at reasonable prices. Good Hearse and careful drivers when needed.

Fall Goods! Fall Goods!
NEW YORK STORE.
We have Received a Full Line of
Staple and Fancy Dry Goods.
Notions Boots and Shoes,
which we are offering at Low Prices.

We show in
DRESS GOODS
One of the Best Selected stocks in the city. All the fall and winter shades.
We call special attention to our line of
BLACK CASHMERES,
We ask comparison.
Black and Colored Silks and Satins.
We show an exceptionally fine line in these goods.

NOTIONS,
Hosiery and Underwear. Knit Goods and Shawls, Ribbons, White Goods and Linens. Embroideries and Laces, Corsets and Gloves, Etc., Etc.
VELVETS,
Black and Colored. Blankets, flannels and Quilts,
—CHEAP— —CHEAP— —CHEAP—
CANTON FLANNELS,
Bleached and unbleached and colored. Domestics of all kinds. Prints, ginghams, sheetings, jeans, ticking, cotton batting, &c., &c.

Hats and caps, complete stock. CARPETS, we have a full line of samples of Body Brussels, Tapestry and Ingrain.
BOOTS AND SHOES
of well known makes. We make a special effort to have this department one of the most complete in the city.
All our stock has been selected with all possible care, having all the advantages that cash and experience can buy for us, we feel safe in guaranteeing all our customers as low prices, if not lower, than can be obtained elsewhere, quality taken into consideration. ---- A CALL SOLICITED. ----
PROUD & MACDONELL.

Stewart & Lawrence,
—DEALERS IN—
Lumber, Sash, Doors, Mouldings,
Building Paper, &c.

1st Com. Dim's and Boards, rough,	$18	Siding, dry	$18
2d " " " "	16	Flooring, "	21
3d " " " "	14	Lath,	3
Ship Lap, dry	17	Shingles	2

A full stock of Sash, Doors, Casings, Mouldings, Eve Trough and Building Paper constantly on hand.

Johnson & Stephens,
FISHER AND CROOKSTON,
WILL NEGOTIATE LOANS!
Through the Corbin Banking Co., New York,
SELL MINNESOTA CHIEF
Threshers and Engines,
Deering and Esterly Binders,
Studebaker Wagons,
and a variety of Rakes, Mowers, Plows, Etc., Etc.
KEEP A MORE
COMPLETE LINE OF REPAIRS
than any agency in the County.
Twine and Wire In Season

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., Sept. 17th, 1881.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 7th, 1881, viz: JOSEPH DURAND, H'd No. 7015, for the e½ sw¼ S. 14, T. 150, R. 48. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Ephraim Tromley, L. Tillum, M. Lambert and John Borden, all of Terrebonne, Polk Co., Minn.

[21-26] JOHN CROMB, Register.

AIME GABOURY,
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON.
Graduate Doctor in Medicine Laval University Canada. Licensed Coll. Phy. & Surg., Quebec. Late of Michigan University, U. S. [illegible]
Office over the "Arcade" Clothing Store.
CROOKSTON, [illegible] MINN.

CITY ICE HOUSE!
E. D. SCHRAEDER & CO., Proprietors.
CROOKSTON, MINN.
Having purchased the ice house business of Ruedy & Kindler, and put up during the past winter from 75,000 to 100,000 tons of ice, we are now prepared to supply the trade the coming summer at reasonable figures.
E. D. SCHRAEDER & Co.

DENTISTRY.
J. H. THOMAS, D. D. S.
ROBERT STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN.
Artificial Teeth from one to an entire set inserted. Gold, Silver or Artificial Filling used as desired. Regulating Children's Teeth a specialty. ALL WORK WARRANTED.

EIKEN BROS.,
Corner of Fletcher and Main Stree
Crookston, Minn.
Dealers in
HARDWARE, TIWARE,
STOVES,
—AND—
SHELFWARE.
A
WE KEEP A
FULL & COMPLETE STOCK,
—AND—
Invite the Patronage
OF ALL.

A. H. DUNLOP M. D.,
Graduate McGill University, Montreal.
LICENSED COLLEGE PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON QUEBEC.
Office on Robert Street, Crookston.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., Sept. 16th, 1881.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Oct 30th, 1884; viz: OLE PETERSON, H'd No. 2375, for the sw¼ S. 20, T. 149, R. 47. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: B. C. Jergenson, Jake Ide, Leonard Paulson and Ivar C. Lamen, all of Andover, Polk Co., Minn.

[21-26] JOHN CROMB, Register.

MERCHANTS'
Bank of Crookston.

H. B. MONTGOMERY.........President,
St. Paul, Minn.
M. R. BROWN,............Vice President,
Crookston, Minn.
J. KELSO.........Second Vice President,
Bellevue, Iowa.
Wm. ROSS........................Cashier,
Crookston, Minn.

CASH CAPITAL, $32,000
SURPLUS, $16,533.82.

Will receive deposits and allow interest by special contract.
Buy and Sell Foreign and Domestic Exchange, make collections, and do a strictly legitimate business.
Agents for foreign passage tickets.
De Skandinaviske Sprog tales her.
WM. ROSS, Cashier.

ATTENTION
Now is the Time to Build
While you can buy
Cream Brick
at Very Low Figures. The Best Brick ever made in the Red River Valley. Manufactured by SWANSON & KOEPPE,
[11-16] Crookston, Minn.

SECOND STREET
MEAT MARKET
STANTON & CO., Proprietors.
Choice meats of every description. Fish and game in their season. Everything of the very best quality and lowest prices. Call and see us.
STANTON & CO.,
Dobson's Block, Second Street.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston Minn., Sept. 20th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 11th, 1884, viz: SIDNEY BOTTINEAU, H'd No. 9258, for the s½ ne¼ and lots 1 and 2, S. 6, T. 149, R. 40. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Louis Berthiaume, A. Berthiaume, of Gentilly, John Clements, Charles Gervais, of Little Prairie, Polk Co., Minn.

[22-27] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., Sept. 20th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 11th, 1884, viz: DAMASE LEDUC, H'd No. 9819, for the n½ sw¼ and n½ se¼ S. 22, T. 148, R. 46. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: T. Genereux, P. Genereux, E. Barrette and L. C. Couvrette, all of Crookston, Polk Co., Minn.

[22-27] JOHN CROMB, Register.

Polk County Journal.

Crookston, Minn., Thursday, October 16.

THE MARKETS.

Wheat is quoted in this market to-day as follows:

No. 1 Hard 57 cents.
No. 2 Hard 53 cents.
No. 1 Regular 53 cents.
No. 2 Regular 48 cents.

Flour:
Best,	per cwt.	$ 3.25
2d "	"	3.00
3d "	"	2.75
4th "	"	1.57

At Minneapolis:
No. 1 Hard 79 cents.
No. 2 Hard no quotations.
No. 1 Regular 69 cents.

Duluth quotations are as follows:
No. 1 Hard 79 cents.
No. 2 " 76½ cents.
No. 1 Northern 77 cents.
No. 1 Regular 73 cents.

'ROUND HOME.

Trunks at half price at Chiniquy's.

Norman County was well represented in the city this week.

Best cigars in the city at Van Dyke & Co's.

Blankets, quilts, underware, caps and gloves, at Hack & Gallasch.

A fine lot of toilet articles to be sold very low, at Van Dyke & Co's.

Jacobus has put electric lights into Walker's mill, thus turning darkness into day.

Cloaks, Dolmans and winter wraps at fifty cents on the dollar at Chiniquy's.

Close buyers have found out that Hack & Gallasch's store is the place for bargains.

The largest stock of boots and shoes in the city selling at cost at Chiniquy's

The Chronicle says that Bro. W. R. Dunn has gone to Asheville, North Carolina, where he will open a job office.

The best five cent cigars is at the Red Star Grocery, Broadway. [51-tf]

Chris Houston has obtained a flowing well on Section 4, in Fairfax. It is 168 feet deep and flows about 150 barrels per day.

You will find that you can save a great deal of money in buying goods at Chiniquy's.

Vote the straight Republican ticket. As the line is now squarely drawn it behooves every true-blue Republican to vote and work straight this fall.

If you want a rattling good cigar, don't take our word for it but take ten cents and go and try one of those what you read about at Van Dyke & Co's.

Among the callers at The Journal office this week were Bro. Edwards, of the Warren Sheaf, and L. G. Wood, who is Marshall County's choice for the Legislature.

For the next 30 days we are bound to sell goods 50 per cent. below cost in order to make room for new stock.
Van Dyke & Co.

Election tickets will be printed at this office at $5 per thousand. Cash must accompany each order to receive attention. Don't ask for credit on tickets as they must be cash in every case.

Capt. A. R. Russell gave us a call on Thursday evening last, on his way to join the Gordon relief expedition up the Nile. He is going on a long and dangerous expedition and it may be years before he returns to the Valley.

Prescriptions put up carefully at all times of the day or night, at Van Dyke & Co's.

Mr. John Dunn was up from Edna on Monday and dropped in to give The Journal an encouraging word and urge it on in its good work politically. John is one of the strongest Irish Republicans in the county, and will do good work for Blaine and Logan and the balance of the straight Republican ticket.

Van Dyke & Co. offer fancy goods lower than ever.

Elsewhere we reproduce the write up which our business men paid the Chicago Times man well for one insertion in that sheet. Now, it is all well enough to call in the aid of our great brother, the Times, provided we can amply afford it and providing we are not neglecting home institutions by so doing. Our own individual opinion teaches us that our home papers are doing during the course of the year a vast amount of work for which they get no credit and certainly no money. Often do we receive a request from some outside party to "send me a copy of your paper as I want to learn something about your country," and the paper is cheerfully sent, and nobody thinks of calling at our office to pay us for it, yet in this very way many a man has been induced to settle in this county. More than all that, the local papers are home institutions supporting our home business men, and they deserve and should receive a most hearty support from every business man who is interested in building up our city and county. We are thankful that the most of our business men feel that way, and are as liberal as they are, but we must say that there are a few who seem to care only for themselves—to make as much as they can out of the country, and who never put in a nickel to help to build it up or to support its institutions. Such men are content to paddle their own canoe about in a peck measure [illegible]

Notions below cost at Chiniquy's.

Wheat is coming in at a lively rate and wheat is on the drop.

What's the matter with those cigars of Van Dyke & Co's, if it is a good one you like.

F. H. Jenne lost a valuable horse on Sunday by brain disease.

The Blaine and Logan club have a handsome flag strung across the street in front of their headquarters.

Mr. John R. Bowers has opened a veterinary surgeon's office on Main, between Second and Robert streets.

The Democratic Senatorial convention is in session to-day. Col. Baxter and the Hon. Morton S. Wilkinson are in the city and a big time is expected to-night.

Charles Westler while out with D. Buchanan after geese shot one out of a flock passing over. The geese soon alighted in a marshy place and Mr. W. went in and captured one alive.

Lewis Foss was shot one night last week by some person unknown while on his way from his store to his house. We have failed to learn full particulars but we learn that the wounds are not serious.

On Thursday last a stable on the farm of Mrs. Rourke, a widow lady living northeast of the city took fire from a steam thresher engine, burning the stable, together with the horses, a new wagon, 300 bushels of oats and a lot of harness.

If you don't want to take our word for it go and see that Van Dyke & Co. have one of the finest cigars you have smoked since.

An alarm of fire brought out the department on Tuesday afternoon. The cause was the burning out of a chimney at the Merchant's Hotel. Fortunately the fire did not have a chance to get a start as the wind was very high, or a most serious conflagration must have resulted.

The steel cells for the county jail having arrived, the work of removing the old cells and putting in the new was commenced, meanwhile the prisoners were transferred to the city cooler. The work at the jail will soon be completed and then no prisoner will be liable to dig out with a pen-knife.

The Milton Nobles company which appears at the opera house to-morrow evening is highly spoken of by all of our exchanges wherever that company has played. By all that we are able to find out we should judge that the play and company is first-class in every particular. Secure your seats early and avoid the rush.

Very desirable houses to rent. Inquire of S. Clark, First National Bank. [25-tf]

Election News.

As we go to press the news from Ohio indicates that that State has gone Republican by at least 20,000 and that West Virginia goes Democratic by a small majority.

INDEPENDENT CANDIDATES.

Owing to the dis-satisfaction existing as to the nominees for Sheriff, I hereby announce myself an independent candidate for the office of Sheriff of Polk County and request the support of the people at the polls, promising, if elected, to give the office my whole time and attention, and to do my best to discharge its duties well and faithfully.
Neils P. Johnson.

At a meeting held in the city of Crookston at which were present a large number of the leading men of both the Republican and Democratic partys and at their request and promise of support I have consented to allow the use of my name as an independent candidate for the office of Sheriff of Polk County and request the support of all men who desire a clean and honest administration of the affairs of that office, at the polls and I hereby announce myself as an independent candidate for said office. Resp'y,
Peter Cornelius.

To the Voters of Polk County.

I hereby announce myself an independent candidate for the office of Polk County and ask the support of voters at the polls in November promising if elected to discharge the duties of the said office honestly and efficiently to the best of my ability.
Aylmer A. Allen.

Money to Loan.

One Hundred Thousand Dollars to loan on improved farms from three to five years time at very reasonable rates. Apply at my office on Broadway, in U. S. Land Office building.
[14tf] H. Steenerson.

Send Money by American Express or Money Orders. Receipts given. Money refunded if Orders are lost. Sold at all offices of the Company. Payable at 6,000 places. RATES: To $5-5c.; $10-8c.; $20-10c.; $30-12.; $40-15.; $50-20c. [2-27]

NOTICE

Any man investing in property at Red Lake Falls or vicinity who loses by the investment, I will pay five dollars where he looses five cents.
[3-28] Alfred Gervais.

Just received. A car load of Buggies selected by an experienced carriage builder all warranted. Call early and select one. McKinnon Bros.

Independent Candidates.

All notices under this head will be $5 each, cash invariably with the order. We shall make no deviation from this rule in favor of any one, so please do not ask it. [22-tf]

Attention Farmers.

As wheat brings very little money this fall and it is for your interest to buy good goods cheap, don't fail to call on Hack & Gallasch. We have marked our goods very low and will not fail to please you.

MARRIED

[illegible]

A Big Bonanza

JOSEPH BARRETT

Has decided to Put on the Market his

ADDITION

—TO THE—

City of Crookston,

Next adjoining the Crookston Driving Park. Parties desiring to purchase

—CHOICE LOST—

NOW IS YOUR TIME!

LOTS

For Sale Separately, or in BLOCKS.

TERMS EASY!

Apply to the undersigned or at the office of C. B. Palmer, U. S. Land Office Building. Both English and French spoken.

JOSEPH BARRETT.

A. Allen,

AGENT

—FOR THE—

HOWE

SCALE

COMPANY.

LIST OF LETTERS

Remaining uncalled for in the Crookston Post Office, for the week ending Oct. 13th, 1884. Persons calling for these letters will please say "advertised."

Albin, Isker
Anderson, C A
" " Miss Caroline
Berouard, S H
Bjerken, Jennie
Dahl, Ludvig V
Graves, H M
Halestead, Lee
Irwing, J C
Laplante, Huber
Faley, Androm
Lewis, Mrs Lottie
Lindberg, P
Lorentzson, O
Lutsen, Gustav
Malling, Mr Cora

Macknlon, Sarah
McCallum, Hugh Miller, Frank
Nilson, Mrs Tilla H
Newton, A
Olson Mrs Nelly
Pepin David
Prestelen, A M
Sandvigen, N S
Sandsden, Halvor A
Sanberg, Annie
Sanner, Axel
Sole, Louis
Eonelson, Neils
Thorbersen, O

POSTAL CARDS.

Benson, Bernt
Bothum, Barney M
Conwall, Stephen
Col. C
Goldbeck J F—2
Hennessy Thomas H
Hangan, Ole A
Harrison, Peder
Hougland, Andrew H
Jahnke, Frank
Irwin, J. J.
Johnson, Louis—2
Knudson, Neils—3
Kaulum, Geo M
Langeod, Joseph
Moore, Walter—2

Moen, Jorgen
Murrall, Geo A
Mau, J G
New, T W
Richardson, O H
Perry, Axel F
Peterson, P J
Ryland, Martin—2
Rude, C A
Styoe, Anders G
Stary, G F
Simpson, Hebert
Fensesy, Robert C
Sandberg, Knut F—2
Van Tugl J E
Wood, W C

D. JACOBUS, P. M.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Oct. 1st, 1884.

Complaint having been entered at this office by George Wellington against George W. Lewis for abandoning his Homestead Entry No. 7334, dated May 20th, 1882, upon the so¼ S. 22, T. 154, R. 46, in Polk Co., Minn., with a view to the cancellation of said entry, the said parties are hereby summoned to appear at this office on the 6th day of December 1884 at 10 o'clock a. m., to respond and furnish testimony concerning said alleged abandonment.
JOHN CROMB, Register.
[25-30] L. K. AAKER, Receiver.

Commercial Hotel,

W. H. TOPPING, Proprietor.
SECOND STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN

First class in all respects. Terms reasonable. A share of the public patronage solicited.

A. A. JUST, M. D.

Homoepathic Physician and Surgeon. Rooms corner Main street and Fletcher Avenue, over Elken Bros. Hardware Store.
CROOKSTON, POLK COUNTY, MINN.

W. L. Sargeant

Veterinary Surgeon.

CROOKSTON, - - - MINN.

Diseases of horses and cattle a specialty.
[9-tf]

WM. WATTS,

ATTORNEY AT LAW,

AND DEALER IN

REAL ESTATE:

Office Over Merchants' Bank.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 17th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 7th, 1884, viz: GUNDER T. HUNDLAND, H'd No. 9183, for the ne¼ S. 22, T. 152, R. 42. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Nicholas Thompson, Neese Thompson, H. Keogh and Hans P. Bjerge, all of St. Hilaire, Polk Co., Minn.
[2-27] JOHN CROMB, Registe,

U. S. LAND OFFICE.
Crookston, Minn, Sept. 17th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 7th, 1884, viz: JOHN LINDELL, Pre. D. S., No. 6359, for the n½ se¼ ne¼ sw¼ and lot 3. S. 7. T. 146. R. 43. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Erik J. Erikson, John Berggvist, E. Eriksson and A. Larzon, all of Rindal, Minn.
[22-27] JOHN CROMB, Register.

Wentzel & Rauch,

Sample Rooms.

MAIN STREET, - - CROOKSTON, MINN.

For a fine mixed or straight drink call on the boys. The choicest liquors and cigars in stock. [9-tf]

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 17th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 7th, 1884, viz: NICHOLAS THOMPSON, Pre. D. S., No. 7710 for the se¼ S. 10, T. 152, R. 42. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: G. T. Hundlen, H. Keogh, Neese Thompson and Hans P. Bjerge, all of St. Hilaire, Polk Co., Minn.
[22-27] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 19th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 15th, 1884, viz: HANS E. BERGE, Pre. D. S., No. 6935, for the sw¼ sw¼ S. 22, T. 147, R. 44. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Even Grotevig, Halvor Grotevig, Jacob Aldal and A. Nelson, all of Aldal, Polk Co., Minn.
[22-27] JOHN CROMB, Register.

M. M. VAN DYKE,

Physician and Surgeon,

Corner of Main and Second Streets,
ROOKSTON MINN

Will attend to all professional calls promptly.

JOHN LEO. H. STEENERSON.

LEO & STEENERSON.

ATTORNEYS AT LAW

Room 8., U. S. Land Office Building,
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA,

Crookston Tonsorial

PARLORS.

PROF. THOMPSON, Proprietor.

Robert Street, Crookston, Minn.

Shaving, hair dressing and all work in my line promptly attended to the latest style of the art. Give me a call.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 20th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 11th, 1884, viz: JOSEPH MARLOW, Pre. D. S., No. 7890, for the s½ nw¼ and lots 3 and 4 S. 2, T. 151, R. 44. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Pierre St. Jean, John Dairo, Almable St. Jean and E. St. Jean, all of Red Lake Falls, Polk Co., Minn.
[22-27] JOHN CROMB, Register.

CHANGE IS THE O FEEF OF THE DAY!

POTTER & GEORGE

—SUCCEED BEECHER & GEORGE OF—

MEDICAL HALL.

The reputation of the old firm will be kept up for good goods and moderate prices. Don't forget us.

POTTER & GEORGE,
Proprietors of Medical Hall.

E. D. CHILDS & CO.,

Proprietors of

CARMAN TOWNSITE,

AND

Dealers in Real Estate!

Why Don't You wait?

Wait till Crookston has ten thousand people. Three years!

Wait till Crookston is the largest and most important manufacturing town in the Northwest. Two years!

Wait till Crookston has two more large saw mills, and is cutting 75,000,000 feet a season. One year!

Wait till lots in SOUTH CROOKSTON are selling for twice their present valuation (six months) and THEN purchase

South Crookston Property.

But if you have time, just drop in and have a chat with

STEENERSON & McMANUS, Broadway.
JOHN IVES & SON, Broadway.
PALMER & BOND, Robert Street.
CROOKSTON IMPROVEMENT CO., Main Street.

Crookston City Bakery,

Peter Lorge, Prop.,

Keeps constantly on hand a full line of all goods usually found in a

First-Class Bakery.

Cigars and Tobacco, Nuts, Fruits, Candies; Pies, Cakes, Bread,

And everything to fill out a hungry man, constantly on hand.

FARMERS, FARMERS,

WE ARE

Selling Lower Than Ever!

You will always find it to your advantage to

Trade with Us

We Sell the Best for the LOWEST LIVING PRICES. Remember the place,

Broadway, bet. 2d and Robert Sts.

D. BUCHANAN.

THE

St. Paul, Minneapolis

—AND—

Manitoba

RAILWAY,

WITH ITS

1,400 Miles of Road

Is the only line extending through the

Park Region of Minnesota,

To all principal points in
Red River Valley,
Northern Minnesota,
Northern Dakota,
And to Devil's Lake and Turtle Mountain Districts.

—CONTAINING OVER—

9,000,000 Acres

GOVERNMENT LANDS!

The Land department of the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway has exclusive charge of the Company's Lands in Minnesota, and all correspondence relative to the purchase of lands, terms, description or price of any particular tract should be addressed to that department. Maps and pamphlets describing the country and giving rates of fare to settlers, etc. mailed FREE on adpplication.

JAS. B. POWER,
Land and Immigration Commissioner
C. H. WARREN,
General Passenger Agent.
St. P., M. & M. R'y., St. Paul, Minn.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 25th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 10th, 1884, viz: PETRONELLE SVARTZ, Pre. D. S., No. 8267, for the lots 3 and 4, S. 6, T. 147, R. 44. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Svend Kuress, John Jatntrold, Thorwald Torpet and Ingebret Torpet, all of Aldal, Polk Co., Minn.
[22-27] JOHN CROMB, Register.

Crookston Nurseries

ESTABLISHED IN 1879.

Tree Claim Stock.

I desire to inform my customers and others that I shall make a great reduction from former prices on forest trees and seeds for tree-claims. I have good thrifty two year old trees, such as Box Elder, Ash and Cottonwood to sell by the thousand. I also furnish the hardier varieties of

SMALL FRUITS,

Such as Currants, Gooseberries, Raspberries and Strawberry plants, and young, thrifty Transcendent and Hislop Crab Apple trees. The firm of Heseltine Bros. having dissolved, I still continue business on the

—OLD NURSERY GROUNDS—

in Crookston. Hoping by fair dealing and promptness with my customers to merit their patronage.

Don't fail to write for Catalogue and Prices.

All Communications Promptly Answered.

F. T. HASELTINE,
Proprietor of Crookston Nurseries, Crookston, Minn.

WANTED!

5,000 Men, Women and Children

—TO VISIT—

HACK & GALLASCH'

General Store, where you can buy

13 lbs. Pure Sugar for..................$1.00
12 lbs. Turkish Prunes for............ 1.00
5 three lb. cans Table Peaches for.. 1.00
Japan Tea from.........20 to 60 cts per lb
1 long bar of soap and 1 towel, all for..25c

Our stock of
DRY GOODS, NOTIONS, AND DRESS GOODS IS COMPLETE.

Don't fail to visit our Shoe and Slipper department before buying elsewhere. New and complete stock of Groceries, Crockery, Glassware, Flour and Feed.

We pay the highest market price for Butter, Eggs, Snake Root, Etc.

Call and see us. NO TROUBLE TO SHOW GOODS.

Cor. Main and Second Street,
CROOKSTON, MINN

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 17th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., Nov. 7th, 1884, viz: JOHN C. CHARLES, Pre. D. S. No. 8222 for the ne¼ S. 25, T. 148, R. 41. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: G. Bloom, James Yurgen, Thomas Olsen and Tork Hydnud, all of Foston, Polk Co., Minn.
[22-27] JOHN CROMB. Register.

Bigham & Olafson

(Successors to Juve & Bergland.)

THE POPULAR MERCHANTS ON

Main Street, - - Crooksto

Have on hand and are constantly receiving full lines of

DRY GOODS, GROCERIES,

CROCKERY,
CLOTHING,
BOOTS AND SHOES,
HATS AND CA

In fact everything usually found in first-class general store.

Our goods are bought with gre care and will be sold at

LOW PRICE

FOR CASH.

DR. M. WATTS.

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON

OFFICE ON ROBERT SRREET,

Professional calls by day or night attended with promptness.

A CONCORD LOVE STORY.

Shall we meet again, love,
In the distant When, love,
When the Now is Then, love,
And the Present Past?
Shall the mystic Yonder,
On which I ponder,
I sadly wonder,
With thee be cast?

Ah, the joyless fleeting
Of our primal meeting,
And the fateful greeting
Of the How and Why?
Ah, the Thingness flying
From the Hereness, sighing
For a love undying
That fain would die!

Ah, the Ifness sadd'ning,
Ah, the Whichness madd'ning,
And the But ungladd'ning,
That lie behind!
When the signless token
Of love is broken
In the speech unspoken
Of mind to mind!

But the mind perceiveth
When the spirit grieveth,
And the heart relieveth
Itself of woe.
And the doubt-mists lifted
From the eyes love-gifted
Are rent and rifted
In the warmer glow.

In the inner Me, love,
As I turn to thee, love,
I seemed to see, love,
No Ego there.
But the Meness dead, love,
The Theeness fled, love,
And born instead, love,
An Usness rare!

—J. J. Roche in Boston Transcript.

THE CLERICOMOTOR.

There was trouble in the Byesville Orthodox Church. Old Parson Thorne, who for the last forty years had been a faithful shepherd to his flock, no longer occupied the pulpit.

Byesville was a struggling little hamlet when the good man first came there, and he had seen it grow to a thriving, bustling town. With this material change there had gradually come a corresponding alteration in the minds of the churchgoers, and they began to find the parson's simple expositions of the Divine truths a trifle too quiet and slow for the progressive spirit which animated them. As to the parson's personal worth and Christian humanity there was no question, but his theology was not abreast of the times. At first the murmurs of discontent were heard from only a few, but the feeling seemed to be contagious, and as time wore on it grew stronger and stronger, until there could be only one possible climax—the supplanting of the present pastor by a younger and more advanced clergyman. The first of these steps had already been taken; good old Parson Thorn had preached his farewell sermon, and the pulpit was vacant. The second move, however, was found to be far less easy of accomplishment. There had been an almost unanimous desire for the resignation of Parson Thorne, but when it came to choosing his successor considerable dissension arose. The difficulty was not so much a question of doctrinal belief as of mental and physical equipment. The ladies of the parish were unanimous in their desire for a handsome bachelor. The men, while willing to concede this much to the infirmities of the weaker sex, were equally determined that the new-comer should be a man of phenomenal brilliancy. In short, nothing less than a Beecher with the form of an Adonis would suit all parties. The committee on selection was placed in a very unenviable position. These worthy gentlemen, Deacons Simpson, Stimpson and Grubb, faithfully strove to bring about the desired result. They carried on an extensive correspondence with numerous desirable parties, and they made on several occasions visits to neighboring cities, but all to no practical purpose. The desirable clergymen, while willing enough to listen to their proposals, speedily declined them when they ascertained the insufficiency of the salary offered. On the other hand, those who could be secured were found to be altogether too far below the standard desired. At last, failing to secure the wished-for prize through the ordinary channels, Deacons Simpson, Stimpson and Grubb resolved upon a bold move. They inserted an ingeniously worded advertisement in a prominent New York religious journal and awaited the result. Their patience was not put to a severe test.

On the tenth day following the first appearance of the advertisement, a stranger stepped from the New York morning express train into the Byesville depot, and a few moments later was conveyed in the village omnibus to the Wallingford House. His baggage, a metallic-bound trunk of unusual size, soon followed him.

As he stepped to the clerk's desk to register, he appeared to be a man of about forty years of age. He was of medium hight, and of a spare frame. His eyes were keen and piercing, and his sallow complexion was heightened by the extreme blackness of his abundant hair and pointed mustache.

He registered as John Rogers, and after a short conversation with the clerk, which resulted in the sending of the bell-boy on a mysterious errand, was shown to room 16, whither his trunk preceded him. A subdued noise of hammering was heard from the stranger's apartment for a brief period, and then all was still.

Half an hour later a gentle knock on the door of No. 16 announced the presence of Deacons Simpson, Stimpson and Grubb. The stranger ushered them in with quiet courtesy, and begged them to be seated.

"Gentleman," he said, "you are doubtless aware of the business which has brought me here."

"I presume," replied Deacon Simpson, who was the self-elected chairman of the committee, "you come in answer to our advertisement."

"In the Trumpet of Faith," added Deacon Stimpson.

"You are quite right," responded the stranger, with a pleasant smile which displayed his fine teeth to advantage. "Your advertisement has indeed brought me here."

The committee eyed him critically.

"You wouldn't mind our asking you a few questions?" queried Deacon Simpson.

"We have them written out," explained Deacon Stimpson.

"Here they be," said Deacon Grubb, producing a bulky note-book.

"One moment, gentleman," cried the stranger. "I fear you are laboring under a slight misapprehension. I am not a candidate for ministerial honors."

The committee looked in astonishment at each other, and then [illegible]

"Naturally enough, as you arrived alone," put in Deacon Stimpson.

"Jess so," added Deacon Grubb.

"Another mistake," said the stranger. "I did not arrive alone. My friend, the candidate, is of a retiring disposition, and desired me to see you first and give him time to prepare for the interview."

"Where is he?" in chorus cried Deacons Simpson, Stimpson and Grubb, looking with common impulse toward the curtain.

The Stranger followed their glances.

"You are quite right," he calmly answered. "My friend is there. Excuse me, gentlemen."

He dashed behind the curtain. A low clicking noise was heard for a moment, and then the drapery was suddenly drawn aside.

An exclamation of surprise broke from the three deacons. They saw an improvised reading-desk at the end of the apartment, behind which, in a thoughtful attitude, sat a distinguished-looking man.

"Gentlemen," briskly cried Mr. Rogers, unconsciously assuming the air of a traveling showman, "I have the distinguished pleasure of introducing to you the Rev. Mr. Dummeigh."

The deacons arose with much gravity and bowed very stiffly.

"We welcome you, sir, to Byesville," said Deacon Simpson, with a dignified air.

"And extend, sir, the right hand of fellowship," added Deacon Stimpson.

"Right hand of fellowship," echoed Deacon Grubb.

To this cordial greeting the distinguished-looking figure at the table vouchsafed no response; his attitude of profound meditation remained unchanged. Somewhat taken aback by this frigid reception, the worthy deacons, after a moment's hesitation, turned an inquiring look upon Mr. John Rogers.

"Ah," said that gentleman, in a reassuring tone, "I see I must explain. Let me do so as briefly as possible. Our clerical friend here is not, as you suppose, a being of flesh and blood, but a creature of my own invention."

This astounding revelation had a startling effect upon the deacons. They simultaneously arose, with the evident intention of inspecting the figure at close quarters, but Mr. Rogers checked them.

"One moment, gentlemen," he said. "After I have finished my explanation, I shall be most happy to exhibit the figure and its workings to you. You may not be aware of it, but I am an inventor of considerable repute, although this is my first effort in this direction. The idea, however of such a mechanical figure has long possessed me. My father was a Methodist minister, and in my boyhood we were obliged to change our residence so often that I grew to look upon him as a sort of peripatetic machine. And this gave me the notion of an automaton which would fulfill most of the requirements of the average clergyman. The idea grew upon me, and I gradually enlarged its scope until you see before you now the perfected fruit of my imagining."

He paused, with a dramatic gesture toward the figure. The three deacons were listening with breathless attention.

"Having thus," he continued, "briefly touched upon the conception of the clericomotor, I will now proceed to explain its merits and its workings. In the first place, you are aware that the popular church of to-day is the successful one. And the successful church can only be erected on a sound financial basis. Look around you," he suddenly cried, with a grandiose sweep of his arm, "at the successful churches, where the pews command gilt-edged premiums, and the tinkling of the silver as it falls into the contribution-box drowns the loudest notes of the pealing organ?"

Carried away by his eloquence, Deacons Simpson, Stimpson, and Grubb stared wildly about the room as if the edifice alluded to were actually within sight.

"What constitutes their prime attraction?" he continued. "Is it the soundness of their theology or the breadth of their Christianity? No, gentlemen; no! It is the popular clergyman, with his glittering platitudes and his resounding rhetoric. But the demand for these paying cards is so great that the market price has been raised far beyond the reach of ordinary congregations, until it lies within the power of only the wealthiest churches to secure them. It is here that the clericomoter comes into play. By means of it I place within the reach of the humblest congregation an attraction of the strongest form."

He checked his voluble address, and wiped the perspiration from his face. The deacons took advantage of this momentary gap to gather their scattered senses.

"But how," queried Deacon Simpson, "do you supply the brains?"

"And the voice?" added Deacon Stimpson.

"An' the gesturin'?" concluded Deacon Grubb.

"Nothing easier," said the inventor. "You are, of course, familiar with the principles of the phonograph. I will frankly state that I have adopted this idea—in an improved form, of course—in constructing the clericomotor." He approached the automaton. "Now, gentlemen," he continued, "if you will give me your close attention I will show you how the figure is operated."

The deacons crowded around him in open-mouthed expectancy. He went on glibly.

"By pressing upon the right-hand button at the back of the coat a trap-door, you observe, flies open between the shoulder blades. Into this receptacle I slide this prepared electrotype plate. By pressing upon the left-hand button I close the trap-door. Now, if you will cast your eyes at the calf of the left leg you will see a small projecting rod. To this I attach an ordinary crank—thus."

Suiting the action to the word, he placed the handle in position and turned it vigorously. The result was marvelous. The figure arose from its sitting posture in a dignified and natural manner, said in a powerful though well-modulated voice: "The usual collection will now be taken up." Then, with equal grace and deliberation, the automaton resumed its seat.

The performance had a surprising effect upon Deacons Simpson, Stimpson and Grubb. [illegible]

"Perfectly surprising!" [illegible] Deacon Simpson.

[illegible]

appreciate it. A word or two more. These sermons"—pointing to a pile of metal plate upon the table—"I obtain from a prominent literary bureau. They are all new, original and guaranteed. You get them at the wholesale rates. With each clericomotor I also throw in twenty assorted hymns, announcements and remarks suitable to all occasions, together with two bottles of my celebrated electrical lubricator and a monkey-wrench. My schedule rate is $500; but, as you gentlemen are the first purchasers, I will make it $450 net."

The deacons were almost overcome by this rapid way of doing business.

"Hold on!" cried Deacon Simpson. "How about christenings?"

"Weddings first," dryly remarked Deacon Stimpson.

"An' pastoral calls?" added Deacon Grubb.

"All arranged, gentlemen," cried the genial Rogers. "Plates for everything! Just think of it—no bickerings over the parson's visits; no devastating donation parties; no soul-destroying slippers to distract your daughter's mind; no salary falling due every quarter! The clericomotor is never troubled with clergyman's sore throat, and needs no vacations. In short, the only expense he will entail upon you will be for a small boy to turn the crank."

Deacon Simpson's face brightened up. "That won't cost much, I reckon," he said. "My boy Hezekiah will be just the one for that."

Deacons Stimpson and Grubb looked at each other with a dubious expression, for Hez. Simpson was generally considered the worst boy in Byesville.

"Understand, gentlemen," said the inventor, gravely, "this whole matter is to be kept a profound secret. I ask nothing until the clericomotor has publicly proved its usefulness. To-day is Friday. If you have no objections, we will try it next Sunday."

The deacons nodded assent.

"In the meantime, I must again urge upon you the necessity of the strictest secrecy."

It had been whispered about Byesville that the committee on selection had a new candidate to present to the congregation. Consequently, the church was filled to its utmost capacity at an unusually early hour. Notwithstanding this fact, the first comers were surprised to find the clerical stranger there before them. As the church filled up, many comments were whispered over this unusual proceeding, but they were supplemented by numerous complimentary allusions to his distinguished appearance.

The service opened with the doxology—sung by the congregation—and proceeded in the customary manner. The congregation was charmed with the new-comer. His gestures were graceful, though exceedingly numerous, and his voice was full and deep. So finely developed were these admirable qualities that when he made the announcement that the usual collection would be taken up, it was noted that he imparted to it a sympathetic flavor that it never before seemed to possess.

It was, however, in the sermon that he achieved his crowning triumph. Never before in the history of the Byesville Orthodox Church had such an eloquent effort been heard. Replete with graceful imagery and profound thought, it held their undivided attention from the opening sentences. And, most remarkable of all, it was delivered extemporaneously!

The faces of Deacons Simpson, Stimpson and Grubb wore looks of the proudest satisfaction, and they exchanged smiles of congratulation across the church.

Happily they did not know what was in store for them.

As is understood the motive power of the clericomotor was Hez Simpson, the deacon's harumscarum son, who was concealed behind the pulpit. At first the responsibility of his position held his frolicsome disposition in check, and he performed the duties prescribed for him with exemplary fidelity, but, as the novelty wore off, his natural spirit of mischief asserted itself. Despite his solemn instruction not to turn the handle backward, and probably because of this very intridiction, he was dying to try the effect of the forbidden experiment.

The new clergyman had reached "Seventeenthly," and was just entering upon a glowing peroration, when he was observed to slightly hesitate. Almost immediately, however, he recovered himself and clearly and forcibly ejaculated, "Sixteenthly!"

Hez had commenced experimenting.

The reverend gentleman repeated a few sentences smoothly, and then without a moment's warning shouted "Thirdly!"

The hair on the heads of Deacons Simpson and Stimpson stood on end in horror. Deacon Grubb was bald. It was very evident that Hezakia had thrown all prudence in the winds. The new minister, without in the slightest degree losing the expression of gravity which added dignity to his countenance, calmly proceeded backward by jerks through "secondly" and "firstly." Then he jumbled together two announcements and a hymn, and varied the astonishing performance by rapidly sitting down and rising again a half dozen times. Following this with a variety of wild gestures, he fiercely delivered what was commonly supposed to be a quotation in Choctaw, and then suddenly roared, "The usual collection will now be——"

The balance of the sentence was lost in a frightful explosion. Intoxicated with his success, Hez had jammed the crank back too far, and the new main cylinder had burst.

The collapsed clericomoter sank to the floor as the congregation rushed in dismay from the building.

The pulpit of the Orthodox Church at Byesville is still vacant.

Interesting Statistics.

From the Philadelphia Press.

The capacity of the steel rail mills of this country is about 1,600,000 tons per annum. About 600,000 tons went into new [illegible] last year, and the amount used for relaying, second track and sidings is estimated at 650,000 tons, or 5.42 per cent of the total amount of rails in track. This rate is equivalent [illegible]

White Beaver and His Gun.

Houston (Minn.) Signal: We have frequently read accounts of the remarkable rifle shooting done by White Beaver (Dr. Frank Powell) of La Crosse, and like thousands of others, have doubted his ability to perform such marvel with a "shooting iron," but our incredibility has vanished. While visiting the Gateway City, last Thursday evening, we dropped into Dr. Powell's office, and the following shots made, to gratify a few friends, were witnessed by us personally. The doctor at firs showed us position shooting. Sitting in a chair, with his back to the target, holding a looking glass before him, and aiming through the same, he would hit his mark every time. He then exhibited some more difficult positions, he would shoot and hit a small cork, suspended in the air by a cord, and fastened to a chandelier. He shot the ashes from a cigar, held by an assistant; shot a cork from off his hat, which was placed on the head of one of the spectators, shot a pellet (the smallest kind made) out of a loop, said loop was made of thread, and the last, and we thought most difficult, was the cutting into of a hair, which was pulled out of an Indian scalp. We have one of the hairs, which was shot into by White Beaver, fastened to a piece of paper, in our sanctum on exhibition, and also one of the small pellets, which was shot from the thread loop. The shooting was all done with a No. 22 cartridge rifle, and at a distance of about sixty feet. "White Beaver," by which name he is familiarly known might make a barrel of money by his exhibitions, but he seems to prefer to entertain those he likes, and only shoots for the pleasure it gives them.

White Beaver's St. Paul office is in the Union block.

Holland's Fight with the Sea.

From Good Words.

After a delicious breakfast of coffee and thick cream, with rusks, scodes and different kinds of cheese, always indispensable in Dutch breakfasts, we took to the railroad again and crossed Zealand, which chiefly consists of four islands, Noordt Beveland, Zuid Beveland, Schouwen and Walcheren, and is less visited by the rest of the Netherlands than any other part of the country. The land is all cut up into vast polders, as the huge meadows are called, which are recovered from the sea and protected by embankments. Here, if human care was withdrawn for six months, the whole country would be under the sea again. A corps of engineers, called "Water-staat," are continually employed to watch the waters and to keep in repair the dikes, which are formed of clay at the bottom, as that is more waterproof than anything else, and thatched with willows, which are here grown extensively for the purpose. If the sea passes a dike ruin is imminent; an alarm bell rings, and the whole population rush to the rescue. The moment one dike is even menaced the people begin to build another inside it, and then rely upon the double defense while they fortify the old one. But all their care has not preserved the islands of Zealand. Three centuries ago Schouwen was entirely submerged and every living creature drowned. Soon after Noordt Beveland was submerged and remained for several years entirely under water, only the points of the church spires being visible. Zuid Beveland has been submerged in the fourteenth century. Walcheren was submerged as late as 1808, and Tholen even in 1825. It has been aptly asserted that the sea to the inhabitants of Holland is what Vesuvius is to Torre del Greco. De Amicis says that the Dutch have three enemies—the sea, the lakes and the rivers; they repel the sea, they dry the lakes and they imprison the rivers, but with the sea it is a combat that never ceases.

A Minister's Daughter Elopes.

The village of Clarksburg, Ohio, is excited over the elopement of Miss Virgie Manson, daughter of a Methodist Minister, an educated brilliant girl of excellent musical ability, with Adam King, an uneducated clerk. The parents of the girl found her room vacant last Friday, and also found a note from her, saying she had gone with King. A diligent search was made and the runaway couple were traced to Cincinnati where they were found. They had been married. They were brought back to Clarksburg, where a brother of the girl attempted to shoot King, but was prevented after a desperate fight. It is thought that the girl, who is suffering from consumption, is insane, and an effort will be made to put her in an asylum. Her mother, who is related to the Hoyts of New York, and is a direct descendant of Gen. Putnam, is severely prostrated. King has a very bad reputation, and it is said that he has a wife and child living. He is of the most unprepossessing appearance, and is very boorish. Before eloping with the girl he borrowed $200 from her, with which, he said, he would buy property, but which he squandered gambling. The girl refuses to leave him.

The directors elected by the Western Union Telegraph Company for the ensuing year, by unanimous vote, are: Norvin Green, Thomas T. Eckhart, John T. Ferry, John T. Vanhorne, George D. Morgan, vice Augustus Schell, deceased; Harrison Durkee, Jay Gould, Russell Sage, Alonzo Cornell, Sidney Dillon, George W. Gould, John M. Pender, Sidney Dillon, Cyrus Field, George J. Gould, John Pender, M. P., Henry Weaver, Percy R. Pyne, Robert Lennox Kennedy, Hugh J. Jewett, J. Pierepont Morgan, John L. Hay, William D. Bishop, C. P. Huntington, George P. Roberts, Frank Work, Samuel Sloan, Erastus Winan, John A. Storr, Chauncey W. Jerome, James W. Clendennin, and Abraham R. Vance, vice Christopher G. Baldwin, resigned.

Kidney Complaints.

The kidneys form a very important channel for the outlet of disease from the system, carrying off accumulations that poison the blood. As the lungs remove the carbonic acid, the liver the biliary acid, so the kidneys remove the uric acid. The undue accumulation of this acid is the poison that often produces rheumatism and other chronic diseases. The kidneys are often effected and cause serious disease when least suspected. If there is weakness, heat or pain in the back or loins, weariness, nervous restlessness, and any unnatural condition of the urine, a hot, dry skin, hectic flushes, bloating of the body, or swelling of the limbs, annoying headaches, obstructed circulation, with sediment or gravely, or albuminous deposits in the secretion from the kidneys, or if that secretion be either extremely pale or high colored, then the kidneys are evidently not doing their natural work. Many suffer from serious kidney trouble without knowing what ails them. No matter in what form the kidney complaint may exist, there is no better purifying, regulating, diuretic and tonic than Burdock Blood Bitters. Its action upon the kidneys is at once manifested. Working upon this and all other channels of purification in a prompt and permanent manner [illegible]

A Paris correspondent says Mrs. Mackay's extravagance has been exaggerated. She never pays more than $500 for a dress. She makes the most judicious use of her money, not only in dressing herself and her daughters prettily and artistically and [illegible] decorating her lovely home with beautiful works of art, but [illegible]

How a Fortress of Amazons Was Stormed.

From the New York Sun.

Some amusing details are gradually coming to light in regard to the recent revolt of the female convicts in the prison of Alcala, in Spain. They drove out all the guards and took complete possession of the place, which they barricaded and guarded day and night. They had an ample supply of provisions, and when the troops arrived to capture the prison the women jeered them through the windows and pelted them with bread and vegetables from their abundant supply. The officer in charge of the expedition against these viragoes found himself in a bad fix. For eight days he did not know what to do. To use artillery against the young ladies was out of the question, and to get into the prison without smashing down the walls seemed impossible. At last he conceived a brilliant idea. He gathered together a band of the best looking soldiers in his command, made them shave, wax their mustaches, and put on their gayest uniforms. Then he sent them with a flag of truce to the Amazons. The handsome fellows were at once admitted, but were not allowed to return; in fact they did not want to get back, and it was part of the commander's plan of campaign to have them captured. In a very short time these military prisoners spread disunion and mutiny among the Amazons and then the place was easily taken.

The Temps publishes a letter from Brussels, which states that delegates representing England, America, France, Portugal, Spain, Holland and Belgium will attend an international conference in Berlin the latter part of November, at which the West African question will be considered. France and Germany have agreed to submit proposals to the conference securing the freedom of commerce to all nations in the Congo country and upon the river Niger. The necessity of determining the right of any power to occupy any of the unannexed territory of Africa, it is expected, will result in the creation by the conference of an international commission of the Congo, similar to the Danubian commission.

Mrs. Henry Pott has organized a propaganda to prove that Bacon, not Shakspere, is the real author of the dreams so foolishly credited to the Swan of Avon. At a recent meeting of the Baconites Mrs. President Pott abused poor Shakespeare in a style to make his bones move under their epitaph.

A huge black snake coiled around the ankle of Miss Elizabeth Carson of Roxbury, Pa., and charmed her while it tightened its grip, but she finally caught it by the head, and pulling it loose, killed it against a stone wall. She may lose her leg from gangrene.

A Bargain in Corner Lots is what most men desire, but to keep from filling a grave in a cemetery lot ere half your days are numbered, always keep a supply of Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" by you. When the first symptoms of consumption appear lose no time in putting yourself under the treatment of this invaluable medicine. It cures when nothing else will. Possessing, as it does, ten times the virtue of the best cod liver oil, it is not only the cheapest but far the pleasantest to take. It purifies and enriches the blood, strengthens the system, cures blotches, pimples, eruptions and other humors. By druggists.

The gathering at the Northampton camp ground, near Springfield, Mass., to celebrate the centennial of the independence of American Methodism, numbered about 10,000 persons.

Young and middle-aged men suffering from nervous debility, premature old age, loss of memory, and kindred symptoms, should send three letter stamps for large illustrated treatise suggesting sure means of cure. World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

J. L. Reynolds, son of Mrs. Joseph Gould of Newark, and Mrs. Mary McCabe of San Francisco, committed suicide in California after a drink of frozen absinthe.

"Work, Work, Work!"

How many women there are working to-day in various branches of industry—to say nothing of the thousands of patient housewives whose lives are an unceasing round of toil—who are martyrs to those complaints to which the weaker sex is liable. Their tasks are rendered doubly hard and irksome and their lives shortened, but hard necessity compels them to keep on. To such Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription" offers a sure means of relief. For all female weaknesses it is a certain cure. All druggists.

A $6,500 model of the new Cunarder, Etruria, which is expected to cross the ocean in less than six days, will be on exhibition at New Orleans.

White Beaver's Cough Cream.

A soothing compound of lung healing plant juices; 50c. Sold by all druggists.

David Tapley, stipendiary magistrate of Portland, N. B., and chairman of the county board of almshouse commissioners the past fifteen years, admits a deficiency of over $8,000.

Catarrhal Throat Affections, Hacking, Irritating Coughs, Colds cured by "Rough on Coughs." 25c.

For Torpidity of the Liver take Allen's Iron Tonic Bitters. All genuine bear the signature of J. Allen, Druggist, St. Paul, Minn.

Baldheaded men are informed that there is but one avenue of escape from their affliction, and that is Carboline, the great hair renewer, which being recently improved, is more efficacious than ever and is faultless.

A carriage containing George and Alice Hall of Stanford, Vt., was struck by an express train and both occupants were instantly killed.

"Buchu-Paiba."—Quick, complete cure, all annoying Kidney and Urinary Diseases, $1.

The Best is the Cheapest—therefore use Frazer Axle Grease.

He Must Confess.

Dear Sir:—I used the White Wine of Tar Syrup you sent me, and must confess I derived more benefit to my lungs from it than from any remedy I have ever tried, and cheerfully recommend it to every one having any kind of lung trouble.

Truly yours,
Rev. A. M. Humphrey,
Minister of Baptist Church,
Trilla, Coles Co., Ills.

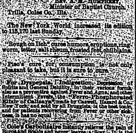
The New York World increased its edition to 115,170 last Sunday.

"Rough on Itch" cures humors, eruptions, ringworm, tetter, salt rheum, frosted feet, chilblains.

Piso's cure for consumption is not only pleasant to take, but it is sure to cure.

For Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Depression of Spirits and General Debility, in their various forms, also as a preventive against Fever and Ague, and other Intermittent Fevers, the "Ferro-Phosphorated Elixir of Calisaya," made by Caswell, Hazard & Co., New York, and sold by all Druggists, is the best tonic, and for patients recovering from Fever or other sickness, it has no equal.

Cole's Carbolisalve instantly relieves the pain of Burns and Scalds and never leaves a Scar. It is the best salve in the world for general family use. 25c. and 75c. At druggists or by mail. J. W. COLE & CO., Black River Falls, Wis.



ST. JACOBS OIL
THE GREAT
GERMAN REMEDY
FOR PAIN.
Cures Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, [illegible]

The honey production of Los Angeles for 1884 is estimated at 10,000 tons, and valued at $1,000,000.

An Invaluable Remedy.—None except those who have suffered all the horrors of Dyspepsia can fully appreciate the value and efficacy of Perry Davis' Pain Killer, a sovereign remedy for this distressing disease in all its forms is used internally and externally, test its virtues.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Francklyn have been entertaining the prince of Wales in Scotland.

"Rough on Rats"—Clears out rats, mice, flies, roaches, bed-bugs, ants, vermin, chipmunks. 15c.

Cuticura
A POSITIVE CURE for every form of SKIN & BLOOD DISEASE.
FROM PIMPLES to SCROFULA

Itching, Scaly, Pimply, Scrofulous, Inherited, Contagious, and Copper Colored Diseases of the Blood, Skin, and Scalp, with loss of Hair, are positively cured by the Cuticura Remedies.

Cuticura Resolvent, the new blood purifier, cleanses the blood and perspiration of impurities and poisonous elements, and removes the cause.

Cuticura, the great Skin Cure, instantly allays Itching and Inflammation, clears the Skin and Scalp, heals Ulcers and Sores, and restores the Hair.

Cuticura Soap, an exquisite Skin Beautifier and Toilet Requisite, prepared from Cuticura, is indispensable in treating Skin Diseases, Baby Humors, Skin Blemishes, Chapped and Oily Skin.

Cuticura Remedies are absolutely pure and the only infallible Blood Purifiers and Skin Beautifiers. Sold everywhere. Price, Cuticura, 50 cents; Soap, 25 cents; Resolvent, $1. Prepared by Potter Drug and Chemical Co., Boston, Mass.

Send for "How to Cure Skin Diseases."

HOSTETTER'S
CELEBRATED STOMACH
BITTERS

Protection: No such protective against chills and fever and other diseases of a malarial type exists as Hostetter's Stomache Bitters. It relieves constipation, liver disorders, rheumatism, kidney and bladder ailments with certainty and promtitude. A change, as gratifying as it is complete, soon takes place in the appearance, as well as the sensation, of the wan and haggard invalid who uses this standard promoter of health and strength. For sale by all druggists and Dealers generally.

CURES ALL DISEASES OF THE KIDNEYS, LIVER, BLADDER, AND URINARY ORGANS, DROPSY, GRAVEL, DIABETES, BRIGHT'S DISEASE, PAINS IN THE BACK, LOINS OR SIDE, NERVOUS DISEASES.

HUNT'S KIDNEY & LIVER REMEDY NEVER KNOWN TO FAIL

By the use of this REMEDY, the Stomach and Bowels speedily regain their strength; and the blood is purified.

It is pronounced by hundreds of the best doctors to be the ONLY CURE for all kinds of Kidney Diseases.

It is purely vegetable, and cures when other medicines fail. Over 100 Physicians in the State of Rhode Island on record testifying in its favor and who prescribe it regularly.

It is prepared expressly for these diseases, and has never been known to fail. One trial will convince you. For sale by all druggists. PRICE $1.25. Send for Pamphlet of Testimonials.

HUNT'S REMEDY CO.,
PROVIDENCE, R. I.

A. W. Brown, M.D., of Providence, R. I., says: "I have used HUNT'S [Kidney and Liver] REMEDY in my practice for the past sixteen years, and cheerfully recommend it as being a safe and reliable remedy." 8

TO THE PEOPLE!
This Should Be Read By All.
It Treats on a Subject of Interest to Every Family.
Important Intelligence from the Old Country, Where Cholera has Prevailed.
ASIATIC CHOLERA.
Almost every case cured with
PERRY DAVIS'
Pain-Killer

[From Rev. R. Telford, missionary in China, now visiting his home in Pennsylvania.]

Washington, Penn.

Dear Sirs,—During a residence of some ten years as a missionary in Siam and China, I found your Vegetable Pain Killer a most valuable remedy for that fearful scourge, the cholera. In administering the medicine, I found it most effectual to give a teaspoonful of Pain-Killer in a gill of hot water, sweetened with sugar, then, after about fifteen minutes, begin to give about a tea-spoonful of the same mixture every few minutes until relief was obtained. Apply hot applications to the extremities. Bathe the stomach with the Pain-Killer clear, and and the limbs briskly. Of those who had the cholera, and took the medicine faithfully in the way stated above, eight out of ten recovered.

Truly yours, R. TELFORD.

The late Rev. Dr. Granger repeatedly expressed his belief that he owed his life to the timely use of PERRY DAVIS'S PAIN-KILLER. During his recent visit to the missions in Burmah, he had a severe attack of the cholera, and was immediately relieved by the use of the Pain-Killer.

Directions accompany each bottle.
Price 25 cts., 50 cts., and $1 per bottle.
J. N. HARRIS & CO., Limited,
Cincinnati, Ohio.
Proprietors for the Southern and Western States.
For sale by all Medicine Dealers.

TUTT'S
PILLS
25 YEARS IN USE.
The Greatest Medical Triumph of the Age!
SYMPTOMS OF A
TORPID LIVER.
Loss of appetite, Bowels costive, Pain in the head, with a dull sensation in the back part, Pain under the shoulder-blade, Fullness after eating, with a disinclination to exertion of body or mind, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, with a feeling of having neglected some duty, Weariness, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, Headache over the right eye, Restlessness, with fitful dreams, Highly colored Urine, and
CONSTIPATION.
TUTT'S PILLS are especially adapted to such cases, one dose effects such a change of feeling as to astonish the sufferer.
They Increase the Appetite, and cause the body to Take on Flesh, thus the system is nourished, and by their Tonic Action on the Digestive Organs, Regular Stools are produced. Price 25c. 44 Murray St., N. Y.
TUTT'S HAIR DYE.
Gray Hair or Whiskers changed to a Glossy Black by a single application of this Dye. It imparts a natural color, acts instantaneously. Sold by Druggists, or sent by express on receipt of $1.
Office, 44 Murray St., New York.

MORPHINE and CHLORAL HABITS EASILY CURED. BOOK FREE. Dr. J. C. Hoffman, Jefferson, Wisconsin. OPIUM

GUNS Shot Guns [illegible] Revolvers, Rifles, Etc. [illegible] Great Western [illegible]

Words of Warning and Comfort.

"If you are suffering from poor health or 'languishing on a bed of sickness, take cheer 'If you are simply ailing, or if you feel 'weak and dispirited, 'without clearly knowing why, Hop Bitters 'will surely cure you.

If you are a minister, and have overtaxed yourself with your pastoral duties, or a mother, worn out with care and work, or a man of business or labor, weakened by the strain of your everyday duties, or a man of letters toiling over your midnight work, Hop Bitters will most surely strengthen you.

If you are suffering from over-eating or drinking, any indiscretion or dissipation, or are young and growing too fast, as is often the case,

"Or if you are in the workshop, on the 'farm, at the desk, anywhere, and feel 'that your system needs cleansing, toning, or stimulating, without intoxicating, if you are old, 'blood thin and impure, pulse 'feeble, nerves unsteady, faculties 'waning, Hop Bitters is what you need to 'give you new life, health, and vigor."

If you are costive, or dyspeptic or suffering from any other of the numerous diseases of the stomach or bowels, it is your own fault if you remain ill. If you are wasting away with any form of Kidney disease, stop tempting death this moment, and turn for a cure to Hop Bitters.

If you are sick with that terrible sickness, Nervousness, you will find a "Balm in Gilead" in Hop Bitters.

—If you are a frequenter, or a resident of,
—a miasmatic district, barricade your system against the scourge of all countries
—Malaria, Epidemic, Bilious and Intermittent Fevers by the use of Hop Bitters.

If you have rough, pimply, or sallow skin, bad breath, Hop Bitters will give you fair skin, rich blood, the sweetest breath and health. $500 will be paid for a case they will not cure or help.

A Lady's Wish.

"Oh, how I do wish my skin was as clear and soft as yours," said a lady to her friend. "You can easily make it so," answered the friend. How?" inquired the first lady.

"By using Hop Bitters that makes pure, rich blood and blooming health. It did it for me as you observe."

None genuine without a bunch of green Hops on the white label. Shun all the vile, poisonous stuff with "Hop" or "Hops" in their name.

WHITE BEAVER'S COUGH CREAM
Heals diseased lungs.

OPIUM Morphine Habit Cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till Cured. Dr. J. Stephens, Lebanon, Ohio.

AGENTS WANTED. LARGE PROFITS. Address The New England Mutual Benefit Ass'n, 81 Church St., New Haven, Conn.

GREENBACK $100 for every $10 you invest. Send stamp for particulars to W. PANDREW, Langston, Alabama.

LEARN TELEGRAPHY, or SHORT-HAND and TYPE WRITING HERE. Situations furnished. Address Valentine Bros., Janesville, Wis.

Send stamp for my circular, "$250 a year; or, How I Manage Poultry." [illegible]

Help wanted, Females.—Wanted—Ladies and gentlemen to take nice, light, pleasant work at their own homes (distance no objection). Work sent by mail. $2 to $5 a day can be quietly made. No canvassing. Please address at once, Reliable M'f'g Co., Phila., Pa., Box 1380.

LADY AGENTS WANTED
To introduce and sell Dr. Linguist's Spinal Health Corset. Apply to Dr. Linguist Spinal Corset Company, 413 Broadway, N. Y.

DYKE'S BEARD ELIXIR [illegible] L. L. SMITH & CO., Agents, Palatine, Ills.

LOVE COURTSHIP and MARRIAGE. Wonderful secrets, revelations and discoveries for married and single, securing health, wealth and happiness to all. This handsome book of 160 pages, mailed for only 10 cents by the Union Publishing Co., Newark, N. J.

25 CTS. PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION 25 CTS.

Dr. Spinney & Co.
Treat all Chronic and Nervous Diseases. Young men who may be suffering with Weakness, Nervous Debility, Despondency, Aversion to Society, Kidney troubles, or any similar diseases, can here find a safe and speedy cure. There are many of the age of thirty to sixty who are often troubled with uncomfortable symptoms, accompanied by weakening of the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. Examination reveals the fact that the patient's system is undergoing a depletion which rapidly exhausts every vital function. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause. The doctor will guarantee a cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration. Pamphlet, with full particulars, sent free to any address. Call on or address DR. SPINNEY & CO., 37 E. Third st., Minneapolis, Minn.

The Buyers' Guide is issued Sept. and March, each year: 224 pages, 8½ x 11½ inches, with over 3,300 illustrations—a whole picture gallery. Gives wholesale prices direct to consumers on all goods for personal or family use. Tells how to order, and gives exact cost of everything you use, drink, eat, wear, or have fun with. These invaluable books contain information gleaned from the markets of the world. We will mail a copy Free to any address upon receipt of the postage—8 cents. Let us hear from you. Respectfully,
MONTGOMERY WARD & CO.
227 & 229 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

ONE DOLLAR
FOR THE WEEKLY
PIONEER PRESS
TWELVE MONTHS
Address PIONEER PRESS CO.,
ST. PAUL, MINN.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S
VEGETABLE COMPOUND
IS A POSITIVE CURE FOR
All those painful Complaints and Weaknesses so common to our best
FEMALE POPULATION.
Price $1 in liquid, pill or lozenge form.
Its purpose is solely for the legitimate healing of disease and the relief of pain, and that it does all it claims to do, thousands of ladies can gladly testify.
It will cure entirely all Ovarian troubles, Inflammation and Ulceration, Falling and Displacements, and consequent Spinal Weakness, and is particularly adapted to the change of life.
It removes Faintness, Flatulency, destroys all craving for stimulants, and relieves Weakness of the Stomach. It cures Bloating, Headaches, Nervous Prostration, General Debility, Sleeplessness, Depression and Indigestion. That feeling of bearing down, causing pain, and backache, is always permanently cured by its use.
Send stamp to Lynn, Mass., for pamphlet. Letters of inquiry confidentially answered. For sale at druggists.

PARSONS' PURGATIVE PILLS
MAKE NEW RICH BLOOD
[illegible]

A THEORY OF GEYSERS.

A Description of the Wonders of the Yellowstone Park.

Letter to the Worcester (Mass.) Spy.

Perhaps as rational a general theory as any in regard to the present condition of things in the valley of the Gardner river, (for the western part of the National Park is the valley of the Gardner, which empties into the Yellowstone river near the northwestern corner of the park), is this. The geological formation of this region was a bed of magnesian limestone, either resting upon or superimposed by a bed of silicate rock. The theory of details is modified by position and conditions. By volcanic action this bed of limestone was changed to quicklime, which now, through the chemical action of water, is producing the effect witnessed in the form of geysers, boiling springs and the like. For 50 miles or more (the distance from the Mammoth Hot Springs to the upper geyser basin), the surface to a greater or less depth is in the main geyserite; that is, lime, magnesia and silicate.

The heated water, thrown up from great depths below the surface, holds in solution a large proportion of these materials, which upon coming in contact with atmospheric air, are deposited in strata of greater or less thickness. In some places hundreds of feet of limestone and magnesia, mixed with silex, are already deposited. And still the action goes on. Mostly the deposits are in the form of carbonates, the rim edges of springs and the bases of geyser craters being of marble. The forms of these deposits are beyond expression varied and beautiful. Every form of scalloping and corrugating may be seen. At one place immense smooth bosses, arranged laterally or heaped up on each other in vast masses; at another, whole fields of huge cauliflower formations, crowded thickly together, and again, masses like heaps of wool fleeces. These surface corrugations are likened to honeycomb; to me they much more resemble the inner linings of the stomach of an ox. Sometimes they are like fish scales or like the markings on the back of an alligator. Sometimes of perfect whiteness, more frequently of grayish white, but not unfrequently a most harmonious blending of colors, in which arsenic, sulphur, iron and oxygen are probably the main ingredients. I may be quite wrong, but the greens and browns seem to be of vegetable origin. The surface deposit is sometimes granular, though often fibrous, like the "frog" slime seen in stagnant pools, so that when hardened it takes on every imaginable structure form. Often masses present a coralline form so exact that even experts in these matters might be quite excusable in mistaking them for the work of Polyps. These forms must be seen to be realized; no words alone can create an adequate idea in the mind, in the delicacy of structure and beauty of coloring. I think I can see in this mingling of colors and material the manner of formation of variegated marble. In what are called the Paint Pots, the material is not held in solution in the water, but is mixed of about the consistency of thick paste and of the shade of the particular coloring ingredient prevailing in the mixture. Side by side are pots of various colors. When this mixture, which is now like seething, bubbling, and steaming paste, in innumerable caldrons, hardens, it forms variously tinted rocks of any imaginable pattern.

In the pools and ponds of unfathomed depths, the water of a temperature probably much above 200 degrees, the sides are lined with pure white magnesium formations, imitating foliage of delicate forms, leaves, flowers and fruits arranged after the grandest architectural patterns, which seen through the deep waters, reflecting blues and greens of every imaginable shade, produce a most fairy-like scene. Indeed no fairy grotto was ever imagined to equal this reality. These structures are so frail and the tracery so delicate, that rough handling and even exposure to the air causes them to crumble to dust. Were the waters of these pools suddenly disappear, the arabesque formation of the sides would disappear almost as soon, and instead of charming surface decorations remaining to greet the eye, the beholder would probably see only a heap of fine calcareous substance in the bottom of a huge bowl. In another short time softer earthly materials would mingle with these, and a thin vegetation would cover the whole. At least, that is what I saw in many cases. Such bowl-like depressions are of no infrequent occurrence, always one side of the rim lower than the others, marking the side from which the boiling water overflowed and escaped. Geysers build up their own cones and [illegible], till they are of sufficient strength to contain a column of water, the weight of which shall hold the constantly forming [illegible] until [illegible] finally overcome the downward pressure of the water will spout [illegible] geyser is formed. Under other conditions they are boiling springs [illegible] depths [illegible] extend below the surface. I have heard of and [illegible] some [illegible] above the surface [illegible] diameter. Of [illegible] those only [illegible] others are mere [illegible] in miniature [illegible] some entire [illegible] the "indicator," and is presumed to give warning of the coming eruption. The waste waters from these geysers and springs flow directly into some creek or river, which is always flowing in pretty close proximity, and the statement, if true, that the flow in the river is doubled during an eruption of one of the largest geysers, as the Giant, the Giantess, or the Grand, which flow from one to two hours at a time, may give some idea of the immense amount of water thrown from the depths of the earth at such times. Torrents of falling rain would not form larger running streams at the surface. Though saturated with calcareous matter, the flowing water is at first clear as crystal, and though scalding hot when projected upwards, it returns to the earth in cooling drops. The noise and commotion attending an eruption are indescribable, are even unimaginable, to one ignorant of the reality. No imagination could picture the sights and sounds combined within and without a geyser tube during an eruption, while the attendant spring seems doing its best to help on the melee. The spectator can only look on in speechless astonishment.

[illegible]

Some of the geysers are merely spiteful little fellows, throwing water almost incessantly to a height of a few feet, while others are said to throw jets 200 feet, or more. But I imagine some people see with exaggerated vision. The height to which the Giant throws its graceful crystal-like jets is put down at the above named figures, but two gentlemen who each measured during the eruption which I had the good fortune to witness, agreed very nearly in their measurment, but only made their height about 120 feet, which is a sad falling down from the estimate. Let the height be more or less, I could see very little difference between the altitude of the Giant's jets and those of "Old faithful," which I believe are never rated at much above 100 feet. As Bob Ingersoll is reported as saying: "Even this is a grand enough geyser for me."

Most of the geysers have their periodical times of eruptions, those of the Giantess and Beehive being at present about fourteen days, while others are scarcely as many hours, and others are nearly incessant. All these, however, are variable, and I was told that the eruptions in times past occurred with greater frequency than at present. A casual observer can readily see that conditions not only have changed, but are changing, nor does he need the testimony of the "oldest inhabitant" to convince him that he finds traces, not a few, of extinct geysers.

As may be said of certain localities, volcanic action has now ceased, may it not be said, sooner or later, that geysers are now extinct in the upper geyser basin of Yellow Stone Park? Now, it is probably the grandest theatre of chemical action on the face of the globe, and I can never be too thankful that I have lived too see it. I have been very fortunate in my visit, coming as I did at a time when so many eruptions were just occurring.

"Getting Into Society."

Nearly a hundred years ago, a homely old gentleman, who had been a mechanic and was the son of a mechanic, was sent as an ambassador from this country to France. There can be no doubt that he appreciated to the full the splendor of the French salons, and the grace and charm of the society he met there. A weaker man, or one with less tact, would have tried to imitate and conform to it.

But Franklin knew his own foundation, and stood firm on it. He kept his simple, grave dignity, his Quaker dress and his plain language. The result was that the enthusiastic Parisians made a demigod of him; men of the highest rank paid him homage; beautiful women crowded about him, actually cutting the buttons from his coat for souvenirs.

Not one of the other ambassadors at the French capital at that time are remembered now, though they belong to some of the noblest houses in Europe; while the advent of "the great Franklin" still remains a social tradition in Paris.

Americans who go abroad could study the secret of Franklin's success with profit. There is scarcely a capital in Europe where wealthy Americans are not to be found "in society," too often pushing themselves by every means art and snobbish expedient in their power among people who are, as a rule, no more cultured or better bred than themselves, but who have titles. The result is, that they win contempt from foreigners, when simple self-respect would command their regard [illegible].

The same mistake is repeated with infinite variations in our own country. The average American, whether old or young, is seldom content with his own social position or circle of friends. He is perpetually pushing himself into some other place which he imagines to be more fashionable, [illegible] is incessantly stung by snubs from people who are inferior to himself. In short, he takes voluntarily the position of a lackey when he might be an equal by simply keeping his own place and bringing to adorn it all the strength, grace and charm which he possesses.

There was a ring of the true metal in the reply of the Highland chief when seated below the salt at a state banquet: "Where MacGregor sits, there is the head of the table."

At midnight on October 27, 1883, William Alexander was accosted as he was going from his work at the paper mill at Corinth, N. Y., by a deputy sheriff and told that he was wanted at the hotel, the Central House. Arriving at the hotel Alexander was ushered into the sitting room and then informed that he must marry Miss Carrie Bennett. Alexander remonstrated, but a justice [illegible]

[illegible]

THE SECRET SERVICE.

Headquarters in Washington—Anecdotes [illegible] and Curiosities.

Washington Cor. Boston Traveller.

On the floor of the treasury building are the headquarters of the Secret Service officers. I called there yesterday afternoon and had an interesting chat with Mr. Knight, a Massachusetts man, by the way, and one of the most capable and efficient officials in the service. He took me into a small room, around which were hung the trophies captured from counterfeiters. In one corner was an immense sectional "jimmy" used by burglars, and near by a small press used in the printing of bank and National notes. Said he: "The operations of the corps of Secret Service detectives extend all over the country.

"There is not a city or hamlet in the United States which is not liable to receive a visit from one or more of the forty men who are constantly on the watch to suppress the counterfeiting of the coin and paper money. The movements of our officers are of course, from the very nature and danger of the work they are engaged, kept in the strictest secrecy. They wear no badge, nor do they even carry a document showing that they are in any way connected with the service. Oftentimes months and months are taken in the detection of a single case, and when a man has once been convicted of counterfeiting, or of passing counterfeit money, he is never out of the reach of our eyes.

"To show how successful we have been in suppressing counterfeits, I can tell you that we have not seen a new issue of bad money for over two years and a half. In that safe which you see there, there are one million dollars in counterfeit paper money, and about $200,000 in bad coin. This sample book in which you see pasted bank and national notes, with the word bad punched out in each, contains $25,000, and we have here the histories and photogpaphs of 2,500 criminals, perhaps ten per cent. of which are women. William E. Brockway is the most notable person in the entire collection. He is called the 'King of Counterfeiters,' and occupies the first place in the album.

"Next to him are his two pals, Doyle, the man who passes the money; and Charles E. Smith, the most expert engraver of "crooked" work in the country. In all their operations Brockway furnished the money, laid out the plans and was the brains of the gang. Doyle passed the "staff," and Smith was the engraver. Doyle is now serving a twelve years' sentence in the Illinois state prison. Brockway was captured some eight weeks ago on the charge of counterfeiting some railroad bonds, samples of which we have here in this office. Smith engraved the famous plate from which the $1,000 seven-thirty bond of the issue of '65 was printed, and $83,000 worth of it was actually redeemed at the treasury department before it was discovered to be a counterfeit.

"The impression was so good that the experts were unable to determine wether the bonds were genuine or counterfeit, and the matter was only decided when the Goverment issue bearing the duplicate numbers came back for redemption. Smith also engraved what is known as the Hamilton fifty-dollar greenback, and the one hundred-dollar note on different banks, which are the finest known of these series. Several years ago a very shrewd dodge was played by one of Smith's confederates on R. A. White & Co., of Boston. A woman entered their store and looked at some very expensive shawls. Finally, she made up her mind to take one, and tendered a thousand-dollar bill in payment.

"The clerk took the money to the cashier, who sent it to the bank to find out whether it was genuine or not. The answer came that the bill was good beyond the shadow of a doubt. Then the clerk said that the shawl would be sent to the woman's address but she proceeded to get very angry, and said if they could not take her money without question that she would go elsewhere, and she flounced out of the store in a great rage. About an hour afterward she returned and told the clerk that she visited other places, but that she had been unable to find a shawl which suited her as well as the one she had left in their establishment. She said she would take it with her, and tendered a one thousand dollar bill in payment. The shawl was valued at $200, and the woman took it away with her, together with $800 in change. The bill first tendered was genuine, the second was a counterfeit, and the firm was just a thousand dollars out of pocket. Smith engraved the plate from which this counterfeit note was printed, and it was so nearly perfect that only a minute examination would have caused detection. Smith also engraved the plate from which the one thousand-dollar six per cent. bonds were printed, but we captured the entire issue on Doyle in Chicago, amounting in all to two hundred and four thousand dollars. A curious thing about his arrest by our detectives was the fact that they took him, suspecting that he had the old counterfeit one-hundred dollar bills in his possession, when imagine their surprise they found a new bond. It will be several years before we shall have to look after Mr. Doyle again. Next to Smith the best engraver of counterfeit money is Charles Ulrich, who served a term of nine years in one of our Northern prisons. He is now in Germany. George White is another expert of note. He stands accredited with the best counterfeit five-dollar bank note issued, and but few people are able to detect them. The counterfeit is on the Merchants' National Bank of New Bedford, Mass. Here is a picture of George Albert Mason, a noted counterfeiter who came from England to this country, and engaged in the business. He was arrested [illegible] convicted and served nine years [illegible] he is now at liberty, and [illegible] the government for $50,000 for [illegible] imprisonment. His papers are in [illegible] British Minister West, but [illegible]

[illegible]

At present he is serving a thirty years' sentence as a reward for his discovery. He is a chemist of no ordinary attainments, and he invented a process by which he was able to take a genuine two or one-dollar bill and completely remove all traces of ink from its surface.

"Then, with a counterfeit plate of a higher denomination, he would print upon the genuine paper, and thus raise the note. Speaking about raising notes, here is a check on the Third National Bank of New York, which was raised from $451 to $56,966, and paid, in 1876. The perpetrators worked off with chemicals all that was written in the check except the signature, and I regret to say that we have never been able to discover who did it. Here are three steel plates which were engraved by Ulrich for a five-dollar issue. The engraving is done on soft steel, and when completed the plate is hardened. To give you some idea of the amount of labor it takes to engrave these plates I can only say that we have evidence that Ulrich was fifteen months completing them. Perhaps the greatest curiosities in our entire collection are the bills which made their appearance about four years ago, executed with a pen entirely by hand. At first we thought that it must take a great amount of time for the rascal to turn out one of those bills, but now we think he produces about one a week. The denominations are fifties, twenties and tens, and they are turned into the Treasury for redemption from all parts of the Union. Sometimes our officers do a little work outside of the suppression of counterfeiting.

"We had a hand in the extermination of the famous Ku-Klux, and here is a suit captured from one of their members." Mr. Knight unrolled a package and brought to view a blood red hat of conical shape, on which was printed in black, 'Mori! K. K. K.' Then came a black mask, which covered the face and neck. The holes for eyes and mouth were colored red, and there were lamb's wool eyebrows and beard of white. A red shirt and black trousers, with a white strip along the outside seam, completed the attire, which was drawn on over the ordinary citizens' dress of the wearer. These are a few of the interesting things that can be seen by the visitor in the headquarters of the secret service.

A FREE RIDE.

The Device of an Ingenious Englishmen to Beat a Railway Company.

From the American Register.

A free journey by rail inside a carriage holding a "complimentary" in your waistcoat pocket may be, and doubtless is, a very pleasant thing. To travel free as Mr. George Adams, of Wolverhampton, England, did the other day, however, is scarcely to be recommended. Nor is it at all pleasant, as that gentleman will be ready at this moment to admit. Mr. Adams found himself in Liverpool sans six sous, and being of a sans souci disposition, determined to get home by a new and original method of "macing the rattler," as a cracksman would say, instead, of cheating the railroad company. His idea, to say the least of it, was ingenious, but he had reconed without his host. He procured two stout pieces of rope, which he fastened to the axles of the carriage, leaving a noose at the end of each. Into one noose he put his legs while he inserted his shoulders into the other. In this position he hung when the train started. The train was an express and did not stop until Crewe was reached, which is about seventy miles from Liverpool. He was rather uncomfortable when the train began to move, but when it got into full swing he had real torture and when he reached Crewe he was nearly dead with fright. Here he was taken into custody. To the Magistrate who adjudicted on the case he explained that his sensations when swaying to and fro were something awful and the effect of the sleepers, as they rushed past him nearly robbed him of his reason and he "was afraid that every moment the rope would slip from his shoulders and hang him." The Magistrate decided very cutely that he had had enough punishment and remarking very sagely that he was not likely to repeat the experiment sent him about his business. An excursion on the stick of a Congreve rocket on the tail of a comet might be more exciting than this, but not much.

A WAR STORY.

How a Desperately Wounded Soldier Was Shot Dead at His Own Request by a Comrade.

Milwaukee Sentinel.

Henry J. Savage, of the Soldier's Home veterans, tells the following thrilling story of a war incident:

The oft-mooted question "Was ever a desperately wounded soldier shot dead, at his own earnest solicitation, by a comrade?" is answered in the affirmative by your humble servant. It happened as follows: The writer, a member of G. Company, First Delaware Infantry, was then attached to the Third Brigade (Weber's), Third Division (French's), Second Corps (Sumner's). After wading Antietam Creek, plunging through plowed fields, stubble-fields, his regiment was finally located within plain view of the enemy, when the welcome command ran along the line to "load and fire at will." It was then that our daily target-practice at Fortress Monroe came into excellent use, as many a poor devil of the Sixth Alabama learned to his cost. After firing eleven rounds the writer was wounded and ordered to the rear. While retreating in good order, but making most excellent time, his route led him through a portion of the Irish brigade. Here he saw a sight that capped the climax of horror. A member of that brigade was aimlessly stumbling around with both eyes shot out, begging some one, "for the love of God," to put an end to his misery. A Lieutenant of the Fourth New York was passing by, and seeing the poor fellow's condition and hearing his appeal, he halted before him and asked if he really meant what he said.

"O yes, comrade," was the reply. "I can not possibly live, and my agony is unendurable."

Without another word, the officer drew his pistol, placed it to the victim's right ear, turned away his head, and pulled the trigger. A half-wheel, a convulsive gasp, and one more unfortunate had passed over to the silent majority.

"It is better thus," said the Lieutenant, replacing his pistol and turning toward the writer. "God, the poor fellow [illegible]

[illegible]

Bathing and Bluffing.

Corr. New Haven Courier and Journal.

Bathing in the muddy Jordan is merely nominal enjoyment, and never cleansed anybody yet that I know of except Capt. Naaman. Bathing in the Dead Sea is dangerous to the eyes and mouth; if you have any cuts or sores on your body, exceedingly unpleasant. But bathing in Galilee by moonlight I am prepared to vote a success. The convent where we stopped at Tiberias abuts upon the lake near one of the beaches most frequented by modern Rebekahs. On both of the nights which we passed on the lake shore we took occasion to prove this. Only one thing marred the perfect enjoyment; and that was the nature of the beach, which was pebbly instead of sandy. It was evidently a rare treat for the Rebekahs to witness our ablutions, as they increased rapidly in numbers when it became noised about town that "real white men" were in the water, and they tarried obviously longer than was necessary in order to fill their jars. They would come close to us, remark "Marhaba!" (the universal Arabic salutation, signifying "welcome") and then titter as we answered back courteously "Marhabar teen" ("Welcome to you, also.") As I have intimated, we only held the boards there for two nights, but I am confident that our audiences would have comprehended all the people in the region about if we had remained a week. The second night an incident occured which serves admirably to illustrate Arab (not Bedouin) character. A man threw a stone at us from the beach after our audience of maidens had reluctantly retired. "Don't mind it," said Mr. Floyd, "he's trying to pick up a fuss with us after a characteristic fashion. Let him go the end of his rope." Pretty soon another stone followed, and then another and another, the last in rather dangerous proximity to us. At this Mr. Floyd said the time was ripe, and, going up out of the water, stood on the beach facing the missile thrower and the crowd of allies which had by this time gathered about the latter. Advancing brusquely, he then demanded in Arabic: "Impudent brute, who are you, I'd like to know?" "He's a g-r-e-a-t sheik," chorused the crowd, "and you don't want to touch him, or we'll make you sorry." "Very well," said Mr. Floyd, "I'm ready to fight the whole crowd of you, though naked and unarmed. Many a time I've annihilated a dozen men at once, all stronger than any of you, and I'm just itching to make mincemeat out of you babies. Look!" and with a stick he rapidly drew a circle around the spot where he stood. "The first man who crosses that line I'll grind to powder!" A moment's silence followed and then the leader slunk off, followed by his brave cohorts. One or two remained behind to try and patch up a truce by pretending that the "g-r-e-a-t shiek" was only a mad man, but Mr. Floyd was too familiar with Arab tricks to swallow that, and told them he'd rather they'd throw stones than to try to make him out a fool by passing off such a flimsy explanation upon him. Of course, it was all done by means of bluff, and we had a hearty laugh afterward to think how ridiculously absurd it was for one naked man to face a semi-armed crowd in this way. Mr. Floyd's last words were: "Great heavens! Why, your sultan would not dare to treat me in this way!"

Personal Gossip.

A whilom European charge d'affaires paid his addresses to a Brazilian lady having a fortune of about $250,000, and the lady smiled upon his suit. When the question of settlement arose she found that the diplomat expected to have the disposal of all her money, while her family insisted on settling it on herself and children. As he made this a sine qua non of the marriage, she broke off the engagement, thinking it was the cash and not the lady that the diplomat coveted. He soon afterward returned to Europe, but recently the lady has been surprised by a demand, through his legation, for a fulfillment of the marriage promise or for compensation to his injured diplomatic feelings.

Probably the most extraordinary case on record of a person living in a conscious state without eating is that of Miss Kate Smusley of Fort Plain, N. Y., who is at the point of death because of self-starva tation. She is her father's residence, and it is asserted with a positiveness undisputed by those who attend her that not a particle of food has passed her lips for 160 days up to today. She takes a little water in her mouth occasionally, but does not swallow it, as, when swallowed, it at once throws her into convulsions, which seems to wrench her stomach most terribly. She is emaciated to a skeleton. She is conscious, recognizes her friends, and is able to converse with them.—New York Sun.

"One of the conspicuous figures of the halls and varandas during the week," writes a Saratoga correspondent of the Philadelphia Times, "was the venerable Simon Cameron of Pensylvania. He is more than midway past his eighty-fifth year, but his mental powers are unabated. He has been greatly bent in form during the last year by the accident resulting in a fall in his house some months ago, and the erect form that has been so well known in State and nation for half a century will never be seen again. He walks with a long cane holding and resting on it as did the patriarchs of old, and his step is feeble and halting, but he rests well, enjoys his dinners and chats in the most genial way with the oldtime friends and foes. He loves to talk of the days beyond the memories of those about him, and his store of knowledge of the men known only to the present generation in history makes him as instructive as entertaining in his conversations. He is not now absorbed in politics, and avoids discussing the present contest."

Dr. Seltzer, in the Boston Medical and Surgical Journal, recommends beef tea made very hot with red pepper for delirium tremens. A London surgeon is stated to have treated 150 cases successfully with this remedy alone.

In some parts of Africa brides on their wedding day have their front teeth extracted and their finger nails cut very [illegible]

WOMEN DUELISTS.

How Ladies Have Executed the "Code of Honor."

A San Francisco journal observes that if women, as a general thing, do not countenance, and have never countenanced, modern dueling, and are naturally averse to all systems of individual combat—for varied and sometimes heroic reasons—still they have their womanly sympathies at play, either upon one side or the other, in all encounters of controversies where they may be interested, however trivial or majestic the difficulty or its cause. During the existance of judicial dueling in European countries ladies of rank were always found to be among the respectable spectators, and there have been instances of the presence of women on hostile fields since the prohibition of judicial duels, particularly in Italy and France.

There are also records of hostile encounters between women—conspicuous among which was the duel with pistols between Lady de Nesle and the Countess de Polignac, in 1721, in the gardens of Versailles (France). The ladies had indulged in a most disgraceful quarrel two evenings before, at a grand fete at the palace, over the Duc de Richelieu—than wondrous character in the history of France—during which Lady de Nesle losing control of herself, had sprung like a tigress upon her rival and attempted to tear a diamond necklace from the countess' neck. Failing in this, however, she snatched the blush roses from their nest in the snowy bosom and flung them in the face of her rival.

Up to this time, says some English writer the Countess of Polignac had kept down, by a powerful effort, the mighty rage which was inwardly consuming her, but this last indignity destroyed even the outward calmness, and, casting aside all further reserve, she attacked Lady de Nesle in the same way she herself had been assaulted. In a few moments jewels and flowers and ribbons and laces strewed the floor, and there is no telling to what extent the extraordinary exhibition would have gone had not the enraged Amazons been separated by the Marquis de Malbuisson and Mlle. Nathalie de Condacet. Out of this grew the duel, the Countess of Polignac being the challenging party.

The ladies met at six o'clock in the morning, in July, 1721, and fired one shot at each other without effect. Their seconds (the Marquis de Malbuisson and the Count de Penthievre for Polignac and M. de Remuset and Vicomte D'Allagne for De Nesle) then rushed in to prevent further hostilities; the fair demons, however, would not be appeased, but called for a change of pistols and again blazed away—this second time with satisfactory effect, for the marchioness fell dangerously wounded by a bullet in her left side, while the countess was just quietly touched in an ear.

A duel took place at Paris Jan. 31, 1771, between Mlle. de Guignes and Mlle. d'Aignilion (two ladies of quality), who had quarrels about precedency at a soiree, and retired to a garden adjacent to the scene of disturbrnce, and fought with knives until both were wounded—the former in the arm and the latter in the neck. It is recorded of Moussin, a French prima donna, that after killing three men in duels in the woods near Paris, by sword, she fatally wounded her fencing master, Scrane, and fled to Brussels, where she domiciled with the elector of Bavaria for a brief period.

Lola Montez was also skillful with both pistol and rapier, but it does not appear that she ever engaged in anything of a hostile character above the dignity of a street fight. She once challenged a journalist at Grass Valley, Cal., to meet her with pistols, according to prevailing rules governing such meetings, and upon his refusal to do so, thrashed him with a cowhide upon a public street. In 1843 she was a witness in the trial of M. Bouvallan for killing M. Dujarier, at Paris, and said in her testimony: "I was a better shot than Dujarier, and if Bouvallon only wanted satisfaction I would have fought himself."

Dujarier was a friend of Lola Montez, and in his will, written the evening before his death, he bequeathed the (afterward) Countess of Lonsfeldt 100,000 francs. On the 21st of August, 1777, Mlle. Leverrier (a young lady of good family), who had been jilted by a navy officer named Duprez, met the latter in the street and handed him a pistol and told him to defend himself—at the same time she drew a weapon and shot her false one in the face, while he discharged his pistol in the air.

An extract from a Georgia newspaper, published in 1817, says:

"Last week a point of honor was decided between two ladies near the South Carolina line, the cause of the quarrel being the usual one—love. The object of the rival affections of these fair champions was present in the field as the mutual arbiter in the dreadful combat, and he had the grief of beholding one of the suitors for his favor fall dangerously wounded before his eyes. The whole business was managed with all the decorum and inflexibility practiced on such occasions, and the conqueror was immediately married to the innocent second, conformably to the previous conditions of the duel."

A Buffalo, N. Y., paper of August, 1853, gives an account of an arrest of Catharine Hurley and Jane Hall, "who had met on the toll-bridge on Ohio street, in the presence of a vast assemblage, to fight a duel with Allen's revolvers." No other accounts of similar performances have come under the observation of the writer.

Tremendous Upheavals of the Sea.

From the Alta California.

A submarine eruption occurred on the 22d of January, off the east Cape of Hawaii, which was witnessed by Charles N. Spencer and others. It consisted of a terrific explosion, by which a column of water was thrown six hundred feet into the air, accompanied with most terrific detonations, as if a battery of cannon had been discharged. These noises were so loud as to have been heard forty miles away and continued for several hours, and it is probable that the water was disturbed during the whole day. But as dense smoke and steam, which came from the submarine eruption, filled the air, and prevented any further observations, nothing was afterward seen of it during the day. The occurrence was followed by a storm of wind and rain, which lasted only a few hours. The next day was clear and pleasant.

Sixty-four counties in Texas did not vote at last Presidential election. Many of them have since been organized, and will be heard from this year.

Fannie Kemble and her Father.

Charles Kemble was by no means a fortunate manager, and by the year 1829 the affairs of Covent Garden were in such a disastrous condition that the bailiffs were in possession for taxes. Inevitable ruin seemed to stare the unfortunate lessee in the face, when his daughter Fannie, then only in her seventeeth year, stepped into the breach, and at once redeemed the fortunes of the house. In "The Records of a Girlhood" she has given a most interesting description of her debut, relating how, after she was dressed, she sat in her dressing room with her hands convulsively clasped and the tears welling up into her eyes; how, when she was called, she stood at the wing lying back almost insensible in her aunt's arms. At length the dreaded moment arrived, and Mrs. Davenport, who played the nurse, called "Juliet." "Then," to continue the story in her own words, "my aunt gave me an impulse forward, and I ran straight across the stage, stunned with the tremendous shouts that greeted me, my eyes covered with mist, and the green baize flooring of the stage feeling as if it rose up against my feet; but I got hold of my mother, and stood like a terrified creature at bay, confronting the huge theatre full of gazing human beings. I do not think a word I uttered during this scene could have been audible. In the next, the ball room, I began to forget myself; in the following one, the balcony scene, I had done so, and, for aught I knew, I was Juliet, the passion I was uttering sending hot waves of blushes all over my neck and shoulders, while the poetry sounded like music to me as I spoke it, with no consciousness of anything before me, utterly transported into the imaginary existence of the play. After this I did not return to myself till all was over." I wonder if any of the self-sufficient young ladies who exhibit their incompetence to the admiration of their friends at matinees nowadays feel any such sensations? But Fanny Kemble, notwithstanding the overflowing houses she drew, which enabled her father in the one season to pay off £13,000 of his debts, was not a genius; she had no true sympathy with her art, and was chiefly conspicuous, after her short-lived triump, for casting scorn and contempt upon everything and everybody connected with it.—Belgravia.

A Foolish Fraud.

New Orleans Times Democrat.

"You would be surprised," said a Post Official recently, "if you could know how frequently stamps are used a second, or even a third time. And what is the most surprising thing about it is there is no profit for a person using a stamp the second time, as it requires more than two cents' worth of application and ingenuity to cleanse a stamp; but the loss to the Government is very considerable. I would be content to receive a sum equivalent to that stolen from the department every year in this way for my salary. Post Office clerks, by long practice, become very familar with the appearance of good and bad stamps.

"They acquire perhaps the same degree of ability in the detection of the irregularities as do clerks who handle money, but in large offices there are so many letters and the work of cancelling is of necessity so rapid that very few chances are offered for detection. It is only when letters are deposited in offices where the mail receipts are small that there is any considerable danger of detection in using stamps a second time. But the use cannot be profitable; packages or heavy-weight letters having sufficiently large postage stamps on them to justify their cleansing for a second use are subject to a somewhat rigid inspection and fraud can be detected. As I said, however, the use of smaller stamps a second time is large enough to make hole in the department funds."

The Wedded Life of Charlotte Bronte.

Lucy Hooper in Philadelphia Telegraph.

Since I last arrived in Yorkshire I have heard it generally asserted that the brief wedded life of Charlotte Bronte was by no means the roseate dream of happiness that her biographers have described. Mr. Nicholl appears to have been a harsh, if not positively unkind husband, and certainly his actions after the death of his first wife prove him to have been an unloving one. Perhaps it was better so—that early death with the dim eyes turned to the bleak moors that the dying woman loved better than the grandeurs of London or the loveliness of Paris. That strange, morbid nature was not created for happiness. The last supremest chance that a woman ever has afforded her—namely, that of conjugal bliss—seems to have failed her. Fame and glory and the applause of the world found her indifferent and unresponsive. She had outlived the sister whose nature was so like her own—the brother that she had idolized in spite of his shortcomings. What was there left then to the lonely, unsatisfied heart, save the one repose that may never be troubled? Yet to how many of us would not her life have appeared one of unspeakable happiness? To have written Jane Eyre—to have been received as one of the greatest authors of the day—to have been welcomed as a sister by Thackeray—to a healthy appreciative nature such a destiny would have seemed resplendent with the choicest gifts of heaven.

In the five years 1871-75 the death rate in England fell perceptibly, averaging 22 per thousand; in the next five years (1876-80 it fell to 20.8; and in the year 1881 it fell to 18.9; in 1882 it stood at only 18.6; and in the autumnal quarter of last year to only 16.6 per thousand of the population of England. For the whole of last year the death rate in England was 19.5, and if the great towns be excluded, 17.7 per thousand. Thus, for a dozen years past the rate of mortality has been steadily and greatly on the decrease, and when the cumulative influence of sanitary work is considered, it may fairly be expected that the decline of the death rate is far from having reached its limits.

The probability is that the desire to get hold of and read the revised version of the Old Testament will not be gratified before the beginning of next year.

WHY SHOULDN'T I?

By Helen M. Winslow.

My canary sings the whole day long,
Behind his gilded bars,
Shut in from all that birds enjoy
Under the sun and stars;
The freedom, grace and action fine
Of wild birds he foregoes,
But spite of that, with happiness
His little heart o'erflows.
"The world is wide,
And birds outside
In happy cheer always abide—
Why shouldn't I?"

I, too, must dwell behind the bars
Of toil and sacrifice;
From every heart and weary brain
My prayers or songs arise;
But all around, sad hearts abound,
And troubles worse than mine,
If aught of comfort I can bring
To them, shall I repine?
God's world is wide;
If I can hide
The crowding tears and sing beside—
Why shouldn't I?

DI'S DETERMINATION.

"There is a good deal in having a sincere and enthusiastic admiration for one's candidate; and I believe there is not a single individual of our party who does not feel a profound and zealous esteem for the gentleman who has honored us by accepting the nomination," Mr. Reuben Sayles reflectively observed, looking up from the political article he was perusing.

"The expression of his dear little face is quite human, bless him!" Mrs. Diantha Sayles said, as she lifted a fluffy brown and yellow bundle, which had been whining a canine entreaty at her feet.

"What is that, dear, about the expression of his face?" queried Mr. Sayles, his attention monopolized by the fascinating article. "It is not uncommonly handsome, did you remark? My dear, how often must I remind you that a fine physiognomy does not always express a fine character, and vice versa. The gentleman may not be particularly handsome, I admit, but that need not lessen his prestige as a patriot and a statesman."

"He has the sweetest little nose in all the world—the darling!" the lady said with fervor, as she fondled the fluffy bundle of canine ugliness which she had exalted to her lap.

Her spouse for an instant laid down his evening journal and moved uneasily in the immense cushioned chair that hid from his sight the lady who had reposed her charming self on a sofa in a far corner of the elegant room.

"I wish you would not mumble so, Di," he said rather crossly. "And allow me to intimate that we are not discussing the physique of the gentleman—neither the perfections nor the imperfections. What we appreciate are his unerring intellect, his unselfish aspirations, his grandeur of purpose."

"And will he kiss me for a bonbon—the affectionate darling?" mumbled the ecstatic voice from the sofa as Di caressed her brown and yellow monstrosity.

"Mrs. Sayles, will you permit me to inquire about what on earth you are talking?" demanded her consort as he abruptly dropped his evening journal and whirled toward her.

"I am only talking to my pretty Beauty—the blessed sweetness!" the lady vouchsafed to reply as she hugged the atom of shaggy ugliness yet more closely to her silken corsage.

"Ah, indeed, I see," he dryly commented, with a little grimmace of contempt and irritation.

"Beauty is such a comfort to me when you are so busy with your odious paper, and so interested with those detestable political items that you have no time to notice anything else," the lady announced complacently, quite ignoring his lordly distaste and vexation.

"You have a child who might comfort you for my unpardonable slights, I should think," he returned, with considerable sarcasm.

"O, Dolly is so peevish that she quite upsets me, and if she is not fretting she is sleeping," the lady said with sublime indifference. "And my pretty Beauty is so amusing and so jolly! I do wish, Reuben, that you would look after the dear little thing when I am away to-night; he will want his supper—just a bit of chicken and jelly, you know, and then——" and then she paused with an expression of petulance on her blonde insipid features. Her husband had checked her glib platitudes by a gesture of downright anger.

"Diantha," he began sternly, "I desire you to remain at home to-night. A ball-room is scarcely a place for a mother whose child is decidedly and seriously ill."

"Dolly is well enough," the lady averred with a yawn and a pout. "And beside, she has an excellent nurse who is much more clever than I could possibly be—I do not understand children at all, you know. And you want me not to go only because you are vexed with me, Reuben; you are angry with me just because I did not listen to your dull nonsense about some political magnate, and because I asked you to care for my poor Beauty while I should be gone. But you will give him his bit of chicken and jelly all the same, will you not, Reuben?" she added coaxingly, and with confidence, as she deposited her precious pet in the most luxurious niche of the sofa and rustled her silken flounces across the room.

"I shall be more likely to give a bit of ratsbane to your despicable little beast, madame," Mr. Sayles muttered wrathfully, as, with a flutter of sea-green ribbon and a rustle of ivory flounces the stylish blonde passed through the door and disappeared.

Such a stupendous threat did not in the least disquiet the lady. She understood too well his peculiarities to deem him capable of any such atrocity. He had an unpleasant trick of assuming the admonitory and ironic on the most insignificant occasions, he was disagreebly addicted to those obnoxious political items, and he was prone to depreciate and satirize the priceless and incomparable Beauty; but all the same, he was a mild, yielding and indulgent sort of husband, who never failed to gratify her most unreasonable caprices.

She hummed a bar from some popular dance music as she tripped gayly up to her chamber and settled herself in a low chair before a pier-glass to arrange her soft blonde hair and to adjust the laces and jewels about her round throat.

And as she scrutinized the reflection of her charming pink and white face and attractive figure she meditated—meditated so pleasantly that she felt quite drowsy, indeed when at lenght she donned the long-hooded wrap that quite concealed her elaborate costume of ivory silk and sea green garniture, and hurried down to the equipage waiting to convey her to the merriest ball of the season.

But in the midst of all the merriment, none was merrier than she, although she did now and then wonder if poor Beauty had been sent supperless to his dainty bed of down and satin. "I do hope that Reuben will give him his bit of chicken and jelly—but then Reuben has so little feeling," she thought once in a pause of the dance, as she rested in a diminutive bower of palms, and complacently sipped an iced sherbet.

But at that moment Reuben himself appeared before her astonished sight.

"Come," he said, in a manner of grave authority—"come instantly if you would not be too late."

And even then, despite the pallor of his face and the anguish of his eyes, she misapprehended the adjuration.

"What has happened, Reuben," she inquired with swift, insane perturbation. "Something dreadful has occurred, of course, or you would never come to take me home when I am just enjoying the [illegible] of the gayety. You have never let poor Beauty injure himself have you? You did not give him the cruel—" She faltered, for then he interrupted her by such a look as she never beheld upon his indulgent countenance [illegible]

"Woman!" he exclaimed in a voice of [illegible] pain and scorn, "Woman, your child is [illegible]

[illegible]

numb, realizing her bitter loss, and remorse that was yet more bitter, something came, and crouched whining at her feet.

Then, she turned with a shudder and clutched the arm that supported her.

"Take him away," she cried, meaning Reuben, if you love me, take him out of my sight forever."

And then she staggered and lifted her aching eyes, and beheld her own drowsy and scared reflection in her own familiar pier glass, before which she had actually slept and dreamed that agonizing and terribly vivid dream.

But, nevertheless, Reuben himself was beside her; and his gentle arm was about her, his anxious gaze fixed on her changed and troubled countenance.

"Great heavens, Di, how you have frightened me!" he ejaculated, with something of his familiar irritation, but with sufficient tenderness, too. "I came up after you just as you called to me in your dream, just as you struggled and awakened. But did you mean to forego the ball? you need not, dear; Dolly is not so ill, after all, and I shall give Beauty his bit of chicken, of course."

And then, she leaned her charming head against him, and her sobs came thick and fast. But possibly that storm of penitential tears may have cleansed her motherhood from the stains of neglect, and her womanhood from the blemishes of frivolity. Certainly that impressive and marvelously vivid dream had quickened her sense of the dignified and considerate.

"I do not care for the ball," she said faintly, but with determination; "but if you like, you may send that dreadful dog there or anywhere, so he may be out of my sight forever. I have my blessed Dolly to comfort me, you know, when you choose to occupy yourself with those odious political items. You need not smile sarcastically, Ruben; I mean henceforth that you shall have a wife, and that our child shall have a mother."

And what she had determined, that she did.

Put Yourself in the Horse's Place.

From the New York Tribune.

"It is the worry not work that kills." Let every owner of a horse think, when he brings his team to the stable at night, how much vital force has been expended in work and how much in worry, and then strike a balance. And let him consider himself to be put in the horse's place, so that he may better know how it is himself. And thus:

A man goes out to work in the morning, after having all night fought flies of the most pestilent kind, breathed hot, foul air, reeked in the sweat and dust of the previous day's work, eaten a breakfast in haste, without a sufficient cleaning of his shin, and with boots and clothing ill-fiting and galling the tenderest spots upon his person.

He is then, from the filthiness of his body, exposed all day to the venomous attacks of flies, which he fights with hands and feet, but which, from the exigencies of his work, he can only drive off for the slightest moment, after which a cloud of them settle upon his face and exposed parts and sting him severely.

He works on from hour to hour in the broiling sun without water to moisten his mouth or to quench his raging thirst until midday, when he rushes home, swallows a drink of dirty water and hastily eats a dinner in the foulest smelling and worst ventilated part of his premises.

The afternoon is like the forenoon, and after this has been occupied in the same way the man, all foul with gathered dust and sweat, eats his evening meal as he dined, and lies down to rest (?), if he can, on a filthy floor, in an appartment that is hot, close, and swarming with flies, which he vainly fights as he catches an odd wink or so of sleep.

And so, de novo, from day to day he fights it out on this line all summer. Then how much of the resulting wear and tear is due to the worry and how little of it to the work?

Something like this is the weary condition of the average farm horse. No note is taken of the cruel lashing, the injudicious feeding and watering, the torment of check-reins, the hindrances of blinders, the bad treatment of the feet by the blacksmith and other mistakes which produce actual disease, nor of the truly horrible nostrums and poisonous stuff which are made use of as "remedies" for these complaints.

Thinking of these things, who can wonder that the average farm horse, whose useful life is naturally 25 to 30 years gets into a hole in a corner of the farm and is consumed by prowling dogs in less than half his allotted term of life?

Going Home.

From the Chicago Herald.

"Yes sir, I'm going home to see my folks down in New York," said a young man as best he could between his frequent spells of painful coughing. His face was thin and each of his cheeks dotted with a small pink spot; his eyes were bright but sunken, his hands limp and fleshless, his voice hollow and his breath short. "I've been out west a couple of years, sir; went out for my health, which was poor. I got better a good deal better, and went to work. Think I must have worked too hard, as I was anxious to to get enough money ahead to build a nice house for somebody from back in New York. Anyhow, I got sick again, and concluded to go home. But I'll pick up wonderfully after I get there, I'm sure I will. There's mother, you know, to take care of me, and make beef tea for me, and herb medicine. And she'll undress me and put me to bed till I get strong enough to do it myself. I haven't been undressed for five nights. Father'll buy everything for me I want, and there's old Nell, my favorite horse—I'll drive her around till I am able to get on to her back as I used to. And there's the somebody I spoke of—she'll be there too and I know I shall get well when I'm with her. What a nice time I'll have! I don't mean to work any for two or three months, but walk about the dear old place, help father feed the calves, watch the pigs eating in the barnyard, ride old Nell up and down the lane and over the fields, sit and fish for bass down at the pool, and go bathing in the creek just as I did when I was a boy. And I must go to the old school-house too—the old school-house where I went for ten years, except during harvest and haying. And the white church up at the corner— [illegible]

Negro Peculiarities.

When we consider that for so many years the negro race has been, comparatively speaking, very closely associated with the whites, it is a matter of surprise and conjecture that they should cling so tenaciously to their peculiar characteristics, especially those connected with their religious ideas, ceremonies and superstitions.

It may seem an overdrawn statement, yet it is strictly a true one, that the genuine darkey is never happier or more truly in his element than when under the excitement of a "first-class" funeral. A relative, friend or companion may be ill for weeks, and perhaps suffer for needed attentions from their own color, but the moment it is known that the sick creature is dying, men, women and children flock in and around the cabin and set up a perfect "Babel" of wails, prayers and lamentations, adding to the horrors of the deathbed and intensifying the grief and excitement of the afflicted household.

For a while when the grave-decked figure lies motionless with its folded hands, muffled jaws and immense plate of salt on the body to "keep down the swelling," there is a hush and calm on the dusky crowd and footfalls and whispered words betoken the solemnity of the hour; but this is only a smothered lull, a sure harbinger of the excitement to come.

Could there possibly be a more fitting time for a moral lesson on the "great mystery?" And it is seldom indeed that our colored friends allow such opportunities to escape them. As some aged seer of the plantation stands with folded arms and bowed head and gazes reverently at the still figure there is a look of hushed expectancy on the sable faces of the gathered crowd. Nor are they to be disappointed, for tenderly covering out of sight the rigid features of the dead the old man wipes aside a few stray tears and solemnly begins:

"Jis so, my sisters and brudders, we mortals is boun' to pass away. We is here to-day; who knows whar we will be to-morrow? Jis as you see dis body a-lying here, jis so you is got to be; it may be soon or it mout be late, but, all de same, you's boun' for to go.

"Dar ain't no gitting roun' dis fing dey call def. De rich and de poor, de high and de low mus' all go de same way, and blissid be de man dat is ready to 'ceibe de summons."

"Dat's de truff, brudder; dat's de gospel," echo the crowd, and waxing eloquent the old brother continues:

"We go on from day to day in our sins, and we gits so sot in der blief ob our own strength dat it pears like as if we is gwine to lib on furrbber, and ebery day ole Satan he whispers as how you ain't no whar nigh def and what's de use ob praying and den when you leastways spects it dar is a pain heah and a pain dar, and you is strucken down on yer def bed. So, my dear frens, I says be on de watch and nebber weary of watching, kase def is shure fur to fine you out. You is boun fur to pass outen dis life into dat great eternurty. Man is like de grass in de fiel—he is here to-day; to-morrow he is cut down, and we can't in no wise tell de hour or de day we is gwine fur to be cut off."

"Dar you is rite, my brudder, dem am Gospel words you is said," and the hushed awe is broken, tongues are loosed and the eager crowd gives itself up, mind, heart and body, to the enjoyment of the occasion.

When you see the "dusky wards of our nation" at a "sitting up" with a dead person of distinction among their own race you see them in all their pomp and glory. The entire night is passed in prayers, singing and shouting, interspersed with violent wails and lamentations from kith and kindred friends. The more bitter the grief the greater the delight of the assembly, and if at the burial the breaved mourners should be so overcome with grief and excitement as to lose consciousness the satisfaction is complete, and big, little, young and old will affirm that "dat was a sure fine funeral," and that "Mr. or Mrs. (somebody) would sures res good in his or her grabe, kase de funeral passed off so hansum."

"I can conceive of no greater trial than for a house servant to be denied the great privilege of attending a funeral, and the expressed sympathy of those more fortunate ones who witnessed the ceremonies is genuine indeed.

"I shure is sorry you couldn't go, kase dat wus a pinted good funeral. De folks wus a site to behold, and dey acted as fine as ladies and genemen could ack. Dat youngest gal jis fainted plum away and it tuck two of de bredders to hole her sister. I clar to goodness, couldn't tie me down in de white folks' house when dar wus such a big funeral a gwine on," and the grieved looks of your "help" will for days reproach you for your cruelty.

So for the sake of "sweet peace," when there is to be a funeral of consequence, I make very strenuous efforts to so arrange my demestic affairs that "my Dora" can take in the enjoyment from beginning to end, and am usually rewarded by a very beaming countenance and the assurance that she "shure did have a fine time."

Origin of the Blue Book.

Peter Force, a New York journeyman printer, came to Washington in 1815, became the proprietor of a printing office and originated, and for some years compiled without charge, the "Biennial Register," better known from the color of its bindings as the "Blue Book," of which the Government purchased a small number of copies. Fond of American history, he in time collected a large quantity of rare books and pamphlets, many of which had been thrown away from the executive departments as rubbish and purchased by him of the dealers in waste paper. In 1833 he originated the idea of compiling and publishing a documentary history of the country under the title of "The American Archives," and in order to secure the necessary appropriation from Congress [illegible] him beloved as well as revered by all who knew him. After his death Congress purchased his collection of books and manuscripts, and it now graces the Congressional Library.—Boston Budget.

Spontaneous Barn Burning.

From the Scientific American.

It is noticeable that a larger number of the burnings of barns is mentioned by the periodical press in the summer than at any other time. Some of the fires are undoubtedly caused by lightning, the moist vapor from the uncured hay making a favorable conductor for the electric fluid. But there are barn fires which cannot be attributed to lightning, to lighting of matches, to light from lanterns, nor to the invasions of careless tramps. It may be that the spontaneous combustion of hay is as possible as the spontaneous firing of cotton waste. All fibrous material, when moist, and compressed, and defended from the cooling influence of the outward air, is subjected to a heating similar to that of fermentation; and in some instances the degree of heat is sufficient to cause actual, visible combustion. In the case of recently "cured" hay this danger is as great as, in similar circumstances, other materials may be. Frequently the grass is cut in the early morning, while wet with dew; is turned twice during the day, and gathered and packed in "the mow" or the "bay" before nightfall, with perhaps a sparse sprinkling of salt. Such a compressed mass of fibrous, moist matter will heat. How far the heat will go toward generating a combustion may be inferred from a foolish trick which the writer witnessed several years ago.

A large meadow of hay had been cut, cured and cocked, previous to removal. A shower threatening, the cocks were covered with caps of canvas and left for the night. While getting the hay in, the next day, one of the workmen dropped an unlighted match from his pocket into a cock of hay, and in a few minutes it was ablaze. It afterward was ascertained that he had spoken of the warmth of the hay as he lifted it on his fork, when a companion remarked that it might be hot enough to light a match, on which he put a match into a rick, and before they had passed on five minutes the rick was on fire.

Everybody conversant with farm life, where hay is a permanent and an important crop, knows that for weeks after getting in the hay the barn is warm when the doors are opened in the morning. There is an amount of heat that is absolutely unpleasant when the thermometer outside registers 60 deg. but which is quite welcome with the outside temperature at 40 deg. This barn heat is undoubtedly from the moist hay, compacted and inclosed. The cure for the possible danger of possible spontaneous barn burning would seem to be the thorough curing—drying—of the hay before it is housed. We dry all our herbs and some of our vegetables without injuring their peculiar and individual qualities. There is no reason why hay or other fodder material stored in large masses should not be rendered equally innoxious to the influences of heat by thorough drying.

Electrical Inventions.

The Electrial Exposition which opened in Philadelphia on Wednesday ought to bring many novel inventions before the public. Some of the curiosities are thus described:

Many who attend this exhibition will doubtless be surprised to learn that the subtle power of electricity can be made to hatch a chicken as well as to slay a horse. That man can make this marvelous force a generator as well as a destroyer of life will be demonstrated by a curious electric incubator which is big enough to work upon 2,100 eggs at once. It is already practicing upon several hundreds, and the incubator will be so managed that every day of the show will witness the event of a new brood of gay young fledglings. Perhaps the sight most pleasing to the eye will be that of the great electrical fountain which stands in the center of the main building. From the apex of a stone shaft twelve feet high a column of water issues in the form of an aquatic umbrella, beautifully illuminated by a crown of incandescent lights, over which the water flows as it takes its concave form. From the bank about the flower-decked basin twelve jets of gleaming water are so directed as to catch the rays of colored electric light thrown upon them from invisible points. Under the central blaze of the lights in the arch span a hundred feet above, these brilliant jets look like streams of liquid fire, and as their many-hued shafts meet and break the water is dashed into myriads of sparkling jewels, falling in a shower of rainbow splendor. But electricity has been made to please the ear no less than the eye. In the eastern gallery stands a great electric organ, built by the Roosevelt company. The keyboard by which the organ is operated is located on the main floor, 150 feet away, and the Le Clanche battery, which furnishes the current, stands in the southwest corner of the gallery, at least 180 feet distant. A vocalion, also operated by a key-board on the floor, has been suspended from the roof. Thus from these lofty perches will be wafted constant strains of music in the air, played by invisible hands.

The Summer Hotel Widow.

From the Philadelphia Times.

If any one who has traveled much in the summer has encountered a fashionable summer resort hotel without its widow it is very exceptional. The widow is inevitable to the surroundings. She is always interesting, generally has fine eyes and dresses well and wears diamonds. But it is her manner, as a rule, that is most attractive. In nine cases out of ten she has a little girl to whose early retirement to the arms of Morpheus is her greatest anxiety, or rather one of her greatest, for she seems anxious sometimes if left alone even after relieved of this annoyance. Her manner is usually brilliant and effusive and almost always ensures her the notice and attention of a gentleman. She [illegible]

MINNESOTA NEWS NOTES.

MINNESOTA'S FINANCES.

State Treasurer Kittelson's Annual Report Giving in Tabular Form Receipts and Indebtedness in 1883.

The annual report of State Treasurer Kittelson for the fiscal year from Aug. 1, 1883, to Aug. 1, 1884, is in press and shows the following receipts and disbursements:

Funds.	Receipts.	Disb'rm'nts.	Balance.
Revenue	$354,777 65	$490,963 90
State inst.	628,249 46	527,993 42	$184,863 01
Perm. school	1,450,258 60	1,070,948 52	434,803 90
Gen. school	382,542 06	319,547 99	253,576 57
Perm. univ	28,974 31	36,000 00	28,752 51
Gen. univ	52,627 40	56,074 55	6,473 61
Int. imp. land	67,390 94	82,250 00	16,135 11
Forestry	31,145 06	4,215 75	53,435 34
Redemption	61,172 49	59,156 28	5,474 61
Int. imp. land	60,044 94	16,871 50	82,396 52
Swamp land	772 34	....	2,836 02
Att'y 12th dis	1,972 08	1,972 08	....
School text bk	21,438 31	21,953 08	367 87
Int. impt	31,507 06	31,388 02	119 04
Bal. in treasury Aug. 1, 1883	$303,586 44	......	......
Total recpts	3,362,562 72	......	......
Total	$3,666,149 16	2,729,854 12	1,039,234 11

ANALYZING THE FIGURES.

The total indebtedness of the state represented by bonds is $4,482,000, of which $4,282,000 is railroad adjustment bonds. The latter are distributed as shown below. There are also $200,000 revenue bonds of 1883 held by the permanent school fund. During the year twelve new railroad adjustment bonds were issued. The amount received from deposits was $6,839.40. The receipts from tax on railroads were $622,606.46, the sum of $156,588.41 greater than the entire state tax collected during the same period. The treasurer suggests that this special tax is likely ere long to be sufficient to pay all the expenses of the state. The smallest cash allowance on hand during the year was $28,391.65, and the largest $936,795.04. The treasurer advises that in the future the money received for trust funds be loaned to school districts at 5 per cent interest. He also thinks that the revenue fund should be increased by taxes, it being in very impoverished condition. The following tables show the receipts from the different sources and the summary of invested funds:

RECEIPTS.

FUNDS.	Bal. in treasury Aug. 1, 1883.	Receipts from county treasurers.	Receipts from mis. sources.
State instit't'ns	$84,406 97	....	$628,249 46
Revenue	166,262 74	$473,135 28	81,642 87
Redemption	8,457 35	61,172 49	....
Forestry	26,606 01	31,145 06	....
Perm'nt school	45,578 71	213,173 73	1,247,084 87
General school	210,078 26	197,633 48	163,258 58
Permanent university	36,378 20	15,128 28	13,246 03
Gen'l university	20,113 04	20,058 96	32,568 44
Internal improvem't land	31,014 17	65,054 14	2,336 80
Internal imp. land interest	9,170 15	60,044 94	....
Swamp land	2,063 68	....	772 34
Atty., 12th dist	....	....	1,972 08
School text book	882 64	21,438 31	....
Internal imp	....	....	31,507 06
	$469,849 18	1,159,934 69	2,202,628 03
Deduct revenue fund overdr'wn	166,262 74
	$303,586 44

SUMMARY OF INVESTED FUNDS.

KIND OF FUNDS.	Permanent school.	Permanent university.	Int imp. land fund.	Total.
Minn R.R adjustmt b'd's	1,923,000	277,000	322,000	2,522,000
Minn. rev'nue bonds	200,000	....	....	200,000
U. S. registered bonds	425,000	....	....	425,000
Missouri 6 per cent bonds	81,000	....	....	81,000
Totals	$2,629,000	$277,000	$322,000	$3,228,000

MONEY TO THE SCHOOLS.

Apportionment of the Minnesota School Fund upon the Basis of $1.33 Per Scholar —Number of Scholars, 202,208.

The state superintendent of public instruction has prepared his semi-annual apportionment of the public school fund. The apportionment is $1.33 per scholar. Hennepin heads the list with 15,222 scholars and receives, consequently, $20,245.26. Ramsey has 8,520 scholars, with a resultant apportionment of $11,331.61. The other counties vary from $77.14 in Cass to $9,901.85 in Goodhue. The total footing is 202,208 pupils and $268,936.64. The table of apportionment is as follows:

	No. of Scholars.	Am'ts.		No. of Scholars.	Am'ts.
Aitkin	304	$404 32	Mille Lacs	474	$630 42
Anoka	1,907	2,536 31	Morrison	1,535	2,041 55
Becker	1,337	1,778 21	Mower	4,147	5,515 57
Benton	844	1,122 52	Murray	1,047	1,392 51
Big Stone	1,150	1,529 50	Nicollet	2,850	3,790 50
Blue E'th	6,166	8,200 78	Nobles	1,151	1,530 83
Brown	3,144	4,181 52	Norman	789	1,049 87
Carleton	312	414 96	Olmsted	5,231	6,957 23
Carver	2,848	3,787 84	Otter Tail	6,791	9,032 03
Cass	58	77 14	Pine	302	401 64
Chippewa	1,553	2,065 49	Pipe St'ne	644	856 52
Chisago	2,069	2,751 77	Polk	2,745	3,650 54
Clay	1,509	2,006 97	Pope	1,984	2,638 72
Cottonw'd	1,268	1,686 44	Ramsey	8,520	11,331 66
Cr'w Wing	825	1,097 25	Redwood	1,436	1,909 88
Dakota	4,144	5,511 52	Renville	3,081	4,097 73
Dodge	2,448	3,255 84	Rice	5,590	7,434 70
Douglas	2,842	3,779 86	Rock	1,028	1,367 24
Faribault	4,193	5,576 69	St. Louis	1,390	1,848 70
Fillmore	7,445	9,901 85	Scott	2,636	3,505 88
Freeborn	4,504	5,990 32	Sherb'rne	1,140	1,516 24
Goodhue	7,220	9,602 60	Sibley	2,660	3,537 88
Grant	993	1,320 69	Stearns	5,888	7,831 04
Hennepin	15,222	20,245 26	Steele	3,324	4,420 92
Houston	3,958	5,264 14	Stevens	927	1,232 91
Hubbard	121	160 93	Swift	1,874	2,492 42
Isanti	1,580	2,101 40	Todd	2,074	2,758 42
Jackson	1,529	2,033 57	Traverse	422	561 26
Kanabec	197	262 01	Wabasha	4,824	6,415 92
Kandiyohi	3,220	4,282 60	Wadena	856	1,138 48
Kittson	301	400 [illegible]	Waseca	3,685	4,901 05
L'q'l P'le	1,372	1,824 76	Wash'ton	4,099	5,451 67
Lake	63	83 79	Watonw'n	1,317	1,751 61
Le Sueur	4,439	5,903 87	Wilkin	508	675 64
Lincoln	546	726 18	Winona	5,866	7,801 78
Lyon	1,805	2,400 65	Wright	5,192	6,905 36
McLeod	3,185	4,236 05	Y'll'w Med	1,747	2,323 51
Marshall	439	583 87
Martin	1,625	2,161 25	Tot'ls	202,208	$268,936 64
Meeker	3,749	4,986 17

Left to Bishop Whipple.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Special Telegram, Oct. 8.—Augusta M. Huntington, the wife of H. D. Huntington of this city, going to Colorado for her health, met with a carriage accident which terminated her life. Her will went to probate here to day. After the usual introduction it read: "I give and bequeath to the Rev. Henry B. Whipple, D. D., bishop of Minnesota, and to his successors in his office, the sum of $300,000, to be paid within five years after my death in trust for the purposes hereafter limited and declared, to-wit: One hundred thousand dollars thereof to be used, expended and invested in erecting a building on the Shattuck school grounds at Faribault, Minn., in memory of my late husband, Horatio G. Shumway, to be used for educational purposes and known as Shumway hall; another $100,000 thereof to be held and invested as a perpetual endowment of said Shumway hall in memory of deceased daughter, Augusta Johnson Shumway, and the income therefrom to be used in assisting boys studying at said school to the extent of $200 a year, each, by way of scholarships to that amount, each to be known as the Agusta Johnson Shumway scholarship, $50,000 thereof to be used, expended and invested in erecting a building on the Seabury Divinity school grounds at Faribault, Minn., in memory of my father, William S. Johnson, deceased, to be used for educational purposes, and known as Johnson Hall. The remaining $50,000 thereof to be held and invested as of Johnston hall in memory of my mother, Clarinda Barton Johnston, deceased, and the income arising therefrom to be used in assisting students to the benefit of said divinity school, according to the rules and regulations thereof, to the extent of $200 a year each by way of scholarships of that amount each, to be known as the "Clarinda Barton Johnston scholarships." The testatrix makes small bequests to several friends and gives all her personal property to her daughter, Clarinda Barton Shumway, as well as all the remainder of her property, real and mixed, to hold during her life, and at her death to go to Bishop Whipple or his successor in office, to be used according to his best judgment for the benefit of the school at Faribault. The bishop is also requested to set apart funds for a suitable [illegible]

PERPETUAL ENDOWMENT

Notable Wedding in Minneapolis.

Last Wednesday, occurred at Minneapolis the marriage of Miss Addie Pillsbury, oldest daughter of Hon. and Mrs. John S. Pillsbury, to Charles M. Webster, of the firm of Keith, Thompson & Webster, and eldest son of Hon. O. C. Webster of Red Wing. The ceremony occurred at the residence of Gov. Pillsbury at 5 o'clock, and cards had been issued to 125 guests, the intimate friends and relatives of the bride and groom. The company which assembled was large and fashionable, quite filling the spacious parlors. There was a profusion of decoration, chiefly growing plants, with a number of designs in cut flowers. The bay window in the north parlor was selected for the ceremony, and this was made a bower of smilax and dainty vines, with the floral bell, no bell at all, but a very unique design representing an open parasol. Rev. J. L. Scudder performed the ceremony, using a chaste modification of the Episcopal service. The bride wore a very rich but simple dress of white satin, trimmed with point lace and which was exceptionally becoming. The presents were many, handsome, and varied in character, and occupied the greater part of one room. Among the number was a deed to a house and lot on Sixth street southeast from Gov. and Mrs. Pillsbury to the bride, and which is to be the home of the young couple upon their return from their wedding tour to St. Louis and Memphis.

Register at Taylor's Falls.

The president has appointed Hon. L. K. Stannard of Minnesota register of the land office at Taylor's Falls, Minn., vice John P. Owens, deceased. Lucas Kingsbury Stannard was born in Georgia, Franklin county, Vt., July 6, 1825. In early life he fitted himself for teaching school, and later read law in St. Albans, being admitted to the bar in 1850. In 1853 Mr. Stannard came to Taylor's Falls, and for three years was in the employ of Taylor & Fox. He afterward practiced law, engaged in logging, etc., until 1873, when he became one of the members of the mercantile firm of Ellison & Stannard. He was in the territorial legislature of 1856-7, a member of the constitutional convention of 1857, was a State senator for two years, and a member of the house in 1871. He was receiver of Taylor's Falls land office from 1861 to 1870, and has served as prosecuting attorney and judge of probate in Chisago county.

The Fargo papers of the 6th inst., contain an account of an accident to a Northern Pacific freight train at Hawley, Minn., the evening before. The train consisted of thirty-eight cars loaded with flour, farm machinery and wheat. The Fargo papers state twenty-four of the cars were utterly demolished. Upon inquiry at the Northern Pacific office, it was learned that the accident was caused by a broken rail, and that but four cars were wrecked. A tramp who was stealing a ride upon one of the wrecked cars was seriously hurt.

The state board of immigration held a special meeting at the State capitol at St. Paul and awarded the printing of the first edition of the state immigration pamphlet for distribution at New Orleans to the Pioneer Press company for $3,300. A map of the state, 10 feet 6 inches by 12 feet will accompany the exhibit, showing the counties, towns, cities, rivers, streams, lakes, mining regions, rock formations, forests and groves, and railroads, each railroad system being designated by a different color. This map is the handiwork of Secretary Young and is probably the largest and most complete ever placed on exhibition for Minnesota.

Citizens of Minnesota and neighboring states wishing carp, should make application immediately to R. O. Sweeney, president Minnesota fish commission, St. Paul, giving full post-office directions and nearest railroad station. A description of the water where the fish are to be placed should be appended. Carp cannot be placed with any other fish. The applicant is to pay express charges from St. Paul, and also fifty cents for the pail containing the fish. United States Commissioner Baird has promised to send a supply of carp from the Washington ponds in a few weeks.

A. D. Brower, father of J. V. Brower and W. C. Brower, of the Sauk Center Tribune, drove into a slaugh five miles from Long Prairie, and was drowned. When he was discovered he was standing beside the wagon bent forward, with his hands down and his face under water. He had drank freely while in town and just before leaving purchased a bottle of gin, a part of which he had in his pocket when found. Mr. Brower was one of the first settlers of this county.

Northfield proposes to give $4,000 towards a new elevator.

Mrs. Sarah Thompson, mother of Clark W. Thompson of La Crosse, James Thompson of Lanesboro and Ed Thompson of Hokah, Minn., died on Sunday at Rockford Ill., aged eighty-three years. The deceased was one of the pioneers of Minnesota, a lady of unusual force of character, and widely known and esteemed. The sons have departed for Rockford to attend the funeral.

A young man named Larson was drowned in Eagle Lake, near Hutchinson, the body remaining in the water four hours before being recovered.

Col. William M. Kimball died at his residence in Minneapolis on Sunday evening, the 5th inst., in the seventy-fourth year of his age. He was born at Canterbury, N. H., Dec. 4, 1809; moved to Bowscawen in 1832, and was repeatedly elected to public offices in the town. He married and lived in Fishersville, a part of Concord, for many years. At the origination of Lawrence, Mass, he moved to that place, and was engaged in the construction of the large mill. In 1857 he moved to what was then St. Anthony, engaged in mercantile pursuits, and has ever since made Minneapolis his home. During the war he was quartermaster in the army, and as such accompanied both the Indian expeditions of Gen. Sibley and Gen. Sully.

A cave has been discovered about twenty miles from Stanton, Mercer county, in which was found a hideous looking idol carved out of cedar, four skeletons, copper spear heads, a small cutlass, implements of copper, and a stone mill for grinding, such as were used in ancient Egypt and parts of Asia.

A spark form the steamer set fire to and destroyed sixteen stacks of wheat, four of hay, and the granary, stables and outbuilding belonging to Mr. Kohn, on the John Hartman farm, Acoma. The separator was badly scorched, but not ruined. The treshing outfit belonged to Mr. H. Bromley.

W. F. Cowles, one of the oldest residents of the Pelican valley, Stearns county, has received back pension to the amount of $1,500.

At Kirkhaven, Peter Gandrew wanted to sell Hans K. Brotten a revolver. To test it they repaired to Mastrol's hardware store and purchased a box of cartridges, No. 30, and proceeded to load it, during which operation it accidentally discharged, the bullet entering the abdomen of the boy Brotten, who died next morning.

Fred Haar, about thirty-two years of age, died at Fergus Falls from an overdose of hydrate of chloral. Deceased arrived in that city Saturday, and during his stay there he had been drinking heavily. One morning about 11:30 he wrote a perscription, which he was well qualified to do, being a competent druggist, composed largely of chloral, and at once took about half of it and from its effects died in half an hour.

Bradstreet's contains an advertisement by a firm of New York brokers for subscriptions for 7 per cent mortgage bonds to the amount of $400,000, due July 1, 1894, forming the only incumberance upon improved real estate in the heart of Minneapolis costing $1,500,000. It says: The mortgage property comprises the land and buildings, 200x170 feet on Hennepin [illegible]

[illegible]

John Palton, a swede, committed suicide near Cloquet Tuesday by jumping into the river. He had a family in Sweden.

Winona fruit growers will send a fine exhibit of apples to New Orleans.

During September the receipts of wheat at Duluth by all roads amounted to 3,000,000 bushels, while the total shipments were 2,200,000 bushels.

The remains of an unknown man, much mangled were found on the Manitoba railroad track, near Beltrami station, Saturday.

J. F. Carrere, formerly editor of the Northwestern Chronicle, has left St. Paul for a fortnight's trip through Minnesota in behalf of the Irish Catholic Colonization society. He will visit the different Catholic colonies at De Graff, Clontarf, Graceville and elsewhere and will collect cereals, etc. to form an exhibit of Irish Catholic colony results for the New Orleans exposition. On his return he will leave at once for New Orleans.

State Auditor Braden drew thirty-four checks on the state treasurer, aggregating about $30[illegible] for claimants in Cottonwood county on the tree bounty fund. The amounts range $3 to $25.

George Arnold, a passenger on the Albert Lea route, and living at Battle Creek, Mich., walked off the train early Monday morning near Waseca, while half asleep. The train was going at the rate of thirty miles an hour, but strange to say, Arnold suffered only slight bruises, and regaining consciousness in the morning walked into Waseca.

The public schools of Minnesota have 202,208 pupils, and the apportionment of the school fund will be made at the rate of $1.33 per capita. Hennepin county stands first in the list with 15,222 scholars. Ramsey comes next with 8,520. The total amount apportioned is $268,936.64.

Hon. D. Edwards, who sold out here about a year ago and went to Texas for his health, is shaking with the ague and cursing the country, which he proposes to leave for Minnesota again.

The residence of L. Wolf of Mankato, directly in the rear of his saloon, was entered and his clothes rifled of $60. Suspicion rests upon three men. The house of Dr. Wood, same city, was entered, and his clothes were carried into the yard and there searched and relieved of about $30.

Daniel Chapel was arrested at Sauk Rapids by Sheriff Quinn, on a charge of horse stealing. He is in jail.

The Burns rape case at Brainerd has been ordered transferred to Morrison county. It will be tried by Judge Collins at Little Falls in the January term of court.

Rev. Dr. Thomas A. McCurdy of Wooster, Ohio, accepts the presidency of Macalester college at St. Paul.

At Winnipeg the court ordered the release of Stanbro, the embezzling agent of the Northern Pacific company at Hawley.

Judges Flandrau and Wilkin will sail from Liverpool on the Servia on the 18th inst., and expect to reach St. Paul on or about the 1st proximo.

H. H. Hart, secretary of the state board of charities, St. Paul left to visit the St. Louis county institutions at Duluth. On his return he leaves at once for St. Louis to attend the annual national conference of corrections and charities. During the session he will read a paper upon immigration of New York children, arguing that no children over the age of twelve should be placed in the West, from the fact that such children are usually addicted to bad habits.

The Northern Pacific company finished its work at the scene of the disaster at Fond du Lac, Minn., by forwarding the body of fireman Judkins to Waterville, Me. Judkins was a widower. Engineer Harter was married, and lived at Brainerd, and his wife, accompanied by two of her husband's brothers from the East, took his body to the old home in Ohio. Brakeman Olson lived at Norwood, Dak., and was married, and the company sent his remains there.

Rev. W. S. Sherman of Cannon Falls sends the following notice for publication: The public and especially the clergy, are hereby warned of two young men who are traveling about the country under the name of J. A. Rodenbough, claiming to be in destitute circumstances and soliciting aid. They are impostors of the basest kind.

Judge Young was renominated by the Minneapolis Republicans, and Seagrave Smith, the Democratic candidate, will be endorsed be the kickers.

Mrs. Thomas Cullyford, wife of the proprietor of the St. Louis hotel, Duluth, and daughter of the late Col. J. B. Culver, died quite unexpectedly of rheumatism of the heart. She was married last winter.

At Fergus Falls Fred Haar, aged 33, an experienced druggist, died from the effects of an overdose of hydrate of choral, which he took to steady his nerves after a spree.

The presses, type and effects of the Fergus Falls Democrat were levied upon by the sheriff in the interest of Mary Brockelhurst and the Minnesota Type foundery of St. Paul.

The test case in the celebrated drive-well leases, that of William D. Andrews and others vs. Royal D. Cone has been appointed from the United States circuit court to the supreme court of the United States. Clerk Hillis at St. Paul is now engaged in making the return, which is the largest in the history of the American judiciary, with the exception of the Gaines case of New Orleans. The papers contain from 40,000 to 50,000 folios of 100 words each.

Judge E. M. Card of Lake City has opened a law office in St. Paul, and will probably move his family to the capital city after the session of the district court in Wabasha county.

Peter Headstrom stabbed Jacob Nelson in the abdomen with a pocket knife during an altercation between the men at Barnesville.

Rochester millers are bidding higher than the elevator men for wheat, and are giving as high as 80 cents for No. 1 hard.

The two large saw mills of Little Falls shut down for the season last week. They cut 21,000,000 feet of logs this season.

Hitter's elevator at Monticello was burned to the ground recently with 4,000 bushels of wheat; also the railroad water tank. The origin of the fire was unknown, as there was no fire of any description about the premisis. Loss, $5,500; insurance on building, $2,500; on grain, $3,000. Mr. Hitter will rebuild.

F. E. Lanbach of St. Peter, and a man in his employ, were drowned in Kramer's lake. They were hunting ducks, and venturing too far in a poor boat, were unable to get back to shore. Mr. Lanbach was a well-known business man of St. Peter. The bodies have not yet been found.

The Baptist people at Owatonna, are making arrangements to have Rev. Mr. Smith of Clinton, Iowa, settle over them as pastor.

News reached Albert Lea that Iverson Overgard, who lived just across the line in Faribault county, was shot on Monday evening while eating supper. Three masked men entered the house, one of whom had a gun, the one carrying it telling Mr. Overgard to hold up his thumbs. He arose and asked the man who held the gun pointed at him what that meant, and for an answer the man fired, the charge taking effect in the face, shattering the jawbone on the right side, but not proving fatal. The wounded man is now in this city, but is in a dangerous condition. It is supposed the miscreants were after money, but all three fled as soon as the shot was fired.

The grand jury of the United States district court at St. Paul reported indictments against James J. Bleakney, for stealing $9 from the postoffice at Princeton, and against Charles Parker of Winona, for passing counterfeit money. [illegible]

[illegible]

Polk County Journal

H. E. COOKE, Publisher.

CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA

Hostilities in China have begun to affect the price of tea markets. There has been an increase of prices all round and importers are by no means disposed to press sales.

Chicago has been investing an average of about $16,000,000 a year in new buildings, the feature in structural work there this year being the number of large and expensive commercial edifices under way.

There is one item that the agriculturist produces that bears relatively a high price, and that is meat. It follows that the production of beef, mutton, pork and poultry ought to be a paying business. With wheat at 60 cents a bushel this matter is worth consideration.

It is said that the shrinkage of stocks has reduced Vanderbilt's fortune nearly one fourth though he still enjoys a comfortable income, and is not an object of commiseration. Another turn of the wheel of fortune may restore his stocks to their former value, and place his wealth far beyond the dreams of avarice.

The outstanding 3 per cent. United States bonds, the only portion of the national debt now at the option of the government, have been reduced in amount to $204,521,250. The decrease of this denomination of bonds since June 30 has been $24,588,180. At this rate all the 3 per cents will be paid in two years. None other of the national debt is payable till 1891. At the end of about two years the government will have to cease paying, or buy bonds in the market at a great premium.

From the first outbreak of cholera in Naples there has been what in this country would be called a revival of religion. The churches have been thronged and prayers have been made incessantly. When the scourge subsides, as it will in due time, many will congratulate themselves that it was in response to their prayers, rather than to natural causes—and herein lies the danger of a renewal of cholera or other fatal diseases. Prayers are useful and becoming mortal men and women, but should be preceded and supplemented by cleanliness.

England has a large body of alarmists who are almost as much worried over her navy as we are over ours. They claim it has sadly degenerated in fighting strength and fear that England's supremacy of the sea is a thing of the past. It is doubtless a fact that the British navy is no longer able to fight the combined fleets of the world, for within a few years, Italy, Germany, Russia and even such outlying powers as Chili, Japan and China have provided themselves with formidable ships of war, while France, England's hereditary foe at sea as well as on land, has recently increased her naval force immensely.

The Bar Association of Minnesota unanimously rejected a proposition to abolish the grand jury system. Such a proposition would find still less favor with the people were it submitted to them. Its advocates, though few in number, had worked themselves into the belief that it would be accepted, and had made another stride towards incipient despotism, by seriously proposing to abolish trials by jury. It will be well for liberty loving Americans to keep a close watch upon such innovations. It still takes eternal vigilance to preserve what has been won at a fearful cost for popular rights.

The "trade issue" of the Atlanta (Ga.) Constitution for 1884 made its appearance on October 1st, and consisted of forty-four pages of six columns each. The publishers claim that it is the largest newspaper ever printed in the United States, and that its edition of 51,000 is the largest ever printed in Georgia. One of the principal features [illegible] Atlanta [illegible] 60,000 inhabitants, and [illegible] destined soon to have 100,000. Manufactures have multiplied, commerce has increased, and new railroads have given the city closer communication with rich fields of coal and iron.

[illegible]

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

Washington News.

The typewriter is superseding all other methods of copying in the government departments at Washington. [illegible]

W. W. Corcoran of Washington has survived three of the physicians who pronounced his case hopeless in 1871.

Postoffices Discontinued—Wisconsin, Orange, Sawyer county—mail to Hayward. Postmasters Commissioned—Irying H. Welch, Grand View, Dak.; William Facer, Garrison, Monk.; A. D. Grigon, Monico, Wis.; William H. Archer, Bear Grove, Iowa; Charles H. Honey, Park River, Dak.; Lorenzo D. Pratt, Prattville, Nowlin county, Dak.; William Colburn, Lincoln Center, Polk county, Wis.; A. E. Rowland, Hartwick, Poweshiek county, Iowa.

Another phase of the Chinese question has been presented to the treasury department. A few days ago eighty-six Chinamen arrived at San Francisco. Some of them, who had formerly resided in the United States, were provided with certificates prescribed by the act of 1882, but none of them had certificates required by the supplementary act of 1884. They were not permitted to land, under a decision of the United States court of California. The treasury department was appealed to for relief. The secretary has, however, decided not to interfere in the matter, on the ground that it is a question to be settled by the courts.

Rail and River Notes.

The earnings of the St. Paul & Duluth for the first week of October were $33,151.49. As compared with the corresponding week of 1883, this is a decrease of $3,052.69.

The Portland Oregonian prints interviews with the heaviest shippers of this city, showing that probably a majority will not sign the contracts next year with the Northern Pacific, and will give their business to the Union Pacific and Oregon Short Line. The present contracts with the Northern Pacific expire Jan. 1 next. The reason alleged is bad faith on the part of the Northern Pacific.

General Manager Towne, of the Central Pacific, is at Montreal on a visit. In an interview he says he does not think the Canadian Pacific will pay. Speaking of the proposed Canadian Pacific steamers, he believes President Stephen would find it a very doubtful speculation, as the competition between San Francisco and the East was very great. Cargoes were very difficult to obtain, and at present tea from China and Japan was being carried at as low a rate as 1¼ cents a pound. He did not think the Canadian Pacific would be a rival to the other transcontinental lines, as it drained an entirely new district.

Casualties of the Week.

Fire at Mount Jackson, Pa., caused the loss of $34,000; insurance $23,000.

The crops in the vicinity of Petersburg, Va., have been almost ruined by the excessive and unprecedented dry spell in the last two months.

A fire of supposed incendiary origin occurred Thursday night in the basement of State Senator McCarthey's dry goods establishment at Syracuse, N. Y. Damage, $30,000.

John Mendelski, an old man, was found dead near Mr. Eberly's, in the vicinity of Pleasant Lake, Stearns county. He had been at Eberly's and started home late in the evening, somewhat under the influence of liquor.

Mr. E. K. Finseth of Kenyon, Minn., an old gentleman of eighty-three years, was badly injured by getting his foot caught in the gearing of a threshing machine. He died from the effects. He was the father of State Senator A. K. Finseth.

Robert Sample, a son of Rev. Dr. Sample, of Westminster church, Minneapolis, was severely bitten by a savage dog, in front of the residence of Peter Wolford, on First avenue. One of Mr. Sample's legs was badly mangled, and physicians pronounce the wounds serious.

At Chicago, an accident occurred at the temporary crib of the new Hyde Park water works which resulted in the loss of ten lives by drowning. William A. Sheahand and K. Corbin, contractors of the work, Lewis Ainsworth, Andrew Ainsworth, Charles Manaki, Charles Folk, E. Smith, Otto Moncofaki, William Moncofaki, Klaha Clauson.

Richard Clark of Caledonia, Canada, an employe of Forepaugh's circus, while opening the ventilator in a cage at Waterbury, Conn., had his hand seized by a tiger. While trying to release himself he was seized by two tigers and dragged inside the cage. The animals were finally beaten off with iron bars, after Clark's arms and legs had been horribly lacerated.

Crimes and Criminals.

The grocery store of Nicholas Grosser, in Racine, was burned by an incendiary. Loss, $2,400; insurance $1,000.

Paymaster Samuel Roberts, of Wilkesbarre, who stole $100,000 to give to the church, has been expelled by that body.

James Squires was killed by his brother Andrew at the house of another brother named George, in West Ashfield, Ct., Wednesday night.

The skeleton of a stranger who, last March, was seen to enter the Fort Meadow woods, near Hudson, Mass., was found Sunday, its head resting on a pistol.

The wife of Burley C. Hill, editor of the Valentine (Neb.) Reporter and postmaster, married five months, gave birth to a fully developed child and murdered it.

Burglars went through the Catholic church at St. Peter, Minn., and the residence of the pastor, Rev. Father Sandmeyer, who awoke and found the burglar in his room. The thief jumped through a window and escaped. Nothing of value was taken.

Charles W. Butler, one of the most noted criminals of Indiana, and the son of Dr. George Butler, a wealthy physician of Columbus, Ohio, was executed at Columbia, Ind., for the murder of Abbie Butler, his young wife, at Pierceton, Ind., Sept. 29, 188[illegible]

At New London, Wis., a saloonkeeper invited two young women from the country to call [illegible] gave them drugged wine and dragged them to a room over the saloon, where they were [illegible] by a number of men who paid the saloonkeeper $1 each. [illegible]

[illegible] horses recaptured from the Montana [illegible] were released by some one Tuesday night but recaptured five miles from Miles City, in the bad lands. It is feared there will be trouble with a band of Cheyennes, who [illegible] horses that were stolen [illegible]

[illegible]

Personal News Notes.

Lieut Hunt of the Greely relief expedition, has lost his voice, the result of a severe cold during the arctic search.

Dr. Adolph Huebsch, rabbi of the congregation of the temple of Ahawath Chesed, New York, died suddenly a few days ago.

Sitting Bull has an enormous head. He wears a No. 7¾ hat, larger than Daniel Webster. He receives a salary during his present engagement—$200 a month. He shaves with a pair of tweezers.

John Maxwell, one of the Pioneer settlers of Minnesota, and a resident of Excelsior, Hennepin county, since 1874, died suddenly of heart disease recently, aged seventy years. He leaves a widow and five children.

Rev. Dr. Thomas A. McCurdy, of Wooster, Ohio, has accepted the presidency of Macalester college. Dr. McCurdy is said to be a man of thorough ability and wide experience in educational matters, and it is believed will prove a valuable addition to the ranks of his profession in the state.

General News Items.

Arthur Uhlig, Milwaukee music dealer, has failed.

The corner stone of a $40,000 Y. M. C. A. building has just been laid.

Leon Gerson, general merchandise, of Monroe, La., has been closed under attachments aggregating $45,000.

During a performance of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," in Wheeling, W. Va., last Tuesday night, one of Buffalo Bill's Indians, who was in the audience sprang upon the stage and was going to scalp Simon Legree.

Capt. Ben Garrison, who has been arrested for the murder of Joseph Flynn, at Windsor, Ont., found drowned, was discharged. The coroner's jury returned a verdict that Flynn came to his death by foul play, at the hands of unknown persons.

The general term of the New York supreme court confirmed Judge Barrett's decision setting aside a judgment for $33,000 obtained by Riggs & Co., Washington bankers, against Dion Boucicault as endorser for James Purcell, owner of the Park theater property, who failed to pay interest on mortgage taken on the property by Riggs & Co.

At a meeting of the American Board of Foreign Missions at Columbus, Ohio, the board accepted an invitation from Boston to meet next year in that city. The board, on recommendation of the committee on home department, voted to instruct the presidential committee to expend a legacy of $250,000, from the Samuel W. Swet estate, on special objects connected with education and evangelistic work of the missions. Of the nearly $20,000,000 entrusted to the treasurer's care not a dollar has ever been lost through any defect in management.

The South American commission called on ex-President Grant at New York. Among other things, Gen. Grant said he believed that the best way to promote trade with Central South America would be to reorganize our consular system. His suggestion was that in every one of the southern ports, there should be a consular agent appointed by the president who should perform the duties now discharged by consuls, and be allowed to engage in trade, to act as the agent of American merchants and manufacturers and introduce their goods. Another measure of great importance was to subsidize steamship lines until a commerce should be built up that could sustain them.

Foreign Flashes.

An unsuccessful attempt was made near Toronto to wreck a Methodist excursion train with 500 people on board. Great excitement was caused, but no one injured.

An Orange disturbance is again developing at Harbor Grace, Nova Scotia. The gates of a convent were torn down and flung into the sea. One Riverhead man was almost beaten to death by Orangemen.

The government of the republic of San Domingo has abolished import duties on sugars molasses and all other products of the country. The export duty was 25 cents per 100 pounds on sugars.

Diphtheria is very prevalent in Canada just now. A Montreal physician attributes its prevalence to the closing up of the houses of those who leave town for the summer, and the dampness resulting.

A dispatch from Cape Town, Africa, says the American whaler Seine was totally lost on a reef at Cape Frio, the 28th of June. Two of the crew were lost, and the sufferings of the remainder were terrible.

Bosterpout, a divinity student at Victoria college, Coburg, has been arrested on a charge of stealing a $1,000 Canadian Pacific bond from Alloway & Champion's private banking office at Winnipeg, while there a short time ago purchasing land for his brother.

The university at Kieff, Russia, has been closed by the authorities, and will not reopen until January. One hundred and sixty-eight students have been arrested for alleged connection with the nihilists. Three socialist journals, which were suspended some time ago, are about to reappear.

The Times' dispatch from Port Arthur says: The Chinese at Tamsui are strongly entrenched and vigorously resisting the French attack. The Chinese general retreated from Kelung on the town of Banca. Admiral Courbet is in pursuit with 2,000 French troops. The French continue to declare that a purely Pacific blockade of Chinese ports will be maintained.

The report of the budget committee of the French deputies of states that the decrease in the national receipts has been aggregated by the reduction of the receipts of railways caused by the cessation of travel consequent upon cholera. The minister of commerce will ask the chambers for an appropriation of $3,500,000 to enable him to complete the payments of guaranteed interest promised by the state to the railways.

It is reported that Lord Northbrook, English high commissioner to Egypt, advises the government that a reduction of interest on the Egyptian debt is inevitable. He suggests that the government offer bondholders security of an English occupation of Egypt and additional guarantee there shall be no further reduction of interest. Instructions have been forwarded to Gen. Wolseley to have the government intelligence bureau in Egypt strictly supervise all telegraphic dispatches of correspondents of newspapers. The general is given full powers of censorship.

Thomas Burt, radical member of parliament for Morpeth, has published an article regarding the prospects of the working classes in America. He says: "I was in America in 1883 and took especial note of the condition of the working classes in the mining centers of the country. I came to the conclusion that while upon the whole labor is better paid in America than in England, the position of the laborer in many parts of America is most uncertain. The chief advantage for the laborer in America consists in openings and advantages afforded by chances of obtaining possession of land. The best and most accessible land in America is fast being appropriated, and I do not think the [illegible]

[illegible]

BLAINE AND LOGAN.

Reasons Why They Should and Will be Elected—Campaign Notes, Speeches, etc.

Cleveland Investigated and Found Wanting.

At a recent meeting of the Young Men's Republican club of New York, a subcommittee was appointed to investigate the public record of Gov. Cleveland, and to report its conclusions. In its report, which was immediately adopted by the executive committee, says:

We have given a thorough and searching examination of his course as governor, and we have been constrained to conclude that although he has given his executive sanction to certain reformatory measures of considerable public importance, yet his failure to approve of measures of still greater and far more reaching interest, when presented to him in the form of actual legislation, together with the unsatisfactory and often flimsy reasons given in explanations of his course, as well as his approval of certain measures not only questionable, but actually pernicious, prove clearly and unmistakably that he has not always been governed by a purpose single to the rights of the people, but has frequently permitted the pressure of politicians and the desire to advance his own political fortunes to triumph over the interests of reform.

In regard to the tenure of office bill the report says:

When the bill was amended and passed in the assembly, providing that the term of any commissioner or head of department should expire with that of the mayor appointing him, Gov. Cleveland, to the disappointment and chagrin of every true friend of reform, and regardless of pledges heretofore made, refused to sign the bill. The governor's reasons for his course are disingenuous in the extreme. The bill affected the term of office of the commissioner of public works and the corporation counsel. The incumbent of the former was, and still is, Hubert O. Thompson, the boss or leader of the county Democracy. It is safe to say that Gov. Cleveland could never have been nominated without the influence of Hubert O. Thompson.

The subcommittee recites the charges made by the assembly investigating committee against Sheriff Davidson, and says:

These charges were so important to the people of New York that the governor should have passed upon them in one way or another in the three months that have elapsed since they were submitted to him. The governor's failure to act shows that he lacks a high sense of duty to the people. If he should acquit the sheriff he would bring down on him the indignation of an outraged public; if he should remove Sheriff Davidson, who is the acknowledged leader of Irving hall, he would lose the support of that organization.

The report reviews the governor's course upon the five-cent fare bill, the merchants' lien bill and others, and his letter of acceptance, and concludes as follows:

In view of the above facts, your subcommittee is forced to the conclusion that neither by experience, ability, nor character, is Gov. Cleveland fitted for the presidency nor entitled to the support of independent and conscientious voters.

What the Republican Policy Has Done for the West.

The following speech by James G. Blaine at Massilon, Ohio, on the 8th inst:

Men of Ohio—In a procession of our political opponents at Youngstown, recently, there appeared a man and woman in rags and apparent wretchedness bearing the inscription: "This is what protection has done for us." [Derisive laugh.] This was intended to typify and denounce the results of protection in Ohio. I want to present the other side of the picture. In Ohio to-day, there are 21,000 manufacturing establishments; they cost $200,000,000 and they turn out annually a product worth three hundred and fifty millions of dollars. Out of the results of that investment and that product, I observe a great many people in Ohio who are not in rags an not in wretchedness. [Laughter and great cheering.] Thirty-five or forty years ago the entire western country was called upon as an agricultural community to oppose the protective tariff, because it unjustly favored the manufacturer of the east. Since then the manufacturing industries of the country have traveled westward until Ohio has become one of the largest manufacturing states in the Union, and combining within herself a great agricultural interest and great manufacturing interest, she presents all the elements of comfort and material progress. Steadily, as the agricultural states become settled, manufacturers follow. Indiana and Illinois and Michigan are comnig on rapidly after Ohio. Iowa, Kansas and

MINNESOTA WILL COME ALONG

in due time, the result being that the protective policy now upheld by the Republican party operates so as to carry manufacturing into every state, and ultimately into every county in the Union. It never was designed that one part of the country should be permanently agricultural and others manufacturing, but it was designed that agricultural and manufacturing interests should go hand in hand [cheers], and wherever they do go hand in hand you have thrift, progress and happiness. [Renewed cheering.] If this industrial system which combines the higest elements of human prosperity by uniting the agricultural and the manufacturing interests, is worth preserving, you should not forget that our political opponents have never taken action in the last fifty-one years—never since 1833, when they had the power—in congress, either to repeal the protective tariff if one existed, or to try to repeal it, or to prevent the enactment of such, so that the assertion that the protective tariff hinders the development of the commerce of the country is not only disproved by the facts, but directly the contrary is true; for agriculture and manufactures and commerce go hand in hand, and were designed to go hand in hand. They are the triple cords which bound together make up the strength of national prosperity. I assume, therefore that the people of Ohio are interested in maintaining the protective tariff, and if you are, it is in your power to do it. [Great cheering.] Ohio speaks her voice on Tuesday next. This district will have the opportunity to speak her voice and say whether one of the most brilliant advocates of protection that ever served in congress shall be returned [cheers for McKinley], with the opportunity to vindicate by your votes the splendid experience which Ohio had in developing her agricultural and manufacturing interests together. It is for you, the men of Ohio, while the nation look, to record your opinion and your judgment. I thank you for your cordial reception, and bid you good bye.

Rev. Dr. Hatfield on Helping the Democrats.

From Chicago Evening Journal.

Rev. Dr. R. M. Hatfield, of this city, is as earnest and clear-headed a religionist and moral reformer as can be found anywhere, and at the same time he has the acuteness of a statesman. It is not remarkable that such a man, however heartily he may indorse the principle of prohibition, does not believe that it will pay to help the democracy by voting for St. John. He maintains: (1) This third party movement does not seem likely to promote the cause of temperance or prohibition. (2) It threatens to do harm not only in one, but in many ways. These, among others: a. By causing division and heart alienations among the friends of temperance, rendering their cordial co-operation in the future difficult. b. By elevating to office a class of men who are the armed, implacable enemies of the temperance reform. c. The election of these men will prepare the way for, and no doubt secure, such legislation as will be acceptable to the whisky party. d. If this view is correct, it must be years before the cause of temperance recovers from the consequences of this blunder on the part of its friends.

Judge Tourgee Comes to His Senses.

In a lengthy letter to the Tribune Judge Tourgee, who was vehemently opposed last spring to the nomination of Mr. Blaine, gives a cogent statement of his reasons for earnestly advocating Mr. Blaine's election. He declares [illegible] That the Democratic party has demonstrated its unfitness, the Republican party its [illegible] to rule the country [illegible] [illegible] latest instalment, has convinced him that those charges were false.

A Welcome Enemy.

From St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

"We love him for the enemies he has made," said Gen. Bragg of Grover Cleveland, in the Chicago Convention. Mr. Blaine has also made enemies, and it is to his credit that among them is that organization of wickedness known as the Mormon Church. Its strength lies mostly in Utah, which has no electoral vote, so that its opposition will be of little weight in the Presidential contest, and is noticeable mainly because it is personally against the candidates as well as the party which he represents. Mr. Blaine has been in accord with his party in insisting that Mormonism, like slavery, must go, a belief emphasized in most republican platforms. The distinguishing crime of that church is peculiarly abhorrent to men who, like Mr. Blaine, live in peculiarly happy domestic relations, and the keen perception of the republican candidate showed him early in his career that in opposing organized polgamy he would not only be performing a duty, but in the highest degree would honor the better half of the American people.

Holding strong and earnest convictions on the peculiar social problem presented in Utah, Mr. Blaine, when Speaker of the House, found an opportunity, in 1873, during a western tour, to stop for several days at Salt Lake City. The etiquette of the situation required an interchange of courtesies between him and President Brigham Young, but so outspoken had Mr. Blaine been in denunciation of the church that its head left the city to avoid making a call, while the Speaker would not pay tribute to the man who was the head and front of open iniquity, and the two were finally brought together on neutral ground by the strategy of prominent citizens. An hour's earnest interview disclosed to each the other's unalterable position. The high priest found Mr. Blaine holding that the war had settled the question of the right of Congress to control the Territories and their domestic institutions; that whatever claims Utah might have to admission as a State, they would be subordinated by the fact that the church upheld polygamy, and that the other States would never accept her as a member of the family under such circumstances. The Mormon leader had never before heard such frank statements from a politician and had never been so daringly met on his own ground as by the rising statesman from Maine. The Church of Latter Day Saints has had no use for Mr. Blaine since that day.

The politics of the Mormon Church is dictated wholly by its interests. An isolated community, jealously guarding against all intercourse with the world outside by its own members, and discouraging acquaintance by the Gentiles, looking to its spiritual head even in secular affairs, it is not affected by ordinary political questions. Since it started for California to found an independent nation and squatted by the wayside because the American eagle had wrested the Pacific coast from Spain before Brigham Young's wagon trains could get there, it has been in quiet but none the less actual rebellion against the Government. Utah has carried out South Carolina's ideas of nullification of Federal laws, and for years the territory under control of the United States in Utah was only that covered by the shadow of the national flag. With the Mormon voting is merely carrying out the command of his superior; with the meaning and result of his vote he does not concern himself. Mostly allied to the Democracy, because it is in opposition to the Republican party which antagonizes the church, the Mormons can easily pretend to believe with Elder Hart, who recently said: "We are with the Democratic party because of the principles of which it is the exponent. * * * A tendency to restore to individuals individual rights in opposition to centralization," a comfortable idea to polygamic saints persecuted for righteousness' sake because of their exercise of certain "individual rights," the practice of which the rest of the world calls crime. The church would have opposed the Republican candidate because of his party, but it finds peculiar satisfaction in so doing because of his personal stand against their institution and his manly defiance of their prophet.

John Kelly on Cleveland.

John Kelly's speech at the Tammany Hall County Convention in New York will send a shiver down the spine of every democratic supporter of Grover Cleveland. Mr. Kelly said:

It is well known that this organization was not in favor of Grove Cleveland, and so clearly expressed itself at the Chicago Convention. We said and believed that it would be an unwise nomination, if made. I will not criticise Gov. Cleveland for his lack of qualifications for the position of first officer of the general government. The community has done that. It would not be proper for me to say that he is an unfit man. I am not going into particulars of his public life, because it has been such a very short one. We cannot overlook the fact that a large number of people in this city and State who have in former years supported the Democratic ticket have alienated themselves and declare themselves opposed to the Democratic candidates. Let us hope that this has been done in ignorance of the situation. Whatever errors Gov. Cleveland may have committed, let us hope that the appeals for labor will receive consideration. Let him say, and he will probably say, that he has made mistakes.

This "enthusiastic" indorsement of Cleveland comes from the man who in 1879 was a candidate for Governor against Lucius Robinson and for whom 77,566 votes were cast—43,047 of them in the county of New York.

What Hannibal Hamlin Thinks of Blaine.

Hannibal Hamlin was a guest of Mrs. Garfield's at Cleveland. Like others, he is intensely disgusted with the Democratic campaign of slander, and in his speech said:

"I know James G. Blaine from the top of his head to the soles of his feet. I have been in close personal and political association with him for thirty long years and I am here to tell, you upon my responsibility for integrity—which I prize higher than anything on this earth—that he is a Christian gentleman in every sense of the word [applause] and that no man treads the green earth of God above us of higher integrity then James G. Blaine. [Applause.] Thirty years of personal intimate acquaintance and association with him lead me to know what I am saying. The opinions of James G. Blaine upon every question affecting the interests of our industries, affecting the character of our labor, of the industries of our Government, and its foreign relations, have been stated so clearly and so distinctly in his letter of acceptance that they are known to all the world, a letter mark you, so able, and so distinct that the criticism of the press, and the higher criticism of that hypocrite, Carl Schurz, have not succeeded in staining."

Why Dr. Woolsey Supports Blaine.

In reply to a graduate of Yale, who wrote to ex-President Woolsey, of that college for a statement of his opinion of Mr. Blaine, Dr. Woolsey wrote as follows:

"It is true that I have formed the opinion that Mr. Blaine cannot have acted dishonestly in his transaction to which you refer. I based my opinion on Mr. Hoar's defense of him at first, as well as on the confidence entertained in him by Messrs. Dawes, Hawley and Edmunds of the United States senate, who have long known him. As for the especial charges in the Fisher and Mulligan affair, I may refer you, especially, to a phamphlet which I suppose to be written by George Bliss, of New York. May I add that the character of the President is only one out of several things to be considered in this election. More important is the general character of the two parties, and especially the reliance which can be reposed on the two parties in their interpretation of the Constitution, the moral and religious worth to be found in the two, and their past respect for the Constitution. And of no small importance is the ability and power of judging in the two men now candidates of the two parties. Mr. Cleveland seems to me a very small man, and unable to act independently on important questions. If, then, all things are put together, the ability and character of the two, the party supporting them, and the danger of throwing a great weight of influence on the men who brought on the war, there can be no doubt that Mr. Blaine ought to be supported."

No sooner did the people of Pittsburg discover the vast use and value of natural gas, than they found a monopoly concern had obtained virtual control of the entire product. That's the way it [illegible]

The Kansas wheat crop is worth $80 [illegible] to every man, woman and child in the [illegible]

Popular Personals.

Cool weather and actors come back together. Minnie Palmer brought home from England a lot of red, white and blue jewelry, and, she says, $115,000. Theo brought thirty-three pieces of baggage, two French servants and a poodle. She did not bring her husband. John T. Raymond has brought his wife back. The Oregon brought 1840 pieces of passengers' baggage on Sunday.

A Hollidaysburg (Pa.) despatch says: "In two weeks' time the hair of Miss Brandt, a maiden lady, has turned gray from grief over the loss of $1,100 and fears that she will have to go to the almshouse, as she had no means of support. She had placed her money in the hands of an attorney, George A. Deboyne, who recently left that place under a cloud, and he had falsely represented to her that the money was in the bank, and had given her a certificate in his own handwriting."

Rev. Dr. Sankey, of Rochester, who has just returned from the Pan-Presbyterian Council in Belfast, says: I "believe the Presbyterian churches of England, Scotland and Ireland are tending toward ritualism very rapidly. This is especially so in the Scottish churches, surprising as it may seem. Spurgeon is doing more to reach the masses than any dozen ministers in London. We met him after service and were introduced to him, and found him very genial and pleasant, and very interested in American affairs."

General "Dick" Oglesby of Illinois came very near being drowned one day in his boyhood, getting far beyond his depth before he had learned to swim. "I had heard," he said, "that when a person in the water goes down the third time he drowns. I counted distinctly the number of times I sank, and when I sank, and went down the third time I said to my self: 'now I am dead!' Every event of my life passed before me with vivid distinctness, but without creating any peculiar feeling. I saw them go by as if they were a swift-moving panorama. I was dead, I knew I was dead, and I died without a struggle or pain of any kind whatever." He was fished out and resuscitated after half an hour's hard work.

It is now evident that the man Warner, the absconded President of the Albion (N. Y.) First National Bank, made a clean sweep of everything within his reach. He not only scuttled the bank, but completely wrecked and ruined the millioniare Burrows estate, for which he was the managing trustee. He sunk millions of other people's money in reckless private speculations, and is now a fugitive.

Guiteau was a coward, yet he did a wonderful act. He gave the signal for his own death. That is not easy. To think that when one gives a sign his life must surely end, is enough to awe him into stillness, to paralyze volition. The signal was a piece of white paper. He held it in his pinioned hands. When his address was over and the black cap had been adjusted, amidst a hushed silence, where men even held their breath, that cowardly assassin threw from his hand a piece of paper, with which went his life.

Two Yankee Tricks.

A Yankee performing a journey through the back countries on foot saw two horses in a field as he passed along, one of which he determined to borrow for a few miles, as he was feeling very weary. Accordingly, writing in pencil on a slip of paper that he would leave the beast at the next town on the road, he tied the note to one horse's fetlock, and mounting the other with merely a halter for bridle, rode off with him. This transaction happening to be observed, an alarm was given to the owner of the animals, who saddling the remaining one, without paying any attention to the note attached to its leg, rode away after the unknown borrower, or, as he considered him, perhaps, thief. Unluckily for the Yankee, he was mounted on a slow traveler compared with the steed he had left behind, and he soon descried with some consternation a rider behind urging a powerful beast along the road at full speed, evidently in pursuit of him. Having neither whip nor spur, he found it a difficult matter to impel the horse he rode beyond its usual pace, and his pursuer, therefore had very chance of coming up with him directly. At this moment he perceived a cottage by the roadside at no great distance, toward which, by blows and kicks he urged his steed somewhat faster, the farmer gaining on him nevertheless at every step. Reaching the door, he dismounted and went in. The farmer riding up immediately after in a tremendous passion, threw himself off his horse, leaving it by the side of its fellow, and ran into the cottage to seize and secure the thief. The yankee, however, was prepared for him. Having slipped up stairs he opened the front window which looked out upon the road, and as the farmer ran into the house, let himself down outside, mounted the saddled horse, seized the other by the halter, and rode off securely with both.

The hero of the second story was at least as ingenius. A new liquor warehouse opening at Boston on a ready-money and low-price system, Jonathan walked in one day with a two-gallon keg on his shoulder, and asked for a gallon of the best brandy. The liquor having been poured through a funnel into his keg, the money was demanded. Pretending ignorance of their mode of doing business, the Yankee said he would pay the next time he came into town. The shopman demurred, saying that he did not intend to give any credit. "But," asked the Yankee in mock surprise, "do you intend to take back the brandy?"

"To be sure," replied the other, "if you don't pay for it."

"Then," said he, "you must bring your measure, for I had some liquor of my own in the keg."

This was done, a gallon of the contents measured back, and the fellow marched off with another gallon of fine grog, having half filled his keg beforehand with water!—The Manhattan for September.

Queen Victoria has never fully recovered from the accident to her knee. She is not able to walk as much as she used to do, and the enforced lack of exercise has a bad effect upon her health. [illegible]

SECRETS.

If you have a cherished secret,
Don't you tell.
Not your friend—for his tympanum
Is a bell,
With its echoes, wide rebounding,
Multiplied and far resounding;
Don't you tell.

If yourself, you cannot keep it,
Then who can?
Could you more expect of any
Other man?
Yet you put him, if he tells it—
If he gives away or sells it,
Under ban.

Sell your gems to any buyer
In the mart;
Of your wealth to feed the hungry
Spare a part.
Blessings on the open pocket,
But your secret, keep it, lock it
In your heart.

—Hiawatha Herald.

The Oldest City.

The poetic and exalting associations which naturally gather around the places we find mentioned in Holy Writ are too apt to be rudely dispelled on nearer view and close acquaintance; for the ravages of time and the neglect of degenerate governments have left most of them forlorn and repulsive, and inhabited the forlorn and repulsive people—so traveler say. The still surviving beauty and importance of Damascus, however, in spite of all disadvantages, make it, in a measure an exception in the long roll of decay and departed glory. We may well venerate and admire the spectacle of the first city in history outliving so many younger and greater ones. Its thousands of years are a kind of imortality.

Damascus is the oldest city in the world. Tyre and Sidon have crumbled on the shore; Baalbec is a ruin; Palmyra is buried in a desert; Nineveh and Babylon have disappeared from the Tigris and the Euphrates. Damascus remains what it was before the days of Abraham—a center of trade and travel—an island of verdure in the desert; "a presidential capital," with martial and sacred associations extending through thirty centuries.

It was near Damascus that Saul of Tarsus saw the light above the brightness of the sun; the street that is called Straight, in which it was said "he prayed," still runs through the city. The caravan comes and goes as it did a thousand years ago; there is still the Sheik, the ass, and the water-wheel the merchants of Euphrates and the Mediterranean still "occupy" these "with the multitude of their wares."

The city which Mohamet surveyed from a neighboring height, and was afraid to enter, "because it was given to man to have but one paradise, and for his part, he was resolved not no have it in this world," is to-day what Julian called the "eye of the East," as it was, in the time of Isaiah, "the head of Syria."

From Damascus came the damson (our blue plum), and the delicious apricot of Portugal, called damasco; damask, our beautiful fabric of cotton and silk, with vines and flowers raised up on a smooth, bright ground; the damask rose, introduced into England in the time of Henry VIII.; the Damascus blade, so famous the world over for its keen edge and wonderful elasticity the secret of whose manfacture was lost when Tamerlane carried the artist into Persia; and that beautiful art of inlaying wood and steel with gold and silver, a kind of mosaic, engraving and sculpture united—called damaskeening—with which boxes, bureaus and swords are ornamented. It is still a city of flowers and bright watters; the streams of Lebanon and the "silk of gold" still murmur and sparkle in the wilderness of the Syrian gardens.—Exchange.

The Congressonal Library.

A. R. Spofford, librarian of congress, to-day submitted his annual report, showing 573,441 volumes, and 170,000 pamphlets in the library. The increase of volumes during 1883 was 33,365 numbers; copyright entries during the year, 25,274; increase 3,356 compared with 1882; copyright publications received during the year, 44,378, which consisted of 14,584 volumes of books, 11,452 periodicals, 11,101 mucial compositions, 7,241 engravings and others works of graphic art. The report contains a reference to 3,000 volumes of bound newspapers, American and foreign, of great historical, commercial and political value, transfered to the library from the state department. The library is receiving additions at a more rapid rate than any other library except the British museum. The works of graphic art including lithographs, line engravings, mezzotints, photographs, chromos, etc., now number more than 15,000, and are very rich and valuable.

Winter Visitors in New Orleans

The Times-Democrat says New Orleans has wintered more visitors from the North this year than at any time since the war. About the middle of December they commenced arriving from New England, New York and the Western States and when the big cold wave came it drove them South by hundreds. Most of the visitors are naturally people in poor health, suffering from rheumatism, neuralgia, or some bronchial or lung complaint. They have been ordered South by their doctors, and they turn their steps in the direction of Florida or Louisiana heping for mild, equable, pleasant weather. Florida formerly monopolized most of this business, but this year New Orleans and the Mississippi coast has been largely patronized, though the Florida papers claim that there are more strangers now in that State than ever before. This demonstrates that the number of Northern and Western Winter visitors to the South is yearly increasing.

"Faith in God is what is needful to be a Christian," said the Rev. John F. Naugle at a revival meeting in Troy the other Sunday afternoon; and, taking a silver quarter in his hand, he continued; "Now, if I should call out one of those little boys up here and place this quarter in his hand nothing on earth could convince him that he did not have it." The words were scarcely out of his mouth when a six-year-old stepped out of a pew, marched up to the altar and held out his hand for the money. The clergyman had not intended to apply his illustration in precisely that manner, but he perceived that there was only one thing to do. "God bless you my boy," said he, and handed him the coin.

The Farmers' Candidate.

CHARLES CANNING, the Farmers' candidate for the Legislature is of foreign birth and education. He came to this country in 1866 and to the Red River Valley in 1877 settling in what was then Polk County, now Norman County. He has followed farming principally but for several years bought wheat on the Red River, shipping it to Duluth thus being enabled to gain a clear insight into the nefarious system of grading wheat by which the farmer is annually robbed of a portion of his hard earned money and the speculator enriched in like proportion. He early became convinced of the necessity of a change in the system and when the agitation on the wheat question was started last fall he eagerly espoused the farmers cause and has faithfully labored to help them establish their rights. He was sent as a delegate to represent Norman County in the great Farmers' State Convention at St. Paul last winter and was among the first and foremost in its councils. He is a farmer among farmers and should he be elected, (which no doubt he will be) the interests of the farmer will be jealously guarded and watched over nor will the interests of any class of business men suffer as he will only demand what is just and right that should be granted. The matter of wheat grading must receive attention. The tariff question needs looking into. If there happens to be in this land some poor hard-working man with a family of helpless little ones dependent upon his labors for their daily bread, a man who is able to cultivate but 30 or 40 acres of land with a yoke of oxen and if this man does not feel able to pay the exhorbitant elevator charges for shipping his little all to a market Mr. Canning is a man who will do his level best to see that that poor tiller of the soil is enabled to find a market for his wheat without being forced to build a wheat house on some sidetrack to do it. That the present system of handling wheat is essentially wrong Mr. Canning well knows and he is prepared to work hard to accomplish a desirable change. Going there as he does in full sympathy with this desire upon the part of a large number who will be elected on this issue Mr. Canning will be enabled to accomplish the desired end. Now, farmers of the 45th District, you have asked for and obtained a representative man from among your number, and now it is your duty to stand by him and see that he is elected by an emphatic majority and after he is so elected you must advise with him, encourage him in the great and important work he will have to do. You have selected an honest, sincere straightforward old farmer, a man who cannot be bought or bull-dosed and now you should see that he is elected by a large majority. That you will do your part we feel perfectly confident.

The Democrats of Polk County, what few there are, have made their boast that if they are not in the majority, they crowd it close enough to make it mitey interesting. Every true Republican should remember this and do his best to swell the vote for the straight Republican ticket to its utmost. Let bygones be bygones—let the old guard close ranks and solidly march forth to victory.

Every Republican voter should vote the straight ticket and make the Republican vote as large as possible, so that our future basis of representation may not suffer. Norman County got to following false gods, voted for Bierman, and now she suffers for it by having only three delegates. It does not pay to leave the party unless the provocation be unbearable. There is no call for it certainly this year when the nominees of the Republican party are the best all round.

St. Paul Globe: Several parties have made good things for themselves by visiting towns in the Red River Valley and north Dakota and writing them up for Chicago papers, getting pay in advance from the business men. A column in the Times last Saturday is said by the Fergus Falls papers to have cost that place $300, and the local papers say it is full of errors, and the subscribers are not at all pleased with their investment. The regular history of the country and all its movements given in the local and St. Paul papers which circulate in this region is worth far more than these special write ups for foreign sheets. This is becoming understood.

"Turn the rascals out" is the Democratic watchword and "turn the rascals in" is what they mean. To adopt their theory would be to let in a herd of hungry office-seekers who have been starving for years, to fatten at the public crib —men who have never done anything except to seek for office and whom it would take thousands of dollars of the people's hard-earned money to satisfy, once they had a whack at it. Let us not think because Minnesota has always been true blue, that Republicans need not be particular to vote this year. While our Grand Young State is, and always has been loyal, yet we have an adversary who is ever vigilant, watching for a chance to gain a victory, and every Republican should make it a point to go to the polls—go yourself and see that your neighbor has an opportunity to go. Don't sleep on your guns!

Comrades of Col. Cobham Post No. 9, G. A. R., are all requested to be present at next meeting, Friday night, Oct. 17th, on special business. Commander W. H. Topping and Col. Smith, from Grand Forks, will be present.

W. H. JENNINGS, Adjt.

REPUBLICAN SENATORIAL NONVENTION.

The Republican Senatorial Convention was called to order at 2 p. m. by Chairman M. R. Brown. John Cromb was elected temporary chairman and John McLean, secretary. On motion, the chairman appointed as committee on credentials W. R. Edwards, of Marshall, P. L. Ramstad, of Norman, Capt. Eustrom, of Kittson, and Geo. C. Reis, of Polk County. The committee found the following delegates entitled to seats:

POLK COUNTY—John Cromb, John McLean, T. Sullivan, H. Thompson, Lewis Foss, Andrew Sture and Geo. A. Reis.

KITTSON COUNTY—Capt. Eustrom, L. N. Eckland and Wm. Keiver.

MARSHALL COUNTY—W. R. Edwards, O. Sustad and O. Syverson.

NORMAN COUNTY—P. L. Ramstad, N. O. Henderson and John Holton.

Credentials were presented from Beltrami County by Iver Tharaldson and John Steenerson, but as that county had been overlooked on the call the committee decided not to act, but referred the matter to the convention which decided to admit a delegate from Beltrami. On motion of John Holton Iver Tharaldson was admitted. Temparary organization was declared permanent and the following gentlemen were put in nomination, viz: H. W. Donaldson, Chas. Canning, L. G. Wood and Hon. A. H. Baker. The chair appointed John Holton and L. O. Sustad as tellers. John McLean was instructed to cast the vote of Lewis Foss. The several ballots taken were as follows:

	In. Bal.	1 form.	2d.	3d.	4th.	5th.	6th.
Donaldson	4	4	5	6	6	5	4
Canning	7	8	7	7	7	8	9
Wood	3	3	3	4	4	3	3
Baker	2	2	1	0	0	1	1
Lewis Foss	1	0	0	0	0	0	0
Tharaldson				1	0	0	0

On the seventh ballot Mr. Chas. Canning having received nine votes was declared the nominee. Mr. Canning being called to respond, thanked the gentlemen of the convention for the honor conferred and said that, if elected, he should as he ever had done, stand by the farmers and business men of this Northwest. He said he should know no north, no south, no east, no west, but the interests of all sections should be sacred in his eyes, and he should work as hard for the interests of the lone settler in Beltrami County as he would for the wealthy citizen of Crookston, and he asked a hearty endorsement by the party at the polls in November. A. M. Burdick, of Clay, responded to an invitation to address the convention and spoke a few words heartily commending the nomination, saying that Mr. Canning was a worthy man and our interests would be safe in his hands. Mr. Baker responded to a call and said that he was entirely satisfied with the result, and would stand by the party as he had ever done. He endorsed their actions and would stand by and work for the nominee. Capt. Donaldson on being called said that the proper time for him to speak would have been before the ballots were taken, said he had been abused and maligned from Norman County to the north line of Kittson, lied about and vilified, that his interests were greater than any other man's. He briefly reviewed the campaign and did not express much satisfaction at the action of the convention. L. G. Wood, on call, thanked his friends and said that he heartily endorsed the nomination. H. G. Palmer being called said it seemed out of place in him to speak, for, said he, "a man who didn't carry his own county has no business to speak in this place." Geo. C. Reis introduced the following resolution:

RESOLVED, We, the delegates of the 45th Senatorial District Convention endorse the principles of the Republican platform adopted in Chicago and ask that our representative in Congress, Hon. Knute Nelson, vote with his party on all questions affecting the tariff.

This resolution was unanimously voted down. The chair appointed the following gentlemen as District Senatorial Committee, viz:

John McLean, Chairman, Polk Co.
Geo. C. Reis, Polk County.
Peter Ramstad, Norman County.
H. Eustrom, Kittson County.
O. Syversoe, Marshall County.

On motion, adjourned.

The premium engraving issued by "Peterson's Magazine," for 1885, like everything else from that quarter, is of rare excellence and beauty. It is not one of the cheap colored lithographs with which the country is flooded, but a first-class line and stipple engraving, executed in the highest style of art. The artists are Illman Brothers, and they have engraved it—size 21 inches by 27—expressly for Peterson's Magazine, in their most brilliant manner. The picture is called "The Lion in Love," and is a capital affair, sure to raise a smile. In artistic merit, it is, we think, one of the finest "Peterson" has ever issued. Another of the premiums is the "Pearl of Price," an illustrated volume of the American poets. Another is an extra copy of the magazine, etc. You can get any of them, gratis, by raising a club for Peterson for 1885. This is a rare chance. Specimens of the magazine sent gratis, with full particulars, to those wishing to get up clubs, if written for. Address Charles J. Peterson, 306 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Democratic Central Committee.

In compliance with the resolutions adopted by the late Democratic County Convention, I hereby appoint the following gentlemen as the Democratic Central Committee for the county, to-wit:

Wm. Anglim, Chairman, Crookston.
F. S. DeMers, Fisher.
John Moser, Crookston.
Marshal Filiatrault, Crookston.
William Smith, Sr., Red Lake Falls.

ALEXANDER McKINNON,
Ch'n. Dem. Polk Co. Convention.

Grain Inspection and Elevator and Railroad Rates.

A short time since the Pioneer Press suggested a plan for a new grain inspection and warehouse law, and procured the views of a large number of the representative men of the State upon the subject. Among others Congressman Nelson of this place gave his views in a clear and forcible statement of the matter as follows:

ALEXANDRIA, Minn., Sept. 15.—To the Editor: In answer to yours of the 3d inst., requesting my opinion on the proposed warehouse and grain inspection law contained in the Pioneer Press of Aug. 30, I beg leave to say that, while I am not an expert in the handling and inspection of grain, and therefore hardly competent to critically test and analyze the proposed law in all its bearings, yet it is a subject upon which I in common with all other grain raisers have an opinion, though perhaps somewhat crude. The present system of grain inspection in this State is evidently both theoretically and practically at fault. Our last year's crop was, on the whole, as respects quality, rather above the average; and yet we can recall no year since 1878 when there has been so much dispute and trouble concerning grades as about this crop. At the opening of the season the local elevator agents set out on the whole to give reasonable and satisfactory grades, but by the time the wheat reached Minneapolis there was a drop in prices and a stiffening or raising of grades by the Minneapolis inspector; and I venture to say that at no other time have the local agents had such an experience in having grades thrown back on them as during this season. The result of this was that the local agents, for their own protection, necessarily became more "conservative" on grades. As they themselves had been served, so did they in turn serve the farmers. The consequence was that while we nominally had a high grade of wheat, the great struggle became not how much could well be included in this grade, but how much could be excluded. The local agent thus placed to bridge over the chasm between the Minneapolis inspector and the farmer, in many instances, in his anxiety to please both, would resort to various makeshifts. For instance, he would say to the farmer: "If I give you No. 1 hard for this wheat, I shall have to dock you two, three or five pounds per bushel for dirt and screenings." Or if he did not deem it quite prudent to tell the farmer this exactly, he would in fact in some way do what the language quoted implies.

As a rule these local elevator agents are also the agents of the principal buyers. In one capacity they represent the elevator company, in the other the millers' association or other buyers. And thus it comes to pass that practically the buyers of wheat fix the grades for themselves and to suit themselves. And this must strike every fair minded and unbiased person as fundamentally wrong and vicious. The proposed bill, it seems to me, strikes at the very root of this evil by providing for an independent tribunal to control and regulate grain inspection. The members composing this tribunal or board should be men of ability and integrity, and have no interest whatever, directly or indirectly, in buying, handling or milling wheat. It may be a question whether or no the standard of grade had not better be fixed each year by this board, instead of an arbitrary statutory standard. The former plan would be more flexible and would more readily adjust itself to the outside commercial world. And this is of importance, as a large portion of our grain is necessarily shipped outside the State. All elevators should be deemed and held to be public and statutory elevators, and the scales in them should be tested and sealed by the board or by some one under their authority. And it should be made a highly penal offense for any local agent to in any manner alter or change the scale after it had been sealed and tested. It is well known that wheat necessarily undergoes some shrinkage in passing through the elevators. This shrinkage has heretofore been silently provided for by the local agent at the expense of the farmer, by giving him a little less weight than he was in fact entitled to; and some agents are so careful on this point that they frequently find themselves with quite an excess at the end of the season. Now, it strikes me that it would be much more honest and just to recognize and meet this "shrinkage" problem squarely and to provide a standard of shrinkage, and to charge not more than one-half of it to the farmer, and leave the other half to be borne by the elevators. This matter of shrinkage goes to the question of just weights, while the question of grade and inspection goes to the question of quality. Due provision being made for shrinkage ought to remove all occasion for error in weight, and all such errors should be made highly criminal and penal. The provision of the proposed bill relating to the cleaning of wheat seems to be quite necessary and proper. But in this connection I would suggest that each farmer, after paying a certain rate for the cleaning of his wheat, should be entitled to as many pounds of screenings or tailings in kind as the pounds of dockage made on his grain for such screenings. This, it seems to me, would afford something of a test as to the reasonableness of the dockage, for the pounds reserved in one form would be given out in another form.

But, Mr. Editor, I feel that while this matter which you and I are discussing is of considerable importance, yet it is only a minor and collateral subject in the great problem of affording relief in the present conjuncture to our agricultural and producing classes. The shrinkage in the price of cereals and other agricultural products has been immense. Have our elevators and common carriers borne their just proportion of this shrinkage? This, it strikes me, is by far the leading question. Elevators to-day charge as much for storing and handling grain as they did when it was nearly twice as high, and railroad companies are but little better. It costs to-day more than one-fifth the average price a farmer can get for his wheat to carry that wheat from here to Minneapolis. In round figures, it may be stated that not less than 25 per cent. of the gross price the farmer receives for his wheat goes to pay the railroad and elevator companies for handling and carrying the grain to Minneapolis. Would it not, Mr. Editor, be something of a just and fair problem in simple proportion, to state the cause thus: "As elevator and transportation rates in former years have been to the average price of wheat in those years, so ought these rates now to be to the present current prices, or at least something proximately thereto?" Elevator and transportation companies ought to be satisfied with lesser dividends, as well as the farmers. I refer to these matters, Mr. Editor, not for the purpose of opening any crusade or scheme of indirect confiscation, but because I feel that our great corporations who are acting as warehousemen and common carriers are not taking their fair share and proportion of the present burden of general shrinkage and depression. Cannot some system of elevator and transportation rates be inaugurated that will move hand in hand with and be just and fair to our agricultural and producing classes?

KNUTE NELSON.

What The Republican Party Has Done.

It crushed out treason and rebellion and gave new vitality and force to the sentiment, "Liberty and Union now and forever, one and inseparable."

It gave freedom to 4,000,000 bondsmen.

It raised a servile race into citizenship.

It restored prosperity to the industries of this country and dotted the country over with busy factories, furnishing employment to multiplied thousands of working people.

It has increased the wealth of the nation more than threefold.

It has extended our foreign commerce until the nation sold $3,000,000,000 more of its products in twenty-three years than had previously been sold from the first settlement of the country to 1860.

It has spanned the continent with railroads and made the desert places of the West to blossom with busy life.

It has given to the country a staple currency in place of the wild cat issue fostered by the democracy.

It has raised the standard of the nation's credit to point never before attained by any government.

It has paid off the national debt faster than was ever done by any nation.

It has reduced the interest burden from $172,000,000 to less than $50,000,000 annually.

It has reduced the losses from embezzlements from $3.18 on every $1,000 under James Buchanan, to less than one cent on each $1,000.

It has reduced the cost of collecting the Federal taxation, the last republican congress reducing it fourfold more than the democratic party did in eight years.

It has kept every pledge made to the people.

It has made the nation great, prosperous and rich beyond the wildest dreams of the people.

While reducing the national debt at a rapid rate, it has paid in pensions to the gallant soldiers who fought the battles of the Union, the enormous sum of $920,000,000.

Such is the record of republican policy and administration for twenty-three years. During all that time the democracy has met once in every four years, passed columns of resolutions and then gone up and down the country, grumbling and finding fault.

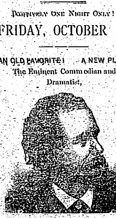
OPERA HOUSE!

POSITIVELY ONE NIGHT ONLY!

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 17.

AN OLD FAVORITE! A NEW PLAY!

The Eminent Commedian and Dramatist,



MILTON NOBLES

Assisted by the Young and Gifted Vocalist and Comedienne,

DOLLIE NOBLES.

And supported by a powerful legitimate company, Friday Evening, Oct. 17, will present for the first time in this city his Ideal New York success, entitled

LOVE AND LAW!

A Comic Drama in Four Acts, by Milton Nobles. New and original characters! Thrilling Dramatic Climaxes! Startling Scenic Effects! Original Music!

Reserved Seats, $1.00.
Gallery 50 cents.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., Oct. 1st, 1884.
Complaint having been entered at this office by Daniel Bernard against Axel F. Vinstrom for abandoning his Homestead Entry No. 8515, dated March 19th, 1883, upon the ne¼ S. 32, T. 154, R. 46, in Polk Co., Minn., with a view to the cancellation of said entry; the said parties are hereby summoned to appear at this office on the 8th day of December 1884, at 10 o'clock a. m., to respond and furnish testimony concerning said alleged abandonment.

JOHN CROMB, Register.
L. K. AAKER, Receiver.
[25-30]

CHEAPEST AND BEST!

Peterson's Magazine!

Unequaled Premiums for 1885

FULL-SIZE DRESS PATTERNS.

Peterson's Magazine is the best and cheapest of the lady's books. It gives more for the money and combines greater merits, than any other. Its immense circulation and long-established reputation enable its proprietor to distance all competition. In short, it has the

Best Steel Engravings,
Best Colored Fashions,
Best Dress Patterns,
Best Original Stories,
Best Work-Table Patterns,
Best Music, Etc., Etc.

The stories, novelets, etc., in "Peterson," are admitted to be the best published. All the most popular female writers contribute to it. Every month, a Full Size Dress Pattern is given, which is alone worth the price of the number. Every month, also, there appears a engraved on steel, twice the size of others, and superbly colored. Also, Household, Cookery, and other receipts; articles on Art Embroidery, Flower Culture, House Decoration—in short, everything interesting to ladies.

Colored Steel Fashion-Plate!

TERMS, ALWAYS IN ADVANCE, $2.00 A YEAR.

Unparalleled Offers to Clubs.

2 Copies for $3.50. 3 Copies for $4.50
With the "Pearl of Price," a splendid illustrated volume of poetry, or large steel-engraving, "The Lion in Love," for getting up club.

4 Copies for $5.50. 6 Copies for $9.00
With an extra copy of the Magazine for 1885, as a premium, to the person getting up the club.

5 Copies for $8.00. 7 Copies for $10.50
With both an extra copy of the Magazine for 1885, and the large steel-engraving, or the "Pearl of Price," to the person getting up the club.

For larger clubs still greater inducements.

Address, post-paid,
CHARLES J. PETERSON,
306 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Specimens sent gratis, if written for, to get up clubs with.

The Red Lake Falls
FLOURING
MILL

Has lately been enlarged and is now prepared to do custom work without delay. Stable room free.

BUSE & COLBENTSON,
Proprietors, Red Lake Falls, Minn.

FURNITURE STORE,
BROADWAY, CROOKSTON MINNESOTA.
P. BATAGLIA, Prop.

Keeps constantly on hand a well selected stock of Wardrobes, Bureaus, Sofas, Lounges, Bedsteads, Bed Springs, Tables, Chairs, Rocking Chairs, Stands, Ornaments, Picture Mouldings, and Picture Frames. REPAIRING DONE TO ORDER. Coffins of all kinds kept constantly on hand.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., Sept. 24th, 1884.
Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on No. 22d, 1884, viz: JOHN E. MARTELL, H'd No. 822, for the sw¼ S. 24, T. 148, R. 47. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: M. G. Leguee, Chas P. Cahoon, John A. Lytle and Stephen Dewal, all of Crookston, Polk Co., Minn.

[22-27] JOHN CROMB, Register.

THE PIONEER
HARNESS SHOP.
M. RAUENBUEHLER, Proprietor,
CORNER OAK AND THIRD STS., CROOKSTON MINN.

Is ready for the Spring trade with a full supply of Work and Light Harness, Single and Double, saddles, Bridles, Whips, Blankets, etc. Give me a call before you purchase.

MERCHANTS'
BILLIARD HALL,
FRED ANDERSON, Proprietor.
CROOKSTON, - - MINNESOTA,

The choicest Wines, Liquors and Cigars constantly on hand.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., Oct. 2d, 1884.
Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 8th, 1884, viz: THOMAS WALLACE, H'd No. 2720, for the nw¼ S. 21, T. 149 n. R. 46 w. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Peter Niesen, James Moore, Hans Clausen and Mathew Baatz, all of Crookston, Polk Co., Minn.

[23-28] JOHN CROMB, Register.

MERCHANTS' HOTEL,
J. E. MITTON, Proprietor,
CORNER BROADWAY AND ROBERT STREET,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

The new Merchants' Hotel, recently re-fitted and re-furnished is now ready to accommodate the traveling public, who are cordially invited to stop at the Merchants' when in the city.

JOHN N. IVES.
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,

Collection and Land Office Business made a specialty. Money secured for final proofs on short notice.

CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., Oct. 8th, 1884.
Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 20th, 1884, viz: OSCAR S. JOHNSON, Pre. D. S., No. 6453, for the sw¼ S. 12, T. 148, R. 46. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Oren Simmons, John Hrness, John Johnson and G. P. Houge, all of Crookston, Minn.

[24-29] JOHN CROMB, Register.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, } ss.
Polk County. } In Probate Court.

In the matter of the estate of John Ellis deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of John Dowling of Polk County representing, among other things, that John Ellis late of Polk County on the sixth day of October A. D. 1884, at Crookston died intestate, and being a resident of this county at the time of his death, leaving goods, chattels and estate within this county and that the said petitioner is a creditor of said deceased, and praying that administration of said estate be to John Dowling granted: It is ordered, that said petition be heard before the Judge of this Court, on Monday the 10th day of November A. D. 1884, at 10 o'clock a. m., at Crookston in said county.

Ordered further, that notice thereof be given to the heirs of said deceased, and to all persons interested, by publishing a copy of this order for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston in said county.

Dated at Crookston, the 18th day of October A. D. 1884.

By the Court,
R. J. MONTAGUE,
Judge of Probate.
[25-27]

McKINNON BROS.,
Carriage Works
Robert Street,
Crookston, - Minn.

AGENTS FOR THE
J. I. CASE THRESHING MACHINES!

And Manufacturers of Carriages, Wagons,
BUGGIES,
Cutters, Sleds, &c.
Axles, Springs, and all Repairs kept in stock,

DEALERS IN
FARM MACHINERY.

In Farm Machinery we have the Champion Seeder, Fargo Diamond Tooth Harrow, Kalamazoo Spring Tooth Harrow, Davenport and Grand Detour Sulky and Walking Plows, Buford Gang Plows, Field Rollers of all sizes, Warrior Mowers, the leading Hay Rake and first-class Harvesters and Binders, the Webber Wagon and McKinnon Bros. Wagon, In fact we have everything in machinery, from

A Wheelbarrow to a Threshing Machine!

EXTRAS
For all Machines constantly on hand

E. M. Walsh,
DEALER IN
Hardware, Tinware
BAR IRON, STEEL,
BLACKSMITHS SUPPLIES,
BUILDING PAPER,
&c., &c. Also Agent
For the Celebrated Monitor Plows.
CROOKSTON, MINN.

THE
J. I. CASE
THRESHING MACHINE COMPANY
The Dennet or Beloit
HARVESTING MACHINE COMPANY.
And the Van Brunt & Davis
SEEDER COMPANY,
Are Represented
BY
STEENERSON BROS.,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

HOW TO BE HEALTHY!
Drink LePage's
35c Tea and 35c pure Java Coffee
AND SMOKE MY NICKEL PILGRIM CIGAR.

HOW TO BE WEALTHY!
COME TO THE RED STAR GROCERY
And Save Money on everything you buy.

AND IF YOU ARE WISE
You will buy only Pure and Fresh Groceries. THE RED STAR GROCERY is the place to get them and there you will find Prices the Lowest. Farmers and others bring in your Butter and Eggs and get highest prices for them. Remember the RED STAR, one door south of Montreal House.

E. LEPAGE, Broadway, Crookston, Minn.

The Farmers' Candidate.

CHARLES CANNING, the Farmers' candidate for the Legislature, is of foreign birth and education. He came to this country in 1866 and to the Red River Valley in 1877 settling in what was then Polk County, now Norman County. He has followed farming principally but for several years bought wheat on the Red River, shipping it to Duluth thus being enabled to gain a clear insight into the nefarious system of grading wheat by which the farmer is annually robbed of a portion of his hard earned money and the speculator enriched in like proportion. He early became convinced of the necessity of a change in the system and when the agitation on the wheat question was started last fall he eagerly espoused the farmers cause and has faithfully labored to help them establish their rights. He was sent as a delegate to represent Norman County in the great Farmers' State Convention at St. Paul last winter and was among the first and foremost in its councils. He is a farmer among farmers and should he be elected, (which no doubt he will be) the interests of the farmer will be jealously guarded and watched over nor will the interests of any class of business men suffer as he will only demand what is just and right that should be granted. The matter of wheat grading must receive attention. The tariff question needs looking into. If there happens to be in this land some poor hard-working man with a family of helpless little ones dependent upon his labors for their daily bread, a man who is able to cultivate but 80 or 40 acres of land with a yoke of oxen and if this man does not feel able to pay the exhorbitant elevator charges for shipping his little all to a market Mr. Canning is a man who will do his level best to see that that poor tiller of the soil is enabled to find a market for his wheat without being forced to build a wheat house on some sidetrack to do it. That the present system of handling wheat is essentially wrong Mr. Canning well knows and he is prepared to work hard to accomplish a desirable change. Going there as he does in full sympathy with this desire upon the part of a large number who will be elected on this issue Mr. Canning will be enabled to accomplish the desired end. Now, farmers of the 45th District, you have asked for and obtained a representative man from among your number, and now it is your duty to stand by him and see that he is elected by an emphatic majority and after he is so elected you must advise with him, encourage him in the great and important work he will have to do. You have selected an honest, sincere straightforward old farmer, a man who cannot be bought or bull-dosed and now you should see that he is elected by a large majority. That you will do your part we feel perfectly confident.

The Democrats of Polk County, what few there are, have made their boast that if they are not in the majority, they crowd it close enough to make it mitey interesting. Every true Republican should remember this and do his best to swell the vote for the straight Republican ticket to its utmost. Let bygones be bygones—let the old guard close ranks and solidly march forth to victory.

Every Republican voter should vote the straight ticket and make the Republican vote as large as possible, so that our future basis of representation may not suffer. Norman County got to following false gods, voted for Bjerman, and now she suffers for it by having only three delegates. It does not pay to leave the party unless the provocation be unbearable. There is no call for it certainly this year when the nominees of the Republican party are the best all round.

St. Paul Globe: Several parties have made good things for themselves by visiting towns in the Red River Valley and north Dakota and writing them up for Chicago papers, getting pay in advance from the business men. A column in the Times last Saturday is said by the Fergus Falls papers to have cost that place $300, and the local papers say it is full of errors, and the subscribers are not at all pleased with their investment. The regular history of the country and all its movements given in the local and St. Paul papers which circulate in this region is worth far more than these special write ups for foreign sheets. This is becoming understood.

"Turn the rascals out" is the Democratic watchword and "turn the rascals in" is what they mean. To adopt their theory would be to let in a horde of hungry office-seekers who have been starving for years, to fatten at the public crib—men who have never done anything except to seek for office and whom it would take thousands of dollars of the people's hard earned money to satisfy, once they had a whack at it. Let us not think because Minnesota has always been true blue, that Republicans need not be particular to vote this year. While our Grand Young State is, and always has been loyal, yet we have an adversary who is ever vigilant, watching for a chance to gain a victory, and every Republican should make it a point to go to the polls—go yourself and see that your neighbor has an opportunity to go. Don't sleep on your guns!

Comrades of Col. [illegible] Post No. [illegible] G. A. R. are all requested to be present [illegible]

REPUBLICAN SENATORIAL NOMINATION.

The Republican Senatorial Convention was called to order at 2 p. m. by Chairman M. R. Brown. John Cromb was elected temporary chairman and John McLean, secretary. On motion, the chairman appointed as committee on credentials W. R. Edwards, of Marshall, P. L. Ramstad, of Norman, Capt. Eustrom, of Kittson, and Geo. C. Reis, of Polk County. The committee found the following delegates entitled to seats:

POLK COUNTY—John Cromb, John McLean, T. Sullivan, H. Thompson, Lewis Foss, Andrew Sture and Geo. A. Reis.

KITTSON COUNTY—Capt. Eustrom, L. N. Ecklund and Wm. Keiver.

MARSHALL COUNTY—W. R. Edwards, O. Sustad and O. Syverson.

NORMAN COUNTY—P. L. Ramstad, N. O. Henderson and John Holton.

Credentials were presented from Beltrami County by Iver Tharaldson and John Steenerson, but as that county had been overlooked on the call the committee decided not to act, but referred the matter to the convention which decided to admit a delegate from Beltrami. On motion of John Holton Iver Tharaldson was admitted. Temporary organization was declared permanent and the following gentlemen were put in nomination, viz: H. W. Donaldson, Chas. Canning, L. G. Wood and Hon. A. H. Baker. The chair appointed John Holton and L. O. Sustad, as tellers. John McLean was instructed to cast the vote of Lewis Foss. The several ballots taken were as follows:

	In. Bal.	1 fom.	2d.	3d.	4th.	5th.	6th.
Donaldson	4	4	5	6	6	5	4
Canning	7	8	7	7	7	8	9
Wood	3	3	3	4	4	3	3
Baker	2	2	1	0	0	1	1
Lewis Foss	1	0	0	0	0	0	0
Tharaldson				1	0	0	0

On the seventh ballot Mr. Chas. Canning having received nine votes was declared the nominee. Mr. Canning being called to respond, thanked the gentlemen of the convention for the honor conferred and said that, if elected, he should as he ever had done, stand by the farmers and business men of this Northwest. He said he should know no north, no south, no east, no west, but the interests of all sections should be sacred in his eyes, and he should work as hard for the interests of the lone settler in Beltrami County as he would for the wealthy citizen of Crookston, and he asked a hearty endorsement by the party at the polls in November. A. M. Burdick, of Clay, responded to an invitation to address the convention and spoke a few words heartily commending the nomination, saying that Mr. Canning was a worthy man and our interests would be safe in his hands. Mr. Baker responded to a call and said that he was entirely satisfied with the result, and would stand by the party as he had ever done. He endorsed their actions and would stand by and work for the nominee. Capt. Donaldson on being called said that the proper time for him to speak would have been before the ballots were taken, said he had been abused and maligned from Norman County to the north line of Kittson, lied about and vilified, that his interests were greater than any other man's. He briefly reviewed the campaign and did not express much satisfaction at the action of the convention. L. G. Wood, on call, thanked his friends and said that he heartily endorsed the nomination. H. G. Palmer being called said it seemed out of place in him to speak, for, said he, "a man who didn't carry his own county has no business to speak in this place." Geo. C. Reis introduced the following resolution:

RESOLVED, We, the delegates of the 45th Senatorial District Convention endorse the principles of the Republican platform adopted in Chicago and ask that our representative in Congress, Hon. Knute Nelson, vote with his party on all questions affecting the tariff.

This resolution was unanimously voted down. The chair appointed the following gentlemen as District Senatorial Committee, viz:

John McLean, Chairman, Polk Co.
Geo. C. Reis, Polk County.
Peter Ramstad, Norman County.
H. Eustrom, Kittson County.
O. Syverson, Marshall County.

On motion, adjourned.

The premium engraving issued by "Peterson's Magazine," for 1885, like everything else from that quarter, is of rare excellence and beauty. It is not one of the cheap colored lithographs with which the country is flooded, but a first-class line and stipple engraving, executed in the highest style of art. The artists are Illman Brothers, and they have engraved it—size 21 inches by 27—expressly for Peterson's Magazine, in their most brilliant manner. The picture is called "The Lion in Love," and is a capital affair, sure to raise a smile. In artistic merit, it is, we think, one of the finest Peterson has ever issued. Another of the premiums is the "Pearl of Price," an illustrated volume of the American poets. Another is an extra copy of the magazine itself. You can get any of them gratis, by getting up a club for Peterson for 1885. This is a rare chance. Specimens of the magazine sent gratis with full particulars, to those wishing to get up clubs, if written for. Address Charles J. Peterson, 306 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

[illegible]

In compliance with the resolution adopted by the late Democratic County Convention, I hereby appoint the following gentlemen as the Democratic Central Committee for the county, viz:

Wm. Anglim, Chairman, Crookston.
[illegible]

Grain Inspection and Elevator and Railroad Rates.

A short time since the Pioneer Press suggested a plan for a new grain inspection and warehouse law, and procured the views of a large number of the representative men of the State upon the subject. Among others Congressman Nelson of this place gave his views in a clear and forcible statement of the matter as follows:

ALEXANDRIA, Minn., Sept. 15.—To the Editor: In answer to yours of the 3d inst., requesting my opinion on the proposed warehouse and grain inspection law contained in the Pioneer Press of Aug. 30, I beg leave to say that, while I am not an expert in the handling and inspection of grain, and therefore hardly competent to critically test and analyze the proposed law in all its bearings, yet it is a subject upon which I in common with all other grain raisers have an opinion, though perhaps somewhat crude. The present system of grain inspection in this State is evidently both theoretically and practically at fault. Our last year's crop was, on the whole, as respects quality, rather above the average; and yet we can recall no year since 1878 when there has been so much dispute and trouble concerning grades as about this crop. At the opening of the season the local elevator agents set out on the whole to give reasonable and satisfactory grades, but by the time the wheat reached Minneapolis there was a drop in prices and a stiffening or raising of grades by the Minneapolis inspector; and I venture to say that at no other time have the local agents had such an experience in having grades thrown back on them as during this season. The result of this was that the local agents, for their own protection, necessarily became more "conservative" on grades. As they themselves had been served, so did they in turn serve the farmers. The consequence was that while we nominally had a high grade of wheat, the great struggle became not how much could well be included in this grade, but how much could be excluded. The local agent thus placed to bridge over the chasm between the Minneapolis inspector and the farmer, in many instances, in his anxiety to please both, would resort to various makeshifts. For instance, he would say to the farmer: "If I give you No. 1 hard for this wheat, I shall have to dock you two, three or five pounds per bushel for dirt and screenings." Or if he did not deem it quite prudent to tell the farmer this exactly, he would in fact in some way do what the language quoted implies.

As a rule these local elevator agents are also the agents of the principal buyers. In one capacity they represent the elevator company, in the other the millers' association or other buyers. And thus it comes to pass that practically the buyers of wheat fix the grades for themselves and to suit themselves. And this must strike every fair minded and unbiased person as fundamentally wrong and vicious. The proposed bill, it seems to me, strikes at the very root of this evil by providing for an independent tribunal to control and regulate grain inspection. The members composing this tribunal or board should be men of ability and integrity, and have no interest whatever, directly or indirectly, in buying, handling or milling wheat. It may be a question whether or no the standard of grade had not better be fixed each year by this board, instead of an arbitrary statutory standard. The former plan would be more flexible and would more readily adjust itself to the outside commercial world. And this is of importance, as a large portion of our grain is necessarily shipped outside the State. All elevators should be deemed and held to be public and statutory elevators, and the scales in them should be tested and sealed by the board or by some one under their authority. And it should be made a highly penal offense for any local agent to in any manner alter or change the scale after it had been sealed and tested. It is well known that wheat necessarily undergoes some shrinkage in passing through the elevators. This shrinkage has heretofore been silently provided for by the local agent at the expense of the farmer, by giving him a little less weight than he was in fact entitled to, and some agents are so careful on this point that they frequently find themselves with quite an excess at the end of the season. Now it strikes me that it would be much more honest and just to recognize and meet this shrinkage problem squarely, and to provide a standard of shrinkage, and to charge not more than one half of it to the farmer and leave the other half to be borne by the elevators. This matter of shrinkage goes to the question of just weights while the question of grade and inspection goes to the question of quality. Due provision being made for shrinkage ought to remove all occasion for error in weight and all such errors should be made highly criminal and penal. The provision of the proposed bill relating to the cleaning of wheat seems to be quite necessary and proper. But in this connection I would suggest that each farmer after paying a certain rate for the cleaning of his wheat, should be entitled to as many pounds of screenings or tailings in kind as the pounds of dockage made on his grain for such screenings. This, it seems to me, would afford something of a test as to the reasonableness of the dockage, for the pounds reserved in one form would be given out in another form.

But, Mr. Editor, I feel that while the matter which you and I are discussing [illegible] considerable importance, [illegible] only a minor and collateral subject [illegible] the great problem of affording relief [illegible] price a farmer can get for his wheat to carry that wheat from there to Minneapolis. In round figures, it may be stated that not less than 25 per cent of the gross price the farmer receives for his wheat goes to pay the railroad and elevator companies for handling and carrying the grain to Minneapolis. Would it not, Mr. Editor, be something of a just and fair problem in simple proportion, to state the cause thus: "As elevator and transportation rates in former years have been to the average price of wheat in those years, so ought these rates now to be to the present current prices, or at least something proximately thereto?" Elevator and transportation companies ought to be satisfied with lesser dividends, as well as the farmers. I refer to these matters, Mr. Editor, not for the purpose of opening any crusade or scheme of indirect confiscation, but because I feel that our great corporations who are acting as warehousemen and common carriers are not taking their fair share and proportion of the present burden of general shrinkage and depression. Cannot some system of elevator and transportation rates be inaugurated that will move hand in hand with and be just and fair to our agricultural and producing classes?

KNUTE NELSON.

What The Republican Party Has Done.

It crushed out treason and rebellion and gave new vitality and force to the sentiment, "Liberty and Union now and forever, one and inseparable."

It gave freedom to 4,000,000 bondsmen.

It raised a servile race into citizenship.

It restored prosperity to the industries of this country and dotted the country over with busy factories, furnishing employment to multiplied thousands of working people.

It has increased the wealth of the nation more than threefold.

It has extended our foreign commerce until the nation sold $3,000,000,000 more of its products in twenty-three years than had previously been sold from the first settlement of the country to 1860.

It has spanned the continent with railroads and made the desert places of the West to blossom with busy life.

It has given to the country a staple currency in place of the wild cat issue fostered by the democracy.

It has raised the standard of the nation's credit to point never before attained by any government.

It has paid off the national debt faster than was ever done by any nation.

It has reduced the interest burden from $172,000,000 to less than $50,000,000 annually.

It has reduced the losses from embezzlements from $3.18 on every $1,000 under James Buchanan, to less than one cent on each $1,000.

It has reduced the cost of collecting the Federal taxation, the last republican congress reducing it fourfold more than the democratic party did in eight years.

It has kept every pledge made to the people.

It has made the nation great, prosperous and rich beyond the wildest dreams of the people.

While reducing the national debt at a rapid rate, it has paid in pensions to the gallant soldiers who fought the battles of the Union, the enormous sum of $920,000,000.

Such is the record of republican policy and administration for twenty-three years. During all that time the democracy has met once in every four years, passed columns of resolutions and then gone up and down the country, grumbling and finding fault.

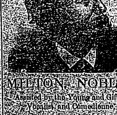
OPERA HOUSE!

POSITIVELY ONE NIGHT ONLY!

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 17.

AN OLD FAVORITE! A NEW PLAY!

The Eminent Commedian and Dramatist,



MILTON NOBLES

Assisted by the Young and Gifted Vocalist and Comedienne,

DOLLIE NOBLES

And supported by a powerful legitimate company, Friday Evening, Oct. 17, will present for the first time in this city his Ideal New York success, entitled

LOVE AND LAW!

A Comic Drama in Four Acts, by Milton Nobles. New and original characters! Thrilling Dramatic Climaxes! Startling Scenic Effects! Original Music!

Reserved Seats $1.00
Gallery 50 cents.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., Oct. 1st, 1884. Complaint having been entered at this office [illegible]

CHEAPEST AND BEST!

Peterson's Magazine!

Unequaled Premiums for 1885

FULL-SIZE DRESS PATTERNS.

Peterson's Magazine is the best and cheapest of the lady's books. It gives more for the money and combines greater merits, than and other. Its immense circulation and long-established reputation enable its proprietor to distance all competition. In short, it has the

Best Steel Engravings,
Best Colored Fashions,
Best Dress Patterns,
Best Original Stories,
Best Work-Table Patterns,
Best Music, Etc., Etc.

The stories, novelets, etc., in "Peterson," are admitted to be the best published. All the most popular female writers contribute to it. Every month, a Full Size Dress Pattern is given, which is alone worth the price of the number. Every month, also, there appears a engraved on steel, twice the size of others, and superbly colored. Also, Household, Cookery, and other receipts; articles on Art Embroidery, Flower Culture, House Decoration—in short, everything interesting to ladies.

Colored Steel Fashion-Plate!

TERMS, ALWAYS IN ADVANCE, $2.00 A YEAR.

Unparalleled Offers to Clubs.

2 Copies for $3.50, 3 Copies for $4.50
With the "Pearl of Price," a splendid illustrated volume of poetry, or large steel-engraving, "The Lion in Love," for getting up club.
4 Copies for $6.50, 6 Copies for $9.00
With an extra copy of the Magazine for 1885, as a premium, to the person getting up the club.
5 Copies for $8.00, 7 Copies for $10.50
With both an extra copy of the Magazine for 1885, and the large steel-engraving, or the "Pearl of Price," to the person getting up the club.
For larger clubs still greater inducements.

Address, post-paid,
CHARLES J. PETERSON,
306 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Specimens sent gratis, if written for, to get up clubs with.

The Red Lake Falls
FLOURING
MILL

Has lately been enlarged and is now prepared to do custom work without delay. Stable room free.

BUSE & COLBENTSON,
Proprietors, Red Lake Falls, Minn.

FURNITURE STORE,
BROADWAY, CROOKSTON MINNESOTA.
P. BATAGLIA, Prop.

Keeps constantly on hand a well selected stock of Wardrobes, Bureaus, Sofas, Lounges, Bedsteads, Bed Springs, Tables, Chairs, Rocking Chairs, Stands, Ornaments, Picture Mouldings, and Picture Frames. REPAIRING DONE TO ORDER. Coffins of all kinds kept constantly on hand.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., Sept. 24th, 1884. Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 22d, 1884, viz: JOHN E. MARTELL, H'd No. 8202, for the sw¼ S. 24, T. 148, R. 47. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: M. G. Leguee, Chas. P. Cahoon, John A. Lytle and Stephen Dewal, all of Crookston, Polk Co., Minn.

[22-27] JOHN CROMB, Register.

THE PIONEER
HARNESS SHOP.
M. RAUENBUEHLER, Proprietor,
CORNER OAK AND THIRD STS., CROOKSTON MINN

Is ready for the Spring trade with a full supply of Work and Light Harness, Single and Double, saddles, Bridles, Whips, Blankets, etc. Give me a call before you purchase.

MERCHANTS'
BILLIARD HALL,
FRED ANDERSON, Proprietor.
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA,

The choicest Wines, Liquors and Cigars constantly on hand.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., Oct. 2d, 1884. Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 8th, 1884, viz: THOMAS WALLACE, H'd No. 2780, for the nw¼ S. 31, T. 149 n. R. 46 w. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Peter Niesen, James Moore, Hans Clausen and Mathew Bantz, all of Crookston, Polk Co., Minn.

[23-28] JOHN CROMB, Register.

MERCHANTS' HOTEL,
J. E. MITTON, Proprietor,
CORNER BROADWAY AND ROBERT STREET,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

The new Merchants' Hotel, recently re-fitted and re-furnished is now ready to accommodate the travelling public, who are cordially invited to stop at the Merchants' when in the city.

JOHN N. IVES,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,

Collection and Land Office Business made a specialty. Money secured for final proofs on short notice.

CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

U. S. LAND OFFICE, Crookston, Minn., Oct. 8th, 1884. Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 20th, 1884, viz: OSCAR S. JOHNSON, Pre. D. S. No. 0453, for the sw¼ S. 12, T. 148, R. 48. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Oren Simmons, John Hrness, John Johnson and G. P. Houge, all of Crookston, Minn.

[24-29] JOHN CROMB, Register.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, Polk County—ss. In Probate Court.

In the matter of the estate of John Ellis deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of John Dowling of Polk County representing among other things, that John Ellis late of Polk County on the sixth day of October A. D. 1884, at Crookston died intestate, and being a resident of this county at the time of his death, leaving goods, chattels and estate within this county and that the said petitioner is a creditor of said deceased, and praying that administration of said estate be to John Dowling granted. It is ordered, that said petition be heard before the Judge of this Court on Monday the 10th day of November A. D. 1884, at 10 o'clock a. m., at Crookston in said county.

Ordered further, that notice thereof be given to the heirs of said deceased, and to all persons interested, by publishing a copy of this order for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing in the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston in said county.

Dated at Crookston, the [illegible] day of October A. D. 1884.

By the Court,
[illegible] MONTAGUE,
Judge of Probate.

McKINNON BROS.,
Carriage Works
Robert Street,
Crookston, - Minn.

AGENTS FOR THE
J. I. CASE THRESHING MACHINES!

And Manufacturers of Carriages, Wagons,
BUGGIES,
Cutters, Sleds, &c.
Axles, Springs, and all Repairs kept in stock,

DEALERS IN
FARM MACHINERY.

In Farm Machinery we have the Champion Seeder, Fargo Diamond Tooth Harrow, Kalamazoo Spring Tooth Harrow, Davenport and Grand Detour Sulky and Walking Plows, Buford Gang Plows, Field Rollers of all sizes, Warrior Mowers, the leading Hay Rake and first-class Harvesters and Binders, the Webber Wagon and McKinnon Bros. Wagon, In fact we have everything in machinery, from

A Wheelbarrow to a Threshing Machine!

—EXTRAS—

For all Machines constautly on hand

E. M. Walsh,
DEALER IN
Hardware, Tinware
BAR IRON, STEEL,
BLACKSMITHS SUPPLIES,
BUILDING PAPER,
&c., &c. Also Agent
For the Celebrated Monitor Plows.
CROOKSTON, MINN.

THE
J. I. CASE
THRESHING MACHINE COMPANY
The Dennet or Beloit
HARVESTING MACHINE COMPANY
And the Van Brunt & Davis
SEEDER COMPANY,
Are Represented
BY
STEENERSON BROS.,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

HOW TO BE HEALTHY!

Drink LePage's
35c Tea and 35c pure Java Coffee
AND SMOKE MY NICKEL PILGRIM CIGAR.

HOW TO BE WEALTHY!

COME TO THE RED STAR GROCERY
And Save Money on everything you buy.

AND IF YOU ARE WISE

You will buy only Pure and Fresh Groceries. THE RED STAR GROCERY is the place to get them and there you will find Prices the Lowest. Farmers and others bring in your Butter and Eggs and get highest prices for them. Remember the RED STAR, one door south of Montreal House.

E. LEPAGE, Broadway, Crookston, Minn.

Polk County Journal.

Crookston, Minn., Thursday, October 16.

RAILROAD TIME TABLE.

GOING NORTH.

	ARRIVE.	LEAVE.
No. 1 Passenger	10:45 p. m.	10:55 p. m.
" 3 Passenger	10:30 a. m.
" 19 Freight	12:30 a. m.
" 15 Freight	4:00 p. m.
" 23 Freight		10:30 a. m.

GOING SOUTH.

	ARRIVE.	LEAVE.
No. 2 Passenger	4:00 a. m.	4:00 a. m.
" 4 Passenger		5:00 p. m.
" 20 Freight		7:00 a. m.
" 22 Freight		6:15 p. m.
" 24 Freight	5:00 p. m.

DEVIL'S LAKE LINE.

	ARRIVE.	LEAVE.
No. 9 Passenger		10:20 a. m.
" 10 Passenger	5:30 p. m.
" 45 Freight		6:00 a. m.
" 46 Freight	7:00 p. m.

ST. HILAIRE BRANCH.

Trains leave Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays at 10:45 a. m., and arrive same days at 4:00 p. m.

Passenger Trains No's 1 and 2, Main Line, run daily except Sunday. No's 3 and 4 run daily. Devil's Lake Passenger runs daily. Freights No's 23, 20 and 24 run daily. Freights No's 15 and 22, and Freights on Devil's Lake Line run daily except Sunday.

City and County Directory.

We wish to make this directory as reliable as possible, and consequently request all parties interested to notify us of any changes in their respective announcements.

U. S. LAND OFFICE.

John Cromb............Register.
L. K. Aaker............Receiver.
Office hours from 8:30 a. m. to 12 m., and from 2:00 to 4:30 p. m.

MEMBER OF CONGRESS.

Knute Nelson............Alexandria.

DISTRICT COURT.

O. P. Stearns, Judge............Duluth.

STATE SENATOR.

Halvor Steenerson............Crookston.

REPRESENTATIVE.

A. H. Baker............Ada.

COUNTY OFFICERS.

R. J. Montague............Judge of Probate.
T. C. Shapleigh............Clerk of Court.
C. S. Spendley............Register of Deeds.
P. J. McGuire............Auditor.
O. H. Lucken............Treasurer.
John Leo............Court Commissioner.
Wm. Watts............Attorney.
V. D. Carruth............Supt. of Schools.
W. F. Jwickey............Sheriff.
H. Shephard............Coroner.
C. L. Brainard............Surveyor.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

Knute Nelson—1st Dist............Aldal.
E. A. Bradish—2d "............Fisher.
M. R. Brown—3d "............Crookston.
C. Kretzschmar—4th "............Red Lake Falls.
T. Sullivan—5th "............East Grand Forks.

CITY OFFICIALS.

Mayor............E. M. Walsh.
Recorder............W. D. Hurlbut.
Treasurer............A. G. Gallasch.
Justices............G. W. Lewis, J. W. Lilly.
Ald.—1st Ward............Ole Bang, L. Fontaine.
—2d "............Henry Nolan, P. Bataglia.
—3d "............N. P. Stone, W. Walker.
—4th "............S. F. Markham, C. A. Chiniquy.
—at large............R. Houston.
City Attorney............J. N. Ives.
City Engineer............W. D. Hurlbut.
Marshal............J. Dowling.
Deputy Marshal.....J. B. Filiatrault, Ole Bjolo.

CHURCH DIRECTORY.

PRESBYTERIAN—Corner Broadway and Fifth street. Rev. R. L. Adams, Pastor. Services every Sunday at 11:00 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Sabbath School at 12 m. Prayer meeting in church every Wednesday evening at 8:00 o'clock.

EPISCOPAL—Ash street, head of Second street. Rev. S. Currie, Rector. Services every Sunday at 11:00 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Sunday School at 2:00 p. m.

CONGREGATIONAL—Rev. C. E. Page, Pastor. Corner Third and Ash streets. Services every Sunday at 11:00 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Sabbath School at noon.

BAPTIST—Rev. H. L. House, Pastor. Second street, between Broadway and Ash streets. Services every Sunday at 11:00 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Sabbath School at 12:15 p. m. Young people's meeting from 6:15 to 7:15. Services always closed in time to allow those present to attend their own churches. Prayer meeting Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock. A cordial invitation to all. Friday evening at 7, teacher's meeting at different homes.

CATHOLIC—Ash street. Father Reviere, Pastor. Services every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. and 3:00 p. m.

CARMAN.

BAPTIST—F. K. Roberts, Pastor. Services in Baptist Block at 10:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Sabbath School at noon. Prayer meeting Thursday evening.

SOCIETIES.

HIRAM LODGE, No. 73, A. O. U. W. Meets in K. P. Hall, Second and Fourth Thursday of each month.
C. H. MIX, M. W.
F. BEHLMER, Secretary.

PIERSON CHAPTER, R. A. M.—Meets in Masonic Hall, First and Third Monday of each month.
T. C. SHAPLEIGH, H. P.
O. H. LUCKEN, Sec'y.

CROOKSTON LODGE, NO. 79, I. O. O. F. Meets every Wednesday evening in Odd Fellows' Hall, over Post Office.
F. M. SCHWARK, N. G.
R. B. GATES, Sec'y.

CROOKSTON LODGE, NO. 1,469, K. of H. Meets the First and Third Monday evening of each month, in Losey's Hall, Main street.
T. A. HARRIS, Dictator.
JAS. BUTLER, Reporter.

CROOKSTON LODGE, NO. 141, A. F. & A. M. Meets on the Second and Fourth Saturday evening of each month, in Masonic Hall.
W. D. HURLBUT, W. M.
GEO. D. BUCKNAM, Sec'y.

CROOKSTON LODGE, NO. 25, K. of P. Meets every Friday evening in K. of P. Hall, on Broadway.
C. W. BARNES, C. C.
W. B. DAWLEY, K. of R. & S.

TO PARTIES DESIRING INSURANCE!

We represent the following old and reliable Fire Insurance Companies:

	Assets
Ætna	$9,182,644
American	1,801,519
Fire Association	4,279,076
Underwriters	8,699,704
Orient	1,411,894
Phœnix	5,919,408
Lancashire	6,787,988
Milwaukee Mech	1,129,875
Germania	2,700,729

Having represented nearly all of the above companies for 14 years, we have acquainted ourselves with the business and think that we can justly claim the patronage of the public who can depend upon having insurance written correctly and losses adjusted promptly.
MOSER & MOECKEL.

The United States Internal Revenue Special Tax is due May 1st. Any information and a full line of blanks can be had by calling on or addressing
JOHN MCLEAN,
Attorney at Law,
[1-tf] Crookston, Minn.

$100,000

To Loan on Improved [illegible] in sums [illegible] $200 [illegible] school [illegible]. Call on or address
JOHN MCLEAN, Attorney at Law,
[1-tf] Crookston, Minn.

THE GREAT NORTHWEST.

Crookston, Minn., the Future Manufacturing City of the Red River Valley—Headquarters for the Lumber Interest—Magnificent Water-Power—Opportunities for Investment.

Crookston, a city of five thousand population, the county seat of Polk County, Minnesota, is located on the Red Lake River, in the famous Red River Valley, eighty-three miles south of the British border. This valley, which is three hundred miles long by fifty to seventy-five miles wide, has been compared to the rich and historic valley of the Nile on account of its grand productiveness. As a matter of cold fact, however, the latter suffers by the comparison, as the Red River Valley comprises no waste lands, and is devastated by no periodical floods, and the resident population is not tormented by fever, ague, or squalid barbarians. At Crookston the Red River makes several tortuous bends, inclosing a peninsula somewhat in the shape of a clover-leaf, giving over five miles river frontage within a radius of one mile. By reason of this topographical feature the city is bounded by high river banks on three sides, affording magnificent natural frontage. The site of Crookston is composed of slopes and hills, covered with an original growth of stately elms, maples, and other forest trees, presenting a beautiful natural park, skirted with extensive plains, interspersed with timber to the distance of a day's drive in every direction. In fact, the attractions of the country are of a nature to enchant a stranger, while an extended acquaintance with the resources and people but strengthens the enchantment.

The soil of Polk County is the usual dark, rich, deep soil of the Red River Valley, unexcelled anywhere. It is well adapted not only for the farmer's No. 1 hard wheat, but also for mixed farming. It is also an excellent stock-raising county, the natural grasses being richer and more agreeable to the stock than the cultivated varieties, and more conducive to thriving. Imported cattle appear in better condition here than on their native heath. Such is the testimony of celebrated importers of thoroughbred cattle who have investigated the country from Ohio to Colorado, and have finally selected northern Minnesota as unsurpassed for cattle-breeding.

THE AVERAGE YIELD

of the soil when properly cultivated is 20 to 40 bushels of wheat, 60 to 80 bushels of barley, 60 to 75 of oats, and 75 to 200 of potatoes. The yield of flax is enormous, while all vegetables usually grown in the northern States are grown in extraordinary quantities and size. Corn ripens about the 1st of September. There has been no frost to injure crops up to this writing, Sept. 26. Experiments made by Mr. M. R. Brown, of Crookston, resulted in a production of 25 bushels per acre by plowing to a depth of 7 inches, whereas only 10 bushels were raised by 4-inch plowing.

Crookston has never had the usual western fever—

THE "CORNER-LOT COMPLAINT."

While it has marked characteristics not possessed by other western cities, there has never been any attempt at "boom" inaugurating. It is evident, however, to even the casual observer, that powerful natural agencies must eventually bring about a permanent condition of prosperity which will surprise the most sanguine Crookstonian.

A prominent agency contributing toward this result is the tremendous of the Red River, which is already utilized to a great extent by several flouring and lumber mills—the logs being floated down the river from the valuable and extensive timber tracts bordering the lakes and rivers tributary to Crookston. There is enough timber to employ a dozen large mills for a quarter of a century. This lumber is already needed in the northwest, and the point of freight charge saving is one worth considering. There is also a splendid opportunity for the establishment of a flax-mill, the country being a fine flax-producing one. Twenty thousand dollars' worth of twine for binders has been sold here during the past sixty days. Paper mills, sash, door and lumber as well as more flouring mills could find no more location in the United States. There is an ample and growing market for their product. The water-power at Crookston is actually greater than that utilized to such a wonderful extent at Minneapolis. As freights on hardwood lumber are about one-half the rate on implements and wagons, it requires no argument to disclose the advantage certain to be reaped by home producers of these indispensable commodities. Judge Reynolds owns a natural boom for logs, with a capacity of over twenty million feet, one mile above the city—it being an old course of the river, but now a lake with water-power. The logs here are not disturbed by the current, and are ready for use in the spring two months before the ordinary "drive time" arrives from above. There is a fortune with a minimum risk in this boom with mills in connection. The property is unimproved and awaiting the sagacious "new-comer" with capital. The lakes above act as reservoirs, by preventing a rise of more than twelve feet in the river at any point. Mr. Walker has erected a lumber mill at Crookston with a capacity per annum of

WATER-POWER

PROFITABLE

TWENTY MILLION FEET.

He owns extensive pineries, and offers special inducements to lumbermen to locate at Crookston, where he will deliver them logs at very low prices. His mill could not cut his own timber in a century, to say nothing of the billions of feet of the best white pine just coming into market from the Chippewa Indian reservation.

John Cromb, the register of the United States land office, located at Crookston, stated that there are over a million acres of government land exclusive of reservations, in this district, 748,000 acres bordering on the Red Lake Indian reservation being timber and prairie, all of which is tributary to Crookston by water. Lumbermen should keep their eye on this point, as it will bear full investigation.

The public buildings of Crookston are a fine court house of brick, a large public school building of the same material and the county jail. The water works built by Mr. Chase furnish an unfailing supply of pure water for all purposes. Crookston has an efficient fire department, an opera house with a seating capacity of over eight hundred. Seven churches represent the different religious organizations, besides various secret societies, among which are the Masons, K. of P., K. of H., and A. O. U. W. There are fourteen hotels of all kinds except a first-class hotel, and for which a good site is reserved. The Linton house is equal to any of the hotels here. Crookston has a prosperous chamber of commerce, the officers of which are John Cromb, president, and John McLean, secretary. John McKinnon is chief of the fire department. E. M. Walsh is mayor of the city, W. D. Hurlbut recorder, A. G. Gallasch treasurer, and J. N. Ives city attorney. E. M. Walsh is president of the Agricultural association, and S. F. Markham secretary.

WHICH IS BADLY NEEDED,

Crookston has three artesian wells; brick yards with a daily capacity of twenty thousand brick; a brewery; two flouring mills; gang-saw and planing mills; a water-power company; cigar manufactory; three harness shops, and two carriage manufactories, all in active operation.

Two banks attend to financial matters. Of the First National, George Q. Erskine is president, and Ansel Bates cashier; M. R. Brown is president of the Merchants', and William Ross cashier. The two local newspapers, which are alive with enterprise, are THE POLK COUNTY JOURNAL and the Crookston Chronicle.

Desirable city lots can be purchased on the river bank at prices ranging from $200 upward.

The wholesale and retail trade of Crookston extends to the British border on the north, the Red River on the west, south to Ada, and east over six miles. There is, however, a great need here of larger stocks of various kinds. The St. Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba Railway company is offering first-class valley lands for $3 per acre on easy terms. Improved farms are at present low in price, as the farmers have more land to cultivate than capital to cultivate it with.

INDEPENDENT CANDIDATES.

At the earnest request of many friends I hereby announce myself an independent candidate for the office of Register of Deeds for Polk County.
JOHN AMUNDSON.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for re-election to the office of Probate Judge of Polk County.
Respectfully, R. J. MONTAGUE.

RED LAKE FALLS, Oct. 8, 1884.
EDITOR JOURNAL: I hereby withdraw my independent candidacy for the office of County Surveyor, and earnestly request my friends to support Gardner Stevens, the Democratic nominee.
Respectfully, C. L. BRAINARD.

NOTICE.

As I have established a Nursery in Crookston and propose to continue the business, I will annouce to our former customers and all that are desirous of obtaining trees and Plants the coming spring that I will sell said stock at prices below any competition. Call and see me before making purchase elsewhere. Residence on second block north of Court House, or address P. O. Box 754.
Most Respectfully,
[38-tf] E. W. HASELTINE.

To The Public.

We wish to state to the people of Crookston and vicinity, that we have purchased the stock of groceries owned by J. L. Bailey, on Broadway, opposite the post office. We purpose to carry on the trade at the old stand, and will keep on hand, at all times, a fresh stock of groceries, provisions, etc., and we ask a share of the patronage of the generous public.
[5-tf] BAUSCHMAN & MILETTE.

Notice to Farmers.

C. Kretzschmar's Grist Mill, at Red Lake Falls, is again open for business. Flour will be exchanged for wheat, or your wheat will be ground on shares. A good feed mill is run in connection with the mill and satisfaction in all cases is guaranteed. Flour and feed on hand at all times and sold at lowest market rates.
[16-tf] C. KRETZSCHMAR.

At Seely's

You can find some extra fine crab-apple cider; old bourbon whisky, eight years old. Maryland Club, pure rye; Jules and G. H. Mum's extra dry champagne; imported Scotch ales and porters for medicinal purposes; also a fine stock of imported cigars. Call and sample. [22-tf]

PIANO TUNING.

Any parties having pianos or organs that need tuning or repairing can have their work satisfactorily done by leaving orders at the Linton House. Satisfaction guaranteed.
[9-tf] E. F. WHEELDEN.

John Knuppe.

General Agent in the Red River Valley of the Netherlands American Land Company of Amsterdam, Holland.

Money to loan on good real estate security, on time to suit the borrower. Office over Merchant's Bank. [1-tf]

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Oct. 4th, 1884.
Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 12th, 1884, viz: GEORGE A. CABLE, H'd No. 1848, for the e½ nw¼ and lots 1 and 2 S. 30, T. 149, R. 43. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: John E. Van Tuyl, George Tice, Albert Tice and George Pollard, all of Mentor, Minn.
[illegible] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Oct. 4th, 1884.
Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 18th, 1884, viz: WALTER LATTA, H'd No. 2048, for the nw¼ S. 22, T. 151, R. 47. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Samuel Crookshank, John G. Tenny, A. J. Allam, of Fanny, Robert Teal, of Euclid, Minn.
[illegible] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Oct. 6th, 1884.
Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., Nov. 19th, 1884, viz: ALDERIC LEGAULT, H'd No. 10817, for the [illegible] ne¼ and lot 1 S. 2, T. 149, R. 44. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Joseph L. Davoust, Joseph Toutant, of Carman, Honnidas Beaudry, Alfred Desjardin, of Tilden, Minn.
[illegible] JOHN CROMB, Register.

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First Publication September 18th, 1884.]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the payment of the sum of two hundred and thirty-four and 23-100 dollars ($234.23-100) according to the condition of a certain mortgage duly made, executed and delivered by John P. Larson and Catharina A. Larson, his wife, of Polk County, Minnesota, mortgagors, to Peter Stenseth, of Polk County, Minnesota, mortgagee, to secure the payment of one note of the sum of two hundred and fifteen dollars, with interest at the rate of seven per cent per annum, and bearing date the eighth day of June 1883 and payable on the eighth day of December 1883, and which mortgage was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota on the eighth day of June A. D. 1883, at 8:25 o'clock p. m. of that day in book "N" of mortgages, on page forty-six (46,) and whereas, no action or proceedings at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt or interest secured by said mortgage or any part thereof, and, whereas, there is claimed to be due, and is due, at the date of this notice the sum of two hundred and thirty-four 23-100 dollars ($234.23-100.)

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the provisions of the statute in such case made and provided, all the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, to-wit: The northwest quarter of Section one (1,) in Township one hundred and fifty-two (152) north, of Range forty-five (45) west, containing one hundred and sixty acres, more or less according to the government survey thereof, which tract or piece of land is situated in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, together with the hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging, will be sold by the Sheriff of Polk County, Minnesota, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County of Polk, on the 7th day of November A. D. 1884, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of said day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and fourteen and 45-100 dollars ($14.45-100) taxes, which has been paid by the mortgagee, and thirty dollars attorney's fees stipulated in said mortgage, besides the costs and disbursements allowed by law, subject nevertheless to redemption at any time within one year from date of sale as provided by law.

Dated September 18th 1884.
PETER STENSETH,
Mortgagee.
A. P. BOND,
Attorney for Mortgagee. [21-27]

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn, Sept. 29th, 1884.
Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 14th, 1884, viz: CHARLES KINDLER, H'd No. 9811, for the s½ nw¼ and lots 3 and 4 S. 1, T. 151, R. 45. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz G. Kind, H. Smith, Wm. Wylie and M. Lamproux, all of Wylie, Minn.
[22-28] JOHN CROMB. Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 29th, 1884.
Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 18th, 1884, viz: JACOB HANSON, Pre. D. S., No. 6306, for the n½ ne¼ and e½ nw¼ S. 2, T. 148, R. 45. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: T. Bakkan, H. Hanson, O. Jacobson and J. Clivertson, all of Fertile, Minn.
[23-28] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 25th, 1884.
Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 11th, 1884, viz: GOTTLIEB KIND, H'd No. 10231, for the se¼ nw¼, s½ ne¼ ne¼ se¼ S. 35, T. 152, R. 45. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: W. Wylie, C. Kindler, H. Smith and M. Lamproux, all of Wylie, Minn.
[22-2] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Oct. 1st, 1884.
Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 11th, 1884, viz: JEAN B. PATENAUDE, Pre. D. S., No. 8853, for the w½ sw¼ and w½ nw¼ S. 26, T. 15[illegible], R. 45. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Pierre Lecuyer, Timothee Desgroselllie, Joseph Lafromboise and Philip Beaupre, all of Gentilly, Polk Co., Minn.
[21-29] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 15th, 1884.
Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, on November 6th, 1884, viz: MELCHIOR SCHWEY, H'd No. 4967, for the se¼ S. 26, T. 152, R. 48. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Wm. Appel, Henry Horn, B. Carish and Michale Biver, all of Euclid, Polk Co., Minn.
[21-26] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Sept. 15th, 1884.
Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 6th, 1884, viz: WILLIAM APPEL, H'd No. 5353, for the sw¼ S. 26, T. 152, R. 48. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Henry G. Horn, M. Schwy, of Euclid, John Moser, Adolph Raugh, of Crookston, Minn.
[21-26] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 15th, 1884.
Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 6th, 1884, viz: GEORGE H. HORN, Per. D. S., No. 3162, for the se¼ S. 4, T. 152, R. 48. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: William Apple, M. Schwy, B. Tudemann and C. Stats, all of Euclid, Polk Co., Minn.
[21-26] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 12th, 1884.
Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 4th, 1884, viz: HENRY WITTY, Pre. D. S., No. 8718, for the s½ se¼ and n½ se¼ S. 26, T. 147, R. 44. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Even Bjorke, Isaac Holm, Frank Vogel and Iver Krohn, all of Valley, P. O., Polk Co., Minn.
[21-26] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 15th, 1884.
Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Oct. 31th, 1884, viz: SAMUEL CROOKSHANKS, H'd No. 2074, for the sw¼ S. 4, T. 151, R. 47. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: James Westover, Walter Letta, Robt Leal and H. Toussaint, all of Crookston, Polk Co., Minn.
[21-26] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 11th, 1884.
Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 4th, 1884, viz: GEORGE KRONSCHNABEL, H'd No. 9,531, for the se¼ S. 28, T. 149, R. 44. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Henry Ulzinger, Crookston, C. Oehler, Fred Lieder and J. Gunerutz, of Tilden, Polk Co., Minn.
[20-25] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 10th, 1884.
Complaint having been entered at this office by Carrie M. Peterson against William J. Young for abandoning his Homestead Entry No. 10,097, dated Dec. 13th, 1883, upon the nw¼ S. 8, T. 151, R. 46, in Polk County, Minn., with a view to the cancellation of said entry; the said parties are hereby summoned to appear at this office on the 15th day of Nov. 1884, at 2 o'clock p. m., to respond and furnish testimony concerning said alleged abandonment.
JOHN CROMB, Register.
[20-26] L. K. AAKER, Receiver.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 17th, 1884.
Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 7th, 1884, viz: JACOB LARSON, Pre. D. S., No. 6966, for the nw¼ S. 12, T. 147, R. 44. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: J. B. Rungun, Ola Oleson Coston, Hans Aulson, and Christopher Erickson, all of Aldal, Polk Co., Minn.
[21-26] JOHN CROMB, Register.

Money to Give Away
IN BARGAINS,
AT MARKHAM'S,
THE LEADING GROCERY HOUSE

AND THE LARGEST BOOT AND SHOE STORE

IN CROOKSTON.

Goods Delivered to any Part of the City

FREE OF CHARGE

JEROME'S ADDITION

TO THE

CITY OF CROOKSTON

IS NOW

Offered for Sale

This is the finest Residence Property in the City. High and dry, good cellars, water, and well sheltered. Enclosed on three sides by the river, and only three blocks from the heart of the city and Post Office.

The Old Brick Block

IS THE PLACE

To Buy Dry Goods, Groceries. Clothing, Boots and Shoe Hats and Caps, or anything you want.

FONTAINE & ANGLIM

IS THE FIRM

Who are ready, with a corps of affable clerks to show you their NEW FALL and WINTER STOCK and quote prices to astonish the natives.

Great Bargains!

Don't forget to visit Fontaine & Anglim's Emporium, in the Old Brick Block,

MAIN STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN.

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First Publication September 11th, 1884.]

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of one hundred and thirty-eight and 32-100 dollars, ($138.32-100) which is claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by William Franz Jaenike and Gische Jaenike his wife, mortgagors, to Isaac Rattenburg, mortgagee bearing date the 28th day of August A. D. 1883, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 28th day of August A. D. 1883, at 5:00 o'clock p. m., in book "I" of mortgages, on pages 128, 129, 130 and 131, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The Southeast quarter (se¼) of Section No. fourteen (14,) of Township No. one hundred and fifty (150) north, of Range No. forty-six (46) west, in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 25th day of October A. D. 1884, at 10 o'clock a. m., of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated Crookston, Sept. 8th A. D. 1884.
ISAAC RATTENBURG,
Mortgagee.
JOHN MCLEAN,
Attorney for Mortgagee. [21-25]

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 11th, 1884.
Complaint having been entered at this office by Andrew P. Vallom against Charles Dudley Hudson for failure to comply with law as to Timber Culture Entry No. 2,941, dated June 4th, 1881, upon the s½ ne¼ and n½ se¼ S. 18, T. 149, R. 48, in Polk Co., Minn., with a view to the cancellation of said entry, contestant alleging that the said Charles Dudley Hudson has failed to plant said tract, or any portion thereof to trees, tree seeds or cuttings since his entry, and has failed to cultivate said land to crop or otherwise as required by law, and that there is not now any trees, tree seeds or cuttings standing or growing on said tract; the said parties are hereby summoned to appear at this office on the 6th day of November 1884, at 2 o'clock p. m. to respond and furnish testimony concerning said alleged failure.
JOHN CROMB, Register.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, } ss. District Court,
County of Polk. } 11th Judicial District.
Carl Kretzschmar, Plaintiff.
vs.
The Red Lake Falls Milling and Lumber Company, a corporation, Defendant.

The State of Minnesota to the above named Defendant:

You are hereby summoned and required to answer the complaint of the Plaintiff in the above entitled action which has been filed with the clerk of the above court in his office in the Court House, in the City of Crookston, and County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, and to serve a copy of your answer to the said complaint on the subscriber at his office in the City of Crookston, in said county, within twenty days after the service of this summons upon you, exclusive of the day of such service; and if you fail to answer the said complaint within the time aforesaid, the Plaintiff in this action will take judgment against you for the sum of six thousand nine hundred and thirty-one dollars and sixty-eight cents ($6,931.68-100,) together with interest thereon from May 23d, 1884, besides the costs and disbursements of this action.

P. A. DUFOUR,
[21-27] Plaintiff's Att'y Crookston, Minn.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, } ss. District Court, 11th
County of Polk. } Judicial District.
Worth Harris and Benjamin F. Rogers, copartners as Harris & Rogers, Plaintiffs.
vs.
E. Wisterman, Defendant.

The State of Minnesota, to the above named Defendant.

You are hereby summoned and required to answer the complaint of the Plaintiff in the above entitled action which is filed in the office of the Clerk of the District Court of the Eleventh Judicial District, in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and to serve a copy of your answer to the said complaint on the subscriber, at his office in the city of Crookston, in said county, within twenty days after the service of this summons upon you exclusive of the day of such service; and if you fail to answer the said complaint within the time aforesaid, the Plaintiff in this action will take judgment against you for the sum of one hundred and seventeen dollars and 93 cents, with interest at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum from the 1st day of October 1883; together with the costs and disbursements of this action.

Dated Crookston, Sept. 30th, 1884.
JOHN MCLEAN,
[21-29] Plaintiff's Attorney Crookston, Minn.

For Sale Cheap.

A complete set of bar fixtures. Call on August Weutzel for particulars.
[19-tf]

E. D. Schreader
LIVERY,
Feed and Sale Stable.

BEST TURNOUTS
IN THE CITY.

Single or Double Rigs, with or without driver or

SADDLE HORSES

Always ready at a moments notice by day or night. If you want a Nobby Turnout call at the Red Barn, Corner Main and Third Streets,

CROOKSTON. - - - MINNESOTA.

NEW DRUG STORE
IN GARFIELD
DR. A NELSON, Prop.

The citizens of this town and vicinity are respectfully invited to call at my new Drug Store in the town of Garfield and examine my stock of

DRUGS, MEDICINES, PAINTS, OILS AND YANKEE NOTIONS.

It is no longer necessary to go 40 or 55 miles for anything in this line, as I have a full supply at prices as reasonable as any town in the Northwest. Call and see

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON

I am also ready to answer all calls by day or night, for the practice of my profession. Call, or leave orders at my Drug Store in Garfield, Polk Co., Minn.
DR. A. NELSON.

First National Bank
OF CROOKSTON.

PAID IN CAPITAL, - - - $100,000
SURPLUS, - - - - 1,460

Money to loan on long or short time on approved security
Interest on time deposits. Faithful attention to Collections and prompt remittance.
GEO. O. ERSKINE, President.
K. D. CHASE, Vice President.
ANSEL BATES, Cashier.

A. YVERNAULT,

Dealer in

General Merchandise,

—MAIN STREET,—

Crookston, - - - Minn.

All of my friends, both old and new, are cordially invited to call and examine my stock and get prices.

Fortier's Place,

Corner Broadway and Robert Street

EVERYTHING ...... NEW, NEAT
—AND NOBBY.—

Billiards, Pool, and the Choicest Wines, Liquors and Cigars. The purest High Proof Whiskies at wholesale prices
PURE IMPORTED GOODS ON DROUGHT.

P. A. DUFOUR,
Attorney and Counselor at Law,
—MAIN STREET,—
CROOKSTON, - - - MINN.

Commercial Hotel,

W. H. TOPPING, Proprietor
SECOND STREET, - - CROOKSTON, MINN

First-class in all respects. Terms reasonable. A share of the public patronage solicited.

A. A. JUST, M. D.,
Homoeopathic Physician and Surgeon.
Rooms corner Main street and Fletcher Avenue, over Eiken Bros. Hardware Store,
CROOKSTON, POLK COUNTY, MINN.

The Polk County Journal.

H. E. COOKE, Proprietor. DEVOTED TO THE WELFARE OF POLK COUNTY. TERMS---$1.50 Per Annum.

VOL. VIII. CROOKSTON, POLK COUNTY, MINNESOTA, OCTOBER 23, 1884. NO. 26

Polk County Journal.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY.

H. E. COOKE, Editor and Proprietor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Dollar and Fifty Cents, if paid in advance, to any address inside of Polk County. If outside of Polk County 15 cents must be added for postage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum to any address.

ADVERTISING RATES.

SPACE.	1 w.	2 w.	3 w.	1 m.	2 m	6 m.	1 year
¼ inch	50	$1 00	$1 15	$1 50	$3 00	4 50	$6 00
1 inch	75	1 25	1 75	2 00	5 50	6 00	10 00
2 inches	1 50	2 25	3 00	3 50	6 50	9 50	15 00
3 inches	1 75	2 75	3 75	4 50	9 50	13 50	20 00
4 inches	2 50	3 50	4 50	5 50	10 00	10 00	25 00
5 inches	3 00	4 00	5 00	6 00	12 50	20 00	30 00
¼ column	3 50	5 50	5 50	6 50	15 00	25 00	35 00
½ column	6 00	7 50	10 00	12 00	20 00	35 00	50 00
1 column	9 50	12 50	15 00	18 00	35 00	60 00	100 00

Entered at the Post Office in Crookston as Second Class matter.

Republican Ticket.

For President,
JAMES G. BLAINE,
of Maine.

For Vice President.
JOHN A. LOGAN,
of Illinois.

For Presidential Electors,
C. F. KINDRED.
JOHN G. NELSON.
JOHN D. ALLEN.
W. B. DEAN.
L. O. THORPE.
A. D. PERKINS.
PETER RAUEN.

For Representative in Congress.
HON. KNUTE NELSON,
of Alexandria.

For Associate Justice of the Supreme Court,
JOHN M. BERRY.

For Representative in the Legislature,
CHARLES CANNING.

County Ticket.

For Treasurer,
O. H. LUCKEN.
For Auditor,
P. J. McGUIRE.
For Sheriff,
W. F. ZWICKEY.
For Register of Deeds,
A. D. STEPHENS,
For County Attorney,
P. C. SCHMIDT, Jr.
For Judge of Probate,
J. G. McGREW.
For County Surveyor,
O. L. HAMERY.
For Court Commissioner,
D. E. HATTLESTAD.
For Coroner,
Dr. M. VAN DYKE.

Vote the straight Republican ticket

Some irate female got on her ear—politically speaking—and wrote a letter to the Todd County Argus, abusing Congressman Nelson; among other hard names she called him a "mug-a-wumps!" The Argus is a Nelson man and did not like to see such a big name as that fired so recklessly at Mr. Nelson. The Argus didn't know what a "mug-a-wumps" is and so, in order to find out what Mr. Nelson was considered from the standpoint of the irate female, went to investigating and after much research developed the fact that "mug-a-wumps" is a Chippewa word; that "mug-a-wumps" is the Chippewa for a-bully-boy-with-a-glass-eye." Thus it is that "how often, Oh how often!" does the rage of dense ignorance turn to flattery of the would be victim! And it behooves all who would use the gentle Chippewa language as an instrument of wrath to study well the bright lexicon of the noble Chippewa Indian.

It was generally said after the convention that Capt. H. W. Donaldson would come out independent. We did not believe it then and we yet see no cause to change our opinion of Capt. Donaldson, whom we believe to be an honorable, upright man. He is a man of too much good solid sense to flare up and kick over the bucket just because the District preferred Charles Canning, and some day in the future he will reap his reward. A very positive man, he had from that cause awakened an amount of opposition that no other candidate did, and yet, in face of it all, with only his own county upon which he could implicitly rely, he came within three of a nomination. Capt. Donaldson has nothing to be ashamed of in his course, and the fact that he did not receive the nomination, nothing to regret. His course has been an open and manly one and fought solely upon his own individual merits. He has not descended to abuse of any opponent and until publicly attacked by a rival aspirant, he never mentioned a name, in public disparagingly. That he labored under great provocation when he made his address in the convention all know, and for that reason overlooked and laid it not up against him.

The Index said that as soon as the Democrats of Norman County heard of Mr. Canning's nomination they decided not to send delegates to the Democratic Convention and decided to work for Mr. Canning. Thus Norman County will cast a solid vote for Mr. Canning, the farmers' candidate. This speaks volumes for Mr. Canning showing how he is regarded in his own county.

Minneapolis seems to regard with jealousy the opening of any outlet that is calculated to afford our farmers an opportunity to obtain an open wheat market and a fair price for wheat as is witnessed by the following from the Minneapolis Evening Journal:

"As recorded in a special from Winnipeg to The Journal yesterday, the expeditions sent out by the Dominion government to explore Hudson's bay and straits reports that steamers may navigate between Churchill, on Hudson's bay, and Liverpool for more than six months of the year. The season of navigation will usually open in May, and sometimes earlier, lasting until about the 1st of November. If this is correct, if such navigation is actually possible, we may look some day for the opening up of an important competing route for the shipment of the products of the great Northwest to Europe. A railroad from Winnipeg to Hudson's Bay, with adequate elevators at Churchill, might divert a large portion of the grain crop to that outlet."

The Farmers' Candidate.

At the Farmers' State Convention last winter an effort was made to make the farmers' grievances a purely political question. Mr. Canning took the high ground that this important question should not be made to serve purely party ends, that it was a question directly affecting the welfare of the people and that party hacks had no business to drag it into politics merely to subserve purely selfish ends. He claimed that it was a matter that seriously affected both Democrats and Republicans alike and it was one that they should make a common cause without regard to party affiliations. His idea was for the farmers to combine and elect farmers to the Legislature on this issue Mr. Canning said: "I am sent to deliver a message to this convention. I ask you in the name of Norman County to pluck the scales of bigotry from your eyes and burst the political chain. Both parties have betrayed their trust. As long as they rule legislation Minnesota will be disgraced. The county has no confidence in either party. We must disregard party and look to our mutual safety. We want honest men to represent us, not bigoted partisans. There is no need of patching up political boots. There is no hope until you leave party legislation aside."

The Democratic Ragard for Labor.

Dover, (Morris Co., N. J.,) Iron Era.

In his speech at Newark last week General Butler relates the following incident:

I wanted the Democrats to insert in their platform a plank providing for a labor tribunal to settle all questions between labor and capital, which are the only controversies that can arise between man and man, that have no tribunal to settle them. A Southerner asked me:

"'Will this apply to my niggers?'

"'Your niggers,' I replied. 'Have you any niggers? I thought I marched down there with my soldiers and settled that. If not, we will march there again. We are a good deal older, but I guess we can fight again.' Then I told him yes, and then there was no more hope for the plank than there is of this crowd going up in a chariot of fire, like Elijah.'"

A better illustration of the Democratic intolerance for the rights of labor could not have been given. In the South they still think that the "Nigger," although no longer a slave, has no labor rights which the employer is bound to respect. Their regard for the rights of labor in the North is shown by the record of their nominee for President, who as Governor of New York has vetoed every bill for the amelioration of the condition of the laboring men in that State. The real friends of labor are those who would protect the industries in which labor is engaged. Well protected, prosperous labor is always able to care for itself.

POLITICAL NOTES.

Milwaukee Sentinel: It is the American people who need to blush and not Mr. Blaine alone, over the publication of the true story of the young lovers—to blush for the conditions that make such a publication necessary to clear the good name of a noble woman from the slanders of despicable politicians.

New York Sun: At last the whole truth seems to be revealed respecting Mr. Cleveland. He stands forth as a coarse person unworthy of high political preferment. At one time we thought it possible to support him as a candidate, still later we thought he should be preferred to Mr. Blaine; but now we see that both these views of him were mistaken. He ought not to be supported.

From an Irish Standpoint.

Dover, (Morris Co., N. J.,) Iron Era.

In the magnificent speech for Blaine which was made in New York last week by Mr. Alexander Sullivan, late President of the National Land League, he said:

"For years we have been known (and it is idle to conceal it) as an element belonging PER SE to the Democratic party. Why we should have been, Heaven only knows, or perhaps it is the other place which knows. We came to seek liberty. The Republican party demand liberty for all men. We oppose it. We made the hills of Ireland echo with cheers for O'Connell when he struck the shackles of serfdom from the limbs of black men in the West Indies, and we came to America and cast our votes solidly for the party which sought to keep those shackles on the limbs of black men in this Union. We cast our votes solidly for a party when it was resisting the constitutional amendments making all men equal before the law, as they are equal in the sight of God. We have encouraged the honest prejudice of many people who are disposed to be fair-minded by the building of this wall around ourselves. We secluded ourselves from our fellow citizens. We took no part in their debates. We were mere unsociable factors of a party concerning whose political economy and whose conduct of government we had practically no voice. We followed where it led. Is it any wonder that many of our fellow citizens misunderstood us and censured us, and even hated us? Is it any wonder that we were considered inconsistent, making liberty for ourselves, while not constantly and earnestly fighting for it for others? Happily the time has come when we may remove this prejudice from the minds of those who honestly and without malice aforethought entertained it, without associating with those who have been our malignant enemies, our vilest detractors, our most insolent caricaturists. All of this last class are for Grover Cleveland. They know their man. He knows they are our enemies, and he, doubtless, "loves them for the enemies, they have made." But we are told that in leaving the Democratic party, which Mr. Collins says made liberty possible, notwithstanding that it upheld slavery and was dominated by the slave owning power of the country—this party which is said to be the party of the laboring man, notwithstanding the fact that its political economy is dictated by foreign enemies of American industry—we are going to the ranks of the enemy. Let us investigate that statement. Let us see at the welfare of the American working man. The last Democratic President of the United States vetoed the Homestead bill. The first Republican President of the United States approved the Homestead bill. Under the provisions of that bill, from 1861 to 1883 80,026,780 acres of land have been settled upon. In other words, a territory equal in acreage to the whole of the New England States, New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Maryland and Delaware, has been placed in the possession of those whom Mr. Lincoln used to love to call "the common people." Homes have been given to the homeless, employment to the unemployed. The great floating populations of the larger cities have not only not been augumented, but have been diminished."

NOTICE.

As I have established a Nursery in Crookston and propose to continue the business, I will annouce to our former customers and all that are desirous of obtaining trees and Plants the coming spring that I will sell said stock at prices below any competition. Call and see me before making purchase elsewhere. Residence on second block north of Court House, or address P. O. Box 754.

Most Respectfully,
[38-tf] E. W. HASELTINE.

Notice to Farmers.

C. Kretzschmar's Grist Mill, at Red Lake Falls, is again open for business. Flour will be exchanged for wheat, or your wheat will be ground on shares. A good feed mill is run in connection with the mill and satisfaction in all cases is guaranteed. Flour and feed on hand at all times and sold at lowest market rates.

[16-tf] C. KRETZSCHMAR.

LIST OF LETTERS.

Remaining uncalled for in the Crookston Post Office, for the week ending Oct. 20th, 1884. Persons calling for these letters will please say "advertised."

Amundsen, Miss B—2 [illegible]
Chamberlin, A J [illegible]
Clifford, H C [illegible]
Collier, Charles [illegible]
[illegible]

Tom Morris,
—THE—
CITY
JEWELER
Represents the
CELEBRATED
Rockford Quick Train
WATCH
THE ONLY
Railroad
Watch
IN EXISTENCE.

Christening and Wedding Cakes Made upon Shortest Notice in the Best Style.
A Choice and Well Selected Stock of Confectionery Always on hand.

John rawford & Son,
Proprietors of Crawford's
Bakery,
SECOND STREET,
Crookston, Minn

CONFECTIONERY
Fresh Bread, Buns, Cakes and Biscuits. All Articles in the Fancy Baking Line.

Groceries, Provisions,
Flour, Feed
SMOKED, DRIED AND SALT
MEATS,
TEAS,
COFFEES,
SUGARS,
SPICES,
ETC.
Highest Market Price Paid for
FARM PRODUCE.
Bauchman & Millette,
Broadway, Opposite the Post Office,
Crookston, Minn.

BERG & OLSON,
PRACTICAL WATCHMAKERS,
AND DEALERS IN CLOCKS,
WATCHES,
JEWELRY,
—ROBERT STREET,—
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

NEW LIVERY,
Feed and Sale
STABLES.,
CORNER MAIN AND FOURTH STS.,
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA
TERRY & COLLINS, Prop's.
Good Turnouts at all times a reasonable prices. Good Hearse and careful driver when needed.

Fall Goods! Fall Goods!

NEW YORK STORE.

We have Received a Full Line of
Staple and Fancy Dry Goods.
Notions Boots and Shoes,
which we are offering at Low Prices.

We show in
DRESS GOODS
One of the Best Selected stocks in the city. All the fall and winter shades.

We call special attention to our line of
BLACK CASHMERES,
We ask comparison.

Black and Colored Silks and Satins.
We show an exceptionally fine line in these goods.

NOTIONS,
Hosiery and Underwear, Knit Goods and Shawls, Ribbons, White Goods and Linens, Embroideries and Laces, Corsets and Gloves, Etc., Etc.

VELVETS,
Black and Colored. Blankets, flannels and Quilts,

—CHEAP— —CHEAP— —CHEAP—

CANTON FLANNELS,
Bleached and unbleached and colored. Domestics of all kinds. Prints, ginghams, sheetings, jeans, ticking, cotton batting, &c., &c.

Hats and caps, complete stock. CARPETS, we have a full line of samples of Body Brussels, Tapestry and Ingrain.

BOOTS AND SHOES
of well known makes. We make a special effort to have this department one of the most complete in the city.

All our stock has been selected with all possible care, having all the advantages that cash and experience can buy for us, we feel safe in guaranteeing all our customers as low prices, if not lower, than can be obtained elsewhere, quality taken into consideration.

---- A CALL SOLICITED. ----
PROUD & MACDONELL.

Stewart & Lawrence,
——DEALERS IN——
Lumber, Sash, Doors, Mouldings,
Building Paper, &c.

1st Com. Dim's and Boards, rough,	$18	Siding, dry	$18
2d " " " "	16	Flooring, "	21
3d " " " "	14	Lath,	3
Ship Lap, dry	17	Shingles	2

A full stock of Sash, Doors, Casings, Mouldings, Eve Trough and Building Paper constantly on hand.

Johnson & Stephens,
FISHER AND CROOKSTON,
WILL NECOTIATE LOANS!
Through the Corbin Banking Co., New York,

SELL MINNESOTA CHIEF
Threshers and Engines,
Deering and Esterly Binders,
Studebaker Wagons,
and a variety of Rakes, Mowers, Plows, Etc., Etc.
KEEP A MORE
COMPLETE LINE OF REPAIRS
than any agency in the County.
Twine and Wire In Season

AIME GABOURY,
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,
Graduate Doctor in Medicine Laval University Canada. Licensed Coll. Phy. Surg., Quebec Late of Michigan University, U. S.
Office over the "Arcade" Clothing Store,
CROOKSTON, MINN

Commercial Hotel,
W. H. TOPPING, Proprietor
SECOND STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN
First-class in all respects. Terms reasonable. A share of the public patronage solicited.

CITY ICE HOUSE!
E. D. SCHRAEDER & CO., Proprietors,
CROOKSTON, MINN.
Having purchased the ice house business of Ruedy & Kindler, and put up during the past winter from 75,000 to 100,000 tons of ice, we are now prepared to supply the trade the coming summer at reasonable figures.
E. D. SCHRAEDER & CO.

DENTISTRY.
J. H. THOMAS, D. D. S.,
ROBERT STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN.
Artificial Teeth from one to an entire set inserted. Gold, Silver or Artificial Filling used as desired. Regulating Children's Teeth a specialty. ALL WORK WARRANTED.

EIKEN BROS.,
Corner of Fletcher and Main Stree
Crookston, Minn.
Dealers in
HARDWARE, TIWARE,
STOVES,
—AND—
SHELFWARE.
WE KEEP A
FULL & COMPLETE STOCK,
—AND—
Invite the Patronage
OF ALL.

A. H. DUNLOP M. D.,
Graduate McGill University, Montreal.
LICENSED COLLEGE PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON QUEBEC.
Office on Robert Street, Crookston.

MERCHANTS'
Bank of Crookston.

H. B. MONTGOMERY.........President, St. Paul, Minn.
M. R. BROWN,...........Vice President, Crookston, Minn.
J. KELSO.........Second Vice President, Bellevue, Iowa.
Wm. ROSS...........................Cashier, Crookston, Minn.

CASH CAPITAL, $32,000
SURPLUS, $16,533.82.

Will receive deposits and allow interest by special contract.
Buy and Sell Foreign and Domestic Exchange, make collections, and do a strictly legitimate business.
Agents for foreign passage tickets.
De Skandinaviske Sprog tales her.
WM. ROSS, Cashier.

ATTENTION
Now is the Time to Build
While you can buy
Cream Brick
at Very Low Figures. The Best Brick ever made in the Red River Valley. Manufactured by SWANSON & KOEPPE,
[11-18] Crookston, Minn.

SECOND STREET
MEAT MARKET
STANTON & CO., Proprietors.
Choice meats of every description. Fish and game in their season. Everything of the very best quality and lowest prices. Call and see us.
STANTON & CO.,
Dobson's Block, Second Street.

The Red Lake Falls
FLOURING
MILL
Has lately been enlarged and is now prepared to do custom work without delay. Stable room free.
BUSE & COLBENTSON,
Proprietors, Red Lake Falls, Minn.

FURNITURE STORE,
BROADWAY, CROOKSTON MINNESOTA.
F. BATAGLIA, Prop.
Keeps constantly on hand a well selected stock of Wardrobes, Bureaus, Sofas, Lounges, Bedsteads, Bed Springs, Tables, Chairs, Rocking Chairs, Stands, Ornaments, Picture Mouldings, and Picture Frames. REPAIRING DONE TO ORDER. Coffins of all kinds kept constantly on hand.

MERCHANTS'
BILLIARD HALL,
FRED ANDERSON, Proprietor.
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA,
The choicest Wines, Liquors and Cigars constantly on hand.

Polk County Journal.

Crookston, Minn., Thursday, October 23.

THE MARKETS.

Wheat is quoted in this market today as follows:
No. 1 Hard 57 cents.
No. 2 Hard 53 cents.
No. 1 Regular 53 cents.
No. 2 Regular 48 cents.

FLOUR:
Best,	per cwt.	$3.25
2d	"	3.00
3d	"	2.75
4th	"	1.57

At Minneapolis:
No. 1 Hard 79 cents.
No. 2 Hard no quotations.
No. 1 Regular 69 cents.

Duluth quotations are as follows:
No. 1 Hard 79 cents.
No. 2 " 76½ cents.
No. 1 Northern 77 cents.
No. 1 Regular 73 cents.

'ROUND HOME.

Auction sale of household goods, consisting of stoves, bedsteads, dishes, etc., etc., etc., and many other useful articles, at F. M. Brown's Commission Store, on Saturday afternoon Oct. 25th.

Hon. S. G. Comstock, Hon. H. Steenerson and M. E. Clapp will speak during the balance of the campaign as follows: Hallock, Oct. 27th; Warren, Oct. 28th; Crookston, Oct. 29th; Ada, Oct. 30th, Moorhead, Oct. 31st, and at Sauk Centre Nov. 2d.

What's the matter with those cigars of Van Dyke & Co's, if it is a good one you like.

A Norwegian family, enroute north, brought in with a drove of cows a buffalo bull and a buffalo cow that had been captured in the Black Hills when they were young calves. They were perfectly docile and could be handled as well as cattle. They were a handsome pair, very suggestive of nice warm overcoats.

Dickson's Sketch Club, which appears on Saturday evening next at the opera house is spoken of very highly by the press and people. The Pioneer Press gave the company about a half column writeup which speaks highly in favor of the company as that paper is very conservative always and will not speak in favor of a poor company under any circumstances.

Close buyers have found out that Hack & Gallasch's store is the place for bargains.

Brother McGrew is altogether too modest! While he has a good word for every other candidate on the ticket he don't say a word for himself—he don't even copy it when we brag about him. That's altogether too modest, Brother McGrew, come out of your shell and own up that you are one of the best men on the ticket. 'Rah for Mac and the rest of 'em!

The best five cent cigars is at the Red Star Grocery, Broadway. [51-tf]

Every true Republican will stand by his guns this fall and see that Minnesota rolls up as big a Republican vote as possible. Don't be deceived by roorbacks and Democratic lies gotten up just to catch votes. The Democrats are desperate and will resort to anything to carry their point therefore we must expect all kinds of lies as usual. Stand by your party and success is sure!

If you want a rattling good cigar, don't take our word for it but take ten cents and go and try one of those what you read about at Van Dyke & Co's.

By reference to a new ad elsewhere in this issue it will be seen that Frank Brown has shied his castor into the ring in other words has entered the mercantile arena and is now prepared to supply the wants of the people in the line of dry goods, notions etc., etc. When you want to see how very far a little money will go to supplying your needs call on Frank at the new store one door south of the Merchants' Billiard Hall, on Main Street.

For the next 30 days we are bound to sell goods 50 per cent. below cost in order to make room for new stock.
VAN DYKE & Co.

A good story is told of our handsome and dignified long-legged Senator, the Hon. Halvor Steenerson. It seems that while out to the Devil's Lake country awhile since, a party of whom he was one of which had occasion to go somewhere. Mr. Steenerson had a gun with him and one day near dark he was tempted by the sight of a pond full of ducks to get out and try 'em a whack. The party drove on and left the Senator to bush whack ducks. Pretty soon, as dark was coming on, the Senator left the ducks and started (as he thought) in the wake of his party; but he had mistaken his bearings and started in the opposite direction. It is said that he walked all night, every now and then letting out a peg or so as the thought occurred to him that the ranch (where they were to stop for the night) ought to come along pretty soon. We will not vouch for the truth of the statement that his comrades, alarmed at his continued absence sent out a scout about 12 o'clock, mounted on the swiftest horse in the Territory, and that the scout overtook him next day about noon 100 miles from the duck pond, loping toward her majesty's dominion at a gate that would have scooped the swiftest Sioux Indian that ever went on wheels. It is only necessary to say that Steenerson spent the night on the prairie with no company but himself and other wild animals, and that the boys enjoyed the laugh at his expense when he was at last found and brought [illegible] alive and well—but oh so tired.

Go to Herb Mason's for the genuine pure sweet cider. He has it.

Mr. M. Collins is up from Bellvue, Iowa. He arrived Tuesday evening.

Very desirable houses to rent. Inquire of S. Clark, First National Bank. [25-tf.]

Many have talked low tariff, but few have acted. Frank Brown is offering his goods without tariff. [26-27]

A fine lot of toilet articles to be sold very low, at VAN DYKE & Co's.

Have you sampled that nice sweet cider just received at Herb Mason's? It is the genuine article and no mistake.

A slight snow squall on Tuesday reminded us that winter is at hand. Now is a good time to bank up if you have not attended to it before.

Van Dyke & Co. offer fancy goods lower than ever.

Van Dyke & Co. are about to paper their drug store and re-organize it generally. They mean to have a neat and attractive store if they don't lay up a cent.

In anticipation of Cleveland's election Frank Brown is selling goods on the basis of what will follow his election—low tariff. [26-27]

Auction sale of household goods, consisting of stoves, bedsteads, dishes, etc., etc., etc., and many other useful articles, at F. M. Brown's Commission Store, on Saturday afternoon Oct. 25th.

"There's a Star of the West that shall never go down," until the brand fails to be as good as it is now. You will find it at Van Dyke & Co's at a nickel a star and it will make you star' to smoke so good a cigar for a nickel.

Herb has just received a lot of excellent sweet cider. We know what we are barking at. We have sampled it. We were done brought up where the stuff grows on trees and we know it when we gaze upon it through a glass.

Van Dyke & Co. have just received a lot of cigars. Among them are the Star of the West, the best five cent cigar ever brought to the city for the money. The sample sent to THE JOURNAL office proved them as good as many that are sold for ten. If you want a good ten cent smoke try the Star of the West for five.

Low tariff has had a disastrous effect on No. 1 Hard, but farmers and others can recover part of the loss by buying goods of Frank Brown. [26-27]

Prescriptions put up carefully at all times of the day or night, at
VAN DYKE & Co's.

Charlie Davis returned on Monday, fat and hearty, from his voyage 'round the world, or thereabouts. He has been in Iowa, Colorado, New Mexico and everywhere else has seen some very fine country and some not so fine. He froze to death in a snow storm on the Rocky Mountains one day in August and ate ice cream that evening in the valley, sweltering in heat. Charlie intends to go back in a month or so.

Come and buy good goods at your own prices, at VAN DYKE & Co's.

The bodies of the victims of the boiler accident arrived on Wednesday and were buried. This matter affords a subject for legislation next winter. Some law should be enacted which will prevent any one save a competent engineer being permitted to run an engine. Farmers should see that such a law is enacted in self-defense. While we cannot call these poor victims back to life, we can protect others and save many valuable lives in the future.

Election tickets will be printed at this office at $5 per thousand. Cash must accompany each order to receive attention. Don't ask for credit on tickets as they must be cash in every case.

We have nothing encouraging to announce as to the price of wheat this week. Fifty-three cents in this market when on the eastern markets it ought to bring here 63. With reasonable freights and reasonable elevator charges wheat here should be at least 70 cents per bushel. Will the farmers remember these facts and elect only such men to the Legislature as are pledged to correct this abuse? This is a lovely country but farmers will all starve to death in it, or be driven out unless we have a change.

DRESSMAKING.

Cloak Cleaning and Repairing.

Mrs. Mossefin and Mrs. Dahl would inform the ladies of Crookston and vicinity that they are now prepared to do dressmaking in all of the latest styles and at reasonable figures. Cloaks cleaned and repaired, neatly, cheaply and promptly. One door south of Westenberg's boarding house, Main street, between Fletcher and Loring avenues. [26-29]

Look Here!

In Gjerberg Bro's new tailor shop, one door south of the post office will all kinds of tailor work be done at lowest prices. Remember the chemical cloth cleaning. Try us and we will guarantee you satisfaction. Yours respectfully,
[30-28] GJERBERG BRO'S.

Send Money by American Express or Money Orders. Receipts given. Money refunded if Orders are lost. Sold at all offices of the Company. Payable at 4,500 places. RATES: To $5 5c.; $10 8c.; $20 10c.; $30 12c.; $40 15c.; $50 20c. [2-27]

Money to Loan.

ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS to loan on improved farms from THREE to FIVE years time at very reasonable rates. Apply at my office on Broadway in U. S. Land Office building.
[14-tf] H. STEENERSON.

A Big Bonanza.

JOSEPH BARRETT

Has decided to Put on the Market his

ADDITION

—TO THE—

City of Crookston,

Next adjoining the Crookston Driving Park. Parties desiring to purchase

—CHOICE LOST—

NOW IS YOUR TIME!

LOTS

For Sale Separately, or in BLOCKS.

TERMS EASY!

Apply to the undersigned or at the office of C. B. Palmer, U. S. Land Office Building. Both English and French spoken.

JOSEPH BARRETT.

INDEPENDENT CANDIDATES.

Owing to the dis-satisfaction existing as to the nominees for Sheriff, I hereby announce myself an independent candidate for the office of Sheriff of Polk County and request the support of the people at the polls, promising, if elected, to give the office my whole time and attention, and to do my best to discharge its duties well and faithfully.
NELS P. JOHNSON.

At a meeting held in the city of Crookston at which were present a large number of the leading men of both the Republican and Democratic partys and at their request and promise of support I have consented to allow the use of my name as an independent candidate for the office of Sheriff of Polk County and request the support of all men who desire a clean and honest administration of the affairs of that office, at the polls and I hereby announce myself as an independent candidate for said office. Resp'y,
PETER CORNELIUS.

To the Voters of Polk County.

I hereby announce myself an independent candidate for the office of Sheriff of Polk County and ask the support of voters at the polls in November promising if elected to discharge the duties of the said office honestly and efficiently to the best of my ability.
AYLMER A. ALLEN.

At the earnest request of many friends I hereby announce myself an independent candidate for the office of Register of Deeds for Polk County.
JOHN AMUNDSON.

I hereby announce myself as a candidate for re-election to the office of Probate Judge of Polk County.
Respectfully, R. J. MONTAGUE.

RED LAKE FALLS, Oct. 8, 1884.
EDITOR JOURNAL: I hereby withdraw my independent candidacy for the office of County Surveyor, and earnestly request my friends to support Gardner Stevens, the Democratic nominee.
Respectfully, C. L. BRAINARD.

NOTICE.

Any man investing in property at Red Lake Falls or vicinity who loses by the investment, I will pay five dollars where he looses five cents.
[8-28] ALFRED GERVAIS.

Independent Candidates.

All notices under this head will be $5 each, cash invariably with the order. We shall make no deviation from this rule in favor of any one, so please do not ask it. [22-tf]

Attention Farmers.

As wheat brings very little money this fall and it is for your interest to buy good goods cheap, don't fail to call on Hack & Gallasch. We have marked our goods very low and will not fail to please you.

MARRIED.

JOHNNESON—RENALDSON.—In this city, on October 18th, by G. W. Lewis, Esq., Mr. Johanson Johnneson to Miss Annie Renaldson, all of Polk County, Minn.

Frank M. Brown,

COMMISSION STORE,

Main Street, - Crookston.

Consignments of Goods for QUICK CASH SALES SOLICITED.

W. L. Sargeant

Veterinary Surgeon.

CROOKSTON, - - - MINN.

Diseases of horses and cattle a specialty.
19-tf

WM. WATTS,

ATTORNEY AT LAW,
AND DEALER IN
REAL ESTATE:
OFFICE OVER MERCHANTS' BANK.

LEO & STEENERSON.

ATTORNEYS AT LAW
Room 3., U. S. Land Office Building,
CROOKSTON. - - - MINNESOTA.

Crookston Tonsorial PARLORS.

PROF. THOMPSON, Proprietor.
Robert Street, - - - Crookston, Minn.
Shaving, hair dressing and all work in my line promptly attended to the latest style of the art. Give me a call.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Oct. 1st, 1884.

Complaint having been entered at this office by George Wellington against George W. Lewis for abandoning his Homestead Entry No. 7384, dated May 26th, 1882, upon the se¼ S. 22, T. 151, R. 40, in Polk Co., Minn., with a view to the cancellation of said entry; the said parties are hereby summoned to appear at this office on the 8th day of December 1884 at 10 o'clock a. m., to respond and furnish testimony concerning said alleged abandonment.
JOHN CROMB, Register,
[25-30] L. K. AAKER, Receiver.

A. A. JUST, M. D.,

Homeopathic Physician and Surgeon.
Rooms corner Main street and Fletcher Avenue, over Eiken Bros. Hardware Store,
CROOKSTON, POLK COUNTY, MINN.

A. Allen,

AGENT

—FOR THE—

HOWE SCALE COMPANY.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Oct. 1st, 1884.

Complaint having been entered at this office by Daniel Bernard against Axel F. Vinstrom for abandoning his Homestead Entry No. 2515, dated March 19th, 1883, upon the ne¼ S. 32, T. 151, R. 48, in Polk Co., Minn., with a view to the cancellation of said entry; the said parties are hereby summoned to appear at this office on the 8th day of December 1884, at 10 o'clock a. m., to respond and furnish testimony concerning said alleged abandonment.
JOHN CROMB, Register.
[25-30] L. K. AAKER, Receiver.

JOHN N. IVES,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
Collection and Land Office Business made a specialty. Money secured for final proofs on short notice.
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

THE PIONEER
HARNESS SHOP,
M. RAUENBUEHLER, Proprietor,
CORNER OAK AND THIRD STS., CROOKSTON MINN

Is ready for the Spring trade with a full supply of Work and Light Harness, Single and Double, Saddles, Bridles, Whips, Blankets, etc. Give me a call before you purchase.

CHANGE IS THE ORDER OF THE DAY!

POTTER & GEORGE

— SUCCEED BEECHER & GEORGE OF —

MEDICAL HALL.

The reputation of the old firm will be kept up for good goods and moderate prices. Don't forget us.

POTTER & GEORGE,
Proprietors of Medical Hall.

E. D. CHILDS & CO.,

Proprietors of

CARMAN TOWNSITE,

AND

Dealers in Real Estate!

Why Don't You wait?

Wait till Crookston has ten thousand people. Three years!

Wait till Crookston is the largest and most important manufacturing town in the Northwest. Two years!

Wait till Crookston has two more large saw mills, and is cutting 75,000,000 feet a season. One year!

Wait till lots in SOUTH CROOKSTON are selling for twice their present valuation (six months) and THEN purchase

South Crookston Property.

But if you have time, just drop in and have a chat with

STEENERSON & McMANUS, Broadway.
JOHN IVES & SON, Broadway.
PALMER & BOND, Robert Street.
CROOKSTON IMPROVEMENT CO., Main Street.

Crookston City Bakery,

Peter Lorge, Prop.,

Keeps constantly on hand a full line of all goods usually found in a

First-Class Bakery.

Cigars and Tobacco, Nuts, Fruits, Candies; Pies, Cakes, Bread,

And everything to fill out a hungry man, constantly on hand.

FARMERS, FARMERS,

WE ARE

Selling Lower Than Ever!

You will always find it to your advantage to

Trade with Us!

We Sell the Best for the LOWEST LIVING PRICES. Remember the place,

Broadway, bet. 2d and Robert Sts.

D. BUCHANAN.

THE
St. Paul, Minneapolis
—AND—
Manitoba
RAILWAY.

WITH ITS

1,400 Miles of Road

Is the only line extending through the

Park Region of Minnesota,

To all principal points in
Red River Valley,
Northern Minnesota,
Northern Dakota,
And to Devil's Lake and Turtle Mour. Districts.

—CONTAINING OVER—

9,000,000 Acres

GOVERNMENT LANDS!

The Land department of the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway has exclusive charge of the Company's Lands in Minnesota, and all correspondence relative to the purchase of lands, terms, description or price of any particular tract should be addressed to that department.

Maps and pamphlets describing the country and giving rates of fare to settlers, etc., mailed FREE on application.

JAS. B. POWER,
Land and Immigration Commissioner
C. H. WARREN,
General Passenger Agent,
St. P., M. & M. R'y., St. Paul, Minn.

rookst on Nurseries

ESTABLISHED IN 1879.

Tree Claim Stock.

I desire to inform my customers and others that I shall make a great reduction from former prices on forest trees and seeds for tree-claims. I have good thrifty two year old trees, such as Box Elder, Ash and Cottonwood to sell by the thousand. I also furnish the hardier varieties of

SMALL FRUITS,

Such as Currants, Gooseberries, Raspberries and Strawberry plants, and young, thrifty Transcendent and Hislop Crab Apple trees. The firm of Heseltine Bros. having dissolved, I still continue business on the

—OLD NURSERY GROUNDS—

in Crookston. Hoping by fair dealing and promptness with my customers to merit their patronage.

Don't fail to write for Catalogue and Prices.

☞ ALL COMMUNICATIONS PROMPTLY ANSWERED.

F. T. HASELTINE,
Proprietor of the Crookston Nurseries, Crookston, Minn.

WANTED!

5,000 Men, Women and Children

—TO VISIT—

HACK & GALLASCH'

General Store, where you can buy

13 lbs. Pure Sugar for..........$1.00
12 lbs. Turkish Prunes for.......... 1.00
5 three lb. cans Table Peaches for.. 1.00
Japan Tea from.........20 to 60 cts per lb
1 long bar of soap and 1 towel, all for.......... .25c

Our stock of
DRY GOODS, NOTIONS,
AND DRESS GOODS IS COMPLETE.

Don't fail to visit our Shoe and Slipper department before buying elsewhere New and complete stock of Groceries Crockery, Glassware, Flour and Feed.

☞ We pay the highest market price for Butter, Eggs, Snake Root, Etc.

Call and see us. NO TROUBLE TO SHOW GOODS.

Cor. Main and Second Street,

Bigham & Olafson

(Successors to Juve & Bergland,)

THE POPULAR MERCHANTS ON

MAIN STREET, - - - CROOKSTON

Have on hand and are constantly receiving full lines of

DRY GOODS, GROCERIES,
CROCKERY.
CLOTHING,
BOOTS AND SHOES,
HATS AND CAPS

In fact everything usually found in first-class general store.

☞ Our goods are bought with great care and will be sold at

LOW PRICES

☞ FOR CASH. ☜

DR. M. WATTS,
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON.
OFFICE ON ROBERT STREET,
Professional calls by day or night attended to with promptness.

Wentzel & Rauch,
Sample Rooms.

MAIN STREET, - - - CROOKSTON, MINN.

For a fine mixed or straight drink call on the boys. The choicest liquors and cigars in stock. [9-tf]

M. M. VAN DYKE,
Physician and Surgeon,
Corner of Main and Second Streets,
ROOKSTON - - - MINN

Will attend to all professional calls promptly.

JOHN LEO. H. STEENERSON.

Just received. A car-load of Buggies selected by an experienced carriage builder all warranted. Call early and select one. McKinnon Bros.

MINNESOTA NEWS NOTES.

The Rev. Samuel Conn, D. D., for several years the successful pastor of the first Presbyterian church of St. Paul, has received a call to the charge of the First Presbyterian church in Beverly, N. J., which it is probable he will accept.

Collector Bickel has sent to the department at Washington his statement of the quantity of tax-paid spirits held by wholesale liquor dealers and rectifiers in Minnesota on Oct. 1. It shows the following totals: Domestic, 104,642 gallons; foreign, 5,277 gallons; total, 109,919 gallons.

In reply to questions submitted by Superintendent Kiehle, Attorney General Hahn yesterday gave an opinion to the effect that the law relating to common school districts (sec. 31) does not apply to independent districts. Nevertheless boards of education of independent school districts cannot employ teachers not having certificates (sec. 3, subdiv. 6), and such teachers are not entitled to pay. Special school districts should be governed by the special provisions of their respective charters. The state high school board has no power to examine teachers and grant certificates.

Elmer W. Herdick, a brakeman, fell between the cars on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway at Parker, Dak. Several cars passed over him, nearly severing both legs and one arm from his body. He only lived a few hours. His father lives near Worthington, Minn.

Frederick Bedunski, of Western Otter Tail county, is under arrest on the charge of fraud. Bedunski bought a note given by H. C. Walker to W. H. Fish, which was indorsed "without recourse." This had been erased when Bedunski disposed of the note to A. B. Clark.

Ezra Adams, of Fairmont, aged 22, was found lying near Elve creek with two bullet holes in his head. It is supposed he committed suicide because he had been jilted.

John Anderson was shot in the breast by a laborer named Donnelly, at Soules Crossing near Princeton.

Rev. D. B. Cheney was assaulted and severely beaten on Third street Stillwater, by a rough named Wm. Sinclair.

Cass county, Dak., has three graded schools and 86 ungraded, and 3,814 pupils between the ages of 7 and 20.

The Stillwater mill property is about to be sold by the stockholders to Isaac Staples.

Will Slack, clerk of Bell's hotel at Fergus Falls, has skipped with some money and jewelry.

The dedication services of the German Evangelical Lutheran church at Mankato were held on Sunday. Rev. Mr. Albrecht of New Ulm preached the dedicatory sermon, a large audience being present from all the neighboring towns, probably 1,200 to 1,500. The church brass band from Cleveland, Minn., was in attendance and furnished good sacred music.

The officers of the First Regiment held a meeting at the armory, St. Paul, for the purpose of electing a successor to Maj. George M. Naylor, resigned. An informal ballot resulted as follows: Captain Charles McC. Reeve, Company I, 10; Capt. F. P. Wright, Company C, 7; Capt. William Blakely, Company E, 3; Capt. E. S. Bean, Company D, 2; scattering, 2. A formal ballot was then taken, Capt. Reeve receiving 13 votes and Capt. Wright 8, with 3 scattering, and Capt. Reeve was accordingly declared elected.

A robbery occured between St. John, six miles west, and Willmar, Kandiyohi county, station recently. The victim was a Bohemian named Loup, who was on his way from Dakota to Nebraska. Loup was riding on a freight train, and just before break of day was enticed from the caboose to a wheat car, and was relieved of $250, all the money he had. Loup is destitute, can not speak a word of English and is unable to give an accurate description of the culprits. No clue as yet.

Ezra L. Adams, twenty-two years old and unmarried, was found dead, Sunday, at Elve creek near Fairmont, being shot through the head. The coroner held an inquest, and found that he came to his death by his own hand. He is supposed to have been dead since Saturday. He shot himself with a revolver. The cause was unrequited love.

While David Davidson, eighteen years old, was out hunting near Willmar, Sunday, his gun was accidentally discharged, the contents entering under his left arm and side. He lost a great deal of blood before help came, and died the same night. Two small boys discovered him a few minutes after the accident.

The family of Henry Minchouse, Sleepy Eye, numbering four persons, was poisoned by eating cheese made of sour milk, upon which lactic acid had generated. Mrs. Minchouse died from the effects of the poison.

Saturday night the Burlington train came down from Elkton, Pipestone county, loaded with loose ties and started back with one box car full of workmen. Four miles north of the town the box car and five others jumped the track. Fourteen men were injured, five of them very dangerously, and some it is thought, fatally. The men were all taken to Elkhorn for medical aid.

The log cut on the St. Croix river this season will be one-third less than in 1883.

Dredas Coty of Duluth was arrested and fined $15.95 for assaulting Mrs. Amelia Plumadon and pushing her from the docks into the bay during an exciting argument.

The supreme court of the state on Tuesday, in an opinion by Judge Vanderburgh, affirmed the decision of the lower court in the case of John Horan and Peter Brown, the assailants of Rev. E. S. Thomas at St. Paul. It will be remembered that Dr. Thomas, while returning to his home on St. John street at about 10 o'clock at night, was assaulted and robbed of his gold watch by two men, strangers to him. He at once gave a description of the men to an officer, and the next morning identified them at the police station. They were tried by the district court and convicted. A new trial was asked for on the ground of new evidence, and refused by the district court. The defense also objected to Dr. Thomas' evidence. The supreme court refuses their appeal and affirms the decision of the district court.

To further the preparations for the state educational exhibit at New Orleans, Superintendent Kiehle has appointed the following gentlemen to take charge of the various departments: Educational literature, Prof. William F. Phelps, Winona; school architecture, designs, plans, views, etc., Prof. W. W. Payne, Northfield; kindergarten work and drawing, Prof. Irwin Shepard, Winona. These gentlemen will correspond with and visit the different institutions and persons interested, with a view to united and harmonious action.

The jury in the United States district court at St. Paul, brought in a verdict of guilty against Frank Tousley, charged with retaining $800 as compensation for obtaining a pension of $1,600. Motion in arrest of judgment will be heard on No. 6. Tousley was admited to bail in the sum of $1,000.

Judge Vanderburgh has rendered a decision in the supreme court affirming the decision of the district court of Otter Tail county, giving the plaintiff damages for personal injury in the case of Esther Hutchinson against the Manitoba railroad.

Ben Schuman, well known to all West St. Paulites, as a former resident of the Sixth ward, was lynched at Dallas, Tex., recently, for the killing of a comrade in a drunken brawl. Herman Schuman, his brother, has gone to Texas to investigate the case.

J. K. Hilyard of St. Paul has been appointed by Hon. B. K. Bruce as assistant honorary commissioner for the Fourth congressional district of Minnesota, to collect articles for exhibition in the department for colored people at the world's exposition at New Orleans.

Dr. Winthrop Miller of Minneapolis died on Tuesday and his remains were sent to Massachusetts. Dr. Miller was a native of Dorchester, Mass., and his age was thirty-three years and nine months. He was a graduate of Harvard college, and also of the medical school connected with that institution. His grandfather and father were also eminent members of the medical profession, and the deceased [illegible]

At Soule's Crossing, near Princeton, John Anderson was shot by a laborer named Donnelly. They had [illegible] and Donnelly fired a load of fine shot into Anderson's right breast. It is thought that Anderson will recover. Donnelly has been arrested.

The elevator at Chester, Olmsted county, owned by Van Dusen & Co., took fire in the roof, as is conjectured, from the sparks from a side-tracked locomotive. There were 1,200 bushels of wheat and 1,200 of barley in the building at the time. The loss was total, as there was no insurance. The loss is estimated at about $8,000. It is understood that the company has already made preparations to rebuild this fall.

The board of trade of Winona have raised 100 for a descriptive article on Winona in the pamphlet being published by the state board of immigration for distribution at New Orleans.

Frederick Radunski was held at Fergus Falls in $500 bail for uttering a note altered by him.

Mr. and Mrs. Ami Smith of High Forest, Olmsted county, celebrated their golden wedding the 2d inst.

Jimmy Mason, an old vagrant, was found dead in an unused building at Brainerd.

Mr. O. M. Fullington of Ten Mile Lake, Otter Tail county, had 1,508 bushels of grain threshed in one day last week. This is the largest day's work for a machine ever seen in that section.

A sneak thief entered the Singer sewing machine office at Rochester and stole a hand-bag containing $16, the property of a young lady employe who was temporarily absent on business.

The barn of Andrew Stomprod, in Friberg, Otter Tail county, was burned, together with all its contents, among which was a harvester and a considerable amount of grain. Loss, $4,000.

Strict quarantine has been established over scarlet fever cases in Faribault, of which there have been thirty-two reported, with three deaths.

Strawberries, the second crop this season, grown in an open field near Winona, are on sale in that city at $1 a quart.

Articles of incorporation of the church of St. Mary of Waverly, Wright county, and of the church of St. Adelbert of Hale, McLeod county, have been filed with the secretary of state. Also articles of incorporation of the Air Siphon Ventilator company, of Minneapolis and Washington, D. C. The capital stock is $500,000, and the incorporators are John M. Fennerty, Louis J. Du Pre and George F. Brott. Also articles of incorporation of the Oak Lake Roller Skating Rink association, of Minneapolis, with a capital stock of $25,000. The incorporators are H. C. Peterson, A. T. Peterson, and N. P. Peterson, all of Minneapolis.

In case of State vs. Jackson, for trespass on certain lands in Cass county—damage claimed, $1,200—the jury brought in a verdict, assessing the damages at $167.05.

In answer to inquiries aroused by the recent discussion of flax culture, the secretary of state presents an official table, showing the number of acres under cultivation and the yield, during 1883 and 1883, in the state. In 1882, 79,547 acres aggregated a yield of 762,117 bushels, and in 1883, 70,880 acres yielded 826,231 bushels. During the present year 109,335 acres are under cultivation—an increase of 38,455 acres over 1883.

Washington Special: Luther Wesley Spear of Minneapolis and Miss Minnie Viola Spates were married in the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Elizabeth E. Spates, on Thirteenth street southeast, Rev. W. P. Chapman, of Ryland M. E. church officiating. George B. Silliman of St. Paul was married in New York to Miss Berringer, the daughter of H. Cecil Berringer of that city. The reception took place at the residence of the bride's father.

The State Woman's Suffrage Association, held at Minneapolis, elected the following officers: President—Martha G. Ripley, M. D., Minneapolis. Vice President—Mrs. Lizzie Mason, Shakopee. Recording Secretary—Mrs. Bliss, Minneapolis. Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. M. A. Dorsett, Minneapolis. Treasurer—Mrs. H. E. Gallinger, Minneapolis. Executive Committee—Mrs. S. B. Stearns, Duluth; Mrs. M. J. Warner, Hamline; Mrs. A. T. Anderson, Minneapolis; Mrs. F. G. Gould, Excelsior; Mrs. E. S. Gamble, St. Paul; Mrs. Laura Howe Carpenter, Minneapolis; Mrs. A. M. Thyng Austin.

O. A. Rockwell, late publisher of the Sunday Morning Call, and for some time past indentified with the newspapers of Minneapolis, died and was buried in Minneapolis.

Burglars entered the saloon of Mr. Reymiss in New Prague, and took $100 in cash.

Burglars have made extensive raids in Waterville, Mrs. A. V. Collins, proprietress of the temperance saloon, was a victim to the amount of about $8J and a silver watch. Several other places were visited and small amounts taken.

The postoffice at Cannon Falls and the store of Schofield Bros., jewelers and druggists, were broken into and robbed of $1,500 in money, jewelry and stamps. After the robbery the burglars stole a team and buggy and made good their escape. No clue is known as to who the parties were, but two strangers who were in the town the day before are suspected. They blew open Schofield Bros.' safe.

Pat Shanahan, a desperado, was shot in a house of ill fame at Cloquet by James Bauman, the proprietor, and fatally wounded. The cause was a disturbance raised by Shanahan.

E. H. Strunk, a leading lumber dealer of Windom, died of typhoid fever.

The Pine Knot is the name of a new paper started at Cloquet, Carlton county.

H. R. Whitehouse, one of the most prominent merchants of Clinton, made an assignment to Milo Smith of his very large stock of dry goods and carpets. His assets are $30,000 to $40,000; liabilities, chattel mortgage, $21,000; commercial paper, $18,000. The failure created profound surprise and deep regret.

Gov. Rusk has issued commissions as follows: Thomas Armstrong, Jr., district attorney of Columbia county, vice H. H. Curtiss, resigned; M. T. Parker, district attorney of Kewaunee county, vice J. L. V. Yates, resigned; Rev. T. S. Johnson, Beaver Dam, chaplain Second regiment; J. M. Carroll, first lieutenant, and E. E. Lewis, second lieutenant of the Burchard guard, Beaver Dam.

Almost all the rich and famous men of New York began life as nobodies. Charley P. Daly was an apprentice to a quill-pen cutter. Roswell P. Flower was a farm laborer at $1 a day. August Belmont was an apprentice at nothing a year, and boarded himself. Grover Cleveland was a clerk in New York city at $4 a week. Clark Bell was a blacksmith's apprentice, and could scarcely lift the hammer. Henry E. Abbey failed in the jewelry business. A. B. Cornell was a telegraph operator. [illegible] George William Curtis was a clerk at $3 per week. [illegible] farm boy. [illegible] [illegible]

Fishing For Horse Mackerel.

"Going after whales?" I asked a bronzed fisherman, who was coiling a long rope into his boat on the beach near New Carlyle.

"No," was the reply, in broad Yankee dialect, that sounded strange where French is mostly spoken. "I'm goin hoss-mackerelin', an' ef you wanter put in a good solid day's work, ship afore the mast, I'd be glad to hev your company. Jist clear that line while I coil, will ye?" said the fisherman, as soon as I had verbally signed papers and shipped. The rope, which was about two hundred feet long, was coiled in the bottom of the boat, the cable was slipped, and the Grampus bore away before the wind, churning and puffing like her namesake.

"That's a delicate-lookin' hook" said the skipper, as he took up a giant iron hook that might have passed for an ice hook; "but I tell ye they want a hook that'll hang on. They're the strongest fish that can swim, an' I ain't exceptin' sharks. Sharks is good at a steady pull, but a hoss mackerel will go a mile while a shark's makin' up his mind whether he's hooked or not. I reckon we might as well hev over here," continued the skipper, "an' ef ye'll take the tiller a minute, mate, I'll fix the fly. Hoss mackerels ain't very particular," he said, as he forced a large eight-pound hake on to the barbed hook. "What they want is somethin' solid and sweet, an' hake jist about hits the figger. Ye see they make a shine as they tow along."

The fisherman slackened away on the line until all but about twenty feet was out, and then took a hitch in the line.

"That's what I call a telltale," he continued, pointing to the hitch. "When that gives and slips you'll know we're in fur business. Jist slack off yer sheet a trifle, so she won't make so much way. Ye wanter take it kinder slow, jist to keep the hake a-movin' natural like, and not take it out of their mouths at the furst pull. Sometimes I've fished all day and never got a bite, and then agin I've been off shore here a coddin' and the minute I'de get a fish up to the top of the water along would come one o' these fellers and take him off. I remember one day particular when Jo—"

Right here came a rasping sound, and the "tellta le" disappeared with a rush.

"Down with the helm!" shouted the skipper, and down it went, the little craft rushing up into the wind, shaking herself like a wet dog. The line was as stiff as a bar of iron when the fisherman seized it, but by a rapid paying out he succeeded in passing it forward and making it fast. The object of this was evident a moment later, when the boat buried her nose and dashed away dead in the wind's eye, towed by the powerful fish.

"Ye see" said the skipper, keeping his eyes on the singing line, "if he'd got the strain on over the side or astern, we'd hev to go over or cut the rope. Now, you want to keep her right after him."

This proved no easy matter; the fish was making frequent side rushes from right to left, hauling the boat here and there, and making it almost an impossibility to guide her. Suddenly there came a slack on the line.

"Stand by!" shouted the skipper, hauling in on the slack with all his power; "put her ahead the way he goes!"

For a moment the line came in as if nothing were on, but in a second it leaped again. The man darted back to get clear of it, while the bow of the boat was turned in the new direction indicated not a moment too soon, as with a singing sound the line tautened, burying the boat to her very deck. Time and time again did the wily fish adopt these tactics to rid itself of the obnoxious load, but at every turn it met the equal cunning of the fisherman, who was an old hand at such pranks.

"This thing can't last all night," said the skipper. "There's an end to all things. Just clap on here and see if we can't get in a little slack." The helmsman relinquished the tiller, and both laid hold of the line. The first pull seemed to spur the fish on to renewed exertions. A foot of line was soon gained, and with a rush was lost. It was regained and as much more added to it, and then begun a tug of war. Slowly the line came in, and finally, when within fifty feet of the boat, the monster rose five feet into the air and showed its shapely length.

"It's about up with him when he does that," gasped the skipper. "Now slack quick! Now in with it agin! Now let go again!" Thus gradually the great fish was hauled this way and that, and finally half drowned in its own element, rolled on its back at the bow, and after a few more struggles succumbed to the blows of the skipper's mallet.

"That's the biggest chap I ever tackled," said the fisherman, as he made a rope fast to the fish's tail, and it swung alongside the boat. "They're the king, an' no mistake. We can't git him inter the boat, so jist keep away, and we'll tow him ashore."

When the captured fish was hauled upon the sands by the windlass that the skipper used to pull out his boats it measured nearly ten feet in length, and was estimated to weigh nearly a thousand pounds. The horse mackerel is a magnificent fish in appearance, being, in fact, a gigantic mackerel, resembling the European tunny. They have a wide geographical range. Specimens have been caught twenty feet in length, with a weight of about half a ton, and so powerful that even large vessels have been towed by them. Like the swordfish, they do not breed on this side of the water, but undoubtedly emigrate to the European shores for this purpose, unless, perhaps, the eggs are deposited in mid-Atlantic, which is hardly probable. The fish prey upon their smaller relatives, and go south or out to sea in the winter, appearing on the Massachusetts coast about June 1, and here two weeks later.—N. Y. Sun.

The Honest Countryman.

There is a cheap clothing dealer on Kearny, near California, whose confidence in mankind has received a severe setback. The other day an honest-looking countryman walked into his store and said: "You remember that second-hand [illegible]

[illegible]

"my tear frent," exclaimed the dealer, eagerly capturing the money. "You ish von honish man. Here, Here, I gif you feefty tollar ash a revard. Dot vill pe all right."

When the honest customer got around the corner he murmured softly: "I guess I'd better take this fifty and skip up to Portland before that Sheeney tumbles to that counterfeit. It's getting mighty hard to shove the 'queer' round these parts, and that's a fact."—San Francisco Post.

Voting for President.

This year, although some ten million voters will express a preference by their votes who shall be President, only four hundred and one persons in the United States will actually vote for one.

That is the number of the "Electors," of whom each State chooses one for each Senator and one for each Representative, to which it is entitled. The people at present choose these electors in each State, but the Legislature of a State may at any time direct that they be appointed in any other way.

Probably a great many men are ignorant of the reason why the people do not vote directly for a President. The Convention which formed the Constitution under which we live, in 1787, spent more time and thought on the question how a President should be elected than on any other part of the Constitution.

An immense number of propositions was submitted. Some of them were rejected one day, to be accepted the next; others would be accepted one day, and rejected the next. There was one suggestion that the Governors of all the States should meet and choose the President; another that he should be elected by Congress.

Among those which were offered many times and always rejected, was the proposition that the people should make the choice. Of the two parties then in the country,—if the thirteen colonies under the Confederation could be called a country,—one was in mortal terror lest the rights of the States should be overthrown; the other had not a little distrust of the people.

The first of these parties afterward became the Democratic party, which from time to time to the present has usually been the champion of State rights. It opposed the proposition to elect a President by a popular vote, because of a fear that the large States would overpower the small ones.

The Federalists opposed it because they did not believe the people could be fully trusted to make a good choice. Out of this agreement, for different reasons, sprung the scheme of an indirect election by electors not proportioned in number to the population. Each State was to have as many electors as it had senators and representatives in Congress.

Several objects were accomplished by this scheme. The electors were chosen by States. The influence of the smaller States would not be overcome by mere force of numbers, nor would the larger ones be able to dictate arrogantly to the smaller. Moreover, it was thought that a chosen body of electors would act independently, and would make a better selection than could the people as a whole.

In this latter expectation there has been disappointment from the beginning. An intrigue, secretly carried on, defeated John Adams for vice-president at the very first election under the constitution in 1789.

But that part of the plan which gives electors to the state, and not in proportion to their population, will continue to be wise as long as there are state lines and local government by states.

The time might come when New England, New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio,—casting as many votes as the whole south, except Missouri,—would be able, by their unanimity, to decide all elections. This is not at all desirable. The larger states may wish for it, but were the election to be decided by popular votes, the independence of the smaller states would suffer severely.

When any one remarks that John Quincy Adams was wrongly chosen President, because Jackson had more popular votes than he; that Polk was a "minority" President, and that Lincoln was elected by a minority of votes and by a minority of States, he speaks foolishly.

The Constitution does not provide for a popular vote at all, nor did the fathers who framed it intend to leave any part of the election to the mercy of a popular vote. Though they did not accomplish all they intended, they have left us a system which, if not perfect, secures the country against the dictation of the great States, and gives us a mode of election which is popular enough for all practical purposes.

An Execution in Vienna Rivalling that of Brooklyn in Horror.

Vienna Letter, in London Standard.

A ghastly scene occured to-day within the prison at Stein. This morning a convict named Ferdinand Baumgartner, who several months ago murdered a prison warder, was to be hanged for the crime in the court-yard of the prison. The spectators who had assembled to witness the execution included about seventy persons, in addition to a company of infantry especially detailed to preserve order. The convict, who was brought from his cell at 7 o'clock, turned a savage glare on the assembled persons as he walked past with firm step to the gallows. Arrived there, the executioner's assistants approached for the purpose of binding his arms. Muttering an imprecation he dashed the first assistant down and began fighting with the second and third. The struggle between the convict, who raved like a wild beast, and the executioner's men went on for several minutes before the soldiers were ordered to intervene. They soon overpowered Baumgartner, and the executioner now threw the rope round his neck. Another terrible struggle then ensued. Baumgartner, who caught the cord with his teeth, kept his mouth shut and held the rope with such force that the assistants were unable for some time to wrench it from him. Even after they had at first secured the rope the convict seized it again with his both hands and, uttering loud oaths, defied them to carry out the sentence. At length, however, the executioner succeeded in forcing an irregular noose on the man's neck [illegible] [illegible]

Off Days.

Thousands and thousands of men and women have their off days—they are not sick enough to give up, relinquish their duties and go to bed, but as one describes it:

"I feel so drowsy and weary—my head aches."

"I never did have a meaner feeling in my life."

"My stomach does not feel right."

"Don't know what is the matter with me, but do not feel well."

"I have a feeling of nausea."

"Too cold one minute and too warm the next."

"To use a slang phrase, 'I am all broke up.'"

The above and hundreds of similar expressions are heard daily, with some there is a known cause, others cannot account for the feeling. It may originate from different reasons, but from whatever cause, nature requires assistance and you can immediately render the assistance and dispel all these unpleasant symptoms. By using Burdock Blood Bitters take them immediately on the appearance of the unpleasant felling.

You will feel better in half-an-hour.
Take it any time before or after meals.
If before you will enjoy your meal better.
If after it will aid digestion.

It is a medicine you can take at any time with good results, can be taken by the prattling child, or the feeble and tottering old man or woman. Composed of roots and herbs there is nothing in its composition that will injure the most delicate constitution, pleasant in taste and effect, will do you good.

G. F. De Lisle telegraphs from Chuan, upper Lo Chuan, China, as follows: "Col. Donnier, after a brilliant engagement Friday, carried the heights commanding the fortress of Chu Fain, exposing a large entrenched Chinese camp, which was defended by five casemated forts. The Chinese forces were very large. Their losses during the engagement were heavy. On Saturday they attempted to assume the offensive, but our artillery strewed the ground with bodies. After losing all their positions, the Chinese fled toward Langson, halted near Phutrueong and Khanh. French lost twenty killed, including one officer, and ninety wounded; two officers were wounded. The troops were animated, and proceeded in the greatest of order. The Chinese engaged were part of the best troops of the empire, perfectly armed and maneuvered in European style. The Chinese losses were 3,000 killed, including their chief commander. The Chinese invasion of Tonquin has been arrested in the direction of Langson."

English Trade-Marks.

Mr. Edward Waters, Patent and Trade-marks office, 87 Bourke Street, Melbourne, Australia, writes: "One of my household suffered with tooth-ache and rheumatism and after trying numerous other remedies without relief, tried Jacobs Oil. It was rubbed on the cheek and plugged in the tooth, and well rubbed in for rheumatism. In both cases the cure was immediate and complete, and in neither case has the pain returned."

At a meeting of the international prime meridian conference a resolution was adopted providing that longitude shall be counted from the meridian of Greenwich in two directions—to 180 degrees east longitude plus, and west longitude minus. The following resolution was adopted: "The conference proposes the adoption of a universal day for all purposes for which it may be found convenient, and which shall not interfere with the use of local or other standard times where desirable." Adjournment was taken until Monday, when the following resolution will be considered: This universal day is to be a mean solar day, is to begin for all the world at the moment of mean midnight of the initial meridian coinciding with the beginning of the civil day and date of that meridian, and is to be counted from zero up to twenty-four hours."

The body of Samuel Edwards, an engineer employed in steel works at Pittsburg, was found recently in the Allegheny river with a wound in the back of his head. It is believed that he was murdered and robbed.

Adam Forepaugh, the well-known showman and millionaire, has just been married to Miss Mary G. Tallmann of Philadelphia. The bride is said to be of beautiful face and figure.

Barber Bros., wholesale woolens, of Streetsville, Ontario, have assigned. Liabilities, $200,000; assets, $100,000. The Bank of Commerce, of Toronto, is a creditor to the extent of $90,000.

Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy cures when every other so-called remedy fails.

Heidmeyer & Streglitz, wholesale dealers in woolens, Chicago, were closed by the sheriff yesterday to satisfy judgment by confession amounting to $75,000.

Young or middle-aged men suffering from nervous debility, loss of memory, premature old age, as the result of bad habits, should send three letter stamps for illustrated book, offering sure means of cure. Address World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

It is reported that Miss Annie Corwin of Manitoba has been robbed and murdered in Detroit, Mich. She was said to have been possessed of considerable money.

"The Slough of Despondency"

in which you are wallowing, on account of some of those diseases peculiar to you, madame, and which have robbed you of the rosy hue of health, and made life a burden to you, you can easily get out of. Dr. Pierce's Favorite "Prescription" will free you from all such troubles, and soon recall the rose-tint of health to your cheek and the elasticity to your step. It is a most perfect specific for all the weaknesses and irregularities peculiar to your sex. It cures ulceration, displacements, "internal fever," bearing-down sensations, removes the tendency to cancerous affections, and corrects all unnatural discharges. By druggists.

The liabilities of James Campbell & Sons, stationers and publishers, Toronto, are placed at $250,000; assets unknown. The Merchants' bank is interested $100,000.

Doctors are getting more and more into the habit of prescribing proprietary medicines in their practice, especially that known as Hunt's [Kidney and Liver] Remedy for diseases of the kidneys liver and bladder. They know from experience that is of more value in such diseases than any prescription they can write.

Herman Zorn of Stillwater was kicked in the head, badly cut and knocked senseless by a horse he was leading. He will recover.

Plain as The Nose on Your Face.

What is the difference between a persons nose and Carboline the Great Petroleum Hair Renewer. Ans:—one is the center of the head and the other is a head-scenter.

Waltz Bros., jewelers, of Toronto, have assigned. Liabilities, $90,000; assets about half.

An Invaluable Remedy.—None except those who have suffered all the horrors of Dyspepsia can fully appreciate the value and efficacy of Perry Davis' Pain Killer, a sovereign remedy for this distressing disease in all its forms, is used internally and externally, test its virtues.

Lord Randolph Churchill declares it impossible to compromise with the liberals upon the redistribution bill as published.

He Must Confess.

DEAR SIR,—I used the White Wine of Tar Syrup you sent me, and must confess I derived more benefit to my lungs from it than from any remedy I have ever tried, and cheerfully recommend it to every one having any kind of lung trouble.

Truly yours,
REV. A. M. HUMPHREY,
Minister of Baptist Church.
Trilla, Coles Co., Ills.

At the Newry (Ireland) municipal election two nationals and four conservatives were elected to the corporation boards.

Skinny men.—Wells' Health Renewer, restores health and vigor, cures dyspepsia, impotence. $1

Young Men—Read This.

The Voltaic Belt Co., of Marshall, Mich., offer to send their celebrated Electro-Voltaic Belt and other Electric Appliances on trial for thirty days, to men (young or old) afflicted with nervous debility, loss of vitality and all kindred troubles. Also, for rheumatism, neuralgia, paralysis, and many other diseases. Complete restoration to health, vigor and manhood guaranteed. No risk is incurred as thirty days trial is allowed. Write them at once for illustrated pamphlet free.

Nearly 400 sugar estates in Cuba have been either destroyed or abandoned by their owners during the last decade.

"Rough on Tooth-ache." Ask for it. Instant relief, quick cure. 15c. Druggists.

Headache is immediately relieved by the use of Piso's Remedy for Catarrh.

A bronze statue of John Harvard, founder of Harvard college, was unveiled in Boston recently.

"Rough on Corns." 15c. Ask for it. Complete cure, hard or soft corns, warts, bunions.

D. C. Newell & Adams, grocers of Boston, have assigned. Liabilities, $40,000.

"Rough on Pain" Porous Plaster, for Backache, Pains in the Chest, Rheumatism. 25c.

Mensman's Peptonized Beef Tonic, the only preparation of beef containing its ENTIRE NUTRITIOUS PROPERTIES. It contains blood-making, force-generating and life-sustaining properties; invaluable for Indigestion, Dyspepsia, nervous prostration, and all forms of general debility; also, in all enfeebled conditions, whether the result of exhaustion, nervous prostration, overwork, or acute disease, particularly if resulting from pulmonary complaints. CASWELL, HAZARD & Co., Proprietors, New York. Sold by Druggists.

Without a Scar.

Is the way that Veterinary Carbolisalve cures Galls, Cuts and Wounds. Always brings the hair in its original color. In 50c. and 1.00 cans at Druggists or by mail. J. W. COLE & CO., Prop's, Black River Falls, Wis.

FREE A Big Book. Send 10 cents to pay postage. Address, O. H. JONES, Wilmington, Vt.

WHITE BEAVER'S COUGH CREAM
1 cals dise ased lung

HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS

Protection. No such protective against chills and fever and other diseases of a malarial type exists as Hostetter's Stomache Bitters. It relieves constipation, liver disorders, rheumatism, kidney and bladder ailments with certainty and promtitude. A change, as gratifying as it is complete, soon takes place in the appearance, as well as the sensation, of the wan and haggard invalid who uses this standard promoter of health and strength. For sale by all druggists and Dealers generally.

TO THE PEOPLE !
This Should Be Read By All.
It Treats on a Subject of Interest to Every Family.
Important Intelligence from the Old Country, Where Cholera has Prevailed.
ASIATIC CHOLERA.
Almost every case cured with
PERRY DAVIS'
Pain-Killer

[From Rev. R. TELFORD, missionary in China, now visiting his home in Pennsylvania.]
WASHINGTON, PENN.
DEAR SIRS,—During a residence of some ten years as a missionary in Siam and China, I found your Vegetable Pain Killer a most valuable remedy for that fearful scourge, the cholera. In administering the medicine, I found it most effectual to give a teaspoonful of Pain-Killer in a gill of hot water, sweetened with sugar, then, after about fifteen minutes, begin to give about a teaspoonful of the same mixture every few minutes until relief was obtained. Apply hot applications to the extremities. Bathe the stomach with the Pain-Killer clear, and the limbs briskly. Of those who had the cholera, and took the medicine faithfully in the way stated above, eight out of ten recovered.
Truly yours, R. TELFORD.
The late Rev. Dr. Granger repeatedly expressed his belief that he owed his life to the timely use of PERRY DAVIS'S PAIN-KILLER. During his recent visit to the missions in Burmah, he had a severe attack of the cholera, and was immediately relieved by the use of the Pain-Killer.
Directions accompany each bottle.
Price 25 cts., 50 cts., and $1 per bottle.
J. N. HARRIS & CO., Limited,
Cincinnati, Ohio.
Proprietors for the Southern and Western States.
For sale by all Medicine Dealers.

ROCKFORD WATCHES
Are unequalled in EXACTING SERVICE.
Used by the Chief Mechanician of the U. S. Coast Survey; by the Admiral commanding in the U. S. Naval Observatory, for Astronomical work; and by Locomotive Engineers, Conductors and Railway men. They are recognized as THE BEST for all uses in which close time and durability are requisites. Sold in principal cities and towns by the COMPANY'S exclusive Agents (leading jewelers,) who give a Full Warranty.

TUTT'S PILLS
25 YEARS IN USE.
The Greatest Medical Triumph of the Age!
SYMPTOMS OF A TORPID LIVER.
Loss of appetite, Bowels costive, Pain in the head, with a dull sensation in the back part, Pain under the shoulder-blade, Fullness after eating, with a disinclination to exertion of body or mind, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, with a feeling of having neglected some duty, Weariness, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, Headache over the right eye, Restlessness, with fitful dreams, Highly colored Urine, and CONSTIPATION.
TUTT'S PILLS are especially adapted to such cases, one dose effects such a change of feeling as to astonish the sufferer. They Increase the Appetite, and cause the body to Take on Flesh, thus the system is nourished, and by their Tonic Action on the Digestive Organs, Regular Stools are produced. Price 25c. 44 Murray St., N.Y.
TUTT'S HAIR DYE.
GRAY HAIR or WHISKERS changed to a GLOSSY BLACK by a single application of this DYE. It imparts a natural color, acts instantaneously. Sold by Druggists, or sent by express on receipt of $1.
Office, 44 Murray St., New York.

Help wanted, Females.—Wanted—Ladies and gentlemen to take nice, light, pleasant work at their own homes (distance no objection). Work sent by mail. $2 to $5 a day can be quietly made. No canvassing. Please address at once, Reliable Mf'g Co., Phila., Pa., Box 1593.

LADY AGENTS WANTED
To introduce and sell Dr. Linguist's Spinal Health Corset. Apply to Dr. Linguist Spinal Corset Company, 413 Broadway, N. Y.

PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.

FRAZER AXLE GREASE!
BEST IN THE WORLD. Get the Genuine. Sold Everywhere.

PARSONS' PURGATIVE PILLS
MAKE NEW RICH BLOOD
Positively cure SICK HEADACHE, Biliousness, and all LIVER and BOWEL Complaints, MALARIA, BLOOD POISON, and Skin Diseases (ONE PILL A DOSE). For Female Complaints these Pills have no equal. "I find them a valuable Cathartic and Liver Pill."—Dr. T. M. Palmer, Monticello, Fla. [illegible] Dennison, M. D., DeWitt, Iowa. Sold everywhere, or sent by mail [illegible] information FREE. I. S. JOHNSON & CO., BOSTON, MASS.

"I owe my Restoration to Health and Beauty to the CUTICURA REMEDIES."
Testimonial of a Boston lady.

DISFIGURING Humors, Humiliating Eruptions, Itching Tortures, Scrofula, Salt Rheum and Infantile Humors, cured by the CUTICURA REMEDIES.

CUTICURA RESOLVENT, the new blood purifier, cleanses the blood and perspiration of impurities and poisonous elements, and thus removes the cause.

CUTICURA, the great Skin Cure, instantly allays Itching and Inflammation, clears the Skin and Scalp, heals Ulcers and Sores, and restores the Hair.

CUTICURA SOAP, an exquisite Skin Beautifier and Toilet Requisite, prepared from CUTICURA, is indispensable in treating Skin Diseases, Baby Humors, Skin Blemishes, Chapped and Oily Skin.

CUTICURA REMEDIES are absolutely pure, and the only infallible Blood Purifiers and Skin Beautifiers. Sold everywhere. Price, Cuticura, 50 cents, Soap, 25 cents; Resolvent, $1. POTTER DRUG AND CHEMICAL Co., BOSTON, MASS.

LEARN TELEGRAPHY, or SHORT-HAND and TYPE WRITING HERE. Situations furnished. Address Valentine Bros., Janesville, Wis.

OPIUM Morphine Habit Cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till Cured. DR. J. STEPHENS, Lebanon, Ohio.

AGENTS WANTED.—It will pay persons wanting profitable employment to write for extra terms for the fastest-selling Pictorial Books, Bibles and Albums, to National Publishing Co., Philadelphia, Pa., Chicago, Ill.

SOLDIERS or heirs send stamp for circulars showing who is entitled to pension, bounty, &c. L. C. WOOD, Pension Att'y., Washington, D. C.

MORPHINE and CHLORAL HABITS EASILY CURED. BOOK FREE. Dr. J. C. Hoffman, Jefferson, Wisconsin. OPIUM

LOVE COURTSHIP and MARRIAGE. Wonderful secrets, revelations and discoveries for married and single, securing health, wealth and happiness to all. This handsome book of 160 pages, mailed for only 10 cents by the Union Publishing Co., Newark, N. J.

NEW ENGLAND CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC.
MUSIC: Vocal and Instrumental and Tuning.
ART. Drawing, Painting, Modeling and Portraiture.
ORATORY. Literature and Languages.
HOME. Elegant accommodations for 500 lady students.
FALL TERM begins Sept. 11th. Beautifully Ill'd Calendar free. Address E. TOURJEE, Director.
FRANKLIN SQUARE, BOSTON, MASS.

JOSEPH GILLOTT'S STEEL PENS
SOLD BY ALL DEALERS THROUGHOUT THE WORLD
GOLD MEDAL PARIS EXPOSITION—1878.

U. S. STANDARD. JONES OF BINGHAMTON
5 TON WAGON SCALES, Iron Levers, Steel Bearings, Brass Tare Beam and Beam Box, $60 and JONES he pays the freight—for free Price List mention this paper and address JONES OF BINGHAMTON, Binghamton, N. Y.

ALLEN'S IRON TONIC BITTERS.
The most Elegant Blood Purifier, Liver Invigorator, Tonic, and Appetizer ever known. The first Bitters containing Iron ever advertised in America. Unprincipled persons are imitating the name; look out for frauds. See that the following signature is on every bottle and take none other:
J. P. Allen
ST. PAUL, MINN. Druggist & Chemist

THE TIFFIN Well Boring & Rock Drilling MACHINERY!
For Horse or Steam Power
Hundreds of the best men in 30 States and Territories use it and will have no other!
RELIABLE! DURABLE! SIMPLE!
Established over 25 years, we have ample facilities to fill orders promptly, and to satisfaction of our customers. Catalogue FREE. Address
LOOMIS & NYMAN. Tiffin. Ohio.

The BUYERS' GUIDE is issued Sept. and March, each year: 224 pages, 8½ x 11½ inches, with over 3,300 illustrations—a whole picture gallery. Gives wholesale prices direct to consumers on all goods for personal or family use. Tells how to order, and gives exact cost of everything you use, drink, eat, wear, or have fun with. These invaluable books contain information gleaned from the markets of the world. We will mail a copy Free to any address upon receipt of the postage—8 cents. Let us hear from you. Respectfully,
MONTGOMERY WARD & CO.
227 & 229 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

ONE DOLLAR FOR THE WEEKLY PIONEER PRESS TWELVE MONTHS
Address PIONEER PRESS CO.,
ST. PAUL, MINN.

Dr. Spinney & Co.
Treat all Chronic and Nervous Diseases. Young men who may be suffering with Weakness, Nervous Debility, Despondency, Aversion to Society, Kidney troubles, or any similar diseases, can here find a safe and speedy cure. There are many of the age of thirty to sixty who are often troubled with uncomfortable symptoms, accompanied by weakening of the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. Examination reveals the fact that the patient's system is undergoing a depletion which rapidly exhausts every vital function. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause. The doctor will guarantee a cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration. Pamphlet, with full particulars, sent free to any address. Call on or address DR. SPINNEY & CO., 37 S. Third st., Minneapolis, Minn.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND
IS A POSITIVE CURE FOR
All those painful Complaints and Weaknesses so common to our best FEMALE POPULATION.
Price $1 in liquid, pill or lozenge form.
Its purpose is solely for the legitimate healing of disease and the relief of pain, and that it does all it claims to do, thousands of ladies can gladly testify.
It will cure entirely all Ovarian troubles, Inflammation and Ulceration, Falling and Displacements, and consequent Spinal Weakness, and is particularly adapted to the change of life.
It removes Faintness, Flatulency, destroys all craving for stimulants, and relieves Weakness of the Stomach. It cures Bloating, Headaches, Nervous Prostration, General Debility, Sleeplessness, Depression and Indigestion. That feeling of bearing down, causing pain, and backache, is always permanently cured by its use.
Send stamp to Lynn, Mass., for pamphlet. Letters of inquiry confidentially answered. For sale at druggists.

N. W. N. U. 1884 No. 43.

PERVERSITY

Riches we wish to get,
Yet remain spendthrifts still;
We would have health, and yet
Still use our bodies ill:
Bafflers of our own prayers, from youth to life's last scenes.

We would have inward peace,
Yet would not look within;
We would have misery cease,
Yet will not cease from sin;
We want all pleasant end, but will use no harsh means.

We do not what we ought,
What we ought not we do,
And lean upon the thought
That chance will bring us through;
But our own acts, for good or ill, are mightier powers.

But next we would reverse
The scheme ourselves have spun,
And what we made to curse
We now would lean upon,
And feign kind gods, who perfect what man vainly tries.

—Matthew Arnold.

ABOUT HOUSE-CLEANING.

"Saidee! Saidee! Where are you? Why don't you answer me when I call?"

"Yes, Aunt Leah—I am coming in a minute."

"In a minute," sarcastically repeated the old lady. "It's always 'in a minute' with you, Saidee! But I suppose, because I'm old and helpless, my comfort is a matter of no consequence whatever."

"Dear Aunt Leah, you must never think that," answered a bright cheery voice; and Saidee Lynn came into the room with a little tray, where were arranged on a snowy napkin some tea biscuit, half dozen pink radishes, a few thin cut shavings of smoked beef and a little pot of tea, with a cup and saucer of old blue china which would have been invaluable to a collector. "You see I had you in my mind all the time, Aunt Leah," she said merrily. "I gathered the radishes from our own garden. Don't they look nice?"

Aunt Leah, a withered little old lady, in a dress of worn black silk and gray eyes peering through gold-bound spectacles, tasted of the tea and shook her head.

"It's too weak," said she. "It isn't fit to drink."

"I put in all the tea there was in the canister, Aunt Leah," said Saidee, with a distressed countenance.

Aunt Leah pushed away the cup with an expression of distaste.

"It is as I might have expected," said she. "My nieces have too little thought for my comfort to study my poor and few necessities. Never mind the tea; I can drink cold water, I dare say!"

Saidee wrung her hands in despair. How could she tell this weak, feeble old lady, above whose declining years hung the threatening Damocles sword of heart disease, of their narrowing circumstances, of the empty exchequer, the clamoring creditors, the pitiful straits to which they were reduced.

"What shall I do?" she asked herself, as she went slowly back to the kitchen of the ruinous Gothic cottage, which they had obtained for a ridiculously low rent because it was ruinous. "I've borrowed of the rector's wife twice, and I'm ashamed to go to her again. I've sold everything I can lay my hands on." But glancing up at a picture which hung in the hall beyond, "there's the Velasquez still. A Velasquez is always worth money. Belle will scold about parting with it, and Aunt Leah will morn, but we can't live on air and dew like the fairies. I'll take it down to Mr. Bruner, the artist, this afternoon and ask him to get us a purchaser. Poor people such as we are can't afford to retain old family relic." And so, when Aunt Leah was indulging in her afternoon nap, and Belle, the beauty of the family, was ironing out the flounces of her white muslin dress for the morrow's picnic, valiant Saidee climbed on a chair, took the unframed picture down (it was the head of some old Spanish grandee, with a stiff pointed ruff and an evil leer in his eyes), wrapped it up in a newspaper and creeped across the meadows with it to the village.

Mr. Bruner was in his studio, a grizzle-headed blunt old gentleman, in a belted linen blouse, and a velvet cap. He nodded kindly at Saidee, who had once taken a few lessons from him, but when she displayed the canvas he shook his head.

"How much do you think it is worth?" asked Saidee, wistfully.

"Nothing!" said Mr. Bruner.

"But," cried the girl, "it is a Velasques!"

"That a Velasquez?" said Mr. Bruner, contemptuously. "My dear, there isn't a picture-dealer in the country who would give fifty cents for it. It's a mendacious imitation, and a wretched one at that!"

Saidee tied up the poor picture and went home again, shedding a few tears as she walked under the whispering trees.

"My last hope gone," she thought. "But I'll not tell Aunt Leah or Belle that it is an imposture. They have always taken such an innocent pride in the Velasquez."

As she came past the old brick house at the foot of Locust lane, a load of furniture was being carried in, for it was the second week in May. Wicker chairs twined with blue ribbon, a cottage piano, cases of books, engravings, bird-cages, plants—all sorts of pretty things.

Saidee paused and looked at them, not without interest.

"I wonder who our new neighbors are to be?" she thought.

Just then out trotted a stout, cherry-cheeked old lady, with her cap all on one side and a worsted shawl tied over her shoulders.

"Oh!" said she, "are you the young woman who disappointed us yesterday about cleaning?"

"No," said Saidee, crimsoning to her temples, [illegible]

"Oh, dear! oh, dear!" said the old lady, "what is to become of us? All the furniture coming in, and my daughter [illegible]

[illegible] ture carts at the door as I came back from the village this afternoon."

"Oh, the village!" cried Belle, tossing her blonde head. "It's strange, Saidee, how much time you get to run about and enjoy yourself, while I am drudging at home. But there's a young gentleman there—the handsomest man, Alice Aiken says that she ever saw—and Mr. Pyle knows him, and he is to be at the picnic to-morrow to get acquainted with young people of the neighborhood. Won't it be delightful?"

"Very," said Saidee, indifferently.

But while Belle was talking she had made up her mind what to do the day of the May picnic.

Early in the morning, while the flush of sunrise was still crimsoning the sky, and blonde Belle lay asleep with her yellow hair in crimping pins, Saidee arose, dressed herself quietly and slipped out of the back door like a little gray shadow.

At 8 o'clock Aunt Leah rapped with her cane on the ceiling of her room, which was directly beneath the one occupied by her nieces. Belle made her appearance presently in a faded calico wrapper, rubbing her eyes after a drowsy fashion.

"Where's breakfast?" said Aunt Leah.

"Where's Saidee?" counter questioned Belle. "Oh, I know, the selfish thing! She has got up early, and gone down into the woods to get some pink azelias for her hair before the other girls think of it. She wants to astonish us all at the picnic. But I think she might have told me."

"I'm afraid Saidee thinks more of herself than she does of us," said Aunt Leah, sourly.

And Belle, in a very ill-humor, began to prepare the breakfast—a task generally assumed by her elder sister.

While Saidee, hurrying down the path by the swamp, took the short-cut across the clover meadow, and was presently knocking at the door of the brick house where the load of furniture had stood the day before.

The old lady with the crooked cap and the cherry cheeks came to the door.

"Have you yet engaged anyone to help you get settled?" asked Saidee, blushing very prettily.

"We can't hear of a soul," said the old lady. "Everyone is engaged just now, and——"

"If you thought I could be of use," faintly began Saidee.

"Bless me, child!" said the old lady; "you are too slight and small. Besides," looking closer, "you are a lady."

"But I know how to clean houses, for all that," said Saidee valiantly. "I've done it every year at home. We are ladies, but we are not people of means. And I think you will be suited with my work. It is necessary that I should earn a little money, and—"

"Come in, my dear!" said the old lady—"come in, and have a cup of coffee with us. I am Mrs. Hartwick—and this is my daughter Kate."

"Sadie Linn!" exclaimed the soft voice of a pretty young girl, lying with a sprained ankle on the sofa.

To her amazement, our heroine recognized one of her old schoolmates, Katherine Hartwick, who had graduated in the same class with her at boarding-school two years ago.

"But you surely never come here to work?" said Kate in amazement.

"Yes, I have," said brave Saidee. "Why is it any less creditable to clean paint and wash windows than to play croquet or do Kensington stitches? And my Aunt Leah has lost all her little property and we are very, very poor! So now you know all about it. And when I have eaten my breakfast, if Mrs. Hartwick will give me a cleaning cloth and plenty of soft soap I'll show her what I can do."

So that Miss Lynn was mounted on a step-ladder, polishing off an antique mirror, when Kate's soft voice was heard saying:

"Oh, Harry, is that you? We supposed, of course, you were at the picnic. Miss Lynn, this is my brother Harry. Harry, let me present you to Saidee Lynn, my dear old schoolmate, who has come here to help us clean house."

Miss Lynn made as graceful a bow as she could under the circumstances. Mr. Harry Hartwick inclined his head.

"At the picnic, indeed!" he retorted, merrily. "Not at all. I've been hunting high and low for some one to help you, and for lack of any success I have returned to do a little white-washing myself."

"Oh, have you?" said Saidee. "I know such a nice recipe for kalsomine—as white as alabaster, and it won't rub off at all."

"Let's make it up," said Mr. Hartwick, promptly.

No picnic could ever have been more delightful than this day among dust, white-wash, scouring sand and brooms. Kate, on her sofa, hemmed curtains; Mr. Hartwick bustled to and fro; Saidee, with her curly hair tied up in a handkerchief, scoured paint, and Harry whitened ceilings; and at twilight had three rooms in perfect order.

"We have achieved wonders," said Kate, looking around at the neatly tacked carpets—the soft, garnet plush hangings—the pictures on the walls—the crystal brightness of the windows—while Mrs. Hartwick took Saidee mysteriously on one side.

"My dear," said she, "I do not know how to thank you sufficiently. But I am ashamed to offer you a dollar and a half, although"—

"But I shall not be ashamed to take it," said Saidee, smiling. "Why should I? That is, if you really think I have earned it."

"My dear, you have more than earned it," said the old lady, "and if you could possibly come to-morrow——"

"Of course I will come," said Saidee.

Weary as she was, Saidee went around by the village to buy some Young Hyson tea for the old lady before she returned to the Gothic cottage.

"Well," she cried, brightly, to her sister, "what sort of a day did you have at the picnic?"

"Awfully stupid," yawned Belle. "And the handsome young gentleman from Locust Lane didn't come at all."

"Didn't he?" said Saidee.

"And where have you been?" demanded Belle in an injured tone.

"Oh, spending the day with a neigh- [illegible]

[illegible] after her brother had gone out, "I believe our Harry is in love with Saidee Lynn."

"I'm sure I don't blame him," said Mrs. Hartwick. "She is a little jewel."

Aunt Leah never knew where the Young Hyson tea came from, nor the sponge-cake, nor the white grapes, nor all the little luxuries which had cheered her of late, nor did she suspect anything, until one day Harry Hartwick came to her and formally asked her for her niece's hand in marriage.

"Well, I never!" said Aunt Leah.

"But how did you ever become so well acquainted with him, Saidee?" questioned Belle, half pleased, half jealous.

"Because I cleaned house for his mother," said Saidee, laughing.

And then, under solemn seal of secrecy, she told Belle all; and Belle declared that it was too romantic for anything, never pausing to think that real life is as full of romance as a summer meadow with buttercups, and that fortune comes to those only who go bravely out to seek fortune.—Helen Forest Graves in Woman's Journal.

What Part of a Car is Safest?

Four men half hidden in the smoke of a smoking box of a sleeping-car on the Hudson River railroad spent an hour discussing which part of a car was safest to ride in. They finally agreed to leave it to the conductor.

"Middle of middle car, right hand side," said that personage when asked.

The rapidity with which he spoke and the mechanical way in which he made the reply led one of the men to halt him as he was passing on and ask him to explain himself.

"Why," said he, "everybody asks me that question, and I am so used to answering it that I've got it down to the fewest words possible. I shouldn't wonder if you were to ask me that when I am asleep if I wouldn't answer it without waking up. The middle car of a train is the safest because it is the furthest removed from a collision either in front or behind. Even if the engine plunged into an open draw-bridge it might not take more than a car or two with it. Couplings would be likely to break, yuo know. Always sit in the middle of a car, because when cars telescope they are apt not to telescope many feet. As you can't tell which end will telescope and as both ends may telescope, take to the middle. Whatever car you go in sit on the right hand side of the the car, which is to say, the side furthest from the other track, because it sometimes happens that freight projects too far beyond a flat car and rips the windows out of passing trains."

"Do railroad men observe all these precautions when they ride?"

"They take no precautions at all. Those that I have mentioned are sensible, but you can't always sit where you like, and there are plenty of people unlucky enough to be killed wherever they sit. Railroad men never consider the possibility of accidents. They could not be railroad men if they did."—New York Sun.

Mrs. Robert E. Lee to General Scott.

Macon Telegraph and Messenger.—The following letter from Mrs. Lee is now published for the first time. Mrs. Lee was well informed as to her great husband's views, and would not have sent General Scott such a letter had there been such a scene as Gen. Townsend describes in his recently published anecdotes:

ARLINGTON, VA. May 5, 1861. MY DEAR GENERAL.—Hearing that you desired to see an account of my husband's reception in Richmond, I have sent it to you. No honors can reconcile us to this fratricidal war, which we would have laid down our lives freely to avert. Nor can it ever terminate now till every heart in the whole south ceases to beat or they obtain the justice they demand. Whatever may happen, I feel that I may expect from your kindness all the protection you can in honor afford. More I would not ask nor expect. Nothing can ever make me forget your kind appreciation of Mr. Lee. If you knew all you would not speak so hardly of him. Were it not that I would not add one feather to his load of care, nothing would induce me to abandon my home. Oh! that you could command peace to our distracted country!

Yours in sadness and sorrow,
M. C. LEE.

To Lieutenant General Scott.

Teacher and Pupil.

"Attention is a lesson to be learned, and quite as much a matter of training as any other lesson." "A dull boy's mind is a wise man's problem." "The teacher makes the taught do the work, and occupies himself in showing them how to do it." "The beginning of teaching consists in rousing some intelligent appreciation of what is already known by rote, or daily seen by eyes that see not, and daily done without understanding and despised because not understood." "No one ever yet in all the worlds wrested a truth worth having from an unloving and unloved owner." "The transmission of life from the living, through the living to the living, is the highest definition of education." "The limits are narrow indeed within which the whip is master." "Genius is an infinite capacity for work growing out of an infinite power of love." "Half of the bad work of the world arises from want of hope, not from want of vigor." "The beginning of all true power lies in getting closer and closer by living observation to that which has to be known." "Glory to the strong, on the reverse side of the shield, is oppression to the weak."—Theory and Practice of teaching, the Rev. E. Thwing.

Love's Young Dream.

Oose sweet pwecious is oo?
I'se oore sweet pwecious.
O'ose hungry itsie bit?
I'se could nibble itsy bitsy.

[illegible]

FARM, FIELD AND FIRESIDE.

Household Miscellany.

There is a woman in Springfield, Massachusetts, who writes to the Union, of that city: "I don't take kindly to the practice of shutting all the doors and windows, and keeping the house in gloomy darkness to keep the flies out. I would rather have the sunlight with the flies if I can't have it without, and if they become too numerous I am willing to take a hand in 'shoo-ing' them out for the sake of keeping the windows open. A jury of that woman's country women would convict her of insanity without another particle of testimony.

Although but few years have passed since its introduction, Hydrangea paniculata grandiflora is well known to everyone who takes a lively interest in floriculture. It is among the finest hardy shrubs in cultivation, and is rightly considered, by many, the handsomest and most beautiful. Its merits are such that it takes pre-eminently the lead among ornamental shrubs wherever known. It is a native of Japan and is perfectly hardy in any part of the United States, needing no protection of any kind. For lawn or cemetery it is unrivalled.

At the London Health Exhibition Miss Ada Ballin delivered a lecture on children's clothes. She quoted statistics to show that in 1871 18,000 infants under the age of one year died for want of common sense and care in this important matter by their parents and nurses. The lady also pointed out that serious injury was done to the little pieces of humality by shaking them to stop their crying. She protested against rocking-cradles, for though the violent motion might have desired effect of making the "squaller" sleep, it was at the risk of making him an idiot for life; his little brain being but a jelly. It was terrible, she said, to think what number of embryo poets and great men of intellect had been entirely destroyed by this silly, ignorant custom of daddling the infantile brain.

Honor the dear old mother. Time has scattered the snowy flakes on her brow, plowed deep furrows on her cheeks, but is she not sweeter and more beautiful now? The lips are thin and sunken, but those are the lips which have kissed many a hot tear from the childish cheeks, and they are the sweetest lips in all the world. The eye is dim, yet it glows with the soft radiance of holy love which never fades. Ah, yes; she is a dear old mother. The sand of life are nearly run out; but feeble as she is, she will go further and reach down lower for you than any other upon earth. Love her tenderly, and cheer her declining years with holy devotion.

That New-England lady's experience with sweet peas should be a common one. There is surely no flower that yields such a continual profusion of loveliness and fragrance at so little cost, and for so long a time. Plant late in fall, or, if mice are feared, or the soil very heavy, quite early in March; place small brush as soon as tendrils show; and if water is plenty and near the final brushing should be at least eight feet high, for with cutting of the flowers freely to prevent excess of seed-forming, and with copious watering, the plants run even further. All the gardens of the nation may be challenged to show a flower in all respects so satisfactory for yielding nosegays at all hours of the day and on all days of the summer. As the lady says of her pansies: "The more blossoms you pick the faster they grow."

Lovely Villages and Towns.

Dean Stanley once characterized Stockbridge, Mass., as "Loveliest of Rural Villages," a distinction largely due to the Laurel Hill Association (pioneer of street improvement societies), which a correspondent of The Springfield Republican says has laid its permanent impress in the universal neatness and pleasing adornment of the well-set shade trees, perfect roads, trim sidewalks and shaven lawns. Even the humble houses, yards and gardens share the general tidiness and self-respecting care that belongs to what may be called an æsthetic conscience, no small factor in the best civilization. The organized effort of which the above condition is the attractive fruit was inspired a few years ago by woman's love of home and domestic beauty—forming a public sentiment sure to pour its increasing treasures into the time to come.

Ironing Starched Clothes.

As soon as starched clothes are ironed they should be thoroughly dried near the stove, as moisture left in them for any times makes them look wrinkled and rough dry. Collars and other small pieces may be put in a pan or on a tray and set on a kettle an the back of the stove where they will dry quickly. A puffed and tucked garment should be ironed as though it were plain. Then the puffs are folded along the middle and smoothed straight over the finger, or with the iron, and a dull knife is passed under the edge of each tuck, if it is desired to have them stand out. This part of the work can be deferred till all the ironing is done, and can be done sitting down as well as standing up. Ruffles may be finely crimped with a pen-knife, or coarsely crimped by laying them in largish folds along the edge and pinching them between the thumb and finger. Embroideries should be laid right side down on two or three layers of woolen flannel and ironed on the wrong side. This will make the embroidery stand out from the surface. Very narrow ruffles may be ironed out plain and then pulled straight over the finger and crimped. Laces are pulled gently into shape and patted till dry. They may be pressed in a book or laid between the folds of a sheet and pressed with an iron, but the iron should never come directly in contact with them. A pin is good to pick out the furled edge withal.—New York Tribune.

Baked and Broiled Oysters.

In answer to a correspondent, the New York Caterer publishes the following recipes, apropos of the oyster season.

Baked oysters: Grate some day-old Vienna bread into fine crumbs and season them with salt, white pepper and a little grated nutmeg. Drain the oysters and dry them between the folds of a cloth, being careful not to press them. Now dip them into beaten egg and roll them in the seasoned crumbs until well covered. Then place them in their lower shells with a piece of butter on the top of each oyster and bake for a few minutes in a hot oven. Arrange them, still in their shells, on a plate, and, before sending to table, squeeze over them a little of the juice of a lemon.

To broil oysters in their shells: After opening the oysters let them remain in the deep shell with their juice, placing a small piece of butter upon the top or each and seasoning them with a little salt and cayenne pepper. Have a good, clear fire; place the shells on a gridiron, squeeze a little lemon juice over the oysters, and broil until done. Two or three minutes will suffice to cook them.

Digging Wells.

The Massachusetts Ploughman some time since had the following direction in regard to digging wells: The old way of digging a well and stoning it up so as to leave it about three feet in diameter is a very good one if the water is to be drawn up with buckets; but if only with a pump, it is a very poor way; for if, as is the usual custom, the well be covered at the top, it leaves a very large space for dead air, which so often becomes so bad that it effects the quality of water, and also makes it unsafe to enter the well. When a well thus stoned has only a pump in it, the covering should be under water, or very near it; but if it is knwn that only a pump is to be used, the expense of stoning may be saved, and the water kept in a much better condition. This is done by digging the well in a dry time, and when dug as low as possible a cement pipe, some two feet in diameter and two or three feet long, is sunk at the bottom, and worked down as low as possible by digging out the inside. The pipe should be covered with a flat stone, through the middle of which a two-inch hole has been drilled; directly over this hole stand up drain pipe, then begin to fill in the hole. When filled as high as the top of the first piece of drain pipe, put on another, being careful to have it straight with the other and the line perpendicular; continue filling and adding drain pipe until it is as high as the surrounding ground; or if the pump is not to stand directly over the well, then when it is filled within four feet of the surface put in the pump pipe and lead it off in a trench to where the pump is to stand. When it is found that the pipe is all right, finish filling the well, leaving some durable mark that the position of the well may be known.

A well of this kind is reliable and permanent; requiring no repairs; the water is cool and free from impurities that open wells are subject to; no insects or animals can find their way into it, and the cost is not more than one-half that of a well that is stoned. If dug, as it should be, when the springs are low, a constant supply of water that is as pure as the underground springs are secured. As the well is always full, there is no chance for bad air to injure the water, and in fact but little danger of being polluted by sursounding cesspools, compared to that of open wells.

Crude Petroleum Paint.

We believe no one that has given crude petroleum, either alone or thickened with mineral paint, a fair trial on farm implements, fences, buildings, etc., would ever be likely to give it up again. Take an old wagon or cultivator frame that has been neglected as regards paint, and showing signs of giving out and treat it to all the petroleum the wood will absorb, going over the wheels severel times, oil up the nuts and tighten them, using wide washers underneath anywhere where the wood is not sound, and the affair may afterwards appear almost as strong as a new one. Fences and buildings kept properly painted would last many years longer than if not, besides adding to appearances greatly. By thickening the oil with good shades of material, a handsome paint may be made, and the cost be not more than a quarter of that of linseed oil and lead paint.—New Hampshire Farms.

Care of Young Turkeys.

From the Southern Poultry Guide.

Pen your turkeys about the time they commence laying, and you will have no trouble with them when they want to sit. Do not take the young turkeys off until twenty-four hours after hatching. Feed for a day or two on bread and clabber, with onions and lettuce cut fine; also red pepper occasionally. I then give grits made up with clabber or some milk in the morning; bread, Irish potatoes and onions at dinner, and dry grits at night. I always give them clabber or milk to drink.

Never let them out until 9 o'clock in the morning until some weeks old. Always drive and pen at night until six weeks old. After that turn them out, and they can take care of themselves.

Coops for young chickens should have plank floors. Move the coops every other day and clean well, as dampness is the cause of most diseases in young chickens and turkeys.

The Largest Potato Yield.

Rural New Yorker.—At the rate of thirteen hundred and ninety-one and a half (1,391½,) bushels to the acre! They were dug and weighed, and the yield estimated by Sec. E. Williams, of Montclair, New Jersey, and C. L. Jones, of Newark, New Jersey, Wednesday, August 27. Particulars will be given in due time. The second best yield, surpassing all other yields in previous seasons, was thirteen hundred and sixty-one and a quarter (1,361¼) bushels to the acre. They were dug August 18.

How do we produce them? Wide trenches; a mellow bottom; the seed pieces covered with two inches of soil; the fertilizer strewn evenly upon this; the trench filled with the soil as loosely as possible and heaped up A-shaped, so that it will settle to a level of the soil on either side after a rain or so; flat cultivation. Try it, friends; there is more in this than may appear, as we shall one day endeavor to explain.

Lime for Hens.

Now is the time to give lime in some shape to hens. They are rapidly exhausting the egg shell supply in their systems, and you must stop the drain. So, give oyster clam shells; the former are best because the are the softest. Crack them fine. By roasting them they will pulverize better. Give lime in water. Use a low pan with water and lime in it. The water will take up lime, and the hens, knowing a great deal more about themselves than perhaps others do, will take what they want. Bone meal is excellent. If you do not give the hens lime in some shape they will eat their eggs.

Things at Nassau.

Nassau, the chief city of the Bahamas, is, in one respect at least, in a peculiar position. Being under the British government, with a governor appointed by the queen, with a parliament and English institutions throughout, and with its money always legally reckoned in pounds, shillings and pence, its only regular and frequent steam communication is with New York. All her business, or nearly all, is done with New York. When her people want to make a journey they come to New York. Even if they are going to Europe they come to New York first. Thus the people, while always thoroughly loyal to the queen and her government, are becoming every year more and more American in their ideas and habits. American currency has made its way to Nassau and has mixed itself up with the pounds and shillings, till you never know when a price is reckoned by the shilling, whether an English shilling or a York shilling is meant. A greenback is just as good as a bank of England note, and there is no discount on either. The condition of things is almost as anomalous here as in some of the channel islands, which, while under the authority of the British government do all their business with Paris and use the French language. In the heart of the city, the appearance of things is decidedly foreign. Some of the buildings there look like Quebec houses, others like Spanish houses, and others have an English air. Over it all the white stone and the white streets and the tropical plants throw an air decidedly West Indian.—Letter in New York Times.

A Drunken Woman.

There is a pathetic interest about the story of Mrs. Wylie, a woman of wealth and high social standing, who was committed to a private lunatic asylum a year or two ago as an incorrigible drunkard, and whose friends now make the story public as a means of securing her release. Unfortunately, such stories are not rare. It seems mistaken kindness to open a record which charity would prefer to conceal forever. Twenty years ago there lived in handsome style in this city a wedded pair who had an income of $25,000 each, and in all respects were the envy of their friends. He was the son of a Quaker merchant on Pearl street, and she belonged to one of the oldest families in the city. A large family grew up about them, and as they grew up a habit of drinking fastened upon both father and mother. The would sit at the table daily and drink to intoxication. Finally the father died, but the mother kept right on in her evil ways, and at last turned the three oldest children out of the house. In the end the coachman, an ignorant but quick-witted fellow, got the upper hand of the household, turned the three younger children adrift and assumed control. Friends frightened him away, and, hesitatiang to resort to extreme measures, they talked and delayed until nearly all of the children's property was gone and their mother was a wreck. It would have been far better to have placed her in confinement twenty years ago than to have allowed her to exhibit herself as she sometimes does to old friends—red, coarse, disheveled and clad in torn rusty black—the sodden wreck of what was once one of the most graceful leaders of New York society, and one of the inspiring spirits in church circles.

How She Curled Her Hair.

From the Providence Journal.

She was a very pretty girl, tastefully dressed, and her brown hair curled and rolled about her low white forehead in a way that was entrancing, considering how hot the weather was, and how many fair locks that had been curled that morning were hanging in straight strings over the fair owner's eyes. It was warm in church, too, and fans were rattling in every seat. There were lots of flies about, but people seated in her immediate vicinity were pleased to notice that they all assembled and hovered around the pretty girl, and only the young man who sat beside her was troubled occasionally by the little pesterers that she impatiently brushed from her face when they became unbearably annoying. At the conclusion of the service the pretty girl and her escort walked out with the rest of the congregation, and the young man was heard to exclaim, "By George! did you ever see so many flies Nell?" And Nell replied in smothered and remorseful tones: "Did you notice them, Fred? I shall never try that again; I curled my hair with sugar and water this morning." And then the flies discovered their departing victim in the throng, and with an exciting buzz made for her. It doesn't do for even a pretty girl to be too fly.

The Boy-Soldier.

It was charged upon Napoleon, during his last campaign, that he had rifled the cradles of France to fill up his army. Yet these French infants fought at Waterloo, with the courage of veterans.

During our own Civil War, boys served in the ranks of both armies, and showed themselves heroes. The cool, unflinching courage of "the Drummer Boy of Chattanooga" has become historical, and the following anecdote, taken from "Blue and Gray," displays the grit of a Confederate lad of sixteen:

During the battle of Chancellorsville, a Confederate major met a lad returning from the front. His arm, held by shreds of flesh, was dangling from the elbow.

"Mister," said the boy to the officer, "can't you cut this thing off? It keeps knocking against the trees, and it's mightily in my way."

The major dismounted, cut off the useless limb, and tied a strip of his blouse around the stump to stop the bleeding. "What regiment do you belong to?" he asked his thankful patient.

"I belong to that North Carolina Regiment in there," answered the lad, pointing to where the battle was raging. "I'm just sixteen, and this is my first fight. Don't you think it is hard that I should get hit the first time I ever was in a battle? We drove them out of one line of breast-works, and I was on the top of the second, when I got hit. But oh, how we did make them git!"

WOULD-BE ACTRESSES.

Queer Ideas of Certain Young Women.

From the New York Sun.

"When a young woman gets the idea into her head that she is cut out for an actress you can never convince her that she is mistaken," said a theatrical manager recenty. "I have been in the business thirty-two years now, and have acted in the capacity of manager for five stars and a great many companies. In that time I have met scores of young women who were stage-struck. Eighteen out of every twenty have turned out to be flat and dismal failures, but every one of them had an excuse to offer for her non-success. As a rule, it is the poetic and sentimental side of an actress' life which catches young women. Then, too, the romantic fancies which are so much encouraged by indiscriminate novel reading, and the stories of such writers as Ouida tend to give them a false idea of the life they are actually obliged to lead. They say that a painter will sometimes look at the subject he is trying to put on canvas so long and so earnestly that the subject itself becomes imprinted on his mind, and when he looks at his painting he does not see what is actually daubed on the canvas, but sees the subject itself. That is the reason so many painters whine about the unappreciative public and the cruelty of the critics. The same thing is true of girls who are anxious to become actresses.

"You have heard girls relate 'Curfew Shall Not Ring To-Night?' Yes. Then you will understand what I mean. You have seen a girl rise among a party of friends in a back parlor, strike a dramatic attitude and begin a poem. As she proceeds toward the climax you have heard the piteous shriek and yelp, the mouthing, gulping and gasping, and the final sigh. It is to you and everybody else in the room but her a silly bit of ranting. Do you know what it is to the girl? To her it is soul! You can never convince her that she is not giving the most stupendous elocutionary effect, and throwing a wealth of pathos and feeling into the lines.

"The same is true of a girl after she gets on the stage. People snicker at the bad acting of a poor actress, and never realize for a moment not only that she is doing her best, but that it is to her a great performance. She feels that she is as perfect as she can be in the lines, and hence she does not understand the indifference of the audience. I don't know of a better illustration of the perseverance which a woman will show in pushing herself before the public than that of a young woman who came on here last season from San Francisco. She is well known out there as a society woman, and is quite popular among the amateur actors. It is said that her people are well to do, and she has certainly spent a great deal of money of late. She decided to become a professional actress, and, with the usual modesty of such aspirants, made arrangements to begin her career at the top of the ladder. With all respect to her, and I esteem her very highly as a lady, it must be said that she possessed fewer advantages in a personal way for the career of an emotional actress than any woman I ever saw. She was very thin and round-shouldered and extremely awkward. Her face was not only of a common-place tpye, but it was of such a character that it was utterly impossible to make it up so that it would look attractive from the front. When I tell you that she was also unable to dress becomingly, you will perhaps suspect that she lacked some of the elements that go to make a successful and popular actress. She had a series of costumes made for the role in which she was to make her debut here. Each one was more grotesque than the last. As I have said, she was fragile and light. The dress-maker constructed a serious of costumes which would have been too big, too gaudy and too heavy for a woman fifty pounds heavier than she was. The actress came on here, hired a theater and made a debut. She had a good company to support her, and it is said that her experiment cost her family $5,000. She made an instantaneous and distinct failure. She played Julia, Pauline and one or two other standard romantic characters. She proved conclusively that she couldn't act at all."

"Did she give up the stage and go back to San Francisco?"

"Not a bit of it. She insisted that every one of her audiences for a week in New York, that every circle in the city, and that every candid man whose advice she asked was leagued against her. She stuck to the stage. She is at it yet. About a week ago I saw a dispatch in one of the dramatic papers which told of the hard treatment she had been subjected to in one of the small towns in the interior of the state, where she was traveling about with a small company of her own. The audiences were very rude. The fact is, they almost mobbed her. All this is discouraging, but it will have no effect on the young woman. She will probably keep on acting forever.

"There are hundreds of women whose careers on the stage are very similar to this, except that they do not have the money to provide a company of their own. They appear as stars for one consecutive night, and are then forced to take any sort of a place that offers in a traveling company. Half the girls who are now playing servants' parts in small theaters or dancing about in variety shows began their careers as Juliet or Julia."

The Dominion of Canada.

Pittsburg Dispatch: As it is generally known, the Dominion of Canada comprises the seven Provinces of Quebec, Ontario, British Columbia, Nova Scotia, Manitoba, New Brunswick and Prince Edwards Islands, all having a population of 4,500,000. The mistaken idea prevails in the United States that the executive authority is vested in the governor general. This is not so; that functionary simply exercising the authority of the Queen, who is herself the direct ruler. The salary of the governor general is $50,000 per year. He has thirteen advisers, comprising a cabinet, and known as the Queen's Privy Council of Canada. These men receive salaries of $7,000 per year, and $1,000 extra for each parliamentary session, excepting the Premier, who receives $8,000 and the additional $1,000 per session. The total of these salaries is $155,000, which, compared with the $106,000 paid the president and his cabinet, has the flavor of extravagance. The departments are of justice, of finance, of agriculture, of state, of war, of customs, of inland revenue, of the interior, of marine and fisheries, and of the post office.

LOVELY HANDS.

We sat beneath the budding trees—
I held her dainty hand;
We felt the gentle evening breeze
Sweep o'er the sleeping land.
I saw the slender finger tips,
The blushes on her cheek,
The blooming roses on her lips,
And thought I need not seek
Among the fairest of the fair
In all the goodly land
To find a wealth of charms so rare
Or such a lovely hand.
I held another hand at "draw"
That was a better thing,
And bet the limits when I saw
Four aces and a king.
—Mose M. Biqua.

FOUND A PLACE.

Marian sat thinking intently. With one finger pressed tightly against her lips and her eyes cast upon a small, very small parcel in her lap, she might have sat for a picture of Meditation. But an anxious wrinkle corrugated the fair brow, showing her cogitations to be of a different order from those usually indulged in by maidens of her tender age. For indeed Marian had been trying with all the wisdom of her twenty summers —or winters—to solve the problem of ways and means, and it was no package of love letters on which she gazed with such dissatisfaction at its meager proportions, but a whole year's savings.

"By close economy it will pay Elsie's expenses for the summer and leave me ten dollars. But no matter; it's blessed money that will be spent to cure my darling."

As if to make the commendation more decided, she vigorously rolled and slapped the bills into the smallest compass possible. Then she carefully closed the shutters—a most unnecessary precaution, for the room was in a wing on the third floor with vacant lots on both sides. After that the little hoard was put into a knit purse, the purse insinuated into the foot of a stocking, the stocking wrapped in an old dress skirt, and the whole deposited on a shelf in the closet and everything done to give it an appearance of unstudied carelessness calculated to deceive an ordinary burglar. This sacred and mysterious rite fully over, she opened the shutters and let in the floods of yellow sunset light to glorify her cosy room.

Poor Marian had no trust in banks, and little wonder. Into the "Store House Deposit," with its plate glass windows, its marble floors, its urbane clerks and golden promises, her father had placed with some confidence the honest savings of an energetic lifetime, and died calmly thinking his orphan daughter above want. If the blessed dead can be cognizant of our happenings what were his feelings when the oily president of the store house emptied the said store house of its contents and left for Europe? Marian was only one of half a thousand sufferers, but it made her neither crazy nor melancholy, as it did many other unfortunates, to be thus rudely jostled out of the lay of fortune. Gathering together all the little mementoes of a prosperous and gaurded childhood, she secured a room for herself and Elsie with Mrs. Allen, an old friend of her father's, who kept a few boarders "only for company, my dear." A class of beginners in music soon kept her busy, and no head of a family was ever prouder of his ability to support than was Marian of the talent which earned a home for herself and the little sister whom her mother had confided to her care when Marian herself was only a child. Bravely she worked on, and was dismayed for the first time a month before when the doctor gave as his opinion that the spinal disease developing itself in the child needed for its cure a residence in a neighboring city in a hospital especially devoted to such complaints.

After opening the shutters Marian walked on tiptoe to the alcove, parted the curtains which hid the bed, carefully covered the feet of the sleeper who lay there, and pressed a light kiss on the long curl which rested on the pillow.

"She must go," she said, passionately. "Only we two in all the world. If I should lose her—but I won't think of such a thing. She'll get well of course. You ought to be ashamed of yourself, Marian Martin, to doubt it or feel blue. Imagine what it would be if you were't able to send her at all. You must find some work to do, and may it be of the hardest kind, for you will be a lonely maid, Marian, without your baby. Come now, you're getting doleful again. This will never do."

Having been accustomed all her life to treat herself as a party much prone to self-indulgence and needed rigid discipline, she straightway shook herself into comparative cheerfulness, and, in order to waste no time began to search the columns of the newspaper for the one headed "Female Help Wanted." It might give her some hint as to employment until her pupils returned from their vacations. She found the list and read with running comments between—

"Wanted—A middle aged lady to act as housekeeper for a widower."

"I might wear spectacles and a cap," she said disapprovingly, to her image in the mirror opposite, where the dimples in cheek and chin seemed to mock at such a ridiculous idea. "Here's another."

"Wanted—A young lady stenographer. Must understand the use of caligraph or type-writer."

She shook her head at this and set the loose, fluffy curls a dancing.

"I must be dreadfully behind the age, for I haven't the slightest acquaintance with either of these instruments. And foolish old Madame Beaudry called me 'finished.'"

"Wanted—A young, energetic business woman with $500 to invest in a profitable enterprise."

"No, thank you. If I had $500 does any one suppose I'd be away form Elsie a moment?"

At the next ad. her eyes blazed, a scornful smile curved her lips, and she almost wished herself the plainest of her sex as she read.

"Wanted—A young lady of attractive personal appearance to do copying in a gentleman's office." She threw the paper into the [illegible] placing the [illegible] it seemed as if she would have liked to consign the advertiser to the same [illegible] Mrs. Allen about it [illegible]

she knows so many people. Thank heaven, I have no prestige to lose, and nobody would know in what way I occupied myself in summer. Ah, Elsie, dear, awake already?" turning with loving smiles to the little eight-year-old copy in miniature of herself who came with painful slowness into her arms. "Here's your old slow coach of a sister doing nothing, when she ought to be preparing your supper. But never mind dear," taking the child's face between her rosy palms, "I have news for you better than a tray full of the nicest things in the world. Now, wish for something splendid, the thing you want most."

"The thing I want most, Maidee," said the little one with a pathetic smile into the face that had never worn for her but its brightest guise, "is to get well."

"Oh you little witch, to ask for the very thing you're going to have," said Marian, hugging her and speaking rapidly to hide the trembling in her voice. "You'll go among the kindest and best people you ever saw; there will be many other sweet and lovely children getting well, too, and write such long letters. To-morrow I won't have any lesson to give and we'll ride out to buy a darling little trunk and everything nice to put into it. There, now, sit in this chair and think it over while I get supper for my birdie."

"Maidee," said the child, as her sister was about to leave the room, "that Mr. Wallace was so kind to me to-day. He gave me a ride around the porch on Minnie Allen's cart, and put some peaches in my hat when I left it in the hall. I saved one for you, there on the mantle."

"That was kind. Thank you, pet." As she went down so the dining room she laughed softly to herself; "They're all bound to make me like this Mr. Wallace. First Mrs. Allen sings his praise, now Elsie has gone over to the enemy with such rapidity it quite takes my breath away. He seemed to me very unapproachable, but I have seen him so seldom, and that may account."

James Wallace was Mrs. Allen's recently discovered relative. She had a personal mania for tracing kinship; the ties of blood, be they never so weak, were very sacred to her, and nothing pleased her more than to stumble upon some fifth or sixth cousin hitherto unaware of her existence and take him into the benevolent circle of her friendship. Some chance business dealings led Mr. Wallace in her direction and somehow it came about that he left his lodgings and took up his abode under the hospitable roof that sheltered Marian. There was no question of Mrs. Allen's delight at this arrangement. "It is so good to have a man in the house again, my dear," she confided to Marian. "And poor, dear David would have approved, I'm sure. The "boys are well enough"—she boarded gratis her three nephews who attended at an academy near by—but they are only boys, after all, not men, and of no earthly use in emergency. But just to look at James around the house ought to give us poor defenceless women a feeling of security. Marian resented this remark somewhat, being an independent lassie and never having found as yet the presence of the other sex necessary to her comfort or happiness. But when she reached the dining-room and found him there she felt in duty bound to scrutinize him more thoughtfully, for Elsie's sake. He was helping Mrs. Allen to decide between the merits of two designs for a new monument to mark the last resting place of her family. He nodded to her over the paper and Mrs. Allen bustled around to assist Marian in "making a picture" of the tray. "He has kind eyes," she thought. Yes, Mrs. Allen, the strawberry jelly, I think. It sets off the floating island better than the goosberry—and his mouth is a little, a very little hard looking —only a tiny piece of chicken, thank you —a most uncompromising chin—Well, if you will insist, just one of those star cookies—younger than I supposed, too. I believed him quite ancient.

Good Mrs. Allen just then went out of the room for some other little delicacy for the patient, and Mirian, looking at her tempting load, let herself wonder for a minute who would have that task where Elsie was going. Then it dawned on her what she was about to do, and to her own dismay, as well as to that of the other occupant of the room, a little sob, try as she would to suppress it, welled up in her throat, and her hands shook so it was almost a miracle the tiny red waited did not fall upon the floor. Mr. Wallace had heard something about the sisters, and partly divined the cause of her agitation. "Miss Martin," he began—and there was no impertinent curiosity in his tone —"can I do anything for you? Is the little sister worse?"

"No," said Marian, responding to the genuine honesty expressed in voice and words, though mortified at having lost control before a stranger; "but it is hard to send her away, and we have been together all our lives."

She said nothing for an instant while she stood there bravely fighting evidence of her emotion, though the bowed head and quivering chin were affecting enough; then broke in abruptly, in a business-like tone: "How soon could you have the little girl ready?"

"Saturday, I think," answered Marian. "And this is Monday," he said as if in deep reflection. While Marian wondered, he consulted a note-book. It contained not the slightest reference to what he was about to say next, he never having thought of it himself till that moment. "Yes, I have business along that road, and it would be no trouble to see your little sister to her destination." "O," was all Marian said; but with such a glow on her bonny face he immediately surprised himself into another fib.

"By the way, you needn't purchase a ticket, I have a pass over the line, and she may use it with me as well as not."

Marian was proud still, but there was no resisting the friendly offer, made in such a way, and a grateful "You are too kind," was all she attempted, when Mrs. Allen came in and she sped up stairs to feed her darling [illegible]

If she was so surprised at this offer from one she barely knew, how much more was James Wallace astonished to find himself performing such a youthfully impulsive action. A self-made, self-contained man, his early orphaned years had been made dreary enough by the grudging kindness of charity, and his youth rendered desolate by the [illegible] could not [illegible] Now when fortune [illegible] had come to think [illegible]

[illegible] itively unfeeling nor cynical, he sometimes acted on that belief. But here was a young girl who had bewitched him into taking a trip the very busiest season of the year. She was different from the rollicking, coquettish girl who had clouded his early life, different from the coarse, hearty, good-natured young woman who worked in his factory. These had represented all womanhood to him, for he had no remembrance of his mother. Mrs. Allen showed another type, and here was a sweet unaffected maiden. No, he wasn't a bit sorry for what he had done; not even when it took him from the factory a whole week, nor when it absorbed his quiet evenings in confabs about air pillows, checks, berths, and other topics of interest to Marian and his cousin; for wasn't his opinion asked in the most flattering manner, and didn't he feel himself growing younger every day?

At last the hour of parting came, and Marian's pain was eased a little when her last glimpse of the beloved little form showed Elsie with her lap full of presents, throwing kisses with all her might, while a strong arm encircled her, and Mr. Wallace's smile was so assuring that Marian wondered she had ever thought his mouth anything but handsome.

It is a week since Elsie was borne from her, and Marian sits in her room lonely but for the hope which lies so near her heart, and ever with thoughts of her absent one come others of the new friend who took her two hands in his to-day and related, with the minuteness of a woman, every circumstance connected with the child's arrival in her new home, and the golden promises of perfect cure he had from the resident surgeon. Now she goes to the window, being careful to see the new moon over her right shoulder, and then laughing at herself for the superstition. As she leans out sniffing delightedly the odor of freshly cut grass a puff of smoke brings the tears to her eyes. It is smoke surely, and coming from the window of the room under hers, and when she looks again to make sure a little tongue of flame meets her startled gaze. Quick as a flash she is down the stairs, had knocked at each door and given the alarm. She quite agrees with Mrs. Allen that men are "good in an emergency" when Mr. Wallace's firm, even tones answered her call, and even more than agrees when his self-possession contrasts with the feeble pipes of alarm from Miss Stinson and the inertness of several of the other women who have to be taken out by main force Mrs. Allen herself being paralyzed by fright. The greater part of the building is saved, though it is almost morning when the fire is declared "out." After exhausting themselves in praise of Marian the others go in for coffee and call her urgently. Still Marian lingers out on the lawn surveying the charred remains of the wing where her room had been. Only had been for it has suffered most and none of Marian's treasures were left. She looked ruefully at the gilt fringe which, hanging so dismally from a nail, was a painful reminder of the desolation within. She was joined by Mr. Wallace, and had to say something at once to keep from laughing at the ridiculous spectacle he presented, draped as he was in a blue flannel dressing gown, his feet encased in huge arches, all topped by a fur cap. "I ought to feel discouraged," she said, "but somehow I don't realize my loss yet."

"You need never realize it."

She bent upon him an inquiring glance and he answered at once. "Pardon my bluntness, but Mrs. Allen told me you wanted a place; that's just the way she put it, and I have found one for you if you will accept it." Marian, wondering a little at his choice of a subject just then, replied: "Can I fill it?" "Fill it? It is not worthy of you, but no one else in all the world can. Marian, dear, the place is my heart and home. Will you take it?" and Marian thought the face on which the light of dawn broke had not one objectional feature.

They had a Christmas wedding at Mrs. Allen's; Elsie was bridesmaid, and Marian's trosseau was the gift of Mrs. Allen and her boarders, who persisted in saying, spite of Marian's contradiction, that they owed their lives to her.

B FASHIONS IN WEDDINGS.

The Proper Time to Get Married.

Various influences are at work to change the fashionable time for getting married from the spring to the autumn. New-Yorkers have been accustomed to mate just after Easter, and, in the circles of our acutest culture and biggest wealth, there are more weddings in a few weeks of the early spring-time than during the rest of the year. These matches were sometimes a result of the winter season of dancing and other festivities akin to flirtation in town, but not usually. As a rule they were the climaxes of engagements made in the preceding summer. There is no time like the torrid one, and no place equal to the hot resorts, so favorable to the generation of love. Girls are never so bewitching as when dressed in the soft white flummery of July or August. A merely pretty mortal in a dark tight costume becomes a beauteous angel when clothed in the sweetness and light of nainsook. Every sensitive and alert girl knows that she can impress a man more easily and effectually in summer than in winter. The surroundings of rurality have a little to do with it, no doubt, but the main reason is that she is more alluringly dressed. Well, the consequence is that about 75 per cent. of the girls who spend the summer at Newport, Long Branch, or Saratoga, come back betrothed—informally it is, not in a positive and binding manner. The wedding days are accordingly set for the ensuing spring. Such has been the usage for many years. But we are a rapid people. We get up to a higher rate of social speed every year. Half a year or three quarters is too long to wait for matrimony after it had been contracted for. Broken engagements are too often the result. Heirs and heiresses too frequently wriggle off after being fairly caught. Impatience is characteristic of youth. Therefore it is likely that within a few years the betrothals of the summer will be [illegible] marriage in the autumn [illegible]

MARK.

Happy Rhoda Townsend was so interested in her school, her music-lessons, and her play, that for a long while she did not notice what a cloud was gathering over her home.

But one morning she overheard her father and mother talking in low voices in their room, which was next to hers.

"I don't see any way out of it," said her father. "If he insists upon it, we are ruined."

"Will it take everything?" her mother asked.

"Everything!" said her father. "We shan't have a roof to our heads. God knows what will become of us all!"

"I wouldn't mind for myself," said Mrs. Townsend, weeping; "but the children! Oh, I am sure Mr. Ringdon cannot be so cruel!"

"You don't know Ringdon!" her husband replied, bitterly. "I took the contract to build the block six months ago, and should have made a moderate profit. But the price of labor and the cost of everything have gone up at least twenty per cent. He isn't to blame for that, he says; and though others can't keep their agreement with me, he sees no reason why I shouldn't keep mine with him. He doesn't mean to be cruel; but business is business.

Poor little Rhoda listened with grief and terror. Then she remembered how careworn her father had looked of late, and how often she had seen her mother sad and tearful.

She waited till he was gone, then ran and threw herself on her mother's neck.

"I didn't mean to," she said, "but I couldn't help hearing something! O mother, is it true. Must we lose the house and everything? Shall we be very poor?"

"My daughter!" said Mrs. Townsend, folding the dear child in her arms. "I am afraid so."

"Why didn't you tell me, mother?"

"Because you were happy, and I wanted you to remain so as long as you could. And I hoped till now that Mr. Ringdon would not insist upon your father's fulfillment the contract. He can well afford not to insist upon it. He is very rich. The loss would not be much to him, but it will ruin us."

"Does he know it?" cried Rhoda, eagerly. "Oh, I am sure he doesn't! Why, mother, it is Mark Ringdon's father; and Mark is just the nicest, kindest, best-hearted boy you ever saw!"

"But his father is a hard man, for all that," sighed Mrs. Townsend. "I fear there is no hope of him. And, now that you know all, my child, I want to say to you that we must be prepared for the worst. You are the oldest of the children. Your father will have to begin life again, and we must do all we can to help him. We must give up many things, perhaps have to work very hard. I am sure you will do all you can to help take care of your dear little brothers and sisters."

The mother and daughter wept in each other's arms; but with her high opinion of Mark, Rhoda did not believe that Mr. Ringdon could deal so harshly with her father.

"I'm sure he doesn't know!" she repeated to herself. And she formed a bold resolution. She would speak to Mark about the affair.

They went to the same school, and it was easy enough for her to find an opportunity to speak to him. But it was not so easy to think just what she should say.

Mark, who was a bright, quick-sighted boy, noticed that she had kept her eyes on him with a troubled look. As she walked slowly away from the school-house that afternoon, he followed and over-took her.

"What's the matter, Rhoda?" he said. "You act as if you had something against me."

"Oh no; I've nothing against you."

"But there's some trouble!" he insisted. "Have I anything to do with it?"

"No, but you may have. O Mark!" said Rhoda, beginning to cry. "It is so hard! and I am sure you don't know anything about it; for it wouldn't be so, if you did."

"What is it said Mark, growing anxious.

"Your father and mine—something about their business." And Rhoda told him her story as well as she could.

Mark was surprised and distressed. "No, I didn't know!" he exclaimed. "And I don't believe my father understands about it. He is the kindest man! there's nothing he won't do for me; and that makes me sure he will do what is right when I tell him."

"Oh, if you will tell him!" cried Rhoda, with tears of hope. That evening Mark walked into his father's library, after tea, and stood there patiently waiting for him to lay down the newspaper he was reading.

Mr. Ringdon was, as the boy had said, a fond and indulgent father; and, feeling that his son had something to say to him, he presently put aside his paper, and glanced up smilingly over his glasses.

"What is it, Mark?" he asked.

The boy looked red and embarrassed. But there was a respectful earnestness in his fine face, as he replied,—

"I heard something to-day, father, which I want to ask you about."

"Ask," said Mr. Ringdon, "and I will answer as well as I can."

"It is something about your business with Mr. Townsend," said the boy.

Mr. Ringdon's face changed slightly. "What have you heard?" he asked in a colder tone of voice.

"It is said that if Mr. Townsend carries out his contract with you, he will be ruined. Do you suppose it can be true?"

"I don't know," replied his father. "I hope not. Who said he would be?"

"Rhoda, his daughter. She and her mother are feeling very anxious about it. They think they will be very poor," said Mark [illegible] is, Townsend has a very bad contract. He will meet with a heavy loss. But I don't see how I can help it."

[illegible]

"Can't you release him from it?" Mark tremblingly suggested.

"That wouldn't be business," said his father. "Then the loss would fall on me."

"Excuse me, father—but are not you better able to bear it than he is?"

"Perhaps. A good many of my friends have met with losses which no doubt I might bear better then they; but it doesn't follow that I should say to Smith, Jones, or Brown, 'Here's my check to make up that loss to you—I've more money than you!' Would that be business-like? There are a great many men," said Mr. Ringdon, and now he smiled again, "who would like to do business with me in just that way."

"But isn't this different?" said Mark. "You've had nothing to do with their speculations; you're gained nothing by them."

"And you're mistaken," replied his father, "if you think I drove a hard bargain with Townsend. I agreed to give him for building the block all I believed it would be worth to me. He took all risks. If the times had been favorable, he would have made something. As it is, he loses. That's all there is about it."

Mark was staggered for a moment. Then he exclaimed earnestly, —

"Oh no, father; that isn't all. If there had been any ordinary gain or loss, what you say might be just. But he is building a block of houses for you; and I am sure you won't insist on his doing it for what he agreed, if it will ruin him—make his family poor! I could never bear the thought of that!"

Mr. Ringdon answered, after a pause, in a quiet but firm voice,—

"You've a kind heart, my son—I'm glad of that—but you don't know anything about business. And it isn't for you to tell me what I ought to do. You may be sure that I shall do only what seems to me to be right."

He adjusted his glasses and took up his paper. Mark was not satisfied, but there seemed to be nothing more for him to say.

He hoped that his father would release Mr. Townsend from the ruinous contract. And when the final crash came, and it was known that the Townsends had actually lost everything, Mark felt even worse about it, I am bound to say, than Rhoda did.

The Townsend family were obliged to move into a smaller house, where living was less expensive; and Mark lost sight of them. But the great wrong they had suffered rankled in his heart. Often when his parents made him a costly present, he would say to himself,—

"I wonder if this was bought with some of the money wrung out of poor Townsend!"

Mr. Townsend began business again, and worked hard to support and educate his family. But circumstances seemed always to be against him. He couldn't get ahead. He continued the struggle manfully for a few years, then lost health and hope, and died a poor man.

He had had his life insured for a moderate sum; and that was all that was left to his family. A widow with six children, and only the interest on three thousand dollars to provide for their wants! That was Mrs. Townsend's situation.

But since the change in their fortunes Rhoda had proved herself a "glorious girl," as everybody said who knew them. She had given up the luxuries of life, and the pleasures of society, to devote herself to the family. Housework, needlework, teaching her sisters the piano,—bonnet-trimming or dress-making—whatever the task she brought to it a willing heart and skillful hands.

"I don't know what I should have done," Mrs. Townsend used to say, "if it hadn't been for Rhoda; her tact for keeping us all looking respectable on nothing, is just wonderful! And she makes us all happy by her good spirits."

But now, after her father's death, something besides even Rhoda's helpful hands were needed to keep the family along. The interest on his life insurance money was only about two hundred dollars a year. That would not pay house-rent where they were.

One evening Mrs. Townsend and Rhoda sat talking over their prospects.

"I thought we were poor before," said the widow, with a thoroughly discouraged air. "But our poverty was nothing to this. What shall we do!"

Rhoda was now in her twentieth year, and a wise little head she had for a girl of her age. She had thought the matter over.

"I can answer for myself first," she said. "I shall take in dress-making. I will order a little sign painted to-morrow. I can certainly bring some money into the family that way."

"But it will be a long time before you can earn much!" said the disheartened widow.

"In the meantime," Rhoda went on, "others must help. Maria is good at figures; she must find a place in a store. Lucy must give up her music for the present, and assist you. Thomas will have to leave school—that's the hardest thing to decide upon—for he ought to go to college; we always meant that he should. But he must be earning some money, if we are to keep the family together. James and Julia must continue in school, at any rate; they are not old enough for anything else."

"But, can we get along, if we do all this?" poor Mrs. Townsend inquired.

"Yes, but there is still another thing. We must pinch—pinch—pinch," said Rhoda.

"Oh! haven't we pinched all we could, for years?"

"Oh, dear, no, mother! We can pinch a great deal more."

And Rhoda gave a little laugh.

"Why do you think we can?" asked her mother.

"For the best reason in the world—because we shall have to! No family lives on so little that it might not live on less."

Again Rhoda laughed lightly. But all the while her brave heart was full of regrets and forebodings.

Terribly gloomy days followed. No dress-making came into the house, though Rhoda managed to get a little by going out to do it. After a long and discouraging search, a place in a small fancy store was found for Maria, where she had to stand on her feet all day, and bear a great deal of abuse from her employer, for a mere pittance. Thomas could not find as much as that. The family was in debt. Their rent was unpaid. They had been warned to leave the house. Mrs. Townsend was [illegible] worn out, and even Rhoda was losing spirit, with her youth and bloom.

One evening the girl was going home from her day's work a young man stepped to her side.

"Rhoda Townsend!" he exclaimed. "You don't know me?"

But she did know him, she was greatly surprised and agitated to see him; for it was years since they had met.

"Mr. Ringdon!" she said, tremblingly.

"Not Mr. Ringdon," he replied, "but Mark—call me Mark, if you please. How long it is since I have seen you!"

"It is hardly my fault," Rhoda coldly replied; for she thought he had purposely avoided her family since they became poor.

"Perhaps it is mine," he said; "though, indeed, Rhoda, I have thought of you a great deal, and inquired for you, lately. Are you walking home now? May I go along with you?"

"I you wish to see how poorly we are obliged to live," she answered, in the same cold tone of voice.

They walked on together, but with few words. They came to Mrs. Townsend's door. Rhoda stopped, as if to bid him good-by.

"May I go in and see your mother?" he asked, as if he had been humbly begging a favor.

"Oh yes, I suppose so," said Rhoda; and, after hesitating a moment, she showed him in.

Perhaps, on reflection, she was quite willing that he should see the poverty to which they had been reduced.

Mrs. Townsend received him kindly, and he sat down in a little sitting-room where the long struggle between neatness and want had left its sad trace.

"I should not have known you," she remarked. "Indeed, I never saw you many times. You came to Rhoda's birthday party once, I remember."

Tears rushed into the mother's eyes, as she thought of the changes in her family since that happy time.

Mark's heart was full. It was some time before he could command himself to speak.

"Rhoda thinks I haven't wished to keep up the acquaintance," he said at length.

"There was no reason why you should wish to," Rhoda said demurely. "I wasn't blaming you."

Then suddenly Mark's words came in burst of emotion.

"There has never been a day since I last saw you, Rhoda," he said, "when I haven't had you and your folks in my mind. I promised once, you remember, to do something for you. But I wasn't able to. That is the true reason why I haven't tried to see you since."

It evidently gave him so much pain to say what he did, that Rhoda interrupted him.

"You needn't explain! I always had faith in you. Please don't allude to what's past, any more!"

"But I must!" Mark exclaimed. "There was a business transaction between your father and mine, which I could never feel right about. Mr. Townsend was a looser by his bargain. My father was in the end a gainer, though he didn't think so at first; he didn't mean to be unjust. He is dead now; and I want you to think better of him than you did at one time."

"Dead!" said Mrs. Townsend. "I hadn't heard of it."

"He has been dead six months," said Mark, in a low tender voice. "He left everything to my mother and me—a large property."

He hesitated, then turned his eyes earnestly on Mrs. Townsend. She was studying him with strange, sad, tearful looks.

"My mother thinks as I do of that contract," he went on. "There is some twenty-three thousand dollars, including interest, now due—justly due—from our estate to yours, and we have made all arrangements to have it paid."

"To have it paid—twenty-three thousand? I don't understand you!" said Mrs. Townsend, in great agitation,

"I understand!" said Rhoda, wild with joy. "It is Mark! the same Mark I used to know, and have such faith in!"

The poor widow still looked bewildered.

"Do you really mean"—she began.

"I mean every word I said," replied Mark, radiant with happiness. "Our lawyer will pay over to you to-morrow twenty-three thousand and some odd dollars—the sum which we owe you."

"And Maria can leave that horrid store! And Thomas can still go to college!" exclaimed Rhoda, throwing herself on her mother's neck, and kissing her wildly, while Mark shed tears of joy and sympathy. "And you, dear, mother! you shan't work so, as you do, any more!"

"You don't think of yourself, Rhoda!" said her mother.

Indeed, that was always Rhoda's way.

Fortunate with Corn Fodder.

I consider this one of the most profitable crops we raise, even if we get nothing but the fodder, for it yields abundantly and cannot be excelled for feeding cows. It can be planted quite late, after the early crops have matured and will yield a full crop. I have three plots now in silk (September 1) which were planted July 2 and 4, two of them on land where I raised seed peas, and the other where I ploughed under an old strawberry bed. I would advise every one who keeps one or more cows to always provide this food for the fall, and if they can spare the land to make two or more plantings.

The pastures are usually both short and deficient in nutriment late in the season, and a good feed of fresh sweet fodder will tell very satisfactorily in the milkpail. To get the best results the corn must not be planted too thick, as fodder sowed or drilled so thick as not to set ears makes feed of a very poor quality. From some experiments I have made and what I have seen on other farms I conclude that thick planting of field corn, when it is to be fed to cattle, will give the best results. In seasons when the rainfall is ample at earning time thick planting not only gives a large yield of excellent fodder but also more corn.—Waldo F. Brown.

Russia possesses 19,674,723 horses, and yet is so alarmed at the export, which has risen from 6,000 in 1878 to 35,000 in 1882, that a tax is talked of.

Miss Banks, the daughter of General Banks, who is soon to appear on the stage, is, according to the Boston Post, not a blonde, quite good-looking and over twenty. [illegible]

Helpmeets or Companions?

From the Philadelphia Times.

The daily papers are constantly sprinkled and stained with records of quarrels between husbands and wives. Divorces are as frequent as they are destructive of every finer domestic feeling and debasing to every higher quality of human character. And the cases of domestic tragedy that get into the papers are as units compared with the unwritten thousands of cases that ache themselves out to some sanity and charity or into silent graves. Plainly the remedy for all this is neither multiplied divorces, which simply multiply the wrongs, nor in bachelorhood and prostitution, nor in polygamy. Perhaps the reform, if any is possible, must come from a different view of the marriage relationship, from a renewed and higher conception of domestic duties, or a sort of swinging back to the old Biblical conception of things.

No man in his senses will war against modern education. No man who has tasted the advantages of knowledge will throw anything, even a hint in the way of others who are seeking the same possession. But that modern education in its purely narrow secularism, with its eye on individual rights rather than on individual duties to a higher law in the first instance, has invaded the sanctity of marriage and made a by-word of marriage vows few people will deny who have watched the business in communities where the secular ideas have had most perfect sway.

The old notion of a wife was that she was a helpmeet. The modern termagant idea is that she must be a companion or nothing. There is more difference in these two conceptions than at first sight appears. The secular person says certainly there is. Your Bible idea was that woman should be a drudge to her lordly husband. So the secular person gets in his abuse of the Bible and at the same time adds to his own poor blindness. Plainly, the Scriptural idea of a wife, as a helpmeet, was that in all conceivable ways and especially in the temper and tone of her life she should be a joy and an inspiration to her husband, who, as shepard or warrior or mechanic or priest, was recognized as the main burden-bearer in the outside world.

Because to-day there are perhaps a larger number of women who take up these outside burdens and carry them that does not alter the essential, prevailing and eternal order of things. Nor does it follow that women the world over are any more fitted for companions to men in the sense of sharing their actual world's work than they were of old. Mrs. Carlyle wanted to be a companion to her Thomas, and so made his life misreable and her own. If, instead of prating about companionship and stitching his boots for spite, she had wrought the hidden charm of her nature into his weary hours Mr. Froude would have had a different story to tell. George Lewis and "George Eliot" tried the companionship theory and sunk the best of both their lives in the business. So did John Stuart Mill and his Mrs. Taylor. These are noted examples that little people of chromo culture are aping and so setting burning examples for a giddy world. Perhaps there is a distinction worth considering in the contrast of this old Bible and this modern idea of marriage, and the young people, at all events, may as well look at the vision through both glasses for awhile.

"Kiss Me, Too."

"Hand me that collar-button," demanded Mr. George Wellsby, turning with an annoyed air toward his little girl. "Learn to let things alone, will you! there now, tune up and bowl."

"George, don't speak to the child that way," said Mrs. Wellsby, depositing a shirt on a chair.

"Well, why can't she behave herself? Every time she sees that I am getting ready to go any place, she makes a point of hindering me. Let that cravat alone."

"Put down papa's cravat, darling. She's too young to know any better."

"No, she isn't. Other people's children know how to behave. I'll bet I'll miss the train. I am sometimes tempted to wish she had never been born."

"Oh, George," exclaimed the wife, "I wouldn't say that."

"Confound it, she worries me so. I haven't more than time to catch the train," hurriedly kissing his wife.

"Kiss me, too, papa."

"I ought not to, you are so bad," stooping and kissing her. "Good-by. Will be back in three or four days."

Mr. Wellsby is a commercial traveler, a kind and tender-hearted man, but subjected at times to nervousness. Seated with several vivacious acquaintances, speeding over the country, a little voice would steal in between the roars of merry laughter and say:

"Kiss me, too, papa."

In the sample room of the village hotel, between the inquiries of purchasers, he could hear the voice, and at night when he lay down he could see the little hands reached toward him and could hear, "Kiss me, too, papa!"

At morning when the sunbeams fell across his bed he thought of the bright little face at home and said:

"God forgive me for wishing that she had never been born."

"Wellsby, what's the matter, old fellow?" asked a companion.

They were in a conveyance, riding toward an interior town.

"I don't feel very well to-day."

"Do any business back here?"

"Yes, did very well."

"I didn't do anything, but I won't let it weigh me down. Got a letter from the house this morning. The old boy is kicking about expenses. Got a bottle of cocktail here."

"I don't care for any."

"Then there must be something the matter with you."

On a night train, going home. He could see the little hands. "Clack, clack, clack—kiss me, too, kiss me, too."

"What's the news?" he asked a friend, when he stepped upon the platform and called a hackman.

"Nothing, I believe everything's quiet."

"No scarlet fever or diptheria raging, is there?"

"No, not that I have heard."

The familiar scenes brought rest to his mind. He looked back upon his trip with a shudder, like one who awakes and contemplates a nightmare through which he has just passed.

"Good night," he said, paying the hackman. "A light burning. Julia is expecting me," he mused, ascending the steps.

A ghastly face met him at the door. A voice in agony whispered: "Oh, George, our little girl is dead."

Polk County Journal.

H. E. COOKE, Publisher.

CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

A fagged out political writes says that in the uncertainty reigning in politics it is comforting to know that the base ball struggles for the year are practically over—but he forgets that next year these struggles will be renewed, while the next is an "off-year" in politics, and three more years following almost as much so.

The dynamite explosions in the new parliament house at Quebec have created great excitement in Canada. There is an investigation to be had, but the materials for it are very meager. The dynamite and its guilty masters have both disappeared, probably for good. The Irish and French in Quebec are bitterly accusing each other of the crime and serious trouble is apprehended as the result of this exchange of compliments.

Vassar female college has graduated, altogether, 596 students. Of this number only 188 have married, or less than one in three. "Vassar gradutes" have been supposed to constitute a peculiarly marriageable type, but if the above figures are correct, a large ratio "got left." It is probable that many men are deterred from marrying too much learning of one kind and too little of another, and that woman's affections rather than her intellect are most potential in connubial arrangements.

The paper manufactures are quick to seize the excuse of the embargo on the importation of foreign rags to increase the price of their wares. The makers of writing paper have already agreed to 2 cents a pound more, and the manufacturers of other grades are likely to follow suit. One effect of the embargo on foreign rags will be to stimulate the collection of native rags. Prices have ruled so low of late years that many a housewife in the country who used to stow away the accumulating rags against the call of the roaming tin peddler has taken to burning such rubbish. There is no good reason why the cost of making paper should be largely increased by the shutting out of foreign rags, but that is by no means the same thing as saying that prices will not be marked up.

Sir Edmund Currie, a noted London physician has sought to improve the occasion of the panic at a possible visitation of cholera by pointing out that if that plague should come to London with say 25,000 cases and 10 per cent. of them fatal, the universal terror would be appalling. Yet he officially declares that there are now in London annually 25,000 cases of scarlet fever, with more than 2,500 deaths. This annual scourge, which, is in some respects worse than cholera, is perfectly within control of sanitary science and could be stamped out if science would properly apply its knowledge of the disease. But as scarlet fever arises from an uncleanly condition, which also invites a scourge of cholera, it seems likely that the latter plague will have its own way when it reaches London and will be abundantly able to beat the record of the scarlet fever.

The commissioner of the general land office has submitted to Secretary Teller his report for the last fiscal year. Again he recommends that the pre-emption law, the timber culture law, and the desert land law be repealed, and that the commutation provisions of the homestead law be amended. All the laws of this class, with one exception, which were enacted for the benefit of actual settlers on the public domain should, in his opinion, be removed from the statute book, and the provisions of the law that is to be allowed to remain should be made more stringent, all on account of bold, persistent, systematic violation in many territories and in several states. The commissioner virtually says it is impossible to enforce the law or punish law breakers. Whatever truth there may be in these statements, it is not apprehended that congress will repeal these laws.

Dr. O. O. Graham of Louisville, Ky., was one hundred years old on the 11th, and attended a dinner given him by 160 of his fellow citizens. The Courier-Journal said of him recently: "The fine constitution he inherited from his parents was never abused by dissipation or excesses of any kind, and hence he is among us to-day not borne down by the weight of a hundred years. Having been successful as a hunter, as an artisan, as a soldier, as a physician, as a landlord, as an author, as a scientist, and as a public spirited and progressive citizen, he has much to be proud of.

On the 24th of October, will be celebrated in England and other countries the end of the one hundredth year of the philanthropist, Sir Moses Montefiore, who was knighted by Queen Victoria. The day will be celebrated with genuine enthusiasm by both Jews and Christians. Sir [illegible] has seven times visited the Holy Land [illegible]

THE PITH OF THE NEWS.

Washington News.

Postoffices established—Dakota: Goddard, Sully county; Kingman, Walworth county; Lounsberry, Clark county. Iowa: Marsh, Louis county. Postmasters Commissioned—Albert C. Goddard, Goddard, Sully county, Dak.; Newton H. Kingman, Kingman, Walworth county, Dak.; Thomas S. Johnson, Lounsberry, Clark county, Dak.; Moses Chilson, Marsh, Louis county, Iowa.

An invitation to the United States to the Congo conference will be presented to President Arthur in a few days, and instructions to the American delegates are expected to reach Berlin early in November. The negotiations with Granville continue. The governments of Italy, Russia and Austria, although not directly interested in the Congo trade, will be represented at the conference. The African association will not be represented. It is expected that the discussion will be of a preliminary character and the sessions short.

Railroad and River News.

The annual meeting of the Pullman company was held last week. The financial statement showed assets of $36,169,383, liabilities, including $15,924,800 capital stock, $18,635,670; surplus invested in assets of company, $7,533,713. The earnings during the year were $4,456,457, expenses $3,263,763, surplus $1,192,694. Directors and officers were elected, and a quarterly dividend of 2 per cent. payable Nov. 15, declared.

A passenger train went through a bridge near Batavia, Ohio. Forty-five persons were on the train at the time, and many made miraculous escapes, several leaping to the stream below. Following is a list of the victims: Engineer Ed Wilbur, Sardina, killed; fireman Henry Jones, Manchester, killed; Samuel Carr, skull fractured; will die; Dave Hicks, badly scalded and leg broken; cannot recover.

Record of Casualties.

Several buildings at Norfolk, Va., were burned.

A cyclone passed over Lewiston, Me., which did $5,000 worth of damage.

At Lawrenceburg, Ky., a fire destroyed a good portion of the business part of the town. Loss, $40,000; partially insured.

E. W. Barber, of Sun Dance, Mont., was thrown from his horse and injured so badly that death resulted shortly after.

The Franklin house, the Journal printing office and other buildings at Summerside, N. B., were burned. Loss, $35,000.

Two children of Garrett Wiseman, living in Mitchell county, N. C., while passing through a long strip of woods, were attacked by a large catamount, and the younger child aged six, was instantly killed. The ferocious animal buried his claws in the girl's throat. The older sister, age eight, attempted to escape, but was pursued and so terribly lacerated that she was unable to speak when found. She died later.

The Criminal Calendar.

At Waterbury, Conn., Edward Chatfield, the "naked man" who has frequently frightened ladies and children, has been sent to jail for sixty days. He is insane.

Henry Mack has been arrested in Cleveland charged with arson. The police have reason to believe that he is the author of numerous incendiary outrages recently perpetrated in that city.

Omaha Special: The coroner's jury has rendered a verdict in the case of the victims of the Fullerton tragedy, and it is as follows: We believe that H. A. G. Baird, Hugh Mair, Harry Perceval and Mrs. Harry Perceval and her one-year old child came to their death feloniously, Sunday evening, Sept. 28, 1884, and that they came to their death by wounds from weapons in the hands of one George Furnival.

A most horrible murder occurred at Covington, Ky., just opposite Cincinnati Friday morning. The dead body of Mrs. Anna Madison, the wife of James Madison, who works in Cincinnati, was found on the floor in her home. The dead woman had been choked with a rope, and her throat had then been cut in a horrible manner. The husband was telephoned for, and he came quickly and was put under arrest, but denied all knowledge of the crime.

Matt B. Perkinson, a sheep herder, rode up to the house of a former employer, Derby P. Payne, a small sheep owner, three miles from Deer Trail, forty miles from Denver, and after refusing Payne's invitation to breakfast, called him outside and demanded the payment of $30, of ballance due for work. Payne replied that he had no money then, but hoped to have some in a few days, when he would settle. Perkinson upon this drew a revolver and fired three shots, the first of which passed entirely through Payne's body, killing him instantly.

Miscellaneous News Notes.

Harrison wire works of St. Louis, failed.

A. W. Bowman, capitalist and real estate broker of San Francisco, failed.

In Boston, the Calumet & Hecla company voted to pass a dividend, owing to the condition of the copper market.

Little & Gaines, dealers in general merchandise at Greenwood, Ark., have failed. Liabilities, $40,000; assets, $35,000.

Her Boston relatives have been contesting the will of Miss Eliza Ann Wilkie, spinster, of Halifax, declaring that her excessive fondness for cats was an evidence of unsound mind. Maiden ladies will be glad to learn that the court sustained the will.

A suit brought by the Continental National bank against the well-known firm of Davies, Atkinson & Co., for the recovery of the sum of $25,170 has led to the development of a state of affairs connected with the above firm, which places the junior member of the concern in the light of a self-confessed defaulter to the amount of $200,000.

A Texas girl traveled three thousand miles before she finally caught up with her lover at Macon, Ga., and even then he refused to marry her, though she offered him $10,000 to do so. Some young men have to be coaxed with a six-shooter, and as it's leap year this one may yet have the matter presented in its proper light.

Personal Points.

Gen. Benjamin Alvord, U. S. A., retired, is dead. He became brigadier general in 1875, and was breveted twice for gallant conduct during the Mexican war, and was breveted brigadier general during the war of the rebellion.

Butler, the h. h. c. of T. (horny-handed champion of Toil) has just rented the palace car built for Nilsson, said to be the finest and costliest ever constructed in this country, to hippodrome in during the rest of the show season.

Thomas Vickers, ex-librarian of the public library of Cincinnati, and a well known litterateur, was married to Miss Leonora Oppenheimer, a Jewess, his former private secretary. The affair created a great sensation here. Vickers has been publishing a newspaper in Dakota for three months, and secured a divorce there from his wife. Miss Oppenheimer's relatives will mourn her as dead.

Matters of Foreign News.

The vintage of France this year will be the best since 1874. The wines are delicate and [illegible] of bloom. [illegible]

[illegible] Pring, manager of Dundurn Park, Hamilton, Ont., eloped with a daughter of his [illegible] pay the 5 per cent. interest on a loan of $40,000,000 and equalize the Egyptian budget.

[illegible]

Masonic difficulties in the province of Quebec continue between the provincial grand lodge and the grand lodge of England. In defiance of masonic curtesy and of the rights of the grand lodge of Quebec, the grand lodge of England has insisted on maintaining its subordinate lodges in the province. It is positively stated that the grand lodge of Quebec is about to take action and will forbid Quebec masons communicating with, or recognizing English lodges.

TERRIFIC LA CROSSE SENSATION.

F. A. Burton Shot Seven Times and Killed—The Murderer Hanged to a Tree.

La Crosse Special 16th.—F. A. Burton, president of the Blaine and Logan club here, was shot dead by a ruffian known as "Scotty" at 8 o'clock this evening. While the Republicans were forming in procession on Main street, seven shots were fired in quick succession. The murderer was arrested and hurried to jail before the immense crowd could realize what had occurred. As soon as the fact was made known there was the most intense excitement, and hundreds of men in uniform and carrying their torches hurried to the court house yard and demanded that the prisoner be handed over to them.

The body of Mr. Burton was taken to the drug store of T. H. Spence, where an examination showed life extinct, every shot taking effect.

Those who stood near the scene of the murder say the man advanced from the crowd on the sidewalk to within a few feet of his victim, and fired the first bullet into his back. Mr. Burton fell to the pavement, and the murderer followed with six shots into his body and head. He then threw the revolver at his victim, and gave him a kick saying, "that is the s—— of a b—— that knows me and that I have been looking for," or words to that effect. All this was done in a minute's time, and before any one could realize what had happened. Mr. Burton was a broker and commission merchant for I. H. Lory & Co., of Milwaukee, and son-in-law of Captain I. H. Moulton, agent for the Milwaukee & St. Paul company here. He was one of the best known and most prominent young business men in the northwest. He was chosen president of the Blaine and Logan club of La Crosse, and was managing the campaign in this section. The motive of the murderer is not known. He is said to be a desperate character, who has followed the river for a living. He has served a term in state prison. After throwing the first revolver at his victim, it was found that he had another one in his pocket.

The officers were not able to stay the mob at the jail. The mob increased in number until the entire space on three sides of the jail was a dense mass of humanity. All demanding that the murderer be hanged. The torches of the men flared above the sea of heads and the white plumes moved resolutely about the square. The doors were battered down and the murderer was taken from his cell. A rope thrown to a man sitting on the first strong limb was quickly attached, and everything made ready for the execution. At this point in the proceedings came a pause. Among the leaders were some who wanted the murderer to make a statement, while others more impetuous, urged immediate action. The murderer declined to say anything, except that he was the man who shot Mr. Burton. At this juncture the cry went round, "Pull him up!" "Hang him!" "Don't let him live a minute longer!"

The mob seized the rope and made a strong pull, but the ruffian freed his hands and the rope broke before he was raised from the ground. In less than five minutes a new rope was thrown over the heads of the crowd and fell within a few feet of the murderer. This was adjusted, his hands and arms firmly tied, and in another moment he was with his face closely pressed against the limb of a tree, and the terrible tradgedy was over. The body of the doomed man was left hanging only a few minutes, when it was taken down lifeless and left in charge of the sheriff who will see the remains interred.

HANGING IN THE AIR

At first it was thought Mr. Burton's position as president of the Republican club had aggravated some crank to attack him, but no one now believes that to be true. The murderer had openly threatened him, with other citizens whom he could have known only by sight. Last spring, on coming out of the woods, Mitchell said he would kill Frank Burton, Frank Hatch, then chief of police, then Charles McDonald. He would "make his mark in this town," as he expressed it.

Ohio and West Virginia Elections.

In Ohio Republican congressmen have been elected in the First, Second, Eighth, Ninth, Tenth (Hurd's district), Twelfth, Fourteenth, Eighteenth, Nineteenth and Twentieth districts; total, 10. Democratic congressmen have been elected in the Third, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Seventh, Thirteenth, Fifteenth, Sixteenth, Seventeenth and Twenty-first districts; total, 10. The Eleventh district is in doubt.

The total unofficial returns from Hamilton county show the following pluralities, state and congressional tickets: Robinson (rep.) secretary of state, 2,258; Johnson (rep.), judge of the supreme court, 2,557; Butterworth (rep.), First congressional district, 1,626; Brown (rep.), Second congressional district, 2,807. The greenback state ticket averaged 97, and the prohibition vote averaged 84.

Reports indicate that the Prohibition vote in the state will not be more than 5,000. The republican majority in the state will probably be from 10,000 to 12,000.

In West Virginia, the Republican state committee concede the election of the Democratic ticket by 3,000 to 5,000 majority. The returns received are very meager and unsatisfactory, but the indications are that the Democrats have a majority of from 10,000 to 12,000. Advices from Charleston, Kanawah county, place Maxwell's majority at 1,100. The entire Republican county ticket is elected by majorities ranging from 600 to 1,200. Six out of nine voting places in Tyler county gave Maxwell 236 majority. The other three to be heard from will increase to 350.

Another Wabasha Assignment.

Hon. James G. Lawrence, of Wabasha and the Wabasha Mill company, made an assignment last Thursday night to Bruce Florer cashier of the First National bank of Wabasha, for the benefit of creditors, the assignment being forced by Eastern creditors, and the recent failure of the Mazeppa Mill company, in which Mr. Lawrence was heavily involved. The principal stockholders in the mill company are J. G. Lawrence, L. F. Hubbard, Lucas Kuehn, P. A. Richards, C. H. Duryea and J. E. Young. The schedule of liabilities and assets will not be made public until next week, and nothing approximating the amount can be ascertained at this time. The Wabasha mill has a capacity of 250 barrels per day, and the assignment will in no way interfere with its running.

The Chicago Markets.

Wheat, Chicago spring, 74@78¾c; No. 3 Chicago spring, 62c; No. 2 red, 78c; No. 3 red, 67c.
Corn, cash, 55¼@56c.
Oats, cash, 27c.
Rye, 53½c.
Barley, 58c.
Pork, cash, $16.75.
Lard, cash, $7.25@$7.30.

Milwaukee Markets.

Wheat, No. 2 78¾c.
Corn, No. 2, 52c.
Oats, No. 2 white, 30¼c.
Rye, No. 1, 55c; No. 2, 53c.
Barley, No. 2 55½c; extra No. 3, 47c.
Mess Pork, $16 cash.
Lard—Prime steam, $7.40.
Butter, choice creamery, 26@30c; fair to good, 23@25c; best dairy, 19@21c.

Minneapolis Markets.

Wheat, No. 1 hard, 76½c; No. 2 hard, 72c; No. 1, 67c. [illegible]
Corn, No. 2, 55c; rejected, 45@49c; condemned 35@40c.
Oats, No. 2 old, white, 25@26c; No. 2, new, 25½c; rejected, 22@24c; condemned, 20@23c.
Barley, No. 2, 58@60c.
Mixed Feed, No. 1, $17.50@18; No. 2, $16.50@17.
Corn Meal, unbolted, $17@$18; bolted, $21@$23.
Hay, timothy, $9@10.00; wild, choice, $8@$9.00; No. 2 wild, [illegible]

[illegible]

THE REPUBLICAN CAMPAIGN.

The Moral of the Ohio Election—A Free Trader Converted, etc.

What the Papers Say of Ohio.

Inter Ocean: The result in Ohio is great and glorious. It proves that the patriotism of the American people cannot be lulled to slumber or beguiled into again intrusting the destinies of the republic to those whose hands are still red with the blood of their assaults upon the nation's life. It proves, also, that the American people discriminate keenly between accusation and evidence, and that protection to American industries is the settled doctrine of the country for at least four years.

New York Tribune: The people of Ohio have done well their part to shape the history of the next twenty years. Thanks to God, who hath again given the victory to justice and right. The Democrats had deliberately chosen to stake all in a tremendous struggle in Ohio, and for weeks they have been boasting and chuckling that they have stolen the march on the Republicans and had got Ohio sure. The victory is largely due to the great popularity and splendid leadership of Mr. Blaine and Gen. Logan, the Democrats will now say that Cleveland has beaten them and is to heavy a load to carry. But they have not yet felt the full force of the public sentiment against him. His friends can drag him off the field as slain already, if they like; it makes no difference. No man they can name can now wrest the crown of victory from the Republican champion.

New York Sun: The Republicans carried Ohio yesterday by a vote sufficiently decisive to dispel, in a great measure, the uncertainties which have of late clouded the campaign. In Hamilton county the large German vote that has enabled the Democrats to carry the county for two successive years appears to have gone to the Republicans, as it usually does in presidential years. The returns show that the Democrats lost much of the Irish vote. We think Cleveland is beaten.

Chicago Tribune: It will not do for the democratic managers to say that that "they expected to lose Ohio." They expected no such thing. They fought tooth and nail to carry it in the knowledge that it was indispensable to the success of the national ticket. They might have carried it on the chief local issue which they forced into the canvass—the liquor question—as they had done two years in succession, if the importance of the national struggle had not been superimposed. As it is, they probably polled 20,000 more votes than they will be able to poll three weeks hence, for Blaine is that much stronger than his party in Ohio on state issues.

Globe-Democrat: The Democrats seemed to have polled a larger vote than ever before, while the Republicans drew on their reserve, which has laid dormant for three years past. The exercise of all the powers known to the Democracy in the way of repeaters, chemical ballot, the outright purchase of votes, and all the devices of fraud were unavailing, and Ohio stands side by side with Maine and Vermont in the Republican column.

Duluth Tribune; There is no mistaking Ohio's voice. The noble old state always does her duty when there is a crisis. There was a crisis this year. Upon Ohio depended in a great measure whether Republican principles should continue to be the guiding principles of the nation.

An Influential Convert.

Wisconsin State Journal.

Colonel W. M. Grosvener, who was for many years a conspicuous free-trade advocate, has, by the unanswerable logic of our country's phenominal progress for the past twenty years, been finally converted to the doctrine of American protection to home industries. He was the writer, some years since, of a work entitled, Does Protection Protect? in which he substantially upheld the theories now maintained by the free trade doctrinaires of the east. As a journalistic, he was engaged some years in writing free trade articles for The St. Louis Democrat. The absurd campaign of 1872, in which the free-trade democracy were supporting for the presidency one of the most notable and aggressive protectionists then living, and discussions which that campaign engendered seem to have put Col. Grosvener upon a new train of thought, which, aided by the beneficient workings of our protective system since, has induced him to openly proclaim his change of opinions. In an address before The Union League club, of Philadelphia, he declared that the political assaults of his old free-trade associates upon the protective system "are not intelligent; they are ignorant, blundering and incapable. In the hands of such men, with whatever theories, the nation would be wrecked." "Unlike the bourbons," says he "I hope I am able to learn something in fifteen years. Many things which I have doubted or disbelieved have been demonstrated before my eyes. It is not the part of manhood to shut the eyes to the truth. I have never been one of those who believe that by much thinking they can spin out of themselves an infallible theory. That sort of political economy has ever had my profound contempt. I have tried to be an honest student of facts, and when the facts call for new conclusions I am not afraid to form them. I pity the man that can learn no new thing from this miracle-working nineteenth century. I pity the man who can learn nothing from 57,000,000 live Americans as they work new wonders every day. My own opinions have in many respects been changed by the results realized during the past ten years, and especially by the increasing rewards of industry here." It may be that after the asperities of the present election and campaign are over, the geniuses which preside over the editorial columns of The New York Times, The Evening Post, not to mention The Louisville Courier-Journal, will revise their economic creeds, will study anew the tariff question in the light of later developments, and like their whilom fellow disciple, Colonel Grosvener, be regenerated into a newer and better faith. Many others of the free traders are halting between two opinions, and after mature deliberation at the democratic national convention, a committee composed of some of the most radical of the alleged revenue reformers did not dare to insert a plank in their platform distinctly committing the party to free trade but by circumlocation and unmeaning, if not contradictory sentences, constructed a formula which as a specimen of ambiguity is not surpassed in the English or any other language. Two adverse ideas in it are so ingeniously balanced that it is still a matter of dispute even among its authors as to which has the preponderance, and the color of the chameleon could not be more indeterminate. It is hardly among the possibilities that the good sense of the American people will lead them to side with a party whose position upon so important an issue is so equivocal and uncertain.

Obscurity of Cleveland.

Gen. Dan Sickles is a strong Democrat. Four years ago he made speeches for Gen. Hancock, but he can't support Cleveland. He says the State of New York has 500 Democrats who rank him in the knowledge required for the Presidential office. Never, he says, were men so terribly deceived in a man as in Cleveland in the Chicago Convention. He adds:

Cleveland is an ignorant man—a terribly ignorant man. He cannot be otherwise when he will so far outrage executive dignity, and propriety, as to write a letter demanding that a certain state senator shall not be re-elected because obnoxious to him. This is what he did about Grady. Suppose the president of the United States should write a letter demanding the resignation of a judge of the supreme court because the latter's rulings were obnoxious to the chief executive, how many million votes would that president be hurled under if he should come up for re-election? Why, he would be the worst defeated man that ever ran for office. In the exercise of the veto power Cleveland has shown equal ignorance. He seems to think that the veto is given to the governor, to be exercised in running the ship of state in the same manner as a man uses the arbitrary power of proprietorship to run a factory.

Further on in his remarks Gen. Sickles said:

I made a speech at Buffalo four years ago for Gen. Hancock. All the prominent Democrats of the city were present. I was told not one was absent. Grover Cleveland was not among them. He was not considered eminent or prominent even from a local standpoint. He was without home standing, and is still without it. John Kelly nominated him for Governor in a quarrel of factions, and because a couple of hundred thousand Republicans staid at home in the election that ensued the Democratic delegates at Chicago jumped to the conclusion that Mr. Cleveland carried New York in his capacious vest pocket. Never were men so deceived. Cleveland is an ignorant man—a terribly ignorant man. He cannot be otherwise when he will outrage executive dignity and propriety as to write a letter demanding that a certain State Senator shall not be reelected because obnoxious to him. That was what he said about Grady.

It is really a frightful thing to say that four years ago Cleveland was not a prominent Democrat in his own town. The fact is, he was drawn in the lottery of availability, and was not a prize.

Rotten-Egging Workingmen.

The summary discharge of Hon. David Healy from his position as Chief Clerk of the Bureau of Labor Statistics at Albany, N. Y., because he presided at a Butler meeting of workingmen has aroused the greatest indignation all over that State. It now appears that Gov. Cleveland and Lieut.-Gov. Hill were both angered at Healy's action, and that the Commissioner of the bureau was ordered to dismiss him. Even some of the Democratic papers in Albany are protesting against it. The Evening Times of that city says:

It was the act of a madman to discharge Mr. Healy in this way. To throw rotten eggs at him while presiding at a Butler meeting was bad enough: to follow this up by dismissing him from office on a trumped-up charge is worse. If the present Democratic party managers in the State think they can get along without the labor vote, and are careless whether they have it or not, then such acts do not matter; but if they have any desire to see the workingmen of the State and Nation rallying round the old flag of Democracy once more they do not want to offer repeated indignities to labor's representatives of whom Mr. Healy is certainly one.

The Press, an Independent paper, which is supporting Cleveland, also says:

We can scarcely think the leaders have given up the battle and have become careless, no matter how much this action on the part of Mr. Peck has that appearance. That it looks that way fair-minded men must admit.

The only paper which supports this personal insult to every workingman in the United States is the Argus, Cleveland's personal organ, which, of course, stands by him and approves this dastardly business. The Albany Evening Journal (Rep.) aptly characterizes the outrage in the following indignant words:

Gov. Cleveland has long since shown that his attitude is far from friendly toward the workingmen. His nearest supporters and some of his own appointees were among the men who threw rotten eggs at ex-Senator Grady and Mr. Healy at the Butler meeting of workingmen in this city. Contemptible as was this disgraceful assault, the discharge of Mr. Healy without a day of warning is still more contemptible. Vile and detestible as were the wretches who assailed Messrs. Grady and Healy with foul oaths and putrid eggs, viler and more detestible are those who would take from a workingman his daily bread simply because he assertt his rights to an independent stand in politics.

Do workingmen need any further illustration of the animosity of Grover Cleveland to them and their interests? If they were in any doubt after his successive vetoes of the Five-Cent-Fare bill, the Mechanics' Lien law, the Car-Drivers' bill, and almost every other labor bill passed by the republican legislature, can they remain in doubt now whether Cleveland has any regard for them? The summary discharge of Mr. Healy because he presided over a meeting of workingmen, whose interests he was representing in this bureau, and in which he was appointed at the request of the workingmen of his own state, is something they can understand. There is not a workingman in Illinois or in any other part of the United States who was not personally insulted in the double outrage of rotten-egging and discharging Mr. Healy. If they have any spirit, if they are capable of resenting an insult, Grover Cleveland and his hirelings will hear from them.—Chicago Tribune.

Grady and Cleveland.

Chicago Inter Ocean.

It is possible the Cleveland faction of the democracy in Buffalo made a serious mistake in howling down Mr. Grady the other evening. Besides the discourtesy of such conduct, and it was a discourtesy stretched to the bound of of violent rudeness, there is involved a consideration of principles and policy which touch the democracy itself. Mr. Grady is a man who has the courage of his convictions clearly and impressively understood. For reasons sufficient unto himself he stood resolutely by the prejudices expressed in National convention and refused to advocate the interests of the nominee of that convention. He has too much animel vitality and too positive an energy of thought to be an inactive sulker, and so did not content himself with refusing to accept Cleveland, but set earnestly about showing the public that he thoroughly and heartily repudiated him as a leader.

At the same time he said or did nothing to indicate that he was any less ardently devoted to the theories and purposes of the Democratic party than he had ever been, and it is a fact that he has always affiliated with the extremists of Democracy. Mr. Grady simply declared he did not believe Grover Cleveland to be fit for the office of President of the United States, an opinion a great many democrats entertain who have not the personal independence and fearless honesty of the young Ajax of New York democracy. Finding another democratic candidate in the field, one whom he thought, as a choice between two evils perhaps, preferable to the regular nominee, he turned his influence and oratoric powers in that direction, and took the stump for Butler.

The Massachusetts demagogue is a thorough-going, dyed-in-the-wood democrat, as everybody truly knows, and in the estimation of most intelligent people was very much more deserving of nomination at the voice of his party than the chance Governor of New York. As a Democrat, Mr. Grady was justified in supporting him. This being the case, it was very uncivil in Democrats with other and not honester views to shut him off from pleading his cause, denying him a hearing, and treating his convictions with contempt.

Now there are thousands of Democrats who think entirely as does Mr. Grady, but who have not, because of party allegiance, taken position with him against the Cleveland ticket. Nevertheless they are not so wedded to the interests of the Sheriff-Governor that they are willing for his sake to have a stanch, sincere, and capable, though dissident, Democrat insulted and shut off from that highest of American privileges, freedom of speech. As Mr. Grady has a large and admiring following in his own State, and many friends throughent the country who lean kindly toward him, the Buffalo faction hazarded much in condemning him, and the unseemly proceeding will not be less galling because it occurred in the very home of the not overpopular Cleveland. The Democracy is getting pretty well tangled up in the rope liberally paid out to by varied circumstances, and is committing a great many hot-headed mistakes in consequence.

Political Notes.

The New York Sun closes a peppery article by defining its position in these words: "Butler first, Blaine next, Cleveland never." A staff correspondent of the Sun, writing from Pennsylvania, says that state will probably give Blaine 100,000 majority.

It will only take a gain of less than forty republican members of the house of representatives to change the present democratic majority into a minority. Ohio has already furnished five of these. If other states do their duty equally well there is no doubt as to the result.

Senator Miller of California writes to a friend in Washington city: "The campaign is going on well in the state, and Blaine will carry it by a handsome majority. The chances are now that Hanley, Democratic candidate for congress in the First district, will be beaten. His vote on the Morrison bill, his land manipulations and his connections with the Maximillian government during the Mexican war are telling against him. He is frantic and losing ground every day. There is strong hope of carrying the legislature and of electing a Republican United States senator to succeed Farley."

Representative Money, of Mississippi, touching the scandalous publication against Mr. Blaine made by the Indianapolis Sentinel, says: "Bringing out those charges has made Mr. Blaine more friends in the South than anything else. It gives him no votes, but the people's sympathy is awakened and they express the bitterest indignation at the course of the Sentinel. There is a friend of mine down in Mississippi who went to school to Blaine in Kentucky, and knew his wife perfectly well, and all the circumstances of her marriage. Somebody wrote to the Sentinel, giving his name, but when Mr. Shoemaker wrote him about the matter he responded most indignantly, denouncing the story as a base slander.

Buffalo, N. Y. Special: Fourteen prominent clergymen of this city have been looking up Gov. Cleveland's record. They assert that he has continued his alleged misconduct up to the present time. Witnesses, they claim, reliable men and women, have told most astounding and painful stories about the governor's clandestine relations with certain ladies. The ministers, however, refuse to reveal names, or to tell what the witnesses said. One story which has leaked out from among the revelations made before them refers to a mysterious veiled lady who frequented the governor's room. Members of the Buffalo association of ministers have prepared a damaging circular. It will be sent to a legion of anxious inquirers.

Here is a specimen extract from the sort of epistle John Kelly has had bushels of since the Chicago convention: "You Dam Fraud if the Old Democratic Party Losses New York State you are to Bee a Dead Man Marke these words. I Have More Courage than you are a Coward and a Dam Rascal. I Will Kill you and then Hang for the grand Democratic Party this will Bee the Last Deal you will Make that will Bee the Deal you make with me.

Maria Halpin's Side of the Story.

Logansport, Ind., Special to Philadelphia Press. Mr. Simeon Talbott, a traveling agent in the employ of Henry Arthur & Co., wholesale leather dealers in New York, is in this city, and, being approached on the subject, said: "Yes, I know Cleveland, perhaps better than any man living. Maria Halpin is my sister-in-law. The story told in the newspapers is literally true, and the half has not been told. Grover Cleveland did seduce my sister-in-law under promise of marriage, while she was living in Buffalo. This I know to be true, and Cleveland afterward paid the $200 to me for Maria Halpin when legal proceedings were about to be instituted against him. Cleveland now has possession of the child. About six weeks ago Cleveland wrote me a letter urging me to make a statement showing that he had always treated Mrs. Halpin well, and promised me anything I could wish in case he was elected. A friend of his, a prominent judge in New York, came to me and wanted a similar statement. I refused to make such a statement, and Mrs. Halpin said she would die before she would make a statement. He also stated in the letter that the published statements in the press that two other men were intimate with Mrs. Halpin were wholly unauthorized by him and were not true, and that in the event of my making the required statement he would have that corrected. After Mrs. Halpin's trouble we learned that Cleveland was a notorious libertine. The half has not been told about him. I don't tell this for publication; it is not necessary in order to defeat him. New York will give an overwhelming majority against him. I have here a letter from my wife stating that Mrs. Halpin had refused for the sum of $10,000 to make a statement for the Democrats. She says she would rather tell the truth for the Republican cause than take any sum for the Democrats.

To Minnesota Republicans.

The Republican state central committee has issued he following address:

To the Republican Voters of Minnesota: The splendid victory in Ohio, excelling in magnitude and significance our highest hopes, inspires the Republicans of the nation will renewed confidence in an overwhelming triumph for Blaine and Logan in November. That Minnesota will exceed, rather than fall short of, her promised 50,000 Republican majority for the electoral ticket, is now highly probable. It should be our pride to send Minnesota to the front as the banner Republican state of the solid North; and we have a prospect of doing this, if we roll up our pledged majority. But even a more important duty lies before us. That duty is to return a solid Republican delegation to congress from the State of Minnesota. From the gains already made in Maine, Ohio and elsewhere, the Republicans of the country are encouraged to hope that they can rescue the national house of representatives from Democratic control. In all the close and doubtful districts they are straining every nerve to accomplish this result. It is all important for the success of President Blaine's administration that he be sustained by a Republican congress. It would be a lasting shame and disgrace to republican Minnesota should she permit a single Democratic representative to be sent to Washington from within her limits. Our five congressional candidates are all worthy and experienced men; the equals, to say the least, in character and capacity for usefulness of their democratic opponents. They have all been regularly nominated, and stand the uncontested choice of the party in their several districts. They are eminently entitled to a united party support. It should be the pleasure, as it is the high patriotic duty of every republican voter, to surrender personal preference and personal feeling in view of the weighty issues involved, and give a hearty, cordial support to the nominee of his party.

Women in Europe.

Interlacken Letter to Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

Yesterday I saw the most surprising sight that has greeted my eyes for many months—a man drawing a large handcart, piled high with hay, and on it a woman, riding with folded hands as naturally as if women were born to this sort of thing in Europe. Had these two been reversed, whatever our feeling, it would not have been one of surprise. Had the woman been harnessed in that cart with a dog, both pulling with all their might, while the man rode, it would have been much more consistent with the peasant's idea of the position of women. Just before we saw a woman high up in a cherry tree picking the fruit, while a man lay at the foot, waiting to place the ladder when she should be ready to come down with her burden. I saw a woman in Holland drawing a canal boat, bent nearly double with the leathern harness, as she trudged along the tow-path, a man sitting at his ease in the boat smoking. In Upper Austria I saw a slight and very pretty young girl carrying the mortar up to the second story of a building, while a man waited there to put it in place when she arrived. Within a week I have seen a man shovel the sweepings of the street assisted by a woman, into a basket which he helped her to place on her back; while she carried it to a long distance he sat down and waited until she returned for another. I saw a woman in Naples carrying a coffin on her head, chatting gayly with a man who walked empty-handed at her side. I have seen a woman and a cow together pull a coal cart through the streets of a North German city, a man touching them up, gently, to be sure, with a whip, as he walked beside them. I remember two women unloading casks of beer from a river craft, while twenty men looked on. I've seen women a dozen times this summer in Germany carrying two heavy trunks; and there is no menial, heavy, out-door labor I have not seen them doing here in Switzerland, so no wonder we looked amazed at the woman riding at her ease on the sweet hay and the man doing the work—the first piece of gallantry, the first recognition of the weaker, we have seen in the peasant, or farming class here.

Boston Advertiser: St. Augustine, in Florida, which is put down in most histories as the oldest town in the United States, but which is younger than our comparatively recent acquisition, Santa Fe, is to have a trecentenary March 27, 1885. On that day, the anniversary of the landing in 1512 of Ponce de Leon, the discoverer of the Mississippi, will be commemorated as well the founding of the city of Menendez in 1565.

Said John Randolph: "Sir, I have found the philosopher's stone. It is 'pay as you go'". How many have found it, and yet how vastly many more have never looked for it. Young man, young woman, you will double you pleasures and halve your troubles, if you will pay as you go!

A volume written by George Wardman, U. S. Treasury Agent, and called "A trip to Alaska," has the following paragraph, which tells a long story in a few words: "I have not seen a man in any position in Alaska who would advise a friend to come out here as a settler, either in trade or agriculture."

Current Notes.

The Guardian, the most important church of England paper, speaks of Wyoming, now brought into prominence by the cattle dispute, as the scene of Campbell's poem, "Gertrude of Wyoming." Another church paper of less note savagely attacks Gen. Wolseley and Lord Northbrook for starting on their Egyptian mission on a Sunday.

A well preserved Pompeian human skeleton has just been discovered among some fresh excavations. It is the full length fossil of a man, apparently struck down in the act of flight. The mouth is open, showing the teeth; the features are still well defined; the hands are perfect, and evidently held two keys which lie close by, and the legs are spread out, the left one being broken.

The man of the world squeezes the juice out of life until he is in the forties, then marries a woman twenty years younger than himself, and when his children get in their 'teens, and he is hobbling toward the grave, he wonders why he has not the same family ties, loves and devotions that his neighbor had who commenced to cultivate them twenty years before his selfishness permitted him to do so.

Blood heat is set down on Fahrenheit thermometers at 98 degrees, but more careful investigators has shown that the temperature of a healthy person is between 102 and 103. One-half a degree either way indicates an abnormal condition, while one degree below would make a doctor shake his head ominously. When a fever sends the temperature up to 106 or 107 it depends entirely on the amount of fuel on hand how long the fire will continue to burn. The tinder in the blood may be removed before the machinery is burned out and the fires smothered, or the vitality may be kept up until the tinder is all consumed and the fires go down of their own accord.

"According to a Republican paper," wrote the Paris correspondent of the London Telegraph, on August 25, "crime is becoming more common every day in France. It is spreading 'like a rising tide whereof the waves are often red.' Twelve years ago the total number of crimes and offenses which came under the notice of the tribunals amounted in twelve months to 26,000. Ten years afterward—in 1882—it exceeded 81,000. The largest contingent of criminals was furnished by the metropolis."

A correspondent writes to Nature: "Last night I rescued a frog from the claws of a cat, and, to my great surprise, it turned, and, after gazing at me for a few seconds, jumped slightly toward me, halting after each leap and looking up into my face. It thus gradually approached, and in about two or three minutes had actually climbed upon one of my feet. Its mute appeal for protection was most remarkable, and could not possibly be misunderstood."

A very extraordinary diamond of no less than 457 carats has been shipped from South Africa and sold by a London firm to a syndicate of diamond merchants. The color equals, if not excels, that of the finest India diamonds, and in the opinion of competent judges it will cut to a perfect and lustrous brilliant. In drop shape it will weigh, as nearly as can be estimated, about 220 karats or in lozenge shape, briolette, about 300 karats. The brilliant will, therefore, exceed in weight all the historic diamonds. The Koh-i-noor weigh 100 karats, the Regent of France 136 karats, and the Orloff, which was cut for weight 195 karats. In size, color, purity and quality it is expected to prove to be the most marvelous stone ever known.

Life in Arkansas.

A man from the outside world of realities describes the life of Arkansas as follows: Long days of doing nothing beget little energy. Little food is needed, and less new clothing. In the fall and winter the crops are gathered and turned over to the merchant, who holds a mortgage. To sum up the labor of years: I was on the place recently and found an old double log house, so nearly rotted down that it is propped up all around; the windows were without glass, the door frames without doors, the children could pass out between the logs in any direction, the lady and friend were sitting in the "gallery," a space between the two cabins, on split chairs, contentedly "dipping" snuff, while the lord and master, in dirty, begrimed clothes, sat under a tree doing nothing, but looking happy as the day is long. Fences rotted down, and lean pigs with "pokes" on them, two sorry-looking horses trying to pick a living from short grass, and little children, half a dozen or more, with but a single garment on, were listlessly playing in the shade. the lands, originally poor, with but two or three inches of soil on the prairies, were worn out and abandoned.

The Field of Gettysburg.

Rochester Democrat and Chronicle: The land on which the battle of Gettysburg was fought is to be purchased and a driveway opened along the line of battle, from Devil's Den, at the foot of Round top, through the wheat field to the peach orchard, to afford an opportunity for monuments to be erected to mark the positions of troops. Veterans of the various military organizations that took part in the battle are invited to assemble at gettysburg on the evening of September 30, to aid in laying out the avenue, to indicate the positions occupied by their respective commands. October 1 and 2 will be devoted to that work, followed by a general review of the field. The matter will be under the direction of Col. Batchelder, government historian of the battle, and superintendent of tablets and legends. The Pennsylvania railway has issued tickets at excursion rates from all principal termini, good until October 31.

Mr. P. B. Alsobrook, a wealthy and extensive orange farmer of Orange Bend, Fla., heard in his far-off Southern home of Mrs. Hattie E. Gordon, a charming young widow of Ringgold, Ga., and he went to see her, and when they met he was so charmed with her that he determined, if possible, to make her his wife. A brief courtship proved successful, and they were married Thursday last, and took the next train for Macon and other Southern cities, en route to the home of the groom in the land of flowers.

A writer in the Pioneer Press, who signs himself "The Casual Listener," writes as follows:

They tell a good story on G. S. Barnes president of the Northern Pacific Elevator company. Mr. Barnes owns a form near Fargo, and prides himself on his agricultural skill. This fall he sold his wheat to his own company, and began hauling it to the little station of Tenney. A new man had been placed, there as buyer and inspector, and he began grading Barnes' wheat as No. 2 hard, and docked it eight pounds to the bushel. When Barnes heard of it he rushed down to the station and protested vigorously. He all at once became transformed from the head of a great big monopoly to a horny-handed granger, and kicked as hard as the best of them. The inspector didn't know him, however, and intimated that if he didn't like their style of doing business he could take his wheat somewhere else. Finally he allowed Barnes to put his wheat in special bins and ship it to Duluth on his own account. When the returns came back Barnes was paralyzed. The Duluth fellows had graded his wheat all the way from rejected to No. 1 Northern, and docked it from nine to eleven pounds to the bushel.

The Grand Forks Plaindealer copies the above and heads it "a good one." Well, it may be a good joke to some, but to the poor farmer whose little all is in his wheat crop, whose hard worked wife and poorly clothed little ones depend upon that wheat for clothes and bread during a long, cold winter, the "joke" is a ghastly one. It is of such "jokes" that the farmers complain and in the Plaindealer's district, at least, they have organized, upon a ringing platform, to legislate the opportunity for such "good jokes" out of existence. It is such "good jokes" that has brought this country where it is to-day. It is such "good jokes" that is robbing the farmer of his profits and thus preventing his being able to pay the business men. It is these "good jokes" that are stealing thousands out of this country annually and enriching in like proportion the members of the Wheat Ring. That this "good joke" should be played on Mr. Barnes is only the stronger proof that the farmers are right in their demands for a change of system, for Mr. Barnes is one of the best wheat experts in this country and knows good wheat when he sees it probably better than any man in his employ. It shows that the wheat-buying system is all wrong and wrongs the farmers every time. Mr. Barnes knew his wheat was No. 1 Hard or he would not have taken the trouble to go down to the elevator and ship it personally. We suppose that where the Plaindealer's nice little "good joke" comes in is in the fact that Mr. Barnes is a rich man and president of the robber gang that stole the wheat, but we should think that even the Plaindealer could see in this "joke" the plain fact that the wheat buying system is all wrong and must be changed or the country will be irretrievably ruined. If the Plaindealer can't see it, the farmers of its District can and have put a solid farmers' ticket in the field on a solid farmers platform for the very purpose of preventing such "good little jokes" in the future. At this distance, and knowing the evils sought to be remedied, and knowing Dr. Collins and Theodore Holton as well as we do, we cannot see how one single farmer can be induced to vote against their own ticket and their own men. Our Charles Canning is the farmers' candidate here and selected on this very issue—to prevent the recurrence of these "little jokes" and to procure an open wheat market. This is the issue all over the State of Minnesota and it takes like wildfire, and it should be the issue in Dakota. It remains to be seen whether the Dakota farmers enjoy these "little jokes" and wish to continue them by re-electing the old-line politicians who have never tried to effect a remedy, or whether they will make a great effort to end them by electing the men who, by their previous action have shown that they are determined to fight until the power of the great monopoly is destroyed, the men whom the farmers have placed upon the farmers' anti-monopoly ticket.

We notice that the Grand Forks Herald supports Dr. W. T. Collins and Geo. E. Bowers for the Territorial Council. We do not know Mr. Bowers, but if he is half as good a man as Dr. Collins he is a good one. The doctor is a rattler, and if the farmers of his District are as level-headed as we think them they will elect that ticket by a big majority. Dr. Collins was among the most active members in the great Farmers' Convention in St. Paul last winter, and was called upon to preside over it a portion of the time. He early identified himself on the right side in the fight against the Millers Steal Gang and should he go into the Council there will be some good work done. There will be no farce enacted which will render the efforts of the down-trodden farmer for relief ridiculous—such as was the so-called "relief measures" passed by the last Territorial Legislature, by which a "Board of Inspectors" (?) was created with no earthly power given them save to draw their salary with promptness and regularity. (The people were fortunate in one particular, the members were all HANDSOME, dignified looking cusses, in fact there was a genuine dude or two. They were as handsome as a wart on your nose, and ALMOST as much account!) Dr. Collins is in earnest in this business and he is a man fully capable of doing a great deal of good for his District. We see further on in the Herald's ticket the name of an old-time Becker County friend of ours—which proves that [illegible] is up to his old tricks again—working in the interest of the farming community. He was for a long time Sheriff of Becker County and was sent to the State Legislature, which served him right as it was just what he deserved. There was no better man in the House and if the balance of the Herald's ticket is like unto Dr. Collins and the Hon. Theodore Holton, we can say that they make a ticket that is hard to beat—one that should be elected by a large majority.

THE HON. THEODORE HOLTON,

The Wheat Business.

It is said that it is "the wounded bird that flutters" and judging from a long article in Monday's Pioneer Press it seems that the Pillsbury & Hurlbut elevator company were wounded by an article in Saturday's Press from Crookston wherein the writer averred that the shipper has no rights that the elevator company is bound to respect. This P. & H. Co., makes great pretensions to purity in business deal. They say: "We do not know where your correspondent gets his authority for saying that we dock such wheat four pounds to the bushel, or any other amount. If any such agents have docked such wheat we should like to know it, and we would like to apply the proper remedy at once!" How long since is it that the P. & H. Co., have felt this way. Last fall there occurred a case wherein a poor farmer at Angus was docked

AS IT IS A CASE OF ROBBERY

FOURTEEN POUNDS PER BUSHEL

the attention of the P. & H. Co., was repeatedly called to the case, (which they must admit was wholesale robbery) and did they even make that right? Not much. They did not appear to be half so anxious when it came to the case in point as they appear to be to make a great blow, a hollow pretense of honesty. Oh, yes! Show us the man who struck Billy Patterson and we will—

ASK HIM WHY

he went for to do so and we will talk glibly and smoothly to the victim and try to wiggle out of it. The Sterritt Elevator Co., settled with some (when they had to) but who ever knew the P. & H. Co., to settle with one man who had been cheated by their agents? They try to pretend that they are doing all they can to protect the farmer and give him all the market allows for his wheat. If they were really in earnest they would show it by putting down their elevator charges to a reasonable sum which would make three or four cents per bushel in favor of the farmer. This is an unusual year all around and the farmer has to stand the brunt of it. Save a very slight reduction the freight rates are the same the elevator charges are just as high and thus as between the devil and the deep sea the farmer stands a very poor show of coming out alive. The only hope they have is to secure proper legislation that will give farmers their rights under the constitution and then see that the law is enforced.

WOODSIDE WONDERS.

WOODSIDE, Minn., Oct. 20, 1884.

EDITOR JOURNAL: Under the above heading we wish to call your attention, and that of the readers of THE JOURNAL, to this locality, which only twenty months ago was a traceless, pathless wilderness, with only an occasional house to check the lone Indian hunter who killed deer and trapped the mink and muskrat at will around our many small lakes. But to-day, and for the past ten months, scarce a Chippewa has been seen. Do you wonder why? Well, I will tell you. The old path has been widened by the white man into a public wagon road, and instead of the hunter's traps we have an educated Indian, in every way a gentleman, who carries the U. S. mail four times each week to and from the Woodside postoffic. We have Mr. Bailey's supply trains which carries or totes provision to the pineries for the lumber camps, which go the same road. We have, with but few exceptions, a permanent settler on each 160 acres. We have two saw mills for cutting hard wood. Now, the great wonder to us of Woodside is how so public spirited a paper as THE JOURNAL, can be so silent in regard to so important a portion of Polk County? But we will excuse you on the same ground that the servant girl did the Doctor of Divinity, viz:—ignorance. But for fear you will get cross we will give you some of the Woodside items: On Sunday morning, the 12th inst, George Lawrence, son of Thomas Lawrence, while toying with a small revolver shot himself in the left hand, where the ball lodged and was taken out by a physician in Aldal.—Mr. Robert Knowles and lady are making a week's visit to their daughter at Mentor.—Mr. Peter Misgen, Dr. A. A. Just and Mr. C. Churchill were out last week attending to business and doing up some fall work on their farms in the woods.—Mr. George Goodrich has his engine in again and will commence sawing in a few days.—Mr. Charles Crossman has just returned from Crookston with Mr. Bailey's goods.—Every one is now busy digging cellars, storing away supplies for winter, etc.—We hear of no sickness in the town; no robberies or thefts.—The weather has been, and is still, as fine as could be wished, all crops are in abundance, roads are in good condition, yet, with all these things, with all this change from a howling wilderness to a very Eden, the wonder is that some men will persist in saying they intend to vote for Cleveland and Hendricks. [illegible]

Whiskey Did It.

On Monday afternoon a farmer going home from Crookston, on the graded road near the fair grounds being filled with "good booze" fell out of his wagon which doubtless frightened his team and they started into a run, the wagon wheels passing over the farmer hurting him somewhat. The team ran into a buggy in which were seated Mr. Louis Berthiaume and Mr. Louis Trueleau, smashing the buggy to kindling wood and throwing the occupants to the ground. Mr. Berthiaume received severe internal injuries besides being cut about the head and face in a frightful manner and it is thought his skull was fractured slightly. He was brought to the city to the residence of his son-in-law Mr. B. Bray where he now lies. He is attended by Dr. Gaboury who considers his chances for recovery excellent.

The Fatal Boiler.

On Monday morning on the north side of the Sand hill River near Beltrami, an Ames thresher engine boiler exploded with terific force instantly killing five men and badly scalding and wounding three more. Coroner H. Shepard and Dr. M. Van Dyke were instantly summoned and upon arrival while the doctor attended the wounded, Coroner Shepard impanelled a jury and began the inquiry into the cause. The fireman, who was the only one supposed to know the cause was too badly hurt and the inquest was post-poned until next Thursday morning at 8 o'clock. The names of the killed were: Tom Evenden, engineer; John Smith, John Linwood, Chris Swanson and a boy named Johnson. As near as we can learn from eye-witnesses the engineer had stopped about 9 o'clock to get up more steam and four of the men killed were standing around the boiler. John Linwood was standing on the feed stand when the explosion came, which took place just as the engineer turned on the steam to start the engine and a piece of a flue struck Linwood on the back of the head knocking him over the machine to the carrier and carrying away a portion of his skull. The boy was thrown some distance and landed under a wagon. The boiler was blown into atoms and scattered far and wide over the prairie. The engine and boiler were manufactured by the Ames Iron Works Co., and were said to be so much out of repair as to be considered very dangerous. The engineer is said to have been inexperienced and it is said that the day before he was drunk all day and was comfortably full at the time the explosion took place. The frequency of these occurrences call for the enactment of some kind of a law regulating the running of these thresher engines. The idea seems to have obtained that any fool can handle them while the fact is that a man should be a competent engineer to undertake it and none but a first-class engineer should be permitted to run one. The engineer has hundreds of lives in his hands during the season and he should be competent and sober while at his work at least.

The American Agriculturist for November, contains a portrait of the founder of that Journal, the venerable A. B. Allen, and an account of a recent visit to him, by Dr. Thurber, the present editor.....In "Walks and Talks," Joseph Harris gives important results in the use of superphosphates upon potatoes ......That farmers owning good mares should breed salable work-horses, is enforced by Col. M. C. Weld, and illustrated by Forbes, in life-like portraits of Percheron and Clydesdale grades..... David W. Judd, in editorial notes, describes the rapid growth of Dakota villages.....German farming is described and abundantly illustrated by Alfred Trumbull.....The Ailments of Domestic Animals are prescribed for by Professor D. D. Slade, of Harvard University..... Timely information on Poultry is given by D. Z. Evans, Jr.....That farmers may be legally held liable by those they employ, is shown by H. A. Haigh, of Michigan.....A method of preparing Hay for Fuel is described and illustrated by R. G. Newton, of Dakota.....Doctor B. D. Halsted writes on Breeds of Canaries, Ox Bot-fly, Prize Pugs, Shall we Destroy the English Sparrow, and other topics.....Doctor George Thurber describes a Fish-killing Plant, a New Race of Pears, Fruit Without Flowers, tells what Sphagnum is, etc.....Seasonable directions for the management of Bees, are given by W. Z. Hutchinson..... Home-made farm conveniences, long a characteristic feature of this journal, are here represented by Gateways and Gates, an Improvised Saddle a Clod-crusher, a Wagon Jack, a Wheelbarrow with Springs, etc.....The Household has the usual useful variety.....The Boys and Girls have two illustrative stories, and many other interesting articles..... There are three full-page, and nearly one hundred other illustrations by such leading artists as Forbes, Cary and Bennett. Yearly subscription, $1.50; single number, 15 cents. Address Publishers of the American Agriculturist.

To The Public.

We wish to state to the people of Crookston and vicinity, that we have purchased the stock of groceries owned by J. L. Bailey, on Broadway, opposite the post office. We purpose to carry on the trade at the old stand, and will keep on hand at all times a fresh stock of groceries, provisions, etc., and we ask a share of the patronage of the generous public. [illegible]

[illegible] BAUCHMAN & MILLETTE.

Feeding Barley to Hogs.

A correspondent to the Prairie Farmer makes the following inquiry in regard to the feeding of barley to hogs:

Which is the most profitable way to dispose of barley; to let the hogs harvest it or to harvest, thresh and feed it to them, heading costing $1.00 per acre, threshing, 10 to 12½ cents per hundred. Or is it better to sell the barley at 80 to 85 cents per hundred; with the price of pork ranging at 5 to 5½ cents per lb?

This query was submitted to Prof. W. A. Henry, of the Agricultural Experiment Station of the University of Wisconsin, who replied as follows:

In corn growing States barley is not commonly used as a hog food, yet, so far as I know it has given excellent results when tried. A hundred weight of barley should make from fifteen to twenty-five pounds of pork. I give these wide ranges because much depends upon the way it is fed, and upon the condition of the hogs. Fed alone, and unground, it will probably give not over fifteen pounds of pork, and the hogs would not thrive long at that. Ground and mixed with corn meal, and fed as swill, it should be good for over twenty pounds of pork per 100 pounds fed, provided the hogs are thrifty. By the time the grinding is paid for there will not be much difference between selling at 80 cents and feeding, if pork is below five cents it will pay best to feed. I should not feed barley alone under any circumstances for any considerable length of time, but sell barley if necessary to buy corn, shipstuff, or other food to mix with it.

So much barley is wasted, as a rule, that it will not pay to feed in the field. If it can be fed up clean, I should not hesitate to do so with a part of the crop. Hogs fed in this way are usually thrifty, and the manure is left on the land just where it is needed.

At Seely's

You can find some extra fine crab-apple cider; old bourbon whisky, eight years old. Maryland Club, pure rye; Jules and G. H. Mum's extra dry champagne; imported Scotch ales and porters for medicinal purposes; also a fine stock of imported cigars. Call and sample. [22-tf]

Auction sale of household goods, consisting of stoves, bedsteads, dishes, etc., etc., etc., and many other useful articles, at F. M. Brown's Commission Store, on Saturday afternoon Oct. 25th.

PIANO TUNING.

Any parties having pianos or organs that need tuning or repairing can have their work satisfactorily done by leaving orders at the Linton House. Satisfaction guaranteed.

[9-tf] E. F. WHEELDEN.

Auction sale of household goods, consisting of stoves, bedsteads, dishes, etc., etc., etc., and many other useful articles, at F. M. Brown's Commission Store, on Saturday afternoon Oct. 25th.

John Knuppe.

General Agent in the Red River Valley of the Netherlands American Land Company of Amsterdam, Holland.

Money to loan on good real estate security, on time to suit the borrower. Office over Merchant's Bank. [1-tf]

Groceries, Provisions,
Flour, Feed
SMOKED, DRIED AND SALT
MEATS,
TEAS,
COFFEES,
SUGARS,
SPICES,
ETC,
Highest Market Price Paid for
FARM PRODUCE.
Bauchman & Millette,
Broadway, Opposite the Post Office,
Crookston, Minn.

BERG & OLSON,
PRACTICAL WATCHMAKERS,
AND DEALERS IN CLOCKS,
WATCHES,
JEWELRY,
—ROBERT STREET,—
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

NEW LIVERY,
Feed and Sale
STABLES.,
CORNER MAIN AND FOURTH STS.,
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA
TERRY & COLLINS, Prop's.

☞ Good Turnouts at all times a reasonable prices. Good Hearse and careful driver when needed.

ATTENTION
Now Is the Time to Build
While you can buy
Cream Brick
at Very Low Figures. The Best Brick ever made in the Red River Valley. Manufactured by SWANSON & KOEPPE,
[11-18] Crookston, Minn.

CHEAPEST AND BEST!

Peterson's Magazine!

Unequaled Premiums for 1885

FULL-SIZE DRESS PATTERNS.

Peterson's Magazine is the best and cheapest of the lady's books. It gives more for the money and combines greater merits, than and other. Its immense circulation and long-established reputation enable its proprietor to distance all competition. In short, it has the

Best Steel Engravings,
Best Colored Fashions,
Best Dress Patterns,
Best Original Stories,
Best Work-Table Patterns,
Best Music, Etc., Etc.

The stories, novelets, etc., in "Peterson," are admitted to be the best published. All the most popular female writers contribute to it. Every month, a Full Size Dress Pattern is given, which is alone worth the price of the number. Every month, also, there appears a engraved on steel, twice the size of others, and superbly colored. Also, Household, Cookery, and other receipts; articles on Art Embroidery, Flower Culture, House Decoration—in short, everything interesting to ladies.

Colored Steel Fashion-Plate!

TERMS, ALWAYS IN ADVANCE, $2.00 A YEAR.

☞ Unparalleled Offers to Clubs. ☜

2 Copies for $3.50. 3 Copies for $4.50

With the "Pearl of Price," a splendid illustrated volume of poetry, or large steel-engraving, "The Lion in Love," for getting up club.

4 Copies for $6.50. 6 Copies for $9.00

With an extra copy of the Magazine for 1885, as a premium, to the person getting up the club.

5 Copies for $8.00. 7 Copies for $10.50

With both an extra copy of the Magazine for 1885, and the large steel-engraving, or the "Pearl of Price," to the person getting up the club.

☞ For larger clubs still greater inducements.

Address, post-paid,

CHARLES J. PETERSON.
306 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.

☞ Specimens sent gratis, if written for, to get up clubs with.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 24th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on No. 22d, 1884, viz: JOHN E. MARTELL, H'd No. 8252, for the sw¼ S. 24, T. 146, R. 47. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: M. G. Leguee, Chas P. Cahoon, John A. Lytle and Stephen Dewal, all of Crookston, Polk Co., Minn.

[22-27] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Oct. 16th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Dec. 4th, 1884, viz: WILLIAM G. DAVIDSON, H'd No 8211, for the se¼ S. 12, T. 152, R. 47. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: M. R. Brown, J. W. Lewis, Crookston, M. E. Kirsch, L. Cotlat, Euclid, Minn.

[26-31] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Oct. 17th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Dec. 8th, 1884, viz: TIMOTHY SCHORTGEN, H'd No. 10091, for the se¼ S. 11, T. 149, R. 43. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Nick Hardy, G. Pallen, M. Schultz, and Peter Baker, all of Fosston, Minn.

[26-31] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Oct. 18th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Dec. 2d, 1884, viz: JENS EILERTSON, Pre. D. S., No. 8011, for the se¼ se¼ S. 3, T. 145, R. 43. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Gilbert Soxum, O. L. Rindal, Lars Lasevold and O. P. Renne, all of Rindal, Minn.

[26-31] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Oct. 20th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 29th, 1884, viz: J. ALBERT CHINIQUY, Pre. D. S., No. 8928, for the sw¼ S. 2, T. 150, R. 45. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Louis Berthiaume, Edward Beaudett, Philippe Beaupre and Napoleon Garvis all of Gentilly, Minn.

[26-31] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Oct. 21st, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Dec. 3d, 1884, viz: MATHIAS LALIBERTE, Pre. D. S., No. 8252, for the se¼ S. 14, T. 151, R. 46. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Samuel Blean, Louis Geudron, August Charpentie and Louis Gauthier, all of Crookston, Minn.

[26-31] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Oct. 8th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 20th, 1884, viz: OSCAR S. JOHNSON, Pre. D. S., No. 0453, for the sw¼ S. 12, T. 148, R. 46. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Oren Simmons, John Hrness, John Johnson and G. P. Houge, all of Crookston, Minn.

[24-29] JOHN CROMB, Register.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, }
Polk County. } ss. In Probate Court:

In the matter of the estate of John Eltis deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of John Dowling of Polk County representing, among other things, that John Eltis late of Polk County on the sixth day of October A. D. 1884, at Crookston died intestate, and being a resident of this county at the time of his death, leaving goods, chattels and estate within this county and that the said petitioner is a creditor of said deceased, and praying that administration of said estate be to John Dowling granted: It is ordered, that said petition be heard before the Judge of this Court, on Monday the 10th day of November A. D. 1884, at 10 o'clock a. m., at Crookston in said county.

Ordered further, that notice thereof be given to the heirs of said deceased, and to all persons interested, by publishing a copy of this order for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston in said county.

Dated at Crookston, the 18th day of October A. D. 1884.

By the Court,
R. J. MONTAGUE,
Judge of Probate.

[23-27]

FURNITURE STORE,
BROADWAY, CROOKSTON MINNESOTA.
P. BATAGLIA, Prop.

Keeps constantly on hand a well selected stock of Wardrobes, Bureaus, Sofas, Lounges, Bedsteads, Bed Springs, Tables, Chairs, Rocking Chairs, Stands, Ornaments, Picture Mouldings and Picture Frames. REPAIRING DONE TO ORDER. Coffins of all kinds kept constantly on hand.

MERCHANTS' BILLIARD HALL,
FRED. ANDERSON, Proprietor,
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

The best Wines, Liquors and Cigars constantly on hand.

McKINNON BROS.,
Carriage Works
Robert Street,
Crookston, - Minn.
AGENTS FOR THE
J. I. CASE THRESHING MACHINES!
And Manufacturers of Carriages, Wagons,
BUGGIES,
Cutters, Sleds, &c.
Axles, Springs, and all Repairs kept in stock,
DEALERS IN
FARM MACHINERY.

In Farm Machinery we have the Champion Seeder, Fargo Diamond Tooth Harrow, Kalamazoo Spring Tooth Harrow, Davenport and Grand Detour Sulky and Walking Plows, Buford Gang Plows, Field Rollers of all sizes, Warrior Mowers, the leading Hay Rake and first-class Harvesters and Binders, the Webber Wagon and McKinnon Bros. Wagon. In fact we have everything in machinery, from

A Wheelbarrow to a Threshing Machine!
—EXTRAS—
For all Machines constantly on hand

E. M. Walsh,
DEALER IN
Hardware, Tinware
BAR IRON, STEEL,
BLACKSMITHS SUPPLIES,
BUILDING PAPER,
&c., &c. Also Agent
For the Celebrated Monitor Plows.
CROOKSTON, MINN.

THE
J. I. CASE
THRESHING MACHINE COMPANY
The Dennet or Beloit
HARVESTING MACHINE COMPANY;
And the Van Brunt & Davis
SEEDER COMPANY,
Are Represented
BY
STEENERSON BROS.,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

HOW TO BE HEALTHY!
Drink LePage's
35c Tea and 35c pure Java Coffee
AND SMOKE MY NICKEL PILGRIM CIGAR.

HOW TO BE WEALTHY!
COME TO THE RED STAR GROCERY
And Save Money on everything you buy.

AND IF YOU ARE WISE

You will buy only Pure and Fresh Groceries. THE RED STAR GROCERY is the place to get them and there you will find Prices the Lowest. Farmers and others bring in your Butter and Eggs and get highest prices for them. Remember the RED STAR, one door south of Montreal House.

E. LEPAGE, Broadway, Crookston, Minn.

Polk County Journal.

Crookston, Minn., Thursday, October 23.

RAILROAD TIME TABLE.

GOING NORTH.

	ARRIVE.	LEAVE.
No. 1 Passenger	10:45 p. m.	10:55 p. m
" 9 Passenger	10:30 a. m.
" 10 Freight	12:30 a. m.
" 15 Freight	4:09 p. m.
" 23 Freight		10:30 a. m.

GOING SOUTH.

	ARRIVE.	LEAVE.
No. 2 Passenger	4:00 a. m.	4:00 a. m.
" 10 Passenger		5:00 p. m.
" 20 Freight		7:00 a. m.
" 22 Freight		6:15 p. m.
" 21 Freight	5:00 p. m.

DEVIL'S LAKE LINE.

	ARRIVE.	LEAVE.
No. 9 Passenger		10:20 a. m.
" 10 Passenger	5:30 p. m.
" 45 Freight		6:00 a. m.
" 46 Freight	7:00 p. m.

ST. HILAIRE BRANCH.

Trains leave Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays at 10:45 a. m., and arrive same days at 4:00 p. m.

☞ Passenger Trains No's 1 and 2, Main Line, run daily except Sunday. No's 3 and 4 run daily. Devil's Lake Passenger runs daily. Freights No's 23, 20 and 24 run daily. Freights No's 15 and 22, and Freights on Devil's Lake Line run daily except Sunday.

City and County Directory.

☞ We wish to make this directory as reliable as possible, and consequently request all parties inte[illegible] notify us if any changes in their resp[illegible]ments.

[illegible] OFFICE.

John Cromb	Register.
L. K. Aaker	Receiver.

Office hours from 8:30 a. m. to 12 m., and from 2:00 to 4:30 p. m.

MEMBER OF CONGRESS.

Knute Nelson	Alexandria.

DISTRICT COURT.

O. P. Stearns, Judge	Duluth.

STATE SENATOR.

Halvor Steenerson	Crookston.

REPRESENTATIVE.

A. H. Baker,	Ada.

COUNTY OFFICERS.

R. J. Montague	Judge of Probate.
T. C. Shapleigh	Clerk of Court.
C. S. Spendley	Register of Deeds.
P. J. McGuire,	Auditor.
O. H. Lucken	Treasurer.
John Leo	Court Commissioner.
Wm. Watts	Attorney.
V. D. Carruth	Supt. of Schools.
W. F. Jwickey	Sheriff.
H. Shephard	Coroner.
C. L. Brainard	Surveyor.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

Knute Nelson—1st Dist	Aldal.
E. A. Bradish—2d "	Fisher.
M. R. Brown—3d "	Crookston.
C. Kretzschmar—4th "	Red Lake Falls.
T. Sullivan—5th "	East Grand Forks.

CITY OFFICIALS.

Mayor	E. M. Walsh.
Recorder	W. D. Hurlbut.
Treasurer	A. G. Gallasch.
Justices	G. W. Lewis, J. W. Lilly.
Ald.—1st Ward	Ole Bang, L. Fontaine.
—2d "	Henry Nolan, P. Bataglia.
—3d "	N. P. Stone, W. Walker.
—4th "	S. F. Markham, C. A. Chiniquy.
—at large	B. Houston.
City Attorney	J. N. Ives.
City Engineer	W. D. Hurlbut.
Marshal	J. Dowling.
Deputy Marshal	J. T. Hillstrault, Ole Bjoln.

CHURCH DIRECTORY.

PRESBYTERIAN—Corner Broadway and Fifth street. Rev. R. L. Adams, Pastor. Services every Sunday at 11:00 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Sabbath School at 12 m. Prayer meeting in church every Wednesday evening at 8:00 o'clock.

EPISCOPAL—Ash street, head of Second street. Rev. S. Currie, Rector. Services every Sunday at 11:00 a. m. and 7:00 p. m. Sunday School at 2:00 p. m.

CONGREGATIONAL—Rev. C. E. Page, Pastor. Corner Third and Ash streets. Services every Sunday at 11:00 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Sabbath School at noon.

BAPTIST—Rev. H. L. House, Pastor. Second street, between Broadway and Ash streets. Services every Sunday at 11:00 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Sabbath School at 12:15 p. m. Young people's meeting from 6:15 to 7:15. Services always closed in time to allow those present to attend their own churches. Prayer meeting Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock. A cordial invitation to all. Friday evening at 7, teacher's meeting at different homes.

CATHOLIC—Ash street. Father Reviere, Pastor. Services every Sunday at 10:30 a. m. and 8:00 p. m.

CARMAN.

BAPTIST—F. K. Roberts, Pastor. Services in Baptist Block at 10:30 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. Sabbath School at noon. Prayer meeting Thursday evening.

SOCIETIES.

HIRAM LODGE, No. 78, A. O. U. W. Meets in K. P. Hall, Second and Fourth Thursday of each month.
C. H. MIX, M. W.
F. BEHLMER, Secretary.

PIERSON CHAPTER, R. A. M. Meets in Masonic Hall, First and Third Monday of each month.
T. C. SHAPLEIGH, H. P.
O. H. LUCKEN, Sec'y.

CROOKSTON LODGE, NO. 79, I. O. O. F. Meets every Wednesday evening in Odd Fellows' Hall, over Post Office.
F. M. SCHWARK, N. G.
R. B. GATES, Sec'y.

CROOKSTON LODGE, NO. 1,460, K. of H. Meets the First and Third Monday evening of each month, in Losey's Hall, Main street.
T. A. HARRIS, Dictator.
JAS. BUTLER, Reporter.

CROOKSTON LODGE, NO. 141, A. F. & A. M. Meets on the Second and Fourth Saturday evening of each month, in Masonic Hall.
W. D. HURLBUT, W. M.
GEO. D. BUCKNAM, Sec'y.

CROOKSTON LODGE, NO. 25, K. of P. Meets every Friday evening, in K. of P. Hall, on Broadway.
C. W. BARNES, C. C.
W. B. DAWLEY, K. of R. & S.

TO PARTIES DESIRING INSURANCE!

We represent the following old and reliable Fire Insurance Companies:

	Assets.
Ætna	$9,182,644
American	1,804,519
Fire Association	4,279,676
Underwriters	3,699,794
Orient	1,411,894
Phœnix	5,919,403
Lancashire	6,787,983
Milwaukee Mech	1,129,375
Germania	2,700,729

Having represented nearly all of the above companies for 14 years we have acquainted ourselves with the business, and think that we can justly claim the patronage of the public, who can depend upon having insurance written correctly and losses adjusted promptly.

MOSES & MOEUKEL.

The United States Internal Revenue Special Tax is due May 1st. Any information and a full line of blanks can be had by calling on or addressing

JOHN McLEAN,
Attorney at Law,
[47-tf] Crookston, Minn.

$100,000

To Loan on improved claims in sums of $250 to $2,000. Cash paid for school bonds. Call on or address

JOHN McLEAN, Att'y at Law,
[47-tf] Crookston, Minn.

'ROUND HOME.

W. H. Topping was over from Grand Forks on Friday.

Vote the straight Republican ticket—the best one in the field.

No. 1 Hard wheat is selling in this market for—don't mention it.

Tom Sprague stuck his first on the Commercial house register on Friday.

These Democratic parades make us tired. Where is your Blaine and Logan club?

The Commercial house is getting lots of custom in these days. The boys ought to have a larger house.

The weather took a sudden turn to colder. It is fine threshing weather, however, and is being improved.

Geo. Bucknam has accepted a position as book-keeper for Hack & Gallasch, taking his "portfolio" on Monday morning.

The farmers have wisely chosen a strong man of their number to represent them in the Legislature and Mr. Canning will be elected by a large majority.

The Democratic torch-light procession was thin—doubtless owing to the news from Ohio. Nevetheless it was a better parade then the Republicans have yet made in this city.

Best cigars in the city at Van Dyke & Co's.

Dan McDonald headed the procession on Thursday night reading the JOURNAL (which was just off the press) trying to find in solid Republican news, solace for his lonely condition.

Notwithstanding the hard times Charlie Seeley still continues to dish up a nice free lunch. Roast goose, ducks and chickens often appear. Charlie don't want to see his friends starve if wheat is low.

Blankets, quilts, underware, caps and gloves, at Hack & Gallasch.

Messrs. Bennedict and Norton are sustaining the reputation of the Commercial house as is shown by the big trade they have. This house has ever been a most popular one and we are glad to see that it is not on the retrograde.

A strong effort is being made to reduce the Republican vote in order to effect the future basis of representation. No true Republican will aid this movement by deserting his party this fall. Vote the straight Republican ticket entire.

Some villain-i-ous villain snatched a fine fur overcoat that was roosting low in front of Sam Rosenthal's, about 7 o'clock on Saturday evening. Sam is not acquainted with the enterprising individual, but would give the price of the coat for an introduction to him.

Wheat is crazy, On Saturday it was 56 for the best and on Monday and Tuesday 53, and now the honest granger is anxiously rushing it in, fearful least the time will soon come when he will have to pay something to get rid of it, Such another time never was seen in this country before.

The Democrats, at their convention on Thursday last nominated Wm. Stuart for representative. Mr. Stuart is one of the oldest residents in Polk County and as he is a warm personal friend of ours we do hate to see him thus ruthlessly set up by the Democrats to be shot down as a mark of esteem by the people. "Billy" really deserves a better fate.

On Thursday Peter Cornelius announced himself an independent candidate for Sheriff and on Saturday morning announced an independent candidate for Deputy Sheriff. The deputy arrived on Friday night, quite destitute and Peter has decided to adopt the twelve pound boy. The cigars that Pete handed around were of the very best brand.

The wheat problem is a knotty one. With the fine crop which we have secured and prices which have ruled in ordinary years, farmers could have paid up all of their debts, as a rule, and would have been independent. As it is now they cannot do it, and unless creditors are disposed to be merciful, there must be some suffering as the result. It is for the interest of all concerned to help the farmers this fall.

O. M. Holmes, the stirring young editor of the Red Lake Falls Gazette, has taken a partner in the business. The young gentleman arrived on the 15th inst in rather a destitute condition, but that didn't make any difference to O. M. He took him in all the same and thinks there is none like him. Mother and infant are doing well, but judging from the political stand the Gazette takes, O. M. is as crazy as a bed-bug.

The Milton Nobles Comedy Company which appeared on Friday last was one of the best we ever had here. The house was filled and the audience was well pleased. We would suggest the propriety of giving a policeman a free ticket to save the annoyance that some felt who were near the front row on Friday night. Should this company ever favor our city with another visit we think the house would be crowded again.

Hon. Knute Nelson, accompanied by Prof. C. C. Painter, of Washington, D. C. agent for the Indians Rights Bureau was in the city last week going from here to Red Lake Falls and beyond. They were accompanied from here by Senator Steenerson and intended to go to the Red Lake Reservation but on account of bad roads had to give it up. They returned on Thursday and Mr. Nelson and Mr. P. took the train, the former for home and the latter for Helena, Montana.

CROOKSTON OPERA HOUSE!

ONE NIGHT ONLY!

Saturday, October 25,

A GREAT DOUBLE BILL!

DICKSON'S

"SKETCH CLUB"

Will appear in their

"DRMATIC DIAMOND!"

in one act, entitled

EDITHA'S BURGLAR,

and their original

Erratic Dramatic Operatic

BURLESQUE!

In two acts and an explosion, entitled

COMBUSTION!

Reserved Seats	75 Cents.
Gallery	50 "

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First Publication September 18th, 1884.]

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the payment of the sum of two hundred and thirty-four and 23-100 dollars ($234.23-100) according to the condition of a certain mortgage duly made, executed and delivered by John P. Larson and Catharina A. Larson, his wife, of Polk County, Minnesota, mortgagors, to Peter Stenseth, of Polk County, Minnesota, mortgagee, to secure the payment of one note of the sum of two hundred and fifteen dollars, with interest at the rate of seven per cent per annum, and bearing date the eighth day of June 1883 and payable on the eighth day of December 1883, and which mortgage was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota on the eighth day of June A. D. 1883, at 3:25 o'clock p. m. of that day in book "N" of mortgages, on page forty-six (46,) and whereas, no action or proceedings at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt or interest secured by said mortgage or any part thereof, and, whereas, there is claimed to be due, and is due, at the date of this notice the sum of two hundred and thirty-four 23-100 dollars ($234.23-100.)

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the provisions of the statute in such case made and provided, all the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, to-wit: The northwest quarter of Section one (1,) in Township one hundred and fifty-two (152) north, of Range forty-five (45) west, containing one hundred and sixty acres, more or less according to the government survey thereof, which tract or piece of land is situated in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, together with the hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging, will be sold by the Sheriff of Polk County, Minnesota, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County of Polk, on the 7th day of November A. D. 1884, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of said day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and fourteen and 45-100 dollars $(14.45-100) taxes, which has been paid by the mortgagee, and thirty dollars attorney's fees stipulated in said mortgage, besides the costs and disbursements allowed by law, subject nevertheless to redemption at any time within one year from date of sale as provided by law.

Dated September 18th 1884.

PETER STENSETH,
Mortgagee.

A. P. BOND,
Attorney for Mortgagee. [21-27]

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Oct. 4th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 15th, 1884, viz: GEORGE A. CABLE, H'd No. 9848, for the e½ nw¼ and lots 1 and 2 S. 30, T. 149, R. 48. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: John E. Van Tuyl, George Tice, Albert Tice and George Pollard, and of Mentor, Minn.

[21-29] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Oct. 4th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 15th, 1884, viz: WALTER LATTA, H'd No. 2018, for the nw¼ S. 22, T. 151, R. 47. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Samuel Crookshank, John O. Tenny, A. J. Adam, of Fanny, Robert Teal, of Euclid, Minn.

[21-29] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Oct. 6th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., Nov. 19th, 1884, viz: ALDERIC LEGAULT, H'd No. 10817, for the e½ se¼, se¼ ne¼ and lot 1 S. 2, T. 149, R. 44. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Joseph L. Dayous, Joseph Tontant, of Carnian, Honnidas Beaudry, Alfred Desjardin, of Tilden, Minn.

[21-29] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Oct. 1st, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 11th, 1884, viz: JEAN B. PATENAUDE, Pre. D. S., No. 8868, for the w½ sw¼ and w½ nw¼ S. 26, T. 150, R. 45. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Pierre Lecuyer, Timothee Desgroseillie, Joseph Laframboise and Philip Beaupre, all of Gentilly, Polk Co., Minn.

[21-26] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 29th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 15th, 1884, viz: JACOB HANSON, Pre. D. S., No. 6300, for the n½ ne¼ and e½ nw¼ S. 21, T. 148, R. 45. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: T. Bakkan, H. Hanson, O. Jacobson and J. Gillvertson, all of Fertile, Minn.

[23-28] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 26th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 14th, 1884, viz: GOTTLIEB KIND, H'd No. 10281, for the se¼ nw¼, s½ ne¼, ne¼ se¼ S. 35, T. 152, R. 45. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: W. Wylie, C. Kindler, H. Smith and M. Lamproux, all of Wylie, Minn.

[23-28] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 30th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 11th, 1884, viz: SIDNEY BOTTINEAU, H'd No. 9288, for the [illegible] and lots 1 and 2, S. 6, T. 149, R. 40. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Louis Berthiaume, A. Berthiaume, of Gentilly, John Clements, Charles Gervais, of Little Prairie, Polk Co., Minn.

[22-27] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 29th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 14th, 1884, viz: CHARLES KINDLER, H'd No. 9811, for the s½ nw¼ and lots 3 and 4 S. 1, T. 151, R. 45. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: G. Kind, H. Smith, Wm. Wylie and M. Lamproux, all of Wylie, Minn.

[23-28] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 27th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 15th, 1884, viz: PETRONELLE SVARTZ, Pre. D. S., No. 8207, for the lots 3 and 4, S. 6, T. 147, R. 41. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Svend Kurnas, John Jaintrold, Thorwald Torpet and Ingebret Torpet, all of Aldal, Polk Co., Minn.

[22-27] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 17th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., Nov. 7th, 1884, viz: JOHN C. CHARLES, Pre. D. S. No. 8822, for the ne¼ S. 35, T. 148, R. 41. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: G. P. Bloom, James Yurgen, Thomas Olsen and Torkel Hydnud, all of Foston, Polk Co., Minn.

[22-27] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 17th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 7th, 1884, viz: GUNDER T. HUNDLAND, H'd No. 9483, for the ne¼ S. 22, T. 152, R. 42. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Nicholas Thompson, Neese Thompson, H. Keogh and Hans P. Bjerge, all of St. Hilaire, Polk Co., Minn.

[22-27] JOHN CROMB, Registe.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn, Sept. 17th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 7th, 1884, viz: JOHN LINDELL, Pre. D. S., No. 6152, for the n½ se¼ ne¼ sw¼ and lot 3, S. 7, T. 145, R. 43. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Erik J. Eriksson, John Berggvist, E. Eriksson and A. Larson, all of Rindal, Minn.

[22-27] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 20th, 1884,

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 11th, 1884, viz: JOSEPH MARLOW, Pre. D. S., No. 7290, for the s½ nw¼ and lots 3 and 4 S. 2, T. 151, R. [illegible] He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Pierre St. Jean, John Deire, Aimable St. Jean and E. St. Jean, all of Red Lake Falls, Polk Co., Minn.

[22-27] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 17th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 7th, 1884, viz: NICHOLAS THOMPSON, Pre. D. S., No. 7760 for the se¼ S. 10, T. 152, R. 42. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: G. T. Hundlen, H. Keogh, Neese Thompson and Hans P. Bjerge, all of St. Hilaire, Polk Co., Minn.

[22-27] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 19th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 14th, 1884, viz: HANS E. BERGE, Pre. D. S., No. 6935, for the sw¼ sw¼ S. 22, T. 147, R. 44. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Even Grotevig, Halvor Grotevig, Jacob Aldal and A. Nelson, all of Aldal, Polk Co., Minn.

[22-27] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 15th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, on November 6th, 1884, viz: MELCHIOR SCHWEY, H'd No. 4967, for the se¼ S. 23, T. 152, R. 48. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said Land, viz: Wm. Appel, Henry Horn, B. Carish and Michale Biver, all of Euclid, Polk Co., Minn.

[21-26] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 15th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 6th, 1884, viz: WILLIAM APPEL, H'd No. 5853, for the sw¼ S. 23, T. 152, R. 48. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Henry G. Horn, M. Schwy, of Euclid, John Moser, Adolph Raugh, of Crookston, Minn.

[21-26] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 15th, 1884,

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 6th, 1884, viz: GEORGE H. HORN, Per. D. S., No. 8332, for the se¼ S. 4, T. 152, R. 48. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: William Apple, M. Schwy, B. Tudemann and C. Stilts, all of Euclid, Polk Co., Minn.

[21-26] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 15th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 7th 1884, viz: HENRY WITTY, Pre. D. S., No. 8718, for the s½ se¼ and n½ se¼ S. 26, T. 147, R. 43. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Even Bjorke, Isaac Holm, Frank Vogel and Iver Krohn, all of Valley, P. O., Polk Co., Minn.

[21-26] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 18th, 1884,

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Oct. 30th, 1884, viz: SAMUEL CROOKSHANKS, H'd No. 2074, for the sw¼ S. 4, T. 151, R. 47. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: James Westover, Walter Letta, Robt Leal and H. Toussaint, all of Crookston, Polk Co., Minn.

[21-26] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 17th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 7th, 1884, viz: JACOB LARSON, Pre. D. S., No. 6866, for the nw¼ S. 12, T. 147, R. 44. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: J. B. Runguu, Ole Oleson Coston, Hans Aullson and Christopher Erickson, all of Aldal, Polk Co., Minn.

[21-26] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 16th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Oct 30th, 1884: viz: OLE PETERSON, H'd No. 2375, for the sw¼ S. 20, T. 150, R. 47. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: R. C. Jergenson, Jake Ide, Leonard Paulson and Iver C. Lamen, all of Andover, Polk Co., Minn.

[21-26] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 17th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 7th, 1884, viz: JOSEPH DURAND, H'd No. 7915, for the e½ sw¼ S. 14, T. 150, R. 48. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Ephraim Tremeley, L. Tillum, M. Lambert and John Borden, all of Terrebonne, Polk Co., Minn.

[21-26] JOHN CROMB, Register.

Money to Give Away IN BARGAINS, AT MARKHAM'S,

THE LEADING GROCERY HOUSE

AND THE LARGEST BOOT AND SHOE STORE

IN CROOKSTON.

Goods Delivered to any Part of the City FREE OF CHARGE

JEROME'S ADDITION TO THE CITY OF CROOKSTON IS NOW Offered for Sale

This is the finest Residence Property in the City. High and dry, good cellars, water, and well sheltered. Enclosed on three sides by the river, and only three blocks from the heart of the city and Post Office.

The Old Brick Block IS THE PLACE

To Buy Dry Goods, Groceries. Clothing, Boots and Shoe Hats and Caps, or anything you want.

FONTAINE & ANGLIM

IS THE FIRM

Who are ready, with a corps of affable clerks to show you their NEW FALL and WINTER STOCK and quote prices to astonish the natives.

Great Bargains!

Don't forget to visit Fontaine & Anglim's Emporium, in the Old Brick Block,

MAIN STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN.

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First Publication September 11th, 1884.]

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of one hundred and thirty-eight and 32-100 dollars, ($138.32-100) which is claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by William Franz Jaenike and Gische Jaenike his wife, mortgagors, to Isaac Rattenburg, mortgagee, bearing date the 28th day of August A. D. 1882, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 28th day of August A. D. 1882, at 5:00 o'clock p. m., in book "I" of mortgages, on pages 128, 129, 130 and 131, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The Southeast quarter (se¼) of Section No. fourteen (14,) of Township No. one hundred and fifty (150) north, of Range No. forty-six (46) west, in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 25th day of October A. D. 1884, at 10 o'clock a. m., of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated Crookston, Sept. 6th A. D. 1884.

ISAAC RATTENBURG,
Mortgagee.

JOHN McLEAN,
Attorney for Mortgagee. [22-26]

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 26th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 11th, 1884, viz: DAMASE LEDUC, H'd No. 9810, for the n½ sw¼ and n½ se¼ S. 32, T. 148, R. 46. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: T. Genereux, P. Genereux, E. Barrette and L. C. Courrette, all of Crookston, Polk Co., Minn.

[22-27] JOHN CROMB, Register.

If you don't want to take our word for it go and see that Van Dyke & Co. have one of the finest cigars you have smoked since.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, } ss. District Court,
County of Polk. } 11th Judicial District.

Carl Kretzschmar, Plaintiff,
vs.
The Red Lake Falls Milling and Lumber Company, a corporation, Defendant.

The State of Minnesota to the above named Defendant:

You are hereby summoned and required to answer the complaint of the Plaintiff in the above entitled action which has been filed with the clerk of the above court in his office in the Court House, in the City of Crookston, and County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, and to serve a copy of your answer to the said complaint on the subscriber at his office in the City of Crookston, in said county, within twenty days after the service of this summons upon you, exclusive of the day of such service; and if you fail to answer the said complaint within the time aforesaid, the Plaintiff in this action will take judgment against you for the sum of six thousand nine hundred and thirty-one dollars and sixty-eight cents ($6,931.68-100,) together with interest thereon from May 22d, 1884, besides the costs and disbursements of this action.

P. A. DUFOUR,
[21-27] Plaintiff's Att'y Crookston, Minn.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, } ss. District Court, 11th
County of Polk. } Judicial District.

Worth Harris and Benjamin F. Rogers, copartners as Harris & Rogers, Plaintiffs.
vs.
E. Wisterman, Defendant.

The State of Minnesota, to the above named Defendant.

You are hereby summoned and required to answer the complaint of the Plaintiff in the above entitled action which is filed in the office of the Clerk of the District Court of the Eleventh Judicial District, in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and to serve a copy of your answer to the said complaint on the subscriber, at his office in the city of Crookston in said county, within twenty days after the service of this summons upon you exclusive of the day of such service; and if you fail to answer the said complaint within the time aforesaid, the Plaintiff in this action will take judgment against you for the sum of one hundred and seventeen dollars and 93 cents, with interest at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum from the 1st day of October 1883, together with the costs and disbursements of this action.

Dated Crookston, Sept. 30th, 1884.

JOHN McLEAN,
Plaintiff's Attorney Crookston, Minn.
[22-27]

For Sale Cheap.

A complete set of bar fixtures. Call on August Wentzel for particulars.
[19-tf]

E. D. Schreader LIVERY, Feed and Sale Stable.

BEST TURNOUTS IN THE CITY.

Single or Double Rigs, with or without driver or

SADDLE HORSES

Always ready at a moments notice by day or night. If you want a Nobby Turnout call at the Red Barn, Corner Main and Third Streets,

CROOKSTON, - - - - MINNESOTA.

NEW DRUG STORE IN GARFIELD

DR. A NELSON, Prop.

The citizens of this town and vicinity are respectfully invited to call at my new Drug Store in the town of Garfield and examine my stock of

DRUGS, MEDICINES, PAINTS, OILS
AND YANKEE NOTIONS.

It is no longer necessary to go 40 or 55 miles for anything in this line, as I have a full supply at prices as reasonable as any town in the Northwest. Call and see

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON

I am also ready to answer all calls by day or night, for the practice of my profession. Call, or leave orders at my Drug Store in Garfield, Polk Co., Minn.

DR. A. NELSON.

First National Bank OF CROOKSTON.

PAID IN CAPITAL,	$100,000
SURPLUS,	1,400

Money to loan on long or short time on approved security

Interest on time deposits. Faithful attention to Collections and prompt remittance.

GEO. O. ERSKINE, President.
K. D. CHASE, Vice President.
ANSEL BATES, [illegible]

A. YVERNAULT,

Dealer in

General Merchandise,

—MAIN STREET.—

Crookston, - - - Minn.

All [illegible] my friends, both old and new, are cordially invited to call and examine my stock and get prices.

Fortier's Place,

Corner Broadway and Robert Street

EVERYTHING .... NEW, NEAT

—AND NOBBY.—

Billiards, Pool, and the Choicest Wines, Liquors and Cigars. The purest High Proof Whiskies at wholesale prices

PURE IMPORTED GOODS ON DROUGHT.

P. A. DUFOUR,

Attorney and Counselor at Law,

—MAIN STREET,—

CROOKSTON, - - - MINN.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Oct. 2d, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 8th, 1884, viz: THOMAS WALLACE, H'd No. 2776, for the nw¼ S. 34, T. 149 n. R. 46 w. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Peter Nissen, James Moore, Hans Clausen and Mathew Baatz, all of Crookston, Polk Co., Minn.

[21-26] JOHN CROMB, Register.

MERCHANTS' HOTEL,

J. E. MITTON, Proprietor,

CORNER BROADWAY AND ROBERT STREET,

CROOKSTON, MINN.

The new Merchants' Hotel, recently re-fitted and re-furnished is now ready to accommodate the traveling public, who are cordially invited to stop at the Merchants' when in the city.

The Polk County Journal.

H. E. COOKE, Proprietor. DEVOTED TO THE WELFARE OF POLK COUNTY. TERMS—$1.50 Per Annum.

VOL. VIII. CROOKSTON, POLK COUNTY, MINNESOTA, OCTOBER 30, 1884. NO. 27

Polk County Journal.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY.

H. E. COOKE, Editor and Proprietor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Dollar and Fifty Cents. If paid in advance, to any address inside of Polk County. If outside of Polk County 15 cents must be added for postage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum to any address.

ADVERTISING RATES.

SPACE.	1 w.	2 w.	3 w.	1 m.	2 m	6 m.	1 year
½ inch...	50	$1 00	$1 15	$1 50	$3 00	4 50	$ 8 00
1 inch......	75	1 25	1 75	2 00	5 50	6 00	10 00
2 inches...	1 00	2 25	3 00	3 50	6 50	9 50	15 00
3 inches...	1 75	2 75	3 75	4 50	9 50	13 50	20 00
4 inches...	2 50	3 50	4 50	5 50	10 00	10 00	25 00
5 inches...	3 00	4 00	5 00	6 00	12 50	20 00	30 00
¼ column	3 50	5 50	5 50	6 50	15 00	25 00	35 00
½ column	6 00	7 50	10 00	12 00	20 00	35 00	50 00
1 column..	9 50	12 50	15 00	15 00	25 00	60 00	100 00

Entered at the Post Office in Crookston as Second Class matter.

VOTE THE STRAIGHT TICKET.

As this is our last issue before election day we cannot refrain from one more word to the Republican voters of the county. We would urge upon all the importance of voting the straight Republican ticket as it is the best one in the field, and the Republican party needs a solid party vote this fall. The straight Republican ticket is the best one in the field and there is no good excuse for any Republican to leave his party for any independent or any other ticket in the field. From President down to Coroner the best men are found on the Republican ticket. Compare Jas. G. Blaine's record with any other candidate's—Belva Lockwood not excepted—and you will find the best man and the greatest statesman of the age. So with the citizen soldier, Logan. For member of Congress our candidate the Hon. Knute Nelson, has been tried and not found wanting. He has earned the reputation of being the hardest worker in Congress and has gained the respect of his fellows in the House, thus rendering him best fitted to work for our interests. The Red Lake Reservation Pine Bill will be one of the most important measures he will have to consider for this locality, and the Democratic nominee, Col. Baxter, told us when he was in the city a few days since that Nelson has done, and is doing, all that any man can do to obtain the passage of that bill. Mr. Nelson's record shows that he has done important work for this country. He deserves a re-election and will get it, but it should be by an overwhelming majority. For the Legislature the farmers have succeeded in nominating a true, an honest farmer, Mr. Charles Canning, and he is a man who will draw his full party strength besides taking a large Democratic vote. This is an issue upon which all alike are interested and every man who is interested in the welfare of this country will cast his vote for the farmers' candidate. Come we now to the Republican county ticket. We only ask the voters to compare that with the opposition and their good sense will convince them that it is the best one in the field. Do not be led astray by false statements. The Republican party needs the services of all of its friends this fall and there is no valid reason why its friends should not stick to their party. Vote the straight Republican ticket.

THE MONOPOLY.

We have it on what we consider good authority that Lee & Herrick recently applied to the Pillsbury & Hurlbut Elevator Co., to rent bins in their elevator here and that Mr. Herrick was summoned by a telegram to meet Mr. Hurlbut or Mr. Pillsbury at the depot on a certain night. He went and upon arrival of the train the great mogul was there but instead of saying anything about elevator room commenced to blow because Lee & Herrick had previously been paying a slight advance on elevator prices. After a short lecture the mogul re-entered the car saying to Mr. Herrick, "you must do as we do or we will SHUT YOU OFF!"

What did that threat mean? Did it mean that P. & H. would raise on the prices? Probably not as they are not fond of that sort of thing. Did it mean that they influence matters so that Lee & Herrick's freight rates on flour would take care of their profits? We have heard it so intimated. If this be the case where does the P. & H. Co., get their power? In any case it shows that the P. & H. Co., either have or think they have a power to crush out any competition that may arise even in ever so small a degree as the present case and this power is used against the interests of this country. If this be true it is high time that something was done to guard the business interests of this country. If our millers cannot grind what little wheat they are able and pay all they can afford to for it what encouragement can we offer to capitalists to build mills here and grind our wheat? Has it come to that pass that a few men absolutely own and control this country and that all the farmers and wheat-raisers in it are merely slaves, working for their masters? If the Pillsbury & Hurlbut elevator Co., have the power to "shut off" our mills at their pleasure then are we nothing more nor less than a set of degraded slaves to the P. & H. Co.!! These things all show that the system is all wrong and that something must be done to correct it. There must be a searching investigation by the Legislature and that body must find and apply the remedy. We trust that every farmer who reads these lines will remember the sacred duty he owes this country and vote for only those who have proven themselves the friends of the country by their actions. There is a great and important work to be done and none but old soldiers should be entrusted with it. See that no man goes into the Legislature who is not now and who has not been heretofore fully identified with this great work. We want men of large views, men who are wholly incorruptible, men who cannot be reached by any influence that may be brought to bear against them to prevent them from discharging this great and solemn duty. The fate of this country for years now hangs trembling in the balance! It depends upon the character of the men selected to represent it in the Legislature and it remains with the voters to say who they shall be! We would urge this fact upon all and counsel them to be careful in their choice. Don't vote hastily and carelessly and for men whom, if elected you will never cease to regret. Stick to the farmers' ticket!

Dockage.

The Pillsbury & Hurlbut Elevator Co., claim that they are very anxious to find authentic cases of excessive dockage so that they can rectify them. Here is a sample case for them. In September, Mr. S. L. Dobson threshed his wheat and brought it to the P. & H. elevator. After a large quantity had been delivered he suspected shortage in weights and had one load driven upon Steege's scales and weighed afterward delivered to the elevator—Pillsbury & Hurlbut's elevator—and that load fell short just FOUR BUSHELS AND FORTY POUNDS!

We imagine that the P. & H. Co. would be kept pretty busy if they attempted to follow up and correct every case wherein the farmer is wronged even if they have—as they claim to have—a desire to do so. But supposing they do not wish to correct such slight "errors" in weights and others in judgment and all others by which the farmer is wronged every time? What then? What recourse has the farmer? Absolutely none under the present system and the only thing he can do at all is to see that men are elected to the Legislature who will do what they can to provide a system that will afford the farmer an equal chance. Wheat is lower this fall than it has ever been but the elevators charge just as much storage and all of the other trumped up charges as ever. The freights are proportionately as high as ever and there is absolutely no apparent remedy. Is it right that the elevator companies should charge such rates as enables them to pay the first cost of every elevator and its running expenses every year? Under the present system that is what they do and yet they claim that we have an open wheat market up here. They tell us that we may put our wheat through their houses consigned to any man or at any point we choose. Yes, we may do that but there is not one cent abated from the elevator charges even when the shipper takes his own insurance risks and the so-called "charges for the chattel mortgage laws!" and all the rest of it. If a shipper wishes to and does secure a car, load his own wheat therein and ships it away himself he yet has to pay some elevator company just as much as though they did it for him. Is THAT A FREE and OPEN market? Has not the elevator system become a direct tax upon the country which the country must pay whether the people wish or not? Who gives the elevator companies the power they have and protects them in its use? Is it conferred by the constitution of the United States, or is it conferred by the State, or, coming down a little closer is it conferred by the Railroad Company? If done by the Railroad Company what power have they under the constitution too protect one man or set of men against the rights of another man or set of men? There is something radically wrong in this system, something that demands legislative investigation and the adoption of some means of redress if it can be found. Who are best calculated to for this work, if not those farmers who have suffered from the effects of this pernicious system? Our own Charles Canning has been through the mill and understands this matter pretty well. That he will be elected there can be no doubt. Every district affected by the system should see that proper men are elected to attend to this matter. Over in Dakota the people have selected such men as Dr. Collins and Theodore Holton, men of broad, comprehensive views, men of large and ripe experience and if they are wise they will see that those men are elected by large majorities. It is a matter of life and death to the business interests of the country, for, while we have the best wheat country in the world what earthly good is it if men cannot make anything raising wheat? The present system takes all of the profits away from the producer and gives it to the elevator men and the millers. We can see but two things, one of which must be done. Either change the present system so that farmers can live under it or sell out and get out of the country. We cannot do the latter because no one will buy our farms if they can't make anything out of them so the former must be done or else farmers must get out of the country the best way they can. We believe that proper legislature judiciously applied can effect the desired change. A vote for the farmers' candidates is a vote for the prosperity of this country for all time to come.

A Nut to Crack.

The Western Plowman, Moline, Illinois, offers a prize of Five Dollars in gold to the first one of its subscribers sending in before November 1st, a correct solution of the following problem: "A borrows of B $10,000 for years at six per cent. per annum. On the same day, B, having use for the money borrows it back, giving his note for three years at ten per cent. per annum. They now propose to settle the whole transaction, A taking up his own note and surrendering B's. How should they settle?"

The Western Plowman is a handsomely printed twenty page magazine, filled with interesting and valuable matter for the home, farm and family. It is published at the low price of fifty cents per annum, or fifteen cents for three months, including a book premium. Call at this office and see a sample copy, and if desired we will forward your subscription.

The field is full of every conceivable shade and complexion of tickets. Don't be fooled. BE SURE you have the straight Republican ticket right through before you vote. Read your ticket carefully and see that every man thereon is the regular straight Republican nominee before you vote it. Vote the straight Republican ticket!

A. A. JUST, M. D.,
Homoeopathic Physician and Surgeon.
Rooms corner Main street and Fletcher Avenue, over Eiken Bros, Hardware Store,
CROOKSTON, POLK COUNTY, MINN.

WANTED!
5,000 Men, Women and Children
—TO VISIT—
HACK & GALLASCH'
General Store, where you can buy
13 lbs. Pure Sugar for.....$1.00
12 lbs. Turkish Prunes for.....1.00
5 three lb. cans Table Peaches for.. 1.00
Japan Tea from.....20 to 60 cts per lb
1 long bar of soap and 1 towel, all for.....25c
Our stock of
DRY GOODS, NOTIONS, AND DRESS GOODS IS COMPLETE.
Don't fail to visit our Shoe and Slipper department before buying elsewhere New and complete stock of Groceries Crockery, Glassware, Flour and Feed.
We pay the highest market price for Butter, Eggs, Snake Root, Etc.
Call and see us. NO TROUBLE TO SHOW GOODS.
Cor. Main and Second Street.

Bigham & Olafson
(Successors to Juve & Bergland,)
THE POPULAR MERCHANTS ON
MAIN STREET, CROOKSTON
Have on hand and are constantly receiving full lines of
DRY GOODS, GROCERIES,
CROCKERY,
CLOTHING,
BOOTS AND SHOES,
HATS AND CAPS
In fact everything usually found in first-class general store.
Our goods are bought with great care and will be sold at LOW PRICES
FOR CASH.

MERCHANTS' BILLIARD HALL,
FRED ANDERSON, Proprietor.
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.
The choicest Wines, Liquors and Cigars constantly on hand.

Tom Morris,
—THE—
CITY
JEWELER
Represents the
CELEBRATED
Rockford Quick Train
WATCH
THE ONLY
Railroad
Watch
IN EXISTENCE.

Christening and Wedding Cakes Made upon Shortest Notice in the Best Style.
A Choice and Well Selected Stock of Confectionery Always on hand.
John Crawford & Son,
Proprietors of Crawford's
Bakery,
SECOND STREET,
Crookston, Minn
CONFECTIONERY
Fresh Bread, Buns, Cakes and Biscuits. All Articles in the Fancy Baking Line.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Oct. 24th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Dec. 7th, 1884, viz: JONATHAN MELLOTTE, H'd No. 2455, for the se¼ 8, 10, T. 152, R. 46. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: John Salentine, Jacob Hill, E. J. Haseltine and Nicholas Engle, all of Euclid, Polk Co., Minn.
[27-32] JOHN CROMB, Register.

Groceries, Provisions,
Flour, Feed
SMOKED, DRIED AND SALT
MEATS,
TEAS,
COFFEES,
SUGARS,
SPICES,
ETC.
Highest Market Price Paid for
FARM PRODUCE,
Bauchman & Millette.
Broadway, Opposite the Post Office,
Crookston, Minn.

NEW LIVERY,
Feed and Sale
STABLES.,
CORNER MAIN AND FOURTH STS.,
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA
TERRY & COLLINS, Prop's.
Good Turnouts at all times a reasonable prices. Good Hearse and careful driver when needed.

Fall Goods! Fall Goods!
NEW YORK STORE.
We have Received a Full Line of
Staple and Fancy Dry Goods.
Notions Boots and Shoes,
which we are offering at Low Prices.
We show in
DRESS GOODS
One of the Best Selected stocks in the city. All the fall and winter shades.
We call special attention to our line of
BLACK CASHMERES,
We ask comparison.
Black and Colored Silks and Satins.
We show an exceptionally fine line in these goods.
NOTIONS,
Hosiery and Underwear. Knit Goods and Shawls, Ribbons, White Goods and Linens. Embroideries and Laces, Corsets and Gloves, Etc., Etc.
VELVETS,
Black and Colored. Blankets, flannels and Quilts,
—CHEAP— —CHEAP— —CHEAP—
CANTON FLANNELS,
Bleached and unbleached and colored. Domestics of all kinds. Prints, ginghams, sheetings, jeans, ticking, cotton batting, &c., &c.
Hats and caps, complete stock. CARPETS, we have a full line of samples of Body Brussels, Tapestry and Ingrain.
BOOTS AND SHOES
of well known makes. We make a special effort to have this department one of the most complete in the city.
All our stock has been selected with all possible care, having all the advantages that cash and experience can buy for us, we feel safe in guaranteeing all our customers as low prices, if not lower, than can be obtained elsewhere, quality taken into consideration.
---- A CALL SOLICITED. ----
PROUD & MACDONELL.

Johnson & Stephens,
FISHER AND CROOKSTON,
WILL NEGOTIATE LOANS!
Through the Corbin Banking Co., New York,
SELL MINNESOTA CHIEF
Threshers and Engines,
Deering and Esterly Binders,
Studebaker Wagons,
and a variety of Rakes, Mowers, Plows, Etc., Etc.
KEEP A MORE
COMPLETE LINE OF REPAIRS
than any agency in the County.
Twine and Wire In Season.

FARMERS, FARMERS,
WE ARE
Selling Lower Than Ever!
You will always find it to your advantage to
Trade with Us!
We Sell the Best for the LOWEST LIVING PRICES. Remember the place,
Broadway, bet. 2d and Robert Sts.
D. BUCHANAN.

JOHN N. IVES.
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
Collection and Land Office Business made a specialty. Money secured for final proofs on short notice.
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

Crookston Tonsorial
PARLORS.
PROF. THOMPSON, Proprietor.
Robert Street, Crookston, Minn.
Shaving, hair dressing and all work in my line promptly attended to the latest style of the art. Give me a call.

EIKEN BROS.,
Corner of Fletcher and Main Stree
Crookston, Minn.
Dealers in
HARDWARE, TIWARE,
STOVES,
—AND—
SHELFWARE.
WE KEEP A
FULL & COMPLETE STOCK,
—AND—
Invite the Patronage
OF ALL.

A. H. DUNLOP M. D.,
Graduate McGill University, Montreal.
LICENSED COLLEGE PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON QUEBEC.
Office on Robert Street, Crookston.

SECOND STREET
MEAT MARKET
STANTON & CO., Proprietors.
Choice meats of every description. Fish and game in their season. Everything of the very best quality and lowest prices. Call and see us.
STANTON & CO.,
Dobson's Block, Second Street.

The Red Lake Falls
FLOURING
MILL
Has lately been enlarged and is now prepared to do custom work without delay. Stable room free.
BUSE & COLBENTSON,
Proprietors, Red Lake Falls, Minn.

CITY ICE HOUSE!
E. D. SCHRAEDER & CO., Proprietors,
CROOKSTON, MINN.
Having purchased the ice house business of Ruedy & Kindler, and put up during the past winter from 75,000 to 100,000 tons of ice, we are now prepared to supply the trade the coming summer at reasonable figures.
E. D. SCHRAEDER & Co.

DENTISTRY.
J. H. THOMAS, D. D. S.,
ROBERT STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN.
Artificial Teeth from one to an entire set inserted. Gold, Silver or Artificial Filling used as desired. Regulating Children's Teeth a specialty. ALL WORK WARRANTED.

AIME GABOURY,
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,
Graduate Doctor in Medicine Laval University Canada. Licensed Coll. Phy. Surg., Quebec Late of Michigan University, U. S.
Office over the "Arcade" Clothing Store,
CROOKSTON MINN

Commercial Hotel,
W. H. TOPPING, Proprietor
SECOND STREET, CROOKSTON MINN
First-class in all respects. Terms reasonable. A share of the public patronage solicited.

First National Bank
OF CROOKSTON.
PAID IN CAPITAL, $100,000
SURPLUS, 1,400
Money to loan on long or short time on approved security
Interest on time deposits. Faithful attention to Collections and prompt remittance.
GEO. O. ERSKINE, President.
K. D. CHASE, Vice President.
ANSEL BATES, Cash

M. M. VAN DYKE,
Physician and Surgeon,
Corner of Main and Second Streets,
CROOKSTON MINN
Will attend to all professional calls promptly.
JOHN LEO. H. STEENERSON.

Polk County Journal.

Crookston, Minn., Thursday, October 30.

THE MARKETS.

Wheat is quoted in this market today as follows:

No. 1 Hard 57 cents.
No. 2 Hard 53 cents.
No. 1 Regular 53 cents.
No. 2 Regular 48 cents.

FLOUR:
Best,	per cwt.	$3.25
2d	"	3.00
3d	"	2.75
4th	"	1.57

At Minneapolis:

No. 1 Hard 79 cents.
No. 2 Hard no quotations.
No. 1 Regular 69 cents.

Duluth quotations are as follows:

No. 1 Hard 79 cents.
No. 2 " 76½ cents.
No. 1 Northern 77 cents.
No. 1 Regular 73 cents.

Vote the straight Republican ticket.

Herb's is the place for the simon pure article in taffy.

A choice lot of genuine New York sweet cider just received at Herb's Branch.

What's the matter with those cigars of Van Dyke & Co's, if it is a good one you like.

Big auction sale of ladies' goods at Frank M. Brown's Commission Store on Friday evening.

If you want some nice sweet New York cider vote the straight Republican ticket go to Herb's Branch.

Ed. Wile tells our readers in a big half-page announcement what he is prepared to do for them in clothing.

Young man, your best girl needs dead loads of taffy! Go to Herb's for the genuine article and vote the straight Republican ticket.

Mrs. D. Brower left for California on Monday evening. The Judge will follow in about a week and vote the straight Republican ticket.

You New York fellers if you want to taste something that will remind you of the old home go to Herb's and try some of that nice sweet New York cider.

Ladies don't forget the auction sale at Frank M. Brown's Commission Store, two doors north of the Merchant's Bank and vote the straight Republican ticket.

The reason why the girls all like Herb—taffy! The reason why he don't catch on somewhere—too much taffy! Young man, go there and do likewise and be happy.

Election tickets will be printed at this office at $5 per thousand. Cash must accompany each order to receive attention. Don't ask for credit on tickets as they must be cash in every case.

Frank M. Brown will vote the straight Republican ticket offer the ladies an opportunity to secure underwear and dress goods at auction to-morrow evening vote the straight Republican ticket.

Ed Wile is one of the progressive business men of the city who—vote the straight Republican ticket—is not afraid to spend money in printer's ink to enlighten the world, vote the straight Republican ticket.

The nominees of the Republican party are all men worthy of implicit confidence. Let no miserable lies, concocted and sprung at the last moment, influence any voter to leave his party. Vote the straight Republican ticket.

News from all over the county is cheering for the straight Republican ticket. Its friends are all on deck and will do all they can for its success and all that remains to elect it is for every Republican to work and vote the straight Republican ticket.

No use to go to St. Paul or Minneapolis for clothing when Ed. Wile offers you a suit as cheap as you can buy them in America. See the Big Announcement of the Excelsior One Price Clothing Store elsewhere in this issue and go and look over the stock. It will pay you!

Van Dyke & Co, have their store neatly papered and are arranging the goods in attractive form, giving the store a very neat and tasty appearance. They are now prepared to greet their customers and attend to their wants promptly and invite all to drop in and vote the straight Republican ticket look them over.

Mr. E. W. Wile of the popular Excelsior Clothing House has offered an election prize, which is well worthy of the attention of our readers. Any one who can correctly fill out the electoral vote given next Tuesday receives $25 worth of clothing or furnishing goods. Call and get one of the blanks and vote the straight Republican ticket.

On Saturday night the down train was ditched by a burned culvert between this city and Ada. The engine and two cars left the track but did not up set. A wrecking train and crew was sent from here to the scene of the accident and the damage soon repaired. When the up train arrived the passengers traded trains the down train returning north and the other returning to St. Paul. Nobody hurt.

Jake Francis met with a severe accident at the mill, on Monday that might well have resulted more disastrously to him. He was working on the edger when a knot catching the saw caused his right hand to be drawn on the saw, cutting three fingers severely. Though the wounds are severe, Jake philosophically rejoices that they were no worse and he will vote the straight Republican ticket with his left hand.

If you want a cheap suit of clothes vote the straight Republican ticket take a stroll to Wile's cheap cash clothing store and vote the straight Republican ticket.

Come and buy good goods at you own prices, at VAN DYKE & Co's.

Mr. Wm. Klinger, an old resident of the town of Lowell, died on Sunday at the age of 67 years, and was buried on Tuesday. The remains were escorted to their last resting place by a host of his old neighbors and friends. He leaves a wife and nine children to mourn his loss. He was a man very highly respected by all who knew him.

If you want a rattling good cigar, don't take our word for it, but take ten cents and go and try one of those what you read about at Van Dyke & Co's.

Grand Republican Rally.

The Opera House was packed to its fullest vote the straight Republican ticket on Wednesday evening to listen to vote the straight Republican ticket, eloquent addresses delivered by the Hon. S. G. Comstock, of Moorhead, vote the straight Republican ticket, M. E. Clapp, Esq., of Fergus Falls, vote the straight Republican ticket and Judge R. E. Reynolds, of Crookston, vote the straight Republican ticket. The Crookston Cornet Band, not a member of which will not vote the straight Republican ticket compare favorably with any member of any band in America, discoursed loyal music right royally, while the sweet smiles of lovely ladies vote the straight Republican ticket lent added charm to the occasion. The officers of the Blaine and Logan club vote the straight Republican ticket were seated on the platform giving ECLAT and all that vote the straight Republican ticket sort of thing. Upon the whole it was the most successful meeting of the season. Vote the straight Republican ticket.

For the next 30 days we are bound to ell goods 50 per cent. below cost in order to make room for new stock.
VAN DYKE & CO.

Taffy Business.

Herb Mason has been down to St. Paul and learned the art of making taffy and now no young man is prepared to go to see her without he first visits Herb's and fills up his pocket up with taffy. We are not giving you taffy, young feller, if you doubt it go and ask Herb Mason.

Very desirable houses to rent. Inquire of S. Clark, First National Bank. [25-tf]

Auction Sale.

An auction sale will be held on Friday evening of this week for ladies only at Frank M. Brown's Commission Store.

Many have talked low tariff, but few have acted. Frank Brown is offering his goods without tariff. [26-27]

FOUND,

A store key. The owner can recover by calling, proving property and paying for this notice.

A fine lot of toilet articles to be sold very low, at VAN DYKE & Co's.

DRESSMAKING.

Cloak Cleaning and Repairing.

Mrs. Mossefin and Mrs. Dahl would inform the ladies of Crookston and vicinity that they are now prepared to do dressmaking in all of the latest styles and at reasonable figures. Cloaks cleaned and repaired, neatly, cheaply and promptly. One door south of Westenberg's boarding house, Main street, between Fletcher and Loring avenues. [26-29]

Van Dyke & Co. offer fancy goods lower than ever.

Look Here!

In Gjerberg Bro's. new tailor shop, one door south of the post office will all kinds of tailor work be done at lowest prices. Remember the chemical cloth cleaning. Try us and we will guarantee you satisfaction. Yours respectfully,
[36-28] GJERBERG BRO'S.

In anticipation of Cleveland's election Frank Brown is selling goods on the basis of what will follow his election—low tariff. [26-27]

Send Money by American Express or Money Orders. Receipts given. Money refunded if Orders are lost. Sold at all offices of the Company. Payable at 6,500 places. RATES: To $5-5c.: $10-8c.: $20-10c.: $30-12.: $40-15.: $50-20c. [2-27]

Low tariff has had a disastrous effect on No. 1 Hard, but farmers and others can recover part of the loss by buying goods of Frank Brown. [26-27]

Close buyers have found out that Hack & Gallasch's store is the place for bargains.

Money to Loan.

ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS to loan on improved farms from THREE to FIVE years time at very reasonable rates. Apply at my office on Broadway, in U. S. Land Office building.
[14tf] H. STEENERSON.

Attention Farmers.

As wheat brings very little money this fall and it is for your interest to buy good goods cheap, don't fail to call on Hack & Gallasch. We have marked our goods very low and will not fail to please you.

Prescriptions put up carefully at all times of the day or night, at
VAN DYKE & Co's.

If you don't want to take our word for it go and see that Van Dyke & Co have one of the finest cigars you have smoked since.

E. D. CHILDS & CO.,
Proprietors of
CARMAN TOWNSITE,
AND
Dealers in Real Estate!

LIST OF LETTERS

Remaining uncalled for in the Crookston Post Office, for the week ending Oct. 27th, 1884. Persons calling for these letters will please say "advertised."

Anderson, Wm
Applynist, A J
Bourman, J D
Brooks, Jennie
Bullock, Isac
Briggs, E
Bragg, Henery
Erikson, Mathilde
Fisher, John W
Gulbrunsen, Edvart
Gulling, Else O
Graves, W M
Hollawtsch, Andrews
Hosstad, Peter E
Ingbretson, John
Jennie, Mrs
Mitum, John A
Nelson, Miss Mary
Polero, Simon
Peterson, Marie
Richard Charles
Skjairde, Sams Erickson
Skyland, Albert K
Sundin, E A
Testy, Frank
Tor ber gsen, C
West, E B
Walinsberg, Albertina C
Waloff, Frank
Young, James

D. JACOBUS, P. M.

STAATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk. } ss. District Court, 11th Judicial District.
Carl Kretzschmar, Plaintiff. against The Red Lake Falls Milling and Lumber Company a corporation, Defendant.

The State of Minnesota to the above named Defendant:

You are hereby summoned and required to answer the complaint of the Plaintiff in the above entitled action which is filed in the office of the Clerk of the District Court of the Eleventh Judicial District, in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, and to serve a copy of your answer to the said complaint on the subscriber at his office in the city of Crookston, in said county, within twenty days after the service of this summons upon you, exclusive of the day of such service; and if you fail to answer the said complaint within the time aforesaid, the plaintiff in this action will apply to the court for the relief demanded in the complaint.

Dated October 11th, A. D. 1884.
P. A. DUFOUR,
[27-33] Plaintiff's Attorney, Crookston.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Oct. 29th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Dec. 6th, 1884, viz: JAMES MOORE, Pre. D. S. No. 8375, for the ne¼ S. 30, T. 149, R. 45. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Sylvester Sylvesterson, Joseph Sylvesterson, Peder O. Kroken and Thomas Wallace, all of Crookston, Minn.
[27-32] JOHN CROMB, Register.

BERG & OLSON,
PRACTICAL WATCHMAKERS,
AND DEALERS IN CLOCKS,
WATCHES,
JEWELRY,
ROBERT STREET,
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

For Sale Cheap.

A complete set of bar fixtures. Call on August Wentzel for particulars. [19-tf]

NEW DRUG STORE
IN GARFIELD
DR. A NELSON, Prop.

The citizens of this town and vicinity are respectfully invited to call at my new Drug Store in the town of Garfield and examine my stock of

DRUGS, MEDICINES, PAINTS, OILS AND YANKEE NOTIONS.

It is no longer necessary to go 40 or 55 miles for anything in this line, as I have a full supply at prices as reasonable as any town in the Northwest. Call and see.

PHYSICIAN & SURGEON

I am also ready to answer all calls by day or night, for the practice of my profession. Call, or leave orders at my Drug Store in Garfield, Polk Co., Minn.
DR. A. NELSON.

MERCHANTS' Bank of Crookston.

H. B. MONTGOMERY.........President, St. Paul, Minn.
M. R. BROWN,............Vice President, Crookston, Minn.
J. KELSO.........Second Vice President, Bellevue, Iowa.
Wm. ROSS.......................Cashier, Crookston, Minn.

CASH CAPITAL, $32,000
SURPLUS, $16,533.82.

Will receive deposits and allow interest by special contract.

Buy and Sell Foreign and Domestic Exchange, make collections, and do a strictly legitimate business.

Agents for foreign passage tickets.

De Skandinaviske Sprog tales her.
WM. ROSS, Cashier.

WM. WATTS,
ATTORNEY AT LAW,
AND DEALER IN
REAL ESTATE.
OFFICE OVER MERCHANTS' BANK.

Frank M. Brown,
COMMISSION STORE,
Main Street, - Crookston.
TWO DOORS NORTH OF MERCHANTS' BANK.

Consignments of Goods for QUICK CASH SALES SOLICITED.

DR. M. WATTS.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON.
OFFICE ON ROBERT STREET.

Professional calls by day or night attended to with promptness.

Wentzel & Rauch,
Sample Rooms.
MAIN STREET, - - CROOKSTON, MINN.

For a fine mixed or straight drink call on the boys. The choicest liquors and cigars in stock. [9-tf]

THE PIONEER
HARNESS SHOP.
M. RAUENBUEHLER, Proprietor,
CORNER OAK AND THIRD STS., CROOKSTON MINN

Is ready for the Spring trade with a full supply of Work and Light Harness. Single and Double, saddles, Bridles, Whips, Blankets, etc. Give me a call before you purchase.

A. Allen,
AGENT FOR THE HOWE
SCALE
COMPANY.

Fortier's Place,
Corner Broadway and Robert Street

EVERYTHING NEW, NEAT
AND NOBBY.

Billiards, Pool, and the Choicest Wines, Liquor and Cigars. The purest High Proof Whiskies at wholesale prices.

PURE IMPORTED GOODS ON DROUGHT.

P. A. DUFOUR,
Attorney and Counselor at Law,
MAIN STREET,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

Commercial Hotel,
W. H. TOPPING, Proprietor
SECOND STREET, CROOKSTON MINN

First-class in all respects. Terms reasonable. A share of the public patronage solicited.

First National Bank
OF CROOKSTON.

PAID IN CAPITAL, $100,000
SURPLUS, 1,400

Money to loan on long or short time on approved security.

Interest on time deposits. Faithful attention to Collections and prompt remittance.

GEO. O. ERSKINE, President.
K. D. CHASE, Vice President.
ANSEL BATES, Cash.

MERCHANTS' HOTEL,
J. E. MITTON, Proprietor.
CORNER BROADWAY AND ROBERT STREET,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

The new Merchants' Hotel, recently re-fitted and re-furnished is now ready to accommodate the travelling public, who are cordially invited to stop at the Merchants' when in the city.

LEO & STEENERSON.
ATTORNEYS AT LAW
Room 3, U. S. Land Office Building,
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

CHEAPEST AND BEST!

Peterson's Magazine!
Unequaled Premiums for 1885

FULL-SIZE DRESS PATTERNS.

Peterson's Magazine is the best and cheapest of the lady's books. It gives more for the money and combines greater merits, than any other. Its immense circulation and long-established reputation enable its proprietor to distance all competition. In short, it has the

Best Steel Engravings,
Best Colored Fashions,
Best Dress Patterns,
Best Original Stories,
Best Work-Table Patterns,
Best Music, Etc., Etc.

The stories, novelets, etc., in "Peterson," are admitted to be the best published. All the most popular female writers contribute to it. Every month, a Full Size Dress Pattern is given, which is alone worth the price of the number. Every month, also, there appears a engraved on steel, twice the size of others, and superbly colored. Also, Household, Cookery, and other receipts; articles on Art Embroidery, Flower Culture, House Decoration—in short, everything interesting to ladies.

Colored Steel Fashion-Plate!

TERMS, ALWAYS IN ADVANCE, $2.00 A YEAR.

Unparalleled Offers to Clubs.

2 Copies for $3.50, 3 Copies for $4.50
With the "Pearl of Price," a splendid illustrated volume of poetry, or large steel-engraving, "The Lion in Love," for getting up club.

4 Copies for $6.50, 6 Copies for $9.00
With an extra copy of the Magazine for 1885, as a premium, to the person getting up the club.

5 Copies for $8.00, 7 Copies for $10.50
With both an extra copy of the Magazine for 1885, and the large steel-engraving, or the "Pearl of Price," to the person getting up the club.

For larger clubs still greater inducements.

Address, post-paid,
CHARLES J. PETERSON,
306 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Specimens sent gratis, if written for, to get up clubs with.

THE
St. Paul, Minneapolis
AND Manitoba
RAILWAY,
WITH ITS
1,400 Miles of Road
Is the only line extending through the
Park Region of Minnesota,
To all principal points in
Red River Valley,
Northern Minnesota,
Northern Dakota,
And to Devil's Lake and Turtle Mountain Districts.
CONTAINING OVER
9,000,000 Acres
GOVERNMENT LANDS!

The Land department of the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway has exclusive charge of the Company's Lands in Minnesota, and all correspondence relative to the purchase of lands, terms, description or price of any particular tract should be addressed to that department. Maps and pamphlets describing the country and giving rates of fare to settlers, etc., mailed FREE on application.

JAS. B. POWER,
Land and Immigration Commissioner
C. H. WARREN,
General Passenger Agent,
St. P., M. & M. R'y., St. Paul, Minn.

Crookston Nurseries
ESTABLISHED IN 1879.

Tree Claim Stock.

I desire to inform my customers and others that I shall make a great reduction from former prices on forest trees and seeds for tree-claims. I have good thrifty two year old trees, such as Box Elder, Ash and Cottonwood to sell by the thousand. I also furnish the hardier varieties of

SMALL FRUITS,

Such as Currants, Gooseberries, Raspberries and Strawberry plants, and young, thrifty Transcendent and Hislop Crab Apple trees. The firm of Haseltine Bros. having dissolved, I still continue business on the

OLD NURSERY GROUNDS

in Crookston. Hoping by fair dealing and promptness with my customers to merit their patronage.

Don't fail to write for Catalogue and Prices.

ALL COMMUNICATIONS PROMPTLY ANSWERED.

F. T. HASELTINE,
Proprietor of the Crookston Nurseries, Crookston, Minn.

FURNITURE STORE,
BROADWAY, CROOKSTON MINNESOTA.
P. BATAGLIA, Prop.

Keeps constantly on hand a well selected stock of Wardrobes, Bureaus, Sofas, Lounges, Bed Steads, Bed Springs, Tables, Chairs, Rocking Chairs, Stands, Ornaments, Picture Mouldings, and Picture Frames. REPAIRING DONE TO ORDER. Coffins of all kinds kept constantly on hand.

ATTENTION
Now is the Time to Build
While you can buy
Cream Brick
at Very Low Figures. The Best Brick ever made in the Red River Valley. Manufactured by SWANSON & KOEPPE,
[11-18] Crookston, Minn.

Just received. A car-load of Buggies selected by an experienced carriage-builder all warranted. Call early and select one. McKinnon Bros.

McKINNON BROS.,
Carriage Works
Robert Street,
Crookston, - Minn.
AGENTS FOR THE
J. I. CASE THRESHING MACHINES!
And Manufacturers of Carriages, Wagons,
BUGGIES,
Cutters, Sleds, &c.
Axles, Springs, and all Repairs kept in stock,
DEALERS IN
FARM MACHINERY.

In Farm Machinery we have the Champion Seeder, Fargo Diamond Tooth Harrow, Kalamazoo Spring Tooth Harrow, Davenport and Grand Detour Sulky and Walking Plows, Buford Gang Plows, Field Rollers of all sizes, Warrior Mowers, the leading Hay Rake and first-class Harvesters and Binders, the Webber Wagon and McKinnon Bros. Wagon. In fact we have everything in machinery, from

A Wheelbarrow to a Threshing Machine!

EXTRAS

For all Machines constantly on hand

E. M. Walsh,
DEALER IN
Hardware, Tinware
BAR IRON, STEEL,
BLACKSMITHS SUPPLIES,
BUILDING PAPER,
&c., &c. Also Agent
For the Celebrated Monitor Plows.
CROOKSTON, MINN.

THE
J. I. CASE
THRESHING MACHINE COMPANY
The Dennet or Beloit
HARVESTING MACHINE COMPANY,
And the Van Brunt & Davis
SEEDER COMPANY,
Are Represented
BY
STEENERSON BROS.,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

HOW TO BE HEALTHY!
Drink LePage's
35c Tea and 35c pure Java Coffee
AND SMOKE MY NICKEL PILGRIM CIGAR.

HOW TO BE WEALTHY!
COME TO THE RED STAR GROCERY
And Save Money on everything you buy.

AND IF YOU ARE WISE

You will buy only Pure and Fresh Groceries. THE RED STAR GROCERY is the place to get them and there you will find Prices the Lowest. Farmers and others bring in your Butter and Eggs and get highest prices for them. Remember the RED STAR, one door south of Montreal House.
E. LEPAGE, Broadway, Crookston, Minn.

MINNESOTA NEWS NOTES.

THE PRODUCTS OF MINNESOTA.

Commissioner Gibbs Tells How the Resources of the State Will be Represented at the New Orleans Exposition—A Very Worthy Collection of Exhibits Promised.

Oliver Gibbs, Jr. of Lake City, United States commissioner for Minnesota to the New Orleans exposition, has just returned from his trip to the Crescent City, whither he has been in company with Prof. Porter to confer with the director general with reference to the Minnesota exhibition. He states that the states of Iowa, Minnesota and Nebraska and the Territory of Dakota have been assigned spaces for their exhibits, on a line with each other in the front of the main building nearest to St. Charles avenue, the most attractive approach from the city. This is the most desirable location in the building, and would have been selected by him if he had had the choosing. Referring to the representation of its products, which Minnesota will have at the exposition, Mr. Gribbs says:

By the work already done we are assured that all our lines of exhibits will be filled out, and perhaps the most prominent among them will be the exhibit of agricultural and horticultural products. The perishable articles constituting this exhibit will be held in cold storage both here and at New Orleans, and will be transported in refrigerator cars. They will be displayed by relays from time to time, as the condition of the exhibit may require.

NOT TO BE EXCELLED.

Our exhibit of dairy products will not be excelled by any state, nor equaled, except, perhaps, by Wisconsin and Iowa. The flouring industry will be represented upon a scale of magnitude and attractiveness such as might be expected in view of the immense interests involved in that branch of industry in our state. Under the auspices of the state university our exhibits in the various divisions of zoology will be very nearly if not entirely complete. In the department of fish and fisheries we have been especially fortunate in securing a taxidermist of rare skill, and shall be able to show very accurately the natural appearance in form and color of every fish that swims in Minnesota waters. These specimens will be returned to the state when the exposition is over, to form a permanent cabinet. The state university is preparing a complete exhibit of all our minerals, rocks, soils, clays and building stones, and the manufacturing products representing our brickyards and potteries; also a collection of native woods, which will be as nearly complete as it is practicable to make it. Probably two of the most attractive exhibits will be in the educational department and department of women's work. The university, colleges and common schools are all working in harmony for a creditable exhibit in their department, and the ladies are fairly enthusiastic in the work of forming their collection. These will be the leading features.

SOME NOVEL FEATURES.

The varied resources of the state will be illustrated by a complete and extensive system of maps representing all the counties, prairies, forests, lakes, rivers, railroad lines and system of public lands, each map to be prepared in such a way as to make prominent the special features to which it is devoted. It is proposed to represent the old-time systems of transportation in a novel way. We shall have the Red river cart and the dog train, and a long line of groups representing the Indians and early voyagers of the country. In addition to the state collective exhibits space has been reserved for various county and city exhibits, and for a special exhibit by the Irish Catholic colonies of Minnesota. The entire Northwest is to be very adequately represented by its products. Dakota will be quite prominent. A large number of entries have been sent forward representing the business interests of Minnesota for competition for awards, and we will appear to good advantage in many of the strongest competitive departments. While collecting the agricultural and horticultural specimens for exhibition, duplicates of many of the products will be secured and entered in the competitive department.

Mr. Gibbs was very much pleased with the system for the accommodation of strangers which had been organized in New Oreleans. He says the management of the exposition has organized a bureau of accommodation, by which every room and every boarding house in the city is registered at a fixed price, and the owners thereof have been put under contract to charge no more than that price during the exposition.

The rates range from $30 to $60 per month, according to location and style of living. Agents of this bureau will board every train to locate strangers. By this system it is estimated that New Orleans can take care of 25,000 white people and 5,000 colored people per day, outside of the hotels. The hotels are under contract to charge no more than regular rates.

Minnesota School Book Agents.

In response to a question of Samuel Whiting, president of the school board of Clearwater, Wright county, Attorney General Hahn recently gave an opinion that section 92, general school laws, prohibits a merchant who has been appointed agent for the sale of school text books from acting as a member of the school board at the same time. If he does, he is liable to the fine imposed by that act. The section would apply to any one furnishing any article covered by the words "books, apparatus or furniture." The fact that such a person has acted as a member of the board would not in any way affect the validity of the act of the board. His being interested in the sale of any of the prohibited articles does not cause a vacancy in the board. It simply renders him liable to the punishment imposed by section 92.

The Catholic total abstinence societies of St. Paul and Ramsey county, with the guidance and suggestions of Bishop Ireland, are making active preparations to carry on a vigorous temperance campaign this winter. As far as decided their plans contemplate the holding of public mass meetings at some hall in St. Paul every two weeks, and the holding of local society meetings each intervening evening. A total abstinence cadet corps is also under process of formation. All of these plans will be fully formulated at the quarterly meeting, Sunday, Nov. 2, at 3:30 p. m., at the Father Mathew society's rooms.

Rev. Samuel Williams, father of S. C. Williams, of St. Paul, died at the age of eighty-two. Deceased was a Congregational minister, born in Boston, July 2, 1802, and graduating from Harvard college and Andover. Some years of his life were spent at Brewster, Mass., in ministerial work, where he met and married Temperance Mayo, who died in St. Paul in January, 1879. Mr. Williams came to Minnesota nine years ago from South Andover Valley, New York, and lived with his son until the time of his death.

The Pillsbury A. mill, at Minneapolis on Monday, turned out 6,197 barrels of flour, or about 800 barrels more flour than was ground in any previous twenty-four hour's run. The run is the biggest on record.

Dr. W. F. Van Dyke for many years a prominent resident physician and surgeon at Wabasha left for Ashland, Or., with his family, and will make that place his home in the future.

Several St. Paul firms were caught by the failure of Steel, at Sun River, Mont., but none to any extent.

Horse thieves got away with a fine mare, harness and wagon belonging to Mark Hale, at Rich Valley, Minn.

J. M. McCan of Fergus Falls, who shot himself accidentally in the leg while hunting a few days ago at Elbow lake, died. The physicians found it necessary to amputate the limb as the only means of saving his life, and the result proved fatal. He was a member of the J. S. Billings Lumber company and stood high among business men.

Mr. Nels Gilbertson of Elbow Lake, Grant county, was kicked by one of his horses and died from the injury received on Saturday. He was forty-four years of age, and leaves a wife and numerous children.

W. H. Seward, for twelve years with Maj. Smith, paymaster, U. S. A., has accepted the position of cashier of the cotton house of Hill, Fontaine & Co., of Memphis, and will leave for that city in a few days, accompanied by his family.

A five-year-old daughter of Henry Kaphausman of Hart, riding in company with a number of little girls in a lumber wagon, fell from the seat down between the wheels, which passed over her head, causing instant death.

Quite a peculiar case in the healing of a wound has developed at Duluth. More than three weeks ago John Johnson, a laborer at the sawmill of the Duluth Lumber company, was injured on the head by a stick flying from the saw. The stick broke the skull just over the left eyebrow, and when the physician dressed the wound he took out a piece of the skull about an inch and a half large, exposing the brain. For some time Jahnson's recovery was very doubtful, but he is now doing well. The wound has not entirely healed, and it appears as though it would not. The wound reaches the nasal cavity, and now the patient can actually breathe through the hole in his skull. He promises to fully recover, except that he will always have the power to breathe through this hole, as well as through his nostrils or his mouth.

A terrible prairie fire has been raging in Murray and Pipestone counties. It did much damage, burning several farm-houses, grain and hyystacks. In same instances the farmers lost everything. It being so early in the season, many were not protected by firebreaks. The town of Woodstock had a narrow escape from the fire, it required the entire inhabitants to keep it at Bay. A slight rain has so checked the fire as to bring it under control.

Ignatius Donnelly has sued the Pioneer Press for an alleged libel laying his damages at $10,000.

A Manitoba boarding housekeeper named McDonald traced his runaway wife to Duluth and has had her and her paramour, Donald Malcomb, jailed.

W. W. Satterlee, secretray of the state Prohibition committee, has issued a call to all Prohibitionists in the state to observe Wednesday, Oct. 29, as a day of fasting, humiliation and prayer. The programme suggested for the morning includes confession and humiliation for want of zeal in the propagation of prohibition doctrines and for complicity with the licensed liquor traffic; declarations and recitals on the evils of intemperance, the political blindness of license voters and the aggressiveness of the liquor interest.

The Minneapolis mills made 4,797,340 barrels of flour last year—an increase of 790,377 barrels. Total receipts of wheat during the crop year was nearly 24,000,000 bushels.

The papers in the case of the assignment of Hon. James G. Lawrence and the Wabasha Mill company, together with the assignee, Bruce Florer, cashier of the First National bank, have been filed with the clerk of the district court. Mr. Lawrence's assets are set down at $25,000, while the assets of the mill company are figured at $50,000. The assignee has taken possession of the property and will close up matters at the earliest possible moment. These assignments were made inevitable by the recent failure of the Mazeppa Mill company and the Minnesota Elevator company, consequently no one was surprised when the news of the assignments was made public, although the friends of Mr. Lawrence and the other members of the mill company earnestly hoped such an exigency would be avoided.

A thermometrical tumble of over forty-nine degrees within three days following the 20th has had the effect of making people believe that winter is verily at hand. It is very probable, however, that the people of Minnesota will yet see some warm and pleasant weather before the trouble really begins in earnest.

W. C. Lattimer, Perkins & Lyons' embezzling clerk, returned to St. Paul in charge of an officer.

Articles of incorporation of the Decorah, Rochester & Red River were filed recently with the secretary of state. The capital stock is $5,000,000, and the principal place of business Decorah, Iowa. The railway is to run northwesterly and south east or southeasterly from Decorah, Iowa, as the directors may decide, to points in Iowa, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Dakota and Illinois, to connect with other roads. The officers of the company are William H. Valleau, president; Hiram T. Horton, vice president; Reuben H. Wales, treasurer, and George W. Adams, secretary. The object of the company is to practically build an extension to St. Paul and Minneapolis via Rochester. The new road is generally admitted to be fathered by the Burlington Cedar Rapids & Northern.

Donald Malcolm and Mrs. McDonald have been arrested in Duluth on complaint of Mr. McDonald, the husband of the woman, a Manitoban, who says that his wife ran away from him. Mrs. McDonald says she left her husband because she had to support him, and that she came to Duluth, where she found Malclom, who engaged her as a housekeeper, in which capacity she was acting when arrested.

At the chapel of Ursuline convent, in Lake City on the 21st., four young ladies were invested with the religious habit and entered upon their novitiate, their family names and the conventual ones they assumed being as follows: Rosemary Dunn (Sister Stanislaus), Bridget Campion (Sister Angela), Julia Bowe (Sister Joseph) and Ellen Quinn (Sister Gonzaga). On the same occasion Sarah A. Quinn, having reached the end of her novitiate term, made her vows.

May Alice, daughter of Rev. Dr. G. W. T. Wright, who formerly resided at Lake City, was married to Edgar L. Perry of Maine at Washington, D. C., on the 8th inst.

A weekly paper, to be named the Barnesville Times, will publish its first issue this week.

H. L. Smith has become sole proprietor of the Lake City Graphic, Mr. Messmer retiring.

The jury in the case of Brandes, charged with murder, in Pine county, disagreed, and the prisoner gave $2,000 bail for his future appearance.

A. J. Johnson & Co., grocers in a small way at Red Wing and successors to E. Ebstrom & Co., have assigned to W. N. McQuin. Assets and liabilities not given, but both small.

Joshua Tressler, the third of the three brothers who murdered Ole Ivesson in Blue Earth county, Minn., Oct. 6, has been captured in Pottawattomie county, Iowa, and is now in jail in Mankato. He was vigorously pursued by Sheriff Cummings and his deputy and ex-Sheriff Sheehan of Freeborn county, with Marshal Tood of Carroll, Iowa.

Fire gutted the blacksmith shop of Albert Oestrich in Duluth. The building was owned by J. D. Roy. Loss, $600 or $700. The building was formerly used as a hospital by the St. Luke's society.

While James Bennett of Chester, Wabasha county, was holding the leaders of a double team attached to a threshing machine on the farm of his neighbor, L. Bartlett, the water gauge of the engine burst, and the frightened horses trampled upon Mr. Bennett, inflicting injuries that caused his death in an hour. Deceased was sixty-one years old, an early settler, and leaves a widow and a daughter eighteen years old.

Five buildings were burned in West St. Paul Thursday night. The buildings were all owned by John R. Reimer, who resides at No. 154 Delos street, and were occupied as follows: Saloon, Chris Miller; blacksmith and wagon shop, William Reimer; the butcher shop was empty and the food store occupied by Reimer himself. Total loss $3,000,—insurance 3,000.

Miss Florence Van Deventer, eldest daughter of David P. Van Deventer, and Clarence Secor of St. Paul, Minn., son of Horace Secor of New York, were married at Cliffwood, N. J. A special train conveyed a number of society people. The bride is a very pretty blonde.

Victor Miller, switchman, was killed by an engine at St. Paul. He was an old and respected citizen, having been in the employ of the Milwaukee road for ten years, and in the employ of that road he lost an arm. His death was caused by his falling in front of the switch engine, after setting the switch and signaling the engine to come on. He slipped while crossing the track.

At Fergus Falls, when the dry goods store of Shand & Mead, on Bismarck avenue, was opened last Thursday morning by a member of the firm, the discovery was made that the store had been broken into during the night and a safe belonging to C. H. Hoyt, the owner of the building, had been broken and $300 in money and $1,600 in jewelry taken therefrom. The robbers had bored a hole in the front door, and by the insertion of a steel punch broke the lock. In the safe they had drilled a hole into the combination and broken it in the same way. Mr. Hoyt was a watchmaker and jeweler, and had a showcase and counter in the same store with the dry goods men. Among the booty secured were about fifty watches, some of which been left to be repaired, the loss of which Mr. Hoyt will have to make good.

Superstition About Children.

From the Chicago Current.

A superstition used to exist that a child which did not cry when sprinkled in baptism would not live long. In the west of Scotland, according to James Napier, it was considered unlucky to name a child by any name before the rite of baptism was performed. When children seemed prematurely smart it was believed that they would not live long. Shakspeare puts this superstition into the mouth of Richard III. Bulwer mentions the tradition concerning children born open-handed, that they will be liberal and big-hearted. A character in one of Dekker's plays says: "I am a most wretched fellow; surely some left-handed priest christened me. I am so unlucky."

According to Irish and Scotch fairy superstitions, the elves, though in the main harmless, have the bad reputation of stealing children from the cradle and substitute for them changelings who bear resemblance to the stolen infants, but are ugly little things and never thrive. On such a theft of a female infant, who is carried to fairyland but in the course of years returns to her parents, James Hogg founded his fine ballad of "Kilmeny" (Queen's Wake.) In some parts of Scotland it is a popular notion among the lower classes that when a child is for the first time taken into the open air, the bearer of it should give something to eat to the first person met otherwise the child will be unlucky. The gift is called "the bairn's piece." When a child was taken from its mother, and carried outside the bedroom for the first time after its birth, it was lucky to take it upstairs, and unlucky to take it downstairs. It was not considered lucky to carry a baby into a neighbor's house until the mother took it herself; and this it was unlucky for even her to do, until she had been to church.

It was considered unlucky for children to walk backward while going on an errand. It was deemed unlucky to measure a baby; and if its nails were cut before it was a year old, it would turn out to be a thief; it was unlucky for a boy to wear trousers made on Friday, and to sweep dust over the feet of girls would prevent them from getting husbands. In Hindostan, when a baby sneezes, the mother snaps her thumb and finger, and repeats aloud the name of one of her gods. When a child casts a tooth, in South Sweden, the tooth is thrown into the fire. In Switzerland it is carefully wrapped in paper, and salt enclosed with it before it is thrown into the fire. In Herrick's time it was regarded as a lucky omen to place a knife near a sleeping child. Good Friday and Easter Sunday were considered lucky days for changing the caps of children.

In the west of England the fortunes of children are believed to be largely regulated by the day of the week on which they are born:

"Monday's child is fair of face,
Tuesday's child is full of grace,
Wednesday's child is full of woe,
Thursday's child has far to go,
Friday's child is loving and giving,
Saturday's child works hard for a living,
And a child that is born on Christmas day,
Is fair and wise, good and gay."

Among some of the tribes in Africa if two babies come to a family at the same time they think it a dreadful thing. Nobody except the family can go into the tent where they were born nor use any of the things in it. The twins are not allowed to play with other children, and the mother cannot talk to one outside of the family. This is kept up for six years. If the babies live to be six years old the restrictions are removed and they are treated like other children.

FRANK H. STANFFER.

Two Enormously Wealthy Families.

Brooklyn Eagle.

Comparitively few people are acquainted with the Wilson famiy in New York, and the public never hears of it, though it had been dragged into more or less eminence lately by the fact that the heiress to the Astor millions is to marry the eldest son of the Wilsons. The engagement of Orme Wilson to Miss Carrie Astor was not a surprise to people who are acquainted with the family. It was exactly what everybody had expected to occur. The Wilson place is next to the Astor's summer residence at Newport, and from the time Miss Caroline Astor was 12 years old her playmate was young Master Wilson. When they became of age they were engaged, as a matter of course. Miss Astor is neither brilliant nor beautiful. She is quiet, has domestic tastes, and cares little for society. It is said that $50,000 a year will be settled on the bride by her family, and a like amount will go to the groom from his family. This will give the pair an income of $100,000 a year. Possibly enough to buy the necessaries of life. The extraordinary thing about the Wilson family to my mind is the manner in which they conceal the fact that they are people of immense wealth. No one ever thinks of ranking them with the great wealthy families of the metropolis, and yet they are millionaires many times over. They are very exclusive, not at all prominent in society, and their name seldom gets into the papers. A friend of mine who was looking for an eligible building site for the erection of a large structure up town told me that he was perfectly amazed at the amount of property the Wilson's held. All over the city, and in the most valuable portions, he ran across big lots of land which belonged to the Wilson estate. What an enormously wealthy family the Astors will be in the course of fifty years? Their property now is estimated at something over $150,000,000. The only son and all three of the daughters have married into families of extraordinary wealth. They all know how to hold on to it, too.

The corn crop for this year is estimated at 1,810,000,000 bushels, the largest ever grown, and 17 per cent. greater than last year. The wheat crop is 100,000,000 bushels ahead of last year, and we can spare 200,000,000 bushels for Europe, if needed. Our foreign exports for July were $1,250,000 over June and $1,700,000 over July, 1883, while the imports were $2,000,000 less than in the same month of last year. Though business is not brisk as in some years and prices are not the highest, yet the country as a whole, and the farmer in particular, will find matters in comfortable shape, and can view the approach of winter with serenity and hope for the fuutre.

JOKE ON A RAILROAD.

A Farmer's Clever Device for Stopping the Trains in Front of His Farm.

"Train Talk" in the Chicago Herald.

"We made a singular discovery the other day," remarked an official of a road running into Chicago. "About three miles beyond a certain station on our line there is a farm-house by the side of the track. Just beyond the farm-house is a little creek over which there is a small bridge. About four years ago some repairs were made to that little bridge, and, of course, the bridge-gang had put up a sign-board, 'Run Slow,' on either side during the day or so the bridge was weakened. When they had finished their work they went off and forgot the signs. The fact is, the boards had disappeared, and they didn't take the trouble to hunt them up.

Some weeks afterward, no one knows just when, those signs reappeared in their former places. Nobody knew who put them there, or what for. Nobody cared. If the section men noticed them at all they thought the bridge men had done it. It was none of the engineers' business why they were there—it was their duty to observe regulations, which require them to slow down at such signs. Observe regulations they did. For about four years not a train had passed over that little bridge without slowing almost to a standstill. The culvert, for that's all it is, has been as safe as any part of the roadbed, and yet stopping and starting trains there has cost this company thousands of dollars. You know, it costs money to stop and start trains. You are wondering how it all comes about, of course. Well, that farmer stole those boards and put them up again at his leisure. For four years he has been going into the town or coming from it on our trains, getting on or off right at his own door. It was a slick scheme, and how he must have laughed at us and enjoyed it all the while. But his game is up now, and the engineers are having their revenge by keeping up an infernal screeching of their whistles at all hours of the day and night whenever they pass that farmhouse."

Storm Signals.

As the coming of a great storm is heralded by the display of cautionary signals, so is the approach of that dread and fatal disease Consumption of the lungs, usually announced in advance by pimples, blotches, eruptions, ulcers, glandular swellings, and kindred outward manifestations, of the internal blood poison, which, if not promptly expelled from the system, attacks the delicate tissues of the lungs, causing them to ulcerate and break down. Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" is the great remedy for this, as for all diseases having their origin in bad blood. It improves the appetite and digestion, increases nutrition and builds up the wasted system.

At the sale of government property at Harper's Ferry, the Potomac water power sold for $25,100 and the Shenandoah water power for $810.

For diarrhœa, cholera morbus, dysentery and bloody-flux, colic or cramps in stomach, use Dr. Pierce's Compound Extract of Smart Weed. Specific, also, for breaking up colds.

Thomas Maguire, for many years an attache of the Boston Herald, died in that city of Bright's disease.

Young or middle-aged men, suffering from nervous debility or kindred affections, should address, with three letter stamps for large treatise, World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

At a meeting of the French cabinet it was decided to send Gen. DeLisle reinforcements of 12,000 men, the first contingent of which shall be drawn from Algiers.

Maid of Athens.

What is the difference between this noted Lady and Carboline the great Hair Renewer? Ans.—One is Maid of Athens and the other is Made of Petroleum and both come from Grease.

At a meeting of the grand lodge of Masons at Louisville Grand High Priest Farleigh replied to Pope Leo's attack on the order.

Nervous Weakness, Dyspepsia, Sexual Debility, cured by "Wells' Health Renewer." $1.

Near Knoxville, Ill., an attempt was made to wreck Gen. Logan's train.

He Must Confess.

DEAR SIR:—I used the White Wine of Tar Syrup you sent me, and must confess I derived more benefit to my lungs from it than from any remedy I have ever tried, and cheerfully recommend it to every one having any kind of lung trouble.

Truly yours,
REV. A. M. HUMPHREY,
Minister of Baptist Church.
Trilla, Coles Co., Ills.

The Canadians are sending food to the starving Labrador fishermen.

"Rough on Coughs," Troches, 15c; Liquid, 25c; for Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Hoarseness.

The office of the Adams Express company at Woonsocket, R. I., was robbed of $16,000.

As a cure for sore throat and coughs, "Brown's Bronchial Troches" have been thoroughly tested, and maintain their good reputation.

Gerritt Vander Velde, an old resident of Anoka, died in that city aged seventy years.

For Impurities of the blood take Allen's Iron Tonic Bitters. All genuine bear the signature of J. P. Allen, Druggist, St. Paul, Minn.

Thomaston, Ga., has raised the liquor license to $5,000.

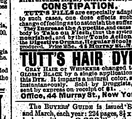
Fruit and Garden Lands in Colorado.

In 5 and 10 acre tracts. Low Price. Long Terms to settlers or non-residents. Address for particulars, W. E. PABOR, Fruita, Colo.

Hutlhinson & Co.'s cooper shops at Peoria, Ill., were destroyed by fire. Loss, $25,000. Cause, incendiary.

'Rough on pain.' Quick cure, Cramps, Neuralgia Rheumatism, Aches, Pains, Sprains, Headache.

At Augusta, Ga., Justice Bauldford decided that speculation in "futures" was fatal to the validity of a promissory note.



THE GREAT
GERMAN REMEDY
FOR PAIN.
CURES
Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica,
Lumbago, Backache, Headache, Toothache,
Sore Throat, Swellings, Sprains, Bruises,
Burns, Scalds, Frost Bites,
AND ALL OTHER BODILY PAINS AND ACHES.
Sold by Druggists and Dealers everywhere. Fifty Cents a bottle.
Directions in 11 Languages.
THE CHARLES A. VOGELER CO.
(Successors to A. VOGELER & CO.) Baltimore, Md., U. S. A.

An Invaluable Remedy.—None except those who have suffered all the horrors of Dyspepsia can fully appreciate the value and efficacy of Perry Davis' Pain Killer, a sovereign remedy for this distressing disease in all its forms is used internally and externally, test its virtues.

The Union League club of Chicago is going to build a $150,000 club house.

Stinging Irritation, Inflammation, all Kidney & Urinary Compl'nts, cured by "Buchu-Paiba." $1.

The New Jersey forest fires, which were extinguished by rain, did $250,000 damage.

If a cough distrubs your sleep, one dose of Piso's Cure will give you a night's rest.

Among 600 representatives in the Masonic grand lodge of Ohio is Nathaniel Benjamin, who has attended every session since 1830.

THE BEST IS THE CHEAPEST—Therefore us Frazer Axle Grease.

Pure Cod Liver Oil made from selected livers, on the sea-shore, by CASWELL, HAZARD & CO., New York. It is absolutely pure and sweet. Patients who have once taken it prefer it to all others. Physicians have decided it superior to any of the other oils in market.

Chapped Hands, Face Pimples, and rough Skin cured by using JUNIPER TAR SOAP, made by CASWELL, HAZARD & CO., New York.

Carbolisalve cures Itchings and Irritations of the Skin & Scalp, Poisons, Bites of Insects, Piles, Ulcers, &c. Cures Burns and Scalds without a scar. Small boxes 25c; large 75c. Get the genuine. Sold by Druggists. J. W. COLE & CO., Black River Falls, Wis.

TO THE PEOPLE !

This Should Be Read By All.

It Treats on a Subject of Interest to Every Family.

Important Intelligence from the Old Country, Where Cholera has Prevailed.

ASIATIC CHOLERA.

Almost every case cured with

PERRY DAVIS'

Pain-Killer

[From Rev. R. TELFORD, missionary in China, now visiting his home in Pennsylvania.]

WASHINGTON, PENN.

DEAR SIRS,—During a residence of some ten years as a missionary in Siam and China, I found your Vegetable Pain Killer a most valuable remedy for that fearful scourge, the cholera. In administering the medicine, I found it most effectual to give a teaspoonful of Pain-Killer in a gill of hot water, sweetened with sugar, then, after about fifteen minutes, begin to give about a tea-spoonful of the same mixture every few minutes until relief was obtained. Apply hot applications to the extremities. Bathe the stomach with the Pain-Killer clear, and and the limbs briskly. Of those who had the cholera, and took the medicine faithfully in the way stated above, eight out of ten recovered.

Truly yours, R. TELFORD.

The late Rev. Dr. Granger repeatedly expressed his belief that he owed his life to the timely use of PERRY DAVIS'S PAIN-KILLER. During his recent visit to the missions in Burmah, he had a severe attack of the cholera, and was immediately relieved by the use of the Pain-Killer.

Directions accompany each bottle.

Price 25 cts., 50 cts., and $1 per bottle.

J. N. HARRIS & CO., Limited,
Cincinnati, Ohio.
Proprietors for the Southern and Western States.
For sale by all Medicine Dealers.

HOSTETTER'S
CELEBRATED STOMACH
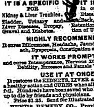
BITTERS

Protection. No such protective against chills and fever and other diseases of a malarial type exists as Hostetter's Stomache Bitters. It relieves constipation, liver disorders, rheumatism, kidney and bladder ailments with certainty and promtitude. A change, as gratifying as it is complete, soon takes place in the appearance, as well as the sensation, of the wan and haggard invalid who uses this standard promoter of health and strength. For sale by all druggists and Dealers generally.

Thirty Years Record.



Endorsed by Physicians.

IT IS A SPECIFIC FOR Kidney & Liver Troubles, Bladder, Urinary and Liver Diseases, Dropsy, Gravel and Diabetes.

IT IS RELIABLE in curing Bright's Disease, Pains in the Back, Loins or Sides, Retention or Non-Retention of Urine.

HIGHLY RECOMMENDED,

It cures Biliousness, Headache, Jaundice, Sour Stomach, Dyspepsia, Constipation and Piles.

IT WORKS PROMPTLY

and cures Intemperance, Nervous Diseases, General Debility, Excesses and Female Weakness.

USE IT AT ONCE.

It restores the KIDNEYS, LIVER and BOWELS, to a healthy action and CURES when all other medicines fail. Hundreds have been saved who have been given up to die by friends and physicians.

Price $1.25. Send for Illustrated Pamphlet to HUNT'S REMEDY CO., Providence, R. I.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS. 9

TUTT'S
PILLS

25 YEARS IN USE.

The Greatest Medical Triumph of the Age!

SYMPTOMS OF A
TORPID LIVER.

Loss of appetite, Bowels costive, Pain in the head, with a dull sensation in the back part, Pain under the shoulder-blade, Fullness after eating, with a disinclination to exertion of body or mind, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, with a feeling of having neglected some duty, Weariness, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, Headache over the right eye, Restlessness, with fitful dreams, Highly colored Urine, and

CONSTIPATION.

TUTT'S PILLS are especially adapted to such cases, one dose effects such a change of feeling as to astonish the sufferer. They Increase the Appetite, and cause the body to Take on Flesh, thus the system is nourished, and by their Tonic Action on the Digestive Organs, Regular Stools are produced. Price 25c. 44 Murray St., N.Y.

TUTT'S HAIR DYE.

GRAY HAIR OR WHISKERS changed to a GLOSSY BLACK by a single application of this DYE. It imparts a natural color, acts instantaneously. Sold by Druggists, or sent by express on receipt of $1.

Office, 44 Murray St., New York.

The BUYERS' GUIDE is issued Sept. and March, each year: 224 pages, 8½ x 11½ inches, with over 3,300 illustrations—a whole picture gallery. Gives wholesale prices direct to consumers on all goods for personal or family use. Tells how to order, and gives exact cost of everything you use, drink, eat, wear, or have fun with. These invaluable books contain information gleaned from the markets of the world. We will mail a copy Free to any address upon receipt of the postage—8 cents. Let us hear from you. Respectfully,

MONTGOMERY WARD & CO.
227 & 229 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

GUNS Shot Guns Revolvers, Rifles, Etc.
Large Ill. Catalogue free. Address Great Western Gun Works, Pittsburgh, Pa.

OPIUM Morphine Habit Cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till Cured. Dr. J. STEPHENS, Lebanon, Ohio.

"See What Cuticura Does for Me!"

INFANTILE and Birth Humors, Milk Crust, Scalled Head, Eczemas, and every form of Itching, Scaly, Pimply, Scrofulous and inherited Diseases of the Blood, Skin, and Scalp, with Loss of Hair, cured by the CUTICURA REMEDIES. Absolutely sure and safe. Cuticura the great Skin Cure, 50 cts.; Cuticura Soap, an exquisite Skin Beautifier and only Medicinal Baby Soap, 25 cts. and Cuticura Resolvent, the new Blood Purifier, $1, are sold by druggists. Potter Drug and Chemical Co., Boston. Send for "How to Cure Skin Diseases."

WHITE BEAVER'S COUGH CREAM cals diseased lung

LEARN TELEGRAPHY, or SHORT-HAND and TYPE WRITING HERE. Situations furnished. Address Valentine Bros., Janesville, Wis.

DYKE'S BEARD ELIXIR Forces Luxuriant Mustache, Whiskers, or hair on bald heads in 20 to 30 days. No injury. Easily used. Beats the world. Will prove it or forfeit. Price per Package with directions sealed and post paid 25 cts, 3 for 50 cts, stamps or silver. L. L. SMITH & CO., Agents, Palatine, Ill.

MORPHINE and CHLORAL HABITS EASILY CURED. BOOK FREE. Dr. J. C. Hoffman, Jefferson, Wisconsin. OPIUM

LADY AGENTS WANTED

To introduce and sell Dr. Linguist's Spinal Health Corset. Apply to Dr. Linguist Spinal Corset Company, 412 Broadway, N. Y.

Help wanted, Females.—Wanted—Ladies and gentlemen to take nice, light, pleasant work at their own homes (distance no objection). Work sent by mail. $2 to $5 a day can be quietly made. No canvassing. Please address at once, Reliable M'f'g Co., Phila., Pa., Box 1593.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S
VEGETABLE COMPOUND
IS A POSITIVE CURE FOR
All those painful Complaints and Weaknesses so common to our best
FEMALE POPULATION.
Price $1 in liquid, pill or lozenge form.

Its purpose is solely for the legitimate healing of disease and the relief of pain, and that it does all it claims to do, thousands of ladies can gladly testify.

It will cure entirely all Ovarian troubles, Inflammation and Ulceration, Falling and Displacements, and consequent Spinal Weakness, and is particularly adapted to the change of life.

It removes Faintness, Flatulency, destroys all craving for stimulants, and relieves Weakness of the Stomach. It cures Bloating, Headaches, Nervous Prostration, General Debility, Sleeplessness, Depression and Indigestion. That feeling of bearing down, causing pain, and backache, is always permanently cured by its use.

Send stamp to Lynn, Mass., for pamphlet. Letters of inquiry confidentially answered. For sale at druggists.

DISEASE BANISHED

Health Gained,
Long Life Secured,
BY USING

KIDNEY-WORT

It Purifies the Blood,
It Cleanses the Liver,
It Strengthens the Kidneys,
It Regulates the Bowels.

TRUTHFUL TESTIMONY.

KIDNEY DISEASES.

"I suffered day and night with Kidney troubles, my water was chalky and bloody, I could get no relief from doctors. Kidney-Wort cured me. I am as well as ever." FRANK WILSON, Peabody, Mass.

LIVER COMPLAINT.

I would not be without Kidney-Wort if it cost $10. It cured my Liver and Kidney troubles after I had lost all hope. SAM'L HODGES, Williamstown, W. Va.

PILES! PILES!!

I suffered for 12 years from Piles, as none but those that have been afflicted can realize. Kidney-Wort quickly cured me. LYMAN T. ABELL, Georgia, Vt.

CONSTIPATION.

I was a great sufferer from diseased Kidneys and was terribly constipated for years. I am now at seventy as well as ever I was in my life and it is due alone to Kidney-Wort. C. P. BROWN, Westport, N. Y.

RHEUMATISM.

"After suffering for thirty years from Rheumatism and kidney trouble, Kidney-Wort has entirely cured me." ELBRIDGE MALCOLM, West Bath, Me.

FEMALE COMPLAINTS.

"Kidney-Wort has cured my wife after two years suffering and weakness, brought on by use of a Sewing Machine." DR. C. M. SUMMERLIN, Sun Hill, Ga.

FOR THE BLOOD.

"The past year I have used Kidney-Wort more than ever, and with the best results. Take it all in all, it is the most successful remedy I have ever used." PHILLIP C. BALLOU, M. D., Monkton, Vt.

MALARIA.

"Chronic Malaria for years, with liver disease made me wish for death. A European trip, doctors and medicine did no good, until I used Kidney-Wort—that CURED me." HENRY WARD, Late Col. 69th Reg., N. G. S. N. Y., Jersey City, N. J.

It acts at the same time on the KIDNEYS, LIVER and BOWELS stimulating them to healthy action and keeping them in perfect order. Sold by all Druggists, Price $1.00 Liquid or Dry. The latter can be sent by mail.

WELLS, RICHARDSON & CO.,
BURLINGTON, VERMONT, U. S. A.
Montreal, P. Q., and London, England.

KIDNEY-WORT

Words of Warning and Comfort.

If you are suffering from poor health or 'languishing on a bed of sickness, take cheer
If you are simply ailing, or if you feel
'weak and dispirited,
'without clearly know-
'ing why, Hop Bitters
'will surely cure you.

If you are a minister, and have overtaxed yourself with your pastoral duties, or a mother, worn out with care and work, or a man of business or labor, weakened by the strain of your everyday duties, or a man of letters toiling over your midnight work, Hop Bitters will most surely strengthen you.

If you are suffering from over-eating or drinking, any indiscretion or dissipation, or are young and growing too fast, as is often the case,

"Or if you are in the workshop, on the 'farm, at the desk, anywhere, and feel 'that your system needs cleansing, ton-'ing, or stimulating, without intoxicat-'ing, if you are old, 'blood thin and impure, pulse feeble, nerves unsteady, faculties waning, Hop Bitters is what you need to give you new life, health, and vigor."

If you are costive, or dyspeptic or suffering from any other of the numerous diseases of the stomach or bowels, it is your own fault if you remain ill. If you are wasting away with any form of Kidney disease, stop tempting death this moment, and turn for a—cure to Hop Bitters.

If you are sick with that terrible sickness, Nervousness, you will find a "Balm in Gilead" in Hop Bitters.

—If you are a frequenter, or a resident of,
—a missmatic district, barricade your sys —tem against the scourge of all countries
—Malaria, Epidemic, Bilious and Inter—mittent Fevers by the use of Hop Bitters.

If you have rough, pimply, or sallow skin, bad breath, Hop Bitters will give you fair skin, rich blood, the sweetest breath and health. $500 will be paid for a case they will not cure or help.

A Lady's Wish.

"Oh, how I do wish my skin was as clear and 'soft as yours," said a lady to her friend. "You 'can easily make it so," answered the friend. How?" inquired the first lady. "By using Hop Bitters that makes pure, rich blood and blooming health. It did it for me as you observe."

None genuine without a bunch of green Hops on the white label. Shun all the vile, poisonous stuff with "Hop" or "Hops" in their name

Send stamp for my circular, "$770 a year, or, How I Manage Poultry." How to make an Incubator costing less than $5. How to build cheap poultry houses, preserve eggs, cure cholera, make hens lay, &c. A new book. [illegible], Abilene, Kansas. Breeder P. R. Fowls and P. C. Swine. Swine circulars free.

PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS.
Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good.
Use in time. Sold by druggists.
25 CTS. 25 CTS.

LOVE COURTSHIP and MARRIAGE. Wonderful secrets, revelations and discoveries for married and single, securing health, wealth and happiness to all. This handsome book of 160 pages, mailed for only 10 cents by the Union Publishing Co., Newark, N. J.

Dr. Spinney & Co.

Treat all Chronic and Nervous Diseases. Young men who may be suffering with Weakness, Nervous Debility, Despondency, Aversion to Society, Kidney troubles, or any similar diseases, can here find a safe and speedy cure. There are many of the age of thirty to sixty who are often troubled with uncomfortable symptoms, accompanied by weakening of the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. Examination reveals the fact that the patient's system is undergoing a depletion which rapidly exhausts every vital function. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause. The doctor will guarantee a cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration. Pamphlet, with full particulars, sent free to any address. Call on or address DR. SPINNEY & CO., 37 S. Third st., Minneapolis, Minn.

ONE DOLLAR
FOR THE WEEKLY
PIONEER PRESS
TWELVE MONTHS
★

Address PIONEER PRESS CO.,
ST. PAUL, MINN.

S. H. WOOD & CO.,
22 Chamber of Commerce, Chicago, Ill.,
GRAIN AND STOCK BROKERS.
244 Hennepin Avenue, Minneapolis, Minn.,
Chamber of Commerce, St. Paul, Minn.

Buy and sell Stocks, Grain and Provisions in large or small amounts, reasonable margins and lowest commissions. Mr. S. H. Wood, of this firm, has the reputation of being the largest and most successful operator in the Northwest, and to his advice the firm and their customers are largely indebted for their success. Correspondence solicited. Send for list of Stock Privileges.

AGENTS WANTED.—It will pay persons wanting profitable employment to write for extra terms for the fastest-selling Pictorial Books, Bibles and Albums, to National Publishing Co., Philadelphia, Pa., Chicago, Ill.

N. W. N. U. 1884. No. 44.

The GRANDEST PREMIUM and a
Long Loan AT 4 per cent

Visitors to the Dore Gallery, London, will remember the great painting, covering nearly an entire end of the gallery, entitled "Christ Leaving the Praetorium." This masterpiece—Dore's grandest work—has lately been engraved and printed for subscribers only, at the price of £8 per copy, or $40 U. S. money. Custom duties and ocean express bring the cost to American purchasers to $60. A copy cannot be secured for less except from the publishers of "THE CHICAGO GLOBE."—Every future subscriber to this paper, however, can secure a copy of this, the most valuable work of art ever issued in the form of an engraving, by sending 42c. in addition to the subscription price, to prepay cost, express and properly packing, or postage, if sent by mail. The publishers of the Chicago Globe have contracted for the entire American edition, our order being for 250,000 copies, we paying cost of American plate.

THE LARGEST CIRCULATION AND THE LARGEST PROFITS Can only be Secured by Dividing Profits with subscribers, in the form of long time four per cent. loans.

Any subscriber is privileged to apply for a loan, to be made out of advertising profits, the amount borrowed being permitted to remain unpaid as long as borrower remains a subscriber and keeps the interest paid. Subscription price, $2. On the basis of 250,000 circulation (which will probably be doubled) the business and profits will approximate as follows:—RECEIPTS: 250,000 subscribers, $500,000; 500 inches advertising, $2.50 per line, $15 per inch, 52 issues, $1,170,000—total, $1,670,000. EXPENSES: for paper and press work, 250,000 copies, 52 issues, $104,000; editorial work, office, repairs, etc., $25,000; premium engravings, $250,000; incidentals, $10,000—total, $389,000; leaving a net profit of $1,281,000. For this enormous profit from sale of advertising space, The Globe depends on its 250,000 subscribers, for advertisers pay for space in proportion to circulation. With but 25,000 circulation the profits would be but a tenth of the amount. Therefore, as subscribers are doing us a favor when they send us their names, we desire to return favor for favor. Any subscriber who desires to borrow from $100 to $500 at 4 per cent., the principal to stand if desired as long as borrower remains a subscriber, should so state when he orders the premium. In such case—

The Subscription Price, $2.00, need not be sent, as it can be deducted when loan is made

And subscription begins. Your individual note is all the security asked: provided you will send the names of several of your neighbors to whom we can refer, not as to the amount of property you are worth, but as to good character.

CONDITIONS. Loans made pro rata; not less than $100 nor more than $500. First year's interest at 4 per cent., and the subscription price to be deducted from amount loaned. If the subscriber does not apply for a loan, the subscription price must be sent in advance. If a loan is desired, no money need be sent for subscription, the charges for the Premium, 42c., only being required, as the subscription and first year's interest can be deducted from the loan. Every subscriber must accept as a condition of receiving the Premium, that he will display it in a conspicuous place in his house or office, and inform those who call how and where he secured it. Positively this must be done. Every Premium sent out secures additional subscribers, and no application will be entered unless the charges on the Premium are sent. These charges, 42c., have nothing to do with the subscription price, and barely cover cost, delivery, and properly packing so large an engraving, and the delivery charges must be prepaid. The subscription price, $2 (which represents a profit and not a direct expense) can remain unpaid until loan is made and subscription begins. Postage stamps will not be received for Premium charges except from places where a postal note can not be obtained. When a loan is made the adjoining form of note will be sent, with the money, to the subscriber's nearest bank or express office, and no note need be signed until the money is paid over. Send the names of several references, and immediate inquiry will be made. If no loan is desired, no references need be sent. The Premium will be sent at once. Address,

The Chicago Globe, 68 W. Monroe St., CHICAGO, ILLS.

One year after date, for value received, I promise to pay to the order of the publisher of the CHICAGO GLOBE the sum of .... Dollars, with interest at 4 per cent. per annum after maturity. It is understood and agreed that no part of the principal of this note will be demanded or become payable, (except at my pleasure,) as long as I remain a paid-up subscriber to the above named paper.

(Signed.) ....

PARSONS' PURGATIVE PILLS MAKE NEW RICH BLOOD,

Positively cure SICK-HEADACHE, Biliousness, and all LIVER and BOWEL Complaints, MALARIA, BLOOD POISON, and Skin Diseases (ONE PILL A DOSE). For Female Complaints these Pills have no equal. "I find them a valuable Cathartic and Liver Pill.—Dr. T. M. Palmer, Monticello, Fla." "In my practice I use no other.—J. Dennison, M.D., DeWitt, Iowa." Sold everywhere, or sent by mail for 25 cts. in stamps. Valuable information FREE. I. S. JOHNSON & CO., BOSTON, MASS.

THE ROSE OF ERIN.

Miss Lucy Crandall had been invited to join Mrs. General Clermont's party for a season at Saratoga Springs, and the only obstacle to her acceptance of the kind offer lay in the fact that her faithful old family servant, Mehitable Crauch, had been called away to attend upon the lingering illness of a sister, and would probably be detained for weeks at her bedside.

Lucy had lived at the homestead since her parents' death, and had cared for and petted quite an army of domestics who had been left upon her hands.

They had gradually grown decrepit and superannuated, but her heart was too tender to have them made away with, and 'now she could not harbor the thought of shutting up the house and leaving them to forage for themselves.

In this emergency she concluded to leave her washerwoman in charge. She had only lived in the village a few months, but was a respectable looking woman, and a church member. She was glad of the offer, only stipulating that she should be allowed to have her step-daughter come and stay with her.

Lucy consented cheerfully.

"I did not know that you had any family, Mrs. O'Connor. Where is the little girl?" she asked.

"She is at school with the Sisters, ma'am. Poor O'Connor left a little money, and I made up my mind that Norah should have the good of it in getting an education.

Norah O'Connor was not the little girl Lucy had pictured to herself in recurring to Mrs. O'Conner's words. She was fully sixteen, and had blossomed within the year into a rich, entrancing beauty.

Lucy had already gone when Norah came; so all through the summer she retained the impression that Mrs. O'Connor's step-daughter was a frolicsome child, drinking in her fill of country sights and sounds before autumn should take her back to the Sisters.

Lucy had few relatives; but her cousin Howe—an orphan like herself—had always been to her like a brother. He saw Lucy and her party safely off, and promised at the parting moment to look in at the homestead every day to see that all went satisfactorily there.

So Lucy cast care to the winds, and gave herself up to the enjoyments of the novel scenes which soon surrounded her, and amid which the first romance of her life began.

Such delicious moonlight rambles, when, amid the group of pedestrians, Lucy was the one invariably singled out by Vincent Frankland. But the season passed, and Lucy returned home with a new pain haunting her heart.

If Vincent Frankland loved her—as his actions had plainly showed—why had he remained silent?

Lucy's thoughts never once turned upon the real reason of Vincent's silence. She herself cared so little for money that a suggestion that her possessions were a barrier to Vincent having declared himself her lover would have brought an incredulous smile to her lips.

He was the last representative of a proud but impoverished family and had worked his way through college by taking private pupils. He had yielded to the perilous sweetness of the attraction which drew him toward Lucy, and all unwittingly had planted a thorn in her previously tranquil heart.

But he was equally a sufferer. Never before had he coveted wealth. Had he possessed the treasures of the Indies, he would cast them at her feet; but the one rich treasure which he could have offered—his heart—was withheld.

So the two parted—each to go a different way—each to carry a heart filled with pain along life's hitherto cloudless pathway.

Howe met Lucy at the station. He was so preocupied in his manner that Lucy noticed it and said at last:

"What are you thinking of, Cousin Howe? You have barely said half a dozen words since we met. Has anything happened?"

Howe colored at Lucy's question.

After a moment's silence, he answered in a low tone:

"Yes, Lucy something has happened, and if you have no objection, I will drive around the lake and explain it to you before I take you home."

"I hope it is nothing bad, Howe," said Lucy in a startled tone.

"That depends upon the way one looks at it. I am an interested party, and, of course, can not expect others to see through my eyes. The truth is, Lucy, I am going to be married, and as the world in general will cavil at my choice, I want to enlist you upon my side. You are so good and true yourself that I am sure goodness and innocence will weigh as heavily in the scales as worldly prominence, and—"

Lucy smiled at Howe's labored explanation.

"You dear boy! one would think you were going to marry a washerwoman's daughter to hear you. There isn't a girl worthy of you in the whole village; but they are all American princesses, you know. We have no aristocrats in America."

"I'm not so sure of that, Lucy. But wait until I tell you more about my wife that is to be. You hit the nail on the head in the beginning of your sentence. I am really going to marry the daughter of a washerwoman."

Lucy grew suddenly white. A troubled look came into her frank eyes.

"You don't mean to say that it is the little girl whom I gave Mrs. O'Conner permission to bring to my house, that has worked this mischief!"

"It is indeed Norah O'Conner, poor in this world's gear as she is rich in a woman's peerless loveliness. But I reckoned without my host in thinking you superior to the traditions of society. I might have expected that even you would be cold and scornful."

"No, Howe, I am neither the one nor the other. I am, however, truly grieved at your infatuation. Will you kindly say no more about it now and drive me home?"

Lucy's sudden dignity angered Howe, and with an impatient exclamation, he devoted himself to the care of the spirited animal he was driving.

At her own door Lucy put out her hand. "Whatever happens, Howe, your cousin Lucy will be your friend. But do not tax me beyond a woman's power of endurance. If you are in earnest in what you have said, I advise you to think well of it and do nothing for which you will be sorry for in the future."

"Your disapprobation has given me the greatest pain that I expect to experience, Lucy. But it has not altered my mind. I worship the very ground my darling's feet have touched."

"I only wish you may always feel so, Howe," was Lucy's rejoinder; "for a marriage out of one's station seldom confers lasting happiness."

The marriage took place, but Lucy did not attend it. Howe took his bride away for the wedding tour, and, finding so much enjoyment where, as no one knew anything about Norah's antecedents she could not be exposed to slights, and all did homage to her beauty and grace, their stay was prolonged indefinitely.

Lucy had never seen Norah, as her old housekeeper had returned to her place the week previous to her own arrival at home, and she had declined Howe's proposal to bring his fiancee to the house to introduce her.

A few months after, she received a note from him, accompanied by a sealed package.

"Dear Cousin Lucy," wrote Howe—"for so I shall always call you, although you have crossed me off your good books—I herewith send a tangible excuse for what you consider my folly. Look upon the pictured face—which does not do full justice to the original—and acknowledge that you have for once been a harsh judge. I assure you it is the index of a fine nature, which is daily developing into a luxuriant growth of goodness, and whose possessor is one of earth's most gifted souls in more ways than mere personal beauty. If you should conclude to come abroad I hope you will let 'bygones be bogones,' and come and join us. Cousin Howe."

"The glamour still lasts," thought Lucy, as she removed the wrapping paper from the picture.

But she wondered no longer when at last her eyes rested upon it.

It was taken in what was evidently a bridal dress, for orange blossoms were fastened in the soft lace which floated in transparent folds around the exquisite face and form.

It was not a rich costume, but its simplicity rendered it the more evident that its wearer needed no glimmer of silk or satin to add to her queenship in the ranks of womanly beauty.

As Lucy noticed the absence of rich accessories in Norah's dress she recalled some words spoken by Howe which had brought at the time a scornful smile to her lips.

"Norah is stubborn about one thing, Lucy," he said. "She will not accept a gift of me unless it be of flowers. I would like to buy her something costly and unique for her bridal robe, but she will not let me. I tell her it is all nonsense, when she will so soon own me, and all of my worldly goods into the bargain."

These words arose and floated through Lucy's mind now, as though to prove that the fair, patrician looking face before her was conscious of a heaven born right to hold as proudly to her ideas of right and propriety as any lady in the land.

"I do not wonder at Howe's hallucination after seeing a picture of his wife," she said, a few hours later to an intimate friend. "If she is as beautiful as she is represented, a man might well lose his senses about her."

Lucy occasionally heard from Vincent Frankland in an indirect way—now through a mutual acquaintance, or again by some newspaper notice of him. He had finished his law studies, and was working industriously at his profession.

The last newspaper paragraph with regard to him had chronicled the fact that he had been retained upon an important suit, and had taken passage upon the steamer Cambria to go abroad for needful evidence.

Mrs. General Clermont, the same lady who had chaperoned Lucy at Saratoga Springs, had long contemplated a European tour, and some three years after Howe's marriage she carried out her intentions.

Lucy went with her. At last she saw the realization of her girlish dreams of rambling amid historic scenes.

All was new and interesting; but one thing seemed strange to Lucy. At home Mrs. General Clermont was one of the leaders of society. Her movements were heralded by the reporters, and her dresses at the numerous receptions and parties "honored by her presence" were described much in the same way that the court journal discusses the doings of the royal family and of the charmed circle surrounding them. But abroad she was as little noticed as the humblest.

Her great wealth, however, was useful in procuring her every comfort and luxury; and daily did her glossy coated carriage horses draw her beautifully appointed equipage along the most approved haunts of aristocracy and fashion.

They were often accompanied by Mrs. Mordaunt, a member of the American colony in Paris, who had been stopping in London long enough to become versed in society gossip, and to know celebrites when she saw them.

One day they were driving leisurly along when a carriage passed with the ducal strawberry leaves upon its panels. Mrs. Mordaunt called her companion's attention to its occupants by a significant gesture.

"Look," she said in an undertone; "I will tell why afterward."

They obeyed and saw a dignified looking matron, dressed in black velvet and resplendent with brilliants, with a younger lady occupying the seat beside her.

The latter was in white, with a bunch of half-opened jacqueminot roses in her hand, and another fastened at her breast by a diamond-studded arrow.

"What a charming face! And where have I seen it?" asked Lucy in a quiet way.

"It is one of the faces fashionable people have a raving about," answered Mrs. Mordaunt; the lady is Mrs. Mervyn-Crandall. They call her by the romantic name of Rose of Erin, and she is of Irish descent. There is a story connected with her which adds to the interest her beauty excites. She comes of a fine old family on her mother's side, and through her has just inherited a magnificent fortune, which was secured to her by the researches of a young American lawyer. Her companion is the Duchess of Goldborough, who presented her to the Queen at the last drawing-room."

But even without the name Lucy had placed that beautiful face. It was the same she had seen in the portrait sent to her by her cousin Howe.

Mrs. Mordaunt went on with her narration:

"It seems that her mother made a mesalliance with her tutor and was discarded by her family. The married lovers fled to America, and soon after the birth of her child the romantic young mother died. Her husband married again; soon after, he also paid the last debt of nature—following his first wife within three years of her demise. He left some money, and his second wife proved how noble a nature may exist in the breast even of an uneducated, low-born woman—for she was both of these. She religiously devoted her dead husband's money to the education of the child left upon her hands. She had never told Norah about the strain of noble blood she had inherited from her mother, fearing that it would give her aspirations which could never be realized. She had meant her to get a sufficiently good education to be competent to earn her living by teaching. But her innocent beauty won the honorable love of a wealthy gentleman, who married her, notwithstanding the opposition of his relatives, little thinking that the flawless pearl he had rescued from its lowly surroundings was to turn out a diamond in disguise. Isn't it good enough to write a book about?"

"Yes," replied Lucy quietly. But she kept the fact of her relationship to herself. Her pride rose in arms at the thought of seeming to wish to shine in the reflected light which emanated from the surroundings of the once slighted Norah.

But upon returning from their drive Lucy found the card of Mrs. Mervyn-Crandall awaiting her, and beside it lay the charming bit of pasteboard which bore the name of the high-born companion of her drive.

"She is nobler natured than I am," was Lucy's silent comment, as she read the names on the cards and then passed them to her companions.

"What does it mean, Lucy?" asked Mrs. Mordaunt. "It is almost like receiving notice from royalty."

"It means that Mrs. Mervyn-Crandall is married to my cousin, and I was the relative who tried my best to break up what I thought his unfortunate fancy for her."

"And this is her revenge," suggested Mrs. Mordaunt.

"No; there is not a single trait about Howe's wife but would do credit to a Princess of the blood royal. She is simply magnanimous enough to extend a welcome to Howe's cousin, but I shall not accept it."

"You foolish girl!" exclaimed Mrs. General Clermont. "It is just refusing the open sesame to the very creme de la creme of that society which I have an ambition to move in. For my sake be as forgiving as is Mrs. Crandall—though it is galling to forgive an injury when one's self is the transgressor."

But Lucy was not allowed to escape from her cousin's patronage so easily. The next morning brought them to her, and in their company was one whose presence sent Lucy's heart-blood thrilling through her veins so rapidly that it was all she could succeed in doing to keep from betraying her emotion. So she forgot to keep up the dignified role she had planned.

Vincent Frankland was the young lawyer who had restored Norah to her rightful place as heiress to her mother's estates, and his success had not alone enriched him but had given him more briefs than many older luminaries of the law can boast; and a wedding took place at St. George's Hanover Square, a few months after, at which the cynosure of all eyes (after Lucy, the bride, of course) was Norah, "The Rose of Erin."—N. Y. Truth.

The Green-eyed Monster.

"But, for the love of heaven, hear me before you drive me from you. I will go far away where you will never see me more, but before you drive me from our little home where we have been so happy, before you tear me from your heart, listen to me. O, George! my husband, my love, hear me! I am not bad, George! I am your own true little wife! O, George kill me if you will, but do not, O, do not say such awful things to me!" and with a cry of pain May Hartman threw herself at her husband's feet and clasped his knees.

"I have heard enough," replied her husband with cold indifference. "There is all the money I have in the world. Take it and go! Take your child with you! I never want to see either of you again!" and pushing her rudely from him he left the house. Long she lay with her face buried in her hands, heeding not the baby fingers that lifted the masses of golden hair and crowed with delight as the sunlight glittered upon it. She did not weep or cry out; she silently prayed for death. Only three years a bride! Three years of happiness such as angels might envy. Three years with George, brave, manly, generous, the idol of her heart, the king of her dreams. There was no bitterness in her heart toward the designing woman with her God-like face and devilish malignity, who had filled her husband's ears with skillful falsehoods. She only crouched like a wounded fawn and prayed that she might die. Out in the cold December sunshine with her babe in her arms she wandered on and on until the river, with its floating ice and sullen splash, was at her feet. Clasping her child tightly to her bosom, with a prayer for the man whose smile was life to her, she—heard him say: "May, I wish you would put this young kid in his crib. How in thunder can I sleep when he keeps kicking me in the back and putting his fists in my ears?"

Sir Moses Montefiore is a Mason. The entire Masonic brotherhood in the United States will take action on his one-hundredth birthday, which takes place on Sunday evening, Oct. 25, corresponding with the Jewish month of the eighth day of Heshran. It is expected addresses from them will be sent and signed by each Mason numbering nearly a million. A portrait on crayon of Sir Moses occupies a prominent place at the White House at Washington. It was presented by Alfred A. Marcus and family, and accepted as an heirloom by President Arthur. Mrs. Hancock, the esteemed and accomplished wife of General Hancock of Governor's Island, New York, has composed a peice of music, arranged for an orchestra, to be called "Montefiore," and to be dedicated to Sir Moses Montefiore, Bart, on his centennial birthday.

"Courting-Sticks"—A Queer New England Custom of the Long Ago.

In early New England days, as far back as the middle of the eighteenth century, when hospitality was a practice as well as a virtue, there was in most houses only one large assembly room, and there the family and all the guests and chance callers gathered on winter nights about the blazing fire of logs. We know that youth was youth and love was love, and young men were timid and maidens were shy, and courtship went on in those days. How was courtship possible in this common room, where every word was heard and every look taken notice of? We read in the admirable volume on the recent centennial of Long Meadow, Mass., by Prof. Richard S. Starrs of that town, in the winter evenings for the convenience of young lovers, since there was no "next room," courting-sticks were used; that is, long wooden tubes that could convey from lip to ear sweet and secret whispers. Was this an invention peculiar to Long Meadow?

It is a charming picture that this calls up, of life in a puritan household, this tubular love-making, the pretty girl (nearly every girl is pretty in the firelight of long ago) seated in one stiff high-backed chair, and the staid but blushing lover in another, handling the courting-stick, itself an open confession of complacence, if not of true love. Would the young man dare to say, "I love you," through a tube, and would he feel encouraged by the laughing, tender eyes of the girl when she replied through the same passage, "Do tell!" Did they have two sticks, so that the end of one could be at the ear and the end of the other at the mouth all the while? How convenient, when the young man got more ardent than was seemly, as the flip went round, for the girl to put her thumb over the end of the tube, and stop the flow of soul! Did the young man bring his stick, and so announce his intention, or did the young lady always keep one or a pair on hand, and so reveal both willingness and expectation? It was much more convenient than the telephone, with its "hello" and proclamation to all listeners at each end of the line. Lovers can make love with anything, even with a telephone, the successful courting of a deaf person (for there is one word that nearly every one likes to hear), as we know, can go on through a speaking-trumpet; but these courting-sticks seem to us the ne plus ultra of tender communication—when a third party is present. They would be very useful now at large parties, where there is such a din and babble that one can only court a pretty girl at the risk of bronchitis or laryngitis. Sometimes in the jam you cannot get near the girl; but with a long courting-stick you could wile her away from her too ardent admirer. This invention seems to us worthy of revival for many reasons, and we should be glad of any further information in regard to it. Civilization in its progress drops a good many things that ought to be retained.

Personalities.

A single flash of lightning last Summer struck an entire potato field, of several acres, belonging to M. J. Wood, of North Sterling, in Windham county, Ct. The vines turned yellow and sprawled over the ground. When Mr. Wood went to dig them a few days ago he found not a potato on the whole peice. It is the first instance on record in which a growing corp was destroyed by the electric fluid.

One of the most peculiar characters in Connecticut is John Maher, of Ansonia, known as John Who-Never-Sleeps. John is an Irishman who is making for himself a little fortune at $1.50 per day by working thirteen hours in the factory. Thither he goes every day, rain or shine, and he is never ill. On the remaining eleven hours he devotes seven to labor and four to sleep. This perpetual living without sleep causes a great deal of annoyance to his neighbors and to everybody within a mile of him who wishes to sleep when he is at work. He is thin, nervous and as supple as a Rocky Mountain goat. He is only 40, but looks aged, because of his devotion to money getting. He has never made but one losing speculation.

Lieutenant Greely recently wrote to a friend in New Orleans in response to some cordial greetings from his old army friends: "No words are more grateful to me at this time than those from my friends and comrades of the war time. There is somewhere among the expeditionary property a Masonic flag which I send by Lockwood's hands to the Polar Sea, and which I hope some day to send to my old lodge. The active efforts of the Lousiana delegation for my relief indicate, I trust, that my appointment to the army from Louisiana is not considered an unworthy one. As a citizen of New Orleans my interest has continually remained alive in my old friends there."

The barons Alphonse and Gustave de Rothschild, two of the chief members of the great European financial house, have been unable to attend the French races in which their horses were entered. The illness of both these money kings is said to have been caused by overwork, the tremendous strain of their immense financial operations having told heavily on their strength. The common idea that the great financial magnates of the world have an easy life, is refuted by the experience of the Rothschilds, who are the hardest working of men. Some one asked Baron Alphonse Rothschild lately why he did not give up his business. His reply was: "It would take me 25 years to settle my affairs sufficiently to enable me to withdraw from the firm."

The common people of England, writes the veracious Eli Perkins, all love the prince of Wales. There is no monarch in Europe so beloved as the prince. The reason is this: The prince is very democratic. He doesn't act like a king, he rides in a simple carriage, he goes everywhere, he even dines at the Savage club with a lot of Bohemians. He is now visiting around the country. He has been a bad fellow amongst the women, but the common people rather like that. He was intimate with Lady Mordaunt, but lied about it like a king. He's been mixed up with Langtry and a dozen actresses, but it has all added to his popularity. He is now about 45 years old, his wild oats are about all sown, and, as he settles down, the people all vote him a jolly fellow. He will succeed to his mother without any opposition. Everybody wants him to slide into the place, and everybody will be glad when he is there.

FARM, FIELD AND FIRESIDE.

Hints for the Cook.

A hot salad, which is a well known Pennsylvania dish, is made by slicing green tomatoes and small onions, and a few potatoes and frying them together; salt them well and send to the table smoking.

Gingerbread may be varied and wonderfully improved by the addition of a cup of grated cocoanut; this quantity is sufficient for a loaf of medium size. Almonds are also used in ginger cake, but unless you add flavor of bitter almonds there will not be a distinctive almond flavor.

A very appetizing way to cook onions is to boil them in salt and water until they begin to be tender; drain the water from them, and wrap each onion in soft paper, set them side by side in a dripping pan, let them bake until done, then put them into a vegetable dish and pour rich brown gravy over them; Spanish onions are especially nice cooked in this way, as they have so delicate a flavor.

To make red-cabbage salad choose a small firm head; take off the outer leaves, and cut the rest into very thin slices; if you can shave it fine it will be all the nicer; mix with it two teaspoonfuls of salt, three teaspoonfuls salad oil, or of clarified butter, a little cayenne pepper, a little curry powder if you please. This salad in nice for two or three days after it is prepared if it is kept where it is cool; if you prefer a sweet salad add sugar.

Household Miscellany.

It is estimated that if it cost but ten minutes to add but one scrap to a crazy quilt of 9,000 scraps, and this is an allowance far too small, the quilt represents an outlay of 1,500 hours, during which the maker, if she really cared for decorative art, might have acquired a remunerative skill in it, might have mastered a language or might have learned housekeeping.

Would you make your home specially attractive and insure its utmost enjoyment for yourself, keep ever in view that you must of necessity live amid the surroundings you create, and take heed that you so build as to secure the greatest comfort and happiness for those about you. Make home the depository of your treasures, increase and multiply them, add to their charms, augument their value and vigilantly guard them.

The burning of sulphur in a room tightly closed, by throwing a small handful on a pan of burning coals, is as effective as it is a simple means of thoroughly extirpating the most offensive of domestic insects. At this season, when all their eggs have hatched, one good fumigation, lasting two or three hours, makes a complete riddance of the victim vile. It must be remembered that sulphur fumes are immediately fatal to plants and that they must be taken to other quarters if any are in the infested room that is to be purified.

Plaster of Paris will drive away roaches without the use of poison of any kind. Last year we were troubled with the little red ant, and with roaches and other vermin in our pantry and cupboards and milk-room. We sprinkled plaster of Paris on our shelves, in the cracks, around wood-piles, around and over flower-pots and in numberless places where vermin do congregate, with good results. I am happy to state we have not been troubled with vermin since. Five cents' worth yearly is enough for any family. Even flies seem to avoid it.

Agricultural Miscellany.

New York Experiment Farm contains 125 acres, situated in Geneva, ninety acres of which are under cultivation. The annual allowance for its maintenance is $20,000, and those, in whose interest it is maintained are entirely satisfied with the results. The benefits of the experiments conducted there, however, are not confined to New York. The faith of the agriculturists of the country in the ability and carefulness of Director Sturtevant, has given wide publicity to his reports, and many wise farmers have profited by them.

Mr. E. S. Goff, horticulturist to the State Experiment station, at Geneva, N. Y., found in a trial of thirty varieties of raspberries that they ripened from July 3 to 14, and continued in bearing from twenty-one to thirty-five days. The most productive, by far, was the Early Prolific, an old sort now little grown, and whose fruit has a harsh acid flavor, but whose hardiness and entire freedom from thorns are thought to render it a desirable parent for new kinds. The second in yield was Clarke, third Delaware, fourth Caroline. Philadelphia, Brandywine and Naomi gave the smallest crops. Davison's Thornless was earliest; Gregg latest.

An enthusiast writes of the cucumber that it is one of the most useful vegetables we have, and can be dressed in a greater variety of palatable ways than any other except the tomato, It is better than squash, and more delicate than the egg plant, prepared in the same manner; can be stewed, fried or stuffed and above all can be parboiled, mashed up in butter and fried as fritters, more pleasant and easily prepared than any other vegetable or fruit. When a cucumber becomes just too old to be used raw or for pickling, it is then at its best for cooking, and may be used for that purpose even until the seeds become hard. A raw cucumber is, for most persons, an indigestible abomination, however much they admire its flavor and odor.

Mr. J. B. Olcott says, in his crisp essay on the agricultural press, that it is a disgrace to his newspaper that the farmer should be continually cheated by traveling quacks of a bogus scientific, religious, medical, or financial character. Piles of money go out of ignorant farmers' pockets that we know of, and piles that we never hear about because the losers are ashamed to tell. The loss to an honest man would not be so deplorable if the money did not go to feed nests of rogues somewhere, and give them a bold front to take on new disguises, and extend their depredations still wider upon society.

How to apply manure was decided at a meeting of the New York State Agricultural Society as follows: First, manure which consists chiefly of the droppings of animals should be applied as soon as practicable to the soil. Second, manure consisting largely of straw, cornstalks or other fibrous matter should be first rotted to become fine. Third, manure should be adplied to or near the surface of the soil or should be slightly buried. Fourth, for hoed crops, and especially for corn crops, it may be buried deeper than for straw crops.

Taking Wolff's tables as given in Johnson's "How Crops Grow" as the basis for calculation, we find that a ton of wheat straw contains of ash materials in pounds 99.2. This ash will contain 11.4 pounds of potash, worth 5 cents a pound for manure—57 cents. Phosphoric acid, 5.36 pounds, at 5 cents—27 cents. The straw also contains 40 pounds of albuminoids containing 6 2-3 pounds of nitrogen, worth 20 cents a pound, $1.33. Total manurial value of a ton of straw, $2.17. In a ton of wheat straw there is enough potash for 30 bushels of wheat; enough phosphoric acid for 9 bushels, and enough nitrogen for 5 bushels. Whether the farmer can afford to sell straw for 75 to 80 cents a ton the inquirer can easily determine from these estimates of values.—Dr. R. C. Kedzie.

Leisure at Home.

When circumstances permit a busy man or woman to travel and visit relations or places of interest, every moment is made to yield as much enjoyment as possible. This same plan might be profitably followed with the moments, or hours of leisure, at home. Habit is an ever present master; and if it is the rule to make pleasant every stray piece of time that is not freighted with work, it will soon become a habit, and the habit will encroach on the working hours too, not causing any neglect of work, but leading to an endeavor to make it pleasant; and such work as shelling peas, peeling apples and potatoes, will often be done in the cool sitting-room or under the shade of the tree near the door. But the hours that have no mortgage of work claiming them as fast as they come, will be given to something that is recreative.

The parlor of the house may profitably be made a place for pleasant occupation; nothing that is work ought to intrude here. If the house has a parlor, let it be the one place where busy, hurrying work is shut out, though fancy work that the finger and eye delight in, may be admitted. Here the instinct that sets childish hands to building play-houses and adorning them—this instinct still alive, though childhood is past—may be indulged in again, and this room be furnished for beauty, though all the rest of the house must be fitted for rough work-a-day use. Here the carpet used need not be of serviceable rags, but of finer texture and attractive pattern; frail vases may stand in safety, and pictures and books be scattered on the table convenient for reference, and free from dust and hurried handling, Tidies and mats, that would lose their beauty in a few weeks in the comfortable sitting-room's everyday wear, keep bright and clean. The house-wife can here enjoy a quiet rest sitting in a comfortable chair, and looking at the pictures on the walls and the ornaments about the room collected by herself or received as gifts from husband, children, or friends. If no other day in the week gives time for quiet enjoyment of the parlor, Sunday will afford some leisure; and it is pleasant to throw open the room on Saturday morning, sweep and dust it, and fill the vases with fresh favorite flowers, making ready to spend here the hours of Sunday rest. If a love for beauty pervades the family, even the little children will handle with loving fingers the pretty books, and soon learn to respect the order and quiet of the room, going outdoors or to the sitting-room to romp, and coming here for the quieter pleasures of a story perhaps, or a song.—Rural New Yorker.

Lime Water Curative.

The housekeeper should never be without a bottle of lime water. To have it always ready and in good order, with little expense, place in a tall quart bottle of any kind a gill or so of good lime just slaked with water. Then fill the bottle with rain or other pure water, and allow it to stand quietly, well corked. The lime will settle, leaving clear lime water at the top. Pour this off gently, as wanted, adding more water as needed. Lime water, even when closely corked, often deteriorates; the carbonic acid in the air unites with the lime and settles as an insoluble carbonate on the sides of the bottle, which is nearly impossible to remove. This will spoil the bottle for any other use. Therefore select one from the store room which is not valued, but which has a good tight cover. A wide-mouth bottle is preferable. The lime should be removed and fresh put in once a year or so, unless kept tightly corked. A pint of cold water dissolves less than ten grains of lime, and warm water still less. The uses lime water may be put to are innumerable. If good milk disagrees with a child or grown person, three or four tablespoonfuls of lime water added to a pint of it will usually help digestion and prevent flatulence; it also counteracts pain from wind in the stomach caused by eating acid fruits. Over-eating of candies and other sweets will sometimes cause acidity, for which this is a soverign remedy. A tablespoonfull for a child two years old to a gill or more for an adult is an ordinary dose, while considerable will have no bad results; in fact, it is a simple antiacid and slightly tonic. A small quantity put into the tooth-mug with the water for cleaning the teeth will harden the gums and prevent soft decay, which is a serious evil which many desire to avert. For burns and scalds, to two parts of linseed oil add one part of lime water, and apply with soft linen.

Look Well to the Fodder.

It is just the time now for all owners of cattle to look well to the fodder. Dry, hard, indigestible feed promotes what is known as murrain, red water, mad itch, and other diseases which prevail in the Fall. When the feed is poor, then is the time to make use of some of the cheap linseed-cake meal, or of linseed alone, which is nutritive and healthfully laxative. But the prevalent bad weather is the worst of all, loaded as it is with decaying matter and foul with filth. The first thought of the stockman should be to secure a supply of pure water; with this cattle will worry through a good deal of poor food; but dry, hard feed without water is more than any animal can stand.—Rural New Yorker.

Rats in the Cellar.

Shortly before winter, as the stores go in to cribs and cellars, young rats, raised by careful mothers in hollow trees or other safe and sheltered corners busy themselves at night looking for winter quarters where there will be defence from cold, and where food will be at hand. When a cellar is stored with fruit, vegetables, etc., it is very difficult to drive out rats, and the damage they do in such a place is enormous. All the finest fruits are soon bitten into, defiled and spoiled. A little anticipatory care, to prevent their establishing a colony, pays well. The openings for ventilation should have rat-proof screens; the floors and walls should be searched for holes; empty barrels or boxes moved, holes stopped with glass and mortar, and a fresh coat of whitewash given. If doubtful places remain, a good sprinkling of copperas and lime is hateful and deterrent to these troublesome animals.—Tribune.

A Nut for Wheat Growers.

What makes the present price of wheat so low is the large crop in England. This year they have had a good harvest there and forty bushels to the acre is looked upon as quite a small yield; which is, considering that a good many farmers in good years produce as much as sixty-four bushels to the acre. Our average is about eleven bushels; parts of New York and Ohio and even of Michigan, run lower than this and seven bushels in some countries is an average; twenty-five bushels is a rare yield and thirty or forty is rarer, but the fact that some farmers reach up to it shows how consistently some others are reproaching wheat growing as a small business. It is easy to get out of this small business by enlarging it, by treating the land more liberally and trebling the yield. What man has done, man can do. Solomon said: "In times of prosperity rejoice; but in times of advesity consider." And "average" wheat-growers may profitably do a good deal of considering just now, but not all to the disadvantage of the wheat.—Triticum.

Drinks for the Sick.

(1) Orange whey: The juice of one orange to one pint of sweet milk. Heat slowly until curds form, strain and cool. (2) Egg lemonade: White of one egg, one tablespoon pulverized sugar, juice of one lemon, one goblet water. Beat together. (3) Sago milk: Three tablespoons sago soaked in a cup of cold water one hour; add three cups boiling milk; sweeten and flavor to taste. Simmer slowly half an hour. Eat warm. (4) Baked milk: Put half a gallon of milk in a jar, and tie it down with writing paper. Let it stand in a moderate oven eight or ten hours. It will be like cream, and is very nutritious, (5) Punch without liquor: Take the juice of six lemons, adding sugar to suit the taste. Put to this a quantity of pounded ice and some sliced pineapple, pouring over it two quarts of water. This is an agreeable summer beverage for anybody, sick or well.

Charmed by a Black Snake.

News has just reached here from Roxbury, this county, of a most remarkable case of snake charming, which occurred here on Monday afternoon. Miss Elizabeth Carson, aged twenty years, who was raised in the family of Mr. Samuel Sharps, a respectable farmer of Roxbury, was directed by Mrs. Sharps, on Monday afternoon, to repair to a blackberry patch a short distance from the house and gather berries for supper. Nothing unusual took place until the young girl had filled her basket and was about starting for home when she experienced a very peculiar sensation in her left ankle, which appeared as though it were being wound tightly with a stout rope. Miss Carson set her basket of berries down for the purpose of examining into the cause of her discomfort, when to her unspeakable horror, she discovered that a huge black-snake had coiled itself round her ankle, and was drawing itself up tighter and tighter as to positively stop the circulation of the blood in the limb, and cause the unfortunate young girl the most excruciating pain. She had no sooner set eyes upon the reptile than it charmed her, and she was rendered powerless to free herself from her repulsive tormentor.

How long she remained in this condition Miss Carson is unable to say, but thinks it must have been over ten minutes. Her liberation and escape is as singular as the cause of her strange experience itself. The snake, it seems, wound itself so tightly around her ankle that the muscles of her leg were drawn out of their natural position, and the circulation of the blood having been checked, the limb in its contortions was moved, which had the effect of drawing the eyes of the snake from those of its victim, thus breaking the charm which it exercised. Volition having returned, Miss Carson pulled her sunbonnet from her head, and winding it around her right hand she caught the snake by the head and uncoiled it from her ankle and threw it with such force against a stone fence near by as to kill it instantly. It was afterward found to measure five feet three inches in length. Miss Carson reached home in an exhausted condition. Medical aid was promptly summoned, and everything done to relieve her sufferings, but it is feared that gangrene will ensue on account of the withered condition of the limb, which is rapidly falling away. The muscles of the ancle have been reduced to mere threads, and the circulation of the blood has entirely stopped. The only hope that remains of saving Miss Carson's life is in the success of the operation of amputating the limb, which will be determined upon to-day at a consultation of the physicians who have charge of the patient.

The Newport (R. I.) Mercury relates that some years ago, when the Roman Catholic Church there was repaired, the society was poor and a note was given in part payment. The note was rejected, and, the years going by, was outlawed. Some time afterward Rev. Mr. Cory met the contractor and asked if the note had been paid. "No," replied the contractor, "and it is now outlawed." "Outlawed?" exclaimed the priest; "an honest debt outlawed with an honest man and a Christian? I never heard of such a thing. It shall be paid." And the note was paid.

VILLAGE WEDDING BELLS.

Ring on, ring on, ye wedding bells!
There's a duty rests with you;
The joy you make is the joy that tells
Of hearts that are brave and true.

The times are hard for simple folk;
They're oft in stormy weather;
But a man and his wife must pull through life
And breast the waves together.

One side of life is dark as night;
The other is clear as day.
In doing right you keep the light,
And the dark will pass away.

Though times are hard for simple folk,
And we moan the ills of fate,
The rule for man is, do what we can,
He must learn to work and wait.

Behind the cloud's silver light,
A joy for the faithful heart,
Then plight your troth by a solemn oath,
To be true till death do part.

It's not in vain the wedding bells
Ring joy on the wedding day;
Though the battle's nigh, yet hopes are high,
And hearts are merry and gay.

Ring on, ring on, ye wedding bells!
There's a duty rests with you;
The joy you make is a joy that tells
Of hearts that are brave and true.

SAUCE FOR THE GOOSE.

Mr. Edward Tupper sat alone in his spacious parlor, his head enveloped in a cloud of tobacco smoke that puffed in volumes from between his angry lips and curled gracefully from the daintily colored bowl of his elegant meerschaum; for the said Edward was a connoisseur in pipes, and among the many that he had laid away as he took up with a new love of more exquisite design than the former, this special one had never lost favor in his sight; and whenever he found himself especially moody, this was the one that was always fished out of some obscure recess, and filled and lit to soothe his mind to a proper state of complacency.

Poor fellow? He had been married but the short space of eight months, and already he felt himself sadly neglected; and yet how could this be? The dainty slippers that adorned his elegantly formed feet were the work of his wife's hands; some elaborate workmanship was also displayed in the crown of a hat tossed carelessly into a corner, evidently the work of the same loving hands, and everywhere might be seen evidences of that same kindly rigor that makes home, to a man, that place of all places nearest to heaven.

Poor Edward! Everything had gone on happily for him until within the past week, when an old friend of Dolly's (Dolly, by the way, was Mrs. Tupper), came to the city; and Dolly, dear, kind Dolly, took him in and made much of him, much to the delectation of the said friend, and much to the chargrin of the indulgent husband.

Dolly meant nothing by this. Frank Olmstead was a very old friend whom she had known for many years, and her dear little heart could not conceive how it could be wrong for her to make much of him whom she had known long before Edward came to be the bright particular star.

Edward had borne it patiently, never uttering a syllable of reproach, and our dear Dolly was probably all unaware of how the poor fellow's heart was bleeding; and though her kisses were as warm as ever, still he thought he detected a coldness that made his heart bleed and his brow darken, and almost made his food go down the wrong way. Strange, is it not, what a close affinity there is between a man's heart and his stomach?

This evening Dolly had capped the climax by actually going to the opera with Olmstead, and leaving her liege lord to the tender mercies of the hired girl and the evening paper.

"Confound it!" muttered Edward forcibly, rising to his feet and shaking his legs out with a vicious jerk. "I believe I'm getting jealous to my little Dolly—but I'll be blowed if I don't think I have cause."

"Cause? Of course you have cause!" laughed a cherry voice just outside the door. "May I come in? Where's Dolly?"

"My dear brother," answered Edward, smiling in spite of himself, "you might be six men, and you would still make your friends wonder why you were not made seven to balance your lingual powers."

"You never mind me, Ed—I'll take care of myself. But where's Dolly? I had a box for the opera this eve, and my girl has left me. Thought I'd come over and take her."

"Well, you're too late, Harry, this time," said Edward, moodily; "our mutual friend, Olmstead, has her there by this time."

"Whew! the dev—excuse me, my beloved, but so sets the wind, does it? See here, don't you go to blaming Dolly. You may be her husband, but when you married her you made her my sister, and you bet I'll stick up for her;" and the young scapegrace assumed a very determined attitude, and awaited his brother's reply.

"Oh, I am not blaming her—but you'll admit it's confounded hard on a man to see his wife running around like this. Now, Harry, you've a good head on you if it is an airy one. Can't you think of some plan to show her that she's in the wrong without hurting her feelings too much?"

"Yes, I admit that an airy head is better than nary one," laughed Harry, thumping the article in question viciously. "But why didn't you ask my advice before you married her?" I'd have advised you not, and then tried for her myself."

"The way I feel to-night you might have her and welcome," growled Edward, viciously. "But seriously, can't you think of something?"

"Let me see," mused Harry. "She still loves you?"

"Idot—of course she does!"

"Exclude the pet name, if you please—yes, I have a plan."

"Tell it me."

"You must promise implicit obedience to my will and recognize my sway as sovereign in the whole affair."

"Very well," exclaimed his brother. "But be careful and make no mistake in this matter. Don't make a failure, for pity's sake."

"You're a sweet object to excite pity!" with mock disdain. "In the [illegible] vocabulary of youth which no tongue can expound, there's no such word as fail—or words to that effect."

"Consider me your vassal—command and I will obey—and if you succeed in routing the enemy—"

"Well—if I succeed?"

"You have carte blanche on my pocket-book for a week."

"Adieu, my brother: I go but will return again; meantime, dress yourself for the opera, order round the carriage, and admit me here." And Harry Tupper disappeared through the half open door.

"I wonder what idea the fellow has in his head?" mused Edward, after his brother had gone. "I was only partly in earnest, and still I have half a mind to let him have his way. He is fertile in schemes, and perhaps this may be productive of some good; so here goes to dress for the opera."

Dolly Tupper was looking her very prettiest this evening, and many admiring eyes were turned upon the graceful figure as she entered the theater. As she was a favorite in society circles, recognitions were frequent, and not a few of the designing mammas present wondered who the handsome young man with her might be—a brother, probably, and undoubtedly a desirable match.

The opera "Fra Diavalo" was one of her favorites, and the only check to her pleasure was the thought that would come to her of poor Edward at home alone while she was enjoying herself. It troubled her a little, and once in a while a little twinge of conscience would make her sigh at the thought how kind and tender to him she would be that night to recompense him for his loneliness, a pink flush stole over her cheek that made her look like the tender, loving little woman she was.

"You are looking lovely to-night, Dolly," whispered Olmstead, bending toward her that he might look into the shining eyes that had become too dear to him of late for comfort.

But Dolly was in a strange humor to-night, and turned away her head without answering him; things were beginning to assume a new light to her now, and she saw in her friend's eyes too much that was dangerous to her own conscience and his peace of mind.

The curtain had just raised on the second act when a party entered the left box with a great flurry and spread of skirts, and of course all eyes were instantly turned on the new arrivals. A lady and gentleman had just entered; the lady had seated herself in the front of the box, and her escort was still busy in disposing of the wraps, and as his back was turned, could not be recognized.

The lady was handsomely attired, but loud in the extreme, and many a feminine nose was elevated disdainfully in polite abhorence.

Then the man turned and came toward the front of the box, and after some jest that caused his companion to titter and raise a daintily laced handkerchief to her face affectedly, he took his seat by her side. His face was turned so that Dolly could not see it, but the form looked familiar to her, and a cold chill passed through her heart in bitter apprehension. Her eyes burned as she fastened them on him, waiting patiently for him to turn that she might see his face. She kept them there until she saw his head turn slowly, and then—his eyes met hers without recognition and then were turned back to his companion.

"Take me home!" gasped Dolly, hoarsely, clutching Olmstead by the arm. "Take me away Frank, or I shall smother here."

"Calm yourself," whispered he, hurriedly, "and I will have you out of this in a minute."

A carriage was soon in waiting, and he conducted the angry little woman to the door. Dolly bore up well until they were seated in the carriage, when she gave way to tears, and sobbed as though her heart would break.

"Dolly," whispered Olmstead, passionately, "you know I loved you long before this man ever saw you. Give me the right to take you away from this neglect, and I swear to you—"

"That will do, Frank. I see where I have been wrong, and though I shall leave my husband, I will leave him in a way that will enable me to look the world in the face with a clear conscience, and you are a coward to take advantage of this moment to insult me. After to-night I do not wish to see you again."

Olmstead was abashed, angry and silent, and remained so until they reached the house. Then he left her without a word, and drove to his hotel.

Dolly hurriedly changed her dress for a gray traveling costume, put on her wraps, and sat down to the table to write a few departing lines to her husband, before she left the home that had been so dear to her and in which she had found so much happiness.

Poor little girl! Her fiery disposition could not brook the slight—the insult—Edward had put upon her in taking some shameless creature to the opera before her very eyes. She did not once stop to think of what the provocation might have been; it was enough that he had ceased to love her—had transferred his affections to another. Innocent as she was of a wrong intention, she could not see how he could be so false to her—he whom she had loved with her whole heart.

A noise in the hall warned her of her husband's return, and with a smothered sob she kissed the paper that was to be the bearer of her parting message and started for the door. She was too late, however, for footsteps were already approaching on the other side, so with a quick turn she sprang into the next room, which was a little alcove with a pretty bay window looking out into the garden, and pulled together the heavy curtains just as the door opened and Edward and the lady entered.

Edward flung himself moodily into an easy chair, while his companion, flinging off her wraps, pulled a chair up to the table, flung her feet upon the same in a very careless fashion, and lit a cigarette.

Dolly was a witness to all this from behind the curtains, and her pulse throbbed fast with indignation.

"To think of his bringing the creature home with him," she thought, "to this very house! Oh, how I was mistaken in him!"

Meantime the figure at the table had noticed the written sheet upon which she had placed her feet, and quickly pulling it from under them read it through.

"Here's a go, Ed!" grumbled the airy female in the unmistakable voice of our young scapegrace, Harry. "Dolly has lamented."

"What!" exclaimed Edward, hoarsely. "Let me see it!" and hastily snatching it from his brother, he read:—

"MY DEAR EDWARD:—Still dear to me, though mine no longer, I leave you to-night forever. Do not attempt to look for me, for you will never see me again. I shall always love you, but think from appearances that it will be an easy matter for you to forget the past. Good-by, my darling. DOLLY."

He had hardly finished reading it when he heard a faint sob in the next room. Quick as thought he sprang through the curtains and would have taken his weeping wife in his arms; but she repulsed him with a shudder, and stood up before him with her eyes flashing.

"Don't you dare!" she cried. "Keep your embraces for such as the woman in there, and let me go away."

"You are unjust, sweetheart," replied her husband tenderly. "You went out to-night with another companion—why should I not do likewise?"

"You might at least have had some respect for me—who is that in the next room?" Her eyes were flashing now, and Dolly looked dangerous. Tell me!"

"That, dear is one who loves you very much, and who would do much to make you happy."

"Who has done the most to make me utterly miserable."

"See here, sweetheart. Look between these curtains and you will see that I am guilty of nothing but a little attempt to deceive you."

Doubtingly she took her hands from before her face, and with a quick movement peered into the next room, where the obnoxious Harry, tired out and sleepy, had divested himself of hat and false hair, and was sleeping peacefully the sleep of the just.

A glad little smile—humorous and happy—played for an instant over Dolly's face, then two warm arms were raised to her husband's neck, and the sweetest of all lips sought his in a kiss of reconcilation.

It was very wrong in me, Edward," she whispered.

"Hush, darling, never mention it again, but remember that what is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander; so if you must go out with another man—"

"If I do," laughed Dolly, "it will be with the sleeping beauty there, whom I shall kiss before he awakes. And she did, and followed it up with a sharp box on the ear, and then ran off to her own room.

"This is the way the great beneficiary of the human race is treated. Well, I must take these togs off, or I'll be falling in love with myself." And he floated away to his room.

Surprised.

The story of the water which got into the hold of the ship loaded with rice, says an exchange, and so swelled the cargo that it burst the vessel assunder, reminds the editor of the "Kinderhook Rough Notes" of the captain of a North River sloop, who, having hired a new cook at Albany, set him to cooking rice, which he said he had done one hundred times.

Telling him that he would find fifteen pounds in the locker, and cautioning him about cooking too much, the captain went about his business of loading his vessel with pig iron.

In half an hour the new cook rushed out, exclaiming.—

"Say, captain, don't take on any more pig iron; we will have a load of biled rice before night."

The captain rushed into the cabin where he found all the pots, kettles, pans, and tubs full to overflowing with cooked rice, which was also seething over the top of the kettle and falling upon the stove and floor.

"What you been doin'? yelled the skipper, as he glanced around. "How much rice did you put in the pot?"

"Put the whole of it, cap," said the lad; "and I've been doin' nothin' but bailin' out rice for the last twenty mintes. Where does all the stuff come from?"

Lime Kiln Philosophy.

"We have summer," said the orator, as he pulled down his vest, "in order dat watermellyons may ripen, and we have winter dat 'possums may fatten up. We have 16,456 changes of weather in de course of a y'ear in order to accommodate all minds, as fur as possible. We have moonlight nights, for sich pussons as am behind hand in hoein' corn and sawin' wood, an' we hev dark an' cloudy nights fur de benefit of burglars, cats, an' gas companies. Natur' didn't make de kentry all mountains nor all prairie, kase she realized dat de scenery would be monotonous. Had de sile been all sand we could have raised nuffin' but sweet taters. Had it bin all clay we should have run largely to wheat, an' crowded de price down to 16 cents per bushel. De ocean was made salty so dat de corpses of horses, cows, dogs and cats dumped into it off Coney Island wouldn't interfere wid de seaside hotel bizness. De lakes war made fresh in order dat Chicago an' Buffalo might once in a while change deir drinks. Fack am, my hearers, man am a mighty slim grain of sand, when compared to natur. While she has made eberythin' fur de bes' an' in de bes' way, de wisest man on airth, had he bin gibben de job of makin a yaller dog, would hev got de fore and hind legs all mixed up and left de tail off altogether.—Lime Kiln Club.

California Trout.

In Whitney Creek, one of the tributaries of Kern River in the California Sierras, is found a species of trout peculiar to that place and creek, and known as the "golden trout." They are found in no other place in the world it is said. They do not excel the other varieties in delicacy of flesh, but are noted for the beautiful color which flakes their sides, as purely golden as if they had been submitted to a coating of gold foil. This peculiarity of color and their distinct species is preserved by a natural barrier existing between them and the other varieties which are found in this creek. A series of high and rocky falls prevent other fish from ascending and mingling with them, and so, from generation to generation, they have thus, by a natural barrier, been able to preserve their distinct character. Some of them have descended into the lower part of the stream, and mixed a variety, combining the golden and speckeled trout, has been found.

The decision of the New York judge is a recognition that abutters have rights which even men who steal territory for telegraph poles must respect.

THE SISTER.

She never knew that music soft and sweet—
The patter of a little baby's feet;
She never knew the world of joy and bliss
That lingers in a husband's tender kiss;
She never knew the heartache and the pain
Of living loving, and that loving vain;
She never knew the sorrow and the woe
Of losing light from eyes whose radiant glow
Was all her sun!
She lives in vain, you say?
If, then, to live in vain is day by day
To go among the lowly and the poor;
A ray of sunshine to each darkened door;
To soothe with gentle words and gentle touch
Wretches who sinned, and sinned to suffer much;
To be the link that joins a weary life
To God; to be the comforter of strife;
To be the soothing balm for every pain:
Then the grand woman truly lives in vain!
—Cluskey Cromwell in the Republic.

THE NEW PORTIA.

"You that choose not by the view Chance as fair and choose as true."
—Merchant of Venice.

"Come!"

And, in answer to the above invitation, the door was quickly opened, admitting to Portia's boudoir her friend and confidante, Mignonnette Clare.

"Ah cherie," exclaimed the vivacious little Parisian. "But what is the child doing?" and she paused, gazing in surprise at the fair Portia, who, in charming morning toilette, was seated before an etageres of exquisite workmanship, whereon reposed, in a row, half a dozen photographs which the beautiful young American contemplated with a half-amused, half- satirical expression as she was interrupted by the entrance of her friend Mignonnette, who again queried: "What is the child doing?"

"Only selecting a husband, petite, but don't let the matter cause you any anxiety, for I dare say I shall be able to form a conclusion, which, if not exactly pleasing to myself, will satisfy that august personage, my aunt, who has discoursed to me of an eligible parti, marriage settlement, etc., until the world seems to contain little else. And this morning, driven to desperation by the oft-repeated request that I would seriously consider my prospects and come to a decision, I am now making a frantic effort to do so. But," she added with earnest impulsiveness, dropping the scornful utterance of her former remarks, "I fancy the attempt will prove a failure, for I cannot, will not, sell myself for a marriage title. My heart must precede my hand."

"Oh, qui vous etes singuliere!" and Mignonnette, with unbounded astonishment in her eloquent black eyes, regarded Portia half pityingly. Then she said gayly: "But, machere, tell me the result of your meditations. Surely in that collection you might find le beau chevalier."

"Listen then," said Portia, with a little gesture of impatience, "and you shall know the result of my reverie to the time of your welcome entrance: First in the line is one you well know, Monsieur Le Comte, and I think I may not better dispose of him than to quote the words of my illustrious namesake: 'God made him, and therefore let him pass for a man.' The second aspirant for love's favor is young Louis, of the guards and brother to a duke, but, my dear, his affection resembles an empty pocketbook—valueless to the possessor. Some love, you know, like the well-filled purse, will meet the wishes of your heart, but his, alas, answers to my first simile, empty, valueless. Edouard, the third, more fickle than the wind, for that uncertain element will sometimes indicate its course, while he never does—different man each day of the week and wearied with so much sameness oft assumes an additional character or so between times. The Earl, royal only in name, and now I come to No. 5—Raoul, the dark-eyed barrister, with profession but no practice."

"Why that sigh Portia?" But the maiden, ne'er heeding our silent query, passes on to No. 6, which she disposes of thus: "Now Mignonnette, last, if not least, allow me to present to you his Royal highness, Lord R., worth I know not how many millions, and I need not tell you, by my aunt considered the eligible party. He is dissipated and heartless, without doubt, but then the world overlooks such trifles if counterbalanced by a sufficient bank account," and something like a sneer curled the tempting lips of the lovely American as with an impatient gesture she tossed aside the millionaire's photo and returned to that of the young barrister, her look of scorn changing to one of triumphant and steadfast devotion as she murmured, so low that Mignonnette only half guessed her meaning: "Far more precious than a royal diadem is a loyal heart."

At twilight of the same day upon which the above conversation took place Portia is standing at the drawing-room window of her aunt's stately mansion near the grand avenue of the Champs Elysee, where partially hidden by the heavy curtains, which fall in graceful folds around her silent white-robed figure, she seems, in the gloaming shadows, one of those angel visitants who, lifting with loving hands the mystic veil come at the vesper hour to wish us good night and carry our prayers to heaven, while in the dark azure sky above the stars come silently one by one as if to light for return the angel's pathway and Portia still dreams at the window, gazing anon into the somewhat deserted street, and a little beyond, the place de l'Etoile, with the famous arch of Triumph, whose lofty and imposing proportions seem like a mighty sentinel keeping watch over the slumbering city and at a short distance the spacious avenue Bois de Bologne, beautiful in the moonlight with the paths and flowing gardens leading to the park, the famous Bois de Bologne, a favorite resort and most delightful retreat, its sparkling lakes now gleaming in wondrous scintillating beauty kissed by the Radiant Queen of Night.

"More than beautiful; 'tis glorious, divine," murmured a young man, who, emerging from one of the shady paths overhung by luxuriant foliage passed on his way to the avenue Bois de Bologne, and thence to a splendid mansion, where in the window stands a white-robed maiden. The young man quickens his steps as in the distance he descries the lovely picture, and at the same instant the expectant look in Portia's dreaming eyes gave place to one of joyous welcome as she sprang to the doorway, which proceeding would greatly have shocked that dignified personage, the Countess, and been pronounced by her, not all commo il faut. But the worthy lady, Portia's aunt, was safely a mile away, partaking of a select peti sooper, so was spared this shock to her somewhat sensitive feelings. And a white-robed maiden passes swiftly o'er the tassellated marble floorway and softly opens the massive door, while somebody following the example of Luna in the park, bends his stately head over a lovely, up-turned face, and something—could it have been the night wind—murmurs low: My darling, mine forever." A moment later two lovers are seated in the coziest nook of the drawing-room, while a massive mirror opposite reflects two happy faces—a faithful prophecy, we trust for the future.

Yet in this charming world of ours, how swiftly the shadows dispel the sunshine, and it is only the next morning when Portia living again in the sweetest of day dreams, the happiness of the preceding evening, receives a summons from her aunt, the Countess, to wait upon her in her boudoir, where that lady received her with diffusive demonstration saying, as she critically surveyed her neice, "Bien mon enfant, I trust you have well considered the magnificent offer of Lord R. and made up your mind to answer it as becomes a sensible girl."

As becomes a sensible girl? Yes, Aunt Marianne, and therefore I cannot accept the offer to which you refer," answered Portia firmly.

"Not accept it, child! Are you mad?" exclaimed the Countess angrily. "Not wed Lord R., who does you so much honor!" and, forgetting in her dismay the affectionate demonstration with which she meant to win her neice, Aunt Marianne poured forth a torrent of bitter words and reproaches, ending with "And what are your reasons pray, for this unheard-of-proceeding?"

"Simply these," replied Portia, quietly: "The man is too dissipated and too heartless. I do not love him, and besides," drawing herself up proudly and looking steadfastly into her aunt's face—"besides, as I have already told you, my heart is pledged elsewhere, and I cannot, will not, retract my promise."

"Nonsense," replied the Countess, growing each moment more indignant. "Nonsense; and you mean to tell me that you will give up Lord R. with his millions, for Raoul, that beggar of a barrister?"

Take care, Aunt Marianne," replied the girl quickly with flashing eyes; "I cannot hear the one I love spoken of with disrespect even by you." But, unheeding the last remark, the agitated Countess continued angrily: "I will never give my consent to your union with the barrister—never! You shall not throw yourself away in that manner, even if you are bent upon doing so. You hear my words, my commands, and will heed them, mademoiselle."

Portia was silent, revolving in her mind the condition of affairs and how best to win her case as she was determined to do. Being left at her parents' death to the care of her uncle, who had married the present Parisian Countess, she was at his death intrusted to the protection and guidance of his widow, whose sole ambition regarding her charge was to bring her up in a manner befitting her station, and when the proper time came arranged for her a brilliant alliance. But at present the young lady seems determined to circumvent her aunt's pet project.

"Aunt Marianne," she answers presently, "I am aware I must have your consent to my marriage, but let me tell you I make one absolute condition—that the wedding shall be a private one and take place en masque."

"Indeed, I shall allow no such condition," began the Countess, "provoking child that you are. Then recollecting herself, she added reflectively. "However, Lord R. wishes to go abroad immediately, and there really is not time to prepare for a grand wedding, as I should wish yours to be. So, foolish one, have your way. Lord R. is himself somewhat eccentric, and will no doubt humor your whim, so order the carriage and we will commence preparations at once," added the Countess, highly satisfied, saying to herself; "I was so afraid that girl would, with American obstinacy, absolutely refuse, that I am quite willing to accede to her foolish request, if need be, as the least of two evils."

And Portia, quitting her aunt's presence, exclaimed with equal vehemence: "I shall win my case. I will! I will! 'Tis Love vs. Diamonds."

A week later, and in the stately drawing-room of the Countess, redolent with the perfume of orange blossoms, a few intimate friends are assembled to witness the marriage ceremony of her niece. The masked bridegroom with the officiating clergyman wait at the flower-laden alter, improvised for the occasion, and a moment later the door opens to admit the lovely bride, also en masque, attired in her marriage robe of snowy white, with the conventional veil and orange blossoms, while from an adjoining room comes the sweet yet subdued strain of the wedding march. And in the impressive silence which follows is heard the solemn marriage invocation, and when the priest in charge, who is a warm friend of the groom, pauses to question: "Who gives this woman to be wedded to this man?" the Countess from her station near the bridal party places the hand of her neice in that of the waiting bridegroom, rejoicing at this consummation of her dearest wishes. The golden circlet, type of their eternal union, glistens on the fair, white hand of the bride. The marriage benediction is pronounced, and the Countess presses eagerly forward to offer her congratulations when the masks fall and she beholds, not Lord R., but Raoul, the handsome young barrister, proudly triumphant, his great love shining in his eyes, as addressing the bewildered Countess, he says pleadingly: "Forgive us. My Portia has won her case, and I, from an honor recently conferred, am no longer a 'briefless barrister,' but the Earl of C——," which statement, it is needless to say, speedily, obtained the Countess' forgiveness.

In a charming villa near the Champs Elysee dwells Lord C——, still a barrister, with Portia his lovely bride, and together they plead the cause of mercy, justice and truth—he in judicial halls and she in loving service among the oppressed and afflicted.

Oh, fairest spirit. Love with snow white wings.
The sweetest homage of the earth is thine.
'Tis love alone which leads to the Divine.

Senator Anthony remembered his faithful friend Major Ben: Perley Poore by bequeathing to him the Charles Sumner silver tankard water pitcher and silver cup and the sum of $2,500.

THE GOLDEN MEAN.

He that holds fast the golden mean,
And lives contentedly between
The little and the great,
Feels not the wants that pinch the poor,
Nor plagues that haunt the rich man's door,
Embitt'ring all his state.
The tallest pines feel most the pow'r
Of wint'ry blast; the loftiest tow'r
Comes heaviest to the ground;
The bolts that spare the mountain's side,
His cloud-cap eminence divide,
And spread the ruin round.

THE QUARREL.

The brief March day was drawing to a close, and the twilight, which would probably light up country hillsides for some time with purple softness, was already eclipsed in the city with flaring gas-lights, and Lilian Graham clung closer to her friend's side, with almost a sensation of terror.

"I had no idea it was so late, Effie," she said to Mrs. Wallis, her companion. "Oh, do let us hurry home."

"Don't be nervous," laughed merry little Mrs. Wallis. "We're only half a dozen blocks away from home at the furthest. I like to be out in the twilight once in a while myself. It gives one a spicy sense of adventure."

But Lilian was made of different stuff. There was something clinging and dependent in her nature, and the growing darkness appalled her.

"Oh, I am so glad!" she exclaimed, with a sudden, joyous intonation of her voice. "Meredith Allston is coming. He will see us safe home."

As she spoke a tall figure approached—the figure of a gentleman walking rapidly down the street, with the lamp light shining full upon his dark eyes and regular features.

"Mr. Allston! Meredith!"

But, to Lilian's surprise, the gentleman took no notice of her hesitating summons, but passed her, looking into her eager, flushed face with the careless glance of unrecognition.

She drew herself haughtily up and bit her lip.

"I might have spared myself the trouble of speaking," she said, "if I had only known that Mr. Allston does not know his acquaintances in the street!"

"I dare say he was thinking of something else," said Effie Wallis, apologetically.

"But I called his name," persisted Lilian, "and he looked me full in the face!"

"Well, you shall call him to an account for it when he comes to-night."

"I have half a mind not to see him!"

"That would be nonsense," said sensible Mrs. Wallis. "Come along; we shall be at home in two minutes."

Lilian Graham looked very pretty as she sat in her father's drawing room that night, with the soft light from the chandelier streaming around her slender figure. She was a blonde, of that rare type of beauty which boasts a complexion like damask roses and hair of shining gold in contrast to eyes of the darkest hazel, and the somewhat plain face of Mrs. Wallis served as an unconscious foil to set off her own fresh young loveliness.

Mr. Allston's face brightened as he entered the room a few minutes after the little ormolu timepiece on the mantle had struck 8.

"You are looking well, Lilian," he said, with something of the conscious pride of proprietorship.

Lilian bit her lip.

"You did not stop to think about my looks when I really needed your escort this evening," she said a little coldly.

He looked at her in astonishment.

"I don't know what you mean, Lilian?"

"Were you not on Sixth avenue this evening, between 6 and 7?"

"No; I was not."

Miss Graham's cheeks flushed.

"Mr. Allston, I can hardly discredit the evidence of my own senses! I certainly saw you, and so did Mrs. Wallis!"

He looked pained, but offered no further explanation of the mystery.

"Are you ready for the concert?" he asked.

"I have changed my mind," she said briefly. "I don't want to go!"

"Lilian!"

"The truth is," she said rising to her feet, and playing with the gold which was looped around her neck, "I do not care to go out with a gentleman who sees fit to repose so little confidence in me!"

Mr. Allston bowed his submission to her fiat.

"Very well," he said, quietly. I cannot, of course, dispute your decision I wish you a very good evening."

But little Lilian found the hours by the domestic fireside a little dull after the departure of her offended preux chevalier.

"I wish I hadn't been so cross with him," she said, shrugging her pretty shoulders remorsefully. "Effie, let's ask papa to take us to the opera; we shall be in time for the last two acts."

"Just as you choose," said Effie Wallis, who was not unaccustomed to the sudden caprices of her pretty little cousin's mind.

The Opera House was crowded, and the party with difficulty found seats at the back of the dress circle—but Lilian was hardly seated before she pressed her cousin's arm.

"Effie, look there—in the parquet—close to the orchestra stalls!"

"Yes," said Mrs. Wallis, I see—it is Mr. Allston; but that's no reason you should pinch me black and blue! I suppose a man has a right to come to the opera if he chooses!"

"I hope he won't see us," said Lilian, in a tone that might easily have been interpreted as directly contrary to her words.

"He can't, unless he has eyes in the back of his head," said Mrs. Wallis. "Do keep still, and let me hear Santrello sing this delicious solo!"

Lilian was delighted when she met Mr. Allston the next morning on Broadway.

"I hope you enjoyed yourself last night," she said, demurely.

"I can't say that I did, particularly," he answered, with a smile. "I spent the evening at home, over my books, and retired very early."

"I beg your pardon," said Lilian, "you were at the opera, for I saw you there!"

"At what opera?"

"Fra Diavolo!"

"You are mistaken, Lilian."

"I am not mistaken," she answered, positively. "I saw you there, and Effie did, also. Where's the use of trying to deceive me so?"

He colored, and for an instant looked as if he would have spoken hastily; the next moment, however, the cold, quiet look came on his countenance.

"I am not trying to deceive you, Lilian; but there are some things which I can not tell you!"

"Engaged people should never have mysteries from each other," she answered, indignantly.

"The mystery is not mine Lilian!"

"As you choose," she retorted; "but I do not choose to be the butt of your practical jokes any longer. Please to consider our engagement at an end!"

"Lilian, do you mean what you say?"

"Certainly I do!"

She drew the glittering engagement ring from her finger and tossed it towards him, but he, standing with folded arms, made no effort to catch it, and it rolled down into the gutter. And thus they parted, these two, who had been affianced lovers so long!

The weeks passed by—bleak March softened into violet-eyed April, and, somewhat to Lilian's disappointment, perhaps, Meredith Allston made no further effort to see her. She grew pale and heavy-eyed, but she would have died ere she would have sent to her lover, saying, "I have been wrong—come to me once more!"

For Lilian Graham persisted in believing that Meredith alone had been in the wrong.

She sat at the head of her father's dinner table one evening mechanically devoting herself to the duties of hospitality, when a well known name sounded in her ear.

"Allston," said one, a pussy looking old gentleman, who was eating a great deal of lobster salad. "Yes, I saw the notice of the death in the morning paper. It's one of the Allston of Gramercy Gardens—Meredith Allston's cousin. He was hopelessly insane, and no one ever saw him until of late years, when the old gentleman insisted on having him at home. He didn't believe in asylums, he said; but he was so sensitive on the subject he never allowed any one to know the poor young man was at his house. A fine looking young fellow, too; they say he looked very much like Meredith. Got loose one night, I believe, and paraded about town, behaving so well that people mistook him for his cousin—ha, ha, ha!"

And the old gentleman swallowed half a glass of champagne and turned very purple in the face.

Lilian listened, feeling as if she were in a dream!

This, then, was the secret of the strange misunderstanding which had parted herself and her affianced lover. The cruel secret which Meredith Allston was obliged to conceal—the mistaken identity of the two cousins had been at the bottom of her heart wreck! She could hardly sit through the tedious course of the formal dinner party, and rejoiced when the time came for herself and Mrs. Wallis to leave the table!

"Effie," she cried breathlessly, as soon as they were alone, "did you hear what Mr. Van Ness said?"

"Yes; isn't it a strange story?" her cousin assented. "What a relief it must be to the Allstons! But what are you going to do?"

"To send for Meredith at once!" Lilian answered promptly.

"And confess yourself to have been in the wrong?"

"Yes, certainly!"

Effie Wallis smiled and elevated her eyebrows.

"Then you have more moral courage than I have."

But Lilian's heart secretly urged her on, and she could not rest until she had summoned Meredith Allston to her presence.

"He came somewhat surprised, yet not lacking in dignity.

"Meredith," she said softly, coming up to him, "will you forgive me? I have been wrong and hasty, but I love you still. I never knew until to-night of—of the cloud which overshadowed your household."

"I knew you were misunderstanding me, Lilian," he said calmly, "but my lips were sealed by a promise exacted by my father."

"Then you will forgive me?"

He smiled.

"It is easy to forgive those we love," he said gently.

"Meredith," she whispered, "do you love me as you once did?"

"My sentiments have undergone no change Lilian!"

The lover-like kiss he pressed upon her brow was the signal of a newer and more auspicious betrothal, whereof the mainspring was perfect love and trust.

Decrease of Drunkenness in England.

London Times: The Brewster Sessions, now being held in the northeastern boroughs and districts, show that there is a very considerable falling off in the amount of the drunken cases brought before the notice of the magistrates, and that the decrease is due largely to the distress in the shipping and iron-making towns. At Middlesborough in the past twelve months reported on by the police, the number of persons proceeded against for drunkenness was 495, while in the preceding year the number was 603—the Chief Constable attributing the decrease to the "dullness of trade and the lack of money among the working classes." At Darlington 405 persons have been proceeded against, as compared with 487 the previous year. At West Hartlepool (County) Sessions, the convictions for drunkenness were reported for the police year as 716 in number (including 99 females), whereas in the past year the number was 1,001. At Scarborough a decrease was also shown—from 400 proceeded against in the previous year to 302 in the year just closed. At several of these places the magistrates decided to reduce the number of licensed houses, no fewer than eighteen "off beer" licenses being refused renewal at Darlington.

According to Neue Freie Presse of Vienna, very sincere regret is felt in that city at the transfer of Minister Taft to St. Petersburg, and it is not confined to the American colony, either. He was greatly liked by his associates of the diplomatic corps and had made a place for himself in the best Vienna society. "In the brief time of two years," reports the Vienna newspaper, "Mr Taft has succeeded in acquiring the German language to such a degree of perfection that he availed himself of that tongue exclusively during his farewell audience with the emperor."

Polk County Journal.

H. E. COOKE, Publisher.

CROOKSTON, - MINNESOTA.

The London Economist says that the English farmers cannot raise wheat to sell at 30 shillings a quarter without losing money. Their land costs them, say, £2 an acre, and other incidental charges amount to £2 more. Even if they had their land free, they would barely get back their outlay at the price named.

The presidential canvass will soon be ended. It has been prosecuted with a good deal of vigor in certain pivotal states, and amidst much excitement, but on the whole, the country has been profoundly quiet. The result, whatever it may be, cannot fail to disappoint millions, but all, with one accord, will be heartily glad that the agony is over.

The most absurd incident of the presidential campaign is the canvass made by Mrs. Belva A. Lockwood. Without presidential electors in a single state, she solicits votes and in all respects acts as if she felt sure of effecting something in the way of gaining popular support for woman suffrage. She will gain some notoriety of a cheap kind, as a presidential candidate, but will not gain the respect even of those who, under other circumstances, would be glad to sustain the suffrage movement.

The heroic struggles of certain Philadelphians to keep the American flag afloat upon transatlantic steamers have at last ended in defeat. The four American steamers of the Philadelphia line have been sold to a British company and are henceforth to fly the British flag, although the purchasers contract that the steamers shall continue to run between Philadelphia and Liverpool. Philadelphia has made great sacrifices to maintain this line of steamers, and the failure is a subject of universal regret.

The special correspondent of the London Times in the west of Ireland gives an exhaustive description of the town of Galway and its trade. The town, with a dwindling population, which only a few years ago numbered thirteen thousand, is a picturesque old place going quickly to decay. Yet it enjoys every natural advantage which ought to insure it a wealthy and busy vitality. The harbor, at a slight expense, might be made the finest on the western coast; the water flow from the vast reservoir of Lough Corrib, with its fall of fourteen feet, might drive any quantity of machinery.

Beauregard's article in the Century on the subject of The Battle of Bull Run says that Jeff Davis was timid when boldness was required, and rash when caution should have been consulted, and that he was narrow-minded, stupid and ignorant in regard to military plans. It has become fashionable among ex-confederate officers to abuse Jeff Davis and make him a scapegoat for every misfortune, but it is doubtful if any of them, placed in the same circumstances could have been more efficient. Certain it is that the result would have been the same whoever might have been placed at the head of the defunct con-confederacy.

The question of establishing a standard prime meridian has been settled at the International Conference in Washington. Of the twenty-four nations represented twenty-one voted in favor of the following resolutions: "The conference proposes to the Governments here represented the adoption of the meridian passing through the center of the transit instrument at the observatory of Greenwich as the initial meridian for longitude." The delegate from San Domingo voted in the negative and the delegates from France and Brazil abstained from voting. It is probable, however, that they will, in spite of local pride, find themselves forced to reckon from Greenwich as the standard; because the rest of the commercial world will not pay any attention to their sulking. It is to be hoped that the twenty-one Governments here represented will take immediate measures for ratifying the action of their delegates.

While everything points toward cheap living for at least a year to come, the depression in business is not alleviated. It is not those alone, who are turned out of work, or have inadequate remuneration therefor, that suffer. It is the capitalists, large and small, and the manufacturer, wherever he may be, or whatsoever goods he may produce, that feels the depression most. He sees his investment shrinking day by day and is powerless to turn the tide of trade. The case is precisely the same with the railroads and the steam and sailing vessels. Liquidation is going on. Money is plenty and cheap for those who can give good security, and the caution which has prevailed since last May in bank parlors is not at all relaxed. In one word, there is not visible to the commercial eye any definite time, or mode of revival of business, while never before was the country so rich in all that goes to make life easy and comfortable. Gradually at no distant day there will be a reawakening of trade, and those who are prepared to take advantage of the turn will again make money at a reasonable rate.

THE PITH OF THE NEWS.

Washington News.

W. H. Dempsey, stationer, was indicted at Washington for defrauding the navy department.

The secretary of state has designated J. A. Kasson, United States minister of Germany, as representative on the part of the United States in the Congo conference to be held in Berlin.

The receipts of the postoffice department for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1884, exclusive of the money order revenue, were $42,818,635, and expenditures $46,411,772, leaving a deficit of $3,593,137, which is attributed to the reduced postal rate. The department last year had a surplus of $2,653,180. This years' deficit, however, will be reduced about $400,000 by money order revenues. The result confirms the estimate made by President Arthur in his message to the last congress.

An officer of the signal service said on Wednesday, relative to the long continued drouth, that it extended to all sections east of the Mississippi valley and Texas. General rains have fallen during October in Tennessee, Ohio valley and the lake regions, and the drouth has continued in the middle Atlantic, south Atlantic and the Gulf states. The little rain that has fallen has not been sufficient to do any good to crops in these sections. At Atlanta, Ga., no rain has fallen for two months, and it is estimated that the cotton crop in that vicinity will fall short 40 per cent. Near Shreveport, La., it is estimated the cotton crop will only be two-thirds of an average. In the vicinity of Petersburg, Va., it has become necessary to close cotton factories on account of the scarcity of water. Official reports indicate light rain in this vicinity, and say there is a heavy rain storm in the lake regions. There has been no rain of consequence in or about Washington for nearly three months.

Railroad and River News.

Thomas J. Kerr, auditor of the Northern Pacific Refrigerator Car company, is in Fargo, trying to discover some clue to the whereabouts of Fred Schmidt, who has been acting as bookkeeper for the company for some time past. Schmidt suddenly disappeared, and he is said to have been between $1,000 and $1,600 short in his accounts.

Chief Justice Wallbridge gave judgment at Winnipeg in the case of George A. Stanbro, charged with embezzlement and forgery, while acting as agent for the Northern Pacific Express company at Hawley, Minn. He decided that Stanbro be held in jail to wait extradition. Counsel for Stanbro will apply for another writ of habeas corpus on technical grounds.

Record of Casualties.

The electric watch factory, in Winona, burned Thursday. Loss, $2,000.

Patrick Jennings' dwelling house in Pembina was burned. Loss, $2,000; no insurance.

Mollie Freeland, a highly respected young lady of Washington, Ind., committed suicide by shooting. Cause, unrequited love.

The Pacific hotel at Tacoma, W. T., was burned recently. Loss, $10,000. The house was fired by a man who made his escape.

At Atoka, Ind. T., the boilers of B. Scratches & Co.'s sawmill exploded, killing J. B. Oliver, Frank Choate of Atoka, and John Radcliffe, engineer, from Clayton, Ill.

While the steamer Lady Grace was returning to Clinton after the demonstration at Davenport, Mr. Charles McCone of Clinton, and an agent of the Cedar Rapids Insurance company, lost his life by drowning.

The steamer Henry Frankhence, which left New Orleans for Memphis, burned to the water's edge, near Devil's Crevasse. The boat and cargo are a total wreck. Loss, $40,000; insurance, $35,000.

Several boys found nitro-glycerine cans in the woods near Tarport, Pa. They built a fire and amused themselves exploding them. One boy was hit by flying fragments in the abdomen and disembowelled, and died six hours later in great agony.

The Criminal Calendar.

H. A. Shaw of Farmington, Iowa, committed suicide by shooting himself. He was mayor of that town for a number of years.

"Scotty," the lynched La Crosse murderer, had already made a record in Oregon, Washington Territory and Montana.

Mrs. Maria D. Saulding, a Boston dressmaker, has been arrested, charged with setting fire to her premises with intent to defraud an insurance company.

Road agents held up a Helena, Montana stage, but were sent flying by a vigorous use of revolvers by the passengers, leaving one of their number dead.

James Murphy and Daniel Quinlan have pleaded guilty to a charge of burglarizing the store of Thayer & Hersch, in Elk River, Minn., and taking $268 worth of goods.

E. S. Rawley has been again arrested by order of Judge C. S. Palmer, for the murderous assault on Mayor Gale of Canton, Dak. He is in the custody of the sheriff. Mr. Gale has also commenced a suit against Rawley, laying damages at $15,000.

When J. R. Dorsey, postmaster of Alpine, Ga., and the woman Jane Wade, who were lynched at Center, Ala., were carried from jail, the woman confessed that Dorsey killed his niece, Mrs. Davis, and her guest, C. C. Jones, whom he mistook for her husband, but protested her own innocence. When they were being strung up they were riddled with bullets.

Juan Wascleweky was hanged at San Jose, Cal. He was a native of Poland, aged thirty, and a butcher by trade. In 1879 he was sentenced to three years in state prison for cattle-stealing. Before his incarceration he warned his wife that if she procured a divorce he would kill her when he got out. The wife paid no attention to the threat, got a divorce and married again. When Wascleweky was discharged, he sought his former wife, and on March 24 last stabbed her thirteen times.

Miscellaneous News Notes.

Fred Moeller of Delphos, Ohio, dreamed he was dead, and the next night was so.

The Iowa supreme court decides that justices of the peace have jurisdiction in liquor law cases.

S. Copelswich Bros. & Co., wholesale jewelers and diamond merchants, at Syracuse, N. Y., have failed. Eastern manufacturers are involved $40,000.

A decision has been rendered in favor of Engineer Melville in the suits to collect debts made by his wife during his absence with the Jeannette expedition.

In New York, Minnie Cummings, the actress, obtained a verdict of $25,000 against Police Officer William B. Deeves and Delia Murphy, dressmaker, in an action brought for false arrest and imprisonment.

E. W. Woodward & Son, merchant tailors of Concord, N. H., have assigned. Their liabilities exceed assets, which are about $100,000. The senior partner lost largely in speculative and outside investments.

Freeman & Co., cotton brokers of Boston, suspended recently owing to a decline in the price of cotton. The firm has claims outstanding against it exceeding $50,000, and owes one bank $27,000, which, however, is well secured.

A poor Englishman named Jack Jacobs has been eking out a precarious livlihood in San Francisco recently by peddling cigars and doing odd jobs. By the death of an elder brother he has just fallen heir to a fortune of nearly $4,000,000.

John W. T. Pleasants, editor of the Petersburg (Va.) Mail, who was indicted for publishing a libelous card reflecting on the character of W. T. Lawrence, was convicted recently of misdemeanor, and the jury imposed a fine of $5 and one minute in jail.

There were 234 failures in the United States reported to Bradstreet's during last week, against 206 in the preceding week, and 209, 187 117 in the corresponding weeks of 1883, 1882 and 1881, respectively. About 85 per cent were those of small traders, whose capital was less than $5,000.

Frank Patterson, theatrical manager, at Asbury Park, was arraigned at Freehold, N. J., recently upon indictments charging him with having forged indorsements to notes aggregating $36,000. There were thirty-four indictments against him. He pleaded not guilty and gave bonds in $10,000 for trial Nov. 17.

A St. Paul correspondent of Bradstreet points out that the present year promises to furnish the wheat grower with a most economical livelihood at best, and vaguely hints at possible restriction of the wheat area in the Northwest. Flax cultivation is already rapidly extending in Minnesota as a better paying enterprise than wheat production.

Personal Points.

Duke Gwyn is in Washington as the agent of De Lesseps' isthmus canal.

Prince Albert Victor of Wales will start next spring on a long tour through the continent the United States and Canada.

Miss Carrie Welton, the lady whose sad death upon Long's Peak attracted so much attention recently, has left her fortune, amounting, it is stated, to between $200,000 and $250,000, to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Nuggets of Foreign News.

Rev. Stafford Brooke, of London, is about to leave the English church to join the Unitarian. Supporters of Mathew Arnold and others will drop Brooke.

The Winnipeg Times says that fully $15,000 in forged paper was discounted for Rigney by the Merchant's bank, and it is a matter of much remark that many of the notes are drawn at three and six months.

Arthur Orton, the Tichborne claimant, weighing 364 pounds when incarcerated in 1874, and when released the other day his weight was but 252 pounds. He and his many titled friends have already begun an agitation intended to reopen his case.

England's would-be king has long wanted Buckingham palace to live in, and the queen at last reluctantly gives him the use of it, but her consent carries the condition that Wales shall hold semi-royal receptions at his own expense in her behalf.

A mob attempted to stop a conservative meeting in Dumfries, Scotland, at which the marquis of Salisbury was speaking. Later they stoned a hotel in which he was stopping, breaking windows. The mob also attacked his carriage. The police were obliged to use force to protect the marquis at the railway station.

"Meeting Tennyson to-day," writes Joseph Hatton, "you might mistake him for a landowner who farms his own estate, a grave, gray countryman. He wears a soft hat and smokes a short pipe. In appearance he is not unlike Walt Whitman, except that where Whitman's face is weak and sensuous, Tennyson's is strong and noble."

The express train, which left Montreal, ran into a cattle and freight train at Point Claire station. Alex. Stewart, the engineer of the express train, was killed, and his fireman seriously injured, both legs being broken. A number of passengers were slightly injured. George McMaster, a commercial traveler of this city, was badly hurt about the head and body. The loss in property is over $75,000.

A Social Sensation at Devil's Lake.

Devil's Lake, Dak., has had a genuine social sensation, in the petition of Mrs. Creel for a divorce from Lieut. H. M. Creel, one of the founders of the city. The complaint alleges that plaintiff, who is twenty-seven years of age, was married in Indian Territory on May 10, 1879, to the defendant, whose age is thirty-one years; that there has been no issue; that since the marriage and subsequent to November, 1883, when the parties came to Ramsey county, the defendant has repeatedly treated the plaintiff in a cruel and inhuman manner, beating her with a revolver and his fist. Several acts of this kind are specified and the dates given, the last being on the 13th inst. The plaintiff charges that by reason of one of these beatings she became sick and sore, and was compelled to fly from home to save herself from further beating, and obtain protection from the assaults of said defendant; that she returned to the house of the defendant on his promise to treat her as a husband should, which promise was violated; that she has never given defendant any cause for such treatment.

The second act in the drama was performed Thursday morning. Mrs. Creel has been stopping at the residence of Mr. Prescott, president of the North Shore bank. Wednesday evening Mrs. Prescott was calling at the house of a friend, when Creel came in. He told Mrs. Prescott to mind her own business and not interfere with his family affairs. The lady replied she was always ready to succor and defend the victim of a wife beater. Creel then made several insulting remarks. Thursday morning Mr. Prescott saw Creel on the street, and hailed him. Creel turned and drew a 44-caliber revolver. Prescott grasped the weapon with his left hand, and commenced hitting Creel in the face with his right. A third party came along and took the revolver from them. Prescott then finished Creel's face in beautiful jet, making the bold ex-lieutenant cry for quarter.

Great Fire in Milwaukee.

The magnificent wholesale and retail dry goods store of T. A. Chapman & Co., at Wisconsin and Milwaukee streets, Milwaukee, took fire about 9:30 o'clock Thursday night. The establishment was a total loss. The immense carpet and shade establishment of Stark Brothers, in the same building, is also burned, and the stock a total loss. One half of the building was owned by T. A. Chapman and the other by H. E. Dickinson. It was of brick, 200x100 feet, and four stories in height in front and five in the rear. The building is entirely gutted. The loss is estimated as follows:

Chapman & Co.'s stock	$500,000
Stark Bros	200,000
Chapman's part of the building	150,000
Dickinson's part	140,000
Total	$990,000

Chapman was insured on stock and building for $425,000, Stark Bros. for about $125,000, and Dickinson for about $50,000. The origin of the fire is unknown.

In the same building P. E. Paposkey had a picture store, which contained a very valuable stock. The whole building was valued at $175,000, and contained stock to the amount of about $600,000, and is well insured.

Road Agents Beaten off.

Helena, Mont., Special:—The coach which left here Monday morning for Boulder, forty miles south, was stopped by five armed men at the top of the Boulder range. On board were Chief Justice D. S. Wade, District Attorney J. A. Johnson, R. W. Tolle, W. E. Cullen, Judge Chumasero, T. H. Carter, Rev. L. L. Wood, and Sheriff Cameron of Meaghre county. As soon as the robbers ordered a halt Sheriff Cameron and several other members of the party opened fire, which the desperadoes returned. Charley Warfield, one of the robbers, was shot dead, and the others retreated and took to the mountains. No one in the coach was hurt. Sheriff Cameron received a shot through his coat. It is believed the attacking party wanted to rescue Neill Murphy, a road agent now under arrest, who was supposed to be on the coach en route to Boulder for trial. Murphy, however, was left in jail at Helena. Posses are after the desperadoes.

Some Doubt About Mrs. Huntington's Bequest.

The Cincinnati Enquirer prints a statement of facts in regard to the will of the late Mrs. Augusta M. Huntington. The article says in the outset: "The will of Mrs. Henry D. Huntington, by which she left $300,000 to the Episcopal church of Minnesota, was probated some ten days ago. It now appears that Mrs. Huntington had nothing to will, for the reason that her wordly possessions consisted merely of a life estate interest, which interest died with her. Mrs. Huntington with her only child, Clarina Barton Shumway, until recently resided in this city. Her maiden name was Augusta M. Johnston. She was a daughter of William S. Johnston, who died in 1869, leaving an estate worth over a million. Miss Johnston married Horatio M. Shumway, and subsequently, about the year 1871, by a second marriage, she became Mrs. Henry D. Huntington." Here the article details the provisions of Mrs. Huntington's will bequeathing $300,000 for Episcopalian schools in trust to Bishop Whipple of Minnesota.

REPUBLICAN CAMPAIGN NEWS.

AN APPEAL.

To Republican Temperance Men as to Their Duty in the Present National Contest.

We, steadfast temperance men and prohibitionists ourselves, ask your careful consideration of the following reasons for not voting the national prohibition ticket:

First—Because it is the general sentiment of prohibitionists that the cause will hereafter, as heretofore, be more successful when the question of prohibition is submitted to a vote of the people separate from other issues and distinct from party politics.

Second—Because prohibition cannot successfully make a national political issue until a policy to be pursued has been clearly defined and approved by the great body of the friends of the cause in the United States.

Third—Because the present prohibition ticket was put in the field without such approval. The convention which inaugurated the movement and nominated the ticket, did not represent the great body of prohibitionists throughout the country, and a large part of the convention opposed placing a ticket in the field. Temperance people in states in which prohibition has been successful, as Maine, Iowa, and Kansas, generally opposed it.

Fourth—Because the present movement is confusing—no plan of operations being properly defined. According to its platform, a vote for St. John is as much a vote for woman suffrage—for Chinese emigration to this country—for taking the appointing power away from the president—for its unjust imputations against both Blaine and Logan—as it is for temperance and prohibition.

Fifth—Because the platform is not the expression of the convention, but of a committee appointed to revise and republish it. The platform adopted by the convention contained a flat money greenback plank, which the committee eliminated. Gov. St. John in his acceptance heartily endorses the platform, but fails to say whether it is the one adopted by the convention or the committee.

Before presenting this crude document in the name of the prohibitionists of the country for the suffrages of the American people, the questions to be voted on should have been more carefully considered and authoritively adopted. Especially before requiring them, as the platform does, to ignore all other questions of public interest represented by the republican and democratic parties."

Sixth—Because it is unfair to patriotic citizens to bring the question of prohibition before the people in such shape as not only to require its friends to vote for what many of them do not approve; but to sacrifice their votes on all other questions, however vitally important to the welfare of the country, where there is not the slightest prospect of success.

It is true the republican party declined to make prohibition an issue in its platform.

For it to have done so would have been political suicide. It would have driven out of the party all of its members, except the prohibitionists. It would therefore have been the abandonment of the field to the democratic party. It would have been to turn over the protection of their rights and the education of the freedmen, the preservation and maintenance of all of the wise and beneficent measures and the great achievements of the republican party to the care, enforcement and preservation of the party that has always been very bitterly opposed to them.

It is also true that its candidates are not at liberty to make new issues for the party by letters, speeches, or acts; for either to do so would be unwarranted assumption. Some prohibitionists have censured Mr. Blaine for not voting on the amendment to the constitution in Maine. But a little reflection will satisfy every fair-minded person that it would have been an assumption of party authority, immediately after the national convention had declined to make the question an issue.

For Mr. Blaine to have voted against the amendment would have been unjust to the prohibitionists, and to have voted for it, unjust to those who are opposed—both having joined in adopting the platform and nominating him to stand upon it.

Seventh—Because votes by republicans for St. John are thrown away from the party that favors majority rule,—a free ballot and fair count,—a government of the people, by the people, and for the people, and which permits a vote on the question of prohibition under all proper circumstances; thrown away in favor of the party that is opposed to all prohibitory legislation whether the people are in favor of it or not.

Eighth—Because republican votes for the prohibition ticket are three-fold worse than thrown away, i. e., they weaken the party of fair play; they strengthen the party of uncompromising hostility; and they indorse an unwise and illdigested movement that will greatly embarrass, retard and weaken the cause of prohibition.

Ninth—Because there not being the slightest prospect of the election of this so-called prohibition ticket, the only result of republicans voting for it in large numbers will be to put the democratic party in control of the general government.

Tenth—Because if this is the object, as some leaders in the movement avow it to be, it will be more honorable and straightforward to vote for Cleveland and Hendricks direct than for St. John, as this would avoid the odium of practicing a deception upon the friends of temperance in order to do a thing of such doubtful propriety as to put Gov. Cleveland into the white house.

Eleventh—Because we do not believe any true republican can honestly throw away his vote or aid directly or indirectly in electing the democratic ticket. If republicans have allowed abuses, democrats have always been worse. It is unreasonable to favor a change from bad to worse simply for a change. It would be tempting a great calamity. The success of the democratic party at this time would throw a dark cloud of doubt and uncertainty and a gloom of impending danger over the business interests of the country would last for years.

No one can tell what policy it would pursue, what of the republican legislation of the last twenty-five years it would repeal or what new measures it would adopt.

The danger and probabilities are that its acts would be in accord with its former course, doctrines and traditions, for it professes to adhere to all of its "time-honored principles." It is only safe to judge of these by its former acts, and by the known and oft-repeated sentiments of a majority of those composing and of course controlling the party. They are largely the men who made and sympathized with the war for the overthrow of the government. A caucus of its members of congress would be controlled by these men. And thus they would take charge of the government they so recently attempted to destroy.

Would the pensions of the disabled Union soldiers and the provisions for their care and preferments and for their widows and orphans be safe in such keeping?

The party opposed the creation of the national debt. Would the national credit be safe if intrusted to its care? It opposed the establishment of our national banking system. Would it not alter, cripple or overthrow it?

It has always opposed protective tariffs.

Would it not leave our manufacturing, productive, and labor interests without proper fostering care by its "revenue reforms?"

It opposed emancipation, enfranchisement, equality before the law, and civil rights for negro. Would it be likely to maintain and enforce the laws securing them? Or would it be a safe guardian and friend to promote the education and elevation of the negroes which are so important to their welfare and to the safety and prosperity of the institutions of the country?

It is opposed to the amendments to the constitution and the reconstruction acts, and has threatened in its platform their repeal. If put in power can any one tell what course it would pursue on these questions?

Is any republican so strong a prohibitionist as to be willing to jeopardize all these great interests for the purpose of throwing away his vote on Gov. St. John?

Twelfth—Because it is wrong to elect a party to power that ignores its principles and evades discussing the policy it intends to pursue, and attempts to get into power by personal detraction of its opponents. Do you propose to thus aid in indorsing the license of the press and the prostitution of the artists' pencils and orator's platforms to the purpose of robbing men of their good name that iterates and reiterates its personal detraction, misrepresentations and slanders as now resorted to by the democratic party through its old and new leaders, or do you favor "clean politics?"

Thirteenth—Both the nominees for president and vice president by the republican party are competent and worthy. Both are high-minded and honorable Christian gentlemen, members in good standing—one in the Congregational, the other in the Methodist Episcopal church—against whom the poisoned darts of malice have been hurled by their political enemies in vain. Both of whom have been in the clear light of the public gaze before the country for twenty years. They have occupied the highest places in the councils of the nation. They have been honored leaders of their party for all that long period, enjoying its implicit trust and unshaken confidence in their wisdom, integrity and faithfulness to public duty.

Fourteenth—Because the nominee of the democratic party for president is neither competent nor worthy to fill the highest and most responsible office in this great nation.

His gross blunder while dodging the tariff question in his letter accepting the nomination by declaring that the president has nothing to do with legislation—his office being simply executive—proves that he has no proper idea of the duties of the office. The constitution makes it the duty of the president to recommend to congress such legislation as he favors, and gives him the absolute power to prevent such as he opposes, unless passed by a two-thirds vote in each branch—the house of representatives and the senate.

As to his worthiness to occupy the white house, the whole country knows the grounds of our objections, which are not denied by his most earnest advocates.

As to the candidate for vice president, he has been too prominently before the country not to be known to be obnoxious to all that has been said against his party.

For these reasons we appeal to every true republican to stand by and vote the ticket of his party, and not to throw his vote away on either St. John, Butler or Mrs. Lockwood, for that will only aid the democrats, who, in the language of Mr. George William Curtis, are "a party which fell from power as a conspiracy against human rights, and now attempts to sneak back to power as a conspiracy for plunder and spoils." And for these reasons, we respectfully request ex-Gov. St. John to withdraw from the canvass.

Theodore D. Woolsey, New Haven, Conn.; Thomas Talbot, North Bellerica, Mass.; Noah Davis, New York city; Grant Goodrich, Chicago; John V. Farwell, Chicago; R. M. Hatfield, Evanston, Ill.; Orrington Lunt Evanston, Ill.; William Deering, Evanston, Ill.; John Evans, Denver, Col.; Ira Buckman, chairman, John L. Mitchell, secretary, New York state temperance assembly, Brooklyn, N. Y.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10, 1884.

The following petition is being circulated for signatures:

